Disarming of Luftwaffe by R.A.F.

(Aeronautical Correspondent of the London Times)

Since the end of the European war the strength of the British Air Forces of Occupation in Germany has been reduced by rather more than half. It now stands at about 50,000 officers and men and 25 operational squadrons, and it is expected that this will be its permanent size.

The pilots are doing more flying now than they did during the war. The average works out at some 260 hours a year, made up of routine patrols which serve the double purpose of "showing the flag" and providing training, and combined exercises with heavy bomber squadrons based in England.

At regular intervals Bomber Command squadrons fly out from England to make mock attacks on German centres, and Mosquitoes go up to intercept them. The German ground control system has been tried out, but the radar devices were so inferior that British equipment is now used. Night fighter units serve for a fortnight under BAFO and then give place to others sent from England. In this way all the squadrons are acquiring varied experience.

The two main tasks of the RAF in Germany at present are the disbandment of the Luftwaffe and the destruction or disposal of its equipment and factories. Both tasks are expected to be completed within the next six months. To date, about 486,000 German officers and men have been registered in the British sector and discharged or put to civilian tasks for the Allied military authorities.

The disarming of the Luftwaffe in the British sector is being carried out thoroughly and systematically. Each of the RAF's three operational groups occupies a separate geographical area of the sector, and each is responsible for "cleaning up" its own area. Each group's area is subdivided into wing areas which are further subdivided into squadron and flight areas. The districts are then small enough to be combed thoroughly by what is virtually a house-to-house search. The burgomaster of each town, village or hamlet is made personally responsible for reporting all arms, ammunition and war plant in his locality.

Much information has been received from displaced persons, Allied prisoners of war, and the Germans themselves; and the Allied intelligence services have been responsible for the discovery of many hidden dumps and stores. In addition, each unit of the RAF employs reconnaissance parties which conduct searches and investigate reports of hidden equipment and munitions.

The RAF is responsible for the disposal of only Luftwaffe material, but there is the closest cooperation between the three services. During the last stages of the war the Germans widely dispersed production units, stores, and dumps; in some areas there was hardly a barn, dance hall, or beer house which did not house some war material or plant. There has been some deliberate concealment, some of it so ingenious that mine detectors have had to be used. But this has been largely offset by the remarkable willingness of the Germans to act as informers.

All factories which were engaged in making aircraft, components, aero-engines, and instruments are being stripped and the plant removed. War planes are collected into dumps, valuable instruments and materials removed and the carcasses are then destroyed, often by running steamrollers over them. Any novel type of machine or equipment is specially reported to the Royal Aircraft Establishment at Farnborough, the RAF's experimental department, and it is not destroyed until Farnborough has given authority.

The Germans made full use of natural caves, quarries, mines, and other safe places for storing bombs and other explosives. I recently visited a bomb dump near Harth, on the edge of the Hartz mountains, where 15,000 tons of high explosives were stored in vast chambers tunnelled into the side of a hill. The bombs are taken into a clearing in the forest, stacked so that all will explode simultaneously, and detonated. The air-raid sirens are sounded in the neighboring villages and the inhabitants go to their shelters.

One interesting feature of the disarming of the Luftwaffe is the great quantity of poison-gas bombs and shells found. It is estimated at about 400,000 tons in the British sector alone. Thousands of rocket and flying bombs have been discovered, a great many of the latter adapted to be flown by a "suicide" pilot.

The RAF disarmament section has discovered 6,589 dumps of various kinds of weapons and equipment, and factories and workshops which had worked for the Luftwaffe, and reports of a further 511 are being investigated. So far 5,139 have been dealt with. The armament disposal section has destroyed or made harmless over 93,000 tons or explosives ranging from V-weapons to anti-personnel bombs, 84,000 tons of small arm and machine-guns, tens of thousands of rounds of ammunition, and 1,200 tons of miscellaneous equipment. From this total some 32,000 items of equipment have been sent to England for intelligence and experimental purposes. A careful survey of airfields has been carried out, and those not required by BAFO or for air transport purposes are being plowed up and returned to agriculture.

Hitler's Own Papers Indicate He Was Not Bluffing at Munich

William L. Shirer made part use of a Florida holiday ordered by the doctors to read German official documents. He has summarized for his readers in the Sunday edition of The Herald Tribune some of his findings about the origins and progress of the war. It would seem, at first, that the world has so many problems at the moment clamoring for attention that the task of writing past history can wait. But this past about which Mr. Shirer has so many interesting things to say is very recent, and they are often helpful to a proper understanding of today's pressing problems.

Hitler Did Not Bluff.

Today, for example, the word appeasement is back in active circulation. It has kept its original connotation of trying to buy off an aggressor who could be stopped by a show of force. That is why it is certainly a correction of history, as Mr. Shirer calls it in his first installment, on February 24, to be told that Chamberlain and Daladier at Munich did not yield to a Hitler bluff.

Mr. Shirer, who covered the story at Godesberg and Munich and Berlin in 1938, was among those who believed that Hitler was bluffing. But from Hitler's own papers and other documents it is now clear that the Fuehrer was ready to fight France and England in order to smash Czechoslovakia as early as the summer of 1938, and by July he was planning to take on Russia if she intervened.

Yugoslavs Help Moscow.

On June 21, 1941, Hitler did attack Russia. According to a later secret memorandum by Grand Admiral Raeder, the active planning began in August, 1940. Hitler's directive called for all preparations completed by May 15. Why the delay?

Among the questions asked and answered by Mr. Shirer in his article last Sunday is this: Did Yugoslav resistance really delay the beginning of the German attack on Russia and thus contribute in no small measure to Hitler's failure to take Moscow before the advent of Winter stopped his armies in December, 1941? The answer is yes. General Halder, chief of the general staff at the time, has said: "The Yugoslav campaign delayed the beginning of the Russian campaign by about two months."

Two Costly Months.

The Yugoslav story, as we know from the record, is that on March 25, 1941, the Belgrade government under Axis pressure signed a pact with Hitler. Two days later a military uprising at Belgrade threw out Regent Prince Paul and his pro-Axis ministers and proclaimed young Peter as king. On April 8 the German armies struck and before the end of the month all organized Yugoslav resistance collapsed. Serb guerrilla resistance continued under Colonel Mikhailovitch and gathered strength as German forces were withdrawn for the Russian campaign. The elements behind this Yugoslav resistance which caused Hitler a loss of two precious months in Russia, according to General Halder, are not the same forces that came later to be closely identified with the Russian cause in Yugoslavia.

Formidable Atlantic Wall.

And finally, what about the famous Second Front, which the Western Allies were so remiss in not opening up in 1943, as so many self-constituted military experts were arguing at the time, with occasional echoes even now? For wasn't it plain that Germany's strength in the west was by then a mere shell which must have collapsed under a real Allied thrust?

Mr. Shirer now says the answer is to be found in a secret lecture by General Jodl before Nazi party chiefs at Munich on November 7, 1943. It was drawn from documents apparently drafted by Hitler himself.

"It discloses that the Western front was far from denuded the year before our invasion even though things were going badly (for the Germans) in the east. In France and the Lowlands German troops in the fall of 1943 numbered 1,370,000 men, General Jodl says, and they were plentifully supplied with artillery. Now is the Atlantic Wall a propaganda fiction. The Atlantic Wall is far stronger than were the West Wall or the Maginot Line. In Denmark the Germans had a force of 106,000 men; in Norway, 315,000 men."

Fondly Held Views.

Mr. Shirer's revisions of widely accepted judgments, including some of his own, are of course not the very last word on the subjects he touches. They are one man's pickings from a vast body of documents, and we know that the battles of post-war historians are much longer than the wars they deal with. But, on the other hand, there are items on which the evidence is sufficient for a definitive opinion; like General Halder's reminder of what those Yugoslavs whom we now would call anti-Tito did in 1941 to help out Russia against Hitler; or General Jodl's solid opinion of the Atlantic Wall which so many critics here at home were ready to storm at the point of their fountain pens. Hideous Story To be Unfolded In Paris Trial

By MEL MOST

Paris, March 18 —(AP)— The story of a charnel house of charred bones and dismembered bodies will be unfolded by the state in a murder trial involving perhaps 63 victims, opened today in a Paris courtroom.

Black-bearded, 55-year-old Dr. Marcel Petoit, whose dwelling disgorged a cluster of human remains, will be charged with luring victims with promises of escape from occupied France.

He is charged with having disposed of the bodies in a white-hot furnace, in a lime pit, or by dismembering them by expert amputation, and with distributing the packaged remains in the Seine river or in the Pois de Boulogne park.

Only 27 victims have been definitely identified — mostly Jews who the state said had paid the beetle-browed little physician huge sums to help them escape the Nazis.

Petiot in a pre-trial interrogation calmly told the examining magistrates he had killed or helped to kill 63 persons, but claimed his victims were collaborationists and that he was the head of a mysterious resistance band.

Petiot, whose deep-set, piercing eyes, curling mustache and beard gave him a mephistophelian look, already is a legendary figure in France. News of the approaching trial has crowded world events from the front pages of the newspapers.

The state charges that the crimes began at least two years before the discoveries by the police. During that period, the prosecution charges, parts of human bodies had been found in the Seine river and in the Bois de Boulogne park near the Petoit house.

The prosecution said all Petoit's victims were killed either by the injection of a drug or by entombment in the lime pit. Their bodies then either were burned in the cellar furnace or quartered by amputation, packaged and thrown into the Seine or hidden in the park, it was charged.

"It's something you girls shouldn't laugh at"

"Mother won't tell me what it cost," said Elaine to Cousin Edna, who was hooking up the exquisite dress. "But it's within the budget, you may be sure. Trust mother for that."

"Budgets sound unromantic, especially on a day like this," Mother admitted. "But we could never have given Elaine such a wedding unless we had budgeted. It's something you girls shouldn't laugh at. Dad and I began budgeting on our wedding trip. We had to . . . and we just got home with a few cents margin."

"Isn't it an awful bother, though?"

"We'd be more bothered and worried without it. No, it's simple. First, we always set aside the money for Dad's life insurance; that means we have no worries about the future. Then we figure on so much a month for living expenses . . . and then! . . . with what's left we can be extravagant. That's the great thing . . . to feel when you're spending that the essentials and the future are taken care of. Then you can spend with an easy mind."

4 Wolfe Is. Men Drown as Skiff Overturns

Four Others Cling To Upset Craft Until Rescued

Bodies of Two of Victims Are Recovered by Dragging

Kingston, March 19 (CP) — Bodies of two of four Wolfe Island men drowned when a heavily-loaded ice skiff overturned just off Wolfe Island yesterday, were recovered overnight and dragging operations continued today for the others.

Four other men rescued by two shore workmen after clinging to the capsized boat midway between Kingston and Wolfe Island were reported in "good condition" today.

Bodies recovered were those of George Alarie, 19, near the shore of the island, and Clarence Adair, 26. Still missing are the bodies of Gerald Alarie, 20, brother of George, and Howard Cummings, 23.

The four rescued were Leon McDermott, 29; Keith McCreedy, 24; John Lacey, 60, and Robert White, 25. They were pulled from the icy waters by W. J. Hogan and C. F. Guernsey, Brophy's Point workmen who found a 16-foot skiff without oars at a nearby lighthouse and reached the scene by using pieces of wood as paddles.

Cummings recently was discharged from the United States army.

Dotted with Broken Ice.

The three-mile stretch between the mainland and Wolfe Island was dotted with broken ice and sunken masses of ice when the eight started out with a heavy load of supplies and mail in the skiff, which had been equipped to float in the water or be pulled over the ice. They were believed to have been only 100 feet from the island when the frail craft capsized and sank.

All the supplies in the boat were lost. The searchers, who started dragging the waters in bright moonlight last night, recovered one large bag of mail.

The craft sank as it approached Brophy's Point at the point where the St. Lawrence enters Lake Ontario. The channel there is from 50 to 60 feet deep. The men had started out from a point a few miles distant from the city, because Kingston Bay is still largely filled with ice.

The drowned men, all residents of Wolfe Island, had safely made the crossing to the mainland yesterday morning. The survivors, brought back to Kingston last night, could give no reason for the sudden capsizing of the craft.

Only five days ago Cummins had been acclaimed for waking his parents and neighbors in two adjacent homes as fire swept thru' the three Wolfe Island residences.

Seemed Like Half a Day.

McCreedy, recovering from the experience, said from his bed today that "we could see the boat was going to turn over and we started to throw things out, but it didn't do any good."

"There seemed to be quite a few waves coming in. The boat seemed to fill and as it went under it turned over. Some of us grabbed onto it and I guess we were hanging on for about half an hour, but it seemed like half a day, before the boat came from shore to save us.

"I could see one of the fellows trying to swim for shore, but he didn't make it. Another of the fellows was attempting to float on his back. I guess he was just trying to keep above water.

"I pushed a cream can out to one of them and he hung on for awhile, then he just let go and went under. I guess he was too cold to hang on any longer."

The boat had been equipped to float on the water or be pulled over the ice. It was loaded with provisions and mail for the 300-odd inhabitants of the island.

"It was everybody for himself," said McCreedy. "We were all floundering around in the water with the boxes and cream cans and stuff."

Mayors Cannot Grant Permission To Hold Bingos

Toronto, March 19 (CP)—Copies of Ontario Attorney-General Leslie Blackwell's recent clarification in the legislature of the laws concerning lotteries, bingos and raffles have been sent to all crown attorneys in Ontario, Deputy Attorney-General C. L. Snyder said yesterday.

Mr. Snyder said crown attorneys had been instructed to pass the information to all chief constables, senior municipal office holders, newspaper editors and all others interested in the regulations.

"Crown attorneys will appreciate that it is beyond the authority of the attorney-general to grant permission to a person or organization to do anything which might be construed as a violation of the Criminal Code of Canada," said Mr. Snyder.

"A person or organization which runs a bingo does so solely on his or its responsibility. A municipal council or official is entirely without authority to grant permission."

Peterborough Baby Taken to Boston For Examination

Toronto, March 19 — (CP) — Eighteen-month-old Jimmy Kidd, "blue-baby" of Peterboro, left here with his mother last night for examination and possible operation at Massachussetts General Hospital to correct his condition, caused by a lack of oxygen.

Back home in the eastern Ontario city of Peterboro, are Jimmy's father, suffering from a nerve disease that prevents him from working, and Jimmy's eight-year-old brother, Ronald, who suffers from a heart condition.

The trip was made possible through donations by a Peterboro service club (Rotary), and the mother, Mrs. M. J. Kidd, and child made the first leg of the journey here during the weekend. They will reach Boston late today.

The entire community rallied behind the family when it was learned the Boston trip was necessary. Besides the service club, the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire, neighbors, relatives, friends and school students contributed donations.

Labor Shortage, Warm Weather, Highlights of Crop Report

Toronto, March 19 (CP) — A scarcity of experienced help, an uncertain maple sap season and alarm over the unseasonable warm weather, are highlights of the weekly crop report issued today by the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

In Western Ontario practically all the snow has disappeared and from Grey County come reports that the maple syrup run has slowed down. The labor situation throughout the district is more serious than at any time throughout the war years.

Warm weather has prevailed throughout southern and central Ontario and some farmers have been working on the land. Maple trees have been tapped but the run has not been satisfactory. Fruit growers are spraying peaches, pears and cherries. Much fall wheat is short and thin but apparently alive. Fruit growers have been busy with their pruning but are concerned with the warm weather which has developed the buds rapidly.

Central Ontario farmers report the maple sap run to be uncertain, the sap has been scarce and the quantity made to date is small. Orchardists are busy shaping their trees but there is much speculation as to the effect of a second abnormal season on fruit production. Farm labor is scarce.

A fair run of maple sap has been reported in Eastern Ontario. Early spring weather has stimulated the demand for labor but the prospect is discouraging. In Grenville County milk production is not holding up because of a poor quality of hay feed. Lanark and Leeds Counties report a poor run of maple sap. However, a bright note comes from Renfrew County where farmers report an exceptionally good sap run.

In Northern Ontario a large amount of logs and pulp will not be taken out because of the labor situation.

HOUSE APPROVES MALAYAN UNION UNDER THE CROWN

Another Remarkable Episode in Britain's Long History Of Empire Building

By DOUGLAS BROWN

London, March 19 (Reuters)—The House of Commons has approved the Straits Settlements Bill which puts into the statute books one of the most remarkable episodes in Britain's long history of empire building—the consolidation of a group of semi-independent sultanates into a Malayan Union under the crown.

Based on a plan drrawn up by the Churchill coalition government, and defended by the Labor government as a step in the path toward representative government for the Malay population, the move has been denounced by many critics in Britain as a breach of faith with the native rulers of the Sultanates.

The chief charge against it has lain not against the government's motives, but against the methods used to extract agreement from the native rulers.

Under the bill, the Straits Settlements of Penang and Malacca and seven Malay States of the peninsula will be formed into the Malay Union, and there will be a separate colony of Singapore.

Last September, Sir Harold MacMichael, former High Commissioner for Palestine, went to Malaya on a government mission.

Submitted a Report

In January he submitted a report to the colonial secretary from which it appeared that in the course of a lightning tour he had signed treaties which put an end to all the nine ancient and semi-independent Malayan States and brought them under the British Crown.

The story, when it became known, was received in many quarters of London with shocked surprise.

The vast mass of the peninsula has been under the rule of nine more or less independent Sultans, whose relations with the British Crown have depended upon treaties.

An essential principle of the new colony is that all races domiciled there should enjoy a common citizenship. The dispossessed Sultans will henceforth form merely an advisory council.

It is generally agreed that the "divided and separatist position" of the past, as controlled by nine petty autocrats, militated against economic development, against military security, and, above all, against local aspirations to self-government.

A-Bomb May Long Prevent Major War, Will Not Replace Army, Navy and Air Force

—Viscount Alexander

London, March 19 (Reuters) — Canada's Governor-General-designate—Field Marshal Viscount Alexander—today said the coming of the atomic bomb might prevent another major war for a long time.

The famed Irish-born soldier made his statement when he was presented with the freedom of the City of London in one of the greatest receptions of his career.

He said his opinion on the Atomic bomb probably would be his last expression of opinion as a soldier. He did not believe that the atomic bomb would put armies, navies and air forces out of commission.

Viscount Alexander was supreme Allied commander in the Mediterranean theatre from 1944 until the end of the war and was largely responsible for driving the enemy from El Alamein to the Alps.

The new Governor-General, who is expected to go to Canada early next month, said:

"The atom bomb is a weapon of destruction and, as such, must be handled by experts, which are your armies, navies and air forces. The atom bomb will undoubtedly revolutionize warfare as much as, if not more so than the discovery of gunpowder. It will not alter the main principles of strategy, but it will change tactics. Armies, navies and air forces will not be replaced by it, but their functions aand organisations will be changed because of it."

Lord Alexander was the latest in a long line of military commanders to receive the freedom of the city here. The last freedom ceremony at the Guild Hall was that of Gen. Eisenhower, former supreme commander in Europe and now United States army chief-of-staff.

Replies to United States White Book Alleging Spanish Collaboration With Nazis

Madrid, March 19 (CP) — The Franco government was on record today with a denial that it "was compromised" with the Axis powers and with charges that United States engaged in espionage activities in Spanish North Africa in 1943.

The foreign ministry issued a 5,000-word statement last night, replying to the recent United States White Book alleging Spanish collaboration with the Axis during the war.

The document said Spain had to complain to the United States "because of activities of its officials and secret service agents." The only information it gave concerning these alleged espionage activities was that they were related to "certain subversive attempts in Spanish territory, especially in Malaga and Melilla."

Malaga is in southern Spain and Melilla is in Spanish Morocco.

The Spanish reply contained these points in defence of Spanish policy during the war:

1. The United States government fully and spontaneously recognized General Franco's government on April 1, 1939.

2. When the United States entered the war Spain reaffirmed her policy of neutrality.

3. Normal relations between Spain and the United States were maintained during the war.

4. When the Allies landed in North Africa in 1942 President Roosevelt assured General Franco Spain had nothing to fear from the United Nations.

5. Spain allowed the American organization for assisting European refugees to work in Spain and allowed several hundred United States airmen to rejoin their units after landing on Spanish territory.

6. Spain complied with Allied demands for the release of Italian warships interned in the Balearic Isles and German ships anchored in Spanish ports, and for the rupture of diplomatic relations with Japan.

RUSSIA OFFICIALLY BEGINS NEW PLAN FOR DEVELOPMENT

Both Houses Adopt Latest Five-Year Undertaking Unanimously

By REMBERT JAMES

Moscow, March 19 — (AP) — Russia today embarked officially on a new five-year plan designed to place the nation in the forefront among the users of atomic energy and to boost industrial production to 1 1/2 times the prewar level by 1950.

The plan, presented last Friday to the Supreme Soviet by N. A. Voznesensky, head of the State Planning Department, was adopted unanimously yesterday by both houses of the Russian parliament.

Under the measure, annual iron production would be increased to 19,000,000 tons; steel, 25,000,000 tons; coal 250,000,000 tons; oil, 35,000,000 tons; and electric power, 85,000,000,000 killowatt hours. Expenditures for education and culture would be boosted to the equivalent of about $13,333,000,000.

Voznesensky, in sponsoring the plan, asserted the Soviet Union would maintain and strengthen her military forces during the 5-year period from 1946 to 1950, and that prizes would be awarded to scientists to stimulate atomic research.

Machinery Minister A. E. Yefremov told the council of the Union of the Supreme Soviet that if the aims of the plan were achieved Russia would be too powerful for any other power to overcome, even if an attack should come unheralded.

(The Moscow radio, heard in London, said yesterday the principal task of the new plan was to equip "the armed forces with the latest weapons" and to consolidate the country's defences. The U.S.S.R. is not thinking of seizing "foreign territory," commentator Linetsky said, but of "consolidating peace and security."

Fined $1,700 For Illegal Possession Of Beaver Skins

Sudbury, Ont., March 19 (CP) —Sam Leibovitz, of Foleyet, Ont. was fined $1,700 and costs of $171.50 when he was convicted in police court yesterday of illegal possession of 17 beaver skins.

Highlight of the case was the dismissal from the witness stand of Paul Brunell, called by defence counsel Harry Waisberg. In dismissing Brunell, Magistrate W. M. Cooper said: "I don't believe a word he said. I have never been so sure a witness was lying in all my history in court."

Previously, Mr. Waisberg had invoked the protection of the court in order that his client might call Brunell as a witness.

FRANK FOREIGN POLICY URGED BY JOHN BRACKEN

Points to a Strong Commonwealth Best Hope for Permanent Peace in World

By D'ARCY O'DONNEL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, March 19 (CP) — John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, Monday urged Canadian government to adopt a foreign policy which would help preserve and strengthen the British Commonwealth of Nations.

Pointing to a strong commonwealth as the best hope of permanent peace in the world, Mr. Bracken said he was one who did not think Canada could achieve her "highest destiny by weakening the family of British nations only to become eventually a 49th state in the American union."

Mr. Bracken made the statement while participating in debate on the address in reply to the Throne Speech. He coupled his appeal for a frank foreign policy with demands for reductions in taxation and expenditures. He suggested several changes in parliamentary procedure to hasten the work of the session.

"To make our full international contribution, Canada must have a continuous and consistent foreign policy," said Mr. Bracken. "Improvisation is not good enough. To ensure continuity, to ensure the full assumption of our world responsibility, it is imperative. Among other things, that a separate Ministry of External Affairs be created...

World Should Know

"The positive knowledge by the world as well as by the members of the commonwealth that Canada means to be a loyal partner in that family of nations, will do more than anything else to give it the moral power and prestige now so essential to the cause of world peace," said Mr. Bracken.

"If we now fail that great family of British nations, and it should thus be made weaker at this critical time in the world's history, Canada will eventually find itself but a satellite of the United States of America; at first to become dominated by it economically and later on to become absorbed politically into the great republic...

Dahlerus Says Sweden Rejected Suggestion to Mediate in August 1939

By NOLAND NORGAARD

Nuernberg, March 19 (AP) — Birger Dahlerus, a Swedish engineer, testified today that the Swedish government rejected a suggestion three weeks before the outbreak of the Second Great War that it—or King Gustav—attempted to mediate between Germany and Britain.

However, Dahlerus told the International Military Tribunal, the government offered no objection to a private citizen attempting such intervention and he said he personally carried a six-point peace plan from Hitler to Prime Minister Chamberlain four days before the Wehmarcht marched into Poland.

Taking the stand as a defence witness for Hermann Goering, Dahlerus gave a vivid picture of a midnight meeting with the Fuehrer in Berlin. He said Hitler, highly excited, shouted:

"I will build U-boats, U-boats —U-boats I will build. I will build airplanes, airplanes, airplanes, and I will win the war."

Dahlerus' account of his negotiations parallelled in its essentials the story previously told in his book, "The Last Attempt," and included much material already related in a British foreign office blue book.

The witness said Hitler's proposals, which he took to 10 Downing Street August 27, 1939, for submission to Mr. Chamberlain, Lord Halifax and others, were:

1. Germany would sign a pact of alliance with Britain.

2. Britain would help Germany obtain Danzig and the Polish corridor, but give the Poles the use of Danzig's port.

3. Germany would guarantee Poland's sovereignty.

4. Agreement on Germany's former colonies.

5. "Adequate guarantees" on the treatment of the German minority in Poland.

6. Germany would pledge to "defend the British Empire with the German Wehrmacht wherever it might be attacked."

Before handing over the proposals, Dahlerus said, Hitler upbraided Britain and asked bitterly why he found it impossible to reach an agreement with Britain. Dahlerus said he responded that it was because the "British people lacked confidence in him."

Prime Minister Outlines Details To Crowded House

At One Time Considered Going to See Premier Stalin

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, March 19 —(CP)— Prime Minister Mackenzie King outlined to a tense House of Commons Monday night the steps which led to Canada's Soviet spy inquiry and said he hoped no one in a responsible position in Canada would suggest that the Dominion should sever diplomatic relations with Russia.

His audience included Fred Rose, the Labor - Progressive member charged in the inquiry, who listened quietly in his seat, and several persons out on bail on espionage charges who heard the story from the thronged public galleries.

Mr. King took the House back to last September when Igor Gouzenko, cipher clerk in the Soviet embassy, came to Canadian officials to tell them of what he described as a "fifth column" developed in Canada by Soviet agents seeking secret and confidential information.

Made Disclosures.

As he filled in gaps in the many-sided inquiry Mr. King made these disclosures:

1. He at one time considered going to Russia personally to bring the situation to the attention of Generalissimo Stalin and still was prepared to do so if it would assist matters.

2. He did not think Mr. Stalin would "countenance action of this kind on the part of his country" and believed a change would come when the facts were known to the Soviet Premier and other responsible Russian authorities.

3. Gouzenko had claimed that a "fifth column" was being created in Canada by Soviet agents, with the infiltration going in a "very wide direction."

4. Canada was being made a base to obtain information on matters of "very great and grave concern" to the United States and Great Britain as well as information on subjects of the "utmost concern" to Canada.

5. Last fall a British scientist "very much trusted" by his government and who had "perhaps as much knowledge as anyone on matters pertaining to the release of atomic energy" had been scheduled to "make contact" with a Soviet representative in London but the meeting did not materialize.

Claims Too Much Secrecy.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, who followed the Prime Minister, said there had been "too much secrecy, too much mystery" in the government's handling of the investigation.

Mr. King began by quoting the first interim report of the Royal

Dr. A. Nunn May Sent to Trial, Bail is Refused

London, March 19 — (CP) — Dr. Alan Nunn May, 34-year-old British physicist who worked in Canada on nuclear research in the wartime pursuit of atomic energy, was held for trial today on charges of violating the Official Secrets Act by giving atomic information to an undisclosed person.

Dr. May was refused bail by Magistrate Harold Ocjenna of Bow Street Court, who said the defendant's release might be "against public policy."

The section of the act under which Dr. May is charged deals with the communication of information "for purposes prejudicial to the safety or interest of the state . . . which was calculated to be or might be directly or indirectly useful to an enemy."

Prosecutor Anthony Hawke won a ruling from the magistrate that the state involved "might be any potential enemy."

The report of a British intelligence officer was submitted but not read. Prosecutor Hawke said it contained the accusation that Dr. May gave a document on nuclear physics research and some samples of materials to an unidentified person. Mr. Hawke said specifically that one paragraph was not to be read aloud because of the information it contained.

The scientist worked in Canada on atomic experiments from January, 1943, until September, 1945, when he returned to England.

No Answer to Question.

The only time any nation was mentioned during the proceedings was when Gerald Gardner, counsel for Dr. May, asked a witness: "In February of last year, Russia was a gallant ally, was it not?"

The witness, Sir Wallace Akers, director of research for Imperial Chemical Industries and a director of nuclear physics research for Britain during the war, did not answer. Magistrate McKenna ordered the question stricken after Hawke objected that he had not mentioned "Russia or America or any country" in his presentation.

Sir Wallace testified that samples of material which the statement accused Dr. May of giving away "would enable scientists to determine certain nuclear physical data." He said this would save time of any group of scientists attempting atomic research.

Held "Vital Position."

Mr. Hawke told the court that Dr. May held a "vital position" on the nuclear physics team which worked at Cambridge University for several months and then was sent to Canada, He said Dr. May served on two committees which gave him access to "secret reports and the latest information on the production of uranium."

The prosecution's charge did not mention by name any person or country to which Dr. May allegedly supplied information, saying only that he communicated information on atomic energy to "another person."

SYRUP-MAKING SEASON 'WASHOUT' SAYS MAKER

Unseasonable warm weather may be splendid for the muskrat trappers, but thus far it has proven a knockout blow for farmers who anticipated a good syrup-making season, according to district makers.

In the vernacular of one district sugar maker the season thus far has been a "washout" and he did not hold any expectation of any improvement. Already the snow has completely disappeared from the woods and it was doubted any future weather combination would see an improvement in the sap run. With the present warm weather it was felt that trees might have to be re-tapped if full advantage were to be taken of any change to more favorable sap weather.

LARGE DEAD BUCK FOUND IN BUSH

Dead approximately one day when discovered, the animal was reported to be in poor condition. The deer had been seen in the neighborhood a few days prior to its being found dead.

Thus far the sale of dog tags has not been comparable with that of other years, approximately 300 having been sold up to the present time. The tags may be secured at the City Hall, and City Poundkeeper Thomas Thorne, urged all dog owners to comply with the laws governing the sale of the tags.

Fire damage in the shed which was attached to the dwelling was confined to several brooms, while the wood was slightly charred from the flames.

This morning firemen were called to College Street on a grass fire alarm.

Two Plead Guilty To Robbery With Violence Charges

Pleading guilty to charges of robbery with violence involving the taking of $50 from George F. Milner, East Lake, after having struck him over the head with a small rock, Keith Dunning, 20, of Plainfield, and Douglas Bunnett, 18, were sentenced to reformatory terms when they appeared in city police court Tuesday morning before Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

Dunning was sentenced to two years less one day, definite, and a further term of two years less one day, indefinite, in the Ontario reformatory, while Bunnett received the same definite term plus an indefinite term of one year less one day.

The offense for which the two young men were charged took place on the evening of March 2nd, when Bunnett met Milner and later, in company with Dunning, the trio proceeded along the track on St. James Street where Miller, it was charged, was struck over the head with a stone in the hands of Dunning.

In a statement read in court by Inspector Clair Hayes, Bunnett admitted planning to get Milner's money away from him, but stated he had not anticipated violence. Following the assault along the C.N.R. tracks near Gt. St. James Street, Dunning and Bunnett had forced Milner to walk back to his hotel room where the balance of his money was taken. The two had given back to Milner $5 and had split $45 between them, warning Milner not to say anything to police.

Dr. Russell Scott, testifying in court, stated he had examined Milner following the assault, the examination revealing a contusion with abrasions on the right side of the head. Milner was suffering from a mild type of concussion and "passed out" during the examination.

In his statement read in court, Dunning admitted striking Milner with his fist, but Dr. Scott stated it would be difficult to effect with a fist an injury such as Milner suffered. The prosecution presented as an exhibit a small rock which Dunning was claimed to have used in the assault.

E. E. Follwell appeared as counsel for the two accused.

Military Honors Accorded Late George H. Smith

Beneath brilliant March sun, upwards of one hundred veterans of two wars reverently laid scarlet poppies on the flag - draped casket of a gallant comrade when they paid final tribute to the memory of the late George Henry Smith, veteran of the South African and First Great Wars who died in Belleville General Hospital on Thursday last.

From the Belleville Burial Company Chapel on Campbell Street, where former Wing Commander Grant Sparling, rector of Christ Church, himself a four-year veteran of the last war, officiated at an impressive funeral service, a long funeral cortege wended its way slowly to the Belleville Cemetery where interment was made.

Flanking the flower covered grave the veterans stood reverently at attention in two ranks, as Mr. Sparling pronounced the brief committal service. Member of the executive of the Dominion Command, Army and Navy Veterans of Canada, James H. Lazenby read the beautifully impressive funeral service of his organization.

Marched to Graveside

At the conclusion of the service young veterans of the Second Great War, bereted and bemedalled mingled with the older veterans of the 1914-18 campaign as they marched in threes to the graveside, placed their poppies on the casket, saluted and fell back into line.

The parade was under the direction of Vice President William McKenna, acting for President William Ford, while the veterans funeral services were conducted by Mr. Lazenby.

Honorary pall bearers were — Messrs. A. Randall; William McKenna; Percy Ford; George McIntosh; Paddy Collins and Fred Wiggins. Active pall bearers were members of the original 34th Field Battery, Royal Canadian Artillery with which the late George Smith fought in the First Great War. They included Captain Bert Wells; Battery Sergeant Major William Lindsay; Sergeant Bob. Browning; Lieutenant L. Noakes; Regimental Sergeant Major Len Fry, and Battery Sergeant Major Lee Gould.

Last Post Sounded

At the conclusion of the graveside service and with veterans standing rigidly at attention Mr. Jack Green, cornet virtuoso of this city sounded the "Last Post" and "Reveille" in final tribute to a gallant soldier and comrade.

Mr. G. H. Smith was a veteran of the South African War also the First Great War, enlisting at Cobourg, Ont. in 1914 with the heavy battery, proceeding overseas with the First Brigade of the first contingent. He returned in 1918 to Port Hope and came to reside in Belleville, being employed on the car department of the C. N.R. of which he was employed until being retired in 1939. He was a member of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen's Union and also a member of the C. N. R. Veterans' Association of Belleville. During the last war he was associated with the R.C.A.F. at Mountain View.

MARMORA

Discuss Extension Of Nursing Home

Marmora — Representatives of the municipalities of Marmora village, Marmora township and Deloro village met in the public library on Friday evening to discuss the possibility of putting the existing nursing home of Mrs. E. Lawlor in a shape which would take care of a larger number of patients than at present and to come up to government requirements. H. W. Sabine was asked to take the chair and W. J. Cottrell was appointed secretary pro tem.

Discussion on the possible cost of necessary improvements occupied the greater part of the session. Reeve C. H. Buskard, Deloro; Reeve R. E. Neal, Marmora village, and Reeve John A. Bell, Marmora and Lake township, expressed coinciding views on the advisability of the project being furthered.

A motion was passed that the acting secretary write to the Department of Health outlining the proposed improvements and enquiring if the government would recognize the establishment as a hospital and grant the necessary licence. The meeting was addressed by Dr. H. Crawford who outlined the improvements he felt were necessary. Adjournment was made to the call of Dr. Crawford.

Capt. Bert Wells Given Efficiency Decoration

Veteran of 26 years actual service in the militia and Canadian active army overseas, Captain J. H. (Bert) Wells, 142 Moira Street West has been awarded the Canadian Efficiency Decoration, it was announced today.

With war service counting "double time" Captain Wells is officially credited with 32 years service with the Canadian army.

He joined the 34th Field Battery R.C.A. on militia re-organization in 1920 with the rank of bombardier signaller. Particularly adapted to military life and especially artillery, his rise through the ranks was rapid. He became a sergeant and battery sergeant major, serving for a number of years in these capacities before being gazetted a lieutenant in January, 1935.

Shortly after his promotion to commissioned ranks he was appointed adjutant of the 9th Field Brigade, RCA, with the rank of captain.

Reverting to the rank of lieutenant when he joined the active army in 1940, he went overseas with the First Canadian Division, later regaining his "third pip" and serving in Sicily and Italy with the 2nd Field Regiment, RCA. Later in the campaign he was invalided out but was retained in England in an administrative capacity. He became associated in this respect with the 1st Canadian Depot and later the Khaki University of Canada in the United Kingdom.

Since his return from overseas he has become associated with the Hiram Walker and Sons Ltd. Company of Walkerville, Ont., as manager for this district.

Kinsmen Hear Address On 'Social Worker'

The duties as a professional social worker and the good which they do among the more unfortunate people of the larger centres, was the topic of an address by members of the local Kinsmen Club at their regular meeting Monday evening when Mrs. Grant Sparling, former social worker in Hamilton, was the guest speaker.

The aims of a social worker were not to pass judgment upon those people with whom she was working, but to begin where others leave off and endeavor to remove obstacles from their lives, according to Mrs. Sparling. She told of the great amount of good which could be done through the "big sister" movement, through child work and other phases of a social workers' program.

The place which play, love, worship and work have in life was fully understood by a social worker, who considered play as the expression of personality, while love was the reaching out of human helpfulness. The guest speaker was introduced by Kin Ted Follwell, with club appreciation being expressed by Kin Frank Lang.

Kinsmen club will more thoroughly investigate the various phases of social work, it was intimated by Kin Cleo Colling who announced the formation of five separate committees to obtain information on what club's responsibilities would be in following up the "big brother" movement, in city welfare and in organized sports for children in certain age groups. The various committees will report at the next Kinsmen meeting.

Appearing on charges of breaking and entering with attempted theft, three local youths were remanded for sentence when all three pleaded guilty in magistrate's police court Tuesday morning.

Charged as above were Roland McGrath, 19; William Archer, 20; and Douglas Woodcock, 23, all three being arrested by local police shortly after they broke into the grocery store owned by William Dennis, Pine Street, on the evening of March 12.

According to police two police cruisers had converged on the area following a report that an attempt was being made to break into the Dennis store. Woodcock, acting as lookout, had been arrested upon arrival of police, while an instant later the two others had emerged from the rear door of the store and had attempted to make their getaway through back alleys. Archer had been arrested following a brief chase, while McGrath was picked up in a local pool room about one hour later.

All three of the youths pleaded guilty as charged and stated they did not wish to be represented by counsel.

Statement in court by Inspector Hayes that a "dozen or more shots had been fired into the air by police" during the chase brought a protest from Archer who claimed one of the bullets had torn a button off his jacket.

The morning's docket was one of the largest in recent weeks with 31 cases being listed, 22 of which were settled out of court.

Thirteen drunks, two of them second offenders, paid the conventional fines, while four motorists contributed $2 each for over-time parking. Two other motorists paid fines for operating a motor vehicle without effective brakes, while still another paid a fine for careless driving.

China a Land Of Vivid Contrasts Rotarians Told

Taking as his subject "China Behind the News," the Rev. George Burch, of Toronto and China, gave members of the Rotary Club an informative insight of the customs of the "oldest country on earth," at the weekly luncheon on Monday.

"China," the speaker said, "was a land of vivid contrasts. On one hand there are rickshaws, famine and filth and on the other luxury and plenty."

Marked difference is seen in the young Chinese students, returning from American colleges filled with education, and anxious to use it, while on the other hand is the old Chinese content to sit around in their national costumes, drink tea, abhor exercise and athletics and are quite happy in quoting the old proverbs and doing nothing about the country.

"Then there is seen," Mr. Burch said, "the young Chinese girls, who are taking to games and taking part in all kinds of athletics as compared to the elderly ladies of the old school, with bound feet and are quite content to go through life leaning on a cane."

Marked Changes.

These marked changes in their country and people are quite confusing to the Chinese nation. Rapid changes have taken place during the past thirty years and the people are a bit muddled over the quick transformation.

"There is little or no national loyalty in China," the speaker said. "Loyalty in the Chinese is confined mostly to families. That is why it is difficult to raise a national army. Press activities, that is forcing men to join the colors, is very much in vogue when a war threatens."

Homes in the country are primitive. There is little or no plumbing, and here it is that the "exotic odors" of the East are most noticeable.

The use of cows' milk is limited, in most parts of the huge country. Babies are suckled until they are two or three years of age when they are placed on a rice diet. The people, however, as a rule, are hospitable and polite and in most cases especially in the rural district are energetic. They raise two crops a year, rice in the summer and wheat in the winter.

"Plans are now afoot," Mr. Burch said, "to industrialize the Yangste Valley. Officials plan to erect a huge dam, said to be larger than the famous Boulder Dam of the United States."

By this means, the level of the Yangste River can be raised to the point where ocean-going vessels can proceed upstream as far as Yungking.

The speaker paid tribute to Chiang Kai Shek. "He is a sincere man in my belief, one who is trying to do the best he can with the tools at hand and the spirit and ability of the people."

ANOTHER CELEBRATION IS IN ORDER

FRANK FOREIGN

"Let us strengthen that community of nations called the British Commonwealth. Let us be proud to acknowledge our faith in it and the part we are to play in it. Let us no longer be hesitant to say that we will play our part in preserving it."

The United Nations organization would succeed if ordinary people the world over were helped to recognize that peace is the responsibility of all, not merely the responsibility of delegated governments.

Canada's position geographically left the Dominion with no choice but to throw her weight positively in the direction of peace and order in the world.

Turning to domestic matters, Mr. Bracken said he had four general criticisms and one suggestion with respect to the government's conduct of its business affairs:

Going Too Deeply Into Debt

1. The government is going too deeply into debt, and conducting its business too extravagantly, having in mind the possibility of a lower national income or a set-back in our economy, once the immediate and post-war needs are met.

2. The weight of the taxation to carry the heavy load imposed upon us by the government is discouraging production, both on the part of workers and on the part of business.

3. Government extravagance, inexcusable at any time, is criminal at a time like this; and the government has shown no evidence that it is capable of checking it.

4. The government has completely failed to live up to its election promises with respect to reduced taxation and, in this regard, has misled the people.

"I suggest that, whatever else it may do, it is imperative that the government increase the exemptions allowed to the lower income groups."

Legislation could be expedited by dealing in the House with only the main principles of measures introduced and by referring to committees the consideration of the detail they contain.

He believed that estimates for the coming fiscal year should be tabled as soon as the Throne Speech debate ends and that the budget should be presented at the same time or shortly after.

Accused Says He Had no Intention Killing Canadian

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Aurich, Germany, March 19 — (CP Cable)— Testifying in his own defence before an R.C.A.F. war crimes court, Johann Neitz, former German marine, said yesterday he repeatedly told FO. Rudolph Roman of Toronto to keep moving after he had taken him prisoner near Wilhelmshaven in October, 1944.

Neitz is charged with shooting FO. Roman twice with intent to kill after the Canadian had parachuted from his blazing bomber and had taken refuge in a lighthouse. Neitz is the first of four Germans charged with war crimes against the R.C.A.F. personnel to go on trial here. The others are charged with murdering prisoners of war.

Today the accused said when FO. Roman refused to keep moving he shot him.

He told the court how he captured the young Toronto flier and marched him across mudflats from the lighthouse to the shore.

Under question by his defence counsel, Sqdn.-Ldr. Vic Collins of Dunnville, Ont., Neitz said: "On shore I gave the airman an opportunity to rest a little while and then I asked him repeatedly to continue. He did not carry out the order. I asked him again and again and he did not obey. Then I called: 'Hands up.' He did not lift up his hands.

"I fired a shot to the right just as a warning shot. I asked him again to come along, thinking he had not understood me, and I also motioned with my hands. I said again hands up and he moved his right hand toward his leg. I thought he might have had a weapon and called hands up three times. Then I fired a second shot. I only wanted to wound him slightly, not to kill him."

Neitz maintained under further examination, by the defence council that he had no intention of killing FO. Roman.

"With a clear conscience I can say that. I only wanted to put him out of action in case he had a weapon".

Lean and pale, the accused sat hunched in the witness box and after he got over this initial nervousness he ran through the story of how he had taken two other airmen prisoner the night before. He had had to pull out of mud in which he had sunk to his knees, he said.

Sqdn.-Ldr. Collins asked Neitz about the testimony of Paul Bornert, lighthouse keeper, who had told the court that the accused had told him he intended to "bump off" the airman.

"Bornert must have had a personal grudge against me and only said this to keep his job at the lighthouse," Neitz replied.

PRIME MINISTER

Commission probing the ring, which told of the development of a network of undercover agents seeking secret information from Canadian government employees and operating under direct instructions from Moscow.

That, said Mr. King, would give the House "at once the vast significance and importance" of the situation.

The Prime Minister then recalled that last Sept. 6, when the first session of the new parliament was opening, he had been delayed in getting to the chamber. What had happened was that a young man from the Russian embassy" had gone to Justice Minister St. Laurent's office saying he had "most important" information disclosing a situation which "very seriously" threatened Canada.

It was a case where the government could not be "too careful or too cautious."

Clerk Surprised.

Mr. King said Gouzenko, who himself once had been a member of the Soviet secret service, had told of being in Canada a couple of years and of his "immense" surprise at the freedom of the people, at the way in which democratic institutions operated in the Dominion.

He felt he owed it to the people of Canada, and the people of Russia to disclose the condition of affairs as he had come to know it at first-hand. So, having made up his mind, he began to gather the damaging documents which he turned over to the Canadian authorities.

Mr. King added:—

"These documents disclosed among other things that Canada was being made a base to secure information on matters of very great and grave concern to the United States and also to Great Britain, that information was being sought through agents here with respect to many matters that were of the utmost concern to Canada, the United States and the United Kingdom. . . ."

Mr. King said one of the reasons for his trip to Britain last fall was the information that the British scientist was to get in touch with Soviet representatives in London.

Outlining the reasons why the investigation was kept secret so long, Mr. King said the government was influenced by the fact there were several important international meetings.

Had to go Carefully.

Turning to the internation aspects of the inquiry, Mr. King said:—

"Some persons may feel that we ought to sever relations, as they would say, by having the Russian embassy withdraw from Canada. I hope that no view of that kind will be expressed by anyone in a responsible position. . . .

"I believe it is true that there are agencies working, may I put it, at the side of the Russian embassy which are doing things that possibly unknown to the ambassador himself and members of his staff. That may be so and it may not be so.

"At any rate I am not going to be the one to judge as to who has knowledge of this and who has knowledge of that. . . ."

Mr. King said that if the time should come when it would be of any service in helping to meet the situation if he went to Russia he was prepared to "take any step at all that may be thought advisable with a view to having this cleaned up in a manner which will maintain friendly relations with another great power."

Old Country Letter

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The change is occurring so gradually that it is almost imperceptible — but the pattern of life in the United Kingdom is getting brighter.

To the shortage-plague shopper, the house-hunter, the motorist, there seems to be no improvement; but that is partly because memories are short. If they were put back to VE-Day tomorrow they would notice the difference.

The end of the blackout is taken for granted now and light gleams through open doorways and light-curtained windows. A few months ago that was cause for celebration. Gasoline is tightly rationed and probably will be for some months — but during the war there was no pleasure driving.

The housing situation has improved a bit although it doesn't yet help the man on modest salary. It is easier to rent a high-priced home as bomb-damage repairs and a limited amount of new building are carried out. Progressively the higher rents should drop.

Clerks in the stores still say: "No, we haven't had any for years!" even when asked for simple items. Shortages will continue indefinitely for export trade has been given high priority and the manpower situation is poor.

But the shelves are filling slowly, nonetheless. Women can buy hairpins, powder-puffs, low-priced combs, electric irons, aluminum pots and a considerable range of household utensils that disappeared soon after the war began.

Food rations—an exception to the trend — are higher than ever but "there are oranges (some of them even off the ration) and the occasional grapefruit. Bananas are coming in again.

More women's clothes are already on the market and there is less austerity in the controlled-price "Utility" models. More men's clothes have been promised for later in the year.

Yet public grousing continues, on grounds better conditions aren't coming quickly enough. It was probably to counter that criticism that Sir Stafford Cripps, president of the Board of Trade, said in a Birmingham speech that the British people could not be kept indefinitely on the present low wartime basis for food, clothing and shelter.

Hosiery Contained $2,440 in Bills

Toronto, March 19 —(CP)— A 66-year-old prospector hit pay dirt Sunday — right in Toronto's east-end Don Valley.

John Dawson told police all about it when he walked into the police station carrying a blue sock. The hosiery contained $2,440 in bills of various denominations and Dawson said he found it beside a much-used path. Many of the bills were of the old, large-type rarely seen now and police believe the treasure was part of a hoard and that for some reason it might have been tossed from a viaduct over the path.

Dawson, who said he had a good mind to seek the sock's mate, often takes walks through the Don Valley ravine section since his retirement from Northern Ontario gold prospecting.

WHEN TROUBLE COMES

Philadelphia, Mar. 19—(AP)— A gust of wind whisked a hat off a man's head at an intersection causing: the collision of three cars trying to avoid the hat chaser; arrest of two drivers for assault and battery by automobile, and removal of two auto passengers to hospital. The man retrieved his hat and walked away, unnoticed.

The Town's Kit Bag

OLD-TIME textile artisans owned their own tools — a spinning wheel, a hand loom. But when power machinery was invented, these private craftsmen could no longer produce enough. As machines became bigger, faster, more expensive, no one man by himself could buy enough machinery to keep up. So "companies" were formed to provide the tools of whole towns like Magog in Quebec.

In Canada, the Dominion Textile Company has consistently put money back into its plants to buy better machinery for its workers, so that today there is thousands of dollars worth of equipment back of every employee. In fact, now this Company has over $6,000 worth of "tools" in the form of buildings, productive machinery, power plant and working capital for each of its employees.

Dominion Textile workers are now busy turning out the many things that are so badly needed for our peacetime living. As long as the present tremendous demands and relative shortages exist, we shall go on distributing our production on a quota basis, playing no favourites.

Royal Visit to S. Africa

Next February South Africa will be en fete when Their Majesties King George and Queen Elizabeth make their tour of that Dominion, a very important nation within the Commonwealth. It will be the first opportunity since 1939 they have had of visiting within the Empire. In May and June of seven years ago Canada was visited by the King and Queen and their tour became one of the great events in Canadian history. On that occasion Their Majesties visited the United States the guests of President Roosevelt and were acclaimed with such a welcome as only the American people can extend. That tour of North America in the two great branches of the British race brought the King and the Queen and the democratic peoples of the United States and Canada very close to one another. These nations were soon to follow the same course in the Second World War and what this North American Continent did for the United Nations' cause is known to everyone.

South Africa may be certain to extend its warmest welcome to Their Majesties who have had the most important role in the life of the Empire. In them are represented the rich traditions of Britain and the Empire of which the Dominion of South Africa is a true expression.

The decision to make the tour of that important Dominion is a natural sequel to the return of peace to the world. Their Majesties are taking this occasion to meet the people of the south of the great continent of Africa who have served so well in the recent trying years of struggle against aggression. Announcement of the tour heralds an auspicious event.

Synonymous of the spirit of South Africa is one of the great citizens of that land and of the Empire, Field Marshal Smuts, whose political wisdom and faith brought him into the highest prominence in world affairs. He is one of the great Empire builders, a builder of world peace, one who represents South Africa's spirit.

On this occasion they will be accompanied by their daughters, the Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret Rose, who therefore will have an excellent opportunity to see a great section of the Empire and the world. The visit will be memorable in the lives of the young Princesses.

In the Throne in the course of British development is the symbol of authority and liberty and justice. Here British subjects have a fact, developed through the ages and this is also a symbol of everything that is best in the development of British ideals in national and international life.

South Africa like the rest of the British Empire as well as nations outside the Empire know how truly the British monarchy represents the British development of democracy and how well Their Majesties and their children have served in freedom's cause. The Royal Family have endeared themselves by their unselfish devotion to their offices and to the Empire and Commonwealth.

Full Independence for India

India has the right to choose full independence outside or within the British Commonwealth, Prime Minister Attlee stated the other day in the British Commons. His words were that if India chooses full independence "in our view she has the right to do so," and he added, "I hope the Indian people may elect to remain within the British Commonwealth. If she does so elect it must be by her own free will for the British Commonwealth and the Empire is not bound together by chains of external compulsion." And in making a final treaty with India Britain was not going to hold out anything "to our own advantage that would be to disadvantage of India." He thought India would find great advantages within the Commonwealth and added that "no great nation can stand alone today." In the case of India electing full independence outside the Commonwealth "it would be for us to make the transition as free and easy as possible," Mr. Attlee said.

Three distinguished Britons form a mission which is going to India to make arrangements for the new status of that country. They are Lord Pethick-Lawrence, Secretary of State for India; Sir Stafford Crooks, president of the Board of Trade and special commissioner, who visited India in 1942, and First Lord of the Admiralty A. V. Alexander.

This is the British way, an evidence to the world of the benign influence Britain has exerted. Whatever India's decision may be she will have freedom either within or without the Empire by her own free will and decision.

The Sea and She

For the first time in history Ontario lawmakers have officially recognized that ships belong to the feminine gender. No "he" nor "it" will henceforth debauch the pages of our Queen's Park statutory literature. In Attorney-General Leslie Blackwell's new Marine Insurance Act a clause quite properly reads: ". . . . in the case of a ship, where she is so damaged . . . ."

Canada's abrupt arrival at the end of the war as the world's third naval power no doubt has made parliamentary inlanders a bit self-conscious about such things. Perhaps one of their numbers once made the ghastly mistake of calling a ship like Uganda "the" Uganda, or said that he knew some one who was "on" a ship instead of "in" a ship; all unforgivable.

But nothing could be worse — it plummeted the navy's respect of our public men by many points — than the time a certain politician explained aboard a destroyer where he had left his companion. Instead of saying he was "below in the galley," he said he had last seen him "downstairs in the kitchen!"

Unicorn for Fifty Cents

The Royal Ontario Museum was recently presented with a long, slender, twisted shaft of ivory which the donor honestly believed was the horn of that fabled creature, the unicorn.

The unicorn was described by Greek philosophers as a small horse but having a white body, red head, blue eyes and a single red, white and black horn in the middle of its forehead.

Our specimen was actually the peculiar, twisted tusk of the narwal, a small Arctic whale, often called the sea unicorn. Although it never existed in fact, the unicorn has had a long and persistent life in the public mind, as evinced by heraldry, literature and art. If you don't believe us, examin the next 50c piece you get. There you will find a unicorn.

A Tax on Beauty

Legislators casting about for new sources of tax revenue during the war seem, strangely enough, to have overlooked a promising proposal once offered to England and the world by Jonathan Swift.

"I propose," said the satirical Swift, "that a tax be levied on female beauty."

"But could we make the women pay enough to make it worth while?" a listener inquired.

"Ah, yes, replied the wily dean. "Let every woman be permitted to assess her own charms — then she'll be generous enough."

MAGIC

Oh, it's certain life has moments rich with rapturous delight—
Say the moonlight on the water on a perfect summer night
Or an apple orchard blooming in full beauty during May—
But for eyes ablaze with wonder I should choose that matinee
With a seven-year-old beside me fairly jumping up and down,
When a great magician fellow pays a visit to the town.

Would you gaze on sheer amazement that is very close to awe?
Watch a small boy's eyes start stretching as the man begins to saw,
After saying to the people in a way that sounded true:
"Here's a very lovely lady I'm about to cut in two."
Oh, of genuine excitement that I'm certain is the crown,
When some great magician fellow pays a visit to the town.

It's a grandpa's joy and duty, now I solemnly declare,
To treat a child to magic and be first such thrills to share.
He should see the lady vanish and be mystified at that,
See the pigeons and the rabbits come from someone's empty hat.
Age and childhood have two raptures
—one the circus and the clown;
Next: some great magician fellow when he brings his show to town.

His Weight in Diamonds

(New York Times)

The Mogul rulers of India received tribute equal to their weight in gold. The Aga Khan, who is not a secular ruler at all and who weighs 243 pounds and 8 ounces, went them one better on Sunday in Bombay— he received his weight in diamonds, to the reported value of $2,200,000. If the Aga Khan wished to do so he could keep this money for himself. Having other means of his own, he will employ it to help members of the Ismaili sect of Mohammedism, of which he is the spiritual head. His other means, which are believed to be stupendous, come from the voluntary contributions of millions of his followers.

The Aga Khan is a prince above princes. His biography in the British Who's Who lists his honorary degree from Cambridge his British honors and decorations, his chairmanship of the Indian Round Table Delegation of 1930 and 1931, his presidency of the League of Nations Assembly in 1937, his victories in the Derby, his eleven-gun salute and, almost incidentally, his religious role. He is, in fact, a descendant of Fatima, the daughter of Mohammed, and as such is believed by his followers to have divine attributes. These are not visible to Western eyes. Indeed, he does not parade them for the benefit of his cosmopolitan friends. On the worldly scale he is a character with two phases: an Indian leader who has tried to unite India's Moslems, and has done a good deal for the economic welfare of his Indian followers, many of them converted Hindus; and an international playboy of a type not so common as it used to be.

THE AGA KHAN

Indians who are not getting enough to eat now and who face the prospect of considerably less if the threatened famine is not averted by large imports of foreign grain might wonder a little about the Aga Khan's spiritual qualities. But one of his greetings on the occasion of his fifty-ninth birthday celebration on Sunday came from Mahatma Gandhi.

MACKENZIE'S COLUMN

Vienna Still Has Possibilities As Tourist Centre

By DeWITT MACKENZIE

Vienna, March 19 — (AP) — Dr. Karl Renner, president of this little republic, tells me he believes that "the great hope for Austria is Vienna itself."

"Vienna," says the doctor, "is destined to be the international centre of culture. Vienna has so many treasures of old culture that it will be forever a point for sightseers. It is a base for air transport. If you want to see Europe in three days, come to Vienna, all is here.

"Vienna knows nearly all the languages of importance. That's the good heritage of the old monarchy. We don't want to restore the monarchy, but we are proud to be its cultural heir."

From this it will be clear that the silver-haired chief of state, with his benign countenance and twinkling eyes, is by way of being a smooth salesman. He injected this lure for tourists into a long interview which I had with him at the Chancellery on Austria's general position and her hopes.

I was glad Dr. Renner raised this subject, because it impelled me to re-examine the capital to make a fresh assay of the damage sustained in the siege towards the close of the war.

Vienna was terribly hurt by bombing and gunfire, but a city can endure grievous injuries and recover without showing many scars.

Relatively speaking Vienna came through her ordeal pretty well. Compared with Berlin, for example, the Austrian capital is in good shape. Berlin is just a shell of its once proud self and must be rebuilt from the ground up, but Vienna's damage can be repaired in many important instances.

Around the Ringstrasse, famous promenade in days of peace, stand many of Vienna's noted buildings. It's surprising what a large number have survived the bombardment, in whole or in part.

Vienna's most pressing difficulty is the grave scarcity of food. Many people in Austria are hungry. In some sections they are trying to subsist on as little as 700 calories a day, and that's far below the level that will support health.

This is the second time in a quarter century that Austria has learned the hard way what war means to countries which are not self-sufficient.

Now the scourge of privation is sweeping Austria again. Grim days are ahead between now and the new harvest.

263,000 Listed As Unemployed

Ottawa, March 19 (CP) — The Labor Department, reporting National Employment Offices listed 263,000 unplaced applicants last Feb. 28, said today there were signs that Canada's reconversion unemployment peak had been almost reached.

The new figure compared with 223,000 unplaced at Jan. 24, but the department said the increase was below that recorded during January. Unskilled vacancies dropped from 84,000 at Jan. 31 to 75,000 at Feb. 28, due mainly to the end of the winter logging season.

The slowing down of the increase in unemployment was considered particularly significant in view of the continued high rate of discharges from the forces and effects of the United States steel strike on Canadian reconversion. Increased industrial activity was forecast.

The department said matching jobs and applicants was still a difficult job in Canada, as in other countries undergoing reconversion. Many available jobs were unattractive because of comparatively low wages, the type of work involved or the need for special skills.

Some jobs remained unfilled because they involved changing residence and housing shortages were an important factor in such moves. To meet the need for special skills the department's vocational training branch had undertaken a wide program of on-the-job and classroom training.

The report showed these conditions for Ontario:

Unplaced applicants, 82,000; unfilled jobs, 27,000. Present mining requirements were only for skilled workers but more opportunities expected in the spring, though housing shortages continued to be an obstacle. Demands in manufacturing were for highly skilled personnel or heavy labor. Experienced bricklayers and carpenters were in demand in construction. Main difficulty in the employment of veterans was attributed to strikes in the United States.

Unplaced applicants, with unfilled jobs in brackets, in larger centres at Feb. 28 included: Hamilton, 6,249 (1,701); London, 1,491 (1,014); Oshawa, 6,570 (305); Ottawa, 3,719 (1,308); St. Catharines, 3,569 (226); Toronto, 16,503 (10,060); Windsor, 17,165 (370).

Mrs. Wagner's Old White Cow

Reading your article on calcium (writes Mrs. T. H. R.) I wonder whether lack of it may be the cause of my bones "cracking" or creaking at the joints when I bend arms or knees. It is very disconcerting. I am 26 years old, so surely it can't be from "old age". I have never been able to drink plain milk, and haven't bothered to try to take it flavored with other things to cover the taste. So I wonder whether my creaking joints indicate calcium deficiency.

(Signed)

Indeed it can be from old age, premature old age. You had better send a stamped self addressed envelope and ask in writing — please don't send clipping — for the pamphlet "Young Folks and Old Folks."

Do let me tell you about Mrs. Wagner's old white cow, and then I'll give you the opinion of a one-horse-and-buggy doctor on the joint crepitation of which you complain. It is essential to know about Mrs. Wagner's old white cow.

Mrs. Wagner is the name I'll use here for the kindly old German woman whose husband had a cooper shop on our street when I was a kid in Canandaigua. Come milking time we kids eagerly gathered in Mrs. Wagner's barn to watch her milk the old white cow, and, if we were very, very good— the Brady kids always were and sometimes the Bradburns qualified too — Mrs. Wagner would hand us a dipperful of the foaming, warm milk, I'd give my left ear — which is of no use to me anyway — for the chance to take my pail and trot across the street, squashing my toes in the dust or mud of the road, to watch Mrs. Wagner milking her old white cow and maybe . . .

That's the reason why so many people who didn't have the right bringing up are "not able to drink plain milk". Milk to them is just something that comes out of a bottle or something you find on your doorstep or on the market shelves. No atmosphere.

Why, if you have really lived, even a glass of certified or grade A raw from tuberculin tested herd or just ordinary pasteurized, cold and tame tho it be, brings back memories of bright hillsides, dark woods, green pastures, cool brooks watercress, mint, manure piles ... and the ineffable blend of all these in that dipperful from Mrs. Wagner's old . . .

All right, then, if you have no poetry in your soul you can at least eat cheese, can't you? Any and every kind of cheese every day — that's a pretty good succedaneum for milk. Cheese is the best food source of calcium and phosphorous — and it is my opinion that calcium definitely has much to do with your complaint, Mrs. T. H. R. It would be worth while to supplement your regular diet with a good daily ration of calcium, phosphorous and vitamin D for a few months and see whether it doesn't check the creaking.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

Glycerin and Rose Water

I use no makeup, no cream, no rouge, just glycerin and rose water on face every night. I wash with soap and water twice or three times a day. My complexion is fine, but mother says the glycerin will eventually cause a growth of hair on my face. (S.M.)

Answer — Glycerin well diluted with water or scented water is harmless, tends to keep the skin soft and smooth, does not cause growth of hair. Pure glycerin is irritating if used often.

Fresh Out of Symptoms

When arteriosclerosis first starts what are the symptoms? What can one use to keep blood pressure down that is not so expensive as garlic?

(G. H. J.)

Answer — Ah-ah! It is much better for the patient to tell the doctor the symptoms. You may get a better understanding of arteriosclerosis from the booklet — "CVD"—for copy send ten cents and stamped self-addressed envelope. It doesn't mention garlic or other vegetables particularly, unless to explain the absurdity of the notion that garlic has any effect on blood pressure that potato, beans or cabbage hasn't. CVD means cardio-vascular degeneration, excessive wear and tear on arteries, heart, circulation. The name covers such conditions as arteriosclerosis, myocarditis, angina pectoris, coronary thrombosis, apoplexy (cerebral hemorrhage, stroke of paralysis), chronic nephritis (Bright's disease), valvular leakage, Buerger's disease.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

How is "Cowper" pronounced?

The evidence is conclusive that the poet and members of his family, as well as his contemporaries, pronounced the name "KOO-per," exactly like Cooper, of which it is a variant.

Cowper's ancestors spelled the name Cooper, John Cooper, who was an alderman of London and who died in 1609, changed the spelling to Cowper and that spelling was adopted by his descendants. All members of the family from that day to this, including the poet, have pronounced the name "KOO-per," although many other families bearing the name pronounce it "KOW-per," and that pronunciation of the name of the poet now generally passes unchallenged.

Six years after Cowper's death his name was made to rhyme with "trooper" in an answer to a riddle proposed by him. The riddle, which occurs in a letter to the Reverend John Newton dated July 10, 1780, reads:

I am just two and two, I am
warm, I am cold,
And the parent of numbers that cannot be told;
I am lawful, unlawful, — a duty, a fault;
I am often sold dear, good for nothing when bought;
An extraordinary boon, and a matter of course; And yielded with pleasure
when taken by force.

A riddle by Cowper made me swear like a trooper,
But my anger, alas! was in vain;
For, remembering the bliss of beauty's soft kiss,
I now long for such riddles again.

Perhaps the most famous quotation from Cowper is the following quatrain from "Light Shining out of Darkness:"

God moves in a mysterious way
His wonders to perform;
He plants his footsteps in the sea
And rides upon the storm.

COLLEGIATE NEWS

Assembly

The assembly period was opened by the reading of the scripture by Mr. Heard.

Announcements were made by Mr. Maybee, Mr. Townsend, concerning the 1946 cross-country run, and also by Mr. Shiels.

The cross-country run this year is to be held approximately one month from now, April 17.

Mr. Shiels asked for the Canadian Army Training Pamphlets to be returned to be used by the officer-candidates of this year. The O.T.C. periods are progressing very well, being held at the Armouries every Wednesday at 4.15.

Mr. Currie made it known that "Circular 27" was to be discontinued although provisions will be made whereby students may be excused before the closing date.

We also witnessed a picture entitled "New Zealand" which gave us a splendid insight on life "Down Under."

Girls' Sports

On Tuesday, March 12, a close game was played between the girls of the Stirling Junior basketball team and our own B. C. I. Junior girls. As the girls made their appearance, a general round of applause met them from the crowded balcony. The B.C.I. girls created quite a sensation in their snappy new red uniforms. The game progressed very favorably with no fouls being committed throughout.

During the first half Stirling really had the floor. They gained 14 points while our Juniors were only able to score 6 points. But in the second half our girls really got into the game. They succeeded in scoring 10 points, while Stirling achieved 4 more. Betty Holway of the B.C.I. Juniors deserves special credit for the 10 points which she contributed to the final score.

However, when the whistle blew, they were one basket behind their opponents. So the game was won by the Stirling Juniors with a score of 18-16 over the B.C.I. Juniors.

In honor of our opera, the famous "Pirates of Penzance," which proved so successful, all inter-form basketball games were cancelled that week in the girls' gym. But on Monday, March 18, the Basketball Tournament between the ninth grades started. Do give these girls your support, because they need encouragement. Remember in a few years these girls will make up the Junior and Senior teams to represent the Belleville Collegiate, throughout this district.

Attention please, all B.C.I.V.S. students! An important basketball game is to be played between our B.C.I. Juniors and the Albert College girls on Wednesday, March 20th at 4.15. This game will decide the winner of the Bay of Quinte C.O.S.S.A. championship. So do your part by going to the game and cheering our girls on to victory. Be seeing you at Albert, don't forget!

Boy's Sports

This week was the final stage in interform basketball competition.

On Monday, 10C captured the Lower School championship by defeating 9G 17-2, in a rather one sided affair. Baldwin was the high man in this game with 6 points, closely followed by Summers with 5. Thompson 3, Ethier 2, and Clare, were the others for 10C. Lucas picked up 9G's lone basket.

On Tuesday the Upper School championship went to XIIIB when they white-washed XIIA 40-15. Roddy Lyall was the leading spark for XIIIB with 14 points, trailed by Cameron with 10, Spafford 6, Rollins 6, and Watson 4. For XIIA it was Button 6, Miller 3, McBurney 2, Watkin 2 and Willoughby with 2.

On Thursday the two-out-of-three series started between XIIIB and 10C for the championship of the school. The latter came out on the small end of a 25-8 score. Spafford led this time with 10 points. The other scorers were Rollins 6, Cameron 4, Lyall 3, Watson 2. 10C's points came from Summers with 4, Clare 2, Ethier 1 and Haggis 1.

The next and perhaps final was played Friday after this column was written and therefore the outcome will be left until the next printing of "Collegiate News."

The greatest sport news at present is the coming game at Toronto in which our seniors are participating, and for the benefit of the people who are not familiar with these boys, it has been suggested to me that I enter their names in this sport column. I will try to do so, plus a few facts that I have been able to gather from this modest gang.

William Spafford was born in Laurence, Massachussets, eighteen years ago and took his early training at King George Public School. Bill registers in XIIIB and since coming to B.C.I. he has made a real name for himself in basketball history.

Campbell Glen (Silver) Cameron is 17, registers in XIIIB and hails from Saskatchewan. "Sliv" (lately known as "Chesty") is one of those unusual fellows who are able to distinguish themselves in sports as well as win scholarships in their regular school subjects. He attended Queen Alexandra Public School.

Port Hope's contribution to the seniors is James (Fearless) Watson. Jim is 17, registers in XIIIB and specializes in basketball. (You should see him when he's dressed up. Quite a ladies' man.) He attended public school at Port Hope.

George Alfred Valpie Miller is the Frenchman of the crowd, being born in Montreal. He went to public school at Ottawa. George registers in XIIA and is another specialist in basketball.

Bob Ashley, 17, is the second American member of the seniors. He is a product of Niagara Falls, New York. He went to King George Public School and registers in XIIG. This is the first time Bob has played for the "regulars" and right now he's going great guns.

Robert Vaughan came to Belleville from the Queen City of Toronto. He is 17, registers in XIIB and attended Queen Mary School. Bob is another basketball fan.

The home town boy is George Gordon (Beazer) Watkin. Gord is 17 and registers in XIIA. He also went to Queen Mary School and is one of the few musically talented of the group. He and "Sliv" Cameron played for both the juniors and the seniors.

George Garrow is another Belleville lad, registers in XIG and went to Queen Victoria School. George at one time was one of the best gymnasts in B. C. I., but due to lack of practice he has turned his attention more on basketball.

George William Wonnacott hails from Ottawa. He is 18, in XIIIB, and attended King George School. A year ago George was one of the main stays in the pyramids which have become a special attraction to B.C.I.

Last but not least are two inseparables. Maurice Rollins and Roddy Lyall. We saw them in hockey, rugby and now basketball. Both are in XIIIB and both went to Queen Alexandra School. Maurice is 18 and comes from Tweed. Roddy seems rather shy on this subject, especially age.

Of the qualities of these boys one thing is common and that is they are determined to bring a victory home from Toronto. I'm sure the entire school joins in wishing them the best of luck.

One last thing is a reminder of the cross-country race to be staged next month. All entries should be given to Mr. Townsend as soon as possible. Here's hoping the support will be better than last year.

Ron B. Button.

Coming Events

We thought that by this week extra-curricular activities of the sports variety would be at a standstill. But we reckoned without ingenuity of one "Red" Townsend. The more immediate result of Mr. Townsend's shenanigans is a two-game, home-and-home series between Albert and B.C.I. These games, played by the two top teams in the Quinte District, will be a preview of the basketball games as they will be played in Toronto, come playoff time.

The first game will be played this Wednesday on Albert's floor while the second will be played in our gym next Wednesday. Come out to both these games and see what promises to be two of the best of the season. And when we say "best" we aren't kidding, for unless our memories serve us wrong both these teams have yet to taste defeat this season. Need we say more?

Not content with just having a couple of ball games on his hands, Mr. Townsend also has started another ball rolling in the direction of the annual cross-country race. Our sports master expects about twenty-five entries of the pedestrian variety and about fourteen pedal-pushers, complete with bicycles, to put on the best five mile run in the school's history. So-o-o whether you are interested in running the five miles on your own little tootsies or riding it on the seat of a two wheeled jalopy, see Mr. Townsend for particulars.

And speaking of running reminds us that we had better run to our lockers and get some books to take home and study. It would seem that those Easter exams are but fourteen days away and what we don't know could fill a complete edition of the Encyclopedia Britannica—in fact for all we know it does.

Cuff Notes

Here in our institution of higher learning we have many odd and wondrous people and amongst the most intriguing is Windy the Mad Ghoul. Windy has never been an ordinary character. On the contrary, when he was only a little lad he took a fiendish delight in beating up the babies in the block when they refused to give him their rattles and candy. His career came to a climax during this past week in a search for a dead body. The lust for money and gore rose high in our monster's black heart when he heard that the cops wanted a stooge to take some photographs at the scene of the crime so off he went, getting 10c for each mile that he travelled. Clothed in a flowing black cape and turtle-neck sweater, the Mad Money-monger stalked the marshes seeking the subject for his grisly trade. The mist in the marshes blew damply about Windy's scrawny legs and he began to wish that he had worn his pants and shoes, for the turtle-neck sweater was a wee mite draughty. But, with the burning of thirst for horror clutching at his hairy throat, he strode on, and on, and on. When he had finally taken the pictures and silently exulted in the high state of decomposition of the body, the fiend packed his equipment back in the miniature coffin in which he had carried it, took a drag at his opium pipe, blew his nose and slid into the mist without a sound. Thus, for the time, at least, he is satiated and will no more roam the countryside in the full of the moon, sending blood-curdling howls to make the youngsters shiver and promise to be good. (Editor's note: Bob, I am only kidding.)

The moral of this story is to never wear a turtle-necked sweater in a damp swamp or you will catch your death of damp-foolishness.

Woman Rescued After 14 Days On Bleak Island

Los Angeles, March 19 — (AP) —Physically and mentally exhausted, Mrs. Bernice Brown of Van Nuys, Calif., was rescued by the United States Coast Guard Sunday from bleak, uninhabited Anacapa Island, where she was marooned for 14 days after the wreck of a 50-foot fishing boat.

Her husband, 42-year-old Roy Brown, and their friend, John Barta, 38, who sailed with them out of Santa Monica harbor Mar. 2 on a pleasure trip, are believed to have been drowned in the mountainous waves that sank their boat, the Nancy Lee.

Mrs. Brown, 43, managed to survive by hanging for hours to a floating gasoline drum.

Tossed from the tops of giant whitecombs to the depths of the troughs, Mrs. Brown hung on for hours until, at night-fall, she saw a big rock. Her strength almost gone, she managed to swim to it and lay there exhausted until the next morning, when she struggled 300 yards to Anacapa Island, 13 miles off Point Hueneme.

On unpopulated Anacapa she found a hut once used by the United States Navy, which contained precious emergency rations, barrels of rain water, blankets and a battery radio set.

For three days she was barely able to move enough to feed herself. She had been badly cut and bruised in the wreck of the boat.

She built a signal fire March 8 and kept it lighted until she was rescued. On the radio she was able to keep track of the days.

Doctors said Mrs. Brown had recovered "amazingly well" from deep cuts and that there was no apparent infection. She was almost too weak to talk, however.

The average person who doesn't expect to inherit a fortune has two choices: He can scrape and save for 30 or 40 years, hoping to have enough money or property to retire on a modest income at 60 or 65. THEIR ROAD TO Enjoyment

Two million or more motorists from the States visit us each year ... thousands for the sheer beauty of our countryside. Let's see to it that our hospitality matches the perfection of our lakes and hills.

WHAT CAN I DO?

The answer is—plenty! Here are some of the things anybody can do. The suggestions come from a well-known Ontario hotelman.

1. Find out all about what your own neighbourhood offers and become a booster.
2. Write your friends in the States about Ontario, show them when they come that you're really proud of your province.
3. Try to make all our visitors glad they came, and be really enthusiastic about it.
4. If they ask for information or directions, take time to answer them fully and graciously.
5. In any business dealings you may have with them, remember Canada's reputation for courtesy and fairness depends on you.
6. To sum it all up, just follow the "Golden Rule!"

On Sidney Bay Hill, Bruce Peninsula, Ontario.

IT'S EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS ... it's good business!

Worth his weight in gold! Actually, the Province of Ontario, in pre-war years, profited to almost the same extent from tourist business as it did from the gold mining industry. It is up to each of us to see that this business goes on growing.

This diagram, based on figures supplied by the Hotel Association, shows how everyone benefits from the Ontario tourist income. Every tourist dollar is shared this way ... 1. Hotels; 2. Retail stores; 3. Restaurants; 4. Taxes, etc; 5. Amusements; 6. Garages.

It works both ways! They treat us royally when we visit them ... we can't do less than return the compliment. Remember that it costs money to take a holiday, so let's see they get a good return for every penny they spend in Canada.

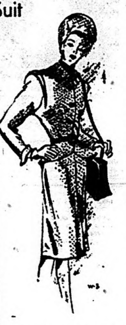
Soft Tweed Suit



Outfit featuring peplum and flared skirt

By VERA WINSTON

TWEED SUITS have gone soft, so that a tweedie is right for smart town wear. This trend is exemplified in a Lineton tweed suit made with an interesting jacket. Three leather buttons fasten the snug bodice, and two buttons fasten the tabs that take the place of a collar. The outfit has flanged shoulders, flare hip peplum and a leather belt. The skirt is softly handled with a flare centre front and back.

The tea and bazaar held in Picton United Church under the auspices of Group 3 of the W. A. realized $87. Mrs. G. M. Hicks, president, Mrs. J. W. Shier and Mrs. C. Scott welcomed the guests. Tea was poured at a table centred with daffodils and St. Patrick emblems, by Mrs. J. Harvey, Mrs. Iva E. Martin, Mrs. T. M. Learie and Mrs. Charles Haddon. Quartette tables were decorated with St. Patrick colors. In charge of the bazaar were Mrs. Harold Knapman and Mrs. A. H. Lloyd. Piano solos were given by Mrs. Howard Anderson and Mrs. Case Walters and vocal solos by Miss Dorothy Nourse.

Barn Meetings

Under the auspices of Prince Edward Holstein Breeders' Club, two barn meetings were held last week, at James Broad's farm, Massassaga. 50 heard Norman McConkey, Peterboro, National Holstein Association director, stress the value of the herd sire. In a judging competition, Ross Fairman and Gordon Boyle were winners.

At Dunham Foster's farm at Bloomfield, 75 attended. Agricultural Representative F. J. Webster, stressed the importance of dairy farming in this county. It was the largest industry last year. Winners in a judging competition were S. P. Dodds, president of the club, and Holmes Matthie. Fieldman Roy Ormiston spoke of the need for world markets and urged the finest stock possible to capture new markets.

Isaac Broadworth Guest of Honor At Birthday Party

Madoc — An interesting and enjoyable event took place on Saturday evening when Mr. and Mrs. Percy Broadworth of Madoc entertained in honor of the former's father, Mr. Isaac Broadworth, who on that day was celebrating his eightieth birthday.

For almost half a century Mr. Broadworth has resided on his farm just east of Madoc village. In his earlier life he was engaged in cheese-making.

His wife, who was the former Miss Isobel Thompson, passed away a number of years ago. Their family of two sons and two daughters are Dr. R. J. Broadworth of Toronto; Mr. Percy Broadworth of the homestead; (Mildred) Mrs. Ivy Roblin, Toronto; (Margaret) Mrs. Edward Robinson of Eldorado.

A large number of relatives and a few friends were present for the occasion.

During the evening a very enjoyable program was given and consisted of vocal and instrumental numbers interspersed with readings, community singing and birthday felicitations.

Following the reading of the address, and presentation of many lovely gifts, Mr. Broadworth made a very appropriate reply graciously accepting his gifts and welcoming the guests. Possessing all his faculties and enjoying good health one would not take him to be of eighty years.

A delicious lunch including a lovely birthday cake adorned with eighty candles was served. The guest of honor lighted the candles and cut the cake. Seated at his table were his immediate family, a sister, Mrs. George Bassett of Madoc, and two brothers, Mr. Fred Broadworth of Ivanhoe and Mr. Joseph Broadworth of Stirling.

Mrs. J. W. Snell, Walton St., Port Hope, writes: "Super Suds is my helper in all my housework and I find it grand for washing clothes. It makes them so soft and white. Another thing, Super Suds is safe. It makes the clothes last longer and my colored things always look fresh. Super Suds gets the dirt out quickly and easily, and never hurts my hands."

Thank you, Mrs. Snell, for your grand letter. You see, Ladies, Super Suds is Concentrated. Super Suds actually gives you far more washing-power . . . livelier, richer suds, without hard rubbing. And Super Suds costs no more than ordinary washday soap.

Youth Fellowship Meeting Held At Baptist Church

The auditorium of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church was filled to capacity when Young People's groups from the various Protestant denominations of the city joined in a great Christian Youth Fellowship meeting on Monday night.

The enthusiastic gathering made the rafters ring as song leader Eric Naylor led in the singing of favorite hymns and choruses. The Salvation Army Band was in attendance and contributed several selections. A lovely duet was sung by Miss Dorothy Cretney and Mrs. Gertrude Daugherty, with Miss Margaret Atyeo accompanying at the piano and Mr. Stan Lessels was heard in a vocal solo, accompanied by Miss Dorothy Mitchell. Miss Mitchell also performed the duty of pianist of the evening, assisted by Dave Cheese with his electric guitar. Special speaker was Rev. Floyd Honey, B.A., S.T.M., of Baltimore, Ontario.

Stirring words of personal testimony were voiced by Miss Jessie Hart, Anson Seidt, Bob Willoughby and Mr. Barker. Prayers were given by Wesley Mifflin and Maude Burke, while scripture was read by Marion Werry. Bill Hales, who performed the duties of chairman, introduced the speaker of the evening.

Rev. Floyd Honey based his address on the sixteenth chapter of St. Matthew's Gospel, wherein Jesus poses the question to His disciples, "Whom do men say that I am?" As Jesus went up and down the country preaching and healing there was much speculation as to His identity. Who is this man, people asked one another, who speaks with such authority and whence His power to perform miracles and forgive sins?

Things said by the prophets of old were swept aside by Jesus, who proclaimed "..but I say unto you..a new commandment I give unto you.."

"We are not talking about some character of fiction," said the speaker, "as many people seem to think of Him today, but someone who is alive. Jesus Christ is confronting you and me personally today and saying "whom do you say that I am?" You may form your own opinion about any other person but you cannot with Jesus. You dare not criticize or disagree with Him, you cannot brush Him aside."

Some people said He was John the Baptist, some Elias, others Jeremias, or one of the prophets but when Jesus asked His disciples "But whom say ye that I am", the question was answered by Peter in his great confession, "Thou are the Christ, the Son of the living God."

"Yes, He is the Son of God." reiterated the speaker, "people take His name in vain and live as though it did not make any difference but your eternal destiny, and mine, hangs on one point—what we do with Jesus, whether or not we accept the Son of God as our personal Saviour and Lord."

DRINK TOO MUCH TOO EARLY

New York, March 19 —(AP)— The thirsty in New York are receiving less than 60 per cent of their normal supply of beer, trade sources said yesterday. Gerald Walsh, executive secretary of the brewers' board of trade, said New Yorkers drank so much beer in the early part of 1946 that it was necessary to cut supplies to keep within the government quota of 70 per cent of 1945's supply.

March is the time for pick-up treatments

Be sure to take time each day for long, deep breaths

Women who live in northern climates agree that March is the most detestable month of the year. No wonder they want to fly away to warmer climes. One way to get happily through the miserable between-seasons is to start a 100 year war against old meanie Time.

The first rule in beautifying, no matter what manner of defects are bothering you, is to be physically strong and in good spirits. If you have vitality you aren't likely to worry. If you don't worry you won't get wrinkles. You'll be brave. Birthdays will not sadden you. It has been said that time and age are but timidities of thought. "Be strong, be brave, be tranquil." That is a first-class beauty slogan. When you're tired, lie down, close your eyes, say it to yourself over and over again. Don't forget that your mind needs relaxation, just as your body needs it.

Chances are you aren't getting any exercise. Yes, go on and tell me now that you tramp the domestic treadmill. Even so, you need exercise—bending, torso-twisting, stretching. It's the middle section that takes on spread. The face may remain youthful and one may have brisk step, but if the waistline is gradually doing a disappearing act, one looks settled or at least as if one were getting on.

Sneak ten minutes, night and morning, for body conditioning. You've no idea how that practice will set you up, make your flesh glow, give you a sense of well-being.

Lie flat on your back on the floor, arms extending straight out from the shoulders. Bring the knees up on your chest, roll the body from side to side. At the first sign of fatigue, relax the legs, take ten deep, slow breaths. Then at it again. This exercise is splendid for deleting hip spread and for reducing the size of the buttocks. It is one that the heavy-weight can do without feeling especially exhausted. Also, it is good fun.

During the day, when going about your work, take long, deep breaths. You'll be drinking in renewed strength. Lift the chest high, pull in the abdominal muscles. This practice alone will do much to flatten the tummy, give the waistline trimness.

When you have got yourself tucked into bed, do relaxing exercises. Lift your arms, drop them. Stretch your body, down to your little pink toes, then relax. Open your mouth; relax your facial muscles. Spread out fingers and thumbs; let them do a flop on the bed. Clasp your hands behind your head and try to pull yourself apart at the waistline. Fine for figure molding.

This is the season for plenty of complexion and hand creaming, for hair brushing, for massaging the neck. Do all this and you'll be as blooming as the flowers in Spring.

FOOD CUTS MEAN COAL OUTPUT LESS

London, March 19 —(CP)— Michael Foot, Labor member of parliament, told Commons last night that food cuts in the British zone in Germany have resulted in reduction of coal output in the Ruhr and that there was danger of its complete collapse with dire consequence to Western Europe.

Bring on the Belts

By ALICE ALDEN

Accessories always assume added importance in spring because the suit, and the separate blouse and skirt, call for all sorts of interesting extras and complements. This year all eyes are focused on the waist and its slim lines demand accentuating with important looking belts. Criterion, who does such varied and interesting belts, circles the slim waist with a broad belt of duotone capeskin, alternating strips of red and navy and finishing off the whole affair with a whopping spherical buckle ornament.

GOOD MANNERS

Fraternity-Pin Engagement?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter is a junior in a Massachusetts college, and the other evening when she was making her usual Sunday telephone call to her father and me, she mentioned (too casually, I thought) that she had accepted the fraternity pin of a friend of hers who is attending M.I.T. When I asked her if this was her way of telling us that she is engaged, she said, "Oh, no, it just means that we're very good friends."

Since then my husband and I have certainly been wondering about this, for we are both college graduates and when we went to college, the girl's wearing a man's fraternity pin definitely meant that they were engaged. Have times changed, Mrs. Beeckman, and are we "old-fashioned" in our interpretation? Your point of view about this will, we know, prepare us to be on the right track as we talk with her when she comes home for her Spring vacation; we don't want to be narrow-minded about it, but neither do we want her to receive any unpleasant criticism.

C. R. A.

Although it must be admitted that today a girl's wearing a man's fraternity pin does not inevitably signify that they are engaged, it is still true that even today most people, even those in the young circle, usually take it for granted that a fraternity pin is a promise of a ring at a future date. The important thing, of course, is what the wearing of the fraternity pin means to the girl and man themselves. To your daughter it may mean, as she casually said, that they "are just very good friends," but even this undoubtedly indicates that she has narrowed her list of beaux to the owner of the fraternity pin. For even in some colleges where the wearing of the fraternity pin doesn't necessarily mean that the couple are engaged, it does mean that they date each other steadily and exclusively. You, the parents, certainly have a right to know what the pin really signifies to your daughter, and you should have a serious talk with her to show her the customary interpretation that other people put on it. Many young girls, quite naturally are so impressed by the honor of wearing a fraternity pin that they are thoughtless about the "binding" significance, even though they too casually regard this as temporary.

Bridesmaids to Walk Alone or in Pairs?

1. At the wedding in which I am to be matron of honor, there are to be eight bridesmaids. The bride-to-be and I would like to know if it would be better for them to walk down the aisle in single file or two-by-two?

2. While I, the matron of honor, am holding the bride's bouquet during the ring part of the ceremony, who holds my bouquet?

1. Usually when there are so many bridesmaids, and an even number, they walk two-by-two, following the ushers who also walk two-by-two. It is usually only when there are a few bridesmaids and an uneven number, say three, that it may be planned to have them walk in single file.

2. Before you take the bride's bouquet, hand your bouquet to the bridesmaid nearest to you.

Christening Receptions are Simple Affairs

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please advise us concerning the christening of our baby?

1. I'm sure that my husband and I are expected to give gifts to both the godmother and godfather, but what type of gifts should they be? We are people of very moderate circumstances, so we couldn't afford anything expensive.

2. What type of reception should be held after the christening? Would a buffet luncheon be proper?

3. Should just our relatives and close friends be invited? My husband and I have no sisters or brothers to be aunts and uncles to our coming baby, so should we invite our aunts and uncles?

4. Is it proper to invite the guests by telephone or by notes? If by notes, how should they be worded? Does an invitation to a christening mean that the guest is expected to bring a present? We would not like to be put in the position of expecting presents.

K. R.

1. It is not customary for the baby's parents to give gifts to the godparents.

2. The reception following a christening is generally a simple, informal affair. The menu depends on the hour of the reception; if in the middle of the day, a buffet luncheon would be proper; if in the afternoon, a simple tea-menu is served (small sandwiches, tea and/or coffee, small cakes). Sometimes two special features are added to the menu: (1) the christening cake, a white cake, simply or elaborately iced, sometimes with the baby's initials (the guests eat this cake as a sign that they are partaking of the baby's hospitality); and (2) a "caudle-cup", a hot eggnog, with which the guests drink to the health and prosperity of the newcomer.

3. Only relatives and intimate friends are invited to a christening. And since you and your husband's aunts and uncles are relatives, they may, and I think should, be invited.

4. It is quite correct for you to give such informal invitations by telephone. Or to those not conveniently reached by telephone you may write:

Dear Lucy,

Our new daughter Ann is to be christened (state here whether in church or at home) on (day, date, hour), and we hope that you and Bill will come to the christening. (If the christening is to be in church, you would add, ". . . .and to come to our house afterward" to lunch or tea, depending on the christening-hour).

Dearest love to you from both of us

Affectionately,

Wedding Music Available on Phonograph Records

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

At my simple home wedding next month I would so much like to have some music, but our only possible facility is our phonograph, Would it be proper to use this?

C. R.

Do have some music at your house wedding, and it is entirely proper to have music via the phonograph. All the masterpieces in wedding music are available on phonograph records. And you might ask some relative or friend to take charge of playing the records.

Beauty Program For Career Girls

In the world of business there is no place for "a poor, weak woman," no time for sniveling or complaining. You don't have to be an iron woman to carry on. You must be healthy and have a courageous spirit, so you can take any hard knocks that happen to come your way. If you are deeply interested in your job, enjoy your work, visualize a future for yourself, you're lucky. All the more reason for keeping fit and looking tops.

Good appearance being vitally important, the career girl will have her regular dates at the beautery. She may be able to shampoo her silky mop—though the home shampoo is seldom as thorough as professional attentions—but she can't very well give herself a wave set. Home manicuring is not convenient. Right hand works all right; the left one makes a mess of cuticle lifting. But all that is not enough. She must have regard for the laws of health, which, after all, have everything in the world to do with retaining youthful looks.

If she knows anything at all about hygiene, she should realize that to make a breakfast of a cup of coffee and a nibble of toast is all wrong. Luncheon may be a sandwich at a soda fountain. When dinner time comes she is so fatigued that she has no appetite. Result: She is undernourished and lacking in energy.

To dress in a hurry and flurry, hasten to work, is to start the day with the nervous system in a tangle. Hurry causes tension. Tension does not make for efficiency in attending to one's duties. The greatest need today is calmness of spirit. We've gone through four bad years. Nervous exhaustion and insomnia are common troubles, not only among the boys who have returned from war scenes, but among the girls who stayed at home and carried on.

Set a regular time for going to bed

Every human being should have a little reserve-building food. That isn't possible unless the diet is balanced, containing all the various elements, including vitamins and mineral salts, that are necessary for well-being. Many a career girl is jittery, worries about her work, for the simple reason that her eating habits are casual. You can't run an engine without fuel; that applies to the human machine.

Exercise is essential. If there is neither time nor opportunity for outdoor sports or brisk walks, the career girl must allow herself ten minutes every morning for arm and leg exercises and torso-twisting.

The daily bath is a refreshing treatment. Set a regular time for going to bed. One must have some social pleasure, of course, but let them come on Saturday night, so there can be longer hours of sleep next morning.

FIRST FISH TAKE GOOD

Port Dover, Ont., March 19 — (CP) — The Tarmac III chugged into harbor here today with 1,500 pounds of herring and whitefish aboard, and in her wake came the J. E. Misner with 1,200 pounds—Lake Erie's fishing season has opened for 1946, the earliest opening in several years.

Prices for the freshwater fish appeared also the best in years. At New York whitefish now sell for 65 cents a pound (U. S. funds) five cents above last year's prices. Herring sell for 35 cents a pound.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

He Tried to Kiss Her—She Got Tough—Who's Wrong?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

What is the cure for a hot-headed wildcat? Please tell me. I could like her if she wasn't such a hot-headed blonde.

Tonight I tried to kiss her, but she kicked and hit me, so I got mad and had a fight with her. She's cute, and if she wasn't so wild she would be a cute kid. She has blue eyes and a pretty good shape.

Thank You—Puzzled.

What do you mean you "could like her if she wasn't such a hot-headed blonde"? You're crazy about her just as she is and you know it.

And I'm not so sure you're the one who rates the sympathy and she's the one who needs to revise her technique. Somehow I have a suspicion your own approach could do with a little toning down and polishing up. How about it, brother? Sounds as if you probably tried to get that kiss by main force and came honestly by being put a little in your place.

Maybe I've got you all wrong and you're a much abused young man, but you'll have to prove it to me. Right now, with only your letter to go on, I'm on the blonde's side.

He's Not the Serious Type But She'd like to Make Him So

I am a girl sixteen year old and attend high school. I like all kinds of sports, and have my normal amount of dates. I have been having dates since I was thirteen, but have never been serious with any one boy.

I have known a boy for a good part of my life, but we really never laughed and talked together until two summers ago. I have liked him very much ever since then. I really don't know if he likes me, but I think he used to.

He met a girl at school and asked her to his prom. He takes her out occasionally, but there is nothing serious. He isn't the serious type. When he drives me home, he tells me he doesn't like this girl. I have known his mother and father, also his brothers and sisters, for quite some time, He is a year older than I am.

I really like this boy an awful lot. I have met plenty of other boys, but none of them can ever equal him. I want him to like me and take me dancing and to the Prom and all school activities. I am positive he doesn't know I like him.

Unhappy Teenster.

In other words, you want this chap for your own special boy friend, don't you?

I'm not so sure you'd be getting much of a bargain if you got him. If he takes a girl to his Prom, and then tells you he doesn't like her, how do you know he doesn't say the same sort of thing about you when he's with the other girl? He doesn't sound to me like anyone to get too serious about. Not now, at any rate. Don't make up your mind he's the one and only star in your sky until you both get a little older and you see what he's like then and how you feel about him by that time.

I am 21 years old and have been married two and a half years.

My husband was discharged from the Navy four months ago, and six months later he joined the army as a single man without my knowing anything about it.

What do you think I should do?

Mrs. D D. D.

I think the first thing you should do is to find out from your husband, if you can, just what his idea is anyhow. You say so little in your letter that it would be rather rash of anyone to answer your questions without knowing any more about your situation.

There must be a good deal more to the matter than you have indicated. If you care to write and tell me more about your problem, perhaps I can give you a more helpful answer.

Wool dress with dropped shoulder

GRAY STILL basks in the sartorial spotlight. It is the color used for a charming frock, so right for the season ahead. The fabric is sheer gray wool and the dress is made with a dropped shoulder which takes the form of a yoke. Tucks from the yoke lend softness to the bodice. The skirt, also, uses pin-tucks at the waist which are released into the generously flared skirt. This frock would look attractive with a white gilet or would take nicely to costume jewelry.

Schriner and Carr Say Thanks For Lasting Memories of Great Years in Best Game of Them All

Day of Stickhandling Past Because Under New Rules There is an Accent on Speed

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, March 19 — (CP) — From two veteran campaigners, breaking camp today on their last playing season in the Big Show, to all National Hockey League fans and fellows, a personal message: "Thanks for lasting memories of great years in the best game of them all."

Big, easy-going Dave (Sweeney) Schriner, who moments before was shaking off sentiment by matching repartee with fleeting well-wishers, or joking as he autographed a collector's book, became serious and direct as he voiced the farewell of a treasured guest who, knowing his time had run out, lingered over departure.

Lorne Carr, his Maple Leaf line-mate who earlier had related how he and Sweeney "clicked" from the time they teamed up 12 colorful seasons ago in a New York Americans' training camp, nodded agreement and added: — "Hockey's been good to us."

"It's time now for older legs to make way in this game that's becoming increasingly a young man's business," said Schriner, who at 34, is a year younger than Carr. "Under red-line rules, the accent is on speed, throw the puck in and chase it, then get back twice as fast.

"The day of the stick-handler is past," added the man whom N.H.L. observers have classed among the trickiest of all-time with the stick.

Emphasis on Youth

His wing-mate, holding that new rules had not changed fundamentals, said there would always be "room for a good stick-handler" but agreed that the emphasis in becoming more on youth. "There was a big difference in hockey calibre this season over wartime years, next season the pace will be terrific," he added.

It was the final N.H.L. week-end for the retiring veterans who, among other honors, twice were on Stanley Cup teams, twice selected on The Canadian Press first all-star team, and both won places in the famed "200-goal" club.

Both had followed their usual path into the Maple Leaf's Garden grill for "coffee and talk" following the habitual pre-game get-together in the Toronto 'front office.'

Jack Adams, manager of the Detroit team that beat Leafs out for the last playoff spot, dropped over and was greeted with a handshake and a wisecrack, as was scout Carson Cooper. "Guys like that make you feel lucky to have been a part of this game," said Schriner.

Through as Player

"I'd like to stay with it, but not as a player. I'm through with that," said Carr, adding that, although part-owner of a billiard business in Calgary, he is still undecided about future plans.

"Lorne and I have been in the hockey business for nearly 15 years, learning a little every year, and we'd both like to put it to use," said Sweeney. "Maybe we could hang on another few years as players but what's the use of sacrificing your reputation by playing out the string in the minors?"

Schriner warned, however, that the N.H.L. would have to start planning for future expansion if it is to meet the threat from these same minors.

"Right now there are cities looking for major league hockey, surely we can provide more than the 90 or so players of major calibre that the present six teams require. If the N.H.L. doesn't open up these new fields, the American League will and the parting of the ways won't come long after that."

Both Had Great Thrill

Both insist that a greater thrill came on reaching the 200-goal mark this season, however. Lorne passed it early and finished with 204 goals and 223 assists in his N.H.L. career. But Schriner, needing 12 when the season started, bagged it in the closing weeks, adding one more for a lifetime total of 201 and 205 assists.

"I wanted to get the 200th in Toronto but it came in Boston," Sweeney said. "I got the thrill of my life anyway when the crowd cheered as hard as if I was one of their Bruins.

"That's what I'll miss most. Sure, I know it's a business. But it lifts a guy right out of himself to hear 16,000 people yelling his name like that."

LAVA MOVING TO SEA

Tokyo, March 18 — (AP) — A mile-wide lava stream, threatening at least one village on southern Kyushu, is moving toward the sea from Ninami Dake, historic Japanese volcano which has flared into activity on Sakura Jima Peninsula across from the city of Kagoshima, the newspaper Asahi reported.

Asahi said three evacuation ships were ready to remove the 800 residents of Kurogami, in the path of the flow and less than a mile from it. The lava, travelling a quarter mile daily, is expected to reach the sea in two days.

BETTING ODDS FAVOR CANADIENS TO TAKE HAWKS

Bookies Laying 3-5 for Montreal to Win First Game and 12-5 to Win Round

Montreal, March 19 — (CP) — Betting odds here favor Montreal Canadiens 3-5 to take the first game of their Stanley Cup semi-final play-off series with Chicago Black Hawks tonight.

The same bookies also favor the Montreal team to win the round 12-5.

Canadiens have a slim edge over Black Hawks on the season's play, winning five of the 10 games scheduled, losing four and the other ending in a draw.

Coach Dick Irvin said: "We're all set. Butch Bouchard showed he is back at his best. Leo Lamoureux is the only doubtful starter. His shoulder still bothers him. Joe Benoit won't play of course. His back injury has kept him out of the last four or five games.

"Otherwise we're okay. Far better than we were a year ago."

The Black Hawks rolled into town and coach Johnny Gottselig, was not very talkative, but he said he plans to ice his strongest team.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, March 19 — (AP) — Assistant coach Charles (Bud) Wilkinson was credited with some of the day's best broken field running during Oklahoma's intra-squad football game last Saturday . . . A steer broke loose from the nearby junior livestock show, came bucking onto the field, and headed for Wilkinson . . . Bud hesitated for a while and then neatly dodged out of the steer's path . . . The spectators figured Bud's delay was to make up his mind whether to run or to sign up the steer as fullback.

CHURCHILL GOES TO MOVIES

New York, March 18 — (AP) — Winston Churchill went to the movies last night — to see Winston Churchill.

A newsreel company (Pathe) gave a private screening at Mr. Churchill's hotel so the former British prime minister could see films of himself taken during his current United States visit, as well as earlier pictures from the company's files.

WISHFUL THINKING

The artificial ice plant germ is gradually spreading to all parts of the district. Cobourg is the latest town to be affected and officials of the lakeside town have been checking the district with the idea of erecting a rink of its own. Peterborough is contemplating the constsuction of a huge memorial building which will include an artificial ice plant and Brockville is doing likewise, planning to build along the lines of the St. Catharines Arena which has seating capacity of 3,500 and standing room for 1,000. According to an ice-machine company of Toronto the installation costs of an artificial plant is approximately $20,000, with a monthly cost of operation of $100.

The Peterborough Board of Education apparently believes that healthy outdoor recreation is good for the school youth of its city. At a recent meeting it unanimously endorsed the aims and propositions of the Peterborough City Baseball League, and without a dissenting voice voted a grant of $100 for the furtherance of baseball in the public schools. A move in the right direction, gentlemen.

Efforts to rejuvenate the former Central Ontario Baseball League met with some success here over the week-end with Kingston, Peterborough, Belleville, Picton and Batawa being represented. The new edition of the league that was a household word in baseball circles two decades ago was organized with Ontario Baseball Association executive member Ken J. Colling being master-of-ceremonies for the occasion.

Joe Daly, well-known baseball impresario of Kingston who guided the former famous Ponies in many a diamond classic, was elected president of the new organization, in absentia, with Vernon Dawson, Peterborough baseball magnate being elected vice and Maxie Jackson, hockey and baseball luminary of Kingston being slated to hold down the secretaryship.

Oshawa was not represented, neither was the Lakeshore League. Lou Yanover, represented the Prince Edward County interests with Speedy St. Louis, former president of the Belleville City League, Jack McVeigh and secretary Ernie Summers, holding the fort for local interests. Bill Easton, manager of the Batawa squad was there as was Tommy Churchill representing Hastings County interests.

The meeting was well attended with several baseball dignitaries from the district being on hand to listen in and give various opinions on the idea of re-vitamizing the former senior loop. Mr. Colling outlined potential plans for the coming season and threw the meeting open for discussion. Batawa, Kingston and Peterborough representatives stated they would be willing to enter teams, while Belleville representatives intimated that they might do likewise. This city, it was pointed out, has not organized for its summer baseball activities and a formal decision was held in abeyance until after the election of officers at the meeting scheduled for tonight at the Y. M. C. A.

And speaking of that meeting, officials of the City Baseball League urgently request that all interested in the game attend the meeting at the Y. The curtain will go up at sharp eight o'clock and team managers, officials and players should be on hand so that all organization plans for the coming season can be completed. A slate of officers will be elected, and the seasonal proceedings should get off to a good start.

Belleville Bruins are rarin' to go and will leave the city shortly after six bells this evening to take on the Kingston Saints in the third and deciding game of their Junior "B" playdown series. The Bruins won the first tilt and lost the second by a one-goal margin, and feel that they are fully capable of taking the measure of the fast-travelling Kingston kids. It should be a good game.

That was a honey of a basketball game at the Trenton Air Station over the weekend when the classy fliers quintet scored a four point lead over Bowmanville in the first of their total-points series in the Intermediate hoop playdowns. The air laddies play the return game in Bowmanville next Saturday. The lads from out of town roughed matters up considerably and were tabbed with 17 personal fouls as against five for the airmen. The score was tied no less than five times and it was anybody's tussle up to the final whistle. The final score was 36-32.

TEMPES FUGIT

Believe it or not, it is ten years ago this summer since Belleville won its first Intermediate "A" softball championship. The team was the Belleville Percivals and the skipper at the helm was Harry Knott, with pal Harry Rollins acting as O.A.S.A. convener. The squad won the city title and went on to knock off Trenton, Kingston, Peterborough, Toronto and lastly Guelph for the provincial title.

The good right arms of Johnny Bawden and Connie Harris steered the mushball ship of state to victory in that year. Clarence Tuttle did the receiving, with Harold Bawden on first; Teddy Henn, second, and Shud Ethier, Carmen Cook, Harold Reid, Vic Hannah, Wilber Kiser, Speedy St. Louis and Cy Barriage rounding out the squad. The final series with Guelph went to three games with the Percivals eking out a 2-1 victory in the third tussle played on an Oshawa diamond.

St. Michael's Majors evened the ould hockey count in Oshawa last night in the fourth game of their junior "A" series, defeating the flying Generals by a 5-1 score. The teams go at it again on Wednesday night in Toronto and next Saturday night in the Motor City. The game last night, according to fans from this section of the country, was not the eye-pleasing style that has featured former games, but was productive of some neat shinny.

Montreal, March 19 — (CP) — It's been the season of surprises in the National Hockey League this year, writes Dink (Montreal Gazette) Carroll, looking back over the schedule just ended.

Dink thinks the highlight of the season (from a sports writer's point of view) was Babe Pratt's brief expulsion from the league to serve a betting penalty. A redeeming feature of the case, writes Dink, was the genuine pleasure experienced by most fans over the Babe's reinstatement when it finally became apparent that his gravest misdemeanor was betting on his own team.

In addition to the Pratt case Toronto Maple Leafs provided the fans with many other surprises, the failure of the Stanley Cup holders to make a playoff spot being the best . . . or the worst.

Frankie Boucher's alternating-netminding experiment was an early season eye-catcher and the New York Ranger coach plugged it for all it was worth and Dink thinks he may have done so to ko and the Bentley boys have distract the attention of the fans from the rest of the club which wasn't so good. Judging by the way he packed the Madison Square Garden, Boucher knew what he was doing!

Then there was Johnny Gottselig's smart handling of the Chicago Black Hawks. Gottselig started the season with an aggregation which looked poor on paper but he exhorted his boys to play better hockey and made a Stanley Cup contender out of the team. Of course, Bill Mosienko and the Bentley boys may have helped a bit.

Then there were Frankie (Ulcers) McCool's holdout for $500 on his Toronto salary, Lester Patrick's resignation as manager of New York Rangers, the spectacular or poor (as the cases were) return of the army veterans.

Albert E. Houghton, president of the Canadian-American Baseball League, says that not only will the clubs of his loop be composed of prospective major leaguers but umpires too have been picked with the expectation that they are prospects for the big show.

BOSTON RED SOX HAVE REAL CHANCE TO LICK YANKEES

Cronin Has All the Old Gang Back Including a Real Star, Ted Williams

By GAYLE TALBOT

Sarasota, Fla., March 18—(AP)—If Boston Red Sox fail to lick the Yankees this time they might as well give it up as a bad job.

Joe Cronin, starting his 12th campaign as boss of the Sox, has his old gang back, including Ted Williams, and he appears to have better pitching than he had in 1941 and '42, when his team was runner-up to the Yanks.

Four times since Cronin took over the Red Sox he has had a club strong enough to battle its way into second place, and each time it was the Yankees who had that little something extra that made them champions.

If there is anything the Sox lack for the coming race it is a third outstanding gardener. Williams, with his .356 batting mark the last year he played before entering the armed forces, and the fleet Don DiMaggio roaming the centrefield, are a pair any manager would cherish.

The club has one of the game's finest infield combinations in Bobby Doerr on second and Johnny Pesky at short. A battle is going on for the moment at third-base, the job having been left open by the sale of Jim Tabor to the Phils.

Heading the pitching staff is tall Tex Hughson, who posted an 18-5 record in 1944, and right behind him is Dave (Boo) Ferris, who won 21 while losing 10.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

LESSON NO. 939
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Kiva Tyme has a notion that card reading is some sort of a fortune telling stunt. But good bridge players know it as a precise method of deciding who has how many and what cards.

Do a little card reading while sitting east in this deal:

NORTH
♠K J 10 7
♥9 7 4
♦9 8 5
♣A Q 9

WEST
♥J 2
♦10 4 3 2
♣10 8 4 2

EAST
♥10 8 6 3
♦K Q 7 6
♣K 6

SOUTH
♠Q 9 5
♥A K Q 5
♦A J
♣J 7 5 3

The bidding went like this:

SOUTH	NORTH
1 H	1 S
2 S	3 S
3 NT	Pass

From the bidding, what you soon see in dummy and your own hand tells you that south has all the unseen high cards. These are the two red aces, a king, and two queens.

West leads the club deuce. A small card lead is assumed to be the leader's fourth best in that suit. So your partner has four clubs. With your two and dummy's three, south must have exactly four.

South's first bid admits at least four hearts. His assist shows at least three spades, including the queen. Therefore, he can have no more than two diamonds. Nor will he have less than two.

If south had less than two diamonds, west would have had five and would have led that longer suit first. So, south must have exactly four clubs, four hearts, three spades, two diamonds.

One of south's two diamonds is the ace. Even if his second is the unseen jack, you know what to do. Main thing is to force out the south diamond ace fast. Your second diamond will pick up the jack.

When dummy plays small on the first trick, hop in with your club king. Your immediate return is diamond king. When you get in with the spade ace, three more diamonds will kill their contract.

When an expert is serious about a deal, that is how he goes to work on it. But you do not expect your partner to take such pains.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, March 19 (AP) — Women don't make good cartoonists, says Walt Disney. Mind you, he is not being antagonistic toward the sex—he is just observing from his 25 years' experience.

The preponderance of cartoonists on his large payroll is masculine. Why?

"I have found that very few women are good cartoonists," said Disney. "There have been many good women artists, but cartooning by women is inevitably too fine and dainty.

"Also, cartooning requires a sense of humor and too often a woman lacks that. As a matter of fact, most of the great humorous works have been produced by men."

Disney cited one or two exceptions to his contention that woman can't create cartoons. He employs many women—but as artists. "As artists, they often have a better knowledge of color than men," he said.

Right now Disney is in various stages of preparing about eight feature pictures. The first postwar Disney feature, "Make Mine Music," will delight screen audiences this summer. "Uncle Remus" will follow in the fall. Others will follow at the rate of three a year.

Why shouldn't wrestlers be good actors? Asks Mike Mazurki, who has done right well at both professions. On the "Sinbad The Sailor" set, he expounded his thesis:

"After all, wrestlers are among the best actors in the world. If a certain hold pains them, they have to exaggerate their emotions to let the fans 'way up in the gallery know they are suffering.

"In every match there is a hero and a villain and a wrestler has to learn how to act his part. I know, because in some towns I would play a villain and then return a few months later and play a hero.

"The trouble with Hollywood casters is that they think all wrestlers are punchy. But that's not true. Wrestlers don't take the head-pounding that boxers do." He said when he used to apply for parts the usual question was: "Can you read?" Mike, a graduate of Manhattan College, answered in the affirmative.

BOXING BOSS SEEKS TIGHTER STATE LAWS

Abe J. Greene Says There Are Too Many 'Incidents' in Fight Game Today

By BUS HAM

Washington, March 19 (AP)—A recent "succession of incidents" involving professional fights has so alarmed the National Boxing Association that President Abe J. Greene wants States to pass new boxing laws.

There are "seething sub-surface conditions," Greene said today in a statement which listed these "incidents" as signs of "major evils" in the sport:

1. The "regrettable necessity of the Chicago stadium closing its doors to pro boxing because of "unsatisfactory fights."

2. A near riot among Detroit fans because of a manager's "arbitrary assumption" of the referee's duties.

3. Gamblers operating among officials.

4. Champions picking soft spots instead of meeting logical contenders.

5. Repeat bouts between "favorite cliques," squelching the development of new fight talent.

6. Big commercial concerns "bidding for radio rights and making boxing fit into their plans instead of the reverse."

7. "Rampant commercialism" making boxing "a toy" for big-time operators.

All this calls for much stronger national supervision "with complete overall power to clamp down on offensive influences," Greene said.

By JAMES CHAMBERS

London, March 19 (AP)—British professional golfers are inclined to think there's something phoney about those low scores which have been returned in American tournaments.

In plain language, British golfers don't believe them, and to prove the point a couple of tough match-playing gents, Dairees, the diminutive Welshman who has beaten Nelson in a Ryder Cup match, and the reigning open champion, Dick Burton, have indicated they are willing to play Nelson for any amount of money he cares to put down, on any course, and at any time in Britain.

One critic says it's virtually impossible for any golfer to return an average of slightly over 67 per round in winning 19 tournaments as Nelson is reported to have done.

This man, who is recognized as one of the leading critics here, said it's all very well for Nelson to be able to tee up the ball through the fairways that is, get a good lie, (as in winter rules) play in matches where the stymie is eliminated and carry around with him nine or so "blasters" to punch that ball up to the green on American courses.

But when he comes over here and plays on British courses, he will have to play what Englishmen call real golf. He won't be able to walk into a professional's shop and buy a club for the shot he wants. He'll have to make the shot himself.

Trenton Fliers Win First Game of Intermediate "B" Basketball Playdown

Trenton Fliers, Intermediate B Champions at Eastern Ontario played their first game in quest of the Provincial title on Saturday night when they entertained the strong Bowmanville team, champions of the Lakeshore League, in the first of a two game series (home and home, points on round), and managed to eke out a four point lead to carry into the second game next Saturday in Bowmanville. The winner of this series will be champion of all Ontario east of Toronto.

Both teams displayed some cagey ball handling and fast breaking in an effort to go thru the opposing defence, which, for both teams, was tight. For Trenton, Gorski played a towering game, snaring 16 of his team's points, to be high scorer on the floor, and gathering in rebounds under both baskets constantly. The man seems tireless, and he sure gets around. Defensively, McIntyre was very strong for Bowmanville, and on the attack made a good pivot. Clemence, a tall raw-boned lad paced the Bowmanville attack with 13 pts.

Bowmanville opened the scoring when Watson, Trenton guard, made a knap pass which went into the hands of a Bowmanville player who completed a play to Brown for a basket. Play was slow, the teams feeling one another out, and the ball snapping around. Bowmanville broke McIlveen loose for a basket, followed shortly by Clemence, to make the score 6-0. Trenton was missing on set shots at this stage, and when two fouls were made by Bowmanville players, Trenton were unable to register on the free throws. Clemence got another basket, and a foul throw to bring the score up to 9. "Lofty" Willis entered the game for Gow at this point, and proved to have a settling effect on the home team. Clemence scored again, but Willis shortly followed with a close shot under the basket to score the first Trenton point.

Before Trenton scored on Willis' first basket, Bowmanville had piled up a lead of 11 points, which they held for a short time, as McIlveen tallied immediately following Willis to make the score 13-2.

By this time the Trenton team had settled down to work, but it was uphill struggling. Ingham was fouled and made one of his two free throws, Watson scored a field goal, Gorski made a free throw, bringing the score to 13-6.

Bowmanville put on a spurt and got two baskets, Moffatt and Clemence dropping the ball through the hoop to make it 17-6, Clemence missed a free throw, and it was no time until Gorski had tallied, followed by Labosky, who also converted a free throw to bring the Trenton total to 11. Gorski picked a ball out of a scramble under the basket and jumped high to score another—17-13. Now play was fast, ranging up and down the floor with excitement high as the Fliers put on all the pressure they could in an effort to tie up the score, Gorski missed a free throw, and both teams missed on close shots. McGregor was shot into the Trenton line-up and immediately broke away for a basket to bring the Fliers within two points. A long pass found Gorski under the basket and he made it to tie up the game 17-17. Lebosky missed two free throws and on a breakaway following the second one, Mason scored for Bowmanville just before the whistle blew, making the score, Bowmanville 19, Fliers 17 at the half way mark.

Second Half With Lots of Fouls

The second half saw the Bowmanville team throw away their own game by a great number of fouls, attributed by coach DeGeer to the fact that they had played too many games during the week and their timing on defense was out a bit. None of the fouls was of a serious nature, being largely holding penalties, but they gave Fliers sufficient free throws to give them the game. The score was tied again almost as soon as the ball was in play, when McGregor was fouled in the act of shooting and converted both his free throws. Gorski put his team ahead with a nice rebound basket in a minute or so only to have Clemence drop one in for Bowmanville to tie up again. Gorsky made a foul shot and Trenton led 22-21, but a lay up by Mason gave Bowmanville back the one point advantage. Bowmanville, beginning to feel the strain of a heavy week, slowed the game up and stalled for time, passing the ball around outside the defense. Lebosky tapped down a Bowmanville pass and threw the ball to Gorski going in and he scored putting Trenton one up 24-23. Time out Trenton and a change of players.

When play resumed a double foul was called. Stutt for Bowmanville made his throw and Ingham missed his to tie the score once again. Three foul shots missed, and then Willis got his second basket to put his team out in front, Mason racing in for a fast pass to tie it up again. Two minutes later, Mason scored again to put Bowmanville out in front again. Robertson dropped in a pretty shot to tie, and Clemence put his team in front once more. Play was terrifically fast at this stage, both teams driving for all they were worth and the score indicating the play. First one team, then the other scoring and never more than two points between them.

Then came the break—Lebosky was fouled while shooting by Rundel, and made both points good to tie the score. Following a time out, he was fouled again shooting, this time by Mason, and he converted both again, the ball dropping through clean on both shots. Trenton intercepted the Bowmanville throwin and Gorski got a cheap one from close in to put the Fliers out in front 34-40. The best passing play of the game put the Fliers six points up when Garbas started a play with Lebosky and Gorski which travelled the full length of the court, in and out like a shuttle and finally got to Gorski in his favorite shot, and he made no mistake about the shot to finish the Fliers' scoring. They started another play just in the dying seconds of the game, but a pass was intercepted by Wheeler, who dribbled half the court for a lay up which cut the lead to four points, the final score being 36-32. Frank Hoffman of Kingston refereed, Roy Menary of Belleville, umpire, E. V. Gilmor of Trenton, scorer.

The teams:

Fliers—Gorski 16, Ingham 1, Watson 2, Gow, McGregor 4, Lebosky 7, Garbas, Willis 4, Robertson 2—Total 36.

Bowmanville—Mason 8, Clemence 13, Brown 2, Moffatt 2, McIlveen 4, McIntyre, Rundel, Stutt 1, Cordelle, Wheeler 2 — Total 32.

BOSTON BRUINS HAVE AN EDGE ON DETROIT WINGS

In Ten-Game Series Boston Won Four and Tied Three Contests

Boston, March 19 — (CP) — Boston Bruins and Detroit Red Wings, who have clashed in National Hockey League play - off competition four times in the last five years, will go at it again tonight when they open a best-of-seven series at the Boston Garden.

The Bruins, who wound up in second place by defeating Chicago Black Hawks in Sunday's season finale, come down to the post-season play at full strength, as do Jolly Jack Adams' stickmen.

Over the regular campaign, the Bruins had a wide edge on the Wings in their 10-game series, for Art Ross' forces won four and tied three while scoring a total of 26 goals against 21.

Against Detroit, the Bruins have been placed by their starting lineup of Milt Schmidt, Woody Dumart and Bobby Bauer, a trio that has totalled 11 goals and nine assists. The most effective Detroit line in Boston games comprised Murray Armstrong, Adam Brown and Harry Watson, who registered a total of nine goals and eight assists. Joe Carveth, however, has been the Wings' top scorer against the Bruins with 4 goals.

Next lowest average was by Paul Bibeault, who played 10 games with Montreal and 16 with Boston Bruins. Bibeault allowed 75 goals in the last 25 games; for an average of 2.885. Harry Lumley of Detroit — the only goalie to play out the whole season of 50 games — allowed 159 goals, giving him an average of 3.100, while Frank Brimsek, in 34 games for Boston, allowed 111 goals, an average of 3.265.

"DINA CASHMAN"

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

CHAPTER 7.

She had had that to remember as she had turned back in December darkness to the ashes and rain pools, the shanties, noises, the smells of the flats, to the garish light of the kitchen and supper plates plastered with the grease of lamb stew.

That had been before Christmas—before she had dreamed—before she had feared what she dreamed and feared now. She never should have let him go; it might have shocked him, it might have sobered or even disgusted him, but Vere was too affectionate, too much the loving, blundering puppy she had so often called him, to desert her now.

But how and where could she find him, and if she did find him what could she say to his father and his mother; what would his career be, going East to law school with a wife clinging to him and a baby on the way? Dina pondered it until she was heartsick with the hopelessness of it, and she could see no way out.

Dina, Dooley and Lou and the two smaller children were out in the forlorn patch of earth they called the garden, ostensibly doing what they could to make it presentable after the deluging rains of mid-winter.

But only Dooley really was helping. Dooley was a squarely built little girl of twelve who liked working with her big sister and was like Dina in that she was already assuming such responsibility as she could for the welfare of the family. Myrna at fourteen, always had engagements on Sundays now; her pretty young face powdered, her pretty soft hair curled, her lips of the color and wetness of blood, she was off with her adored Nancy as soon as the breakfast dishes were done.

Lou, ten, was a pale, undernourished-looking little creature who was hanging today like some small wood animal on the gate, letting the sunshine penetrate her very bones. El'ner and Donny, the babies of the family, were busy with an old wagon, ropes, bottles, and planks and paid no more attention to Dina's efforts than if she had been one of the gulls that were walking and complaining on the roofs of the old red box cars that had been stalled on a siding for all the years that any inhabitant had known Railway Flats.

Dina had on an old cotton dress; she had tied a clean length of burlap firmly about her hips; her head was enveloped in a gypsy handkerchief; her slender legs were bare from where the dress stopped at her knees to where they disappeared into a pair of old tennis shoes. She was equipped for a mean job, and something in her rose to it and liked it.

"If the worst thing in the world were only mean jobs!" she said to herself more than once. "If I were what everyone thinks I am, just Dina Cashman, cleaning up the place and talking to the kids; if I could go back to last October and get engaged to Tom and have a little wedding—we could have it at the O'Connor place—Miss Tipman would let us have the double parlors."

She was so sick, and tired of fear and shame! Tired of thinking, thinking, thinking, with no end to the thinking! Days were going by and were weeks; time was bringing her inevitably to the moment when she must act, when something must be done.

And she seemed helpless, like a frantic little mouse in a trap, running around and around desperately, sniffing at every outlet, and in the end only a few hours nearer destruction.

"Pretty hopeless, isn't ?" Mrs. van Hooten working away in her garden with three milk-blond babies for companions, called cheerfully.

She had a rake; against the broken strip of side porch a broom worn down to the hard nubble of the strings was leaning. Dina had raked a snarl of cans, ropes, webbed papers, and straw into a heap and was pushing it on a square of old sacking spread on the ground. The dumps were but a hundred feet away, and fires were smoldering there even on this Sunday morning.

"We don't have much trouble getting rid of it, that's a good thing!" the little Dutch neighbor called.

"I was thinking that!" Dina set milk bottles, clotted with mud, in a row on the fence. Some ten feet of good strong wooden paling stood on one side of the Cashman lot. Just why it was there nobody ever seemed to know.

On either end of the unfenced lumpy ground was free again, but it did serve the purpose of a garage; the Cashman car, when not in use, was nosed into it on one side and the Brennan car on the other.

Dina panted in the heat, wiped her forehead with her forearm. She swept the soaked and rotting accumulations of rubbish from the steps, stooped to pull up a particularly tough bunch of grass, found it immovable, and straightened her aching back up to smile into the eyes of Tom O'Connor, unexpectedly beside her.

"Tom!" Dina exclaimed, "Dunk Beatty said you might be coming down. I was going to clean up and be all ready for you!"

"I like you the way you are," Tom said. They sat down on the steps together.

He had a new job, he told her. He had been offered better prospects with the Hamilton Pipe and Steel Company in south San Francisco. How about it, now? Had Dina been thinking it over? How'd she like to go house hunting with him this afternoon in south San Francisco?

The dear usual progress; her heart ached at the thought of it! She needed him so now; she liked him so much and trusted him so completely!

Dina was swept by a sudden feeling of utter weakness. If she could only take what Tom offered; if she could throw herself and her burdens once and for all upon him, how she would repay him! What a home his should be, what a wife, what comfort and sweetness and spoiling she would pour over him!

Would she have married Tom if the fearful predicament in which she found herself had passed her by? She did not know. She only knew that after three weeks of cold and dark, worrying and loneliness, he was the biggest, the safest thing that had come her way or could ever come her way.

There was infinite rest in his mere nearness. Perhaps if he knew how desperately she needed him, perhaps if he knew how eternally grateful she would be to escape from the eyes and the tongues all about her. Tom might be big enough to help her, to offer her all the more eagerly to shelter and protection she must have.

"I'd like to be married this afternoon," she said suddenly and thickly. She half turned as she spoke, her face sober, and saw Tom's astonished eyes.

"What did you say?" he stammered.

"Oh, because I'm so tired—I'm so sick of everything." Her throat thickened; she looked away.

"Ah, sure you are!" Tom's husky voice said comfortingly. "I'd take care of you to the best day of my life."

"I need taking care of," she said somberly, swallowing.

"That's all I want to do, dear," said Tom, his voice shaking.

"Pop's asleep," the girl told him, jerking her head backward toward the house. "I don't want him to hear us," she said.

"Everyone'll know soon!" Tom said in satisfaction. His deep-set small eyes danced in his dark, broad face.

"It's this." Dina had to swallow again. "I've been an awful fool, Tom," she said slowly, not looking at him. "I'm—I'm afraid I'm in trouble."

"No! But if I had money I'd go away." Dina had followed an irresistible impulse to confide in him. But now she wished she could draw back. Put into words, her story had in it nothing that a thousand others did not have. It was a story of shame and weakness and stupidity. Of all persons Tom O'Connor was the last to understand it.

"What's the matter?" he asked, staring. She saw his face redden. She knew that he was angry at himself, not at her, as the first ugly touch of suspicion reached him. Nobody had any right even to think such things in connection with Dina Cashman. Tom was already blaming himself.

"Oh, I've been a fool," she said wearily. "I oughn't to tell you, Tom, but you've always been so good to me, and I've got to tell someone! I—you see — I liked this boy, Vere Holland, so much, and we went up into the Sierras together—and we were—we are—in love."

"You mean you're going to marry him?" Tom demanded in the silence.

"Well, eventually, yes." Her throat was dry; she spoke with an effort.

"How d'you mean, eventually?"

"He's at law school in the East," she explained; he's taking a law course at Yale. He wrote me. That—that part of it's all right. But you see."

She could not go on. She looked away and felt the hot color creeping up to her cheeks.

"I don't know what you're trying to tell me," Tom said at last in a hard voice.

"That, I guess," Dina said very low. There was a moment of silence.

"You don't know what you're talking about!" Tom broke out roughly after a stupefied pause. "You! why, you've always been the touch-me-not, the girl none of the fellows could get near. You—you don't know what you're talking about!"

"We were up there in the mountains—" Dina stopped again. "I know how you feel," she said after a moment; "and you know how I do. I can't believe it even now. I can't sleep, Tom. It's like a horrible dream. But oh my God, if it is a dream, I wish I could wake up!" Dina broke off to say under her breath. "I've no friends. Tom: we're not like other people; we haven't cousins and uncles and people to help us out. There's nowhere I can go, and I've got to go somewhere."

She stopped, and for a long time neither spoke.

"Mother know?" he asked briefly.

"Oh, no! It'd kill her. She needs me and the girls need me." Dina went on, turning suddenly drenched eyes to her companion.

"What does he say?" Tom slightly accented the pronoun.

"He doesn't know. That is, I'm sure he doesn't."

The atmosphere had changed in the last five minutes. All the joy, the love, and tenderness had gone out of Tom's face, leaving it dark and hard.

"You tell me he doesn't know?"

"Well, I couldn't say it right out, I couldn't write the truth," she explained lamely. "He was with his mother, and she's—she's one of those tough women, I imagine. But I did write him—I sent him a handkerchief at Christmastime, the nicest I could buy in San Jose, and with the letter I said that he simply had to see me before he went away, that I was worried. He must have known from that. But he didn't say anything about it when he answered. That was just after New Year's, and I haven't had a letter since."

"Where is he now?"

"In New Haven, I guess. I don't know the address."

She was silent and Tom silent too. His face, as he stared into space, was black.

"This is his affair," he began presently. "No one else can take it on. It's happened, and he's responsible. He's got to know."

Among all her other shamed and confused thoughts Dina was conscious of terror. Tom wasn't going to take it upon himself to notify him!

"It's mine; it's always the woman's," she said quickly and proudly.

Halifax, Yorkshire, England, March 19 — (Reuters) — Michael Foot, prominent newspaperman and labor member of parliament, in a speech Sunday night attributed the deterioration in relations between the western democracies and Russia in part to reaction and increased suspicion in Moscow at the time of the original United States decision to hold the atomic bomb secrets as a "sacred trust."

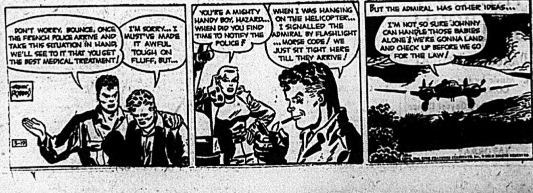
JOHNNY HAZARD — By Frank Robbins



DON'T WORRY, BOUNCE, ONCE THE FRENCH POLICE ARRIVE AND TAKE THIS SITUATION IN HAND, WE'LL SEE TO IT THAT YOU GET THE BEST MEDICAL TREATMENT!
I'M SORRY... I MUST'VE MADE IT AWFUL TOUGH ON FLUFF, BUT...
YOU'RE A MIGHTY HANDY BOY, HAZARD... WHEN DID YOU FIND TIME TO NOTIFY THE POLICE?
WHEN I WAS HANGING ON THE HELICOPTER... I SIGNALLED THE ADMIRAL BY FLASHLIGHT ... MORSE CODE! WE JUST SIT TIGHT HERE TILL THEY ARRIVE!
BUT THE ADMIRAL HAS OTHER IDEAS...
I'M NOT SO SURE JOHNNY CAN HANDLE THOSE BABIES ALONE! WE'RE GONNA LAND AND CHECK UP BEFORE WE GO FOR THE LAW!

TRAFFIC JUDGE KNEW

Glendale, Calif., March 19 — (AP)— Traffic Court Judge Charles R. Dyer disqualified himself because he had "too personal an interest" when his case came up in his own court on a charge of driving with a defective tail light. He pleaded "guilty as charged" before Justice of the Peace Bert Woodward, who declared: "being a judge you also understand the vehicle code; therefore, I give you the regular $2 fine—plus $1 because you should know better."

Charge Reduced To Manslaughter In Taylor Death

By WILLIAM STEWART
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Brisbane, March 19 (CP Cable) —George Ernest Cowan, 24-year-old quarter caste aboriginal Australian, today was committed for supreme court trial on the reduced charge of manslaughter in connection with the death Feb. 19 of Dr. James Carson Taylor of Toronto.

Cowan was charged with murder after Dr. Taylor had died in a Brisbane hospital of head injuries suffered in a street fight in south Brisbane Feb. 13.

Cowan appeared in police court here today. According to the prosecution, Cowan struck Dr. Taylor, causing the Canadian to fall and suffer a fractured skull.

Magistrate J. E. Landy, who fixed bail at $360 with an additional surety of the same amount, said the evidence did not support the murder charge laid following Dr. Taylor's death.

Fracture Cause of Death.

Medical evidence at the hearing showed that Dr. Taylor's death was caused by a skull fracture with consequential brain injury, pneumonia and other complications.

Police reported to the hearing —at which the attendance was made up only of colored men and women — that they were unable to locate Violet Warren, waitress who allegedly was involved in the incidents which led up to the fatal injury of Dr. Taylor.

Det. Sgt. Jack Mahoney testified that when Dr. Taylor first was admitted to hospital after the injury on the night of Feb. 13, he was believed to be a Canadian seaman.

When W. J. Kennedy, counsel representing Cowan, commented that the section of Brisbane where the incident had occurred "wasn't a very nice part for a doctor of philosophy to frequent," the detective said: "Apparently he was practically hopelessly drunk."

Sgt. Mahoney added: "Taylor was a stranger to Brisbane, probably not knowing one part from another."

He quoted a statement made by Cowan to the police Feb. 15 in which the accused alleged Dr. Taylor had "grabbed" Miss Warren, who had escorted him from a South Brisbane cafe, and gave that reason for "punching" the Canadian.

General Fight Occurred.

Sgt. Mahoney testified that Cowan went on to say that a general fight followed and when it was over, the waitress returned to the side of Taylor who then was leaning against post outside of the cafe.

The detective said Cowan's statement added that when the waitress told Dr. Taylor: "You'd better go home," the Canadian slapped her.

Neutral Arbiters At Kingston

Belleville "Bears" will be fighting for all they're worth in Kingston tonight when they tangle with the Kingston "Saints" in the third and deciding game in the O.H.A. Junior "B" playdowns.

The Bears got away to a good start in the series last Monday night by trimming the Kingstonians 10-9 but dropped an unfortunate 7-6 thriller on Wednesday when the Saints came from behind to score four goals in two minutes and fifty-four seconds towards the end of the third stanza to eke out the winning margin after trailing 6-3 with less than five minutes to play.

The locals are quite confident that they can take the measure of the highly-touted "Saints" tonight and so earn the right to meet Scarboro in the next round of the "playoffs."

The Bears were unable to arrange for a practice over the weekend but report that they are in fine shape for tonight's encounter. It is expected that quite a number of Belleville sport fans will be making the trip to Kingston to give the team some well-deserved support.

It was announced on Monday that the O.H.A. has appointed two neutral arbiters for the game.

Floating Bottle Message Leads To Rescure 26

Mazatlan, Mex., March 19 — (AP) — The Navy Department said yesterday that a Mexican Coast Guard cutter, using directions found in a floating bottle, rescued 22 persons stranded after the sinking of the 30-ton Mexican ship Rio de Santiago. The sinking occurred Thursday. The survivors, most of whom were injured, and the bodies of 20 who perished, were picked up Sunday near Chametla, a fishing village, the navy account said. The survivors had swum ashore.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

Toronto, March 19 (CP)—Moderate gains on the stock exchange were netted in the early hours, the golds and industrials adding .53 each to the index standing. Trading was on the quiet side and the turnover was 812,000 shares for the first three hours.

The food, paper and building stocks were a bit stronger.

Steep Rock sold down 25 cents to 3.40 on the report that the share capital is to be increased.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

New York, March 19 — (AP)— Assorted stocks, including tobaccos, worked moderately higher in today's market although numerous leaders slipped fractionally under negligible pressure.

The ticker tape loafed from the start in one of the slow sessions of the year to date. Irregularity was the rule near the fourth hour.

On the big board at noon Canadian Pacific was up 1/4 at 19½, Distillers Seagram up 1/2 at 89.

HOGS

Toronto, March 19 (CP) — Grade A, dressed, bacon-hogs were unchanged at $17.50 plus transportation at Brantford, in the only market to report established quotations early today.

Fleming Mackell Scores Three As St. Mike's Win

Oshawa, March 19 (CP)—Toronto St. Michael's came back to score a 5-1 victory over the Oshawa Generals last night, which evens up the best-of-seven O.H.A. junior final at two games apiece.

The Generals started out in fine style against the Memorial Cup holders, rapping in the first goal after only 22 seconds of the opening frame. But although they were on the offensive throughout the period, it was their last goal.

St. Michael's treating a crowd of 5,000 to the hockey that kept them on top of the O.H.A. junior circuit most of the season, came back with three goals in the second and two in the third period.

Fleming Backell scored three of the Toronto goals, two of them unassisted, and Tod Sloan and Bobby Paul got the others.

MINING, LABOR DISCUSSED IN THE LEGISLATURE

Throne Speech Debate Nears End and Vote is Expected Early This Week

Toronto, March 19 (CP)—A call for government development and financing of the mining industry and speeches stressing labor topics were heard in the Ontario legislature yesterday as debate on the Speech from the Throne neared a conclusion. The vote is expected to be taken today.

Labor themes were stressed by J. B. Salsberg (Lab.-Prog — Toronto St. Andrews) and Alex Parent (Lab—Essex North), with George Harvey (CCF—Sault Ste. Marie) criticizing government "laissez-faire" policies in mining and forestry. Five bills were given first reading at the lengthy afternoon sitting, including two which would require pre-marital blood tests and provide for medical examinations of expectant mothers.

Mr. Salsberg advocated a $200,000,000 provincial housing loan, asserting it could be undertaken despite the primary federal government responsibility in the field. Quoting Labor Minister Daley as saying there was a danger of wages becoming too high, he said there were returned veterans working in a downtown Toronto store for as little as $16 and $18 a week.

Referring to attacks by Premier Drew on the Labor-Progressive party, Mr. Salsberg pleaded for a "more tolerant, more considerate, more friendly" attitude by other house members. The premier had spoken of the "British way" but did not appear to follow it in his treatment of minority groups.

He lauded the civil service commission for "doing a good job" and said he hoped it would soon have a "powerful" trade union.

Urges Reforestation

Mr. Harvey, urging reforestation of areas that had not lost their timber potential, emphasized the need of roads to link isolated northern Ontario communities. There were 40,000,000 people in the United States eager to visit the Sault Ste. Marie but roads were a requisite. A bridge or tunnel was also needed at the Sault and, he understood the American government had plans for a $3,800,000 bridge, conditional on Ontario's acceptance of the plan.

Excessive profits for management in northern areas often forced workers—who produced the profits—into houses of refuge in their old age. The house of refuge in the Sault, condemned year after year by grand juries, was particularly "obnoxious." Inmates descended three flights of stairs for meals in a "damp" basement. He knew of one man who took 25 minutes to make the trip to the basement.

Isolated communities—such as Michipicoten Harbor, Wawa and Missanable where there were "no doctor, no nurse and no dentist"—were badly in need of medical services. Expectant mothers in those areas didn't "phone for a 35-cent taxi" like urban dwellers. Often babies entered the world without pre-natal care.

In all rural Ontario, 53 children died for every 1,000 that lived compared with 39 in urban area. For dwellers in outlying communities, there was "no paved pathway to paradise—just a gravel road."

Stressing the need for improved care of aged men and women, he added:-

Frequently Interrupted

"It's a strange thing that a country which has so high a standard of living, should have so low a standard of dying."

Mr. Parent, frequently interrupted by government members, listed the aims of labor unions as "five fold — jobs, a new labor order, code, 40-hour work week, two-week vacations with pay and a minimum wage law. He asserted the government "stood aloof and did nothing" during the 100-day strike at the Fort Motor Company in Windsor.

He said provincial police had been sent to the strike scene at the request of the Ford company, but finally said "they were sent in, anyway," after three interruptions by government members.

Mr. Parent said he "deeply resents" slurs against French-Canadians. He referred to a newspaper story which said a young French-Canadian had been booed at a Progressive Conservative convention in Toronto before the last provincial election. Kelso Roberts (PC — Toronto St. Patrick's) rose on a question of privilege to say the speaker booed had been himself. Mr. Roberts said he had been introducing a young Canadian of French origin.

Slaying Took Place Within Past Two Weeks

Hamilton, March 19 —(CP)—Provincial Police searching for clues in a slaying revealed when the torso of a man was found near here last Saturday, today had the list of possibilities considerably narrowed by expert medical opinion that the slaying took place within the past two weeks.

Dr. W. J. Deadman, city pathologist, and Dr. Isaac E. Crack, coroner, said after the autopsy yesterday that the victim had been dead "not more than two weeks." This appeared to rule out the possibility the torso was that of Rocco Perri, self-styled "king of bootleggers" who has been missing from Hamilton for two years. Perri's name and that of several other persons missing in Western Ontario over recent years had been linked in speculation on identification of the torso.

The stocky, middle-aged man whose hacked remains were found here must have died from head injuries, experts said, as a superficial bullet wound in the chest was not enough to cause death. Police are still searching for the head, arms and legs.

A new name was added to the list of missing persons — that of Charles White, a pensioner of the First Great War, who has been missing from his rooming house here since March 9.

The finding of a blood-stained shirt in the general vicinity was reported to police yesterday, but it was learned the shirt was a new garment, with no laundry or other identification marks.

The shirt had been picked up by several city employees who threw it away again and did not think it worthy of note until they read of the discovery of the torso. The shirt contained bullet-holes.

MEMBERS MOVE NON-CONFIDENCE VOTE IN GOVT.

Prime Minister Says Other Countries Wish They Were in the Same Position as Canada

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, March 19 (CP)—While Canada's position with respect to housing, employment, reconversion and rehabilitation may "not be all that we would wish to be, Canada is in a better position than any other country in the world," Prime Minister Mackenzie King told the Commons Monday.

He made the statement while defending government domestic policies, sharply criticized by John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, and M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, both of whom moved votes of non-confidence in the administration.

The party leaders spoke during the Throne Speech debate and, although the spotlight centred on statements on Canada's espionage investigation, they took time out to refer to conditions in the Dominion. The fourth and last of the party leaders.—Solon Low, head of the Social Credit Group—will be heard today.

Mr. Coldwell said those found guilty of violating the Officials Secrets Acts must be dealt with according to law. The use of totalitarian methods used, however, should not be tolerated in the treatment of suspects.

Mr. King who spent only a short time replying to Mr. Bracken's charges on the handling of domestic affairs, said that other Allied countries were wishing they could be in Canada's position.

"No other country in the world stands as high in the eyes of the world as Canada stands today, and I think it an unfortunate thing that the one view to the contrary should be expressed in this House of Commons by one of our own Canadian citizens, the leader of one of our political parties," said Mr. King.

Canada Better Off

Canada was better off than other Allied countries with respect to housing, employment, rehabilitation and reconversion.

Mr. Bracken, in his non-confidence motion, moved at the conclusion of a two-hour speech, charged the government with failing to meet the needs of veterans and workers and with failing to provide suitable housing for Canadians.

Mr. Coldwell's non-confidence motion charged that the government in replying on private enterprise had failed to provide a comprehensive national plan to meet present emergency conditions. Such a plan was essential for full employment, the rehabilitation of veterans, provision of housing and the attainment of a high rate of agricultural and industrial production.

A practical farmer and a former President of an Agriculture College, Mr. Bracken said he disagreed with Agriculture Minister Gardiner on the matter of increasing Canada's wheat acreage to supply more foods for export.

Could Be Expanded

He felt Canadian wheat acreage could be expanded by 3,000,000 or 4,000,000 acres, which would produce an additional 30,000,000 to 40,000,000 bushels of wheat. This could be done without injuring western farm lands.

Mr. Coldwell supported the food conservation plan announced Sunday by Prime Minister King.

"I wish he had gone further — prohibited the wasteful use of cereals in non-essential luxuries like liquor," said Mr. Coldwell. "I can assure him that if food for starving people involves some more rationing in Canada I believe the people will support any intelligent and necessary steps the government requests."

Mr. Coldwell said private enterprise had failed before the war to provide adequate housing and yet the government had entrusted practically all housing needs to private firms.

"The unnecessary export of needed building materials should be halted," he said. "There is no need for Canada to provide the United States with materials for luxury building when people are homeless. Non-essential and deferrable building in Canada should be prohibited and supplies rationed so that top priority may be given to housing which costs under $5,000 per unit."

Both Mr. Bracken and Mr. Coldwell called for support of the recent $1,250,000,000 loan to the United Kingdom, which Mr. King described as essential to assist in the re-establishment of Britain in order that she might play her part in rehabilitation.

Mr. Marry Morrow, one of the township councillors, then called the names and Mrs. George Clapp, president of the local branch of the Women's Institute presented cheques to the thirty-two boys and two girls. Mr. Gordon Jeffery spoke a few words of thanks on behalf of the veterans and himself. Extensive Wire Service Makes Radio Operation Expensive

Toronto, March 19 —(CP)—Canada is an "extremely expensive country to run national radio network in," A. D. Dunton, chairman of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, said yesterday in an address before the Canadian Club here.

"In Great Britain," said Mr. Dunton, "I believe two or three high power stations could cover the whole country. Actually I believe the BBC needs about 975 miles of wirelines to our 9,000, and wirelines are expensive. Yet I see the BBC wants to have its licence fee doubled . . . we have the expensive condition of great distances and small populations."

He said all the revenues of the corporation "go into providing radio service to its owners, the listeners of Canada. The greater part of its revenues come from listeners in the form of radio licence fees . . . the remainder of the revenues, just under one third, come from commercial operations.

Commits Suicide After Attacking Wife

Port Colborne, Ont., March 19 —(CP)— Emile Regimbald, 46, was found hanged by a chain in the attic of his home here yesterday and police said he had committed suicide after attempting to murder his wife by beating her with milk bottles and a poker and attacking her with a butcher knife.

His wife, Adeline Regimbald, was taken to hospital in serious condition but authorities said she would recover.

Police were called after Mrs. Regimbald managed to escape from her husband and reach a neighborhood store. Police picked up the woman at the store, took her to a doctor and then to hospital. They then obtained a warrant for Regimbald's arrest on a charge of attempted murder and set out for his home.

When they reached the Regimbald house about an hour and a half after answering the first call, they found their man hanged in the attic. He had climbed on a sewing table, placed a heavy chain around his neck and over a crowbar placed across rafters, and then kicked the table from under him.

The couple have two daughters, one in Niagara Falls and one in Toronto. Regimbald appeared in court here in December on a charge of assaulting his wife. At that time the pair decided to make another attempt at smoothing out their marital troubles.

$21,065,694 DEFICIT FORECAST BY PROVINCIAL TREASURER AS ONTARIO BUDGET PRESENTED

Huge Quantities Of Farm Produce Raised Last Year

Govt. Will Operate Food Terminal in Toronto Area

Toronto, March 20 — (CP) — The Ontario farmer has made a notable contribution to the campaign to feed a hungry world, Provincial Treasurer Frost said today in his budget address in the Ontario Legislature.

He cited these as some of the production figures for 1945: hogs 1,900,000 head; sheep and lambs 268,000 head; butter 80,367,000 pounds; cheese 115,105,000 pounds; fluid milk 1,557,025,000 pounds; concentrated and condensed milk 337,135,000 pounds.

Continuation of government subsidies on cheese, hogs, sugar beets and other products at a cost of more than $3,600,000 undoubtedly played a great part in stimulating production, said Mr. Frost, announcing that the subsidies will be continued this year "in order to encourage and augment production of vital foodstuffs required for export to Britain and throughout the world."

Special attention was given to the needs of northern Ontario farmers during the year. Marketing facilities were improved to make more readily available the north's own markets in mining areas and lumber camps. A potato grading and storage warehouse was put in operation at Cochrane with government assistance. Co-operative facilities at New Liskeard were extended. Veterinary services were extended. Loans were made to co-operative organizations to provide for extension of creameries, cheese factories and storage facilities. Boys from the clay belt were given residential short term courses at the Kapuskasing experimental farm where board and lodging were provided without charge.

One handicap of northern agriculture development was to provide adequate drainage and clear land rapidly so settlers could get a good start which would enable them to farm economically and support their families. The Department of Agriculture developed plans under which a pool of large scale drainage and land clearing machinery would be placed at the disposal of farm settlers so they could clear their holdings quickly at nominal cost. The sum of $1,000,000 was placed in the estimates for this work.

To help in the marketing of farm products plans were completed for the construction and operation of an Ontario food terminal in the Toronto area.

Estimates of the department were being increased by about $1,750,000 to $7,857,349.

Will Try to Place Existing Hospitals On Paying Basis

Toronto, March 20 — (CP) — Steps to place existing hospitals on a paying basis as a preliminary to increasing hospital accommodation and provision of pre-natal examinations for expectant mothers were outlined by Provincial Treasurer Frost in his Ontario Legislature budget speech today. He announced the estimates for the department were being increased by $3,028,200 to $15,372,390.

Assistance was being given to hospitals to meet increased cost of maintenance. Studies by the Department of Health showed that any expansion of health insurance and services depends on hospital capacity. Increased contributions were planned for public ward beds to help out hospitals on a paying basis.

Cost of the pre-natal examinations for expectant mothers was estimated at $500,000. Purpose of the plan was to give tangible evidence of the government's interest in early and sustained contact between the expectant mother and her physician with the expectation it would uncover any possible evidence of disease in the mother in time to arrange necessary treatment and ensure the birth of a healthy child.

Famous Warship of British Navy Ordered Scrapped by Admiralty

London, March 20 — (Reuters) —"Approved for H.M.S. Warspite to be scrapped."

With these formal words in an official order the Admiralty Tuesday night signed the death-warrant of the 30,600-ton battleship Warspite, grand old lady of the Royal Navy, after historic service which began at the Battle of Jutland in 1916 and ended with the bombardment of Walcheren, Holland, in support of the landings on that island in 1944.

Jutland was nearly her deathbed. To this day, despite a £3,000,000 ($13,500,000) refit between wars, scars faintly show where she was struck by 11 big German shells and 20 smaller during that battle. Hits by enemy shells jammed her steering gear and set her steaming in a wide circle towards the coast. All enemy guns were trained on her when she suddenly answered her helm again —the gear righted, it was thought, by the explosion of another shell.

Built originally at a cost of £2,500,000 ($11,250,000) Warspite entered the Second Great War, after her extensive reconstruction, one of the most powerful battleships in the world. Sent from Alexandria to Halifax in December, 1939, to escort the first contingent of Canadian troops to Britain, she left the convoy in mid-Atlantic for an abortive chase after the German pocket battleship Deutschland which preferred to evade action.

At Narvik, Norway, in April, 1940, Warspite went to Narvik and battered the shore with her guns.

By May 1940 Warspite was back in the Mediterranean as the Commander in Chief's flagship. She took part in the Battle of Cape Matapan early in 1941, a major defeat for the Italian Navy.

In the Battle of Crete in 1941 climax of the Warspite's work in the Mediterranean, more than 400 bombs were aimed at her by Nazi airmen. She dodged all but the last which caused some damage on the port side. After repairs she crossed the Pacific to join the eastern fleet and make war against the Japanese.

NEITZ GIVEN LIFE IMPRISONMENT BY R.C.A.F. COURT

Convicted at Aurich Of Shooting With Intent to Kill Toronto Airman

By ROSS MUNRO

Aurich, Germany, March 20 — (CP Cable) — Johann Neitz, former cook in the German Marine Corps, was sentenced to life imprisonment by an R.C.A.F. war crimes court here today after he was convicted of shooting with intent to kill FO. Rudolph Romans, Toronto airman who was captured by Neitz near Wilhelmshaven, in October, 1944.

After Air Vice-Marshal R. E. McBurney, president of the court, announced the findings of the tribunal following a five day trial in the first R.C.A.F. war crimes case, the court adjourned to consider sentence.

"I want to reply to the court I am not guilty," said Neitz.

FO. Roman, 26-year-old bomb-aimer, was the chief prosecution witness at the trial of Neitz.

The trial was the first of its kind held by the R.C.A.F.

The R.C.A.F. trials started last week and before they are through will accuse three more Germans of killing R.C.A.F. prisoners. The charges against Neitz were the lightest of any which will be placed before the court.

Col. C. Thompson New Head of Army Medical Service

Ottawa, March 20 (CP) — Col. Clifford Shaw Thompson, 49, O.B.E., of North Sydney, N. S., has been promoted to acting rank of Brigadier and appointed director-general of army medical services, Defence Headquarters announced last night.

He succeeds Maj.-Gen. C. P. Fenwick, 55, Toronto, who retired in January to become medical chief of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Brig. George R. D. Farmer, 49, O.B.E., the acting director, has retired and will practise medicine in his native city of Hamilton, Ont.

The new director is a graduate of Mount Allison University, Sackville, N.B., where he obtained a Bachelor of Arts degree, and of McGill University. He also did post-graduate work in pathology, medicine and surgery in Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal.

Brig. Farmer has the distinction of having mobilized and commanded in the Second Great War the same unit commanded by his father in the First Great War. He is the son of the late Col. G. D. Farmer, who mobilized the 5th Field Ambulance, Canadian Army Medical Corps in November, 1914, took it overseas with the 2nd Division and commanded it at Ypres and on the Somme.

33 Servicemen Killed in Two Plane Crashes

San Francisco, March 20—(AP) —Crashes of two big United States Army planes in northern California mountains yesterday apparently took a death toll of 33 servicemen, whose bodies ground crews labored in difficult terrain today to recover.

Twenty-three bodies, some of them buried several feet in snow, had been found by early today at the scene of a transport crash in the Sierra Nevada. Three others listed on the flight from Stockton, Calif., were believed in the yet inaccessible flight control compartment of the wreckage.

A ground squad pushed toward the wreckage of a B-29 which crashed with seven crew members into the top of a 3,820-foot peak near Livermore, 30 miles southeast of San Francisco. The bomber came from Hickam Field, Honolulu. Its radio reported engine trouble several hours before the plane plummetted to earth 10 feet from the top of the peak.

Witnesses said they saw the transport explode in air. Captain Harold Simer, commanding the Reno, Nev., Army Air base, said the wreckage indicated a wing, which had not been found, was blown off before the crash.

MRS. JOHN DICK REFUSED BAIL ON VAGRANCYCHARGE

Dismembered Body of Her Husband Found in Gully Near Hamilton

Hamilton, Ont., March 20—(CP) —Mrs. John Dick, widow of a Hamilton Street Railway operator whose dismembered body was found off a district Hamilton mountain roadway last Saturday, was remanded without bail in police court today on a charge of vagrancy.

During Mrs. Dick's brief appearance, her counsel protested against non-allowance of bail and Magistrate H. A. Burbidge said he would discuss the matter with counsel in chambers.

The dismembered body of the 40-year-old Dick was identified by relatives yesterday and at that time police chief A. R. Crocker said a charge of murder likely would be laid in the near future. He added without elaboration that "we do not believe this killing was the working of a gang but we are checking and we hope to make an arrest today."

Meanwhile, a search continued for the head, arms and legs of the torso which was discovered by children beneath a rocky ledge at nearby Albion Falls.

The 25-year-old widow, slight and dark-haired, stood with bowed head in court when her counsel, Orville Walsh, asked for bail on grounds she had lived all her life in Hamilton and that her appearance in court at any time was assured.

Crown Attorney Harvey McCulloch said he objected to bail being allowed because the situation required Mrs. Dick being held in custody until investigation was completed.

Magistrate Burbidge said "There may be a lot behind the vagrancy charge."

Dick had been missing since March 6, when he failed to report for work at the Hamilton car barns. Just before finding of the torso, street railway officials reported his disappearance because, they said, he had been carrying some company money.

Following identification of the underwear-clad torso, police interviewed the slain man's widow who married Dick several months ago. Hamilton relatives yesterday said they could advance no motive for the slaying.

The body was identified by two brothers-in-law, John and Jacob Wahl, who live in the nearby Beamsville district. A distinctive mark on the torso was said to have been means of identification.

Dick, a native of Russia whose family name was said to be spelled "Dyck", came to Hamilton, 21 years ago, and had been employed as a bus driver with the Street Railway Company for nearly two years.

CANADA'S SOVIET SPY ENQUIRY HOLDS SPOTLIGHT

Justice Minister Mr. St. Laurent Defends Actions of Commission Conducting Enquiry

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, March 20 (CP)—Canada's Soviet spy inquiry dominated debate in the Commons again yesterday, with the Progressive Conservative opposition launching its first full-scale criticism of the government's handling of the investigation.

The opposition's case was conducted by Arthur Smith, Progressive Conservative member for Calgary West and a former Crown Prosecutor, while Justice Minister St. Laurent, under whose department the investigation is being carried on, handled the defence for the government.

The discussion arose during continued debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne and extensive references to the inquiry also came from Solon Low, Social Credit leader, and Stanley Knowles, C.C.F. member for Winnipeg North Centre, who recently returned from a trip to Russia.

Before resuming the debate, the House heard a statement from Agriculture Minister Gardiner that he expected an announcement would be made later this week about the signing of new contracts with Britain for the purchase of Canadian foodstuffs.

Later, taking part in the Throne Speech debate, Mr. Gardiner gave an indication what the announcement might contain when he said returns to farmers from prices in the pending food contracts possibly will be higher than the returns they received during the war years. In any event, they would not be lower.

In the Senate, Senator J. R. Hurtubise (L-Ontario) moved the address in reply to the Throne Speech and said Canada's future prosperity was linked with the welfare of other countries and the Dominion could not prosper while other nations remained poverty stricken.

Defended Actions

The address was seconded by Senator G. P. Burchill (L-New Brunswick), who urged Canadians to do their utmost to use the country's vast resources to provide food for other nations.

In the Commons debate, Mr. St. Laurent strongly defended the actions of the Royal Commission conducting the inquiry and replied to Mr. Smith's charges that "terrible" and "grave" mistakes had been made.

Mr. St. Laurent said it never had been thought that any government in Canada would have to "track down" spies in its own service. It was hoped that it never would fall to any government to do so again. But if it did, he hoped the government of the day would not "shirk" its responsibilities.

Mr. Smith said he understood those detained had been offered the opportunity of having counsel after they had been examined by the Commission and asked what was the good of offering counsel after they had been held in "solitary confinement" and questioned by "eminent counsel."

"Can anyone suggest these were voluntary statements?" he asked.

Seen Black Days

In six months the spy scare would be "gone" and "in your lifetime and mine we will regret and never live down the fact that we abrogated the rights and liberties of our nation."

He added: "Canada has indeed sir, seen black days."

Mr. Knowles said he had been in Moscow when the inquiry was announced and had found the Russian people and officials concerned about the future of Russo-Canadian relations.

He suggested Prime Minister Mackenzie King go to Moscow to talk the situation over with Soviet officials and that Canada send cultural and business missions to the Soviet to improve relations between the two countries.

Phileas Cote (L-Matane) turned to international affairs and expressed the hope the Prime Minister would be nominated chairman of the forthcoming peace conference in Paris and that he eventually would become president of a world government.

Pledges Loss to Be Overtaken In Future Ordinary Revenue After Provincial Conference

Capital Spending Doubled In Every Dept. of Govt.

Toronto, March 20 —(CP)— A deficit of $21,065,694 in the fiscal year ending March 31, 1947, was forecast today by Provincial Treasurer Frost in his first post-war budget address to the Ontario legislature. He coupled with this forecast — based on record anticipated gross ordinary expenditures of $149,436,605 — the pledge that this deficit will be overtaken from future ordinary revenue after the Dominion-Provincial conference.

Provision for increased capital spending by almost every major government department was accompanied by projected capital expenditures more than double those of the present fiscal year ending next March 31 — $46,415,800 compared with $22,335,600 — due mainly to $20,000,000 high construction and $3,500,000 public works programs.

He announced a surplus of $6,052,000 on ordinary account for the current fiscal year, based on 10 months actual and two months estimated expenditures and revenue, and proposed payment of $5,800,000 of the amount to school boards to apply on their 1946 legislative grants. The surplus compares with his forecast of $69,328 of a year ago and is more than accounted for by a $6,000,000 increase in liquor revenue.

Reduction in Gross Debt

He announced reductions of $5,693,110 in the gross debt and $587,648 in the net debt for the current fiscal year and added: "This is the third budget which I have had the honor of introducing. In each case it has been my privilege to announce a surplus on ordinary account, a reduction in the gross debt and a reduction in the net debt. This marks a new achievement in government financing and not since net debt became a factor in government financing some 40 years ago have three successive net debt reductions been announced."

In his 16,000-word address, the treasurer also announced: Reduction of $600,000 through refinancing of interest and debt service charges; extension of hydro service to 22,750 new customers; continuation of present farm subsidies for hogs, cheese, sugar beets and wool; assistance to Northern Ontario farmers including $1,000,000 to assist in land clearing and settlement; three-way radio equipment for Provincial Police; pre-natal examination for expectant mothers; continuation of the one-mill subsidy to municipalities; no new taxes; revision of the Mining Tax Act and the Succession Duty Act; increased estimated for all development departments.

Gross ordinary revenue for the next fiscal year was estimated at $128,370,911 compared with expenditures of $149,436,605 — largest in the history of the province. Figures for the present fiscal year, 10 months actual and two estimated, place revenue at $136,348,400 and expenditures at $138,096,400, including the proposed application to school grants of $5,800,000 of the surplus.

PLEDGES LOSS—Page 7

Thomas Gibbons Adjudged Sane By Renfrew Jury

Pembroke, Ont., March 20 — (CP) — Burly, 46-year-old Tom Gibbons today faced resumption of his trial for double murder after a Renfrew County Assize jury yesterday adjudged him sane and able to stand trial although a witness declared the huge farmer suffered from "delusions."

Yesterday the Crown concluded its case against Gibbons with evidence from 14-year-old Leslie McNulty, only eye-witness to the rifle slaying, and the reading of a statement by Gibbons in which he admitted shooting Joseph Edward Fitzmaurice, 35, and his brother Joseph, 33, on a lonely country lane near his Adamston township farm.

The jury's decision on Gibbons' sanity came after testimony by Dr. Arthur Doyle, Toronto psychiatrist and former staff member of Queen's University.

Dr. Doyle testified that Gibbons, a bachelor who lived with his sister on their farm 10 miles east of Renfrew, had delusions the Fitzmaurices were part of a conspiracy "to destroy the community and the country."

He believed "that for many years in his community, many forces or persons were engaged in a conspiracy to undermine the community, to cause harm and wrong-doing, to destroy religion and the church."

Dr. Doyle said Gibbons told him that "he himself had been chosen by God to take, in any way, God's part to see that a stand was taken against these forces.

Man Invests Nest-Egg for June Wedding In Nuggets Which Turn Out to be Brass

Toronto, March 20 — (CP) — Sixteen shining gold nuggets that turned out to be brass soured Vernon Kochberg's June romance in a tale he told Tuesday night that could have come straight from the pages of Robert W. Service.

Kochberg sadly told police he invested $2,000 savings, believed to be a nest-egg for a June wedding, in the "nuggets."

He told police he had been approached last month by a man who told him glowingly of easy profits in buying gold. Together they went to North Bay and there they were talking over their rosy future in a hotel room when in stamped a prospector — "fresh from the creek" — who drew the 16 "nuggets" from his belt and laid them on the table.

Cannily, Kochberg's associate advised caution and they went into another room to test the "nuggets."

"We were testing them with acid," said Kochberg ruefully, "but I later found out that what I thought was acid was water."

Convinced that all was well, the two men returned to complete their deal with the prospector. The partner laid down $1,000, Kochberg added his $2,000, the nuggets changed hands and the prospector departed.

A touch of the bizarre was added when the prospector set his valise containing the $3,000 down in the lobby where it was promptly carried off by mistake by a travelling salesman. The "drummer," strangely enough an honest man, later returned the valise intact.

Meanwhile Kochberg and his partner returned to Toronto to sell their prize. The prospective buyer took one look at the "nuggets" and threw the partners out of his office. Kochberg complained to the police.

Last night police arrested Harry Shorser, alias Henry Shore of Toronto and charged him with conspiracy to defraud Kochberg of $2,007. Shorser is alleged to be Kochberg's "partner" in the deal.

Rat Pokes Receiver Causing Signals

Municipalities Undecided Whether To Revive D.S.T.

(By The Canadian Press)

Countless municipalities across the Dominion, as well as in the United States, have found an old problem has cropped up — that of daylight saving time. Whether "summer time" will be instituted as a post-war feature by cities and towns from coast to coast still is "very much undecided," the Canadian Press learned today.

So far three major Canadian cities have indicated their intention to continue the advanced-hour procedure this year. Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto all have announced April 28 as the day set for clocks to be moved one hour ahead to take advantage of summer's daylight hours.

Though Dominion-wide practice during the war — by order of government — Ottawa has made no statement as to whether it will re-institute D.S.T. for the year to come. Similarly, Washington has not indicated whether "summer time" will be made official in the United States, and New York and Detroit are among the few American cities which have shown interest in daylight saving. Both have set April 28 for the start of D.S.T.

Other communities follow the ancient "let-George-do-it" school of philosophy now that spring is knocking on the door and April 28 is little more than a month off.

Vancouver city council's attitude is that if the rest of the Dominion goes on daylight time, so will Vancouver. Winnipeg—with no thoughts of golfing yet — has made no move to advance the clocks the last Sunday in April.

Farmers, miners, teachers and nurses may argue against D.S.T., and equally as many citizens will hold forth at length as to its merits, but while quibbling continues here and in the U. S. — Mexico has solved the problem with siesta simplicity. They observe daylight saving time all year 'round.

TRENTON

Seven persons were fined for violating Highway Traffic Act.

The usual $2.00 fine was imposed on six persons for illegal parking.

A juvenile charged with breaking and entering has his case enlarged to March 26.

Luxury Returns To Bond Street

By MICHAEL FRY

London, March 20 — (Reuters) —Almost pre-war luxury has come back to Bond Street, London's fashionable and most expensive quarter of a mile, where you now can spend £1,000 within an hour without any difficulty.

Clothes require coupons and the richest woman in Britain today gets the same amount of coupons as her cook but a woman I know recently bought £200 worth of clothes in Bond Street and the coupon question was "discreetly settled."

Hats start at £12 and work their way up. Furs are unrationed and fetch anything from £50 to £500. Only real shortage at the moment is in shoes.

Men's wear is there in plenty for the man with the well-lined pocketbook. Pure silk ties start at £1 5s and up. Sporty sweaters, leather vests and cardigans for the country gentlemen start at £5.

In the narrow streets off Bond Street are the fashionable tailors who now announce in their windows that they can make a gentleman's suit in less than three weeks. During the war it sometimes took six months. An average lounge suit, tailored by a firm which boasts the "Royal Appointment" badge over the door, will cost £30.

Swallows Reach San Juan Capistrano

San Juan Capistrano, Calif., March 20 — (AP) — Circling flocks of swallows began descending on Mission San Juan Capistrano early yesterday, fulfilling an ancient legend which says they will return every year on St. Joseph's Day.

Dougall H. Marshall Named Supt. of Rehabilitation For Veterans at Kingston

Local representative of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board for the past four years, Mr. Dougall H. Marshall, George Street, has been appointed as superintendent of rehabilitation for the Kingston "T" district office of the Department of Veterans' Affairs, it has been announced from Ottawa.

Mr. Marshall will assume his new duties as of April 2nd.

Vitally interested in how the discharged veteran of World War II fared upon his return to "civvy street" Mr. Marshall took an active interest in the work of the local rehabilitation committee, being chairman of that organization. Mr. Marshall was also instrumental in drafting a program which last year was adopted by the department of veterans' affairs in rehabilitating veterans.

Ten Years in City

Ten years in Belleville, Mr. Marshall prior to his being named as local representative of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, was proprietor of the Belleville Credit Bureau affording credit information to local merchants, while prior to coming to this city he was associated with General Motors Acceptance Corporation, having worked in Toronto, Montreal and Belleville.

"I have enjoyed every minute of my work with the Prices Board," Mr. Marshall stated to the Ontario Intelligencer today. "However, the position was but a temporary one, and I am looking forward with anticipation to my work in Kingston."

An active member of the local Kiwanis club since prior to the war, Mr. Marshall entered enthusiastically into all work of the service club, being present chairman of the "Support to Churches" committee. He is a member of St. Thomas Anglican Church.

As soon as accommodation can be found Mr. Marshall will move his family to Kingston.

All Soldiers on Extended Leave Are Now Eligible for Discharge

Ottawa, March 20 — All soldiers on extended leave are now eligible for discharge Defence Headquarters announced today. These soldiers will be called back to District Depots at the discretion of Depot Commanding Officers at such times when their discharge will not delay the discharge of overseas veterans.

Soldiers now on leave will get instructions to report to their district depots by individual letters.

Defence officials point out that the discharge of these men will not impair employment chances for veterans still overseas. Extended leave men after their discharge will return to the same jobs they held while on leave; jobs which they would have continued to fill even if they were not to be discharged.

Men on extended leave were originally released in order to speed up industrial reconversions and to maintain basic primary industries. "Their jobs are the kind that make jobs for other men," was one official's comment. Extended leave was authorized in the past for personnel required for industry, mining, farming, hog, dairy and beef production, lumbering and logging. Such leave was granted at times when acute manpower shortages existed in each of these fields.

Defence officials stress the fact that overseas veterans will still hold top priority in the discharge stream. Discharge of extended leave personnel will be authorized only when numbers of returning veterans are continuing to unwind the Canadian army at top speed. Discharges for the month of February total more than 48,000, a record month to date. March figures are likely to set a new record. The depots themselves are obliged to retain large numbers of men with very long service because they hold key positions in the discharge machinery. The sooner the discharge of the whole army can be effected, the sooner these long service veterans can resume civilian life.

352 From City Joined R.C.A.F. During War

Three hundred and fifty-two residents of the City of Belleville joined the Royal Canadian Air Force during the Second World War and of htis number 34 paid the supreme sacrifice, it was disclosed at the Belleville and District Rehabilitation Committee meeting held here Tuesday night.

The information came direct to the committee from R.C.A.F. Headquarters, Ottawa, in answer to a request for a nominal roll of enlisted air force personnel residing in this city.

Requests for names of army and navy personnel were addressed to N.D.H.Q., Ottawa, some time ago but up to the time of the meeting yesterday no replies had been received.

Object of the securing of the nominal rolls of all those who joined the armed services from this city, is to enable the Rehabilitation Committee to organize and carry out a special city reception to those who wore the King's uniform in the last war.

It was pointed out, however, that nothing of a definite nature can be arranged until the committee is in receipt of all nominal rolls. It is anticipated that the reception will be held sometime during late April or May.

Wallace Asks for "Clear Statement"

New York, March 20 — (AP)— Commerce Secretary Wallace last night called for "a clean statement of facts" behind "the recent actions of the Soviet government which have been so disturbing... and which feed the current talk of war." Counseling cool judgment on the part of the United States, Mr. Wallace said a better understanding of the reasons for Russia's behavior was needed. He noted she disclaims aggressive intentions.

Discuss Farm Help Problem At Meeting

Government agricultural representatives and committee chairmen from counties in the Central Ontario district, together with national employment service chairmen met in Peterboro on Monday afternoon to discuss the farm help problem which is causing some uneasiness across the province.

The meeting was one of a series of three like meetings being held in Ontario, one being held in Western Ontario last week and a further meeting being planned for Kemptville.

The general farm employment and production pictured was thoroughly discussed at the Peterboro meeting, it being stressed by agricultural authorities that in view of the current food shortage there would be little use in Ontario farmers endeavoring to increase production through added planting unless adequate experienced farm labor would be available for harvesting operations.

Attending the meeting from Hastings county were Col. Roscoe Vanderwater, chairman of the county agricultural committee, Mr. E. J. Pyear, Stirling, H. Lynn Fair, agricultural representative, and Mr. H. H. Reed, and Mr. O. Larry, employment service chairmen from Belleville and Trenton.

Hitler Spent Final Days Recalling Youth Says Former Secy.

Oberurrsel, Germany, March 20 (Reuters)—Hitler spent the last days of his life recalling his mischievous youth and the early days of the Nazi Party, says Frau Gerda Christian, his personal secretary, who has been detained by the United States Intelligence Corps and is being held at an interrogation centre here.

As the empire he had created tumbled in ruins over his head, the Austrian corporal who conquered all Germany and most of Europe found no consolation in his achievement.

Frau Christian, who is 32 and good looking, joined the Nazi Party in 1932. She took her job with Hitler in 1939 and became sufficiently intimate with him to receive his confidences in the last days. She was arrested by German police, who recognized her when she went to visit her husband at Allendorf prison camp near Marburg.

Had Strict Father.

Hitler's father, a customs official, was strict, and the Fuehrer recalled many spankings he had received from him.

"He told me that he often went walking in the streets of Linz with his mother, whom he loved dearly, and often when a 15-year-old tried to have flirtation with girls of his own age whom he saw in the streets," Frau Christian said. "He said that the presence of his mother frustrated this, and that because the First Great War came soon after, he had been forever denied a normal youth life.

"Hitler said the war came when he was still quite young, so he never got a chance for the phase of dancing and young women."

Hitler's whole conversation during the days spent in the air-raid shelter of the Berlin Chancellery was that of a man suddenly becoming old and finding that his youth was the only part of his life that mattered, Frau Christian said. He never referred to the war he had started.

"From a woman's point of view he was a fine man," Hitler's former secretary declared. "He never lost his temper, even when I made many mistakes."

Frau Christian liked Eva Braun, whom Hitler is believed to have married during the last days in Berlin. She described her as "very pretty, frank and open," but did not think she had any influence on Hitler.

Frau Christian is convinced that both Hitler and Eva Braun are dead. She herself escaped from the shelter, she said, by way of the Wilhelmsplatz underground tunnel last May 2. She said she was among the last to go.

Legislature Turns Down Opposition Amendments

Toronto, March 20 (CP)— Its legislative program as forecast in the Speech from the Throne endorsed in votes which rejected a Liberal amendment and a C.C.F. sub-amendment, Ontario's Progressive Conservative government today prepared for introduction of the budget by Provincial Treasurer Frost. H. C. Nixon (L-Brant) will be opposition financial critic.

In its first recorded division of the new session, the legislature yesterday voted 73-10 against a C.C.F. sub-amendment to the address in reply to the Throne Speech which among other things criticized what it termed the government's "obstructive" attitude at recent Dominion-Provincial conferences. Then it voted down 60-23 an amendment by opposition leader Farquhar Oliver which expressed regret the Throne Speech contained "no indication or assurance" the government would fulfill pre-election pledges.

The government voted solidly against both amendments. The 60 Progressive Conservative members present joined with the 11 Liberal and two Liberal-Labor members to defeat the C.C.F. sub-amendment then stood alone in voting down the Liberal amendment, which won support of the Liberal group, two Labor-Progressives, one Labor and seven C.C.F.

The last two speeches prior to the vote, delivered by Premier Drew and J. A. Habel (L-Cochrane North), stressed the dangers in Communist theories and practices. The Premier promised to do "everything in my power" to prevent Communism spreading in Canada and Mr. Habel said "I will rather face death than permit the ideology of Communism to spread.

Speakers Interrupted

Both speakers referred frequently to documents which they said contained proof of Communist aims and both were interrupted frequently by the Chamber's two Labor-Progressive members, A. A. MacLeod of Toronto Bellwoods and J. B. Salsberg of Toronto St. Andrews. Speaker W. J. Stewart called for order several times as tempers neared a breaking point.

The Premier launched his attack on Communism after brief reference to the amendments to the Throne Speech. The C. C. F. sub-amendment, he said, criticized the government's "obstructive" attitude on Dominion-Provincial relations; but "far from obstructing, no government has indicated a greater desire to cooperate nor contributed more to ultimate success." He was still "extremely hopeful" an agreement would be reached at the next Dominion-Provincial conference.

All opposition parties had criticized the government's housing policy. Nevertheless the government had been active. The planning and development department had a $1,000,000,000 backlog of public works and royal commissions had been appointed in many fields. It was the function of commissions to provide "independent advice in digest form" for government action. Development of forest resources had been checked by the war, but the Ontario government was spending more on research connected with spraying of insects by air than any other government.

On Communism, the Premier quoted from "these and statutes" on Communist ideology he said were made public by the late Sir William Mulock when Tim Buck, now national leader of the Labor-Progressive party, appealed a prison sentence.

Efforts Made to Distort Claim

The premier said deliberate efforts had been made to distort his suggestion that labor purge its ranks of Communists. That didn't mean, he said, he felt all labor, leaders were Communists. He then read the portion of his Throne Speech address in which he had emphasized that his reference to Communists should not be construed as an attack on any labor executive.

"The members of the Communist party are sincere," he said at another point. "They don't want democracy. They don't want our way of life. I am just as opposed to Communism as I am to Fascism."

He charged Mr. McLeod with seeking to create the "utterly false" impression that the premier had indicated support of Germany in 1939. When Mr. McLeod interjected "you didn't deny it," the premier said such denials would be a full-time job where Mr. MacLeod was concerned.

Mr. Habel, attacking Communist agitators he said were responsible for fomenting strikes in bush camps in pre-war years, quoted from "confidential reports" indicating the Communist party aimed to establish a "Soviet Canada." The reports, he said, recommended that food should be poisoned and strike breakers manhandled in some instances. Mr. Habel said the reports were made at a Toronto meeting of Communist provincial secretaries in 1934.

Discussing strikes in Ontario bush camps in 1934, Mr. Habel said Communist armed with "clubs and rocks" beat one contractor who went to hospital for 10 days. Other men were made captive in a Communist camp, some lived eight days on bread and water and Communists had approached him, Mr. Habel, said, warning him to "stop my activities or be buried in six feet of clay."

Must Unite

"We must unite at once to save our democracy, which I know is not perfect. We must watch the false philosophy of Communism."

He asked the government to intervene in company towns such as Smooth Rock Falls in his own riding where no one could do business without consent of the Abitibi Pulp and Paper Company. Sometimes at pay day a worker had nothing "but a debt rather than a cheque because he pays rent and buys everything from the company."

He said Canada must bear a "fair share" in international policing of the world, spoke against anti-semitism and pleaded for national unity. It was possible to "fight and die" beside French-Canadians and it was possible to live in peace with them. French-Canadians were "happy" to be in the British Commonwealth, though they disliked extreme Imperialism. Similarly, he said, there should be "no eastern Canada and no western Canada."

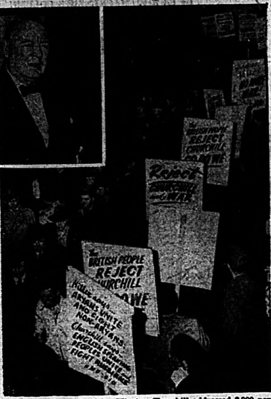
PICKET CHURCHILL DURING TALK



The BRITISH PEOPLE REJECT CHURCHILL
Reject Churchill and WAR
Hitler says ARYANS UNITE AND FIGHT NON-ARYANS. Churchill says ENGLISH SPEAKING PEOPLES UNITE and FIGHT RUSSIANS

As former Prime Minister Winston Churchill addressed 2,000 persons at an official dinner in New York City, about 1,000 pickets jammed Park Avenue carrying placards which denounced him. The demonstrators, carefully watched by mounted policemen, booed loudly as the British leader from the days of Dunkerque to victory drew cheers from the guests listening to his speech indoors.

Some Typical Stories of Churchill

(As told by MacDonald Hastings, in "Picture Post," London, Eng.)

From the time he became Prime Minister it was manifest that Mr. Churchill's own safety was a major factor in Britain's defence. So looking after him was regarded as a military operation, and it was called "Operation Elephant" —the elephant being the Prime Minister. One of the features of "Operation Elephant" was a mobile anti-aircraft battery which used to accompany the Prime Minister wherever he went.

Churchill took immense pride in this anti-aircraft battery. He used to call it, to the indignation of the officers, his personal flak, and when he went away for the weekend to the country he always insisted on having one of the guns mounted outside the front door so that he could display it to his guests. For the crew manning the gun it was a terrifying experience, because whenever the Prime Minister appeared he never failed to shoot a battery of technical questions at them about muzzle velocity and range and the rest. And heaven help them if they were wrong, because Mr. Churchill himself always knew the right answer.

And now I can tell you that as a personal defence the anti-aircraft battery was a failure. The original arrangement was that if hostile aircraft came within 30 miles of the Prime Minister the guns would be manned and Mr. Churchill and his staff were to go to the air raid shelter. But it did not work out that way. As soon as the air raid alarm sounded, far from going to the shelter, the Prime Minister grabbed his field glasses, raced up the stairs and took his stand in the most exposed position on the roof. Up there, he insisted on a complete plot of the raid and was always extremely disappointed if his personal flak did not start firing. So finally, unknown to the Prime Minister, it was decided that it was far safer not to sound the air raid alarms at all.

Churchill's energy, his personal interest in all sorts of apparently trifling incidents quickly became a legend. Nobody could be sure that they would not get a sudden phone call and hear that unforgettable voice, saying "This is the Prime Minister speaking." I remember once he called up an R.A.F. man who had just been awarded the Victoria Cross, to congratulate him. The young pilot—he was only a boy—was so frightened when he realized who was at the other end that he just gulped. He could not speak at all. Churchill sensed the situation. He said: "I suppose it's a moving experience for you to be talking to a man like me over the telephone. I assure you it's a very moving thing for me to talk over the telephone to a man like you."

Then is quite irrepressible. I remember being told how one night, after an exhausting cabinet meeting, which had gone on until the small hours of the morning, the Prime Minister suddenly declared his intention of going for a walk. For about twenty minutes he strolled with a couple of companions through the blacked-out deserted streets of London. Then, suddenly, he flashed a torch on the statue of the great Victorian statesman, John Bright.

At once he said, "If John Bright could make a speech today, do you know what he would say to me?" Impetuously, Mr. Churchill climbed on to the step at the foot of the statue and made a brilliant impromptu speech in the manner of John Bright. Then, climbing down, he said, "And now I'll tell you what I'd say to John Bright." And looking up at the statue, enjoying himself immensely, he made a speech in reply. Imagine having that amount of energy to throw away in an empty street in the early hours of the morning.

There are many stories about Mr. Churchill and President Roosevelt, a lot of them apocryphal, but I have always liked the one —and I think it is true—when the President in his chair was pushing unexpected into Mr. Churchill's room on one of his visits to the White House.

It happened that Mr. Churchill had just had one of his hot baths, which he takes at all times during the day or night, and also it happened that Mr. Churchill was indulging in another habit of his, wandering up and down the room, correcting and reading papers before starting to dress himself.

But when the President came into the room Mr. Churchill, completely undressed, was completely unembarrassed. Turning on the President, with a smile, he said "You see, Mr. President, as I've always told you, I have absolutely nothing to conceal."

Occupation Force Canadian Army Does Major Job

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Oldenburg, Germany, March 20 (CP Cable)—During its nine months in Germany, the Canadian Army Occupation Force has done a major guard duty job, keeping a close eye on a now nearly-disbanded army of German soldiers, on thousands of displaced persons and on a civilian internment camp.

The C.A.O.F., also maintained garrisons in all major towns and for a period turned the Whilhelmshaven area into a carefully-guarded enclave to prevent sabotage of German warships which included such prizes as the cruisers Prinz Eugen, Nuernberg and Leipzig.

These comparatively unspectacular but necessary tasks stand out as some of the principal achievements of the force under Maj.-Gen. Chris Vokes of Kingston, which now is preparing to withdraw from Germany with the first units scheduled to leave their occupation areas Friday.

Another responsibility of the C.A.O.F. was guarding a civilian internment camp on the Ems River where war criminals and civilian suspects were held. Some witnesses who appeared at the Belsen camp and Nuernberg trials were in this camp.

The Canadians also had to concentrate about 50,000 displaced persons found in this farmland area which runs generally from the North Sea coast between the Ems and Veser Rivers south to Osnabrueck.

Working with military government officials, the C.A.O.F. had to make arrangements for their repatriation. There was a lot of trouble in this connection last summer and fall, particularly when some displaced persons ran wild, murdering, raping and robbing Germans.

Canadian guards finally had to be stationed on the more troublesome D. P. camps, with patrols in the vicinity. Sometimes Polish and Russian displaced persons did not want to return home on repatriation and fled from the camps. They had to be rounded up by Canadian patrols.

George Stone doesn't "dress up" for other assignments. Working from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m., he generally puts in the odd parochial call before supper.

Canada to Play Her Part

Canada has a nine-point program for the next four years. The plan is one for growing more foodstuffs and increasing the amount for export to those parts of the world which but for help from nations who give this help would face actual starvation.

Canada for humanitarian reasons will play her part. Only this would satisfy the spirit of her people. At the same time as her efforts will help to keep alive the peoples of the stricken lands, the help will tend to maintain order and law in lands far from here, lands that knew what aggression meant from Nazi tyranny.

Prime Minister King in a recent statement outlined the steps the Government is taking to make it possible for the Dominion to assist very materially in the saving of lives of millions from the menace of starvation. "There can be no question that conditions of famine and starvation threaten in large parts of Europe and the Far East," said Mr. King. "While in some places in Western Europe the outlook is somewhat better, the general picture is urgent and desperate. When food supplies reach the present low levels, with peoples undergoing hunger and starvation, the whole world is threatened by disease and disorder."

Mr. King painted a picture of Canadian farming in the war years to show the magnificent response of the people of the farms during the conflict and the period since the end of hostilities. He mentioned the gifts to Greece, "an amount that kept alive almost half the population of that country." The performance of Canadian farms in providing food for Canadians and also for export was praised in the steady flow of bacon, wheat, cheese, beef, eggs and other commodities to Britain and other Allies. 75 per cent of bacon ration in Britain came from Canada. Canada gave wheat to India in the famine year of 1943 and her production has been expanded in spite of labor shortages.

Few Canadians possibly realize that Canada in the three crop years ending in July 1946, has produced about a million bushels of wheat or one billion bushels every working day. So Canada was able to provide wheat for her own people and 80,000,000 others besides or six and a half times as many as the inhabitants of the Dominion.

Exports in cheese have risen from 93,000,000 pounds in 1940 to the 1945 and 1946 levels of 125,000,000 pounds.

So the Prime Minister said that "in proportion to our population Canada has exported to meet the needs of the world over the past few years more food than any other nation. Moreover in doing this the government has fixed prices for these foodstuffs not at the very high levels which we might have demanded in view of scarcity conditions, but at a fair level, having regard to domestic price levels and long term trends."

The measure of Canada's shipments is told in these words, "By the end of July we shall have shipped all the wheat accumulated in the elevators during the war years."

The Prime Minister believes that Canadians will want to better their efforts though further increase is subject to definite limitations, "Nevertheless even small savings, when added together, will amount to substantial relief. One pound of flour a day will keep a person alive for a day. An additional 10,000,000 bushels of wheat from Canada would maintain life for 15,000,000 people for a month."

Plans to help include these: to use less and waste less food; to encourage the use of home gardens to add to the food supply; to reduce the supply of wheat for domestic milling by ten per cent, this saving 2,500,000 bushels more for export during the next six months; to reduce wheat to distilleries by fifty per cent; to make special arrangements for deliveries of wheat held by farmers in storage on their farms; farmers to be urged to plan production for maximum yield of foodstuffs over the next four years; reduction of wheat inventories to be encouraged; railway priority for wheat export and more oats and No. 4 wheat for export.

British Manpower Budgets

The idea of a "manpower budget" in peacetime in Britain was first put forward in December, 1943, by Mr. Ernest Bevin, then Minister of Labor and National Service. Mr. Bevin argued that an assessment of a country's human assets was surely as important as the annual assessment of financial assets. His plan was to provide for periodical statements covering the nation's manpower resources, the current and future demands on employment as estimated by the Government departments concerned, and the credit or deficit position of each main industry. With this knowledge, and with wise regulation of investment and public expenditure, the disastrous and uncontrolled fluctuations in employment which were characteristic of the inter-war years might be avoided.

It was through detailed planning of this type that Britain was able, during the war, to mobilize a higher proportion of her population than any other nation. At present, the extreme labor scarcity in Britain makes continued planning essential; but even when the current emergency is over, detailed surveys of employment will still be an essential part of Britain's program for maintaining high efficiency and full employment.

The first public "manpower budget" was issued last November 16th by the Ministry of Labor, showing the sweeping changes that were taking place in the distribution of labor, with forecasts of the position by the end of the year. The most recent estimates were given by Prime Minister Attlee during the debate on manpower and production in the House of Commons. He expects that the total working population at December 31st., 1946, will be 20,000,000 that there will be 1,100,000 in the armed forces, and that 500,000 will be supplying the forces. The numbers working on exports should reach 1,550,000; on building and civil engineering, 1,500,000; and on the other home needs, 14,370,000. When the forces were at their peak, in June, 1945, they totalled over 5,000,000. The number then supplying the forces was 3,887,000 and the total working population 21,571,000.

Great Actor Will be Missed

One of the great figures of the acting world has passed, Philip Merivale, who for long years was a favorite of the stage and made many appearances in the movies. He was brought up in the tradition of the theatre and played many roles in Shakespearean drama which gave his art a perfection that was a part of every performance of his whether before the motion picture camera or before the footlights. In the movies he took a large number of roles. His acting was impressive.

Pre-Spring Reading

We have only one tip to offer fellow seed catalogue addicts this year. Don't overlook the carrots, beets, and onions.

With half the world hungry and our own food supplies apt to be on the short side, energetic attention to vegetable growing will be as much in order this year as at any time during the war.

What Japan Lacks

Japan has now received a new constitution which sweeps away, so far as words can do it, the militaristic, imperialistic and theocratic system which drowned the eastern world in so much blood. The "new model" follows the ideas of British democracy. But it has a fatal defect — the lack of a thousand years political experience and judgment behind it.

PURPOSE

Through the gateway known as birth
Come the souls of men to earth,
And at last the final breath
Swings the portals known as death.

Man or woman, 'tis the same.
Heaven and earth hold joys to claim,
But the living nothing bring,
And the dead leave every thing.

All distinctions mortals make,
With departure they forsake.
All the living view with pride
At the grave is thrust aside.

As we come, so must we go;
Trusting God, at last to know
Did we truly, year by year,
Try to serve His purpose here?

Latta in goal was great, while on the forward line Weir, Hagerman and Waite were all stars and McWilliams and Hearst on defence were good in checking. The following composed the West Hill team: K. Latta, C. McWilliams, D. Hearst, H. Waite, S. Hagerman, V. Weir and G. Waite.

On March 19th, a large congregation witnessed a beautiful service in St. Thomas' Church when Mr. G. R. Kingston and Mr. Spencer Godding of Trinity College, Toronto, were made Deacons by the Rt. Rev. Dr. Bidwell, Lord Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario. The choral service under the direction of Mr. Ernest Wheatley, Mus. Bac., A.R.C.O., was beautifully rendered. The sermon was delivered by the Rev. E. D. Woodcock, rector of Trinity Church, Brockville. During the sermon reference was made to the fact that twenty five years ago about this time, His Lordship, Bishop Bidwell, and the Rev. Canon G. R. Beamish, Rector of St. Thomas' Church, were admitted to Holy Orders.

At a meeting of the city council the special committee with regards to increases in salaries of civic officials recommended that the salaries be as follows: Street Surveyor R. Croft Hulme $1100.00, an increase of $100.00; Engineer Mallock at pump house $55.00 per month; Engineer McCrudden at pump house $50.00 per month; City Clerk and Solicitor W. C. Mikel $1200.00, an increase of $100.; City Treasurer David Price $1100.00, an increase of $100.; W. J. Thomson, manager of gas department, an increase of $100 for office help, making total salary $1100.00; Medical Health Officer Dr. Yeomans $200.00 per annum. The idea of the increases at the present time is to fix the salaries and thereby do away with extra grants at the end of the year. After considerable discussion the matter was referred back to the executive committee for further consideration.

London Letter

London, March 20 (CP)—Wot, no Chad in Canada?

In London, and for that matter all Britain, an exposed wall surface is incomplete without a drawing of Chad peeking at passersby and asking "Wot, no beer?" "Wot, no fish?" "Wot, no girls?" or similarly defining the shortage the artist feels most acutely.

Chad is simply drawn. Take a pencil and a piece of paper and draw a horizontal line for half an inch or so, make the line wavy for a quarter of an inch, then straight again. Now drop a U-shaped loop from the horizontal, continue straight again, another little wave, and complete the horizontal line.

The up-shaped loop is Chad's nose, overhanging a wall on which his clinging hands are represented by the wavy portions. To complete the head invert a larger-size U over the nose and fill in the eyes. These can be mere dots or as expressive as desired. Underneath comes the "Wot, no—"

Chad's history is obscure. It is only in recent months that the British public has adopted him on a large scale and preliminary investigations into his origin indicated he was a brain-child of the R.A.F.

First to scotch this theory was Jack Greenall, a cartoonist whose character "Useless Eustace" appears in the Daily Mirror. He produced a comic postcard he had drawn 20 years before showing Chad's likeness, and added that he used Chad frequently while teaching drawing in a technical school.

"I used to draw a line and say, 'that's a wall.' Then a head and hands and nose and we had a man looking over the wall."

The R.A.F. may have adopted him for his Gremlin-like appearance but now he is everybody's. Scrawled in chalk or pencil he has probably voiced more complaints on behalf of weary, fed up citizens than any other means.

Even officialdom recognizes him. One honest taxpayer, who received his income tax papers from a government office minus their serial numbers, sent them back ornamented with Chad, who asked "wot, no number?"

Back from the tax office came the papers with another drawing showing Chad with a greatly diminished head, clinging for dear life to his wall. Below the sketch was the caption: "Dammit, I Slipped."

JAPANESE PREMIER RIDES IN STREET CAR

Tokyo, March 20 — (Reuters)—Prince Mikasa, Emperor Hirohito's youngest brother, has been commuting twice a week to Tokyo from his summer home near Yokosuka to gain "first-hand knowledge of the people's reaction to democracy," it was disclosed today. Packed into an interurban car like a sardine and strap-handing like a commoner, the prince travels incognito.

MACKENZIE'S COLUMN

France and Food-Problem of First Importance

By DeWITT MACKENZIE

Paris, March 20 — (AP) — A distinguished French observer remarked as we were discussing his country's politic-economic difficulties:

"France's problem is one of food. We haven't had a piece of meat in my home for three weeks because it couldn't be bought. Even the black market hasn't got much meat. That's what the people are up against, and their outlook is being swayed by their stomachs."

On returning to Paris after an absence of a few weeks, one finds that there has been a subtle and significant change in the reasoning impelled by short rations.

France had been expecting to get wheat from North America and meat from the Argentine. On the strength of its hopes, the government abandoned bread cards last November only to find that they had to be restored the first of this year, thus giving public morale a jolt. Since then French belts have been drawn tighter and tighter.

A few days ago the nation was given the sensational news that Russia had offered France 500,000 tons of grain, providing this country could find the shipping to move it. The French have crews but few ships, and the United States already has provided Liberty ships to help transport this badly needed food.

The reaction of many Frenchmen — not having had an explanation of why they couldn't get the wheat they needed from the United States or Canada and the meat from the Argentine — is: "Russia is giving us the help which we couldn't get elsewhere."

That fits perfectly into the program of the French Communists, who are making a heavy propaganda campaign in preparation for the forthcoming national elections in May when the new constitution will be adopted and the Republic will enter a fresh phase.

It may be suggested in passing that this would seem to be a mighty good time for the other Allied capitals to explain clearly the circumstances which made it impossible to fulfill the French hopes, since the people of this country certainly do not understand the situation.

Without doubt the Russian move will help the strong swing to the left which France is experiencing along with many other countries. There's much speculation on how it may affect the women's vote, since the question of food is a vital one for them. French women had the ballot for the first time last year, and they turned up a heavy Communist vote.

Playing Cards Have History Of 600 Years

Toronto, March 20 (CP)—Playing cards addicts, even today, still mutter the stern saying of St. Bernard of Siena, that "playing cards are an invention of the devil," though with much less reason than in 1923, when cards possessed names like "the two of cups," the "king of Bastos," the "cavallo of coins" and the "hanging man."

Royal Ontario museum authorities say playing cards have a history of at least 600 years and the formalized representations of kings and queens we see on our present-day pasteboards are garbled portrayals of such ancient pin-up boys as Charlemagne, Julius Caesar and Sir Lancelot.

The first deck of playing cards on record, manufactured at Venice, was a hefty handful of 78 outsized cardboards which made a pack about the dimensions of a medium-sized brick. The deck consisted of four suits—swords, coins, "bestos" (which seemed to be an early shillelagh and probably formed the prototype of our "clubs") and cups. There were 14 cards in each suit.

Just to complicate matters the Venetian card designers threw in an extra 21 trump cards which weren't any particular suit and outranked all the others. These were all "picture cards" and showed such unpleasant scenes as a house being struck by lightning and a man dangling from a gallows.

Ancient Big Four

It was from this unwieldy deck that our present pack with its four suits and double-headed court cards evolved. The four kings originally represented the Middle Ages' idea of the four great empires of the world — Charlemagne (the king of hearts), who ruled the western Roman domains; Julius Caesar (the king of diamonds); King David (the king of spades) for the Jewish Empire, and Alexander of Greece (king of clubs), ruler of the East.

Having "immortalized" the Big Four of olden times, the cardmakers turned to other heroes. The jack of hearts originally portrayed La Hire, chief of staff to Joan of Arc; the jack of spades was Ogier the Dane, one of Charlemagne's lieutenants; the jack of diamonds was Sir Ector of the Round Table, who turned up in the King Arthur legends and the jack of clubs was Sir Lancelot, another Round Table luminary.

The cardboard queens really depict four legendary biblical characters, Judith, the woman of the Apocryphal books of the Bible, was the queen of hearts; Pallas, the Greek goddess of war and wisdom, the queen of spades; who loved Jacob in the biblical story, the queen of diamonds and Argine, the queen of clubs. Argine is believed to be a corruption of the Latine word "regina" meaning "queen."

Some of today's cards still show a few traces of the original medieval designs. The king of diamonds, Caesar, still brandishes the debased version of the "fasces," bunches of rods tied around axes that were the symbol of Roman rule. The king of hearts, Charlemagne, still wears the regal ermine, befitting an emperor and ruler of the Holy Roman Empire and the king of spades, David, still carries the mighty sword he took from the giant Goliath.

BUNION IS NOT A GROWTH BUT A DEFORMITY

What will remove a bunion?

Well, if it has advanced beyond cure nothing but a radical operation on the bones involved will remove it.

Soaking the foot in hot water or salt solution, or wrapping it in many folds of muslin or cotton kept wet with bay rum or witch hazel or alcohol may relieve pain or allay inflammation, but no external or internal remedy can remove or cure bunion.

The deformity is a deviation of the great toe outward toward the other toes, produced by the unnatural shape of the shoes. This distortion of the foot in time produces partial dislocation of the great toe joint and usually considerably thickening or enlargement of the head of the metatarsal bone and chronic inflammation, if not infection and suppuration, of the bursal pad over the joint.

These particular faults in footwear tend to produce the deformity: (1) pointed toes, (2) short shoes — there should be at least one-half inch space between the tip of great toe and the tip of the shoe, when you are standing, and (3) shoes narrower across ball of foot than the bare foot is when bearing the weight of the body.

The injurious effect of pointed soles or toes was aggravated by the affectation formerly taught young women and still practised by some people, toeing out. This ugly, awkward-looking habit, like drawing in or trying to hold in the belly, is bad for any one, especially bad for growing children. If growing children are taught anything at all about posture or carriage, they should be taught to toe straight ahead and never mind the belly. Teach the child to pull his or her chin inside an imaginary high collar and at the same time, say every time the clock strikes the hour, to pull the hips closer together and hold them that way, whether sitting or standing or walking. These three directions will favor good posture.

Painting over a bunion with Mild Tincture of Iodine once in two or three weeks, may relieve soreness.

Go barefoot or in stocking feet or soft moccasins as much as you can.

The radical operation to remove bunion involves removal of the burss, a portion of the thickened head of the metatarsal bone and then reduction of the dislocation bandaging the foot and keeping it in splint or cast for two weeks. This keeps the patient out of the game for three weeks. It doesn't affect the patient's gait except probably to improve it.

If bunion is a handicap to you in any way, this operation is the only way to remove the handicap and get back into the race.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Ca and D for Rheumatiz

For ten years have suffered from rheumatism and all the salicylate and other medicine I have taken has not helped so much as the calcium and vitamin D as you recommended.

(J.S.T.)

Answer—Thank you. On written request, if you provide a stamped self-addressed envelope, I'll send the pamphlet "Calcium and Rheumatiz." Whether it helps or not, at any rate the Ca and D can do no harm.

Perish the Thought

Do you inhale when you smoke your pipe? I claim it is injurious to the lungs when you inhale.

(H. H.)

Answer — Not unless somebody provokes me. The degree of the damage depends upon the area of mucous membrane exposed to the smoke. Therefore "inhaling" gives greatly increased dosage of whatever it is in the smoke that produces the effects.

Be Kind to Your Dogs

My husband has suffered a long time with what a podiatrist called Morton's neuralgia in his left foot, and the only cure he can suggest is to wear extra wide shoes.

(Mrs. D. J. L.)

Answer — Chapter on Morton's toe in booklet "Care of the Feet," suggesting treatment for the condition. For copy of booklet send ten cents and stamped self addressed envelope. Often wearing a bevelled pad 3 inches by 2 inches, ¼ inch thick, lengthwise under ball of foot (held in place by adhesive plaster straps) will give much relief.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Who was George Washington Glick?

George Washington Glick (1827-1911) was one of the two men chosen by the State of Kansas to represent her by a statue in Statuary Hall in the Capitol at Washington.

He is notable chiefly for the fact that, from the national point of view, he was one of the most obscure men ever so honored.

The seventh volume of the Dictionary of American Biography, published in 1931, completely ignores him.

Glick, who was of German descent on his father's side, was born in Greencastle, Ohio.

After studying law in the office of Rutherford B. Hayes (afterwards President) and practising in Ohio for a time, he removed to Atchison, Kansas, in 1859. He served in the legislature, aided in preparing and launching the constitution on which Kansas was admitted into the Union and played a prominent part in shaping the course of the young commonwealth.

During the Civil War he served as a private in a Kansas regiment and took part in a number of border engagements, being wounded at the battle of the Big Blue.

In 1882 he was elected the ninth Governor of the State, being the first straight-out Democrat to hold that office and the only one until 1912.

Two years later he was defeated for the same office.

It is interesting to note that the other man selected by Kansas for a statue in the Washington hall of fame, Senator John James Ingalls, a staunch Republican, also lived in Atchison and is buried in the same cemetery.

Ontario Federation of Anglers Wants Non-Political, Non-Paid Fish and Game Commission

Toronto, Ont., March 20 (CP) —Sportsmen from London and the surrounding district, members of the new Western Ontario Fish and Game Protective Association, are supporting a recommendation that an "entirely non-political" fish and game commission be set up in Ontario, association officials announced Tuesday.

A resolution urging this action, and several other measures for the protection of fish and game in the provinces, is to be presented tomorrow at a meeting of the game and fish committee of the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters in Toronto.

Bert Golden of Tobermory, representing the Lake Huron and Georgian Bay Commercial Fishermen's Association, contended gill nets are not harmful. He said commercial fishermen were "neglected and even persecuted" by the Game and Fisheries Department. He said a man "who understands commercial fishing" should be placed in charge of the departments commercial fishing branch.

In Lake Huron, he said, United States fishermen take 70 percent of the catch. Canadian fishermen were prevented from fishing in areas reserved for United States fishermen.

Golden said he was summoned to appear in court last year while fishing in the centre of Lake Huron off Big Reef, an area which he identified as 55 miles from Tobermory. He said the case was "thrown out of court because it was obviously fixed up."

J. A. Pringle, chairman of the commission said he did not desire to cut the speaker short but hoped that "personal grievances" would not be aired before the commission.

Jack Wilson of Walford asked if American fishermen were allowed fishing privileges in international waters denied Canadians. D. J. Taylor, Deputy Minister of Fisheries, after acknowledging "some truth" in Golden's statements regarding the percentage of catch in Lake Huron, explained conditions governing the catch. But he said it was "absolutely not true" that Americans were given unfair advantages.

Urges Minimum Fine

Pete McGillen of Peterborough urged a minimum fine of $50 for taking fish illegally. Fish and game law enforcement should be transferred to the Attorney-General's Department. Ontario's 100 game overseers needed a "chief of police" and authorization to levy higher fines.

A new hatchery should be built in the Peterborough district or the existing hatchery at Deer Lake should be enlarged to meet the restocking needs of Kawartha Lakes. He suggested the size limit of muskies should be raised from 24 to 30 inches and said three more full-time game overseers were needed in Peterborough County.

A. J. Peters of Kingston, representing the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters, endorsed appointment of a "non-political, non-paid" fish and game commission. He said he had telegrams from Sault Ste. Marie, Fort William, Fort Frances, Larder Lake and a letter from Sudbury indicating his association has the support of Northern Ontario municipalities. Hughes, representing the Northern Ontario Outfitters Association then said his organization has no quarrel with the Federation but believes a separate organization is necessary to handle the north's special problems.

Don't Want Date Changed

Peters also said Kingston district residents feel strongly about a ruling changing the opening date of the bass season in the St. Lawrence River from July 1 to June 15.

Chairman Pringle said the change was made because residents on the American side of the river are able to catch bass starting June 15 and uniformity appeared desirable.

Deputy Minister Taylor said the fish and game appropriation for the coming year is more than $1,000,000. He made the remark after Peters said the Federation no longer requires its annual $500 grant from the government.

Northern Ontario delegates said the gill net destroys other fish as well as such commercial types as sturgeon and white fish. With the pond net some discrimination was possible. It was also useful in ridding streams of such "wolves of the water" as eels.

Growing infestation of speckled trout waters by perch, particularly in the North Bay area, was deplored by Tom Frier of that city.

Harold Lyons, speaking for the Rideau Lakes Chain Association, said lack of uniform water levels in the lakes nullified the work of restocking. Mr. Dunbar said the water level was a matter of Federal jurisdiction.

Watson Porter Speaker

Watson Porter, editor in chief for the Farmers Advocate, London, was the guest speaker for the banquet, choosing as his subject "The Seeds of Human Welfare." He gave statistics on world food shortages and stressed the importance of these shortages to agriculturists. The world food supply would not get back to normal until 1950, he prophesied.

Charles Bishop and Son, seed merchants from Belleville, were heavy buyers of seed exhibits at the auction held at the conclusion of the fair, while Brodie Ness, honorary president of the Quinte District Seed Growers Association, and Lennox and Addington farmers, were also big buyers. Proceeds of the sale amounted to more than $820.

Point Traverse, March 20 — An esteemed couple of Milford, Mr. and Mrs. John Brown, celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary on Sunday, March 17th. They were both born at Point Traverse. Mr. Brown, who is 86 years of age, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brown. Mrs. Brown is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Bongard.

For some 45 years, Mr. Brown sailed upon the Great Lakes, after which he was engaged in fishing operations here.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Brown enjoy fairly good health. They have three sons and one daughter.

Fish Nets Recovered

Kept ashore for some time by shifting ice floes, Morley Helmer and son, Point Traverse fishermen, were able to get their boat out into the lake and recover whitefish nets, which had been out for more than a month.

The fishing colony here is now a beehive of activity, as commercial fishing operations commenced last week.

Russia Issues New History Of Diplomacy

By EDDY GILMORE

Moscow, March 20 (AP) — A new Soviet "History of Diplomacy" asserted today that capitalist countries frequently have failed to live up to the terms of treaties while the U.S.S.R. "steadfastly fulfills her international obligations."

Eugène Tarle, one of the Soviet Union's best known academicians who recently wrote an answer in Izvestia to Winston Churchill's Fulton, Mo., speech, is one of the authors.

"The principle of the inviolability of international treaties is one of the basic rules of international law," the history said. "But the history of capitalistic states reveals that this principle is far from always observed.

"The most famous and indignant example of the violation of an international treaty was the treacherous attack on the Soviet Union by Germany.

"In contradiction to those states which consider treaties to be 'scraps of paper,' the U.S.S.R. steadfastly fulfills her international obligations and decisively denounces arbitrary unilaterial breaches of concluded treaties."

Tarle was quoted by Tass today as saying in a recent lecture attended by many members of the Supreme Soviet that Mr. Churchill's Fulton speech did not find a receptive audience.

"In the United States there have not been found seekers for a military alliance of only the Saxon race, directed against the Soviet Union," he said.

Speaking of international relations, Tarle accused "imperialistic circles" in Britain and elsewhere of attempting to undermine the Soviet.

When the broad masses of western countries "became firmly convinced" that it was the Soviet Union which had saved them from Fascism, he said, "imperialistic circles in Britain and other countries, fearing the political strengthening of the Soviet Union and the enormous growth of the Soviet democracy, which is the most consistent in the world, began their undermining propaganda activity."

He said the Soviet delegation to the first session of the United Nations fought a "consistent struggle in the defence of the rights and independence of oppressed small countries."

British Officer Expects Trouble From Young Nazis

By TOM REEDY

Hanover, Germany, March 20 (AP)—A senior military government officer says bluntly that British occupation authorities expect trouble from young, militant Germans in about a year or two—when they are well fed.

This high-placed officer, asking not to be quoted by name, told a reporter this is not a possibility but a decided probability.

"The werewolves are dead now," he said. "That is because the German is busy trying to find food. But it will not always be that way.

"When Germany is better organized, when enough food is available so that a man doesn't have to spend all his time on that one problem, it will be different."

He said he expected that turn of affairs in maybe a year— two years at the latest.

Some occupation officials feared there would be trouble over reduced rations, which went into effect two weeks ago.

"That will only intensify their search for food," the officer said. "And it will only keep them that much busier on the one problem. We have set up, of course, safety measures but I see no organized efforts among Germans to cause trouble.

There are 50,000,000 Germans outside the Russian zone. The area never was able to feed more than 35,000,000. Imports must feed the remainder.

By summer, 1947, it is expected that agricultural production will be at its peak. That means that the great majority of Germans will be living off their own crops and they will know it.

With a job, perhaps, and a full stomach, the German will have time to attend political meetings, to discuss among friends the political future of the Reich.

That's when the "hotheads" will speak up and the chances are they'll have a willing audience.

Sound of Geiger Counter Can Be Music to Prospector

By ANDY ROSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, March 20 (CP) — The sputtering of a geiger counter may sound like erratic static to the layman, but soon it will be dramatic music to the ears of prospectors hunting radio-active ores in Canada's northland.

Compact portable geiger counters, developed by the National Research Council under pressure of wartime urgency, soon will be manufactured commercially in Toronto, and are expected to find a ready market among enterprising prospects. N.R.C. now is busy developing a pocket-sized model weighing less than two pounds.

When approaching success with the Allied atomic bomb experiments threw the spotlight on uranium and other radio-active elements ,the search for new ore sources became intensified. In February, 1944, N.R.C. was handed the problem of developing a portable electronic gauge which would detect the presence of such ores from the surface.

N.R.C. radiologists says the answer was found in utilizing the Geiger-Muller tube, invented before 1930 by two German scientists. This tube reacts to the gamma rays emitted by radio-active materials and, when an amplifying tube is placed in the circuit, it produces a peculiar sputtering sound similar to bursts or radio static in a set of headphones.

The cost has averaged less than $200 each, but it is expected to go down somewhat when they are manufactured commercially. However, mass production will not enter this picture because demand is limited.

Extremely sensitive, geiger counters react not only to the gamma rays from radio-active substances, but to any highly-penetrating electro-magnetic radion such as cosmic rays and X-rays. The Geiger-Muller tubes are being made at N.R.C. by Don Green, a University of Saskatchewan graduate. They have a thin tungsten filament, a brass sleeve and contain a mixture of argon, ether and alcohol.

Young Married Groups in District, Guests of Holloway Street Club Hear Message on Reconsecration

Energetic Club members of Holloway Street United Church, Tuesday evening played hosts to young married couples and church groups from the surrounding district when at the Y.M.C.A., approximately 220 persons gathered to enjoy a social evening and to hear a message from Rev. Bruce Millar, executive secretary for "The Crusade for Christ and His Kingdom."

Young married groups from Stirling, Mt. Pleasant, Foxboro, Carmel, Napanee, Trenton and from Tabernacle and Bridge Street United Church in Belleville, attended the gathering which was presided over by Mr. Don Fraser, president of the host club for the evening.

Extending a hearty welcome to the visiting club members, Mr. Fraser stated the evening had been planned with the idea of fostering greater fellowship between the United Church club members in the Bay of Quinte district. Presidents or representatives of the various clubs in attendance, were introduced and were called upon to say a few words regarding their respective organizations.

Tribute to Holloway Street Club

Holloway Street Energetic Club with young married couples of the congregation as members, is the oldest such club in the district, it was revealed, the club being formed in 1931, while many of the district clubs have been organized within comparatively recent months.

Tribute to Holloway Street Church in giving leadership in the formation of young adult groups among the United Churches in the immediate district, was paid by the guest speaker, Mr. Millar, who stressed the part the Church must play in the future if disaster in the post war world is to be avoided.

Mr. Millar referred to the unsettled state of world affairs indicating that present conditions were a "heydey" for labor organizations on one side, and unscrupulous profiteers on the other side.

Religion An Every-Day Need

Lamenting the fact that Christian influence in the past has not been strong enough to prevent disastrous wars, Mr. Millar stated the reason was in faulty expression or non-expression of professed faith. "We must learn that Christianity is not only for the temple, but also for the market place; it must be practised during everyday life as well as on the Sabbath."

A rededication and reconsecration of people everywhere in the world was needed if selfish mercenary principles and racial prejudices of the world were to be overcome."

In closing the speaker pointed out that today the Church is at the crossroads; that it is at a point where its influence will continue to decrease or with a wide assumption of further responsibility increase its usefulness to the world.

Questions of Crusade

Rev. Charles A. Perkins, minister at Holloway Street Church introduced the guest speaker and following his address introduced a question period when matters of interest to the Crusade movement were further discussed by Mr. Millar. Community singing at the start of the meeting assisted in making for good fellowship among members of the various groups attending, while Mrs. Gainsforth and Mrs. Little of the Trenton King Street group favored with two piano duets to add to the musical entertainment.

Group games under the direction of Mr. Ed. Shortt were played in the "gym", while serving of refreshments concluded the evening's program.

Women's Manners Worse Than Men's Women Report

"American manners are on the whole quite bad," and "compared with men, women are much the worse," state America's womenfolk themselves in reply to Woman's Home Companion's current national opinion poll.

Three out of every four American women stated that the men "have much better manners in public." Only one in seven defended her sex and one in five found no difference.

Buses and stores seemed to bring out the worst in women according to the women themselves and there were also objections to the way women smoke... ashes on the floor, butts in half-empty coffee cups..with the general opinion appearing to be "Female smoking habits are barbaric"

American women under twenty-five are the most tolerant of women's manners, the poll revealed, but even here only twenty-two per cent backed their sex. Those between the ages of twenty-five and thirty-four are the most critical with only fourteen per cent giving the ladies credit. Many blamed the war and its conditions for, in their minds, the inconsiderate, hardened American women of today.

Sixty-seven per cent of all the women polled say the younger generation is "nowhere near as polite as its elders were at the same age." But southerners, middle westerners, and older women are apt to be less critical of the teens than women living on the east or west coasts, and none are so critical as those just out of the teens themselves. But although most agree teen-agers are ill-mannered brats, they feel it isn't their fault "as the twig is bent, etc."

Parents win hands down in manners. "Nearly four out of five women agree that their generation can't compete in courtesy with the last one," but many went on to defend their generation... "the present generation is more honest"..."We are just less formal."

Polled on the three questions: "Do you think the manners of your generation are better than those of your parents?" "Do you think the manners of teen-agers are better or worse than yours were?" And "who do you think best respects the rights of others in public—men or women?" the consensus was: Parents were politer; Teen - agers are terrible; Women are comparatively appalling.

Concerning the "rash of rudeness that has broken out all over the country" one woman offered this suggestion—to which the Companion agreed editorially; "It becomes obvious that if we are to live amicably together we must begin to mind our manners; pushing, kicking and elbowing may get us onto the bus or gain us a bargain, but in the seconds or pennies saved we lose. We lose respect for ourselves and the regard of our friends. There is nothing neighborly in trying to get ahead all the time, wasting energy on literally dashing people from our path. It is high time we went back to saying, 'Please,' 'Thank you' and 'I'm sorry'."

Women's Activities

MADOC W.I.

Madoc.—The March meeting of Madoc Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Chas. Whytock on Friday evening with a good attendance.

The meeting opened with community singing. The President Mrs. Hill's opening remarks were greetings to Mrs. Clinton Nickle and Mrs. Ted Hailstone, who recently arrived from overseas to reside in Madoc. Later on in the evening the two ladies were presented with a woollen blanket, a gift from the Institute, the presentation being made by Mrs. Tanner and Mrs. Hill. Following the business period which included letters from overseas service personnel and communications from the Department Miss MacDermid gave a very fine talk on Home Economics. This was followed by an instrumental duet by Mrs. Wheal and Miss Aileen Tanner. The guest speaker for the evening was Lieut. John Wheal, who gave a very interesting address on Italy and Vesuvius, he being in Italy at the time of its eruptions. Mrs. Wheal and Miss Tanner again gave a pleasing duet. A vote of appreciation was tendered the speakers and musicians for the pleasant evening's entertainment.

The hostess was assisted by Mrs. Bert Bailey, Mrs. Warren Hill, Mrs. Henderson and Mrs. Kernaham serving refreshments.

RAWDON

Friends Honor Two Couples Prior To Their Departure

Rawdon.— On Friday evening, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Vance, Rawdon, was the scene of a happy gathering when about two hundred friends and relatives gathered to bid them adieu prior to their departure to Stirling.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harding, who have resided with Mr. and Mrs. Vance for the past five years were also honored as they too are moving to Stirling.

Mr. Bert Bedford was chairman and a round of community singing led by Messrs. Gordon Green and Kenneth Broadworth was enjoyed with Mrs. R. Shortt at the piano.

Mrs. Donald Drewery read a selection and Mr. C. Gibson delighted with a piano solo.

Mrs. Thomas Sarles sang a vocal selection and Mrs. Lewis Rodgers gave a reading.

Mrs. John Morrison read an address of appreciation to Mr. and Mrs. Vance and Messrs. William Drewery and John Morrison made the presentation of a tea wagon and a tri-light floor lamp.

Charlie and Jennie thanked their friends for the lovely gifts and invited one and all to visit them in their new home in Stirling.

Fashion Flashes

A NEW LOOK marks the latest alligator bags through the use of gilt metal frames. A very wide, double, triangular frame in burnished gold metal lends charm to a bag in red or navy alligator made with very wide leather handles.

NEW TOUCHES lend charm to Spring gloves. A short glove in white doeskin is trimmed with a row of flat white pearl buttons along the wrist and up the outside edge to the tip of the little finger.

THERE'S COLOR, and plenty of it, in many of the new hats. Swiss Milan in mustard yellow is used for a high, turban with deep back and open section to allow for high-top hair-dos. The front section is draped with lengths of nubby, bright red jersey that end in long bow ends.

COME SUMMER and you'll be seeing charming new beach fashions. Cotton, with a Javanese Batik design in brown, green and black all-over pattern, makes a most attractive one-piece swim suit. The same fabric is used for matching beach shoes made like mittens with bow ties in back.

NEVER ENOUGH simple little frocks in the wardrobe, the sort of things that look unobtrusively right all day. A charming little frock of this type, is made with a high front closing and short, loose sleeves, with stitched smocking releasing the fullness on the skirt. The fabric is silk crepe with a shadow print of horses, foliage and field flowers in back on a pink ground Black grosgrain ribbon, with long ends, circles the natural waistline.

VERY ATTRACTIVE accessories are coming into the stores for the little girls. Ready for late Spring is a picture hat and bag set of white straw. The multicolor flower clusters and pale blue ribbon that trim the hat are repeated on the bag in felt.

NOW IT'S NYLON AT BOTH ENDS

Nylon, which did a mighty bit to glamorize the legs of the ladies, is now doing a ditto act for her crowning glory. Newest thing is the nylon comb, which lovely Mary Healy, Hollywood starlet, is using here. The comb is flexible, yet strong enough to withstand strain of grooming the heaviest hair. It can be sterilized with boiling water, will not burn, even when exposed to open flame, and will not melt at extreme temperatures. Teeth can be bent to ultimate angle of 180 degrees without breaking, and best of all, it sells for 25 and 50 cents, depending on the model chosen.

Financial Position Sound

The financial position of the province is sound, said Mr. Frost. The next fiscal year was the first after the war but the first normal post-war year would not be reached until 1948 or 1949 or even later. "In the year we are entering therefore, we must raise our sights in order that we may not only play our part in liquidating the economic consequences of the war but carry our program well into the post-transition period."

Before tabling his budget forecast and the deficit prediction, he said: "I assure the House that the government has given careful consideration to the problems with which our province is confronted and is satisfied that the course which is being taken is thoroughly sound and will receive the approval of our people . . . it is inexpedient to increase or levy new taxes. On the other hand it is wholly desirable and indeed imperative that in this period of re-adjustment the province should go forward on this great path of progress which is indicated before us."

Although the province enjoyed surpluses and reduced its debt in each of the last four years, "the favorable balances which have been achieved are the result of our deferring many important works of a development nature."

Outlines Major Increases

He outlined major increases in expenditures as follows:

Lands and forests—Appropriation increases by $1,200,000 to $5,000,000 to provide increased forest fire protection with planes, new trucks and mechanical equipment, portable pumps, fire hose and personnel; organize two new fire districts to bring the total in the province to 15; to enlarge insect control, conservation and reforestation measures. Eighty-five per cent of the province's forest resources were still owned by the province. There were 110,000,000 acres of accessible and productive forest lands and in 1943 gross production value was $195,379,500.

Hydro — In 1944 construction of 400 additional miles or primary lines brought electric service to about 10,000 new rural customers. In 1945 1,1073 miles of new lines added another 11,420 consumers. In 1946 it is planned to construct 2,058 miles of lines for 7,250 new customers and it is expected that 15,800 additional consumers would take service from existing lines bringing the total for the year to 22,750. Cost would be more than $8,000,000 and the province would have to pay half. The government appropriated $4,150,000 for this work.

Game and fisheries—To progressively increase conservation and propagation services, estimates of the department are being increased to $1,092,000 compared with $751,400 last year. Wild life held a twofold value—commercial fishing and taking of pelts was a considerable industry and there was an additional value in the tourist industry. Money spent on protection, conservation, biological methods and fish culture brought immense returns.

Education Expenditures Up

Education—The appropriation for the next fiscal year is $32,371,607 which, combined with the $5,800,000 to be distributed from the 1945-46 surplus, makes a total of $38,171,607 exceeding the comparable 1945-46 figure by $3,980,439. The department's estimates provided for normal expansion of educational services, indicating increasing emphasis on audio-visual aids in teaching, summer camps for boys and girls and provincial scholarships. The Universities' Adult Education Board of Ontario, established last year, is expected to carry on a vigorous province-wide program. Public library grants are to be increased.

Agriculture—To provide increased services to farmers, estimates of the department are being increased $1,750,000 to $7,857,349. Subsidies totalling more than $3,600,000 on cheese, hogs, sugar beets and other products will be continued. Special attention was given the needs of settlers in Northern Ontario in the last year. A potato grading and storage warehouse was put into operation at Cochrane; co-operative facilities at New Liskeard were extended; veterinary services were also extended; loans were made to co-operative associations; residential short term courses were being given to farm boys in the clay belt at the Experimental Farm at Kapuskasing where free board and lodging were provided. A pool of large scale drainage and land clearing machinery is being placed at the disposal of farm settlers through an appropriation of $1,000,000.

More Protection Afforded

Attorney-General—There is a pressing need for more adequate police protection, particularly in rural and less populous areas. The department planned to spend $500,000 for three-way short wave radio and appliances, details of which will be outlined later by the Attorney-General. Estimates are being increased from $3,600,000 to $4,500,000.

Health—The appropriation is being increased $3,028,200 to $15,372,390. One important new factor in the estimates is assistance to public general hospitals to provide for increased cost of maintenance. Another is an appropriation of $500,000 to provide pre-natal care for expectant mothers.

Public Welfare — Appropriations increased by about $500,000 to $14,157,638 to increase youth and child welfare activities and to meet an increase in the number of old age pensions.

Travel and publicity —An appropriation of $150,000 is allotted the new department, set up by legislation this year. In the past it is estimated that the tourist industry brought Ontario more than $100,000,000 a year. In 1945, 553,720 cars entered Ontario despite wartime conditions. This was 64 per cent of the total number which entered the Dominion.

Increase For Mines

Mines—The department is being given $550,000, an increase of $106,000—not counting money spent on lignite development. This would provide technical and scientific assistance in aerial surveys, mapping, geological work, and training of young prospectors. Some 250 men now are being trained at the lakehead, Haileybury and Toronto. But the actual mines department expenditures only reflected a small part of the work done by the government for the mining areas. The recently announced $3,000,000 highway to Red Lake was only an initial step in road expansion and development work. Large sums are in the highways department estimates this year for mining roads. Other departments, such as education, also were contributing to mining area development.

Highways—A total of more than $46,000,000, $20,000,000 capital and $26,837,800 on ordinary account, is being appropriated for the Department of Highways. It is no longer possible to delay extensive maintenance work neglected during the war and the extension of the highway system.

Public works—Total appropriation this year is more than $4,700,000 for both capital and current expenditures, compared with $1,391,500 last year. Because the government is anxious not to compete with private housing or industrial reconversion only the most urgent projects are to be started during next fiscal year. Pressing requirements include extension of Guelph Agricultural College to accommodate returned service personnel, a new chemistry building and extensions to mental hospitals.

To Pay Subsidy Again

Municipal affairs—Provision has been made to pay the one-mill municipal subsidy again, at a cost of some $3,000,000.

Planning and development — The appropriation is $225,000 compared with $100,000 for this department, described as a co-ordinating and planning department but not an active spending one.

Describing the proposed changes in the Mining Tax Act, Mr. Frost said that under the British North America Act the mineral resources of the province belong to the Crown in the right of the province. However, under the system of land grants under the Mining Act and under the Public Land Act, mineral rights might be alienated from the Crown and thus removed from the possibility of prospecting and development. To obtain reversion of dormant mining lands to the Crown it was proposed to increase the acreage tax from five to 10 cents an acre and to extend the scope of the tax to include mining lands within organized mining municipalities and improvement districts.

He outlined six major changes in the Succession Duty Act: To give the subject access to the courts for determination of values under the act; to exempt life insurance where the insured died while living outside Ontario; to reduce to five years the period in which gifts in the family would be subject to succession duty; to clarify the act respecting imposition of duty where the testator by will has provided for payment of duty out of the estate; to permit allowance for duty paid in other provinces even where there is no inter-provincial agreement.

Refunding on Serial Basis

Mr. Frost recalled that in his 1944 budget address he outlined a general debt retirement plan which might be adopted on the termination of the Dominion-Provincial Conference. In preparation for such a plan refundings in the last three years have been on a serial basis. The government placed in the setimates for next year $5,433,300 as a charge against ordinary revenue for debt retirement purposes. This sum was deemed sufficient to provide for amortization of the present net debt over a period of years. "As for new debts which may be created during the coming year, it is my intention that provision will be made in the ordinary course in the budget for the following year to provide for their retirement on a serial plan during the lifetime of the works for which they were incurred."

During the present fiscal year, the provincial debt payable in United States funds was reduced by $6,369,000 and in London by $2,020,319. An annual saving of some $600,000 in debt and interest charges was achieved through refinancing of loans both in New York and in Canada at lower rates of interest.

"The significance of these figures is that the strong financial position of the province is reflected in its high credit standing and the resulting low rates of interest at which the province is able to borrow."

Asks For Change

Dominion government foreign exchange control regulations made it necessary for the province and its Hydro-Electric Commission to spend more than $12,000,000 in foreign exchange premiums since they were inaugurated early in the war. The province raised no objection while the war was on but now "we have submitted that this annual burden of upwards of $2,000,000 in the case of Ontario and in varying amounts in other jurisdiction should not be borne by those jurisdictions."

Although the end of the war brought increases in revenue in some departments these could not be considered permanent. Mr. Frost mentioned three major increases in revenue over estimates during the year: $900,000 additional revenue to the mines department due to legislation passed at the special session last July under which two years mining taxes became due in one year; $600,000 additional revenue in the Provincial Secretary's Department because of incorporation of new joint stock companies; increased liquor revenue of $6,000,000 due to progressive relaxation of wartime restrictions.

There were three major increases in expenditures: The provincial election boosted the spending by the Attorney-General's Department by $1,250,000; health costs went up $698,000 because of increased salaries and staffs at mental hospitals and assistance to sanitaria treating tuberculosis patients; urgent highway repairs cost $5,630,000.

Taxing Powers Affected

Provincial taxing powers were vitally affected by the Dominion-Provincial Conference. Ontario approached the conference with a sympathetic attitude to the problems of other provinces. This province's financial position would be quite satisfactory when tax rights it surrendered in 1942 were returned. But the government was pressing for a solution which would be equally acceptable to all parts of the Dominion without giving special advantage to Ontario.

Mr. Frost reported that deposits in Province of Ontario savings offices totaled $43,820,919 at the end of 1945 compared with $38,741,362 the year before. Current loans under the agricultural development board were reduced to 11,619 with a total indebtedness of $23,436,000 for principal and interest as of last Dec. 31.

SPRING COMES WITH GLAD RUSH

London, March 20 (CP Cable)—Spring, so long delayed that austerity-jaded Londoners were losing hope of it, arrived yesterday in a glad rush. The sun came out and one of the coldest March spells of the century vanished. Warmed by southwesterly air currents, the temperature shot up to 59 degrees.

REESTABLISH RELATIONS

Bern, March 20 (AP)—Switzerland and Russia have reestablished diplomatic relations after a 22-year-long break, the Swiss political department said yesterday. Switzerland was among the first nations to recognize the Soviet Union but diplomatic ties were broken in 1924 after a Russian official was assassinated on Swiss soil.

AN OPEN LETTER TO CANADA'S EX-FIGHTING MEN

You and your fellow servicemen have fought for the peace, freedom and happiness we now enjoy.

We, in common with all true Canadians, believe that you should receive your fair share — a goodly share — of the prosperity that could not be ours without the victory you have achieved. We believe that, unless our ex-fighting men as a whole reach a good standard of living, Canada cannot attain that full measure of the prosperity for which we all hope.

We, at the Bank of Montreal, are anxious to do all in our power to help every veteran find his particular niche in the new peace-time Canada, either in a job to his liking or in a business of his own that will afford him a full and prosperous life.

Reproduced in this advertisement are some thoughts from a booklet we have prepared to help veterans find their feet in civilian life. It is our hope that when you are struggling with the problem of starting afresh on "civvy street" the booklet may be very helpful to you.

Further, we extend a friendly invitation to you to drop in and chat things over with any one of our managers.

His knowledge of the present situation, local conditions, trends in business circles and the economic life of the community may be useful in the search for your niche. Perhaps he can offer helpful suggestions, sound advice, or a timely bank loan if you are thinking of branching out for yourself.

Representatives of Five City and District Teams Signify Intention of Having Entry This Season

Although the attendance was not as representative nor as large as was formerly expected, due to out-of-town sports attractions, organization of the Belleville City Baseball League for 1946 was completed at a special meeting held in the Y.M.C.A. Tuesday night.

Election of officers, laid over from the annual meeting held a few days ago saw Don Thomas, well-known city and district baseball and softball figure elevated to the presidency. Honorary President is Mr. Arthur Young, of the Stewart-Warner Alemite Corporation; immediate past president, Jack McVeigh, who will take an active part in the administration of the league; vice president, Dr. Jack Empson; secretary - treasurer, Homer (Red) Townsend, and directors, Walter Gerow, Sr., Bill Dennis, Lorne McDougall and Cy Young. Three other directors will be appointed in the immediate future by the newly-elected executive.

Five Teams Ready

Representatives of five city and district teams signified their intention of entering squads in the 1946 edition of the loop. These include, Stewart-Warner Alemite; Roblins Dairy; Batawa; Latta and the Belleville Juniors. There is a strong possibility that entries will be received from Trenton, Trenton R.C.A.F., Sixardee and the Stephens-Adamson, it was pointed out.

Past President McVeigh, and former Secretary Treasurer Ernie Summers took charge of the meeting until the new officials took over. Both these former officials had resigned at the meeting held last week.

Thanked For Honors.

President Thomas thanked the assembly for the honor paid him, adding the wish that he can do as good a job as his predecessor. "As an infant in 1945" he said, "the league had done a splendid job in promoting the game. There is nothing more I want to see than baseball flourish this year in this city and district."

Lengthy discussion took place over the possibility of two parks in the city during the coming summer. The possibility of the City Parks Board installing lights in the Fair Grounds came in for some attention, and it was suggested that if this was possible a double schedule could be played with games alternating at the Stewart-Warner grounds and the Exhibition Park. It was felt that two parks are needed in order to allow teams to get plenty of practice.

President Thomas stated that he would like to see both parks utilized, and added that lighting would not be necessary until late August, unless special arrangements were made to play night games.

Juniors to Enter Team

Past President McVeigh, referring to the Central Ontario Baseball League organization meeting last Sunday told the meeting that at a special session of the Belleville Junior Baseball team held on Monday night, that the youngsters had decided unanimously to play as an entity during the coming year. He stated that the Juniors would enter a team sprinkled with veterans, in the C.O.B.L. on the condition that they would be allowed to play as a junior squad in O. B. A. playdowns at the end of the season. The younger team, however, is badly in need of a sponsor.

"On the junior team rests the future of baseball in this city," he said, "and it should have the fullest support of all those interested in baseball here."

Suggested organization of another team to represent Belleville was tabled after it was learned the Juniors will enter, with help from older veterans.

Tribute Paid Art Young

Permission of Mr. Arthur Young, of the Stewart-Warner Company to use the company grounds, and information regarding playing nights will be requested immediately. During the course of the meeting sincere tribute was paid Mr. Young for his generous efforts in promoting and furthering baseball here last summer.

President Thomas and his executive will wait on the city council at an early date in an effort to secure a grant for immediate operating expenses of the league. Teams will be financed under the same system as last year, with the home team collecting the gate. The entrance fee will be the same as 1945, $10 per team.

A member of the executive who is not an umpire will be appointed by the president to act as chief umpire and he will notify all arbiters a full week in advance of the date of the game at which they will officiate.

Other points which came up for discussion were extension of bleachers at the Stewart-Warner grounds; a better system of collecting the "gates" and also a system of retaining bleacher seats for those who pay the costs of admission.

The next meeting of the League was set for Tuesday night, April 2 at the "Y".

Chips Off The Sports Block

By GEORGE H. CARVER.

With the ice out of the Hume Arena, and robins and other harbingers of the vernal season making their presence felt, hockey and other winter sports are gradually fading out of the picture except in those places where squads are still in the throes of playdowns.

Lovers of boxing will be pleased to hear that already arrangements are under way to stage an attractive card at the Hume Arena around or about the first of April. While definite details are as yet lacking, it has been authoritatively stated that the leather-pushers will be back in greater force than ever, this year and some fine lads will show their wares here.

And speaking of boxing, George Polmanter, local 145 pounder who has been making a name for himself in fistic circles in Toronto, Oshawa and other centres, dropped a close decision to Nick Poppa, rated as one of Toronto's best, in the Massey Hall show on Monday night. The bout went five rounds and was reported to be one of the show pieces of the evening.

Kingston Ponies, affiliated with the Toronto Maple Leafs on a friendly basis are reported to have approached Leo Senese, youthful Niagara Falls first string catcher, with an attractive offer to wear a Pony uniform the coming summer. Senese, a youngster, is said to be one of the finest ballplayers developed in the Niagara District and had trials at baseball schools last season in Niagara Falls with the Chicago Cubs and in Welland with the Brooklyn Dodgers. He is a younger brother of Dominic Senese, ace hurler for the St. Catharines seniors and Brights of Niagara Falls, senior champs in 1940 and 1941.

WAY DOWN SOUTH, THAT IS

When Jackie Robinson, negro baseball star signed with the Montreal Royals, appeared for the first time in an exhibition tilt with the Brooklyn Dodgers at Daytona Beach, about 1,000 of the colored gentry were on hand to watch the proceedings. Robinson played second base for the Royals until they completed their half of the sixth inning. He batted three times, and out of this all he did was lift a weak foul to Billy Herman in the second chukker. When Robinson came to bat for the first time the negroes applauded. The whites waited until Herman caught his foul then indulged in a spot of handclapping. However, they split the applause the next two times with both whites and blacks giving Robinson an ovation.

Joe Cronin of the Boston Red Sox, is mighty proud, suh, of his silken swing boy Ted Williams. All action down around Sarasota, Floridah, stops when the good looking kid starts to swing the hickory.

"He's come back bigger and better," chortled Cronin in understandable glee. "I never saw a hitter like him. He is the smartest of them all, even able to analyze his own swing. He's just figured out that he's getting too much body into his cut and not enough arm snap. Watch him. He's started to correct it already. Not only that, but he takes pitchers apart, both literally and figuratively. He isn't content to know that so-and-so is a fastball pitcher. He studies him to see how fast. If the chucker has a curve, his inquisitive mind wants to know how much of a curve. He's tops."

Williams had more fun than a barrel of monkeys in Havana. It was there that the Mexican League approached him with an offer. Ted told them he was willing to accept. But had they gotten Bobby Feller? Sure, they had Feller. Then he was out, he said, because he didn't want to bat against Feller. No, they didn't have Feller.

How much salary could he get? Anything he wanted. It was finally agreed that he'd be paid the sum of $500,000 and no one said whether that was to be for one year or life. But Ted began to play "hard to get," trying to stifle a guffaw. He'd jump to the Mexican League, he told them, if they'd let him have four strikes instead of three. By gum, they even were willing to let him have four strikes!

Election of Don Thomas as president; Homer Townsend as secretary; Doc Empson as vice president and Jack McVeigh automatically holding down the job of past prexy, gives the newly formed Belleville City Baseball League, plenty of baseball brains and experience. A strong directorate of diamond veterans will aid materially and it looks as though the loop is off on the right foot.

At the meeting held in the Y last night, plenty of wrinkles were ironed out, and the league will start operations under much more pleasant conditions than it did in its infancy last year. There were plenty of suggestions and some sane discussions. All in all the meeting was an unqualified success, even if a lot of those who would have been there had not other sports attractions taken them out of town, were absent.

In Don Thomas, the loop has elected a head with plenty of baseball experience. Young, with years of baseball behind him, the new prexy should fit into his new job like a foot in an old shoe. He is an umpire of more than passing ability and is well-known and well liked for his arbiting duties in all parts of the district.

The Belleville Juniors, so the meeting was informed, held a special baseball conclave and decided to stick together as a baseball team but will enter a squad, bolstered by city veterans in the newly formed Central Ontario Baseball Loop. They will go on into junior playdowns at the end of the season.

But the crying need of the junior players at the present time is a sponsor. The kids made an excellent showing last year in their first attempt at organised baseball and went through to the Ontario championships. And if it had not been for Arthur Young and the Stewart Warner Company, the kids would have died in their baseball tracks here in the city without getting a chance to show their wares against outside squads.

Here is a chance for some organization to do a worthwhile job for the youth of the city. Money makes the mare go—and it also helps young athletes along the right road to proper citizenship. The Juniors show exceptional promise and with last year's experience tucked under their belts, plus what they will gain during the regular season, they should finish well up in the higher brackets of junior baseball competition, if not bringing home the titular bacon to this city.

Speedy St. Louis hoed a tough row last year and he feels that his kids are ready to step out and bring a lot of publicity to this city if given the proper financial backing. As Past President Jack McVeigh said at last night's conclave, "On the juniors' shoulders rests the responsibility to bring baseball back to its proper sphere in Belleville." This corner agrees wholeheartedly. The kids of today are the stars of tomorrow. And money cannot be better spent than in giving the boys a chance to bring honor and glory to themselves and their city and to pave the way so that in the future the new generation will get the opportunity of becoming sturdy upright citizens. It is a chance for investment in youth for some one.

Belleville Bears Eliminated From Junior B Playdowns Kingston Saints Winning 7 to 4

In one of the fastest junior games of the current season, Kingston "Saints" defeated Belleville "Bears" 7-4 in Kingston, Tuesday night to take the best-of-three series two games to one and with it, the right to advance into the second round of the O.H.A. Junior "B" playdowns.

The game was a real thriller all the way with the local youngsters giving all they had to overcome a three-goal lead that the speedy Kingstonians had garnered in the initial stanza. They fought all the way and the sport fans of Belleville can well be proud of the game little team that represented the city in the Ontario playdowns.

Old Man "Condition" was a very large factor in their defeat. The lads have been on skates three times during the last month and each time they were taking part in the very crucial playoff series with the Limestone City speedsters. Considering this, the Bears did very well to give the Saints such a run for their money.

Opened at Fast Clip

The play opened at a very fast clip with both teams trying hard for the first counter. The Saints drew first blood at the 5.41 mark when Ronnie Plumb skated the length of the ice to score on a very pretty solo effort while "Knobby" Day was serving a penalty for "tripping'. Seconds later, Jim Brown made a spectacular save on a drive by Barrett.

The play was quite rough in the stanza with five penalties being handed out, Kingston drawing three of them. Billy Holway was hurt about halfway through the period when he crashed into the boards at the Kingston end of the rink. He had to be helped off the ice but was able to return to the game after a short rest.

At the 17.32 mark, Dick Davidson put the Saints two up when he got the puck behind the Belleville citadel, came around in front to plant one behind Plumley. At 17.45, Sammy Mulholland added another on a pass from Joyce to end the scoring for the period in which Kingston had an edge in the play.

Holway Opens Scoring

The second period opened with the Bears carrying the play to the Saints. At the 6.18 mark and while York was serving a penalty for "tripping," Billy Holway opened the scoring for Belleville when he took a pass from 'Huck' Reeves and blazed one into the Kingston net from about fifteen feet out.

At 7.34 and with York still in the penalty box, Dick Davidson made it 4-1 after combining with Joyce and Mulholland. At the halfway mark, Graves and Patterson combined to make it 5-1 with the former being the marksman.

At the 15.34 mark, Dick Fitzpatrick got the second Belleville counter, when he shot the puck out from the corner. It hit a skate on the way and nestled snuggly behind Brown to end the scoring for the period in which the play was pretty well even.

Shortly after the start of the final session, Bob Joyce gave the Saints a four goal lead after taking a nice pass from Davidson. Dick Fitzpatrick was hurt early in the period when he slid into the boards at the Belleville end of the rink after skating back at full speed to nip a Kingston rush in the bud. He, too, was helped off the ice but was able to return later in the period.

At 7.50, Doug Green let go a bullet-like drive from the blue line which hit Jerry Moher's stick and was deflected into the cage to make the score 6-3.

Bears Put On Pressure.

The Bears really put on the pressure but were unable to click around the net. Only phenominal work by Jim Brown in the Kingston rigging kept the locals off the score sheet. Time and again he turned aside shots that were really labelled for the corner.

The Bears fought back desperately and at 18.45 Don Barrett combined with Jerry Moher to end the scoring for the period in which Belleville had a slight edge in the play.

When picking the stars of the game, the rival netminders, Jim Brown and Art Plumley deserve special mention. They both played grand games during the entire series. Had it not been for them, the scores in all three games would have been much higher. Only their spectacular work kept the two fast-skating teams from scoring countless goals.

York Improved Player.

Cal York was the pick of the Belleville aggregation and can be rated as the most improved player on the club. He turned in a very fine effort on the rearguard and was the spearhead of countless rushes into enemy territory. "Huck" Reeves, Don Barrett, Doug Day and Jack Wardhaugh played well "up front" while Bill Holway and Doug Green turned in their usual fine performances on the defence.

And so it is with deep regret that we see the Bears hang up their skates for the season. Their fine play and fighting spirit earned them many friends in the district. It can be truly said, "They were a great little team."

Kingston will now meet Scarboro in the second round of the playdowns.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

LESSON NO. 940

By SAM GORDON

The Kibitzer

Like opera, avocados, and crawdaddies, you gradually cultivate a taste for bridge rules. Then, is when you get fussy and selective.

The order of choice of leads is tops, longies, shorts. Tops refer to honor card leads from sequences. Longies are long suits. Shorts are short suits; three cards or less.

Thus, you first choose to lead from a sequence or other type of top lead. With none such, your second choice is from a long suit; four cards or more. With neither, lead a short as a last resort.

When you lead from a longie containing no top lead, the card to start with is the fourth best. That means the fourth from the highest card in that suit.

But suppose you have two long suits from which to lead. Which of the two will you choose to lead first? If you are particular about rules, it will not be a guess.

If they are both of the same length, pick out the strongest. If they are both of the same strength, pick out the longest. The very simplicity of this should certainly appeal to anyone.

Occasions are when circumstances may prompt you to ignore the general rules just stated. But in the long run, rule works out to your advantage and receives better co-operation from partner.

Occasions are when there is hardly any noticeable difference between two suits. At such times, the choice should go to the suit that may give partner the most information.

Opponents are playing a deal at a contract of five diamonds and it is your opening lead from this hand:

♠Q 10 5 4
♣K 8 5

Your opening lead here should be the spade four in preference to the heart four. You have a better chance of developing spades.

The sooner your suit congeals, the quicker opponent squeals.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, March 20 (AP) — Joe E. Brown brought "Harvey" to the Biltmore Theatre last night and in no time had the tough movie crowd, not the six-foot rabbit, eating out of his hand.

The wide-grinned comic came with the Mary Chase stage fantasy into his home grounds to face what must be the toughest audience this side of Nuernberg. The film colony is notable for sitting on hands during public performances. But when Joe sauntered on stage last night, the spectators gave him an ovation and stayed with him all the way.

Brown's performance undoubtedly will be compared with that of Frank Fay, who originated the role in New York, but there is little basis for comparison. Fay's evidently is a master-piece of underplaying, while Brown's has a wistful quality but is more resolute.

Vera Zorina is a girl who doesn't give up. Four years ago she started the plum role of Maria in "For Whom The Bell Tolls." A week later she was replaced by Ingrid Bergman. Zorina went back to Broadway and once more won acclaim as a ballerina and even a Shakespearian actress.

The dancer is again back in Hollywood and again playing a dramatic role. She is appearing in Universal's "Lesson in Love" and she doesn't dance a step. But don't get her wrong—she isn't giving up the ballet.

"Dancing is the hardest profession in the world," she says. "Acting requires you to be mentally on your toes, dancing requires you to be physically on them. But still, I like to dance."

CANADIENS DOWN CHICAGO HAWKS BY 6-2 SCORE

Both Chicago Goals Scored While Canucks Were Shorthanded

By PIERRE LE MOYNE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, March 20 — (CP) — Montreal Canadiens, who won the National Hockey League championship by finishing the regular schedule in first place, last night downed Chicago Black Hawks 6-2 to take a one - game lead in the best-of-seven semi-final series for the Stanley Cup, symbolic of world professional hockey supremacy.

In a dazzling display of whirl-wing hockey, the Flying Frenchmen delighted the 12,013 paying customers with an exhibition of aggressiveness. Both Chicago goals were scored while Canucks were shorthanded through penalties.

Hiller put the Montrealers ahead at 8:33 of the opening stanza when he deflected goalwards a long shot by Bobby Fillon. Near the end of the period George Gee fooled Durnan while Reay was in the cooler, to make the count 1-1.

In the middle frame, Elmer Lach put the Montrealers ahead at 8:32 then in the 17th minute of play Reay and Hiller rammed in a brace of quick ones that promised to put the contest on ice for the league champions.

Toe Blake got the next halfway in the third period. Mosienko counted for Chicago while Butch Bouchard and Murph Chamberlain were serving penalties, but two minutes late Maurice (Rocket) Richard took the honors.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press)

The Pennsylvania Athletic Commission has joined the National Boxing Association, it was announced by chairman Leon Rains at Philadelphia. The step is expected to clarify boxing championship honors. New York, Massachusetts and Maryland are still outside the N.B.A. fold.

According to official statistics last night, Les Douglas of Indianapolis Capitals carried off the season's scoring honors of the American Hockey League with 90 points, one better than Norman Larson of Hershey.

More trouble loomed for Gunder Haegg, Arne Andersson and other professionalized Swedish athletic stars yesterday at Stockholm with the intimation that income tax collectors would check on their athletic earnings. Sports writers estimated Haegg and Andersson had received as much as $18,500.

Jack (Spider) Armstrong, Toronto's veteran featherweight, came through with another Boston ring victory last night when he scored a fourth-round technical kayo over Jackie Harris of Malden, Mass., in a scheduled 10-round main bout.

A record entry of some 350 athletes from the United States and Canada, topped by Leslie MacMitchell in the mile run, will compete in the 91st Amateur Athletic Association indoor track meet at Hamilton tonight in a gigantic program designed as part of a drive to regain Hamilton's pre-war sports eminence. Stella Walch of Cleveland heads women's entrants.

Jackie Robinson, Negro infielder of Montreal Royal, in the International Baseball League, said yesterday he had rejected an offer of $6,000 to jump to the Mexican League. In spurning the bid, Robinson said: "I am not interested. I have too much at stake here."

Harry Westerby, trainer for New York Rangers of the National Hockey League for the last 20 years, resigned yesterday to work for a Toronto Sports Goods store. His successor is Dick Surphlis, recently discharged from the United States navy and previous to the war trainer for New York Hockey Rovers.

Pete Gray, one-armed baseball player who performed in St. Louis Browns' outfield last year, disclosed yesterday "someone in Mexico City" has offered him a contract. He declined to say whether he was considering the deal. Gray was sold to Toledo of the American Association last winter but has turned down a contract because he wants more money.

AT THE BELLE — Lovely Frances Rafferty shares the romantic lead with Robert Stanton in M.G.M.'s new laugh hit, "Bud Abbott and Lou Costello in Hollywood," which opens Today at the Belle Theatre.

BUFFALO BISONS DEFEAT CAPS

(By The Canadian Press)

Buffalo Bisons, champs of the Eastern Division of the American Hockey League, drew first blood in their best-of-seven playoff series by trouncing Indianapolis Capitals 5-1 before 9,139 home fans last night.

Murdo McKay and George Boothman paced the Buffalo victory with a brace of markers while Art Lessard notched the other Bison goal. Cliff Simpson tallied the sole Indianapolis tally.

Hershey Bears whitewashed Pittsburgh Hornets 3-0 to take a one-game lead in their best-of-three series with Hornets. Armand Gaudreault, Hank Luzon and Joe Bell were the Hershey marksmen while Sugar Jim Henry turned in a faultless performance in the Bears' nets.

In the best-of-three series between the third-place teams of the respective divisions, Cleveland Barons blanked Providence Reds 2-0 to take a one-game lead. Les Cunningham and Gordie Davidson scored.

Sports Roundup

(By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.)

New York, March 20, (AP)—It sounds lightly confusing, as so many things in this sports business are, but Al Sutphin, Cleveland's round man with the red necktie, claims that in many respects even boomtime sports don't pay their own way. . . Looking it from the arena owner's viewpoint, Al shows where a building with more than 10,000 capacity has a lot of seats that never pay for themselves and at the same time he explains that the American Hockey League remains a minor circuit because most of its arenas haven't seating capacities to pay big-league salaries. . . The explanation apparently is that the guy who puts up one of those big structures loses his dough and the one who takes it over at a bargain price can operate it profitably . . .Another surprise is that boxing is one of the least profitable sports (for arena owners) outside of New York . . .Al claims that in Cleveland, North America's second-best boxing city, his rentals are just peanuts and that the real reason the Chicago Stadium barred fights was that they were not bringing in enough dough.

Pete Horeck, Chicago Black Hawks forward, was offered a $500 bonus last hockey season if he scored 20 goals. He made the 20th in the final minute of the final game at Detroit. . . .This year Pete had the same deal on and racked up No. 20 at 17.58 of the final period of the season's windup at Boston.

DICKENS' CHEQUE

London (CP)—A cheque for £24 ($108) made out by Charles Dickens, the novelist in 1868 in payment of a domestic account is being auctioned at Seymour Hall in aid of the Marylebone Services' Fund for needy ex-servicemen.

Also being auctioned are grandfather clocks, antiques, a Persian rug and wines and spirits donated by Marylebone residents.

BOSTON BRUINS EASILY DEFEAT DETROIT WINGS

Pat Egan Scores First Goal and From There Till End Boston Never Headed

Boston, March 20 (CP)—A sell-out crowd of 13,900 jammed the Boston Gardens last night and cheered itself hoarse when the Bruins crashed through with a 3-1 victory over Detroit Red Wings in the opening game of a best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final play-off.

Boston showed their strength throughout, and after Pat Egan scored his opening goal on a solo dash in the first period, the Bruins were never headed. All the goals were scored in the east-end of the rink where Detroit set up their defence for two periods, and Boston held out in the middle frame.

Egan's goal came shortly after Jack Church drew a penalty for tripping. The Red Wings figured on profiting by his absence, and sent four men down the ice. Egan intercepted the rush and raced away, outmanoeuvred Bill Quackenbush at the Red Wings defence, and beat Harry Lumley with a fast shot. With less than a minute to play in the first period, Bill Shill beat Lumley with a six-footer, after netting passes from Bep Guidolin and Don Gallinger.

Harry Watson scored the only goal in the second period, when he scored on a long drive after he had collected a pass from Adam Brown who had carried the puck down into the corner.

Bep Guidolin swept in with the third goal, batting in the puck from close range after Lumley had stopped a 50-foot shot by Shill.

BASKETBALL

Starting right at the tossup, Belleville "Y" Junior entry in the Provincial Ladies' Basketball Championships walked away from the Picton Ladies to lead 17-4 at the half and 29-9 at the finish. Picton showed to better advantage than at any time since their team was organized, and, with some practice will be a contender by next season. The local girls used a revamped starting lineup that clicked, with Marg. Taylor and Betty Holway flanking Shirley Bunnett, and June Matthews and Dorothy Bishop at the guard positions. This line accounted for 18 of the team's 29 points. Barb Hobson got 4 of Picton's points, and was the most effective player on the squad. In the evening's second game the "Y" Intermediates fielded a scratch team (no one seemed to know where the other players were, they just didn't turn up), to play the Senior team from the Men's House League in a ding dong battle that ended with the men one point up on a basket with a few seconds to play, after trailing all the game. Mifflin and Gilbert were the big guns for the men with 16 and 12 points, while Doris Mansfield and Dot Rowbotham led the girls with 10 apiece. The girls made a great stand against greater height, and strength, and at times showed the men how the game should be played. If the girls can play that style of ball when they get to Toronto for the tournament next month, they should be champions.

The teams:

Picton: Hawkins, Hobson 4, Bailey 2, Andrews, Gayton 3, Van Gesen. Total 9.

"Y" Juniors: Delong, Bunnett 4, Matthews, Taylor 6, Holway 6, Tomaso, Kikes 5, Wright 4, Bishop 2, Ketcheson 2. Total 29.

"Y" Intermediates: Mansfield 10, Marinoff 6, Ronsky 6, Rowbotham 10, Wonnacott, Lepore 2, Roblin 4, Gilbert 4. Total 42.

Senior Class — Regan 2, Rapino 4, Townsend, Snell 4, Mifflin 16, Hall 5, Gilbert 12. Total 43.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By MEL SUFRIN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, March 20 — (CP) — The old college spirit is beginning to take hold again in Western Canada and although the scope doesn't approach that of the east, an ambitious effort is being made to revive all the colorful inter-collegiate competitions on a broad scale.

The chief drawback in the prairies has always been the long distances between universities in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. In addition, the fact there are only three universities in most cases limits sporting endeavors to meets rather than league competition.

In some sports, like football, this has put a damper on plans, and Manitoba has given notice of looking closer to home for competition. Intending to enter a team in the north-central United States Conference with teams from North Dakota and Minnesota, the Manitoba Athletic Board is counted out of plans for play with the other universities except possibly on an exhibition schedule.

In other sports, however, there is a definite air of enthusiasm. The crowds of 3,000 that turned out to the recent inter-collegiate basketball tournament in Winnipeg provided ample proof of the interest, and with Edmonton playing host next year, there's good reason to believe that hotbed of the hoop sport will keep the pot boiling.

The weekend meeting of the Western Canada inter-collegiate Athletic Union in Saskatoon unveiled plans for bigger and better competition in just about every department including track and field, tennis, hockey, wrestling, fencing, golf, curling, badminton, skiing, and of course basketball and football.

Manitoba has expressed the intention of getting back into puck play and should be able to ice a strong team, considering it already supplies seven players to this year's Memorial Cup-hunting Winnipeg Monarchs.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

CHAPTER 8

"I don't get it," he said; "I don't get your falling for a guy like that. Has he money?" he demanded suddenly, looking up.

"Not of his own, I think. His mother gets alimony; I don't know how much. You see, she married again after she and his father were divorced—"

"I don't want to know what they did!" Tom interrupted with distaste.

"I mean that she forfeited what his father was paying her when she remarried. His father is rich—very rich, I believe. He expects Vere to become a lawyer and go in with his firm in New York, but he says he won't give him anything more until he gets his degree."

"He's not a bit what you think. He's generous and affectionate and terribly—terribly nice," Dina mustered spirit enough to say appealingly. "It—it was my fault, too. It wasn't anybody's fault—really!"

"Suppose not." Tom sighed. No use to blame her, to rage and scold now. "You'll have to let him know," he said.

"How can I? A girl from Railway Flats, with perhaps—perhaps all—all this coming on me in midsummer! Think what it would do to him! couldn't bear it"—she stopped, choking.

"If there should be a child, don't you see what you do to the kid?" Tom asked, his eyes sick with pity.

"But, Tom—but, Tom," she stammered, "it's not fair! It's not fair!"

"No," he said quietly. "Of course, it's not fair. Yet if I say to you that you and I'd get married, that we'd go ahead just as if everything was—was all right, that wouldn't be fair either."

"To you," she said quickly, her face aflame.

"To any of us," he answered soberly. "I—how would I feel about the baby? We'd start wrong."

She had never seen him in this mood before. Tom was a grown man today, sorrowful, quiet, and wise. All his Irish nonsense had dropped from him. Both had put something of the past away forever in this hour, and lightly as she had valued it, Dina felt terror and heartache as it went.

"Tom," she asked him simply and pitifully, "what shall I do?"

"You'll have to join him, since he isn't here to join you," Tom told her.

"I can't do that!"

"Don't you see you have to, Dina? I'll give you the money. You find where he is and simply go East and tell him all about it."

Dina sat silent. Her thoughts were one wild protest, but it was no use to waste them on Tom. Unless Vere wrote her or wired her to come she knew well that she would never have the courage to follow him.

She could not turn their joyous young love idyll into the burden, the wreckage that it would mean to a hopeful young lawyer to have a sick, despairing woman suddenly appear with a claim upon him.

And that claim she thought now with a kind of frenzy, was daily becoming more obvious, less concealable.

"When you meet him, tell him that as soon as you're married you'll come back here," Tom was saying; "make it a secret. tell him that you'll never be a burden on him."

Hope flooded her heart.

"But what'll they think here?"

"You'll have to go away. San Francisco, perhaps, or Oakland. A big place where you can get lost. Then you'll have to land a job."

"There'll be weeks — months, when I can't work."

"That part," he said, staring ahead of him with darkened eyes, "we'll manage somehow."

"It's—it's something to do," she said. "It'll kill me, but I can do it! And then I'll go on alone. Other girls have—they've worked it out!"

"Dina," said her mother appearing in the doorway, "there isn't one single thing in the house for lunch. Hello, Tom;, where'd you come from? Say, you two look like you'd been quarreling."

"Dina and I don't quarrel," Tom said, standing up. "Nothing in the house for lunch, hey? We'll go ver to the dairy and we'll get eggs or something."

Dina returned to find their mother mixing quick biscuits. For 20 years these had pieced the meals Ethel Cashman whipped together for her children, and she made them expertly and well.

"Tom coming back?" she asked.

"He can't. He's starting for Westwood right away. But he's taken another job; he's going to be in south San Francisco," Dina said, her back to her mother.

"Fevvens sakes," Ethel murmured, not to deeply interested. "When's he come down?"

"Thursday." He had reminded her of this in parting. He had said that she must make her plans to leave at once for the East. If Vere positively was at Yale, then she must go to New Haven; Tom would find out all the necessary details about transportation and be ready to buy her ticket. Dina must meanwhile telephone Vere's family and find out his address.

Her soul was shrinking within her at the prospect. "If I had a hundred dollars," Dina thought, "I'd simply get on a bus and go somewhere. I'd disappear."

"Suppose I took it from Tom? But he'd never give it to me. He'll buy my ticket and put me on the train and wire Vere that I'm coming. He's ready to kill Vere, and he'll never like me — he'll never respect me again.

A sudden gleam had shot across her thoughts. Something had remided her of Vere's mention of an uncle. The uncle who was not married, who was going to leave his property to Vere.

Wouldn't such an uncle be interested enough, be generous enough, to tell her now what would be the wisest thing for her to do? What had Vere said the name was? Robert. Roger. Rogers. That was it! Rogers Holland. But now, how to find him!

"Is Mr. Holland in? Miss Cashman. By—by appointment."

Dina rather faltered the last words. For the butler was a dark and formidable creature, and the atmosphere of the house itself was enough to daunt the stoutest heart.

Mr. Holland was in his library, seated at a large flat-top desk. Dina, for no reason whatsoever, had expected to see a spare, scholarly old man. Instead she found herself in the presence of a person not more than 38 or 40 years of age, a fat, eyeglassed, smiling man with thinning fair hair, who gave the impression of rolling in his chair.

He had been working at a stamp collection; stamps, pale pink, faint green, orange, were segregated in little groups all about him.

"A spider and an owl and a frog!" Dina thought.

He half rose from his chair as she appeared, sank back.

"You'd like to do secretarial work and you've had no experience but you could learn?" he asked.

"No. No," she said, sitting down opposite him. "I don't think, when I telephoned that I said anything like that."

"What did you say? Hinz — that's the old feller who let you in—gave me the message. Who told you I wanted a secretary, anyway? Ever see a stamp collection before? Anyone who wanted to help me would have to know something about stamps. See that feller? Two hundred in the world like him, no more. That little bit of paper's worth ten thousand smacks."

"I'd no idea that any one stamp was worth ten thousand dollars." Dina said, impressed in spite of herself.

"Man offered a million for a stamp once!" Rogers answered, narrowing his eyes triumphantly as he looked up from his magnifying glass. "Well, well, well," he said, sitting back, "let's have it. What's it all about?"

"It's about Vere," Dina said faintly.

"Vere?" He looked up sharply, taken unawares. "What's Vere been up to? You mean my nephew?"

"He and I were friends," she said, "and then before Christmas he went away, and I don't think he knows—I've had no answer to my letters for more than a month. And I have to find him!"

The inflection on the last phrase told the story. Rogers Holland looked steadily at his caller for a silent minute when Dina had finished speaking and then commented only with a brief "Ha!" But he laid aside his magnifying glass and settled back in his chair with an air of sudden attention.

He asked a few short questions. How long had they known each other? Where was the boy now? Back to Yaye, hey?

"That's his father's doing," he commented. "Van can't wait to get the boy into his New York office, partly to get away from Caroline. You know Caroline, my brother Van's wife?"

"No, I don't know who she is."

"Vere's mother; she's my sister-in-law, or was, when they were together. Proudest woman God ever made, just as his father is the proudest man. Caroline is cold as stone, moves over everybody and everything. What does she think of all this?"

"She doesn't know," Dina said, beginning to feel cold and frightened.

"Oh, she doesn't know? I can't see Caroline feeling exactly pleased when she does," the man said with his sinister smile, speaking as if thinking aloud. "And you want—what? Is the proposition that you marry the boy? That will be a pretty stiff pill for Caroline to swallow. However," he ended dryly, "I can bear that."

"I've written Vere; I had to!" Dina said. "I feel—oh, terribly about it, but what can I do?"

"And he answered?"

"He hasn't answered at all! I don't even know that he had my letter. The last was from Palm Springs—he was there at Christmas-time with his mother —and he just talked about the hotel and the tennis and said he was going back to Yale."

"What makes you think that he will fall in with this arrangement?"

"What—what else can I think?"

"It's not going to help him much with his father, you know."

"I suppose not." She felt miserably silent. "I thought," she presently began again, "that I'd go away—go off somewhere — earn my own living—if I just had enough money to start with."

"I might loan you money enough to go on and join him," Rogers said with a twisted smile. "I'd like to be there when you meet Caroline I suppose she's gone on with him?"

"He didn't say." Dina was beginning to be frightened of this smiling fat man.

"Suppose," Rogers said, "you give him time to answer you. Then, if you don't hear in a week or two, come back here again. If your story is true, it would give me a certain satisfaction," he added, drawing out the words slowly, as if they gave him satisfaction too. "To have a hand in separating Caroline and her ewe lamb.

"She's spoiled him; she's given him his way ever since he was born. To have him faced with one of those little realities that life is continually handing us, Miss—" He looked down at her name scribbled on a pad of paper before him. "Miss Cashman," he went on, "would help to settle an old score. I have always despised her," he added on a hard note.

Probe Reports Of un-American Activities

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST

Washington, March 20—(AP)—A second Congressional committee has turned its searchlight on the State Department of the United States.

Members of the House of Representatives Committee on un-American activities disclosed Tuesday that for the last two months they have been investigating reports that "persons of un-American tendencies are holding high position in the State Department."

Their inquiry, they said, does not overlap a current inquiry into State Department intelligence operations, being made by the House Military Committee.

The committee also will ask the State Department for a report on how it will select an estimated 200 United States employees to be attached to the United Nations Organization.

Whether there is any connection between the committee's State Department inquiry and its current investigation of reports that foreign spies are seeking to obtain atomic bomb secrets, Rep. Mundt would not say.

But he disclosed without elaboration that committee investigators have come upon "a hot trail" in the atomic bomb inquiry and said they are co-operating with the Federal Bureau of Investigation and with United States Army and Navy intelligence officers.

HOCKEY # 20 . . . SHOOTING POWER SWEEP IT
Few players shoot really hard. Here's how you can. First, sweep puck from well behind you. Don't use short flick of stick. Do use a long sweep for real power!
BODY LEAN
Shoot when puck reaches your side. Keep upper body down. Lean weight on stick. Don't pull away or let puck go out in front before shooting it!
FOLLOW-THROUGH
Shoot with hard snap of wrists. Let stick follow after puck. Don't stop it abruptly. Height of stick in "follow through" controls height of shot.

Trenton Fliers Play in Oshawa Saturday Aft.

Trenton R.C.A.F. "Fliers" and Bobcaygeon "Kinsmen" will hook up in the third and deciding game of their O.H.A. Intermediate "B" playoff series in Oshawa on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The airmen edged the Kinsmen 4-3 in the first game at Lindsay early last week but Bobcaygeon unleashed a powerful scoring attack in Oshawa Friday night to drub the Fliers 10-4.

The Trenton outfit are still smarting over the defeat in Oshawa and will be out to give the 'Caygeon aggregation a taste of their own medicine Saturday afternoon and so advance into the third round of the playdowns.

The "Fliers" just couldn't seem to get going Friday night and, on the other hand, the "Kinsmen" were flying and could do nothing wrong. If Trenton are up to their usual style of play, the game on Saturday will be a real thriller.

POLICE BLOTTER

Additional signs that Spring is really in the air were seen as result of reports reaching the police station over night complaining of windows being broken in two different sections of the city by stone throwers. Officials at Holloway Street United Church complained of windows being broken as did a resident in the St. Charles Street district. Young boys with a stone throwing urge were blamed for breaking the windows.

Pilfering of milk bottles in the Cedar and Everett Street districts was reported, while a North Front Street resident complained of articles of women's wearing apparel missing from her clothes line shortly after the supper hour on Tuesday.

Waylaid by Three Armed Men And Robbed of $70

Toronto, March 20 — (CP) — Sam Wells, 33, was waylaid by three armed men in front of his home as he returned from his club in the pre-dawn hours today, beaten about the head and face with a blunt instrument, and robbed of $70.

Wells said he was walking towards entrance of his apartment building when a youth with a sawed-off shotgun stepped from behind a wall and said: "Let's have it, Sam. Give it up quick or I'll let you have it."

Wells said he handed over $70, then demanded some of the money back. The gunman pulled the trigger but the hammer only clicked and Wells, realizing the gun was not loaded, closed with the man. In the ensuing wrestle, two other men appeared, Wells said, and one slugged him over the head. Then all three fled.

REVOLUTIONARY HEALTH PLAN FOR BRITAIN

Puts Free Medical Skill Within Reach of Everyone

Hospitals Placed Under State Control by New Bill

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 21. (CP Cable)—Health Minister Aneurin Bevan today revealed in a government White Paper details of a National Health Service Bill which is designed to:

1. Put free medical skill within the reach of all;
2. Bring hospitals under State control;
3. Make illegal sales of medical centres from which doctors work;
4. Grant free spectacles, drugs and ambulances to the 40,000,000 people of England and Wales.

Regarded as one of the most revolutionary and comprehensive measures of social legislation ever laid before any British Parliament, the Bill was presented for First Reading in the House of Commons, Tuesday. It came up for the all important Second Reading today and strong opposition to its passage is expected from the Conservative Party.

The additional cost to the Exchequer will be £95,000,000 ($422,750,000) annually and it is hoped the plan will be in operation within two years.

Mr. Bevan side-stepped the suggestion that doctors should be forced to work in areas now without sufficient medical services and the legislation, as it now stands, will seek to supply unpopular regions by paying more to physicians working in them. Doctors can enter the public service wholly or on a part time basis or they can remain outside of it. The new legislation gives local authorities the duty of providing medical services in contrast to present legislation which is largely permissive.

No Charges to Patient

There will be no charges to the patient in a few special cases. The free choice by patients of doctors and by doctors of patients will continue.

The most revolutionary change proposed in the bill, which already has been given first reading, is the section dealing with the transfer of premises and equipment of all hospitals, both those maintained by voluntary contributions and those provided by local authorities, to the health minister. Only exceptions are a few cases such as teaching hospitals where Mr. Bevan considers the transfer unnecessary.

The hospitals taken over will be entrusted to regional hospital boards of which there will be 16 to 20 in England and Wales. A separate health measure covering Scotland will be introduced later.

Endowments of voluntary hospitals will not be transferred to the minister but will go to a fund to be used for the hospitals, regional boards in collaboration with the teaching hospitals. The teaching hospitals will plan co-ordinated hospital and specialist services for the various regions.

Single bedrooms or small wards in hospitals may be made available at extra charge to patients seeking greater privacy. Patients needing such accommodation on medical grounds will be given it without payment.

Health centres will be publicly equipped and will have the services of specialists.

Can Choose Doctors.

The centres will operate in association with practioners and will own surgeries offering specialist services and serving as a base for health services. Individuals will choose their doctor from among those joining the service and it is anticipated this often will be their present doctor.

A doctor may treat for private fees any person who does not wish to take the benefits of the public health service and the physician may have his surgery either at the health centre or in a private establishment. Drugs, medicines or appliances will be supplied free on doctors' prescriptions by any pharmacist who joins the service or any medical centre where dispensing services are provided.

Dental service will be provided but a shortage of dentists makes general service for all unlikely in clinics for some time. Outside of the centres patients may go to dentists participating in the scheme to have their work done and the dentist can claim payment from public funds. Dentists in the centres will be on a whole or partial salary basis.

Sight testing and provision for spectacles will be free. All types of hospital treatment will be provided, specialists, without cost to the patient, will deal with all cases where they are needed. For expectant and nursing mothers and for children under five there will be medical care plus dietary supplements such as cod liver oil and fruit juices. The payment for the latter will be made on the basis of ability to pay.

Mid-wife Service

There will be a complete mid-wife service for mothers having babies at home and domestic help will be provided in a home where it is needed on the grounds of ill-health or other reasons.

Free vaccination and diphtheria immunization will be provided for all desiring them but compulsory vaccination, first introduced in 1853, will be abolished.

After the scheme has been started, doctors who wish to join the service or to practise in the new area will need the consent of a medical practices committee which will regulate the succession to old practices and may refuse its consent to changes if there are enough public service doctors in the locality.

Doctors with practices who join the service will be compensated with money payable on their death or retirement and in the meantime a yearly interest will be paid.

The opposition in the House of Commons likely will argue that although doctors are not specifically directed to areas where they are unwilling to go, they still will have to do so because the comittees can refuse them practices in other sections.

Other difficulties are likely to develop from religious and other groups which now have hospitals for their own followers and from voluntary hospitals whose funds are estimated at more than £30,000,000. The latter probably will raise vigorous questions on the disposal of these moneys.

RECONVERSION; FOREIGN POLICY MAIN DISCUSSION

Howe Predicts Very Considerable Volume Of Employment In Immediate Future

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, March 21 (CP) —The Commons yesterday heard an optimistic government review of Canada's industrial expansion and an opposition pep-talk on future foreign policy.

The summary of Canada's industrial capacity was given by Reconstruction Minister Howe, who said he never had been more optimistic about employment and reconversion and predicted there soon would be a "very considerable volume" of employment.

The foreign policy discussion came from Gordon Graydon (PC-Peel), member of Canadian delegations to three world conferences, who called upon Canada to base her foreign policy on the fact she was a member of the British Commonwealth.

Both spoke during continued debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne. Other speakers included J. W. Burton (CCF-Humboldt), Elie Bertrand (L-Prescott) and Liguori Lacombe (Ind-Laval-Two Mountains).

Before the debate was resumed, Trade Minister MacKinnon announced the government will continue for another crop year to pay $1.25 a bushel for No. 1 northern wheat in store at Fort William-Port Arthur or Vancouver and said there would be no over-all reduction on wheat deliveries in 1946-47.

He also announced that payments on participation certificates for the 1943-44 wheat crop will begin in June, with the 1944-45 barley equalization payments being made in May. Both payments apply to Prairie Province grain growers.

Fund to Start in May

Payments on the 1944-45 Ontario wheat equalization fund will start in May.

Mr. MacKinnon said further announcements will be made on the prices to be paid for oats barley, flaxseed, rapeseed and sunflower seed in the western provinces and for winter wheat grown in Ontario and marketed in 1946-47. Discussions are continuing on these other lines in the 1946-47 grain program.

In the Senate, Senator John T. Haig, Progressive Conservative leader, praised the government's actions in the espionage investigation during a Throne Speech address which generally was critical of government policies.

Vernal Equinox Finds Much of Canada Basking in Unusually Mild Weather

By The Canadian Press

As the sun made its semi-annual crossing of the celestial equator and officially ushered in Spring to the northern hemisphere, Canadians this morning stepped out into another day of sunshine and mild weather that brought reality to the usually-matter-of-form observance of the Vernal Equinox.

The Vernal Equinox—that's spring—arrived at 12:33 a.m. E. S. T. today, but the weatherman was not particularly surprised.

As far back as he can remember, he said, spring has been beginning when the sun's centre crossed the equator. Astronomically speaking, he added, day and night throughout the globe now are precisely 12 hours.

Early Eastern Canada reports followed the pattern of the preceding week with above-average temperatures and sunny weather. Most points reported extremely light snowfalls for the month compared with the average and in Ottawa, the old adage of dust on St. Patrick's Day indicating an early spring became a reality as the city street flushing equipment went to work earlier in the week.

In the Maritimes, usually still in the grip of blustery, Atlantic weather, the temperatures have been above average with little snow. Sap has been running in the maple sugar districts and farmers report seeing geese and ducks winging northward in their earliest flights for many years.

In New Brunswick a venturesome butterfly was sighted and the early thaw caused creeks to overflow, flooding homes on low ground in the Moncton district.

Montrealers saw a profusion of pre-scheduled wild life with butterflies, red winged blackbirds, robins and other birds. First golfers went out to the links and skipping ropes, tops and other sidewalk toys were in evidence. The St. Lawrence icebreaker was hard at work opening the last section of the river channel below the city.

In Ontario it was much the same story but fruit farmers anxiously hoped that temperatures would not go so high as to draw out fruit blossoms ahead of time. Last year they came out prematurely and later frosty weather caused severe damage to Niagara peninsula crops.

Even in the mountainous interior of British Columbia the weather has been warmer than usual with the temperature in the 30's during daylight hours. Monday Vancouver and Victoria entered a 48-hour stretch of clear sunny weather but in the northern coast sections it has been raining daily for almost a week.

U.S. 'War Cabinet' Discussed, Rejected U.S. Attack on Japs 9 Days Before Pearl Harbor

—STIMSON

By WILLIAM T. PEACOCK

Washington, March 21 (AP)—Henry L. Stimson, former Secretary of War, has disclosed President Roosevelt's "war cabinet" discussed and rejected nine days before the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor an American attack on Japanese forces "without further warning."

Mr. Stimson recounted this in a statement sent to the Senate-House Committee investigating the surprise blow of Dec. 7, 1941. The committee made it public today.

Mr. Stimson related that on the morning of Nov. 28, 1941, he received information of Japanese movements along the Asiatic coast. They were of such a "formidable character" that he went to the White House.

The Stimson story continued: "(President Roosevelt) suggested that there were three alternatives, as my notes show; first, to do nothing; second, to make something in the nature of an ultimatum, stating a point beyond which he would fight; or, third, to fight at once.

"I said that I felt that to do nothing was out of the question and the president agreed with me. As to the other two alternatives, the desirable thing to do from the point of view of our own tactics and safety was to take the initiative and attack without further warning. It is axiomatic that the best defence is offence. It is always dangerous to wait and let the enemy make the first move.

"I was inclined to feel that the warning given in August by the President against further moves by the Japanese toward Thailand justified an attack without further warning, particularly as their new movement southward indicated that they were about to violate that warning.

"On the other hand, I realized that the situation could be made more clean-cut from the point of view of public opinion if a further warning were given."

At noon the same day, Mr. Stimson said, the so-called "war cabinet" met. This meeting discussed the possible meaning of the Japanese move — possibly an attack on the Philippines, on Thailand, the Dutch East Indies, Singapore, or Rangoon. The possibility of an attack on Pearl Harbor was not discussed," he said.

All agreed the Japanese expedition must not be allowed to land in the Gulf of Siam, "that if the Japanese got into the Isthmus of Kra, the British would fight; and, if the British fought, we would have to fight.

M'ARTHUR DECREES FIRING-SQUAD DEATH FOR HOMMA

Date and Details of Execution Will be Determined in Manila

By RUSSELL BRINES

Tokyo March 21. (AP)—Gen. MacArthur today decreed a firing-squad death for Lt.-Gen. Masaharu Homma, his victorious foe in the 1942 battle for Bataan, and disagreed sharply with two United States Supreme Court Justice dissenters—one of whom had termed the sentence vengeance rather than justice.

Date and details of the execution, which now could be stayed only by President Truman, will be determined in Manila.

Affirming the Manila court martial conviction of Homma, who ordered the Bataan death march that cost 17,200 lives, Gen. MacArthur asserted:

"If this defendant does not deserve his judicial fate, none in jurisdictional history ever did."

Before announcing his decision, Gen .MacArthur studied opinions expressed by Supreme Court Justices Murphy and Rutledge, who dissented when the court refused to intervene for Homma. Justice Murphy had denounced Homma's trial as a descent "to the level of revengeful blood purges."

Gen. MacArthur declared that the dissenters "either advocate arbitrariness of process above factual realism, or . . .inherently shrink from the stern rigidity of capital punishment."

Wataru Narahashi, chief cabinet secretary, said he and the Japanese people agreed as to the justice of Gen. MacArthur's decision.

"General MacArthur's decision teaches the Japanese a grave and important lesson,' Narahassi said. "The Japanese now know that a commanding general, even if he himself doesn't issue orders, must assume responsibility for illegal acts of his subordinates."

SHARP CLEAVAGE AMONG FIVE BIG POWERS OF UNRRA

Russian - Chinese Effort to Curtail Allocating Powers of Board Seen

Atlantic City, N. J., March 21 (AP)—A sharp cleavage developed today among the big five powers over a Russian-Chinese backed effort to curtail the allocating powers of the combined food board' which controls the flow of food supplied for world consumption by Canada, Britain and the United States.

Opposing the move were the United States, Britain, supported by Canada.

Just where France stood remained temporarily uncertain. Assistant Secretary of State Will Clayton, however, called attention yesterday to Russia's plan to sell wheat to France—"reportedly for United States dollars."

Mr. Clayton said this would mean a probable resurvey of the amount of wheat allocated to France from the amount available for parceling out by the combined food board. Under the board's present schedule, France was to have received 1,800,000 tons from the United States and Canada.

A Chinese delegate told the conference bluntly yesterday he was "full of anger" against the board, saying that some of its allocations "cannot be justified on any grounds." Russia's Nikolai Feonov took a similar position earlier.

The Russian-French wheat transaction described by Mr. Clayton offered a clearcut example of the difficulties involved in the controversy over the powers of the board, which has announced its existence will be continued at least until the end of this year.

At present, U.N.R.R.A. — as the spokesman for countries with lean larders and skimpy purses—must enter its request for aid on their behalf to the combined food board for allocation of supplies from the three member powers.

To the board must come countries such as France—likewise with short food supplies, but with money or exchange in trade to pay for the goods they receive. The board also controls shipments to wartime neutrals.

ALLIES TO PRESS SWITZERLAND FOR GERMAN ASSETS

U.S. Estimates Value Of German Cache In Securities, Gold At $750,000,000

By GRAHAM HOVEY

Washington, March 21 (AP) — Representatives of Britain, the United States and France resume their efforts today to persuade neutral Switzerland to hand over German assets worth hundreds of millions of dollars.

The Allies are eager to get the holdings for two reasons:

To make certain Germany cannot use them to finance future rearmament; and to use them as reparations for countries which paid heavily for their decision to resist Axis aggression.

Germany's cache in Switzerland consists of gold bullion, currency, securities, real estate, mortgages, estates, trusts, interests in corporations, debts and claims, and even goods and merchandise.

From documents captured in Germany, the United States has estimated the total value of about $750,000,000. But the Swiss government, acting at Allied behest, undertook a census of the Nazi nest egg last year and came up with a figure of only $250,000,000.

The Swiss, zealous in their concern for both international and domestic law, have expressed doubts about the "legality" of transferring German assets without compensation for the owners.

Some Swiss officials believe their country ought to take over the German property to satisfy its own claims against Germany first.

The Swiss also are said to fear that any extensive Allied probing for hidden German assets might violate the sovereignty of Switzerland.

They also are reported worried lest the Allies may yet relax their determination to eliminate Germany as a potential aggressor, and that a resurgent Reich might seek revenge.

Sharp Decrease In C.N.R. Net Revenue

Montreal, March 21 (CP) — Canadian National Railways today reported net revenue in February at $1,558,000, a decrease of $1,538,000 when compared with figures for the corresponding month in 1945.

Operating revenues were down $2,374,000 at $28,855,000 and operating expenses were $836,000 lower at $27,297,000.

Aggregate net revenue for the first two months of 1946 at $3,834,000 was down $3,116,000.

Goering Denies Prior Knowledge Of Hitler Order to Shoot 50 Airmen

Nuernberg March 21 (AP) — In the face of relentless questioning by British prosecutors and new documentary evidence, Hermann Goering excitedly reiterated today that he had no prior knowledge of Hitler's order to execute 50 R.A.F. officers including six Canadians for escaping from German prison camp in March, 1944, and had no power to prevent those killings.

Shown affidavits stating that even his subordinate officers in the air ministry were informed of what Prosecutor Sir David Maxwell Fyfe called "this series of foul murders," Goering steadfastly maintained that he was not told about the killings until it was too late.

The Germans, in announcing the execution of the airmen, said they had been shot while attempting to escape. Six Canadians and 44 airmen from other parts of the empire made up the toll of those killed. In all, 77 empire airmen here made the escape attempt. Allied investigators said that contrary to the German claim, the men had been murdered after their recapture.

Even Hitler didn't know approximately what went on because Himmler (head of the Gestapo) always kept these things extremely secret," the leading defendant told the tribunal.

"You mean to say that even when the Kreisleiters (circle leaders) were informed of the concentration camps that you, as second man of the Reich, didn't know?" asked British prosecutor Sir David Maxwell-Fyfe. "Didn't your friend Himmler inform you?"

Goering bristled and answered: "That is true. These things were kept from me. And I object to your designating Himmler as my friend."

Sir David attacked Goering's claim of ignorance by introducing a secret document, an order issued to Kreisleiters of Hesse-Nassau February 10, 1945, directing them to destroy at all costs "installations and records of concentration camps."

The order also directed the shooting or hanging of German civilians who fled before Allied armies and specified that Nazi party members were "to keep back from the front up to the last minute" so they would survive to "form the foundation stone of a greater Germany."

U.S. Openly Bucks Russia in Pressing UNO Showdown

States Throwing Full Weight Behind Demands of Iran

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, March 21 (AP) — President Truman declared today that Monday's scheduled meeting of the United Nations Security Council will not be postponed.

Mr. Truman told his press conference that the United States delegation will press for action on the Iranian case.

Russia has asked for a 16-day delay on the ground she needs time to prepare her answer.

Reminded of the Russian request for a postponement, the President was asked what will happen Monday if Russia insists on her plea.

The President told his questioner he had better attend the meeting and find out.

Mr. Truman again announced that he was not seeking another meeting of the "Big Three" to deal with differences among Russia and other members of the United Nations.

The United Nations organization, he said, is supposed to take over things that formerly were discussed by the Big Three.

A three-power conference was suggested in the Senate yesterday by Senator Claude Pepper (Dem.-Fla.).

Mr. Truman told newspapermen he would be glad to see any or all members of the United Nations Organization at any time. He simply is not asking for a Big Three meeting.

Byrnes to Carry President's Welcome

The President said State Secretary Byrnes will carry to Monday's session in New York his own (Mr. Truman's) address of welcome.

The Russian envoy returned suddenly to Washington last night from New York, where the United Nations Security Council is preparing to convene Monday.

Today's meeting between Mr. Byrnes and M. Gromyko, was their first since the London U. N. O. meeting in January.

It was M. Gromyko who yesterday filed a request with Trygve Lie, U.N.O. Secretary General Lie for a postponement of the Security Council meeting from next Monday to April 10, on grounds that Russia had been surprised by Iran's request for Council condieration of its case against the Soviet Union.

In the light of the Iranian action, M. Gromyko said, he needed time to prepare Russia's side of the dispute.

Moscow asked a 16-day delay, but the best diplomatic opinion here is that the Kremlin will be unable to prevent the case from coming before the Security Council as soon as it convenes in New York next Monday.

Throwing Full Weight

The United States is throwing its full weight behind Iran's demands for an immediate hearing by council. This bears out recently renewed assertions of both President Truman and State Secretary Byrnes that U.N.O. must become a going concern as soon as possible.

The Russian request to set back until April 10 the scheduled Council opening was presented by Ambassador Andrei Gromyko, Soviet member, with the argument that Russia needed more time to prepare its case on Iran.

The sharply divergent Soviet and American views on the critical United Nations test case came out simultaneously yesterday from the office, temporarily in Washington, of Trygve Lie, U.N.O. Secretary General.

Billion and Half Dollar Project Is Launched

Kansas City, March 21 (AP)—The first spadeful of earth will be turned today to launch a $1,500,000,000 post-war project for control of water in the Missouri River basin—and area comprising a sixth of the United States.

The ceremony marks the actual beginning of work under the Pick-Sloan plan, which in its simplest terms is a scheme to keep the water where you want it and keep it away from places you don't want it. Since settlement of the basin, stretching from the Rocky Mountains to the Mississippi, residents in the northwest have not had enough moisture, while those in the southeast have had too much — devastating floods each year.

The honor of turning the first soil goes to Maj. Gen. Lewis A. Pick, who took charge of building the famed 483-mile Ledo Road through the jungles of Burma. Gen. Pick is co-author of the Pick-Sloan Plan.

The plan, in general, provides for the construction of 105 reservoirs n the main stem of the Missouri and its tributaries and a system of levees from Sioux City, Ia., to the mouth of the stream.

The reservoirs, the engineers estimate, will bring about 4,000,000 acres of land under cultivation through irrigation, while the combination of water storage and levee system is expected to protect about the same area from floods.

Rev. L.S. Wight Dies, Spent 42 Years in Ministry

The Rev. Louis Smith Wight, B.A., B.D., retired United Church minister, died early Thursday morning at his home ,183 William Street. He was in failing health for some years.

The late Mr. Wight was in his 77th year and was born near Wooler in Northumberland County, his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. William Wight. Being attracted to the Christian ministry he offered himself for service in the Methodist Church and received his education in preparation for his life's work at Albert College, Queen's University and Victoria University. He received the Bachelor of Arts degree at Queen's University and the degree of Bachelor of Divinity from Victoria University.

For forty-two years Mr. Wight rendered outstanding service to the Methodist Church and later the United Church of Canada. He was popular with the people in his many charges and was eminently successful in his life's work, which commenced with the church at Cavan South. Other charges in which he served were Tyrone, Brighton, Stirling, Edmonton, Cannington, Tweed, Holloway Street Church, Belleville, and Zion Street Church, Kingston. It was twenty years ago that he was minister at Holloway Street Church here and from here he went to Kingston where he retired in 1935 and came to live in Belleville. All his ministry was in the Bay of Quinte Conference, except the time he was in charge of a church in Edmonton, Alberta.

Since his retirement Mr. Wight was always ready and willing to assist in the work of the church in this vicinity and gave valuable leadership in the work of the Dundas Street Mission, Centre Street and Rossmore churches. He attended Bridge Street United Church and held the office of an Elder. He served his church well and his death has brought regret to many friends here and elsewhere by whom he was held in high esteem.

Fraternally he was a member of Florence Nightingale Lodge No. 66 I.O.O.F., Bowmanville.

He was the last of his family and is survived only by his wife, the former Miss Emily Emmons, to whom the sympathy of many friends will be extended in her bereavement.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street, until Saturday noon, then at Bridge Street United Church for service at two o'clock.

Narrow Escape From Drowning At Waupoos Is.

Picton, March 21 — Mr. and Mrs. William Reeks, who reside on Waupoos Island, had a narrow escape from drowning this week, when both plunged into the icy waters. They were finally rescued by three young men, after both had failed to rescue each other.

Mr. and Mrs. Reeks were crossing from the Waupoos mainland to the Island where they reside. Mr. Reeks was drawing a sled loaded with grain. This added weight was too much for the ice which had been weakened by warm weather and currents. Mr. Reeks plunged through the ice. Mrs. Reeks attempted to help him extricate himself by taking off her coat and giving him one end of it. As she began to pull him out, she also went into the water. Mr. Reeks finally reached safe ice but as he was attempting to rescue his wife, broke through again. It was a difficult task to get out as the ice kept breaking away as they tried to crawl out. Fortunately, both are good swimmers and were able to keep on the surface of the water which is fourteen feet deep at that point.

Their plight had been noticed by William and Ray Ostrander and Ralph McKenzie, on the mainland. The young men rushed to the aid of the couple, carrying a long plank. This was extended across the ice to the hole, and Mr. and Mrs. Reeks were able to crawl to safety. They suffered no ill effects from their 20 minute immersion in the frigid waters of the bay.

Kinsmen Club Given Free Use Of Fair Grounds

Picton, March 21 — At County Council yesterday there was an extended discussion concerning the fair grounds. This concerned rental of the grounds which the county owns. The Kinsmen Club was represented by a delegation which asked free use of the grounds for one or two race meets this year, as part of a district circuit. Though some members protested that it was unfair to give the grounds free to one organization and to charge Picton Fair Board, it was passed that free use of the grounds be given. Proceeds will be for the Kinsmen's cancer project.

It was decided that sports organizations might have the use of the ball diamond there free of charge.

The Fair Board asked that the charge for the grounds on fair days be reduced. They had paid $450 to the county for rental last year, and had also paid other costs in connection with the welcome home for servicemen. They planned to invite Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment here for a reunion on fair days this year.

Finally the motion was passed that all Fair Board receipts be exempt up to $500 and then the charge be ten percent up to the next $1,500 and 25 percent on the balance.

$5,100 Grant to Health Unit.

The Prince Edward Health Unit, now being organized, was granted $5,100. The sum of $1,000 is to be paid immediately and the balance as requested by the Board of Health.

The township of Ameliasburg was granted $300 for maintenance of Huff's Island bridge and approaches.

A motion was passed expressing appreciation to Mrs. C. H. McGibbon, president of the County Red Cross, for her work. Under her guidance, the county unit had a record second to none in the Dominion, said Reeve Cleave.

A grant of $500 was made toward the purchase of a new steel scow to be used between the Waupoos mainland and Waupoos Island.

Today, County Council will conclude its session with a discussion on roads. To be presented is the report of the committee which investigated charges of laxity of administration made by J. H. Cleminson of Wellington. It is understood that these charges were proven without foundation. Committee made several recommendations for future use by road committee.

Charles Carter, Ivanhoe, Observes 91st Birthday

Ivanhoe, March 21 — Mr. Charles Carter, Ivanhoe's oldest resident and son of the late Thomas Carter and Hannah Short, on Wednesday, March 20th, quietly celebrated his 91st birthday at the home of his youngest sister, Mrs. Joseph Rollins. Out of a family of four girls and five boys, two girls and two boys remain. They are Mrs. Robert McGregor, Fort William; Mrs. Joseph Rollins, Ivanhoe; Henry Carter, Foxboro; and Charles Carter, Ivanhoe. Their average age is now over eighty-two years.

Mr. Carter was born at Halloway and spent the earlier years of his life in the lumbering business with his father, an employee of Thomas Wallbridge, representative of the Rathburn Lumber Company, at Halloway and Downey's Rapids. When a mature young man he went to the United States and during the next fifty years lived in seventeen states of the union. He was several years with the Standard Oil Company at Groto, South Dakota, thirty-three years at Potlatch, Idaho, and was living in Hinkley, Minnesota at the time of the big fire which took hundreds of lives. 455 bodies were buried in one cemetery as a result of the tragedy. Mr. Carter narrowly escaped death by holding on to a raft in the water and continually wetting his face with a piece of rag until the fury of the blaze and smoke passed over where he was.

Attended Four World Fairs

Mr. Carter attended four World Fairs, Chicago, in 1894; St. Louis, Buffalo and Yukon Exhibition in Seattle, Washington. Mr. Carter was in Buffalo attending the Pan-American Exposition when President McKinley was assassinated and was among those who viewed the President's remains when they lay in state.

Mr. Carter is enjoying good health for his age. He goes out around when the weather is good. His eyesight is not good and he is unable to read but little, but is an ardent listener to the radio and takes a deep interest in the daily news and matters of current importance.

Members of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Men's Club officially welcomed home approximately 75 veterans of World War II at a special dinner meeting held in the church Sunday School rooms on Wednesday evening when they played hosts to returned members of the congregation.

A splendid turnout of club members was on hand to take a hand in the official "welcome home" to the veterans with the Sunday School room being well filled for the occasion. A varied program of musical entertainment featuring James Bankier as guest solo artist, together with a touch of humour and an aspect of seriousness on the part of the guest speaker, Mr. Arthur Duncan of Batawa, was thoroughly enjoyed. Phil Huddleston acted as piano accompanist, while J. Arnold Thomson favored with a Scotch vocal number, the audience heartily joining in the chorus.

In the absence of the club president, Mr. Charles Brown, who is indisposed through illness, Mr. Fred Reid acted as chairman for the evening. Harry Stock introduced the guest speaker, while club appreciation was expressed by "Vic" Lancaster. Arthur Hill graciously thanked the visiting artists and also members of the Ladies' Guild who catered to the bountiful supper enjoyed by club members and guests.

First Day of Spring

In a perfect setting, with brilliant sunshine and zephyry breezes, Spring was officially ushered in to a Winter weary world a few minutes after midnight Wednesday.

From a weather point of view, the lady with the diaphanous garments who allegorically represents the vernal season, arrived here some time ago. The March lamb thus far has twisted the lion's tail and sent him into hiding—but that doesn't mean that Leo is licked.

Residents will recall that same atmospheric conditions existed a year ago, with perfect weather apparent in March. It was so Springlike that several farmers completed seeding before the first day of April. But, it is also recalled that the March Lion roared back into the picture and remained as late as May, when an unexpected frost laid waste to plant and other Spring crops.

With this in mind, rural residents are keeping their figurative fingers crossed and hoping that the present ideal weather will remain.

U.S. OPENLY

A check of diplomatic officials showed that when M. Gomyko mailed his letter Tuesday night and when a letter from the American representative, Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., was represented to M. Lie about noon yesterday neither the Soviet nor United States governments knew what the other was doing.

Highly placed officials and aides on M. Lie's staff said it would take unanimous agreement of the 11 Security Council members to obtain a postponement of the March 25 opening. That would mean the United States would have to concur, and it was said that the United States has no intention of concurring.

The argument as it is developing is that in a case of this sort, where Russian troops are spreading over Iranian territory and the situation is full of explosive possibilities, the country which considers itself aggrieved has a right to the quickest remedies at the council's disposal: In this case a full hearing involved not only the prestige of the council but also the power of public opinion.

New York, March 21 —(AP)— Russia's request that the opening of the United Nation's security council be delayed from Monday to April 10 drew rebuffs today from representatives of three of the 11 powers comprising the body.

Dr. Quo Tai-Chi, Chinese delegate, who will preside over the sessions this month, declared he was ready to convene the session and present Russia's postponement request at the opening meeting at Hunter College.

Lt.-Col. W. R. Hodgson, Australian delegate, said "any country which wants this postponement means it wants to negotiate behind the scenes, which is the equivalent of power politics. Why should we have another postponement for people to negotiate behind the scenes."

"We expect to meet on Monday as planned."

By JOSEPH C. GOODWIN

Tehran, March 21 —(AP)— Iran's 19-year-olds were summoned to the colors today in the wake of reports that three Iranian army garrisons were under attack by Kurdish tribesmen in the isolated region near the border of Iraq.

At the same time, leaders of Iran's Leftist Tudeh party were called into private session and Rightist elements expressed belief the Tudeh party might lead Leftist demonstrations against the government because of its appeal to the United Nations security council against continued presence of Russian troops in Iran.

(In Baghdad, a former Iraq diplomat declared Tuesday upon returning from Tehran that the Tudeh party could stage a coup d'etat at any time. He added: "The great fear in Iran today is that if the Iranians officially announce that they will take the matter to the U.N.O., then the Communists will be given the word to strike.")

Rightist Deputy Said Zia Ed-Din, described by political writers as anti-Russian, and generally known as a leading opponent of Premier Ahmed Qavam was taken into custody yesterday by two men in the uniform of Iranian army colonels.

(Dispatches from Baghdad, Ankara and Cairo during the week have reported uprisings among the Kurds and establishment of "an independent Kurdish state in southern Azerbaijan." Far Eastern experts expressed the belief that Russia might be planning to support the Kurds in their historic demand for an independent state.)

VERNAL EQUINOX

Far to the north, members of Operation Muskox would see the sun showing more above the horizon as the extreme Arctic's six-month day begins. When the sun is below the celestial equator continuous twilight, then darkness, prevails for the other six months.

In more populated areas, spring fever became a minor complaint as office workers longingly gazed out of windows and drew abstractedly on their papers.

With the official announcement of spring out of the way, the weatherman said temperatures were normal, but he said absolutely nothing about the birds and bees, flowers or young men's fancies. He did say it would be a good day for fishing.

The outlook throughout the Dominion was for continued mild weather with no sighting of a return to winter conditions. March it appeared, would go out "like a lamb."

Temperatures have been as much as 10 degrees above normal east of the Rocky Mountains to Quebec this month, and precipitation has been lighter than usual.

Manitoba, except for its northern reaches, welcomed an official spring day that brought bright sunshine. The temperature was 35 at Winnipeg, currently in the throes of feverish junior hockey playoff.

Like a debutante late for her coming-out party, official spring came to Ontario. It had been around for weeks and in some districts new March high temperatures had been set.

Around Toronto, for instance, the average temperature this month had been 41 degrees against a normal 28.

Ontario today basked in summer-like sun that made for heat greater than some summer days in a few districts. Harbingers were croaking frogs, sunbathing groundhogs, butterflies, budding willows—and gardeners.

Timmins recorded the earliest spring breakup in history and throughout Northern Ontario almost every trace of snow has disappeared. Bush flying was impeded, however, because planes equipped with pontoons and skis could not land on slush-covered, treacherous ice of lakes and streams. Rivers, however, have broken up.

Timmins' temperature yesterday was 64, highest ever recorded for March 20. At Sault Ste. Marie, despite vanished signs of Winter, farmers worried as to the probability of an April cold wave.

Spring came to Sudbury March 12 and amid robins and butterflies crocuses bloomed on a front lawn March 14—an all-time record for Spring-flower blooming here.

In Sarnia district of Western Ontario the St. Clair River was ice free and outfitting of lake steamships which Wintered here was proceeding.

With the Ontario temperature today ranging from 40 to 60 degrees amid early budding of trees and planting of gardens, there was still worry, among fruit farmers especially, that it was a "false Spring." Fruit growers said a brisk cold spell now would result in a similar fruit shortage as that experienced last year through destruction of buds.

At Hamilton city park employees began the annual spring cleaning task. Opening of the harbor on Lake Ontario is expected within the next two weeks.

The fair weather held on the prairies, too. For instance, seeding of wheat has started in southern Alberta. The temperature around Lethbridge and Edmonton early today was 33 under a bright sun. Some Albertans planted flowers and vegetables.

2ND SET TRIPLET CALVES

Napanee, March 21 (CP)—Holstein cow in a herd owned by Bidwell Kimmett, Napanee district farmer, has given birth to triplet calves. A few days ago triplets were born to another cow in the same herd.

CRITICS SNIPE AT DREW BUDGET IN LEGISLATURE

$2,000 Sessional Indemnity Paid Members Classified as Expense Account and Made Free From Income Tax

Toronto, March 21 (CP)—With H. C. Nixon (L-Brant) as opposition financial critic, Ontario's 22nd Legislature today opened debate on the third budget address of Provincial Treasurer Frost, who forecast a $21,065,694 deficit for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1947.

But Mr. Frost pledged, as he introduced the budget in the legislature yesterday, that the deficit—based on record estimated gross ordinary expenditures of $149,436,605 and revenue of $128,370,911—will be overtaken from increased ordinary revenue after the Dominion-Provincial Conference.

No new taxes were proposed in the 16,000-word budget address, which Mr. Frost presented in one hour and 35 minutes after first reading was given government bills to provide free medical examinations for expectant mothers and to classify the $2,000 sessional indemnity paid private members as an expense allowance free from income tax.

The free examinations would be provided by an amendment to the Public Health Act introduced by Health Minister Kelley, who said it was hoped the measure would help check infant and maternal mortality rates. Examinations would be made by qualified practitioners, who would submit a report within 14 days and receive a $5 fee from the Health Department.

Possible Under Amendment

The tax-free payment to private members would be made possible under an amendment to the Legislative Assembly Act introduced by Attorney-General Blackwell, who said the annual allowance would be payable to members at any time. Now they receive $2,000 for every session of 30 days or more, but the amount is subject to income tax. Under the amendment opposition leader Farquhar Oliver, who receives $5,000, would be subject to tax on only $2,000 of the amount.

Instead of the customary adjournment after the budget address, the House remained sitting until after the usual adjournment hour to pass estimates covering payment of $5,800,000 to school boards to apply on their 1946 legislative grants. Twenty government and private bills also moved through various stages, prompting a suggestion from C.C.F. House leader W. J. Grummett that the House was disposing of business in unseemly haste. Premier Drew replied he did not think business was moving too quickly.

Members Clash

Debate between Labor Minister Daley and J. B. Salsberg (Lab.-Prog.-Toronto St. Andrews) indicated that minimum wage legislation—expected to provide one of the features of the sitting—will be introduced outside the House. The discussion arose when Mr. Daley moved an amendment to the Minimum Wage Act, terming the changes "tidying-up" provisions.

Mr. Salsberg asked when the government was going to announce its minimum wage for men, forecast in the Speech from the Throne. A minimum wage for women has been in effect some years.

Mr. Daley replied that the act already makes provision for introduction of a minimum wage for men. It was later explained that the sum likely will be fixed by order-in-council, with no legislation being introduced in the House.

The budget address proposed capital expenditures more than double those of the present fiscal year—$46,415,800 compared with $22,335,600—and promised increased appropriations in virtually all departments. It placed gross debt reduction at $5,693,110 and net debt reduction at $587,648 for the coming fiscal year.

Cologne Citizens Cling to Life Amid Ruins

By WILLIAM BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Cologne, March 21 —(CP)— Cologne today, slightly more than a year after its capture by American troops, is a city of hunger where gaunt civilians cling to life amid the ruins left by Allied air raids.

Although 80 per cent of the city's dwellings were destroyed by bombing, more than 900,000 of Cologne's original 750,000 population remain. Habitable buildings are shared by three or four families — sometimes more. No room is used by less than two persons. Even air raid shelters remain in use.

Despite the large population the streets are virtually deserted. What pedestrians there are appear as refugees and one gets the impression that all those one sees are on the move.

Bread, when it is available on the black market, commands the equivalent of $3.85 for a two pound loaf, butter $33 a pound, German cigarets 44 cents apiece and English cigarets 77 cents each.

While marks are the common means of exchange in the city, barter is resorted to by town-dwellers in their dealings with farmers. Articles of clothing are lugged into the country, to be haggled over in terms of foodstuffs.

The official ration includes one pound of bread a week and a pound of potatoes, when the latter are available, which they have not been lately.

Electricity is available here and the water supply is functioning. There is no gas and citizens are allowed only 200 pounds of coal dust briquettes a month for all domestic purposes.

The play "Aunt Minnie from Minnesota", a 3-act comedy by Wellman's talent and presented in Stirling Theatre on Tuesday night of this week under the auspices of the Hon. J. R. Cooke Chapter of the I.O.D.E. attracted a full house and provided a merry evening for all in attendance.

RUSSIAN ENVOY

Russian Ambassador Andrei A. Gromyko is shown on his arrival at LaGuardia airport, New York, after flying from Montreal. It is presumed that he will attend the forthcoming U.N.O. security council sessions at Hunter College beginning March 25. How Gromyko happened to turn up in Canada has not been explained but apparently he had flown there from Moscow via London.

Pembroke, Ont., March 21—(CP)—Lumbering Tom Gibbons, 46-year-old farmer, today faced death by hanging June 11 for the rifle murder in a deserted lane Feb. 1 of Joseph Fitzmaurice, 33, his neighbor and second cousin.

Joseph Fitzmaurice and his brother, John Edward, 35, were shot by Gibbons in an encounter which occurred on a road leading through the latter's property, the use of which was said by neighbors to have been the cause of a long-standing feud between Gibbons and the brothers.

The towering farmer showed no emotion but stared straight ahead last night when a Renfrew county assizes jury returned after five hours' deliberation with the verdict of guilty.

The long deliberation followed a plea by defence counsel T. M. J. Galligan for acquittal on grounds of insanity, and during its deliberations the jury twice returned to the court to ask Mr. Justice J. C. McRuer the law regarding insanity.

The verdict concerned only the case of Joseph Fitzmaurice. Although charges of murder had been laid in connection with the slaying of both brothers, the cases were treated separately. Defence admitted the shooting of both on the snow-covered lane which had been in dispute.

The trial, which began Monday, heard evidence from eight witnesses, including two psychiatrists. Dr. Charles A. Tennant testified that he believed Gibbons was sane at the time of the shooting while Dr. Arthur Doyle of Toronto said the farmer suffered from "delusions."

Dr. Doyle said Gibbons believed the Fitzmaurice brothers were part of a conspiracy to destroy the community. He had seen a vision of a tent and a mysteriously protruding hand, and he believed he was the instrument God had chosen to stop the conspiracy.

Cost Accountants Hear W.S. Stone On Income Tax

The regular monthly meeting of the Society of Industrial and Cost Accountants of Ontario, Bay of Quinte Chapter, was held on Tuesday evening at the Bar-B-Q dining hall. Mark Vanner as song leader and Ray Lennox, pianist, very ably took care of the sing-song. The necessary business was handled by chairman Les Lennox in record time. Carl Casey reviewed current events in his usual capable manner in which he brought out many interesting facts and his monthly report is greatly appreciated.

W. S. (Bob) Stone, a member of the Society was introduced by past chairman Ray Lennox. From the introduction it was learned that Bob came to Belleville one year ago to open office in the public accounting field. The speaker dealt with the many problems concerning Income and Excess Profits Tax. It was clearly indicated that the Income Tax Act was due for revision as the present Act was incorporated by parliament in 1917 with amendments added year by year. The amendments completely overshadow the original Act and consequently a simplification of the Act at this time would be most welcome.

Mr. Stone touched on the Excess Profits Tax Act and gave a brief summary of the recent amendment. From 1939 to 1945 Mr. Stone was associated with the Income Tax Division, Dept. of National Revenue at Ottawa and during the war served on the Federal Board of Referees.

The thanks and appreciation of the Chapter were expressed by Harold Kellar. A short discussion period followed and again Mr. Stone proved his ability by answering a number of questions.

It was announced by Chairman Les. Lennox that the April meeting would be addressed by Mr. Alec. Howie, President of the Ontario Association and an outstanding speaker.

An invitation was received from the Kingston Chapter for a representation from Belleville to attend their 1st regular meeting Thursday, March 21st. Mr. George Brooks, C. A. of the Belleville Chapter will be the guest speaker.

WOMAN SPY CAPTURED

Berlin, March 21 (AP) — The United States military government office here announced yesterday that a woman it identified as "Axis Sally" had been captured by a United States Counter Intelligence Corps agent in Berlin. The military government statement said the woman is 37-year-old Mildred E. Gillars, a native of Portland, Me., who got the name of "Axis Sally" through her Berlin radio broadcasts to American troops in North Africa and later in Europe.

Kiwanians Hear Address on Wills At Luncheon

Members of the Kiwanis Club heard an interesting and concise report on wills and their import to taxes at their weekly luncheon on Tuesday at the Quinte Hotel by J. W. McClelland, field manager for Toronto General Trust Company. Mr. McClelland has spent many years in the general insurance and trust field and gave the members an insight as to how to draw a proper will so that those benefiting from same could receive their money and property in record time without it being tied up in the courts for months and sometimes years.

Meeting at Kingston

It was announced by Leo Dandeno, inter-club chairman that a goodwill meeting will be held in Kingston on April 22nd with clubs from Brockville, Belleville, Kingston and Watertown, N.Y., being represented. Belleville will send down a large delegation to this meeting. The quarterly party will be held at Kiwanis Centre on April 1st due to the Centre being used by the show on the night first set. A report of the directors' meeting was read by Jack White and it was stated that the attendance rules will be strictly enforced in future. It was also announced that an important meeting will be held at the Centre on Sunday when discussion will take place as to what use the Kiwanis Centre will be put to in the years of peace. Mark Vanner and Jack White were named as delegates to the International convention at Atlantic City with Ted Schwab and Archie Harris as alternate delegates.

Silly to Evade Taxes

Mr. McClelland, who was introduced by Jack Trudeau with Kiwanis appreciation being given by Ormonde Butler, stated that it was silly to evade paying income tax but it was not silly to try to avoid them and this can be done by making a good will. He stated that the testator should put in his will that the executor should have power to hold, power to invest, power to deal in stocks and real estate, bequests should be fully set out and children should not be named. The speaker stated that a guardian should be named for children if the mother is dead and that careful study should be given to the way gifts are made.

The Coming Growing Season

Lawns nave been subject of attention of their owners earlier this year than in many years. The early disappearance of the snow and the lack of rain recently have made possible the appearance of man on the green grass of his lawn and out into the rear portion of his lot where he may have some land that he used to cultivate or even yet plans to cultivate.

The present year is a golden opportunity for those who like to garden to get busy early with their plans for 1946. All the food that can be grown will not be too much. The garden plot can, when multiplied many times, make a considerable contribution to the effort to save more food for the peoples of Europe. He who eats vegetables out of his own garden won't have to buy so many vegetables and thereby will leave vegetables for others. And then he and others too can eat more vegetables and save bread, which saves wheat which can be exported. Whatever way he looks at the question it will be helping the world cause of providing food.

There is another angle to be remembered. There is a shortage of farm help, so the man who helps himself on a small lot or plot of land to help furnish food for his own family's table helps to relieve the strain on the farmer and his help.

The garden which in wartime was called the "Victory Garden" can again be effective in helping a great undertaking. Besides it puts the individual who might not be producing food into the producer class and the class that helps the specific call of this time. That will be a satisfaction.

There may be the need again for city and town folk to make their contribution to the world cause as so many did in the war years by giving time to help in the harvest. Many will be glad to do so, giving of their leisure for this cause of humanity.

The Canadian housewife has in the most difficult times proven her ability to "manage." She knows how to handle food with the greatest advantage.

Canadian homes which have enjoyed plenty in the dire times of the years of struggle will help the Dominion's plan for contributing to the feeding of the nations. It means grow more and eat less. Ever so little by the individual will help ever so much for the teeming millions who face the world's greatest food shortage.

Britons and Rations

Britons will have reason to remember the clothes ration system. It is now beginning to improve. Recently it was announced that there would be a temporary cut from eighteen to twelve in the number of coupons to buy a woman's coat. Last month it was announced that in the period from May 1st to September 1st, individuals would be allowed a total of fourteen points for clothing instead of the twelve for each of the two preceding four-month periods.

This means that in May it will be possible for a woman to buy a coat besides a pair of stockings with the ration points allowed her to September 1st. During the preceding twelvemonth period she would not have been able to buy a coat at all unless she had saved up her coupons or borrowed from her family.

Still almost all clothing is strictly rationed in Britain. If the increased allotment continues for twelve months, an individual will be entitled to forty-two coupons a year, which would buy on the basis of the recent change the following:

Man's Item	Coupons
1 suit	26
1 pair socks	2
1 pair shoes	9
1 shirt	5
Woman's Item	Coupons
1 coat	12
1 rayon dress	7
1 pair shoes	7
3 pair stockings	6
1 set underwear	9
4 handkerchiefs	1

Such an allotment might not work great hardship for the first year or two of rationing, if individuals were provided with comfortable wardrobes to begin with. After nearly seven years of restrictions, however, British wardrobes have long since been exhausted.

There is the hope expressed by Sir Stafford Cripps that starting September 1st it might be possible to raise the yearly allocation to 52 coupons, divided into six-month periods.

Viscount Alexander Honored

Field Marshal Viscount Alexander, one of the greatest military leaders of this age, was made a freeman of the City of London this week and was presented with the traditional sword of honor in the very impressive scenes of presentation of the freedom of the city. There he said farewell to arms, in which he has rendered mankind the greatest service in his contribution to the effort to preserve liberty in the world.

It was a great scene as the Irish-born soldier rode in the golden coach through the streets of the ancient city to the Guildhall and was honored in the Guildhall.

Canada takes a deep interest in such post-war events as they herald the field marshal's coming to Canada in April to become the representative of His Majesty in the Dominion.

How Britain Helps

Sir Ben Smith, Britain's Minister of Food, has issued an order that will prohibit the serving of bread in restaurants at main meals except on the specific request of the customer. This contribution to the reduction of Britain's demand on the world's wheat supplies follows an announcement by the Ministry of Agriculture last week that, in view of the acute world food situation, approximately three hundred of the six hundred and fifty wartime airfields in England and Wales have been made available for agricultural use. In addition, the service departments have made available as much surplus land as possible on the airfields still required for flying.

An enquiry is now being conducted into the possibility of returning other airfields to agriculture, while paying due regard to operational commitments. During the war, much of Britain's best agricultural land, for instance, in the wheatlands of East Anglia, had to be given up to airfields. The military and non-industrial occupation of farmland exceeded the amount of land reclaimed or brought into cultivation by six hundred thousand acres. Nevertheless, the net output of British agriculture in the form of calories and proteins was increased by seventy percent.

From Germany come reports of discussions with a view to pooling the agricultural products of the three western zones and increasing inter-zonal trade facilities to secure the adequate distribution of farm machinery and seeds. In the British zone, this year's spring planting plans provide for a considerable increase in bread, grain, potato and green vegetable acreages. Not only will large areas of pasture be ploughed up, but all available land such as parks, lawns, strawberry and flower nurseries, former training grounds and sixty-eight airfields will be turned over to cultivation.

His Greatest Legacy

The 99th anniversary of Thomas Alva Edison's birth is occasion for reminder of the amazing changes this great inventor brought about in the life of the world.

When you turn on an electric light, use a telephone, view a movie, listen to phonograph music, undergo a fluoroscopic examination, read a ticker tape or receive a telegram, you are benefiting from Edison's pioneering labors. In all, he either invented or perfected more than 360 useful devices and was issued more than 1,200 patents in the United States alone.

Yet these towering achievements of a genius, who began his career at the age of 11 on the Grand Trunk Railroad run from Detroit to Port Huron, may not be Edison's greatest legacy. More far-reaching and richer in implication is the inspiration to youth that his remarkable life affords.

In course of time the products of his genius may become obsolete, but the example he set will grow ever brighter.

MARCH 21

From south to north the sun today
Proceeds on its celestial way,
As long ago and all time later,
Crosses, dead centre, the equator.

This day (if watchful) men may mark,
Has equal hours of light and dark,
And heralds, spite of wind and weather,
That bird and bloom draw near together.

This day, by calendars and clocks,
Begins the vernal equinox,
And though by storms it comes attended,
It's springtime now, and winter's ended!

t is not very springlike yet. In fact it looks as though the coal bins will heave to be replenished. The snowstorm on the 19th. was the worst of the season. The Grand Trunk Railway line which has been kept open all winter, was blocked completely between Belleville and Toronto on that day. On the Midland-Madoc Division all trains were cancelled. The country roads are in the worst condition they have been all winter and as a consequence business in town is at a standstill.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

How did "apple-pie order" originate?

This phrase signifies perfect or precise arrangement. A thing done in apple-pie order is neat and tidy.

The origin of the phrase is obscure. Some authorities suppose it to be derived from the manner in which apples are pared, sliced, cored and placed methodically in a pie before baking.

In "A Dictionary of Slang, Jargon and Cant" (1889) A. Barrere and C. G. Leland observe:

"Order is an old word for a row, and a properly made apple-pie, had, of old, always an order or row of regularly cut turrets, or an exactly divided border."

Apple pies are still sometimes so made.

Others believe that "apple" in "apple-pie order" is a perversion of "cap-a-pie," which is an Old French phrase meaning "head to foot" and which occurs in modern French as "de pied en cap," from foot to head. It referred to a knight in complete armor or a soldier completely equipped and fully comparisoned from head to foot. In Shakespeare's "Hamlet" Horatio, describing the ghost to the Prince, says it was "A figure like your father, armed at point exactly, cap-a-pe." But no such phrase as "cap-a-pe order" has ever been found.

Still others think that "apple-pie order" may have been suggested by "alpha beta," meaning as orderly as the letters of the alphabet.

An apple-pie bed, familiar to boys, is a bed made by a practical joker in such a manner that the folds of the sheets prevent the occupant from stretching his legs at full length between them. Here the allusion is to a "turnover," a semicircular pie or tart made by turning one half of the crust over the other.

Ionosphere Rocket Soars 43½ Miles For Weather Data

Pasadena, Calif., March 21—(AP)— A new ionosphere rocket, developed by California Institute of Technology, has soared 43½ miles into space in quest of weather secrets.

The rocket, weighing 1,000 pounds, 16 feet long and 12 inches in diameter, will be used to speed into the sub-stratosphere, record temperatures, and release the data by parachute.

United States army authorities disclosed that in a recent test at the White Sands proving grounds at Las Cruces, N.M., the giant man-made meteor soared to a record, 230,000 feet —43½ miles.

A parachute attachment brings the device back to earth. Its record height exceeds by some 100,000 feet the best achieved by the United States signal corps' weather balloons. Cost of its development was not disclosed.

The rocket uses a liquid propellent of hydro-carbon and oxidizer. It has a supersonic nose designed to withstand the pressure of speeds greater than sound. The army's code name for the device is the "Wac Corporal."

Father of the rocket is Dr. Frank J. Malina, Caltech scientist and technical director of the institute's jet propulsion laboratory.

"The Wac Corporal just grew in the collective scientific mind," he told a reporter. "It involved the efforts of numerous scientists and engineers."

Feared Warning Would Lead Burglar to Shoot

Philadelphia, March 21 — (AP) —Feigning sleep, Mrs. Ray Morgan lay quietly in bed beside her policeman husband yesterday and watched a burglar take $20 from Morgan's trousers. The patrol sergeant had a pistol under his pillow, said Mrs. Morgan, but she didn't awaken him for fear of a shooting. After the intruder fled, she shook her husband. He called police.

TREATMENT OF BURSITIS

Correspondent says two injections of vitamin B into the bursa brought prompt relief of his shoulder bursitis.

I can't believe the vitamin B had anything to do with it. Vitamin B has no such curative effect in any condition, whether it is administered by mouth or by hypodermic or intra-muscular or intra-venous injection.

I can believe that actual puncture of the inflamed bursa or pad with the hypodermic needle had something to do with the prompt relief the patient experienced.

Needling the bursa is satisfactory treatment in the acute or early stage of bursitis. It is worth trying in any case where the patient suffers constant pain and finds little relief at night.

The most grateful relief may be given in some cases by inserting a needle into the bursa and aspirating any fluid, even only a drop or two, to loosen the tension within the sac. Some physicians introduce two needles, inject normal salt solution in through one needle and withdraw it through the other—thus washing out the inflamed sac and perhapes initiating resorption of the inflammatory exudate or of the soft calcium if any calcium has been deposited.

While the needle is in the sac or in the tissues around it, the physician may inject a suitable local anesthetic which will give blessed relief.

In a more advanced stage of bursitis, after the first two weeks, when the shoulder is becoming or has become "frozen", stiff from reluctance of the patient to attempt any active use of it, in fear of causing return of the pain it is good treatment to inject a dose of local anesthetic into or around the bursa and while this is working, give the patient the passive movements which are absolutely necessary to prevent permanent disability from stiff or "frozen" shoulder. The patient should follow the passive movements with active movements, going systematically through all the movements he has been unable to make because of the stiff shoulder.

This whole seance may have to be repeated daily or every few days for several times to restore full function to the shoulder.

Finding a calcareous deposit in the bursa by X-ray is evidence that bursitis has occurred, that's all. It may be found long after the patient has fully recovered from the trouble. Or it may disappear as soon as the recovery begins.

I found daily diathermy treatment gave much comfort when I had bursitis. (I make it my rule, you know, to have everything myself before I tell the world about it, except babies.)

Recently physicians have reported that a preliminary injection of physostigmine to help limber up frozen shoulder, and indeed daily injections of physostigmine salicylate have seemed to bring about considerable improvement in cases of rheumatoid arthritis, spondylitis, fibrositis and even sciatica.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Too Bad No Physical Education

Daughter has to stay home from work three days each month with cramps. Doctor gave her tablets and told her not to eat any salt, but she still has the cramps.

(Mrs. B. A.)

Answer—Send a stamped self addressed envelope and ask for pamphlet "Hygiene for Girls and Health for Women".

Familiar With Brucellosis

Engaged in the tuberculosis field and somewhat familiar with brucellosis (undulant fever) I am disturbed that you condone the use of raw milk. The risk of infection from raw milk is so great that it is hard to believe that any informed person can possibly recommend it.—(Miss ——, Asst. Exec. Secretary, —— County Tuberculosis and Health Association.)

Answer—I'll take Grade A Raw Milk from tuberculin tested herd or Certified Milk any time in preference to ordinary pasteurized milk. There is no scientific evidence that brucellosis is spread via raw milk. That is merely a theory and it by no means accounts for the occurrence of undulant fever.

Stupid Answer

I thought your answer to the woman who asked whether a woman with only one ovary can bear children of both sexes was stupid. I have only one ovary and I have a girl and a boy.

(Mrs. W. R. R.)

Answer—Thank you. A few years ago we had a symposium on that question here and received numerous reports like your own, showing there is no truth in the notion that the one sxe originates only in one ovary.

Happy days are here again...

MR. TWITCHETT wasn't so happy yesterday. He had a problem. He lacked ready cash for his business.

He makes small novelties—does a nice business in them, too. But he normally allows his customers thirty or even sixty days to pay. In the meantime he has to pay his workmen every week, meet his power bills every month ... pay promptly for metal and wood and other raw materials to earn valuable discounts.

So, yesterday, like the sensible business man he is, he borrowed enough from the Royal Bank for his current needs. When Twitchett's customers pay him, he'll pay off the bank.

This is a simple illustration of bank credit in action. It shows how bank credit, as an everyday tool of business, provides "working capital" to keep men working.

MOST BUSINESSES ARE SMALL

Not size but soundness is the primary test of any business and of its ability to borrow. We count thousands of small businesses among our valued customers. In fact, most of our large accounts are companies which started in a small way and steadily grew through the wise use of our bank credit. The Royal Bank Manager is there to serve all types and sizes of business. He'd like to serve you.

Some Employers Still Reluctant To Co-operate in Training of Vets

A. & N. Veterans Discuss Rehab. Affairs; J. H. Lazenby Temporary Chairman

Mr. James H. Lazenby, vice-president of the Dominion Command of the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada, and vice-chairman of the Belleville and District Rehabilitation Committee was appointed temporary chairman of the latter organization at a special meeting held in the Wartime Prices and Trade Board last night.

The interim appointment will be held by Mr. Lazenby until April 1st when the annual election of officers will be held.

The vacancy was created by the resignation of Chairman Dougall [illegible] who leaves on April 2 to assume the superintendency of the Rehabilitation branch of the Department of Veterans' Affairs with headquarters at Kingston.

Chairman Resigns

Tribute to Mr. Marshall's efficiency and the fine results achieved thus far by the committee through his efforts was paid by Mayor Frank Follwell.

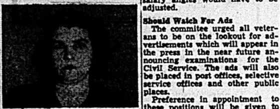
During the business session of the meeting it was pointed out that there is an urgent need for employers of the city and district to co-operate in the training of returned veterans in their places of business. Some employers, it was stated, were co-operatng to the fullest extent but there is a decided reticence on the part of others to enter into the scheme.

It was felt at the meeting that there are a number of women now gainfully employed who could be replaced by veterans, but salary angles would have to be adjusted.

Should Watch For Ads

The commitee urged all veterans to be on the lookout for advertisements which will appear in the press in the near future announcing examinations for the Civil Service. The ads will also be placed in post offices, selective service offices and other public places.

Preference in appointment to these positions will be given to qualified persons entitled to the Veterans Preference. These include those who served in the 1939-1945 war, but who were residents of Canada at the time of enlistment; persons in receipt of pensions by reason of services in the war of 1914-18 and 1939-45 who have lost capacity for physical exertion to the extent where they are unable to follow their former vocations; personnel who served with the Navy on the high seas, and R.C.A.F. personnel who served overseas or have flown outside the territorial waters of the Western Hemisphere.



Mrs. E. Elmy, 14 Dunbar St., Belleville, writes: "Every woman likes to get her wash finished as early as possible on washday and I find Super Suds cuts my washing time in half and makes the clothes so clean and white, I never have to boil or scrub them. Super Suds is certainly a swell washday soap."

Thank you, Mrs. Elmy, for your grand letter. You see, Ladies, Super Suds is Concentrated. Super Suds actually gives you far more washing-power, which means sudsier, longer-lasting suds, for easier and quicker washdays. And Super Suds costs no more than ordinary washday soap.

Education Grants Will be Increased By Ontario Govt.

Toronto, March 20 —(CP)— The Ontario government is appropriating $38,171,607 in the fiscal year ending March 31, 1947, Provincial Treasurer Frost announced in his Ontario legislature budget speech today, $3,980,439 more than the comparable appropriation for the fiscal year ending next March 31.

The 1946-47 appropriation is $32,371,607 and to this Mr. Frost proposed that $5,800,000 of the surplus for the current fiscal year be added to apply to 1946 educational costs.

He reviewed the increase in educational grants, the new basis for which became fully effective in 1945. In 1942 they totalled $8,444,266; in 1943 $8,351,824; in 1944 $9,057,215 and in addition a one-mill subsidy totalling $3,064,076 was paid to municipalities for educational purposes through the Department of Municipal Affairs; in 1945 $26,377,175.

In addition to the legislative grants the government adjusted teachers and inspectors superannuation fund rates, increasing individual and government contributions, the latter by $450,000 in the new fiscal year. As a result the minimum pension was increased from $365 to $500 and the maximum from $1,250 to $1,500.

Returned Service Men Entertained

The Brotherhood of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church held a special meeting on Tuesday night in the church parlors in honor of returned service men. A time of fellowship, fun and inspiration was fully enjoyed by the goodly number present. Fred Jobson contributed two fine cornet solos, Alec Gordon was pianist and Eric Naylor led the sing-song. The address was given by the pastor, Rev. H. O. Eastman and prayer was offered by Alan Haw. The president, Mr. F. H. Chesher, was in the chair.

"It is impossible for me to express in words what it means to have you here in our presence tonight," stated the pastor in his welcome to the ex-service men. "On the wings of prayer we have borne you in our hearts. Many of us have prayed daily for this hour and will continue to pray daily until all the boys are safely home.

"Some of us have been trying to carry on the work of the church the best we knew how, while you have been away serving king and country, treading devious and dangerous paths, doing your duty so heroically and nobly. We at home have tried to do ours to the best of our ability. Now we must try to do together the things we have wanted to do.

"We have been talking lately about a Crusade for Christ and His Kingdom. A great many holy places and a great many people are under the dominance of evil. There are many homes and lives over which Jesus does not reign. A fearful price has been paid during these past years for liberty, to break the hold of aggression that it might be possible to re-establish conditions that every man, woman and child may live their lives to the best of their ability without hindrance. If that condition for which we struggled is to come to pass a great price is still to be paid. It is one thing to break the hold of disease but quite another thing to restore a man to full health. Just as there are still aggressor nations, there are still aggressors of evil in individuals, nations and institutions.

"In this great Crusade for Christ and His Kingdom we must act upon our Captain's marching orders and, armed with the sword of the Spirit, attack the evils in our midst. Together, with God's help, we will prevail."

Refreshments, which had been prepared by Mr. Fred White, were thoroughly enjoyed and games were played for the remainder of the evening. Mr. Eastman gave the benediction.

Shortages of Food Materiel Discourage Russia Waging War

Washington, March 20. (AP) — Soviet Russia's ability to wage a successful major war now was questioned today by a United States military observer who said food shortages are major obstacles to further Red Army campaigns.

Col. Conrad H. Lanza, retired, longtime commentator for the semi-official Field Artillery Journal, reported in a survey of current conditions in Europe and the Middle East that the Soviet Union "faces a critical shortage" in labor and military supplies as well as food.

"In the late war, her impressive offensive efforts were made possible by tremendous quantities of materiel and supplies furnished by the United States and the British Empire," Col. Lanza wrote in the Journal. "This flow ceased upon termination of the war, and Russia is now on her own.

"She can not even produce enough food and supplies for immediate needs, let alone those that would be required for war. . . .the immediate problem is to tide over the first year or two, until food for everybody is available."

Col. Lanza, who has been writing as a military analyst for the Field Artillery Journal since his retirement after 44 years of active army service, did not offer any figures to bear out the stringency in Soviet food supplies. Neither did he mention Moscow's recent offer to supply France with several hundred thousand tons of grain to ease that country's food problem.

He did, however, suggest that Russia's current food situation largely explains the presence of large Red Army concentrations in occupied middle Europe where they have been living off the country to a great extent.

WEDDINGS

HUMBY—LEHIGH

Picton, March 21.—One of the season's loveliest weddings was solemnized in Picton United church, yesterday afternoon, when Imogene Margaret, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. M. S. Lehigh, of Milford, became the bride of Capt. W. R. Humby, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Humby, Hamilton. Rev. A. E. McCutcheon was assisted by the father of the bride. Prof. F. E. Walden was at the organ and Mrs. Laverne Wright was soleist.

Given in marriage by Irving Fitch Sweet, of Rochester, N.Y., the bride wore a gown of ivory slipper satin, made on princess lines with inserts of lace, and a long, circular train. Her long veil of ivory tulle was caught with a chalet of lace and satin and she carried American Beauty roses.

Four sister attended the bride, Miss Nora Lehigh, of Milford, Miss Gladys Lehigh, Reg.N., of Lindsay, and Mrs. Claude Poulson, of Windsor, Ont., wore long gowns of burgundy velvet, and Miss Lola Lehigh, of Picton, was in blue velvet. They wore matching bandeaux and carried Colonial bouquets of carnations. Miss Diane Poulson, of Windsor, made a pretty flower girl with a long dress of blue velvet and carrying a nosegay of carnations. Trainbearers were Norman Lehigh, of Coe Hill, and John Lehigh, of Lowell, Mass.

The groom was attended by his father and the ushers were Thomas Humby and Mark Humby, Hamilton, brothers of the groom, and Herbert Lehigh, Coe Hill, and Beaumont Lehigh, Bancroft, brothers of the bride.

At the reception following the ceremony, the bride's cake was cut with Capt. Humby's sword. After a wedding trip to Montreal and Quebec they will reside in Hamilton.

Women's Hospital Auxiliary Gives Preview of Styles At Fashion Show at Capitol

Decided Change of Styles With Advent of Dolman and Balloon Sleeves, Higher Necklines and Longer Skirts

The stage of the Capitol Theatre, beautifully decorated with spring flowers, formed a suitable background for a preview of the latest New York and Montreal styles at the 1946 Fashion Show, presented Wednesday afternoon and evening by the Women's Hospital Auxiliary. Mrs. George Stobie, as narrator, introduced the seven attractive models and described their ensembles as they were shown. She looked charming in a blue crepe dress with v-neckline and tiny sleeves, and a shiny black straw sailor, with its high crown banded by pale blue ribbon.

A decided change in styles was seen this year with the advent of Dolman and balloon sleeves, the nipped-in waistlines and padded hips, higher necklines and longer skirts.

Shortie Coats in Spotlight

Shortie coats were in the spotlight frequently, shown with casual and dress suits, slack suits and afternoon dresses. Deacon Brothers' Grenville cloth coats were shown in a variety of colors over four-piece slack suits, so popular with the younger set for casual wear. A beautiful new wool, Scotian-Craft hand-woven tweed appeared again and again in the shortie coat. One of these was shown in creamy beige, and another in a blue striped coat. Coats were featured with Dolman sleeves, balloon sleeves, collarless or with tiny wing collars, belted or swagger style. Chesterfield coats appeared again this year, promising to be as popular as ever. Reefers are once more taking their place in the fashion world, one being modelled in navy blue, piped in white.

Suit in Many Styles

Never lacking in popularity, the suit appeared in many styles, casual suits being modelled in checks, plaids, and solid colors, dress suits in delicate pastels, with grey predominating.

A new type of suit was featured in the three-quarter length coat and skirt combination, one particularly lovely one shown in pale blue with large cuffs of soft grey fox. Another suit showed the continuation of the yoke line around the shoulder. Black appeared in various styled suits and coats, mostly plain but with its customary stunning effect. One black coat had the large armholes outlined with intricate black braiding.

Many Afternoon Dresses.

Afternoon dresses featured, on the whole, the new draped skirt, cap sleeves, and high neckline. Sequins sparkled amid the soft folds of the dresses, outlining the patterns in glittering colors. Brenda Barton has introduced a fascinating new idea of an allover print of hands, outlined, in one model, in maroon against grey, and appearing in another model with gay red sequin nails on a white background. A striking black dress was modelled with wide bands of white lace outlining the peplum and sleeves. An open crowned white hat was particularly lovely with this dress. The ballerina skirt was introduced in a navy sheer dress, with pale blue ruffles trimming the skirt and neckline. A Deja model of powder blue crepe was trimmed with matching braid around peplum and sleeves. A pretty grey crepe frock was shown with square white yoke outlined in chartreuse and featuring the slit back.

Gay Little Hats.

Gay little hats added greatly to the charm of the various ensembles, small flowered sailors appearing to be the most popular. Feather and ribbon trimmed hats were also very chic, one small yellow straw hat with high crown having a huge ribbon bow of blue shot silk, and another with the crown surrounded with multicolored feather wings. Shiny straws appeared in large and small hats, many in the gay new Breton sailor, back-of-the-head model. Also adding distinction to the outfits were the new shiny plastic bags and beautiful leather purses, as well as the gloves, shown in almost every color as well as spanking white, so popular this year with navy and grey.

Beautiful Furs

Beautiful furs were displayed to advantage over pretty afternoon frocks, with black Persian lamb appearing to be the most popular. Coats appeared in full length and jacket lengths and featured enormous bell sleeves, turned back cuffs and rippled backs. Balloon sleeves were shown in a lovely silver blue muskrat coat and a very new idea, sleeves which unhook to open out flat, forming a sort of cape, was shown in a luxurious silver fox jacket. A stunning tuxedo coat was shown in Scotch mole. American broadtail appeared in a platinum blue color, with balloon sleeves and a pleat over the shoulders, giving a squared look. Mink neckpieces dressed up afternoon frocks as did many other types of furs.

Lovely Evening Gowns

Evening gowns once more appeared on the fashion scene, returning with pre-war loveliness. The first shown was a full skirted white taffeta with drop shoulders, tiny waist and rounded hips. A white sheer gown with halter neckline and bare back was lovely with its sequin sprinkled bodice and full skirt. Taffeta again appeared in pale blue in the bodice of a net skirted model. A stunning black dinner gown was modelled, perfectly simple except for three beaded birds in white at neckline and at the top of the skirt slit. Black was also shown in a plain dinner gown with bright jewelled belt accentuating the waistline.

The feature dress of the Fashion Show was the Blackshire model evening dress in yellow, black and white print, which was recently modelled in Toronto by Gladys Swarthout. The bodice was sprinkled with sequins, and the hood, which could also be worn as a cape, was heavily dotted with the glittering bits of metal.

Smart Jewelry

Accentuating the beauty of the ensembles were the lovely pieces of jewelry worn, particularly those worn with the evening dresses, and two costume pins worn with a rose colored Eisenhower model afternoon dress.

The finale of the 1946 Fashion Show was a bridal scene, with Miss Leslie as the bride, dressed in traditional white satin and carrying a bouquet of calla lilies, and attended by two bridesmaids in chartreuse with corsages of Talisman roses, and two bridesmaids in blue, with corsages of pink roses. The scene was an exact reproduction of that presented at the Manufacturers' Fashion Show in Montreal.

Mrs. Bessie Wray, president of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary, expressed her appreciation to all those who took part in making the fashion show such a success; to those creating the hairdresses: Mrs Cummins, Leeman's and the Vogue; to Lattimer's for the makeup, and for the distribution of samples of Dorothy Gray cologne to all those attending; to the Kiwanis; The Belle Theatre; The Capitol Theatre; Mr. Barclay; Mrs. Langlois, the pianist; Potter's; and to the following exhibitors, without whom the show could not have been presented: McNabb's: dresses, coats and suits; Ashley Furs: furs; McIntosh Bros.: gloves, bags and umbrellas; McFee's Jewelry Store: jewelry; Miss Campbell: hats.

Models Thanked

To the seven models goes the credit of displaying the beautiful clothes and accessories to best advantage. Models were Mrs. F. M. Carscallen, Mrs. G. E. Currie, Miss Peggy Doolittle, Mrs. Walter Harden, Miss Barbara Leslie, Mrs. J. Marsh and Miss Alice Vandervoort.

In the afternoon, a beautiful set of dishes donated by Walker's Hardware, was won by Merle Ostrander, and two Dorothy Gray cosmetic kits, donated by Lattimer's were won by Mrs Hines and Mabel Pellow. At the evening performance the ladies Gruen wristwatch, donated by McFee's, was won by Miss Rita Ellis; the pressure cooker, donated by Walker's Hardware, by Mr. Wallace Woodacre; the cosmetic kit, donated by Lattimer's, by Mrs. Hill.

Corsages were presented to Mrs. Stobie, the narrator; Mrs. Wray, President of the W.H.A.; the models, and Mrs. Langlois, the pianist, on behalf of the exhibitors.

Entertain War Brides At Delightful Tea

On Wednesday afternoon the Young Women's Guild of Tabernacle Church held a delightful tea in the Board Room of the Y.M.C.A., for the Belleville war brides and their relatives. Welcomed at the door by Mrs. S. Scripture and Mrs. J. A. Buchanan, each guest had her name pinned on by Mrs. George Cornish and Mrs. Wilkes. During the afternoon each bride pinned on a map of the British Isles a tag bearing her name. Under the direction of Miss Margery Lashbrook, this map showed the large number of cities and town from which the new Canadians had come.

The tea table, lovely with a cut-work cloth centred by a bowl of Spring flowers, flanked by tall ivory tapers, was presided over by Mrs. J. G. Hornsby, Mrs. Arthur Smith, Mrs. Morley Buck and Mrs. A. D. Archibald. Serving were Mesdames Wilson, Hurst, Gibson, Fairman, and Sherry, and Misses Heasman, Elson, and Tickell, assisted by Mrs. Wells and Mrs. Harrison.

Mrs. George Wishart and Mrs. William Hunter were conveners of the tea. Among the guests were members of the Red Cross Committee which has been meeting the brides at the station.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

He Admires Her, but Doesn't Invite Her Out

Dear Miss Fairfax,

I am in love with a fellow I've known practically all my life. In fact, he is my girl friend's brother. I am 21 years old, and he is 23.

As far back as I can remember, I've had a crush on him, but never told any one. But a lot of my friends caught on. I can't make myself go out with anyone else because I know they could never mean anything to me. I know for a fact that he thinks a lot of me, and is a great admirer of mine, but he has never asked me out or done anything about it. I don't want to throw myself at him, but I would like to show him how I feel.

Puzzled.

If this young is a great admirer of yours, you shouldn't have to prod him. I should think he'd be giving you plenty of invitations. It can't be shyness that holds him back, can it, if you've known each other practically all your lives? My own feeling would be to let him make the first move, and I certainly would not just sit back and wait for it, either. I'd go out with other young men every chance I got. Many a man has first become interested in a girl by the fact that he sees other men chasing her and decides he must be missing something. There's nothing like a little good healthy competition to intrigue the masculine mind, and don't you forget it! And there's nothing like mooning about a man to put him off you, and don't forget that either;!

If you still want to try to make him notice you, however, why not give a party and invite him? If you've know him all your life, it would certainly be a perfectly natural thing to do, and your invitation should show him that you'd not be averse to seeing a little more of him.

He Wants Her to Forget Him But She Cant

Dear Miss Fairfax,

I'm seventeen years old and very much in love with a boy now in the army. When he first went into the service, he used to write and tell me how much he loved me. He was home recently on a short furlough and seemed very happy to see me.

Then, after he went back to camp, he wrote and told me to go out with other boys and enjoy myself because he didn't want to tie any one down to him, as he might have to go overseas.

"Well, I can't forget him. I've tried going out with other boys, but it doesn't help. Should I try to forget him? He said there isn't another girl and I believe him. Should I wait until he comes home and see how things turn out? We still write to each other.

D.A.

Keep on writing to him, D.A., but just write casual, chatty letters, telling him all the things you're doing and all the news you know he'd be interested to hear. Don't get sentimental in your letters, and don't talk about how much you love him. Just let all that rest for awhile and see what happens.

It may be that your boy friend thinks he is being noble when he says he doesn't want to tie you down, but I really doubt it. It's much more likely that he doesn't want to tie himself down; wants to be able to go away without leaving an "entangling alliance" behind him.

So if I were you, I'd just accept that fact as it stands. You don't have to be melodramatic and talk about "trying to forget." Be sensible about it. Keep on being friendly with him but do have other good times. Just don't worry about the "forgetting" part. That will take care of itself. And maybe things will even work out as you want them to, if you don't go tragic on this boy.

BEAUTY

Men have pet peeves about women's appearance

Do women dress to please the men? We're sick and tired of that dumb question. A woman may dress to please her man, or she may not. If his notions appeal to her, she humors him. If he is a sweet old dud who seems to be color blind and doesn't know a chubby from the dolman his grandmother used to wear, so what? If, by chance, he does have something to say about clothes, she pays no attention to him.

As a rule, men have conservative ideas about what their own women shall wear, though they may cast glances at the gal who is all dressed up to kill. If we conformed to the masculine standard, we'd have a fine time getting ourselves rigged out. We dress to please ourselves, usually, and we have a desire to make other women admire us. If we can also please the men, that's just dandy.

Men fought bobbed hair tooth and nail, and a lot of good it did them. They hollered loudly when we started to use red nail polish; some of them—dear old-fashioned creatures—are still growling about it. What they've had to say about the hats the girls have been wearing is not to be repeated in police society. They might as well have saved their breath on all these subjects.

The list of their pet peeves is as long as your arm.

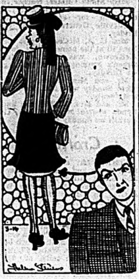
Most men dislike to see women in slacks, especially if the wearers are fat. A lot of women, who adore skirts, feel the same way about it. Boys say they hate to see girls in blue jeans. Slacks, the men concede, are all right for gardening or rough work, but when a lady appears at a party clad in pants, they scowl.

I understand that some men are agin white bathing suits. You may not believe it, but others have an aversion to backless dresses. Bare legs that are red and gooseflesh are repellent. Usually to both sexes.

If a wife's slip shows, almost any husband will become very much annoyed. This slip in dressing technique appears to be a sartorial crime.

Says a smart young feller: "My pet peeve is that the younger ones all look alike. Gosh, haven't they any courage or originality or individuality? Every head of hair arranged the same way. The same shade of lipstick on every pair of lips. And saddle shoes! They really get me. A pretty foot, neatly shod, is charming. I can't understand it.

"Also, think the young woman of today is something a bit too smart to be companionable. I like 'em sweet and soft and responsive."



The peek-a-boo slip is one pet peeve of husbands

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Name For Stepparent

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband's father has recently married a very charming woman of about his age (early fifties). My husband and I are very fond of her, but we certainly fumble as we address her! My husband speaks right to her, but since he will not call her "Mother," he uses no name when he addresses her. Should he and I call her "Mother?" If not, what is proper?

C. B.

Since your husband will not call his stepmother "Mother"—I don't believe he should call her by this name nor do I think she would want to have him—you shouldn't address her by this name. To relieve the name-embarrassment, I suggest you and your husband (or only your husband) talk with his father, about the name his new wife wishes you and your husband to use for her. The chances are she will choose to have you call her by her first name or perhaps by a nickname lovingly used for her by her family; or she may think "Aunt" with her first name, more suitable.

She Wants to go to That Wedding!

We have a friend whose daughter is getting married. I doubt whether we shall be invited to this wedding, as (1) it is to be out-of-town and (2) although the family has visited us several times in the last few years, we have really only been friendly with them through my relatives. However, the truth is that we would very much like to be at that wedding. How can I let them know without having them think that I am asking for an invitation? If we haven't received an invitation say a couple of weeks before the wedding, would sending a wedding present then be in order, or would that be too broad a hint? Thank you for any help you may offer in getting us to that wedding!

D. S

Since you've set your heart on going to that wedding, I'll be in cahoots with you and point out that you've perhaps missed one good bet on achieving the possibility of a future invitation. I suggest you begin at once an some attention-calling to yourselves. Since obviously the girl's engagement has been announced, why not write her a gracious and cordial letter telling her of your and your husband's interest in the news of her engagement, of your good wishes for her happiness and your congratulations to her fiance? As a supplementary "hint" you might send her an engagement present—perhaps a fine linen handkerchief slipped into your note of good wishes. Or if the wedding invitation isn't forthcoming by two weeks before the wedding date, send a wedding present—a generous hint if not a very subtle one. This might circumvent the possibility of the bride's family thinking that since you live out of town perhaps an invitation should not be sent you. (As you know, if you follow my column, this is a frequent, though not a proper, point of view.)

Hospitality Always Should Be Thanked For

A short time ago I made a trip for my company to a city some distance from here. While I was there I met a man whom I used to know quite well in my (and his) home town. He was very kind to me, invited me to dine with him several times, and took me to the movies and to different places of interest. Now that I have returned, I am wondering if it would be correct for me to write and thank him for his kindness?

Patricia,

Not only would it be correct for you to write him a letter of appreciation for his hospitality, but it would be definitely impolite for you not to write him. If you did not write, this kindly friend would wonder if you really have a sense of appreciation.

Cpl. Harry Short Acquitted On Murder Charge

London, Ont., March 21 — (CP) —Cpl. Harry Short, 39, buried his face in his hands and wept last night as the foreman of a Middlesex county jury announced the verdict of not guilty in the charge of murder. Short had been charged with murdering 59-year-old John Orrange, Strathroy town workman who died Feb. 9 of injuries received in a beating outside of Short's home at nearby Strathroy.

When the verdict was announced, courtroom spectators burst into applause. Mr. Justice Keiller Mackay of the Ontario Supreme Court, promptly rebuked the spectators.

"Only once before in my life have I heard of such conduct," His Lordship said of the courtroom demonstration. "If I acted in the manner I should, I would find the leaders in this demonstration and have them incarcerated. I am grossly disappointed in the people of Middlesex county.

"Never had I imagined for one fleeting moment that such demeanor would obtain, and I want you to know that in no uncertain way."

As the Judge reprimanded the spectators Short's head, streaked with gray, remained bowed. Then the veteran of active service overseas, including the invasions of Sicily and Italy, raised his eyes to the Judge, who told him: "You are now discharged."

Rejoined Wife

Without a word, Short left the prisoner's box and went to rejoin his wife, who had sat in the court room throughout the hearing but was in a nearby witness room with her sister-in-law, Mrs. H. C. Janner, when the jury brought in its verdict.

The jury, on which G. B. Aberhart was foreman, deliberated nearly six hours over evidence presented by 16 Crown witnesses and 13 defence witnesses including Short.

Short, who spent five years overseas and returned to Canada last May, was charged with murder after Orrange died from injuries which police alleged were inflicted by Short when the latter found Orrange outside the Short home Feb. 9.

Short was said to have accused Orrange of being a window-peeper who had annoyed Mrs. Short while accused was overseas. Later, authorities said their investigation had convinced them Orrange was not the "peeping Tom" of which Mrs. Short had complained.

200,000 Workers Will be Involved In Wage Issues

By JACK WILLIAM
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, March 21. (CP)—Organized Labor's drive for general wage increases to Canadian workers appeared today to be gaining rapid impetus with the announcement of the Canadian Congress of Labor that at least 200,000 workers will be involved in "wage issues" within the next two months.

The statement was made by Pat Conroy, secretary-treasurer of the Congress, in a report on a meeting of the Congress Wage Co-ordinating Committee which he heads.

The Congress asked all affiliated Unions in its membership of some 250,000 to take immediate action for increases and to establish what were described as "emergency funds".

The demand was based on claims of increasing unemployment, reduction in "take-home" pay, increasing living costs and demands by business for revision of price ceilings. With this the committee coupled criticism of the government's cost of living index and asked that a Royal Commission be immediately established to determine accurately the present living cost.

Already most of the largest Unions in the Congress have either launched higher wage campaigns or have declared their intention of taking such action. Among these Unions are: United Steel Workers of America, 60,000 members; United Automobile Workers, 55,000; International Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, affecting 40,000 workers; International Rubber Workers, 25,000; United Rubber Workers, 12,000; United Electrical Workers, 10,000 and Amalgamated Clothing Workers, 10,000. The United Packinghouse workers have announced intention of seeking incerases when their present contracts expire in August.

In addition to these Unions many of those connected with Canada's other major labor organization, the Trades and Labor Congress, are actively seeking increases. Included among these, and in independent Unions, are large groups of railway workers.

No Game Commission To be Formed in Ont. Says Hon. Geo. Dunbar

Toronto, March 21 (CP)—Support by the Ontario Federation of Anglers for a non-political game and fish commission drew a flat statement Wednesday from Hon. George Dunbar that there will be no such commission as long as the present government is in power in Ontario.

Mr. Dunbar, who told the Fish and Game Committee of the Legislature he has no intention of resigning his portfolio as Minister of Fish and Game, took the floor before the committee again today after Vivian Sutton, Vice President of the Ontario Federation, read letters and telegrams from Ontario centres which he said supported the commission plan.

Mr. Dunbar said the commission plan recurs at every meeting of the committee, but the government had no intention of forming such a commission. "I am speaking for the government when I say this."

The minister suggested a group in Ontario is working for control of fish and game administration, particularly now that revenues exceed $1,000,000. There was no such clamor when revenue was low.

Mr. Sutton termed the present administration inefficient and asserted game and fish resources had been steadily depleted.

Pete McGillen of the Peterborough Fish and Game Association presented a resolution asking a closed season on partridge in Peterborough in 1946. He also sought a closed season on beaver in Peterborough, Hastings and Haliburton and a system of fish and game overseers in each county.

Resolution Introduced

The issue of the non-political commission arose when J. J. Girling of Hamilton, representing the Ontario Federation and the Hamilton Anglers and Hunting Association, introduced a resolution asking creation of the commision. Amid interruptions from Mr. Dunbar, he contended his organization represents 50,000.

Mr. Sutton who led a 12-man delegation from the Windsor branch of the Essex County Sportsmen's Association, then entered the debate and continued speaking despite efforts by Mr. Dunbar to interrupt him. At one point he said Mr. Dunbar's refusal to appoint a commission "smacks of dictatorship."

Len Hughes of Trout Mills, former President of the Northern Ontario Outfitters Association, said his association has no quarrel with the Ontario Federation but that it is not in favor of a commission.

At adjournment D. J. Taylor, Deputy Minister said some suggestions advanced at the two day sessions would be "crystallized into legislation." A system of zone licenses to regulate the catch of deer was likely to receive special consideration when the committee met again Friday.

Many Resolutions

Resolutions included a proposal by the Hamilton Angling and Hunting Association that "very unsatisfactory" pheasant conditions in Wentworth County be investigated: by Belleville and District Fish and Game Protective Association that there be no open season for ruffed grouse in Hastings and adjoining counties in 1946-47. By the Brant County Rod and Gun Club that sale of cottontail rabbits be prohibited in Brant County; by the Haldimand Hunters and Anglers Association of Hagersville that it be considered illegal to hunt ducks without a pheasant licence in areas and on days set aside for pheasant hunting.

The Riverside Sportsmen Club proposed postponement of the opening of the rabbit season in Essex County until the termination of the pheasant season there.

Put Quail on List

Resolutions submitted by the Northern Ontario Outfitters Association included recommendations for control of non-resident aeroplane service for hunting and fishing parties; a zoning system to prevent exploration of some area at the expense of others; control of timber cutting around shore lines; improved control of licensing; and assumption by the province of transport costs on the Tobermory ferry in the Georgian Bay district.

Kent County Sportsmen's Association recommended for its area that quail be put on the protected list for at least five years, that the minimum fine for taking pheasants illegally or out of season be raised from $10 to $50; that the gun licence for upland shooting should not be effective until the opening day of pheasant shooting and that the non-resident gun licence expire Dec. 15.

Ont. Mining Industry On Verge of Greatest Expansion in History

Toronto, March 21 (CP) — The Ontario mining industry is on the verge of the greatest expansion of its history, Provincial Treasurer Frost, who also is Minister of Mines, said Wednesday in his budget address in the Ontario Legislature.

"Diamond drills are working throughout the whole of the north country," he said. "New mines producing new wealth will come into production in regions where there is presently no habitation provided we, give the necessary encourgement by way of roads and other facilities."

He added that the developments could not take place unless the Provincial Government had the financial resources to furnish the facilities and quoted from the Ontario Mining Commission report of 1944 that from 1907 to 1942 the Ontario metal mining industry's taxes of $214,974,977 were divided $163,306,885 to the Dominion, $48,538,959 to Ontario and $3,129,133 to municipalities.

All of Ontario's share was spent on roads, schools, public buildings, administration of justice and the construction of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway which was largely instrumental in creating some of the greatest mining camps. In 1941 the industry gave direct employment to 33,546 wage earners and salaried employees and 11 per cent of the province's population was partially dependent on it for a livelihood. "This is an example of how a strong, self-reliant province pulls its weight in the national economy."

Mines department expenditures alone did not reflect all the province does for the industry. The Department of Highways had announced a new $3,000,000 highway to the Red Lake field in Northwestern Ontario this year but this was only an initial step in road building and development work already planned.

The department's estimates were being increased by $106,000 to $550,000 this year to provide for greater services to mines, including aerial surveys, mapping, geological work and training of prospectors. Some 250 young men, most of them ex-servicemen, were receiving training in prospecting at Toronto, Haileybury and the lakehead.

External Debt In Ont. Reduced By $8,389,319

Toronto, March 21. (CP) —An $8,389,319 reduction in Ontario's external debt and refinancing arrangements which resulted in an annual saving of some $600,000 in interest and debt servicing charges were announced Wednesday by Provincial Treasurer Frost in his budget speech in the Ontario Legislature.

The treasurer said he looked with satisfaction on the debt reduction—debt payable in United States funds was reduced by $6,369,000 and in British funds by $2,020,319—in view of the Dominion government's intention to continue foreign exchange control measures.

A new $15,000,000 loan at 1 1-4 per cent interest was floated in New York, due serially July 2, 1946-48. It replaces a loan which matured last July 1 and carried an interest rate of 2 1-2 per cent. Two loans were refinanced in Canada. One for $18,000,000 bears interest at 1 1-2 per cent and is due serially Sept. 1, 1946-48. It replaces a 1 3-4 per cent loan which matured last Sept. 1. The other was for $26,000,000 interest one to 2 3-4 per cent, and due serially Sept. 15, 1946-55. It replaces a $10,000,000 loan at two per cent which matured last Sept. 1 and a $16,500,000 loan at three per cent due Dec. 15, 1945-49. The government paid $500,000 of the $16,500,000 loan from current revenue.

"The significance of these figures is that the strong financial position of the province is reflected in its high credit standing and the resulting low rates of interest at which the province is able to borrow. The fact is that these rates compare most favorably with those obtained by other public authorities. Certainly the rates are well below those paid by the other provinces of Canada."

Foreign Exchange control regulations fixing 11 per cent as the premium on U.S. funds worked a hardship on Ontario. Of its funded debt of upwards of $600,000,000, more than $325,000,000 was payable in New York. The province and its Hydro Commission paid more than $12,000,000 in premium on exchange during the war. No protest was made then. But with the war ended "we have submitted that this annual burden of upwards of $2,000,000 per annum in the case of Ontario, and in varying amounts in other jurisdictions, should not be borne by those jurisdictions.'"

Exchange control operated to prevent repatriation of foreign loans and the province urged that the Dominion make available at par foreign exchange needed by provincial and municipal governments to meet their external obligations.

Preparations for a general debt retirement plan after the Dominion-Provincial conference ends were being made by aerial refundings of debt. In next year's estimates $5,433,300 was provided for debt retirement purposes and provision would be made in next year's budget for serial retirement of new debts during the lifetime of the works for which they were incurred.

Sharp Increase In Expenditures For Current Year

Toronto, March 21. (CP) — When Provincial Treasurer Frost in his Ontario budget speech forecast a gross ordinary expenditure of $149,436,605 in the fiscal year ending March 31, 1947, he was providing for the heaviest current spending in the province's history.

The following figures show the increase in estimated gross ordinary expenditures since the budget for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1937:

Fiscal Year ending March 31	Estimate
1937	$ 86,415,649
1938	92,566,418
1939	99,303,652
1940	103,356,038
1941	99,535,122
1942	105,436,711
1943	104,574,812
1944	105,535,574
1945	117,123,231
1946	122,144,289
1947	149,436,605

BABY'S
UPSET STOMACH QUICKLY CORRECTED

BABY'S little "Tummy" is often easily upset. It is easily righted again, too, if you know just how to do it. Let Mrs. M. S. Alway, of London, Ont., tell you: "Baby's Own Tablets are a great help at the first sign of upset stomach, during teething time or when a cold is coming on. They work quickly yet gently to carry away poisons and promote quiet sleep. Walking floors at night is unknown in our house."

And Mrs. W. R. Sharp says: "I nursed my baby shortly after being alarmed over a motor accident and that upset her almost to the point of convulsions. I gave her Baby's Own Tablets and she soon stopped crying—went to sleep."

Equally effective for teething troubles, constipation, simple fever and diarrhoea. Sweet-tasting, easily crushed to a powder, if desired—prompt in action. No "sleepy" stuff—no dulling effect. Buy a box today for sickness so often strikes in the night. 25 cents. Money back if not satisfied.

The three scenes took place in the Smithie living room at seven, eight and nine p.m. and were filled with plenty of fun and jollity. The actors were highly applauded for their efforts.

OIL ON IRAN'S TROUBLED WATERS

Some observers believe that oil is at the bottom of the Soviet-Iran crisis; that Russia feels she is entitled to a share of Iran's oil and intends to have it, come what may. One report has it that Britain is willing to share her Iranian oil properties with the Soviet as a peace gesture. Another report says that secret negotiations are now under way between Russia and the Iranian government for oil concessions. Here you see Indian riflemen marching through the main gates of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company plant on the river Shatt Al Arab, at the head of the Persian Gulf.

COLD GOT YOU
IN SNIFFLY, SNEEZY MISERY?

Do This Quick for Relief!

If you are sneezing and snuffling from a cold . . . all stuffed-up, with your nose and throat raw and sore—combat this distress, as thousands do, by gargling with new Pepsodent Antiseptic.

The reason it's recommended is this: Standard laboratory tests prove new Pepsodent Antiseptic kills millions of germs that go with colds. The very type of germs that many medical authorities say often heighten the misery and prolong the effects of a cold.

Isn't it only common sense then, to gargle with new Pepsodent Antiseptic at first sign of a cold! What better way to combat millions of germs that swarm on mouth and throat surfaces as far back as you can reach . . . back where illness often strikes first!

So treat a cold this sensible way: Get plenty of rest, avoid exposure, dress warmly, drink plenty of liquids...and gargle frequently with new Pepsodent Antiseptic. See if you don't relieve discomfort almost at once!

IT'S DO-OR-DIE FOR OSHAWA GENS. ON SATURDAY

Motor City Team Defeated by St. Mikes 4-2 in Fifth Game of Series

Toronto, March 21 — (CP). — It's do-or-die for the Oshawa Generals, perennial contenders for Canadian junior hockey honors, in the sixth game of their battle with Toronto St. Michael's at Oshawa Saturday night. St. Mikes took the fifth game here last night by a 4-2 score, moving into a 3-2 advantage in games in the best-of-seven O.H.A. junior final. One more defeat for Oshawa and they're out.

There was an official attendance of 14,674 at Maple Leaf Gardens to see the two ace junior teams last night, and thousands more were milling around trying to get in when the teams took the ice.

They were tied 1-1 in the first period and 2-2 in the second, but St. Mikes, holders of the Memorial Cup, scored the only two goals of the last frame.

Bobby Gray got the first for Oshawa and Ed Sandford tied it up. In the second period Ed Harrison put St. Mike's in the lead, and Jack Thaler once more tied the score.

Then in the third period Sandford jammed in on the Oshawa nets on a solo effort and let fly. As the red light flashed, the puck was seen sliding around the outer edge of the goalpost and a terrific argument ensued.

Referee George Hayes ruled Sandford had scored and the biscuit had bounced back off the twine. Oshawa players were loud in protest and coach Charlie Conacher of the Generals argued with the referee but got nowhere. Kelly of St. Mikes was given a five-minute penalty for fighting with Hildebrand of Oshawa, who drew a two-minute penalty, but the score stood.

In any event Bobby Paul made it 4-2 for St. Mikes at 17.44 of the period, on an assist from Fleming Mackell.

CLINCHES SECOND PLACE

(By The Canadian Press)

Omaha clinched second place in the United States Hockey League Tuesday night by blanking St. Paul Saints 2-0 at St. Paul.

Winky Smith and Johnny Holota collected second period goals for a second place finish in league play, a position they had held for a good portion of the season.

GORDON INJURED BUT YANKEES NOT WORRYING

McCarthy Has a Number of Valuable Men Who Can Play Second Base

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 21—(AP)— New York Yankees have made such an awesome impression on everyone who has seen them this spring that even the prospective absence of such a key player as second-baseman Joe Gordon from their line-up is not likely to affect their standing as favorites in the American League.

Gordon, injured in Tuesday's game against the Cardinals here, might be ready to play on opening day, but it seems doubtful. The tendon in the middle finger of his glove hand was severed when Bob Rhawn of the Cards went kiting into second with his spikes flying, and, although X-rays have shown the bone was not fractured, the finger must remain in splints for an indefinite period.

For the time being at least, manager Joe McCarthy plans to hold the second base job open for Gordon's return and to leave George Stirnweiss on third, meanwhile, using available substitutes. Yesterday, for instance, the keystone was occupied by Tony Sabol, who played outfield for Kansas City last season.

Coach John Schulte, who was in charge of the team while McCarthy looked over his "B" squad at Bradenton, pointed out that either Frankie Crosetti or Oscar Grimes probably could play second acceptably, though neither had any experience at the position.

Briefs From Training Camps

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 21—(AP)— Tony Sabol, subbing at second base for the injured Joe Gordon, failed to impress yesterday as New York Yankees took a drubbing from Cleveland. He went hitless and his defensive work left a lot to be desired.

Daytona Beach, Fla. — Although rookie outfielder Gene Hermanski is hitting only a measly .120, manager Leo Durocher of Brooklyn Dodgers still thinks highly of him.

Miami, Fla. — Pitcher Bob Joyce is the leading twirler in the New York Giant camp. In 13 innings he has yielded only two runs on 10 hits. He has struck out six and issued one base on balls.

Lakeland, Fla. — Second base, third base and centre field were the big question marks in Detroit Tigers' lineup today with the opening of the American League race less than a month away. Eddie Mayo, Tigers' second baseman last year, and Barney McCosky, pre-war centrefielder, are on the invalid list for the time being and Pinky Higgins is beginning to show a little wear and tear at third base.

Fort Lauderdale, Fla. — Convinced by Boston Braves' owners that he has no chance of obtaining infielders Marty Marion or Whitey Kurowski from St. Louis Cardinals, manager Billy Southworth will try to make the best of it with another infield switch.

St. Petersburg, Fla. — St. Lolus Cardinals' 9-6 victory over Boston Red Sox yesterday, their heaviest attack of the spring training season, was marred by another St. Louis casualty. Outfielder Bill Endicott bruised his right cheek bone and injured his hand when he crashed into the left field fence making a spectacular catch of Bobby Doerr's long drive in the seventh inning.

St. Petersburg, Fla. — Joe Gordon, New York Yankees' star second baseman who was spiked in the left hand in a game against St. Louis Cardinals yesterday, will have x-rays taken today to determine whether there is a fracture.

Orlando, Fla. — Not in years have Washington Senators had a good second base combination but it's different this spring. Cecil Travis and Gerry Priddy have been turning in from two to four double plays regularly, removing one of manager Ossie Bluege's biggest worries.

Lakeland, Fla. — Detroit Tigers today sent first baseman Johnny McHale of Buffalo, of the Interprovincial League, on 24-hour option. McHale hit 22 home runs for Buffalo last season.

Sarasota, Fla.—Southpaw Mickey Harris has been elected to be the first to go the full nine-inning route for Boston Red Sox today against St. Louis Cardinals.

Miami, Fla., General manager Herb Pennock of Philadelphia Phillies said reports that the Phils were dickering with St. Louis Cardinals for third baseman Whitey Kurowski, a holdout, and pitcher Harry Brecheen were strictly rumors.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By GEORGE H. CARVER.

If the result of that Montreal Royals-Ottawa Senators game on Monday night is any criterion, then King Clancy must have been leaning a little toward the old home town when he predicted the Sens would take the Royals in the finals of the Quebec Senior Hockey loop. The Royals deluged the Senators beneath an avalanche of ten goals right in the King's home town.

And standing out like a bandaged thumb on a Southern chimney sweep was a slim chappie whose hockey ability is well-known to fans of this city and district. He is Paul Raymond, the "slippery eel" of the Trenton R.C.A.F. team which cavorted around the Hume Arena in plenty of hockey high jinks last winter.

The elusive Paul, whose uncanny ability of dodging checkers and handling a hockey shillalagh, rated him as one of the best ice artists to appear around these parts in some time, was no small cog in the rampaging Royals' victory machine. He and his linemates, Pete Morin, and Denis Casavant, b'gar, scored five of the Montreal goals with Paul getting one and being credited with three assists.

Raymond has a hockey shift that would make a flyweight boxer go green with envy. Last winter here he was a playmaker extraordinary and his sudden swoops from nowhere to the goalkeeper's doorstep left many a surprised net guardian fishing around in the twine for the rubber.

The scene now shifts to Montreal where Royals are hosts to Senators Friday and Saturday. The fourth game will be played in Ottawa next Tuesday.

Montreal sportswriters are nodding in unison after the Canadiens' sparkling 6-2 win over the Flying Hawks of Chicago Tuesday night for previous to the joust they had spilled over their columns with prognostications that the Canucks would take the Hawks in their stride and then go on to cop the Stanley pewter in more or less easy fashion.

They took the first round O.K. but whether their guesses built on the all-round play of the Montrealers over the National Hockey League season, will hold good for the remainder of the playoffs remains to be seen. There's many a slip twixt the cup and the lip chums, and remember, 1945.

Canadiens and Hawks clash again in Montreal tonight with the teams moving to the Windy City for the next two tilts March 24 and 26. If further games are needed they will be played in Montreal March 28, in Chicago, March 31 and back in Montreal April 2.

With that all-important first game in the bag by a 3-1 score the Boston Bruins take on the Detroit Red Wings again tonight in Beantown. The teams joust again in Detroit's Olympia on March 24 and 26 and if necessary in Boston March 28; Detroit, March 31 and at Boston, April 2. All games will be played to a finish with the first game in overtime deciding the contest.

Stately Albert Hall, palace of boxing over in deah ole Lunnon, where in the old days the thud of leather on flesh and the swish of gloves flying through the air drowned out any verbal displays on the part of the "audience" rang to strange sounds the other night.

And well it might for Jackie Paterson, Glasgow flyweight champion of the world and bantamweight title holder of the British Empire, was lying on the ropes apparently badly beaten, when his opponent Theo Medina of Paris, eager for the kill swung a low blow which the referee ruled below the belt.

Paterson had taken three counts of nine and was more or less a punching bag for the Frenchman who in his eagerness drove a terrific punch to the Paterson stomach. For some time afterwards the champion lay on the canvas unconscious and had to be carried to his dressing room. Medina, with the title almost in his grasp cried unashamedly in the middle of the ring, as sedate Britishers forgot their usual sports stoicism and cheered the Frenchman.

And believe it or not, a few "free fights" started up in various parts of the Hall, but were soon quelled. After which, no doubt all concerned shook hands and went out for a spot of tea.

Dan Parker, distinguished sports writer of N'Yawk, has written quite a piece in the current issue of the Satevepost anent Nat Fleischer, "Mr. Boxing", the editor of the "Ring" mag. In his story Parker writes that Fleischer has in his safe a signed confession from Jack Johnson that he took a dive in his heavyweight championship fight against huge Jess Willard in Havana, Cuba, in April, 1915. Says he bought the document for $250 and it has rested there ever since. Fleischer never published the confession and has turned down several offers from Johnson to buy it back, because the fighter had received more attractive offers from other sources.

Ralph McCabe, tall right-hander of this city who was bought outright by the Cleveland Indians last year from Wilkes Barre of the Eastern League, has been optioned to the Baltimore Orioles of the International Loop. Mack trained with the Tribe at Clearwater, Florida, since Feb. 20, but Manager Leo Boudreau figured he needed a little more seasoning. With Mack went Johnny Ward an outfielder who came up with him from the Wilkes Barre club. Both boys are training at present in Hollywood, Florida, with the Orioles.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Vancouver, March 21. (CP)— More racing days for each track is the slogan of the B.C. Turf Club which invaded the Vancouver scene this year with a $1,500,000 investment.

Al Hardy, general manager of the Club, began his campaign with a petition to the British Columbia Legislature for support in obtaining revision of those clauses in the Criminal Code which limit Canadian tracks to 14 days of racing each year.

The Club, which includes Bing Crosby, Pat O'Brien and C. S. Howard among its better-known stockholders, contends that a "reasonable increase" in the number of racing days allowed each track will attract better horses through bigger purses, provide better competition and build up the breeding industry.

There's a new deal brewing for lacrosse in Vancouver and New Westminster this season. . . Three of last year's commissioners Attorney-General R. L. Maitland, Byron Johnson and Dan McKenzie—were unable to spare any time for the sport. . . The other commissioner, Jim McConaghy, did most of the work but some if the clubs were dissatisfied. . . The guessing is that none will be back and Lyle Barr, more publicity-conscious than McConaghy, is almost certain to be on the new commission.

Freddie Smitten turned in one of the outstanding performances in the Pacific Coast Hockey League this season. . . . The slightly built forward from Edmonton didn't get a penalty in 55 games which was all the more impressive in view of Freddie's 37 goals and 27 assists which put him 12th among point makers.

Sports Roundup

New York, March 21 — (AP)— Spring sports on the slightly silly side: . . . The Handicap Yacht Racing Group on Long Island Sound met the other night and decided to waive the ban on "whisker poles," but only for one season . . . Not long ago there was a furore over a "ringer" in a dog show . . . "Harry James, the band leader, had his mare Velvet Horns flown from San Diego to his ranch near Los Angeles to be sure she would be at home when a blessed event took place . . . and in New Orleans boxer Patsy Spatano slugged a referee a couple of times and was promptly suspended and fined because his conduct was "not in the best interests of boxing."

Observation Post

Sam Nahem, former Phillies pitcher, has asked for voluntary retirement and plans to go into the lace business . . . probably the holes remind him of the infields that used to play behind him in Philadelphia.

ODDS LENGTHEN ON CANADIENS TO TAKE SERIES

Chicago Black Hawks Feeling the Loss of Wares, Who is Out for Series

Montreal, March 21 — (CP) — Montreal Canadiens' victory in the first game of the semi-final Stanley Cup play-off series with Chicago Black Hawks has lengthened the odds offered by Montreal bookies from 13-5 to 14-5 for tonight's game — the second of a best-of-seven series.

The same bookmakers are offering even money that Habitants will take the Stanley Cup.

The Black Hawks, are feeling the loss of Eddie Wares, Chicago defenceman, who it appears will be out for the entire series. Red Hamill played Tuesday night, but he had a painfully injured knee.

Coach Johnny Gottselig said mournfully: "That's our trouble. We've got the kneeitis. The Bentleys and Billy Mosienko have sore knees too."

Dick Irvin was a bit more cheerful, although he too had to cope with injuries. Leo Lamoureux jostled his shoulder which he injured a few weeks ago, Glen Harmon wrenched a knee, and Maurice Richard sported a black eye and a cut over it, which resulted when he was hooked by Don Grosso's stick.

Meanwhile Dick is sporting a beef about the attitude of the Chicago fans during Canadiens' last game at Chicago in the National Hockey League schedule. There was too much interference, he says, and Canadiens were subjected to a great deal of abuse. Referee Frank (King) Clancy was attacked by a spectator.

After tonight's game, the series moves to Chicago for the third and fourth games, Sunday and Tuesday.

Boston, March 21 — (AP) — Determined to continue the solid checking tactics that gave them the opener of their National Hockey League playoff series with the Red Wings by a 3-1 margin, Boston Bruins had high hopes of moving on to Detroit after tonight's games at the Boston Garden with a second straight victory in that best-of-seven games competition.

Manager Art Ross, who appeared well satisfield with his players' performances here Tuesday night said he would depend on the same stickmen for the second game.

Capable Eddie Bruneteau, who has been ailing with a cracked rib, is ready to go again. Adams was undecided about starting him in his usual right wing opening berth or utilizing him as one of his two spare forwards.

Ross credited the Bruins' victory to typical playoff hockey, which calls for stiff checking from end-to-end and up and back.

The setback failed to daunt Adams and his Red Wings. He called it a "typical Boston-Detroit game overflowing with give-and-take."

Hamilton Mile Captured By Leslie MacMitchell

Hamilton, Ont., March 21 (CP) —The invitation mile, feature of the Hamilton A.A.A.'s 91st annual track meet last night, was captured as expected by Leslie MacMitchell of New York, but the ace miler didn't even threaten the Canadian record, much less the international mark.

MacMitchell beat a small field in the time of 4.18.2, compared with the Canadian mark of 4.16.6 established in the same meet 11 years ago by Glen Cunningham. The first quarter was run in 1.04, the half in 2.16 and the three-quarters in 3.21.

Thomas V. Quinn, also of New York, finished second and Bart Ross of Buffalo third.

Another United States star, Stella Walsh of Cleveland, romped off with the 60 yards women's race in 7.3 seconds, with Jean Woods of the Toronto Laurel Ladies A.C. second and R. Harrigan of Toronto Laurel third. The Cleveland Polish star had easily captured her previous heat in 7.4.

Miss Walsh's Cleveland relay team was beaten by the Laurel Club in the girls' 40-yard relay, the Laurel team finishing in 56.6 seconds.

W. C. Mack of the Michigan State College at Lansing won the 1,000 yard race in 2.06.6 with J. Taylor of the University of Toronto second and G. Gillespie of McGill third.

LESSON NO. 941

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

When a small card is led, what's the thought that takes root? That the leader has three higher cards in that suit. With the lower type cards, this is all very fine. But it will not apply when the lead is a nine.

The order of choice of leads is tops, longies, shorts. Tops are honor card leads from big card groups. So, first choice of leads is from bunches containing A K, K Q, Q J, J 10, or 10 9.

From longies (four cards or more) with no top lead, the fourth best is led. This tells you that a small card (lower than a ten) lead shows three higher cards of that suit in the leader's hand.

However, the lead of a nine is one small card that is never a fourth best. That is definite. Because any group of three cards that are higher than nine has a sequence from which a top is led.

Wanna see for yourself? What three cards higher than a nine can you find in any suit? A K Q, A K J, A K 10, K Q J, K Q 10, Q J 10, A Q J, A J 10, K J 10, or A Q 10.

From the first five, the king is led. From the next two, lead the queen. From the next two, the jack is led. From the last, lead the ten as the top of the sequence portion of 10 9.

Thus, a nine lead is never a fourth best. So, its lead denies being a long suit. From a short, lead the highest. So, a nine lead admits being the highest of a short (three cards or less.)

Knowing such things automatically saves wear and tear on your brain in the midst of a game. It leaves your mind free to concentrate on other matters that may require figuring out.

Against four spades, it is your opening lead from this hand:

♠Q 7 2
♥K 6 4
♣9 6 2

If you lead the club nine you say it is your highest club.

Some partners think it pays to be ignorant.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, March 21. (AP)—Some people have to go far away to find success in their own home town. Eugene List went to Potsdam, Germany.

List, who spent most of his boyhood in Los Angeles, is the young pianist who played for Messrs. Truman, Stalin, Attlee, Churchill and Molotov at the Potsdam Conference. Now he has arrived back in his home town to appear in the Andrew Stone production, "The Bachelor's Daughters."

"This is all very new to me," he said. "The last time I was in a studio was when I watched Edward G. Robinson make 'Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet.' Why, I haven't even met Mr. Stone yet. He doesn't even know if I can act."

List is a personable young guy and quite articulate. He is no Van Johnson, but makeup will make him plenty okay for the femme trade. His role will require him to act as well as play the piano.

Frank Morgan bought Humphrey Bogart's house for $35,000 and is renting it at $500 a month. . . .Esther Williams will be hostess at a bullfighting exhibition by the star, Manolette, in the Hollywood Bowl in June—but there will be no bull . . . Jean Sablon, the Gallic Crosby, soon will be taking his first trip home since the start of the war.

KILT WILL REMAIN

Ottawa, March 21 (CP)— Defence Minister Abbott said yesterday in the Commons that the kilt will continue to be authorized for walking out purposes, but that battledress will be used for operational duty. He was replying to Maj. Leslie Mutch (L-Winnipeg South), a veteran of the two Great Wars and a wearer of the kilt as a member of the Queens Own Cameron Highlanders.

Kurowski Holdout Begins to Look Like Real Thing

Would Not be Surprising if He is Traded or Sold to Another Club

By GAYLE TALBOT

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 20—(AP)—The holdout of George Kurowski, crack Cardinals third baseman is beginning to look like real article, and it would not be traded shortly to another National League Club.

President Sam Breadon of the Cards is beginning to appear irritated when Kurowski's name comes up. In the past that has proved a pretty accurate sign that some St. Louis player was about to change uniforms.

Kurowski, who led the cards in hitting last year with a .323 average and is one of the best third-basemen playing today, is serious in his intention of not playing for the team again at the sort of pay he has been receiving.

It is generally thought his contract last year called for approximately $10,000. It is known he was offered an increase, but it must not have been nearly enough. Kurowski feels he is worth somewhere close to the $16,000 being drawn by shortstop Marty Marion.

He knows, too, that he could draw that kind of money, or even more, from several other National League outfits.

As for the St. Louis club's position, it probably could scrape along without Kurowski and still win the pennant, though its third-basing would not be of as high calibre as it has enjoyed. At the present time, Al Schoendienst and Ervin Dusak are taking turns playing the position in exhibition games.

DALLAS TEXANS CLOSE WITH WIN

Dallas Texas closed their home schedule in the United States Hockey League Wednesday with a 5-1 victory over the first-place Kansas City Pla-Mors. The Texans are tied with Fort Worth Rangers for fifth league position.

Meanwhile the last-place Minneapolis Millers came from behind to gain a 8-8 tie with Omaha Knights. The Millers, on the short end of an 8-4 score at the beginning of the final period, rattled in three tallies within 28 seconds at one point and scored a period-opener to force the contest into a scoreless overtime period.

The Kansans were in no danger of a shut-out in their bout with the Texans. They opened the scoring with a marker by Hank Blade which was counteracted by Dallas' Pete Kapusta. Dallas scored twice more in each of the last two frames, meanwhile holding back any Kansas threats on their nets.

Fighter Wins Title While On the Floor

London, March 20 — (CP) — Jackie Paterson, Scottish holder of the world's flyweight championship, today also possessed the European bantamweight crown although he was unconscious on the floor when the 118-pound title was awarded him on a foul.

The little Glasgow battler had been battered to the canvas three times for nine counts in the eighth round of his 15-round bout with defending European bantamweight champion Theo Medina last night when the Frenchman dropped him again with a punch to the stomach.

Paterson crumpled to the floor and was unconscious when referee Moss Deyong ruled Medina's blow was low and awarded Paterson the fight and championship by a foul.

INVESTIGATE ALLEGED PLOT

Detroit, March 21 (AP)— The Detroit Free Press last night said police are investigating an alleged plot to poison Edward Cardinal Mooney of Detroit during a March 12 civic banquet in his honor.

The newspaper said Police Commissioner John F. Ballenger, described the plot as "hatched in the mind of a religious fanatic whose plans were balked by prompt and thorough investigation."

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 20—(CP)—Secretaries of the England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales Football Associations held a "hush hush" meeting at Stoke recently and sports writers were unanimous in predicting a British soccer championship forerunner to a world championship, will be held in 1947.

Henry Rose, writing in The London Daily Express said a conference in April of representatives of the four associations would consider a knock-out tournament to be played for by eight clubs — four from England and Wales, three from Scotland and one from Ireland.

Never in the history of Irish greyhound racing have there been so many dogs in the country. Although the coursing season has been extended, officials have had to refuse many entries.

The reason for the high pressure greyhound breeding is that Irish owners are looking forward confidently to a big demand for the dogs from the United States.

Shipping companies are set for the new trade. The United States Lines says "arrangements have been completed for the shipment of greyhounds to the United States" and Irish Shipping Ltd., is ready to take dogs to New York and Boston.

Thomas Bulmer, secretary of Durham county cricket club for 40 years, died at his Fence Houses, Durham, home after a heart attack. He was a well-known figure in minor counties cricket circles.

G. L. Parnell of The Schoolhouse, Ludlow, Shropshire, won £10,189 ($45,850) in a football pool, but says he is to continue his work in the Ludlow taxation office.

Mr. Parnell, 69, says "life is much too interesting and besides it would be very unwise for a man of my age to give up his job."

Just to prove greyhound racing is "big business" in Britain, one dog, Wolverton Grenadier, was sold recently for £1,000 ($4,500). The Grenadier is hailed as the outstanding dog in the game.

Eddie Hapgood, former Arsenal and England football captain, is causing a little stir in soccer circles. Manager of Blackburn Rovers in League North, he turned out for his club against Leeds and helped them to a 4-1 victory in a recent weekend match.

The Arsenal management said they did not wish to cause trouble but pointed out Rovers are out of order in not seeking permission for Hapgood to play. The Arsenal protest is based on the theory Hapgood, as a manager, has not been registered with the Football League as a Blackburn player and if he received more than £9 ($40.50), maximum paid for first-class players, any week from his club he is breaking league rules. But Hapgood insists he receives only his "managerial wage and nothing additional as a player."

Collingwood Team Defeats Kingston

Barrie, March 21 (Special) — Taking advantage of an opposition penalty to rap home two fast goals in the third period, Collingwood defeated Kingston 9 to 6 in the first of a best two-in-three game O.H.A. intermediate playoff series here Wednesday night. Second contest will be held in Kingston Saturday evening.

A gathering of 2,000 witnessed a keen argument in which C. Sandell, defense ace, paced the victors with three goals. Davie and McGuire bagged two apiece while top sniper for Kingston was winger Catlin, who bagged three in a row in the third period. Carr-Harris was also to the fore with two tallies.

Collingwood — Goal, Westbrooke; defense, C. Butters and C. Sandell; centre, Bowen; wings, Davie and Scott; alternates, Kirby, White, R. Sandell, Livingston, G. Butters and McGuire.

Kingston—Goal, Udall; defense, Watts and Scuton; centre, Partis; wings, Catlin and Carr-Harris; alternates, McGregor, Murphy, Aitken, McNaught, Nicholson and Lay.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press)

Bobby Riggs and Don Budge acted as spokesmen, at New York last night, in behalf of the cash-tennis participants of the United States by declaring that the court sport needs a tournament organization like the Professional Golfers Association. It may develop in the newly-formed Players Professional Association, they thought.

Sweden will continue to hold the mile-run record if the marks registered by professionalized Gunder Haegg and Arne Andersson are wiped off the amateur books, it was maintained yesterday from Swedish sources. The time of 4:03.8 made by Runo Person in running third to the expelled pair last summer at Malmoe would be the new record.

President Ivor Montagu of the English Table Tennis Association said at London yesterday several European countries had recommended the inclusion of the indoor pastime in the Olympic Games program. He added, however, he was personally opposed to the proposed move.

Defenceman Jack Portland reported to Montreal N.H.L. Canadiens yesterday, following his discharge from the Canadian overseas army. The Collingwood, Ont., player said he would not return to the Habitants' lineup until next season, however.

Texans Riled Over Assertion British Golfers

Fort Worth, Texas, March 21—(AP) — When you-all start casting aspersions on Texans' golf, podner, it's trodding on troublesome ground.

That's what English critics, who had some snippy remarks to make about Byron Nelson's game, have run into.

A couple of British sportsmen said they were anxious to play Nelson "for any amount of money he cares to put down" and other professional golfers on the tight little isle discredited Lord Byron's low scores.

The Lone Star boys immediately put money on the line—$10,000, then $50,000. J. Myer Schine, owner of the Boca Raton Club near Miami, Fla., also got into the swim, saying he would offer an additional $10,000.

And, says Dr. Alden Coffey, president of the Fort Worth Golf Association and a staunch backer of those two torrid golfing Texans, Nelson and Ben Hogan, everybody down here wants in an it.

"Phone calls have come from several points wanting a slice of the bet and it looks like we could go to several hundred thousand dollars without much trouble," said Dr. Coffey who suggested that the British critics name their best two-players to meet Byron and Ben, with on match in England, one in Fort Worth and the third on any neutral course.

So, podner, it's "put up or shut up" for the British. These Texans are riled.

"DINA CASHMAN"

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

CHAPTER 9

"I don't envy you your mother-in-law! Yes, I'll help you. Oh, and by the way, in his letters from the South," Rogers said, an odd expression taking possession of his round face as he looked critically at a stamp, "did Vere happen to mention the bride and groom?"

"The—the bride and groom?" she stammered.

"The Andrew Havenses," the man said briefly.

"No. No; he said that his mother had lots of friends down there. But he didn't mention any names." Dina was completely bewildered.

"Mrs. Havens was Aline Pierpont; we were all kids here together," Rogers explained. "I was always crazy about her. Her first husband was a man named Pollack, and she has a couple of kids by him. I wasn't married until after she was, although I'm a few years older. I suppose I sort of hoped that she—"

He paused, began again. "Well, anyway, after some years she divorced Pollack and married an awfully clever doctor in New York, Rosenstirn," he went on. "My wife, Anna, was an invalid then; I didn't see anything of Aline for some time. But after my wife's death she came back here to divorce Rosenstirn, and last summer we began to go around together. In November we told our friends we were going to be married—two weeks from today, as it happens."

"Ah!" Dina exclaimed involuntarily, her lips parted and her eyes wide.

"Just a month ago," Rogers said unemotionally, lifting a stamp in his tweezers to peer at it, putting it gently down again, "she changed her mind and married Andrew Havens, the artist. I'm entertaining them a week from tonight."

He leaned back in his chair, clasped his fingers on his chest, looked across at her amiably.

"I wouldn't do that!" Dina said indignantly.

"You wouldn't? Well, she asked me to," Rogers went on. "She made a point of it. I've invited quite a group of old friends to come here and share the delightful domestic picture of bliss she and Havens will present. She wants us all to like her new husband, she says he and I are great friends. She'll wear one of the costumes she bought in New York last Autumn to wear as my wife. And I'll have to be very gracious when she shows us all the cute little wave in his hair and tells us what he likes for breakfast."

He stopped short, making a wry mouth, investigating a desk drawer. Dina breathed hard.

"I wouldn't do it!" she said again, red-cheeked.

"Well, I'm going to. I wish I knew some perfectly stunning woman, say around forty," Rogers added ruminatingly. "An actress—someone who could wear an evening gown—who wasn't too obviously ungrammatical— wait a minute!"

"Take off your hat, will you?" he asked. "Thank you. Wait just a minute."

He leaned over and rang a bell three times. Dina watched him in bewilderment. Neither spoke again until a middle aged, trim, stout woman entered the room.

"Did you ring, Mr. Holland?" the newcomer asked.

"I did. Will you look at Miss Cashman, Mrs. Bucket? I want to ask you something."

The woman obeyed with a friendly smile. The smile in its own lenience seemed to ask Dina's indulgence too.

The woman smiled again toward Dina, after a dubious look at her employer, and said in a faintly reproachful and faintly amused tone:

"She'd look very lovely, with that hair and her eyes being so blue. Is she your cousin Mary's daughter, Mr. Holland?"

"No; no relation," he answered briefly. And then, in a business-like tone: "Do you think you could take her into San Francisco tomorrow and buy her that sort of a dress?"

"Why, certainly," the woman said after a keen glance at him to see if he was joking.

"I'd like," he said, "to introduce her to Mrs. Pollock—to Mrs. Havens, rather, on Thursday night."

A great light came into Mrs. Bucket's eyes and a certain grim, satisfied tightening to her mouth.

"I see, sir," she said.

"You'd do that, wouldn't you?" Rogers said to Dina with his characteristic grin.

"Do what?" Dina asked, looking from one to the other.

"Come to my dinner party on Thursday night," he told her. "Be dressed, be quiet, be a mystery to them all. Steal her thunder. I'll introduce you— what did you say your first name is?"

"Dina. Geraldine," she said.

"Geraldine; ah, that's better! Miss Geraldine Cashman, a friend of mine. Look," Rogers said persuasively, in the pleasantest and most sympathetic manner she had yet seen him use "I'm doing something for you. You'll do this for me?"

"But—but I couldn't talk to those people!" Dina protested.

"You wouldn't have to talk. None of them's ever seen you. None of them knows a thing about you. All you have to do when anyone speaks to you is either say 'yes' or 'no' or look over at me and smile. I'll do the talking. I'll send the car for you, and Mrs. Bucket here will go home with you, won't you, Mrs. Bucket, when the party is over?"

"I couldn't dress at my house," Dina further objected. "We haven't—we haven't even a bathroom."

"You can dress here."

"If you think I could do it."

"There would be nothing to do. You would be simply one more guest at my dinner, and when Hall drives you home I hand you a check for—well, whatever we decide. Thanks, Mrs. Bucket," Rogers said with a careless nod. He picked up his magnifying glass, studied a stamp attentively.

"There's only one thing I'd want you to do, Geraldine," he went on when they were alone, "and that's to get Mrs. Pollock—Mrs. Havens she is now—wondering about you. That's all. I want her to ask herself, 'Who's this girl Rogers seems to know so well?' Just be easy, just refer anything that stumps you to me.

"She's thirty-four, Aline is, and she's jealous as the devil. She's always wanted to know everything, wanted to be first. And by the way, you musn't mention Vere. You're my friend that night."

"I'll not mention Vere," Dina agreed somberly.

"Meanwhile I'll write Caroline—Vere's mother. I'll stir her up a little, see what's going on. It won't accomplish anything, though.

"And you think," she said anxiously, "that I might go on to New Haven and see him? You think that's what I ought to do?"

He looked thoughtful for a moment, picked up a stamp with a delicate tweezer tip. His tone was unconcerned.

"That, of course, you'd have to decide."

"A month ago," Dina protested, against a rising sensation of despair, "I'd have said he'd be glad to have come on. I'd have known that he cared the way I do! But now it's all so queer. We did talk of getting married—always that was the way he talked; in the beginning it was sort of understood. And especially that Sunday driving down from Paradise Valley.

"But now—since Christmas it's all been different. I've felt so sick all the time, as if I couldn't write him and laugh about things. And his letters"—Dina faltered, her eyes filling with tears—"His letters aren't the same!"

A silence. The man glanced at her with bulging eyes, busied himself again with his stamps.

"I can't help you out, I'm afraid," he said dryly.

Yawning gulfs of desolation seemed to be opening about Dina.

"Do you know his address at college, Mr. Holland?"

"No; haven't the faintest idea. I'm sorry Vere hasn't played a little bit handsomer part, but I've not ever been very close to him, although I've always liked the boy well enough. He's always seemed to me a decent young feller. Just how he'd act at a time like this I am sure that I couldn't say. His mother," he added with his eyes again narrowed and his smile grim, "is a splendid example of the queen cobra. I was an usher at my brother's wedding 25 years ago; I was 16. I met her that day I hated her at first sight. I knew then that she'd wreck Van's life, and she's done her best. She sees me now and then—knows the boy will come in for whatever I leave, in all probability—and that's why she did her best to break off my affair with Mrs. Havens. That doesn't interest you of course."

"It does," Dina said politely.

"Aline nd Caroline are great friends, and Caroline worked up this Havens match. She probably dictated the note Aline wrote me."

"But why should she break it off, since it was with her best friend?" Dina demanded, wide-eyed.

"Because of precious young Vere's coming in for my money," the man answered almost impatiently. "Because she hates me."

"Oh." Dina felt her spirits sinking. She did not belong in this group. She had no claim on them. The futility of traveling three thousand miles to see Vere came over her like a cold wave.

And yet, to see him again, to hear his laugh again, to feel his hand covering hers—ah, that would be to live once more! There was no other way. Dina got to her feet. "You arrange with Mrs. Bucket about going into town," he said. "And remember, if you get stuck, just smile as if you knew all about everything and look at me. Good-bye, Geraldine."

"It's good of him," she was entranced, staring at a photograph of Vere that was on a table.

"You may have that if you like," the man said, "I've others."

"No. no, thank you," Dina said. "I'd rather he gave me one himself."

"You'd rather what?"

Her head was high. She faced the man, half turning, her cheeks blazing.

"He's never given me one," she said.

"All right, Geraldine," Rogers Holland said. "I think you and I are going to understand each other."

Ten minutes later she was out in the sharp Winter cold, walking toward the bus.

"I am doing something," she said half aloud. "I am doing something. Perhaps if you do something it changes things. Perhaps there will be a letter from Vere at the store!"

"Letter there for you," Frances Tack said when Dina was back at the desk in the grocery. Dina's heart leaped. She took it with hands that trembled.

It was a short letter, scribbled in ink on one side of a thick square pake. Dina read it twice. Then she put it back in the envelope and put the envelope in the breast pocket of her sweater. A moment later she was back at work.

"You look queer, Dina," said Frances, slamming cans and packages into a tall brown paper bag. "Headache?"

"No. I'm all right," Dina answered. She cleared her throat, for the first effort at speech was unintelligible. I'm all right," she repeated.

Rogers' driver, Hall, met Dina at the Bonita Station, or rather at the open weather-beaten shed that did duty as a station, just a week later.

The car rushed smoothly up the wide highway, turned at the bridge crossing, moved steadily westward on the rise of the hills, and took the road that climbed through Belmont.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was reeding her nervous book, the name of it being Relaxation, the Key to Happiness, and pop said, How's your tooth, when's your appointment with the dentist?

Tomorrow morning, although my tooth doesn't actually pane me, it's more like a gentle constant throbbing, ma said, and pop said, I see, a sort of a soft and soothing stabbing.

It's just a simple cavity to be filled, and I'd almost look fallward to it with pleasure if it wasn't for the drilling, ma said. That's why I'm concentrating on my relaxing. If I can just sit in that dentist chair in compleet mental, moral and fizzical relaxation, the dentist can drill to his heart's content while I smile to myself in perfect comfort, she said, and pop said, A nice wide open smile.

All discomfort is caused by muscular tension, that's the universal principal in a nutshell, ma said. Oh my goodness well of all things, she said, and pop said, What's happened now?

Something has stopped happening, that's the strange thing, ma said. My tooth has stopped bothering me completely, she said, and pop said, That's fine, if it stays asleep till tomorrow, it may not give you any bother at all when you have it filled.

But that's just the trouble, William, in that case it wont be any test at all for my powers of relaxation, ma said. I'm going to call up the dentist and ask him to postpone the appointment, she said, and pop said, But yee gods, you cant tell the man you're going to neglect a cavity because it's stopped herting.

Well naturelly I'll be more diplomatic than that, ma said, I'll simply say that the whole incident may of been a figment of my imagination and that I'll let him know at some future date if there's anything to let him know, she said.

NO DECISION UNTIL APRIL 9

Brantford, March 20 —(CP)—The question of whether an operation for sterilization will be permitted in the Brantford General Hospital will not be decided before April 9, Graham Stratford, chairman of the hospital's board of governors announced yesterday. The matter will be discussed at the regular meeting of the board.

OVER 100 MILLION BOTTLES SOLD! VERY EFFECTIVE FOR MONTHLY PAIN

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound DOES MORE than relieve monthly pain when due to female functional periodic disturbances. It also relieves accompanying weak, tired, nervous, cranky feelings—of such nature. Pinkham's Compound is a uterine sedative—one of the most effective medicines you can buy to relieve such symptoms.

"SYNTONA HAS BEEN A GREAT HELP TO ME—I FEEL YEARS YOUNGER"

"Relieved Stomach Disorders, Rheumatic Pain; Nerves Are Relaxed and I Sleep Sound At Night."

Mrs. Nellie Gaymer, 26 Erie St., St. Thomas, Ont., is glad to pass her experience along to others, because she knows what it has meant to her to get relief from long-standing stomach disorders, severe rheumatic pain, nervousness and disturbed sleep. It will pay every man or woman suffering in a similar manner to read carefully her inspiring message.

"I suffered with stomach disorders, constipation and sluggish kidneys for almost 12 years," said Mrs. Gaymer.

"I used to be terribly distressed with gas, bloating and sour acid risings after my meals. I was subject to spells of heartburn between meals and a feeling like there was a lump in my throat. Sometimes I got dizzy spells and sick headaches. Then rheumatic pains set in my arms, limbs and joints. I developed a nagging dull pain across my back. My kidneys were acting too freely and frequently disturbed my sleep at night. I became extremely nervous and worried over my condition.

"After taking many different things without benefit, I decided to try Syntona and I can truthfully say nothing has ever done so much for me.

MRS. NELLIE GAYMER

It relieved the troubles with my stomach so that I enjoy my meals once more. I am now free from rheumatic pain and backache and I do not have to get up during the night. Also my nerves are calmed down and my sleep is more restful than it has been in years. Syntona has been a great help to me and I feel years younger.

Counsel Argues Technicalities In Carefoot Case

Lengthy three-way verbal discussion on the technicalities involving informations charging E. M. Carefoot, 201 MacDonald Ave., under Section 405 of the Canadian Criminal Code, involving medical practice was heard in county police court before Magistrate T. Y. Wills, Thursday morning, when defence counsel, Malcolm Robb moved for dismissal of the informations.

Arrested Tuesday evening by Provincial Police on three separate charges, Mr. Carefoot was arraigned in court this morning following which counsel for the accused moved for dismissal of the informations on the grounds that they were "bad informations" under the code.

Assistant Crown Attorney S. Gordon Robertson asked for an enlargement of the case to give him an opportunity to prepare argument, while defence counsel Robb pressed for dismissal. Following his arrest defendant was released from custody on $2,000 bail.

Action of police in seizing electrical equipment allegedly used by Mr. Carefoot in connection with treatment of patients was also protested by defence counsel who claimed the equipment was being held illegally by police. Counsel held that under a search warrant seized goods must be carried before a Justice of the Peace in whose custody the goods must be kept. According to Mr. Robb this was not the case, while he also claimed he had not access to the equipment which was his right as defence counsel as result it was held the accused was being prejudiced.

It was brought out at the proceedings that action will be taken by the accused before Supreme Court in Toronto Friday morning to have the seized equipment restored to the owner.

In argument against defence counsel Assistant Crown Attorney Robertson held that the Crown had not been unfair in the case and that the accused had been granted bail when requested.

Enlargement of the case until Saturday followed.

RUSS SECURITY POLICE IN CANADA COURT TOLD

Stalin Sees 'Great Significance in U.N.O.'

Leader Blames Activities Of Groups for Fear Today

London, March 22 —(AP)— Generalissimo Stalin has told the Associated Press "I attribute great significance to the United Nations Organization," the Moscow radio said today. The Soviet leader was interviewed by correspondent Eddy Gilmore, who asked him what significance he attributed to the United Nations as a means of preserving international peace.

"That means," the Russian leader added, "that the present fear of war is caused not from that quarter. I think that the present fear of war is caused by the activities of certain political groups who occupy themselves with propaganda for a new war and who are thereby sowing the seeds of discord and lack of confidence."

The Moscow radio said that Eddy Gilmore, Associated Press correspondent, asked Premier Stalin what significance he attributed to the United Nations as a means of preserving international peace, and Premier Stalin replied:

"I attribute great significance to the United Nations Organization since it is a serious instrument for the preservation of peace and international security.

"The strength of this international organization consists in the fact that it is based on the principle of the equality of the rights of states and not on the principles of the domination of some states over others.

Premier Stalin then was asked: "What should the governments of the freedom-loving countries now do for the preservation of peace and order in the whole world?"

The Moscow radio said the Russian Premier replied:

"It is necessary that the public and the ruling circles of the powers organize a wide counter-propaganda against the propagandists of a new war and for the insuring of peace so that not a single act of the propagandists of a new war should remain without due rebuff on the part of the public and press, so that the incendiaries of war may thus be exposed in good time and may have no chance of misusing freedom of speech against the interests of peace."

Court Escorted To View House

Paris, March 22 (AP)—Squads of police using wooden barriers held off a huge mob from the Rue Le Sueur today as the court trying Dr. Marcel Petiot on 27 murder counts visited his forbidding, delapidated mansion on that street in the fashionable Bois De Boulogne area of Paris.

Magistrates, jurors and witnesses left the Palace of Justice in a long convoy of motor cars to continue testimony on the scene after hearing a police official describe human remains found in the doctor's home two years ago.

Petiot bases his defence on assertions that he was a scourge of collaborators.

Two Paris policemen, Chief Inspector Louis Poirier and Lucien Pineau, Chief of the Homicide Squad, testified yesterday they could find no evidence to support Petiot's assertion that he belonged to a resistance group which "executed" traitors to France. The state has accused the 55-year-old physician of murdering persons who gave him money to help them escape from Nazi occupied France.

When the prosecution asserted that Petiot had refused to answer any question about the disappearance of three members of the Kneller family—Jewish refugees who disappeared in July, 1942, after they allegedly asked Petiot to smuggle them to the unoccupied zone of France—the dedendant roared:

"It is untrue, like most of what you say, It has been said I have left 362 questions unanswered. These questions have never been asked. I do not know if it is the habit of the justice to use such manners."

Six More Senior Appointments By Defence Hdqtrs.

Ottawa, March 22 — (CP)—As plans for Canada's six division peacetime reserve army near completion, defence headquarters today made six more senior appointments covering infantry, artillery and armored brigades.

The appointments:—

Brig. J. S. H. Lind, 37, D.S.O., a St. Mary's, Ont., manufacturer, wartime commander of the Perth Regiment, to command No. 2 infantry brigade at Military District No. 1, London.

Brig. D. G. Cunningham, 39, C.B.E., a Kingston lawyer, commander of the 9th Infantry Brigade overseas, and former commandant of the Royal Military College, to command No. 6 Infantry Brigade at Military District No. 6, Kingston.

Brig. F. D. Lace, 35, D.S.O., O.B.E., Toronto broker and former artillery staff officer at 1st. Army Headquarters, to be commander of artillery of the 2nd Division.

Brig. I. S. Johnston, 38, Toronto lawyer and variously overseas commander of the 48th Highlanders, the 11th Infantry Brigade and temporarily the 5th Armored Division, to command the 4th Infantry Brigade.

Ontario Farmers' Big Task In Growing Food

Woodstock, March 22 (CP) — Declaring that the war is not over for the farmers of Ontario, M. McIntyre Hood, director of publicity for the Ontario Department of Agriculture, told the Oxford Junior Farmers last night that millions of Europeans will die of starvation before fall.

To Ontario must go the task of providing the major portion of bacon, pork products, beef, cheese, eggs, milk products and poultry to these starving millions, be declared.

Rubber Bone Better For Child

London, Ont., March 22 (CP) —That rubber bone bought for the family dog could be used to much better advantage if given to the children, Dr. Roy Ellis, Professor of Dentistry at University of Toronto, told a service club last night. Proper teeth care could lengthen the, human life span by 10 years, he said.

First Loyalty of Canadian People To British Commonwealth of Nations

Lindsay, Ont., March 22 (CP) —Declaring that Canadians first loyalty is to the British Commonwealth of Nations, Dr. R. G. Wallace, Principal of Queen's University, Kingston, addressing the annual Ladies' Night at the Canadian Club here last night, predicted that "we will not likely hear again that voice which would break our relationship with the Empire."

Speaking on "Canada's new responsibilities," Dr. Wallace asserted that the nation occupies a high place in the eyes of the world by her achievements in scientific research, financial solidity and the exploits of the Canadian armed forces.

Referring to the Dominion's evolution from a nation of "hewers of wood and drawers of water" to a powerful industrial nation, the speaker predicted that Canada may have difficulty in maintaining her future export markets.

"We must keep up to our present level," he continued, "by the careful use of our natural resources and by advantages in scientific research."

THIRD DEGREE METHODS DENIED BY ST. LAURENT

Former Air Minister Calls Upon Canadians To Develop "Canadian Spirit"

By GEORGE KITCHEN

Ottawa, March 22 (CP)— The Commons last night heard a call to Canadians to develop a "Canadian spirit" which would bring "the right kind of loyalty to our institutions and to our nations."

The appeal came from Hon. C. G. Power, Liberal member for Quebec South and former Air Minister, who criticized the government for passage of the order-in-council authorizing the inquiry into the Soviet-sponsored spy ring in Canada.

Justice Minister St. Laurent told the House Commissioner S. T. Wood of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police had denied that "third degree" methods were used in the interrogation of persons held in the inquiry into Russian espionage activity in Canada.

He read a statement from Commissioner Wood describing as unfair and "ridiculous" reports that persons had been kept for six days and nights in rooms lighted continuously by bright lights. To provide illumination for guards, the rooms had been lighted at nights by shaded reading lamps.

The House gave first reading to a bill to more clearly define Canadian citizenship. The bill was similar to a measure given first reading at the last session of parliament but dropped from the order paper due to pressure of other business.

Mr. Power noted that the Royal Commission on espionage had reported some of the accused had declared themselves to have a loyalty greater than their loyalty to Canada, and said:

Says People at Fault

"We are at fault in this House for developing loyalties, whether they be to other lands or whether they be to certain sections of our land.

"When every man in this country has a loyalty to the country as boundless as are the acres of this country, when he is as much at home in Halifax as he is in Vancouver, in Quebec as he is in Toronto. when we have no such thing as sectionalism, then I believe it will be more difficult for wilful men to betray their country."

Mr. Diefenbaker called for an explanation from the government as to how those now accused in the Soviet spy inquiry had come to be appointed in government positions of trust where they had access to secret and confidential information.

Mr. Diefenbaker, the only Progressive Conservative member from Saskatchewan, urged that the government defer the proposed redistribution of seats in the House until a census could be made in Manitoba and Saskatchewan. Otherwise, those provinces would lose more seats than they should in the reshuffle.

Urged Boiling Water Be Thrown on Allied Pilots Who Bailed Out

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Aurich, Germany, March 22 — (CP Cable) — Pamphlets urging that boiling water be thrown on Allied pilots who bailed out of their planes and "everything possible should be done to destroy them," were issued at Nazi party meetings, a witness told the R.C.A.F. war crimes trial today.

He was Joseph Linsebolz, present burgomaster of Oberweiler, Bavaria, testifying against his predecessor in office, Wilhelm Junge, who, Linsebolz said, ordered the killing in July, 1944, of an unnamed Canadian airman.

Linsebolz also testified that the other accused, Johann Schumacher, after first refusing to shoot the Canadian, picked up an infantry rifle and took the airman down a lonely road to his death.

Linsebolz said he helped search for the airman when he bailed out and found the flier's weapons. He saw the flier's identity card and told the court the flier's name which is not being made public in order to spare the feelings of his next-of-kin.

He said the Canadian was placed in a cell in the town hall. Junge came from his office shouting: "Beat him to death or shoot him dead. The kreisleiter (Nazi county chief) does not want to see him alive."

Told he was 'Crazy'

Linsebolz said that he told Junge he was "crazy" and urged handing the flier over to the military which would end the community's responsibility, but Junge called Schumacher and ordered him to shoot the airman. Schumacher refused, but after Junge had a telephone conversation with the kreisleiter he went home and got his rifle.

Linsebolz said that between 3 and 4 a.m., while he was entering the village after visiting the crashed bomber, he met the airman with Schumacher, who carried a rifle, and with another citizen, Oscar Anselm.

Linsebolz said he went on to the village where he heard a shot.

"I said 'The poor fellow now is dead,'" the witness told the court. "When I met them in the road I thought they were going to shoot him and in the morning I heard they did it."

Linsebolz said he heard that the kreisleiter had told a Nazi party meeting that Allied pilots should be shot and had seen pamphlets urging their deaths even by scalding.

Junge has pleaded innocent while Schumacher has pleaded guilty.

Yesterday five burghers of the town testified against Junge and Schumacher, the town's soldier-policeman, both of whom are charged with the Canadian's murder. Previously Johann Neitz, a German marine, was convicted of shooting FO. Rudolph Roman of Toronto with intent to kill and sentenced to life imprisonment.

LA GUARDIA NAMED BY COMMITTEE TO HEAD UNRRA

Approval of Nomination is Seen as Foregone Conclusion

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Atlantic City, N.J., March 22— (CP) — The bounding energy, straight-talking and long experience of Fiorella H. La Guardia, longtime mayor of New York and recently a radio commentator and columnist, are to lead the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration in the last laps of its efforts to feed and rehabilitate the needy victims of the war.

New York's "Little Flower," who retired recently after twelve years as mayor, was recommended unanimously to U.N.R.R.A.'s 4th council by the central committee Thursday as the successor to New York's former governor, Herbert H. Lehman, who is resigning because of ill health after serving since the Administration was set up in November, 1943.

Approval of the nomination, at the closing sessions, here, is a foregone conclusion. It may mean a heavy financial sacrifice since Mr. La Guardia is reported to be making more than $100,000 a year in radio and newspaper contracts.

The salary as director general of U.N.R.R.A. is $15,000 a year, a low figure because at the start Gov. Lehman wanted no salary and is understood never to have accepted any during his term in office.

Mr. La Guardia also may have to give up his post as joint chairman of the Canadian-American Permanent Committee on defence which he has held since that body was set up in 1940.

A week of oratory during which delegation spokesmen have reiterated over and over the terrible threat of world famine, and shortage countries have re-told the troubles of their people and the need for help, was interrupted briefly by an effort at direct action yesterday.

Nine-Country Committee

William Clayton, United States delegate, offered a resolution setting up a nine-country committee, including Canada, to draft a series of resolutions to meet as far as possible the proposals made during the speechmaking.

This committee, on which the other members are Australia, China, France, Poland, Russia, the United States, the United Kingdom and Jugoslavia, will work through the week-end and report back Monday.

BROKERS MUST FURNISH HIGHER BONDS-McTAGUE

Ontario Securities Commission Tightens Bonding Restrictions for All Salesmen

Toronto, March 22 (CP)— The Ontario Securities Commission has tightened bonding of brokers and securities salesmen as a further move to eliminate unsatisfactory practices from securities dealing in the province.

Announcement of the latest step came late yesterday in a statement issued by C. R. McTague, Commission Chairman, who said the action had been taken only after an unsuccessful effort to persuade surety companies to investigate the standing of the men they bonded.

Effective immediately, all brokers operating in Toronto must furnish bonds in the amount of $5,000. Out-of-town brokers will be required to put up $2,500 in bonds, subject to increase to $5,000 at the discretion of the registrar in special cases.

The bond required from security issuers or brokers dealing in only one issue will be $1,000.

Mr. McTague said the bond required from investment counsel still is under consideration and a further announcement may be expected in the near future.

In all cases the bond may be the bond of a surety company, a personal bond accompanied by collateral satisfactory to the Commission, or a bond by a guarantor other than a surety company, accompanied by collateral satisfactory to the Commission.

Mr. McTague said he had called two conferences with representatives of surety companies to try to obtain bona fide investigation by the bonding companies. He had invited suggestions for the form of bond which would reasonably meet the requirements of the act and at the same time impose the least possible obligation on the bonding companies.

"The bonding companies did not submit a single suggestion as they were invited to do either at that time or since," the chairman said.

"The Commission has been in receipt of numerous communications from people requesting bonds, explaining that the bonding companies were taking an almost uniform position that they did not want the business and the only condition upon which they would issue the bond was on the deposit of full collateral.

GOERING PRAISES HITLER, REBUKED BY WAR TRIBUNAL

U.S. Prosecutor Says Subject is Exhausted And Matter of Time Grave

By DANIEL DE LUCE

Nuernberg, March 22 — (AP) —Justice Robert H. Jackson, chief United States prosecutor, intervened angrily today to choke off Hermann Goering's praise of Hitler with a warning to the international military tribunal that the war crimes trial was liable to drag on into August.

The scowling former Reichsmarshal returned to the prisoners' dock after eight days on the witness stand in his own defence.

Interrupting when the defendant again attempted to review "my relations with the Fuehrer," Justice Jackson declared: "This subject has been exhausted — the matter of time is grave."

On the basis of scores of witnesses already granted the remaining 20 defendants in the dock, Justice Jackson said it appeared probable the trial would extend into August.

A bitter scene developed as Gen. R. A. Rudenko, chief Soviet prosecutor, concluded his interrogation demanding to know if Goering would admit he "was the second man in the murder of millions of innocent people."

"No," shouted Goering, "because I didn't know about them or cause them. Millions of Germans did not know about them either."

Almost snarling, Goering explained that he collaborated in all the Hitlerite policies because:

"I had to set an example of allegiance for the simple soldier. That sort of allegiance to a supreme leader occurs elsewhere and I don't think I need be any clearer as to what I mean."

Goering obviously was vexed when Gen. Rudenko developed testimony refuting the alibi that Polish outrages against German citizens of Bromberg, Poland, prompted the invasion of Poland, by showing that the "bloody Sunday" clashes occurred in the town three days after Poland was attacked.

"I made a mistake about the date," Goering conceded.

Whole Population Of Island Mourns

Kingston, March 22—(CP)—Almost 80 per cent of Wolfe Island's population of 1,250 yesterday attended funerals of three island residents who were drowned when a punt overturned in the ice-clogged channel Monday night. Services were for George and Gerald Alarie, brothers, and Clarence Adair. Funeral for the fourth drowning victim, Howard Cummin, will be held today.

Man With One Wife Like Car With One Tire Says Egyptian

By HAL BOYLE

Cairo, March 22 (AP)—Tewfik El Hakim, a precise middle-aged writer with a small moustache and French mannerisms, is perhaps the most disliked man in Egypt—by modern Egyptian women, because of his theory that every man should have four wives.

Modern Moslem women feel they are having a hard enough time getting rid of centuries-old Arab religious restrictions on their sex without Tewfik El Hakim and his campaign for polygamy. And what infuriates them more is that Hakim himself, while advocating four wives for every other man in the world, declines to take even one unto himself. The Paris-educated journalist poses as a confirmed "woman hater."

"Four wives can do so much more for a man than one," he says. "He needs one, for example, for companionship; another for cooking; still another to take out and show off in company and a fourth one for romance.

"No one woman can do all these things. An automobile can't march without four wheels and a man with only one wife is like a car with only one tire.

"I can see how it might be possible for a man to get along with as few as two wives— but that is the kind of man who would start a long journey on a bicycle."

When I asked one spinster lady how she would like being married to a man with three other wives, she merely replied, practically:

"Well, it would be better than nothing."

Hakim, one of the highest paid writers between Casablanca and Calcutta, writes for "Akhbar Elyom," a weekly news magazine circulated throughout the Middle East. He and his publisher, Mustapha Amin Youssef, are engaged in a perennial financial debate.

"He gets 50 cents a word and we are glad he doesn't stutter," said Youssef. "He always suspects us of not counting the number of words in his articles correctly, but he is too lazy to do it himself.

"So now he takes his articles into the cable office and pretends he is going to send it to London. After they have counted the words, he tells them he has changed his mind."

Gouzenko, Cipher Clerk, Testifies At Court Hearing

Some Were at Russian Embassy States Witness

Montreal, March 22 (CP) — Igor Gouzenko, cipher clerk in the Russian Embassy at Ottawa, testified today in the trial of Fred A. Rose that some members of the Soviet security police are operating in Canada.

Asked by special prosecutor F. Philippe Brais, K.C., if some were in the Russian Embassy at Ottawa, he replied: "I understand yes."

Gouzenko, fair-haired and clean-shaven, was the first witness called in the preliminary haring of Rose, Labor-Progressive Member of Parliament for Montreal-Cartier, charged with communicating information to the Soviet Union.

The Russian cipher clerk spoke in a low voice, with trace of a foreign accent.

Many of his replies were repeated by Mr. Brais, evidently to assure there would be no misunderstanding.

An interpreter sat beside Gouzenko, who was told he could speak in Russian if he could not make himself understood in English.

Preliminary Hearing

Montreal (CP)—Fred Rose, Labor-Progressive Member of Parliament for Montreal-Cartier, arrived at the Montreal court house for preliminary hearing of charges against him of unlawfully communicating information to the Soviet Union.

A large crowd lined the main lobby of the courthouse, most of them hoping to catch a glimpse of Igor Gouzenko, cipher clerk at the Russian Embassy in Ottawa, who is expected to be on the stand most of the day testifying for the Crown.

Gouzenko, who revealed to the government the existence of a Soviet espionage ring, has been under protective custody of the R.C.M.P. and special precautions for his safety have been taken.

Because of the large number of newspaper correspondents from Canada and the United States who will be covering the trial, it was not expected there would be room in the court room for any other spectators.

Preliminary hearing of charges against Rose, arrested in Ottawa last week, arraigned here then released on $10,000 bail, is expected to continue through tomorrow and possibly Monday.

His case will be followed by preliminary hearing of similar charges against Dr. Raymond Boyer, McGill University Professor and employee of the National Research Council. F. Philippe Brais, K.C., is special prosecutor for the Federal Justice Department in both cases.

Retail Sales Up 12 P. C. in Britain, Yet Goods Scarce

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

London, March 22 (CP)—More goods are going into the shops—and being sold, too—as Britain's "war against want" campaign gains momentum, but it doesn't mean much to the average shopper.

Retail sales in January were 12 per cent higher than a year ago, the Board of Trade reports. If food is excluded, the rise was 24 per cent, greater than for any recent month. Department store shares soared after the announcement.

Yet supplies of most goods still are very scarce. The increase, felt in all sections of the country, is due in considerable measure to the demobilization of servicemen and servicewomen.

Food sales went up 5 1-2 per cent; rations, however, were smaller in some respects. Demobilization is progressively raising the number of consumers who buy their food through retail channels. Clothing went up 15 per cent from January, 1945, swollen by purchases made with demobilization coupons.

The best feature of the Board of Trade report is that merchants' stocks were higher at Jan. 31 than a month before despite their bigger sales. In most lines, early reconversion problems have been overcome and production is increasing quickly.

More copious supplies for the individual shopper can be expected although Herbert Morrison, Lord President of the council, has said civilian goods cannot be expected to exceed 50 per cent of pre-war by the end of 1946.

Voice of Beulah Silenced by Death

Beulah was neither a Negro nor a maid. She wasn't even a woman. She was Marlin Hurt, at 40 a vteran of 16 years in radio. He died as, shortly after complaining of illness, his wife was assisting him to bed.

Mr. Hurt was in vaudeville before 1930, when he went into radio. His debut as Beulah was made two years ago in the Fibber McGee show. An instant hit, he was made star of his own Sunday afternoon radio program last June.

He complained of illness yesterday, visited a doctor then returned to his Cheviot Hills home, where he was fatally stricken. He died before his physician could arrive.

Justice Minister St. Laurent told the House Commissioner S. T. Wood of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police had denied that "third degree" methods were used in the interrogation of persons held in the inquiry into Russian espionage activity in Canada.

He read a statement from Commissioner Wood describing as unfair and "ridiculous" reports that persons had been kept for six days and nights in rooms lighted continuously by bright lights. To provide illumination for guards, the rooms had been lighted at nights by shaded reading lamps.

The House gave first reading to a bill to more clearly define Canadian citizenship. The bill was similar to a measure given first reading at the last session of parliament but dropped from the order paper due to pressure of other business.

Mr. Power noted that the Royal Commission on espionage had reported some of the accused had declared themselves to have a loyalty greater than their loyalty to Canada, and said:

Says People at Fault

"We are at fault in this House for developing loyalties, whether they be to other lands or whether they be to certain sections of our land.

"When every man in this country has a loyalty to the country as boundless as are the acres of this country, when he is as much at home in Halifax as he is in Vancouver, in Quebec as he is in Toronto, when we have no such thing as sectionalism, then I believe it will be more difficult for wilful men to betray their country."

Mr. Diefenbaker called for an explanation from the government as to how those now accused in the Soviet spy inquiry had come to be appointed in government positions of trust where they had access to secret and confidential information.

Mr. Diefenbaker, the only Progressive Conservative member from Saskatchewan, urged that the government defer the proposed redistribution of seats in the House until a census could be made in Manitoba and Saskatchewan. Otherwise, those provinces would lose more seats than they should in the reshuffle.

Urged Boiling Water Be Thrown on Allied Pilots Who Bailed Out

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Aurich, Germany, March 22 — (CP Cable) — Pamphlets urging that boiling water be thrown on Allied pilots who bailed out of their planes and "everything possible should be done to destroy them," were issued at Nazi party meetings, a witness told the R.C.A.F. war crimes trial today.

He was Joseph Linsebolz, present burgomaster of Oberweier, Bavaria, testifying against his predecessor in office, Wilhelm Junge, who, Linsebolz said, ordered the killing in July, 1944, of an unnamed Canadian airman.

Linsebolz also testified that the other accused, Johann Schumacher, after first refusing to shoot the Canadian, picked up an infantry rifle and took the airman down a lonely road to his death.

Linsebolz said he helped search for the airman when he bailed out and found the flier's weapons. He saw the flier's identity card and told the court the flier's name which is not being made public in order to spare the feelings of his next-of-kin.

He said the Canadian was placed in a cell in the town hall. Junge came from his office shouting: "Beat him to death or shoot him dead. The kreisleiter (Nazi county chief) does not want to see him alive."

Told He was 'Crazy'

Linsebolz said that he told Junge he was "crazy" and urged handing the flier over to the military which would end the community's responsibility, but Junge called Schumacher and ordered him to shoot the airman. Schumacher refused, but after Junge had a telephone conversation with the kreisleiter he went home and got his rifle.

Linsebolz said that between 3 and 4 a.m., while he was entering the village after visiting the crashed bomber, he met the airman with Schumacher, who carried a rifle, and with another citizen, Oscar Anselm.

Linsebolz said he went on to the village where he heard a shot.

"I said 'The poor fellow now is dead,'" the witness told the court. "When I met them in the road I thought they were going to shoot him and in the morning I heard they did it."

Linsebolz said he heard that the kreisleiter had told a Nazi party meeting that Allied pilots should be shot and had seen pamphlets urging their deaths even by scalding.

Junge has pleaded innocent while Schumacher has pleaded guilty.

Yesterday five burghers of the town testified against Junge and Schumacher, the town's soldier-policeman, both of whom are charged with the Canadian's murder. Previously Johann Neitz, a German marine, was convicted of shooting FO. Rudolph Roman of Toronto with intent to kill and sentenced to life imprisonment.

LA GUARDIA NAMED BY COMMITTEE TO HEAD UNRRA

Approval of Nomination is Seen as Foregone Conclusion

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Atlantic City, N.J., March 22— (CP) — The bounding energy, straight-talking and long experience of Fiorella H. La Guardia, longtime mayor of New York and recently a radio commentator and columnist, are to lead the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration in the last laps of its efforts to feed and rehabilitate the needy victims of the war.

New York's "Little Flower," who retired recently after twelve years as mayor, was recommended unanimously to U.N.R.R.A.'s 4th council by the central committee Thursday as the successor to New York's former governor, Herbert H. Lehman, who is resigning because of ill health after serving since the Administration was set up in November, 1943.

Approval of the nomination, at the closing sessions, here, is a foregone conclusion. It may mean a heavy financial sacrifice since Mr. La Guardia is reported to be making more than $100,000 a year in radio and newspaper contracts.

The salary as director general of U.N.R.R.A. is $15,000 a year, a low figure because at the start Gov. Lehman wanted no salary and is understood never to have accepted any during his term in office.

Mr. La Guardia also may have to give up his post as joint chairman of the Canadian-American Permanent Committee on defence which he has held since that body was set up in 1940.

A week of oratory during which delegation spokesmen have reiterated over and over the terrible threat of world famine, and shortage countries have re-told the troubles of their people and the need for help, was interrupted briefly by an effort at direct action yesterday.

Nine-Country Committee

William Clayton, United States delegate, offered a resolution setting up a nine-country committee, including Canada, to draft a series of resolutions to meet as far as possible the proposals made during the speechmaking.

This committee, on which the other members are Australia, China, France, Poland, Russia, the United States, the United Kingdom and Jugoslavia, will work through the week-end and report back Monday.

BROKERS MUST FURNISH HIGHER BONDS-McTAGUE

Ontario Securities Commission Tightens Bonding Restrictions for All Salesmen

Toronto, March 22 (CP)— The Ontario Securities Commission has tightened bonding of brokers and securities salesmen as a further move to eliminate unsatisfactory practices from securities dealing in the province.

Announcement of the latest step came late yesterday in a statement issued by C. P. McTague, Commission Chairman, who said the action had been taken only after an unsuccessful effort to persuade surety companies to investigate the standing of the men they bonded.

Effective immediately, all brokers operating in Toronto must furnish bonds in the amount of $5,000. Out-of-town brokers will be required to put up $2,500 in bonds, subject to increase to $5,000 at the discretion of the registrar in special cases.

Bonds required from salesmen, wherever located, remain at $1,000.

The bond required from security issuers or brokers dealing in only one issue will be $1,000.

Mr. McTague said the bond required from investment counsel still is under consideration and a further announcement may be expected in the near future.

In all cases the bond may be the bond of a surety company, a personal bond accompanied by collateral satisfactory to the Commission, or a bond by a guarantor other than a surety company, accompanied by collateral satisfactory to the Commission.

Mr. McTague said he had called two conferences with representatives of surety companies to try to obtain bona fide investigation by the bonding companies. He had invited suggestions for the form of bond which would reasonably meet the requirements of the act and at the same time impose the least possible obligation on the bonding companies.

"The bonding companies did not submit a single suggestion as they were invited to do either at that time or since," the chairman said.

"The Commission has been in receipt of numerous communications from people requesting bonds, explaining that the bonding companies were taking an almost uniform position that they did not want the business and the only condition upon which they would issue the bond was on the deposit of full collateral.

GOERING PRAISES HITLER, REBUKED BY WAR TRIBUNAL

U.S. Prosecutor Says Subject is Exhausted And Matter of Time Grave

By DANIEL DE LUCE

Nuernberg, March 22 — (AP) —Justice Robert H. Jackson, chief United States prosecutor, intervened angrily today to choke off Hermann Goering's praise of Hitler with a warning to the international military tribunal that the war crimes trial was liable to drag on into August.

The scowling former Reichsmarshal returned to the prisoners' dock after eight days on the witness stand in his own defence.

Interrupting when the defendant again attempted to review "my relations with the Fuehrer," Justice Jackson declared: "This subject has been exhausted — the matter of time is grave."

On the basis of scores of witnesses already granted the remaining 20 defendants in the dock, Justice Jackson said it appeared probable the trial would extend into August.

A bitter scene developed as Gen. R. A. Rudenko, chief Soviet prosecutor, concluded his interrogation demanding to know if Goering would admit he "was the second man in the murder of millions of innocent people."

"No," shouted Goering, "because I didn't know about them or cause them. Millions of Germans did not know about them either."

Almost snarling, Goering explained that he collaborated in all the Hitlerite policies because:

"I had to set an example of allegiance for the simple soldier. That sort of allegiance to a supreme leader occurs elsewhere and I don't think I need be any clearer as to what I mean."

Goering obviously was vexed when Gen. Rudenko developed testimony refuting the alibi that Polish outrages against German citizens of Bromberg, Poland, prompted the invasion of Poland, by showing that the "bloody Sunday" clashes occurred in the town three days after Poland was attacked.

"I made a mistake about the date," Goering conceded.

Whole Population Of Island Mourns

Kingston, March 22—(CP)—Almost 80 per cent of Wolfe Island's population of 1,250 yesterday attended funerals of three island residents who were drowned when a punt overturned in the ice-clogged channel Monday night. Services were for George and Gerald Alarie, brothers, and Clarence Adair. Funeral for the fourth drowning victim, Howard Cummin, will be held today.

By HAL BOYLE

Cairo, March 22 (AP)—Tewfik El Hakim, a precise middle-aged writer with a small moustache and French mannerisms, is perhaps the most disliked man in Egypt—by modern Egyptian women, because of his theory that every man should have four wives.

Modern Moslem women feel they are having a hard enough time getting rid of centuries-old Arab religious restrictions on their sex without Tewfik El Hakim and his campaign for polygamy. And what infuriates them more is that Hakim himself, while advocating four wives for every other man in the world, declines to take even one unto himself. The Paris-educated journalist poses as a confirmed "woman hater."

"Four wives can do so much more for a man than one," he says. "He needs one, for example, for companionship; another for cooking; still another to take out and show off in company and a fourth one for romance.

"No one woman can do all these things. An automobile can't march without four wheels and a man with only one wife is like a car with only one tire.

"I can see how it might be possible for a man to get along with as few as two wives— but that is the kind of man who would start a long journey on a bicycle."

When I asked one spinster lady how she would like being married to a man with three other wives, she merely replied, practically:

"Well, it would be better than nothing."

Hakim, one of the highest paid writers between Casablanca and Calcutta, writes for "Akhbar Elyom," a weekly news magazine circulated throughout the Middle East. He and his publisher, Mustapha Amin Youssef, are engaged in a perennial financial debate.

"He gets 50 cents a word and we are glad he doesn't stutter," said Youssef. "He always suspects us of not counting the number of words in his articles correctly, but he is too lazy to do it himself.

"So now he takes his articles into the cable office and pretends he is going to send it to London. After they have counted the words, he tells them he has changed his mind."

Gouzenko, Cipher Clerk, Testifies At Court Hearing

Some Were at Russian Embassy States Witness

Montreal, March 22 (CP) — Igor Gouzenko, cipher clerk in the Russian Embassy at Ottawa, testified today in the trial of Fred A. Rose that some members of the Soviet security police are operating in Canada.

Asked by special prosecutor F. Philippe Brais, K.C., if some were in the Russian Embassy at Ottawa, he replied: "I understand yes."

Gouzenko, fair-haired and clean-shaven, was the first witness called in the preliminary haring of Rose, Labor-Progressive Member of Parliament for Montreal-Cartier, charged with communicating information to the Soviet Union.

The Russian cipher clerk spoke in a low voice, with trace of a foreign accent.

Many of his replies were repeated by Mr. Brais, evidently to assure there would be no misunderstanding.

An interpreter sat beside Gouzenko, who was told he could speak in Russian if he could not make himself understood in English.

Preliminary Hearing

Montreal (CP)—Fred Rose, Labor-Progressive Member of Parliament for Montreal-Cartier, arrived at the Montreal court house for preliminary hearing of charges against him of unlawfully communicating information to the Soviet Union.

A large crowd lined the main lobby of the courthouse, most of them hoping to catch a glimpse of Igor Gouzenko, cipher clerk at the Russian Embassy in Ottawa, who is expected to be on the stand most of the day testifying for the Crown.

Gouzenko, who revealed to the government the existence of a Soviet espionage ring, has been under protective custody of the R.C.M.P. and special precautions for his safety have been taken.

Because of the large number of newspaper correspondents from Canada and the United States who will be covering the trial, it was not expected there would be room in the court room for any other spectators.

Preliminary hearing of charges against Rose, arrested in Ottawa last week, arraigned here then released on $10,000 bail, is expected to continue through tomorrow and possibly Monday.

His case will be followed by preliminary hearing of similar charges against Dr. Raymond Boyer, McGill University Professor and employee of the National Research Council. F. Philippe Brais, K.C., is special prosecutor for the Federal Justice Department in both cases.

Retail Sales Up 12 P. C. in Britain, Yet Goods Scarce

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

London, March 22 (CP)—More goods are going into the shops—and being sold, too—as Britain's "war against want" campaign gains momentum, but it doesn't mean much to the average shopper.

Retail sales in January were 12 per cent higher than a year ago, the Board of Trade reports. If food is excluded, the rise was 24 per cent, greater than for any recent month. Department store shares soared after the announcement.

Yet supplies of most goods still are very scarce. The increase, felt in all sections of the country, is due in considerable measure to the demobilization of servicemen and servicewomen.

Food sales went up 5 1-2 per cent; rations, however, were smaller in some respects. Demobilization is progressively raising the number of consumers who buy their food through retail channels. Clothing went up 15 per cent from January, 1945, swollen by purchases made with demobilization coupons.

The best feature of the Board of Trade report is that merchants' stocks were higher at Jan. 31 than a month before despite their bigger sales. In most lines, early reconversion problems have been overcome and production is increasing quickly.

More copious supplies for the individual shopper can be expected although Herbert Morrison, Lord President of the council, has said civilian goods cannot be expected to exceed 50 per cent of pre-war by the end of 1946.

Voice of Beulah Silenced by Death

Beulah was neither a Negro nor a maid. She wasn't even a woman. She was Marlin Hurt, at 40 a vteran of 16 years in radio. He died as, shortly after complaining of illness, his wife was assisting him to bed.

Mr. Hurt was in vaudeville before 1930, when he went into radio. His debut as Beulah was made two years ago in the Fibber McGee show. An instant hit, he was made star of his own Sunday afternoon radio program last June.

He complained of illness yesterday, visited a doctor then returned to his Cheviot Hills home, where he was fatally stricken. He died before his physician could arrive.

"MUDCAT LANE" AGAIN OPEN FOR TRAFFIC

"Mudcat Lane" near Foxboro is now open for traffic after being closed for the past few days due to bad conditions, County Engineer W. L. Langlois stated today. Work is being done on the various roads of the system, but travellers arriving from the northern part of the county today stated that the roads near Bannockburn and Millbridge are in bad shape.

Magistrate J. L. Lloyd, of Northbrook, driving along the road near Bannockburn around midnight last night got stuck in a bad hole and was mired for some time before being extricated.

Magistrate Lloyd said that the highways are in good shape, but country roads require careful driving on the part of motorists and truckers.

Drunk Driving Count Brings 14 Days in Jail

Sentenced to fourteen days in jail following a plea of guilty on a drunk driving count, a Thurlow township resident in county police court on Thursday was given the opportunity of serving a seven days' concurrent sentence for failure to notify the department of the purchase of a motor vehicle.

Assessed $12.50 fine and costs on the charge of failure to notify the department, the accused was given the seven days concurrent jail term in lieu of payment of the fine.

The charges arose following a motor accident last week when a car driven by the accused ripped out two telephone poles along No. 37 Highway, the vehicle crossing the highway ditch and ripping through a fence to proceed 143 feet into a farmer's field before coming to rest. An additional charge of dangerous driving was dismissed.

The party from which the above accused purchased the auto was also arraigned on a charge of failure to notify the department of the sale of a motor vehicle and following a plea of guilty was assessed $12.50 fine and costs.

Twenty three cases in all were listed for the morning police court docket, twelve of them involving infractions of the H.T.A. being settled out of court.

Francis Claus, 23, Deseronto, pleaded guilty to a charge of attempted breaking and entry and was given one year's suspended sentence and was ordered to pay court costs of $8, including restitution. Claus, it was brought out in court, had smashed a window in an attempt to enter a Deseronto drug store.

19 Pay $2 Fines For Overparking In Business Area

Notification that the local police force is instituting a program of strictly enforcing the present one-hour parking by-law in the business section of the city was seen in city police court Friday morning when the court docket showed that 19 motorists had paid $2 fine for overtime parking.

No less than 45 cases were listed on the docket with 34 of the charges being settled out of court.

Seven drunks paid the conventional $13 fine and costs out of court while five others received 10-day jail terms in lieu of payment of their fines. Four motorists paid $4.50 for failing to stop at stop streets, while two others paid fines for driving without brakes.

Pleading guilty to a careless driving count, Kenneth Sinclair, Grier Street, was remanded for sentence following a plea of guilty. Sentence was suspended to give the accused the opportunity of making restitution for property damage.

According to police Sinclair had been driving on Dundas Street when in attempting to turn north on George Street his vehicle went out of control to cross the west sidewalk and crash through a hedge on the property of Alderman J. J. Trudeau. The car continued into the lawn for a distance of 22 feet before being brought to a stop.

Thomas Shaw Cook, Campbellford, was sentenced to four months in the reformatory following a plea of guilty on a theft charge involving the stealing of a medical bag from the office of Dr. J. J. Robertson on March 15th. The original charge read breaking and entering with theft but at the time the accused was arraigned, the charge was changed to one of theft.

Police testimony revealed Cook had entered the office of Dr. Robertson after one o'clock in the morning and had stolen the medical bag containing a quantity of drugs. Following investigation by Inspector Hayes, Cook was arrested in Campbellford and was brought back to Belleville to stand trial.

A known drug addict, Cook has a long criminal record dating from 1925. The lengthy record was read in court prior to passing of sentence.

PICTON

Flies 13,000 Miles To Visit Wife, Son in Picton

Flying his own aircraft on the 13,000 mile jaunt from China to California, Lieut.-Col. William A. Dunn, United States Army Air Corps, landed in San Francisco early this month and this week arrived in Picton where he joined his wife the former Martha Mouck, and his three-year-old son.

Lieut.-Col. Dunn is due in Washington April 21 and later will return to China where he expects to remain for the next two and one-half years. He will direct instructional work with the Chinese Air Force on a lend-lease basis.

The 29-year-old colonel had not seen his wife and family for the past two years, and during that time, he has been "pretty well over the world. He wears the Presidential Citation; Distinguished Flying Cross; Air Medal and three bars; American Defence Medal; European Medal; Military Medal; 1940-43 Star; Canadian General Service Medal and the British Silver Badge.

He has been on the China front since 1945. Following instructional work at the Command General Staff School in the U.S.A. he went to China to command an air base at Lushien in the northern part of the country. He later took over the command of the air base at Luichow which was about 8 miles from the Jap lines. Then he moved the Chinese 94th Army down to Shanghai to accept the surrender and disarmament of the Japanese after hostilities ceased last September.

He joined the Canadian Army in 1939 going overseas with the Seaforth Highlanders. In England, he transferred to the Eagle Squadron of the R.A.F. later returning to Canada where he was posted in Picton for instructional duty. He joined the U.S. Army Air Corps early in 1943 and in May, 1944 he was in the thick of the fighting over Europe. He has 15 destroyed enemy aircraft to his credit; probables 4 and damaged 3. He was also instrumental in the sinking of an enemy troopship at Brest during the invasion of France, and has destroyed 168 enemy vehicles on the ground.

New Program of Activity Advocated by Director Of Chamber of Commerce

A new program of activity based on suggestions forwarded at the Regional Conference of district Chambers of Commerce will be undertaken by the local Chamber in the immediate future, directors decided at their luncheon on Thursday.

The decision was made after director Jamieson Bone, who was chairman of the two-day conference held in Cobourg a short time ago, presented an interesting report on the activities of the conference.

He felt, he said, "that the Belleville Chamber of Commerce was not wide enough in its sphere of activities and urged the directors to formulate and carry into action a new program of civic work."

He also advocated that more publicity be given to the members of the Chamber and the general public of what the Chamber is doing. "I have been asked," he said, "by laymen on the streets if it was true that the Chamber, meeting in secret behind closed doors, had turned down several offers of industrial firms who desired to locate here."

"Some people," he added, "had a very distorted idea of what the Chamber was doing, and suggested that all information be given to members and the public."

Some in Favor

"The parking meters question had come up at the conference," he said, "and a number of representatives present had declared themselves in favor of it. The meters should be installed in Belleville, and they will be," he predicted.

"If the farmers of the district declared themselves in favor of the meters, then I am all for it," Director Irv. Hefkey stated. "But I have contacted several of them and they will not pay a nickel to park their cars and trucks in the city."

"That nickel stuff is all bunk," replied Mr. Bone. "Years ago the farmers used to bring their teams of horses, buggies, wagons, etc., into the city and pay 35 to 50 cents to park them in a barn or stable."

Director Bone added that in the City of Guelph, the council had passed a resolution to install 400 parking meters. The merchants objected strenuouly and the council replied by installing 400 extra meters."

Directors looked with favor on the suggestion that the Chamber sponsor a fifteen minute broadcast which will outline the good points of this city, industrially and otherwise. The broadcast will be financed by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce. Apropos of this, it was also suggested that the Chamber sponsor a weekly broadcast over the new Belleville radio station when it goes on the air. The proposition will be thoroughly discussed at an evening meeting to be held in the near future.

Unable to Come

The annual banquet of the Chamber came up for discussion and it was learned that Ontario Minister of Highways George Doucet, who had been invited to address the banquet, was unable to come. Efforts will be made immediately to secure another outstanding speaker for the occasion. The function will be held in the middle of April.

A. W. Robertson, One of Canada's Most Noted Contractors, Began His Business Career in This District

Mr. Angus W. Robertson, who has been prominent in many large contracting operations from coast to coast in Canada for over fifty years, had, at one time, business interests in this city and vicinity, and according to information received, he was much interested in an item in this paper's "Looking Backward" column of fifty years ago, in which it was stated that on Feb. 18th., 1896, he and the late John Boyd became the owners of the stone quarries at Point Anne.

Acquired Quarries

This was the commencement of a long and successful business career for Mr. Robertson, as from the time he acquired the quarries he began to make marked headway in the contracting business and made use of the Point Anne stone in many of his construction jobs, and also supplied stone for other jobs. He also became the owner of the stone quarries at Crookston and stone from that quarry was used by him in the construction of the large power plant at Niagara Falls, Ontario.

During this period of his life he lived at Niagara Falls. Owing however to his quarry interests here he often spent some time in this city where he was popular with many friends. The item in the "Old Time" column referred to brought back to him many happy remembrances of his early contracting days and of old friends in Belleville and district.

Had Many Big Contracts

From 1896 until the present time Angus Robertson continuously carried on contracts in every province in Canada and became one of Canada's most noted men in his field. He held contracts on all the principal canals in Canada and also in connection with harbors from Halifax to Port Colborne, Ontario. He also successfully carried through large roadwork contracts in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Quebec, Ontario, British Columbia and the Alcan Highway. He has, indeed, enjoyed a long and successful business career; he enjoyed his work and his principle was always to do good and satisfactory work.

Followed Father's Footsteps

Mr. Robertson's father was a contractor and he held a contract for a large portion of the last-constructed Welland Canal. Angus Robertson inherited the urge to undertake and do big jobs from his father. For some years he lived in Montreal, where he still has an office, but his residence of late years has been at the Seignory Club and his place is called "Thorold Lodge", being named for the town where he was born.

Mr. Robertson visits this city several times a year to see his brother, Dr. J. J. Robertson, and his sister, Mrs. A. Bernard Collins.

"Bill" Ludlow Service Manager Riggs Motor Sales

In an effort to increase customer satisfaction in their automobile repair service department, Riggs Motor Sales, Pinnacle Street, have recently employed Mr. W. J. "Bill" Ludlow, graduate of Michigan State School for Automotive Engineering, as service manager, it has been announced.

Mr. Ludlow has 26 years experience in the automotive repair field and comes to Belleville highly recommended as a garage service manager. His addition to the Riggs Motor Sales repair staff is expected to prove highly beneficial in additional customer satisfaction.

Graduate of the Michigan school back in 1920, Mr. Ludlow has since served seven years as chief instructor at the Dominion Trade School in Toronto and acted as fleet superintendent with Metropolitan Transport for ten years.

Immediately prior to his coming to Belleville he was district service organizer for Ford Motors of Canada. He has been in Belleville for the past three weeks.

Addition of a new service manager, however, is not the only method by which Riggs Motor Sales will increase its service to customers, the firm having recently enlarged their repair service department to accommodate larger and higher vans and other types of vehicles. Also their stock room has been completely renovated and enlarged to take care of expanding business.

Renovations to the stock room will afford greater convenience to customers in that parts sales will be made over a wide and well-lighted counter, while the parts department itself is now lighted with new fluorescent lighting and presents a much improved customer appearance.

Florida's Tourist Season Greatest And Zaniest

By WILBUR JENNINGS

Miami, March 21 — (AP)—The geese and the ducks have flown north and the "snowbirds" are on their way after Florida's greatest and zaniest tourist season.

St. Petersburg, Palm Beach, West Palm Beach, Daytona Beach, Jacksonville, Orlando, Tampa and other cities of Florida have been jammed with tourists. Little inland towns which had only a few visitors each winter in other years, saw the number grow many times.

Money was plentiful. Hialeah, the "track beautiful," went thru a 40-day season with play averaging more than $1,000,000 a day. The dog tracks did a nightly business of around $175,000.

Jorge Sanchez, the Cuban sugar king, was reported spending $1,000 to $1,500 nightly. "That's foolish," he said. "It just isn't so. I generally spend only about $200."

Miami Beach hotels with rooms on the ocean front rented for as high as $45 a day. But there were thousands of other rooms at much lower figures.

One visitor rented a $25-a-week room in Miami sight unseen. He arrived to find it was a converted outdoor toilet. A burglar suspect caught in a closet tried to dodge a robbery charge by declaring: "I couldn't find any other place to sleep." The judge obliged with three years in jail.

The prices of small homes jumped two, three and four times. But homes selling for $40,000 or more still remained good buys, the real esate men said.

Soldiers Quickly Forget Boredom of Repat Camp When Their Name Called

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Camp Ontario, Bramshot, Hampshire, England, March 22—(CP)—From crowded huts in this repatriation camp hundreds of bored Canadian soldiers trudge daily through mud and puddles to a bleak parade ground where they line up for news of a return to Canada.

Hardy battle veterans flow in by the thousands every month, but when they move out is a matter for Canadian military headquarters in London to decide. They may wait days, weeks or even months. Time hangs heavy and the day-to-day uncertainty becomes an ordeal.

The men shuffle into line and stand raggedly at ease while from a squat loudspeaker truck surrounded by officers and N.C.O.s a metallic voice grinds out names and numbers of soldiers to be included in the next draft home. Then follows a list of volunteers for Canada's occupation force, soon to be withdrawn.

Men not on parade are warned they may "miss the boat" if they do not appear after their names have been called. Those not included in either draft may be dismissed or picked for fatigues around the camp. But invariably before this happens the parade begins to shrink, for old soldiers are adept at ducking fatigues.

Many with four or five years' service overseas consider fatiguing an unfair substitute for being called on draft and this feeling intensifies after four or five weeks in the same camp.

"I've been here three weeks," said a rifleman from Brantford, "but no one seems to know it except when they want a man to shovel coal or peel potatoes in the cookhouse. If they don't draft me soon I won't bother to go on parade at all."

Some Miss Drafts

Some veterans put this threat into practice and miss their into practice and miss their drafts. In so doing they add to the headaches endured by short-staffed officers and N.C.O.s who make up the sailing lists on receipt of movement orders from military headquarters.

Sometimes movement orders go astray and even soldiers' documents get lost. In either event the unlucky soldier is left behind while the busy records staff tries to locate them. While waiting he will be encouraged to use the camp's amenities — a Y.M.C.A. reading and writing room, a craft shop and a Nissen hut where newsreels are shown twice daily. Many, however, weary of camp life, prefer to visit adjacent villages where they loiter aimlessly about the streets till the pubs open.

"I've never been so browned off in my life," said a burly young gunner who saw action with the 9th Canadian Armored Regiment. "I spend most of my days hitch-hiking between here and Hindhead and I know every inch of the road. What's all the delay about?"

But once his number is called the homegoing soldier quickly forgets the boredom of a repat camp. He is moved to Camp Tweedsmuir at neighboring Thursley to undergo preliminary medical and dental examination before being moved to Southampton or Liverpool. Once aboard a ship he decided army life isn't so bad after all — especially with a discharge in prospect.

These Welcomes

How many times in the past months people have attended and have read of the welcome functions for the young men and the women of the services who went to war in the years from 1939 to 1945 and who helped to bring to wreckage the diabolical plot of the enemy to enslave the world! Scarcely a day passes but reports appear of functions in which the young service folk are officially welcomed back by the community, fraternal and patriotic organizations.

These fetes in honor of the heroes of many a field of battle or of service on the seas or in the air are serving the purpose of indicating interest in the welfare of the returned and in greeting them into the circles which they have missed since their enlistment in the armed services of the Dominion.

These functions bring before the public some understanding of the wholehearted service the young men and women of every community of Canada have given. When these groups of returned veterans are seen, then it can be realized in all fullness how many have served.

These returning and returned men and women are bringing back from their service not only the benefit of their training but also their widened experiences of life which make them citizens of great value to the life of the nation in every sphere. They bring back that which enriches the home life and inspires this nation as she moves forward in the era of peace.

Such gatherings of welcome are multiplied many hundred times across the country and they give some impression of the potential influence of the great body of young men and women who are back or are coming back to resume their place in the development of Canada and of the richness and warmth of the home life of the Canadian people.

This is Spring

Spring is here. No matter how far off it seemed when winter was in full sway over air and landscape, it has come at last with a bright mild day, not like all other first days of the new season.

Late winter for two years has been rather an upset from the usual type of weather in the last month or so of the season. It has been the case in the past that there have been snow and ice around even the twenty-first of March. But not so this year for the early days of this month cleared the ground and the air of the vestiges of winter.

But people have been doubtful and suspicious of the generous attitude of spring, fearing as in the case of last year a reversal of seasonal form in April. Already there has been a dire threat to the sweet harvest of spring, that of maple syrup. And many folk are a little apprehensive of the outlook.

The first spring day this year was in the best traditional form, it suggested buoyancy of life, spirit, and growth in nature. It is celebrated in the presence of robins that have already with other birds come back for a season which continues into August and September. Spring day this year sees the buds beginning to swell, the hint of life in the grass. Tulip bulbs nestling against the wall which guards them from the winds of the north have already shot their stout leaves through the earth and become heralds of a new year of growth and development of plants and flowers.

Man's closeness to nature is felt at this time. However many years have passed over one's head the impulse is that of the season of growth, exhilaration and joy. Nature has so ordained things by the operation of the planets and the sun that though man has only one life here on earth, every spring he feels anew with the spirit of nature.

Now he looks forward to green fields and trees clothing themselves in leaves and shedding shade against the warm days to come.

In the fine words of the former poet laureate of Britain, Alfred Lord Tennyson:

> "Once more the Heavenly Power > Makes all things new."

Smallest Railway

The smallest public railway in the world has been demobilized and was early in March reopened to passengers. It is the independently-owned, Romney, Hythe, and Dymchurch Light Railway in Kent, Eng., with fifteen inch gauge, and cars built to scale. When the engineer sits at the back of the steam-driven locomotive half of his body protrudes from the little cab. While used normally as a novelty by summer tourists, the line is also utilitarian, since it is the only one serving the three towns by direct route. During the war the coastal area where the R.H. & D. makes its twelve-mile run (more or less) was banned to travellers, and the railway was requisitioned to do a war-job. Fitted with anti-aircraft guns, it fought with the enemy, and also transported thousands of tons of material and pipeline for Pluto, the giant pipeline under the sea. Now, its armor removed, the small carrier has resumed its civilian career.

On Jordan's Banks

In an ancient Palestine Book which is not unread today — the prophet Isaiah predicts that "the desert shall rejoice and blossom as the rose." Two Americans, Emanuel Newman and James B. Hayes, have just left for Jerusalem to present to the Anglo-American Committee of Inquiry a plan for making the prophecy come true. . . .

The Jordan, as many engineers and agricultural experts believe, is the key to Palestine's future. Counting from its sources, the river drops 4,286 feet before it enters the Dead Sea. The engineers propose to carry its surplus waters, along with those of several other rivers flowing into the Dead Sea, 300 miles to the almost uninhabited Negeb, in the south of Palestine. To maintain the level of the Dead Sea they plan a canal and tunnels to the Mediterranean, ninety miles away. Power installations on the canal would produce annually an estimated 560,000,000 kilowatt-hours of electricity, similar installations on the Jordan another 100,000,000 kilowatt-hours. The total is slight contrasted with TVA's 12,000,000,000 annual kilowatt-hours, but applied to agriculture and small industries it would work wonders.

Palestine's present population is somewhat over 1,500,000. The proposed Jordan project might make it possible to add 2,000,000 more, some of whom could come from the masses of unhappy refugees now milling around in Europe. Beersheba might again be a city of importance and the shores of the Dead Sea a happy human activity. There might be a burst of prosperity that would end the agitation of the Arab against the Jew. For when a desert is reclaimed everyone benefits.

—New York Times.

Newspaper Facts

It is the journalist's code to give the people the news whatever happens. Although many British newspaper plants suffered repeated bomb hits during the blitz, only one paper missed publication, and that for only one issue.

Recently six English workmen erected an all-electric aluminium bungalow in seventy-five minutes. The Daily Mirror states that it was the first of its type to be built in Blackburn, North of England. These bungalows are extremely attractive in appearance, being colored green and cream. They are manufactured in a Lancashire factory.

ASSETS

Money is stuff for men's wallets and banks.
Chief in the list of possessions it ranks.
But those who have wisdom — and many they are —
Insist that a good name is better by far.
And it's censure, not praise, for the millions possessed
If it's whispered: "He's only a rich man at best."

To gather a fortune is never enough.
Unused for good purposes, money is stuff.
Ungraced by high conduct, it's vulgar and mean,
And filthy if taken by fingers unclean.
In the records of mortals on earth it is shown
That much more than money the strong man must own.

Oh, what in the list of man's assets appears
As the best and the sum of the work of his years?
A name to be trusted; a manner refined;
A hand that is gentle; a heart that is kind;
High faith for the future — all better than stuff,
And proof that mere money is never enough.

The poor confiding robins will think they have been badly deceived.

The old fashioned winters make us tired; but cheer up there are only a few days left in March.

Mr. William Day stopped a runaway horse on Front Street shortly before six o'clock last evening and thereby saved a small boy from serious injury. The horse broke away on Mill Street with only the small boy in the sleigh. One of the bolts which held the shafts fell out and the shafts came into contact with the horse's heels frightening it all the more. When opposite the Ritchie Store Mr. Day saw the runaway coming and seizing an opportunity he jumped into the sleigh and took the lines from the boy's hands and soon brought the frightened horse to a standstill. The many spectators who witnessed the affair were loud in their praises of Mr. Day's plucky act.

Mr. Jack Roblin went to Toronto today.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

How many persons were burned at Salem for witchcraft?

No myth is more persistent in the face of continual contradiction than that about the witches being burned to death at Salem. Most of the victims of the Salem witch hysteria were hanged after being tried and convicted according to regular court procedure. Not one of them was burned, as is popularly supposed. Out of some 200 arrested and charged with the alleged crime of witchcraft at Salem in 1692, nineteen were convicted and executed by hanging. The trials were held in Witch House, a building dating from 1631, and the executions took place on a hill later known as Gallows Hill.

Giles Corey, 80 years old, was pressed to death with heavy stones because he refused to plead either guilty or not guilty to the indictment. In those days witchcraft was treated as an offence as serious as treason. Under the common law in cases involving attainder or "corruption of blood" refusal to plead when accused prevented confiscation of property and Corey was determined to leave his property to his relatives.

There is no record that white people in New England ever burned anybody for witchcraft. A number of persons have been sentenced to death for witchcraft in the American Colonies before this period, and several were sentenced afterwards, but all of them were convicted in regular courts of law and executed in the same manner as other persons condemned to death.

The witchcraft craze was touched off in the winter of 1691-92 by the weird stories told by Tituba, a slave woman whom the Rev. Samuel Parris had brought to Salem from the West Indies.

Enlightened people protested at the time against the Salem witchcraft prosecutions, and by 1693 belief in witchcraft began to wane. Samuel Sewall, one of the judges in the Salem cases, had a change of heart and publicly admitted his error and accepted the "blame and shame" for the convictions.

In 1711 Massachusetts appropriated about 470 pounds to be paid to the heirs of those condemned and authorized restoration of their citizenship rights upon request.

On March 24, 1735, the British Parliament repealed the statutes against witchcraft and the American Colonies gradually followed suit.

Community Building Planned

Brantford, March 21 — (CP)— The Board of Parks management today announced a public campaign to raise $150,000 toward the cost of a $300,000 community building to be erected in Agricultural Park.

The proposed building will have a minimum seating capacity of 5,000 and sufficient floor space to provide a standard ice surface as well as accommodation for special or overflow activities.

OPPOSE LOAN TO BRITAIN

Quebec, March 21 —(CP)— The Stadacona Citizens' League here last night authorized its secretary to forward a message to Justice Minister St. Laurent protesting the $1,250,000,000 Canadian government loan to Great Britain. It was maintained that the interest rate of two per cent — instead of three per cent which the league said was customary for foreign loans — was not in Canada's interest.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A PROPOSAL TO RELIEVE TRAFFIC SITUATION IN CITY

Editor, Ontario Intelligencer:

The situation with respect to the parking of vehicles and a fluid movement of motor traffic on Front Street is considered acute. A careful survey and analysis of prevailing conditions will indicate that the situation is considerably aggravated, both directly and indirectly by the personal actions of the business and professional men having premises on Front Street.

It is a source of wonder and astonishment to see hale and hearty business men parking on Front Street before their place of business every day after a long and gruelling drive of two to five blocks from their residences. The car remains there till noon, then a "long" drive home, or "away across town" to the hotel for luncheon, then back to Front Street for the afternoon obstruction duties.

Belleville is not alone with respect to this problem. Why is it in the smaller cities and towns of this province, that the local business men find it a physical hardship to walk a few blocks to their place of business? By actual test approximately 75 per cent of the residents of Belleville can walk to Front Street well within fifteen minutes. Many motors are not driven farther than eight blocks every morning. But all these unnecessary motor cars must clutter up your main business street, day after day, causing considerable trouble, inconvenience and problems to the paying customers, district farmers, tourists, etc., a district detriment to business.

Recommendation:

1. Bring the traffic and parking problem before your local clubs and organizations, and arrange a gentleman's agreement to leave motorcars at home, unless health or distance really warrants their use.
2. If cars are a necessity in the business park them on the west side of Pinnacle Street or, in lieu, spend a few dollars to drain, surface, modernize and arrange parking accommodation at the rear of the business premises on the west side of Front Street.
3. Front Street and Bridge Street will then be clear for the necessary parking required by your paying customers, tourists, etc., who are, after all, the parties to whom first consideration should be shown.
4. When this is accomplished you can then erect the welcome signs used by many small communities across the border

"Our Main Street is yours— Use it often—"

Y.W.C.A. MEMORIAL HOME

Editor, Ontario Intelligencer:

Many plans and suggestions have been made as to how we should commemorate the glorious victory of our Forces and perpetuate the memory of those who will never return.

May I suggest that a group of ladies sponsor the establishment of a Young Women's Christian Association and that a suitable building be obtained which could be adopted for the use of the girls and young women and which could provide sleeping, reading and recreational facilities.

We have two progressive organizations giving excellent leadership in their specific field of social service, the Y.M.C.A. for boys and The Children's Aid Society for neglected children, but no one seems to think of the many girls and young women of the community. If they want company they have to seek it in the beer parlors. Should we not make suitable attractions and wholesome surroundings that these young women would not be compelled to seek it in questionable places?

Do we hear some one say "It can't be done". We would suggest that such a one take a walk up Dundas Street East, as far as the Hospital and Nurses' Home and view the institutions along this route. These were inaugurated and are carried on by women of faith and action. To those who do not know they are owned and operated by the Women's Christian Association of the city of Belleville.

The suggestion made can be carried out if the ladies of our city have the spirit and soul to say "It shall be done" for the sake of the girls and young women who need this protecting care.

If further particulars as to how to start such a project are desired write to the National Office of the Young Women's Christian Association, Toronto, or make a trip to Oshawa or Peterborough and obtain first hand information as to how they operate.

Yours respectfully,
"A Mere Man".

BLIND GIRL AT SWITCHBOARD CALLS FIREMEN TO SCENE

Philadelphia, March 21—(AP) —Blind Irene Kemp, 35, called firemen yesterday from her special Braille switchboard while flames damaged the building in which she worked. Miss Kemp's calls warned four other blind people and 100 other physically handicapped persons, all of whom reached the street in safety. An automatic sprinkler system snuffed the fire before firemen arrived. The building is headquarters of Good Will Industries of Philadelphia, Inc.

SHORT EXPERIENCE WITH INDIGESTION

One chilly November day I ate only a piece of cocoanut for lunch and when making my rounds about 2 p.m.—or if you insist I'll say visiting my patient — I began to feel some discomfort in the epigastrium. I tried to forget it. But it grew steadily more insistent and by 3 o'clock I was hurrying home. I felt so chilly that I undressed and got into bed. The discomfort increased in intensity and by four or five o'clock I was pretty anxious. All my life I had never had so much as a bellyache. By six o'clock we got hold of a doctor. He examined me perfunctorily and raised an eyebrow at me. I said I supposed he was right. Very well, he decided, we'll get the ambulance and ship you to the hospital right away.

At operation next morning we found—well, I was there in the operating - room, wasn't I?—a gangrenous appendix. I was never more relieved than when that doctor decided to operate.

When the first symptom came on I did wonder for a fraction of a second whether the discomfort could possibly be from the cocoanut I had eaten an hour or two earlier.

But only for a fraction of a second.

That is a foolish idea in any case. Oh, yes, if you eat something that is not fit to eat or something you don't really need I'll concede you may feel some slight distress from it, but certainly not enough to make you stop work or play or seek medical attention or take medicine. If you experience "indigestion" that calls for any such relief, then you are certainly in a serious predicament—I mean there's something seriously wrong with you and you had better not dally with the "indigestion" notion.

I could but I shall not suggest here numerous serious conditions which may manifest themselves in just that way—symptoms the victim refers to the stomach. Leave it to your doctor to find out what your trouble is.

No matter what morbid notion you may have about "gas pressing on the heart" I assure you that the common report of serious or tragic results of "acute indigestion" is phony.

Just what "indigestion" signifies in the popular mind is difficult to learn. Is it delay, slowing down or cessation of some part of the digestive process? Is it some change in the digestive process which permits formation of too much gas by fermentation of sugars or starches? Well, none of these trifling changes or derangements can account for more than the mildest uneasiness or discomfort. No, there is no substantial basis for the "indigestion" hokum. It is a thing to fool along with if you don't place great value on your health or life.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Snafu

During the war I relaxed the restrictions on the questions I try to answer, because I was aware of the plight of so many readers whose family doctors had gone to war. Now the war is over and we have got to do something about the terrifying accumulation of mail. After all this health service has always been personal, and we want to keep it that way. So here's what I ask you correspondents to do to speed up my answers to your letters.

1. Write with ink.
2. Ask your question in not more than 50 words or limit your letter to one page.
3. Remember I cannot give you any opinion, suggestion or advice about the diagnosis or treatment of your ailment.

Fair and reasonable requirements, aren't they?

U.N.R.R.A. Spotlight

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Atlantic City, March 22 (CP)— Food in the sense of the bare requirements necessary for sustaining life in a human body has become the all-absorbing problem of the post-war world and particularly in Washington, capital of the greatest potential source of supply.

There the Combined Food Board was set up early in the war to help assure that the available supply was distributed to the best advantage among the powers combined against the Axis.

Now the Board is helping to carry the burden of allocating food to the areas where floods, drought, crop failures and other causes have brought almost certain famine, as well as to those peoples whose lack of food was inevitable as a result of the destruction of war.

Canada, the United Kingdom and the United States operated the Combined Food Board most efficiently during the war and now they are being criticized by other countries, particularly by the Soviet Republics, and also by the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, now in session here.

The criticism is that the Board has not seriously enough accepted the appeals from the food shortage areas and from the U.N.R.R.A., that it has not given U.N.R.R.A. any assurance of the extent to which supplies will be available in the next four critical months nor taken steps to get into motion wheat available for export from the United States.

But as a matter of fact the Board can only recommend and seek to maintain an equilibrium of distribution and no government is bound to make its surplus available for allocation.

Thus it was possible for Russia to offer quantity of cereals to France while countries under Russian control were being supplied from U.N.R.R.A.'s desperately short stores.

In this world emergency the part being played by Canada has stood out prominently. The delegation leader most entitled to complacency and probably the one less addicted to complacency was Canada's Ambassador to the United States, L. B. Pearson, who was able to report 100 per cent performance and the promise of doing better, in the way of contributions to the starving millions of Europe, India and the Orient.

Ladies' Night At Y's Men's Club

It was "ladies' night" for members of the local Y's-Men's Club Thursday evening when at their regular weekly dinner meeting club members played hosts to their wives and best girl friends. Approximately 20 couples attended the function, following which a social time was enjoyed by those present.

President "Bud" Trill acted as chairman for the evening while William J. Moore, sales manager for Deacon Brothers Ltd., acted as guest speaker giving in detail the history of the manufacture of shirts and how the invention of the sewing machine aided in the development of mass production methods.

Club members and their wives were millionaires for the evening as all entered enthusiastically into a "millionaire's night" program. Concluding the evening's fun Roy Wilcox auctioned off suitable prizes to the club members and others present.

Rhubarb

With the coming of Spring, everyone experiences that dragged out, listless feeling—they call it Spring Fever. To correct this condition, Spring brings along her own remedies. Rhubarb is one of the earliest of these Spring tonics. It imparts the needed color, tang and zest to so many appetizing dishes. Rhubarb makes a real contribution to Spring menus and should be used frequently.

Long ago rhubarb grew wild in parts of Europe and Asia. Then about 150 years ago some enterprising person brought it to America. Here it was discovered that the stalks of this plant made delicious pies, and for that reason it was commonly known as "pie plant".

Nowadays, though, rhubarb is used in many tempting Springtime desserts, as whips, chiffon pies, upside-down cakes, shortcakes and sherberts. The early hothouse rhubarb is usually a delicate pink, while the later garden varieties vary from dark red to green. Usually more color means better flavor.

When purchasing rhubarb, the stalks should be fresh, firm, crisp and tender. Wilted, flabby stalks may be stringy and of poor flavor when cooked. Do not skin rhubarb; it not only gives color, but helps to retain the shape.

For a quick, ready-made dessert serve rhubarb sauce with hot tea biscuits or muffins. The home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture, repeat their most popular rhubarb recipes which will no doubt become your favorites also.

RHUBARB SAUCE

Wipe rhubarb and cut into 1-inch lengths. Measure, then cover with boiling water and let stand five minutes. Drain and cook without water until tender, in the top of a double boiler. Add two tablespoons sugar for each cup of uncooked rhubarb and stir gently until sugar is dissolved. If carefully watched, rhubarb may be cooked over direct "low" heat.

RHUBARB WHIP

1 1-2 tablespoons gelatin
1-4 cup cold water
2 cups hot, stewed, sweetened rhubarb
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 egg whites
Pinch of salt

Soak gelatin in cold water for five minutes. Add to hot rhubarb and stir until dissolved. Add lemon juice. Place in refrigerator or other cool place and allow to partially set. Beat egg whites with salt until stiff, but not dry. Add the jellied mixture and continue to heat. Turn into one large or several individual moulds and chill. Serve with custard sauce made from the two egg yolks. Six servings.

RHUBARB RAISIN UPSIDE-DOWN CAKE

2 tablespoons mild-flavored fat (melted)
1-3 cup sugar
2 cups cut rhubarb
1-2 cup raisins

Pour boiling water over rhubarb, let stand five minutes and drain. Spread the melted fat over the bottom of a square cake pan, sprinkle with sugar and add rhubarb and raisins.

Topping

1 1-2 cups pastry flour or
1 1-3 cups all-purpose flour
1-3 cup sugar (additional)
3 teaspoons baking powder
1-2 teaspoon salt
1 egg
1-2 cup milk
3 tablespoons melted shortening

Sift together the flour, sugar, baking powder and salt. Beat egg, add milk and melted shortening. Stir into the dry ingredients, mixing only enough to combine. Do not beat until smooth. Pour batter over the fruit. Bake in a hot oven, 400 degrees Fahrenheit, for 25 minutes. Turn out on serving plate and serve hot with top milk. Six servings.

IN WRONG LINE

Boston, March 22 (AP)— Two nylon-hungry housewives joined a long line on a street here yesterday. Thirty minutes later they were offered tickets—for next month's Metropolitan Opera season.

Paris Designers' Creations Shown In Montreal

Montreal, March 21 (CP) — Paris came to Montreal last night in a private showing by a Montreal department store (T. Eaton Company, Limited) of its first post-war collection of original creations by noted Parisian designers.

The approximately 40 originals —the work of 10 designers—were flown from Paris a few days ago.

Pinched-in waist and rounded hipline were noted among suits in Balenciaga's grey stripe tweed with new longer jacket and Pierre Balman's red wool with gold-colored ball buttons outlining the pockets.

An apple green wool suit with cross-over front and irregular lines of seaming in back illustrated the "dissymmetrical" line favored by Jacques Fath. Schiaparelli was represented by a slim-skirted black wool suit with braided jacket.

Typical of the coats, marked by easy fulness, slightly flaring lines, and original pocket treatments, were Lanvin's hooded red gabardine raincoat with fullness drawn to the back and Balenciaga's black rayon cord with button-trimmed bands outlining the vertical slashed pockets and repeated in the back.

A navy wool coat by Mde. Carpentier has the front shoulder and sleeve cleverly cut to resemble a cape.

In Marcel Rochas' natural wool coat and dress ensemble interest centred in an unusual pocket treatment in the loose box coat and the tan leather belt and cuffs of the dress.

Attention was drawn to the back of the gowns in various ways—by a dipping line of drapery in Lucien DeLong's lilac chiffon evening dress, or a purple-satin-lines back panel with just a hint of a bustle in Schiaparelli's green, purple and white print evening gown. The back panel could also be drawn over the head to form a hood.

Women's Activities

I.O.D.E.

Marmora.—The regular meeting of the Marmora Chapter, I.O.D.E., was held on Tuesday evening, March 19, at the home of Mrs. Maurice Barlow, Deloro, with the Regent, Mrs. Jack Aitchison, presiding.

As there was an insufficient number present to conduct affairs of business, the meeting took the form of a social evening.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Hugh Brady, with Mrs. Hugh Forbes and Miss Kay Gaffney as hostesses.

MOUNT PLEASANT W.M.S.

Rawdon. — Mrs. Gordon Linn entertained Mount Pleasant Woman's Missionary Society for their March meeting with an attendance of eighteen. The President, Mrs. T. F. Townsend opened the meeting and Miss Lois McAdam presided at the piano. A letter re associate members was read and no action taken.

The 21st annual meeting of Belleville Presbyterial will be held at Trenton on April 4. The delegates appointed are Mrs. T. F. Townsend, Mrs. Frank Smith with alternate Mrs. Percy MacMullen for auxiliary.

Mrs. Bert Jeffs for Mission Band and Mrs. Sid Demorest for Baby Band. The guest speakers will be Mrs. H. L. Thompson, Toronto, and Miss Vera Boyd of India.

The April meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Wilbert Jeffs and it was decided to dispense with refreshments for the balance of 1946.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen presented a leaflet on Stewardship entitled "People get awfully tired".

Mrs. Herbert Smith synopsized a chapter in the Study Book entitled "The Open Path".

Mrs. Frank Smith read a letter from missionary in the Congo Land. All sang an African song.

HOLLOWAY STREET W.A.

The ladies of Holloway Street United Church Woman's Association met in the Church Parlors for their regular meeting on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. E. Shortt was in charge of the meeting.

Mrs. Donnelly brought an Easter reading and Mrs. M. Denton introduced Mrs. N. Montgomery, the guest speaker, who gave a very interesting talk on her trip up the St. Lawrence River. Mrs. E. Hubbs delighted with a piano solo. Refreshments were served by Mrs. R. Andrews and Mrs. Burrows groups.

Ever-so-smart cottons lend interest to the resort fashion scene. A charming dinner suit is of navy and white checked cotton, with big square jewel-stone buttons down the jacket and on the turn-back white pique cuffs. A rippling four-tier bustle backs up the wide swirl of the skirt.

Higher and higher goes the collar. This is a trend for coats, jackets, blouses and neckwear. A white pique dickie has a real ruff, of the Elizabethan type. A bow of half-inch-wide pique, tied under the chin, keeps the ruff in place.

Handsome Suede Handbag

There are quite a few constructional tricks to this round suede bag, plus its really useful, deep capacity. For instance, a separate, outside pocket on the side opposite the monogram plaque, holds comb, mirror and change purse, easily accessible. The plaque is simulated shell, the bag itself, suede.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Changing the Facial Scenery

Yes, madame, make-up is sometimes a riddle. You stand before the cosmetic counter with its endless display of good-looks props and wonder what to select. You see a lipstick that looks like a honey. The color is beautiful. You take it home and, after seeing it on your lips, you shudder. You think you look like an old faded lithograph. The wrong shade will do that to you. Well, there's no great harm done. Mark it up to beauty overhead losses. Try again.

As there are subtle gradations in the coloring of complexions, so there are delicate color gradations in rouge, powder and lipstick.

Of course, no skin is white. It may be a blend of cream and pink. However, you can call it "cool beige"—a favorite term used by make-up experts—and that will make you feel better, even if you look the same. And don't forget that the color of your hat can cast a color reflection on your facial coating.

You have a winter face and a summer face. Right now you have a between-season face. It may call for a revised color scheme.

The bewildering array of complexion aids at toilet-goods counters will become less formidable if you keep in mind that the three main offerings in rouge and lipstick are bright, true reds, bluish-reds and orange-reds. The bright tones are not as popular as they were. The lipstick is no longer a novelty, but an institution. The girls don't need to advertise the fact that they are using it by applying stop-light tints.

The blue-reds, including raspberry and wine shades, are more like the natural coloring than either of the other two, and naturalness is the order of the day. The lipstick is indispensable, but it is not as noticeable as heretofore. Redheads and elderly women should take special care to avoid too conspicuous a shade

To be smart, lip and cheek coloring must be toned not only to individual coloring, but also to clothes. To use a fuchsia lip pigment with a frock having bright red decorations would be to spoil your face and the effect of your frock as well.

Cheek and lip coloring must be applied with neatness and decision. No blurs, no streaks, no skipped corners. Sometimes a woman will use real skill in painting her lips but will put on rouge in a foggy, irregular blob. A magnifying mirror is a help to careless make-uppers.

The beautiful lipstick, once applied, sometimes is no longer pleasing

Fashion Flashes

IF YOU LIKE a dramatic hat, then how about a large white Panama with black trimming? It has a boxy crown, a side-swept effect to the off-face brim, and masses of black roses at back. With it is a coarse-meshed black veil.

Back again, to lend emphasis to the big season for gray, is the gray shoe. All shades of gray have been noticed—from pale gray to a deep gray with a gunmetal cast, used for a sling pump of suede. Very nice for navy or black.

Fireside fashions are lovelier than ever. Designed for a Spring trousseau is a two-piece lounging ensemble consisting of off-white crepe pyjamas, with a matching coat of sheer chiffon that buttons to the waist. The skirt falls loose to reveal slim trousers.

Smartest thing at Spring theatre openings is the full length, fitted evening coat of woollen. A beautiful model, made with a very slim waist and a high, petal-curved collar, is of deep sapphire blue woollen, sparkling all over with dime-sized dots in multi-color flat cabochon stones.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

He's in Love With a Married Woman and Determined to Have Her at Any Cost.

Sometimes an affair of the heart can become so complicated that even though the people involved sincerely wish to do the right thing, it is almost impossible to figure out what that may be.

And on the other hand, there are situations in which the right thing is clearly evident but in which the person most concerned lacks the courage or the willpower or even the desire to do it.

That is what seems to be wrong with the man involved in the following unhappy set of circumstances:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"About two and one half years ago, my husband, then in the army, brought home a buddy of his to spend a few days with us. He was a grand type of man, who came from another province, and being lonely, he asked if he could come again. Of course I said yes, and he paid us quite a few visits before going overseas.

"After he got overseas he wrote his wife and told her about me and my husband, and suggested she write me. She did, and of course I answered all her letters. Eventually, she visited me for three weeks, in the course of which she met my oldest brother, a bachelor. Somehow or other he fell for her right from the start. When it was time for her to go home, she said she wasn't going. She took an apartment and got herself a job. Then I realized my brother had persuaded her to stay. From then on they saw each other every day.

"We all tried to break up the romance, but it just could not be done. My brother said he had never loved anyone in his life as he did her. He wanted her to get a divorce and marry him, and he would pay for it, but she refused, saying she would never hurt her husband and child by doing such a thing.

"Then the war was over, and she said the affair was finished. Her husband came home, and she told him there had been another man, and he forgave her and took her back. Now they have gone home to their province and my brother is nearly going crazy. Last night he told us that if he writes to her, and she does not answer, he is going out to where she lives and beg her to come back to him.

"I do not blame her, because he knew she was married when he met her. I blame him. She was lonesome, so I can see the reason for her folly. She never once told my brother that she loved him or would leave her husband for him.

"What can we do to help my brother? He is not a child but 39 years old. What can be done in such a case, and who is to blame? Should he try to see her again, if only to put his mind at ease?

"Mrs. T. D."

You are a far more tolerant and charitable person than most of us would be, Mrs. T. D., in your attitude toward this woman who so shamefully abused your friendship and hospitality.

You ask who is to blame. I should say both of them, but perhaps the woman most of all, since she was already married, fully intended to stay so, and admittedly was not carried away by love for your brother. She has an extremely warped sense of values, when she could say she would not her hurt her husband by getting a divorce, but had no hesitation in hurting him by unfaithfulness and betrayal. Your brother should be thankful her husband took her back, instead of freeing her to marry him and give him the same kind of treatment.

Since your brother is so headstrong and so hysterical in this thing, I doubt if there is much you can do right now. Possibly it might be a good thing if he did go out to see this woman. Undoubtedly her husband would put him in his place, and it might end the affair, as he has not the courage to do himself. You can scarcely force a man his age to do what you know—and he himself must know in his calmer moments, or will when he has any—he should do. I'm afraid all you can do is to wait and see if he will not come to his senses.

Life Underwriters Hear Informative Talk on Insurance

Members of the Belleville Life Underwriters' Association had the pleasure of hearing, as guest speaker at their monthly luncheon meeting held Thursday in the Y.M.C.A., one of their well-known colleagues in the business, Mr. P. A. Staring of the Prudential Insurance Company of America. Mr. Staring who was called upon to deliver the address of the afternoon in the absence of his assistant superintendent, Mr. B. F. Ogilvie, who was unavoidably absent, gave his hearers sincere and helpful advice on the subject of "Prospecting."

The meeting was in charge of the president, Mr. A. G. Stackhouse, with Mrs. J. J. Hibbard acting as pianist for the community singing which was an enjoyable feature of the program. The association welcomed back to its gatherings, Mr. James Anton of the London Life who has resumed business again after receiving his discharge from the armed forces. Guests present at the meeting were Eric Muir, Canada Life Home Office, Toronto, and Howard Armstrong, Canada Life, Smiths Falls. Greetings were also extended two new members, Charles Lundy, London Life and Bill Oliver, London Life.

Plan Bigger Membership

Mr. F. Creeggan, chairman of the membership committee, gave a report of the status of Belleville Association at the present time and announced that a special campaign would be conducted to increase the membership of the organization.

Mr. Don Ridley of the Prudential Insurance Company of America, the company under whose auspices the meeting was held, introduced the guest speaker of the occasion, P. A. Staring of the local association. Mr. Staring's address was most interesting and informative, conveying practical ideas on the developing and maintaining of a phase of life insurance activities which is most important to those who would be successful in the field.

From his experience in industrial insurance Mr. Staring pointed out the agent's opportunities of increasing his list of prospects through diligent knowledge of the data in his collection book which provides the basis for considerable new business. He emphasized the importance of keeping in touch with the changes in residence in the neighborhood and suggested that there was a special field for developing the older group of residents as prospects.

Stresses Service

In discussing this phase of life insurance in the "ordinary" branch of the work, Mr. Staring stressed the value of periodic servicing the contracts of older policy-holders. Of equal importance was the necessity of contacting policy-holders recently discharged from the services and who might require changes in their insurance program to cover new responsibilities.

In concluding his address, Mr. Staring brought to the attention of his hearers the words of a recent publication on the subject of insurance pertaining especially to the building of prestige through the influence of satisfied policy-holders.

The appreciation of the association was ably expressed by Mr. W. H. Cameron and conveyed to the guest speaker by the president. The meeting was concluded with a brief talk by Mr. George A. Reid on the anniversary of life insurance on this continent.

Cannot Afford To Have One Dud Says Gen. Foulkes

Kingston, March 22 —(CP)— Lt.-Gen. Charles Foulkes, C.B., C.B.E., D.S.O., Chief of the General Staff, told the graduating class of the 12th Canadian War Staff Course here Wednesday the peacetime army's staff officer corps "cannot afford to have one dud" and added that "regulations are only ruthless to those who are inefficient."

He officiated at the graduation exercises held at the Royal Military College here when six officers received war-won decorations and an oil painting by a famous Netherlands artist was unveiled.

Gen. Foulkes addressed 39 graduating staff officers and members of the senior and direction staffs in Sir Arthur Currie Hall.

"The army staff," he said, "is the link between the troops and the commander. A good staff officer must endeavor to serve both to the best of his ability."

Numerating qualities of a good staff officer he mentioned strength of character, determination to get things done and loyalty.

"There is no place in the army for intrigue schemers and those who attempt to use political influence."

He warned that inevitably promotion would slow down in peacetime but if an officer did his job just a little better than was expected promotion would take care of itself.

At the investiture, Brig. J. D. B. Smith, C.B.E., of Kingston, commandant of R.M.C., received the D.S.O. Other officers honored were Maj. H. E. C. Price, of London, Ont., M.B.E.; Maj. D. R. Sharpe, Woodstock, N.B., M.C.; Maj. D. H. George, Saskatoon, M.C.; Capt. W. J. Strachan, Kingston, M.B.E., and Capt. A. J. Charbonneau of Ottawa, M.C.

The oil painting of a typical Netherlands landscape by Cornelis Kuypers was unveiled in the Red Room by Gen. Foulkes. The painting has no title but inscribed on a brass plate beneath are the words: "With sentiments of devoted friendship, thankfulness and admiration this painting by Cornelis Kuypers was presented to the First Canadian Army by a citizen of liberated Holland and was accepted by Lt.-Gen. Charles Foulkes, C.B., C.B.E., D.S.O., at Graveland, Holland, June 29, 1945."

The 12th war staff course began Aug. 20, 1945, and was the last of the war staff courses. The students attending the course, which dealt with every branch and phase of the army, ranged in rank from lieutenant to lieutenant-colonel and nearly all had wartime combatant experience. Having successfully completed their studies, the majority will be posted to various staff appointments throughout the army.

Two-Year Hunt Ends Cattle-Killer Shot

Rustenburg, South Africa, March 22 (CP)—After a hunt for a cattle-killing leopard which continued over more than two years in various parts of the Rustenburg district of the Transvaal, an old leopard has been shot in a wooded, rocky area within eight miles of the town by Col. S. J. Kruger, local farmer. The leopard was probably the last in the area, and weighed about 300 pounds. More than a score of organized hunts had proved unsuccessful.

After a number of calves and heifers had been killed recently, Col. Kruger armed with a 12-bore shotgun and accompanied by a pack of dogs, cornered the leopard. He fired one round, and as the leopard fell, he walked up to it. The leopard made a lunge at Kruger as he came within striking distance, but a second shot killed it.

TWENTY BILLS PUT THROUGH IN NIGHT SESSION

Debate on Budget Deferred to Enable Progress on Pile of Legislation

Toronto, March 22 (CP) — More than 20 bills, including some private members' measures, were put through second and third reading in a business-like short night sitting of the Ontario Legislature yesterday, following an equally brisk afternoon session at which legislation was given precedence over the debate on the budget.

The debate on the budget introduced Wednesday by Provincial Treasurer Frost was deferred to enable progress on the pile of legislation. Most of the afternoon discussion centred on an act to provide control of cutting of trees, moved for second reading by Lands and Forests Minister Thompson, the bill would prohibit complete clearance of any area of timber and Mr. Thompson admitted it might interfere with private property, but contended "the day has come when most individuals are ready to recognize the good of the community rather than the good of the individual."

W. J. Grummett, C.C.F. House leader, said it would be difficult to administer the legislation in Northern Ontario where there are no county councils R. A. McEwing (L-Wellington North) complained the act had "no teeth" in it.

Must be Warned

Among bills introduced for first reading was an amendment to the Highway Traffic Act providing that any motorist facing cancellation of his driving licence and impounding of his car must be warned before pleading guilty or not guilty. Other amendments would make it an offence to use red lights on the front of any vehicle other than an ambulance, police, fire or public utility vehicle.

Aurelien Belanger (L-Prescott) rose on a question of privilege to protest that the private bills committee had not made a recorded vote yesterday when it deferred indefinitely an application by Sacred Heart College of Sudbury for permission to be known as the University of Sudbury, with extended powers.

Mr. Belanger moved an amendment to a motion to adopt the report of the committee and R. H. Carlin (CCF-Sudbury) moved a sub-amendment urging further consideration. Premier Drew declared the government had no desire to take advantage of its overwhelming majority to push legislation and the bill finally was referred back to the private bills committee.

Second reading was given an act regarding the new Department of Reform Institutions, which will be headed by Provincial Secretary George Dunbar.

Second Reading Given

A. A. MacLeod. Lab-Prog. Toronto St. Andrews- suggested the new portfolio would make Mr. Dunbar "an atlas with the world on his shoulder" and the other Labor-Progressive member, J. B. Salsberg of Toronto Bellwoods, urged non-partisan administration of reform institutions.

The House also gave second reading to amend the Workmen's Compensation Act, to amend the Industrial Farms Act and to create the Department of Travel and Publicity.

Bills introduced for first reading included measures to allow an increase of $2,500 in the salary of Chief Coroner Dr. Smirle Lawson, to permit municipalities to establish day nurseries with the province bearing half the cost; to revoke automatically the title of King's Counsel when a barrister is disbarred, and to appoint a three-member Teachers' Board of Reference whose hearings would be in camera.

An amendment to the Wolf and Bear Bounty Act would provide bounties of $5 for a wolf pup, $5 for a bear cub and $10 for a bear.

During the night session Attorney-General Leslie Blackwell said the government would be "glad to consider" a point raised by Kelso Roberts (PC-Toronto St. Patricks) regarding a bill to amend the Hydro Power Act.

The amendment provides that "no action of any kind whatsoever" may be brought against the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission without consent of the Attorney-General. Mr. Roberts had asked what would happen if a man was killed by a Hydro Commission truck. Under the amendment, he said, it would appear there could be no recourse to the courts unless the Attorney-General approved.

Two Escaped Prisoners Give Selves Up

North Bay, March 21 —(CP)— The two escaped prisoners came from the bush to surrender, walked into the empty Provincial Police office and telephoned Constable D. H. Porter at his home to please come and arrest them.

It happened last night a few hours after Wilfred St. James of North Bay and Andre Miner of Sturgeon Falls, Ont., escaped from Nipissing district jail and fled into Widdifield township bushlands. They just got tired and hungry, they explained when the constable returned them to custody.

The short-term prisoners, working in a garden at the rear of the jail, escaped when the guard was changed and were seen heading north on the highway. Then they disappeared into the bush.

St. James had served half a two-month sentence for illegal sale or liquor; Miner had put in part of a three-month term for breaking, entering and theft.

Chief Justice Grants New Trial

Medicine Hat, Alta., March 22 —(CP) — Four days of testimony in the murder trial of L.Cpl. Johannes Wittinger, 30-year-old German prisoner of war, were stricken from the records yesterday when Chief Justice W. R. Howson of the Alberta Supreme Court granted a new trial on a point of law.

L. S. Turcotte, counsel for Wittinger, third man to be tried for the murder of August Plaszek, fellow prisoner, who was found hanged in Medicine Hat prisoner of war camp July 22, 1943, raised the matter of one juror who did not qualify under the age clause for jury duty.

As a result Wittinger will be held in Lethbridge jail until the next sitting of the Supreme Court here Oct. 14, when a new trial will be held.

When the court assembled after the noon recess yesterday Mr. Turcotte said G. O. Eskestrand was not qualified to serve under the Jury Act which specifies that persons called for duty must be more than 25 years of age and less than 60.

The first two prisoners accused of murder, Pte. Adolf Kratz, 24, and Sgt. Werner Schwalb, 30, had been sentenced to be hanged at Lethbridge June 26 for their part in the crime. They had been tried separately.

Says Cattle-Breeding Business Improves In Times of Low Prices

Calgary, March 21 — (CP) — "The cattle-breeding business makes its greatest advancements in times of poor prices," Bob Lazear, manager of the famous 'WHR' ranch at Cheyenne, Wyoming, told the Alberta Hereford Association at its annual dinner here last night.

The man who a few months ago turned down $100,000 for a bull, explained that when prices are good, as they are now, breeders are too strongly tempted to sell their second-best animals for the fancy prices obtainable, and thereby they put inferior breeding stock into circulation.

The object of breeding cattle, he said, was to improve the quality, and price did not necessarily have any connection with quality as just as good or better this year.

The Dominion government is largely to blame for the relatively lower prices prevailing at the Calgary bull sale this year. J. Charles Yule, secretary of the Alberta Cattle Breeders Association which managed the sale, said Wednesday.

He explained that about a year ago the American government ordered that only bulls from accredited herds could be imported into the United States.

That meant that every animal in the herd had to be tested and found free of tuberculosis before any bull from that herd would be permitted into the U. S. If a bull from a non-accredited herd is purchased the herd has to be tested within 30 days.

The New FORD

THE HAPPIEST MAN in Belleville today was HARRY MOORMAN, General Manager of RIGGS MOTOR SALES LTD., in whose showrooms at 224 PINNACLE ST., the NEW 1946 Ford cars went on display for the first time, this morning.

"There's no doubt about it," enthused Mr. Moorman, "compared with their immediate predecessors, these cars pack more styling, engine and chassis improvements than we've seen in any one model year since they first introduced the V-8's back in 1932.

"Examination of both the DeLuxe and Super DeLuxe lines—the two classifications under which these first new Fords since the war, are being manufactured—reveals 20 important improvements have been made in their V-8 power plants alone," said Mr. Moorman.

He pointed to sweeping departures in body styling and interior appointments.

"You get a sense of greater over-all body length and breadth from the bolder style treatment which begins with the massive front bumper, full-width three-bar grill, and new ornamental nameplate," said Mr. Moorman. "Fender and hood moulding strips heighten this impression."

Chassis refinements common to both DeLuxe and Super DeLuxe include multi-leaf springs having thinner, more numerous leaves, providing not only a smoother ride but also a level appearance under full passenger load. A shotpeened main leaf provides the element of maximum spring life. Another feature of the springing is the introduction of synthetic rubber spring shackle bushings, which are oil resistant and have greater longevity.

Quiet, self-centering hydraulic brakes will require less frequent adjustment but when such becomes necessary, the adjustment operation has been simplified by new design.

Experience gained through the production of over 400,000 military vehicles, utilized in every theatre of the war, has resulted in many of the new features of the V-8 power plant installed in these first new peacetime Fords. Carburetion, for instance, has been refined and balanced with a view to greater economy and efficiency; new four-ring aluminum pistons and a rear main bearing oil seal are economy features while longer engine life is promised by such provisions as a new oil bath type carburetor air cleaner, oil bath type engine breather cap, a new oil filter of the replaceable cartridge type and a 30 per cent larger oil pump which improves lubrication by the development of 50 per cent greater pressure.

Another eye-catcher for the motorist who looks under the hood before buying, is the calibrated pressure-valve radiator cap, designed to permit higher engine operating temperatures without loss of coolant. Part and parcel of the cooling system is the new high-efficiency fan with wider blades which have been relocated and repitched while the cylinder head gaskets have water holes calibrated to produce uniform temperature throughout the engine block.

Such improvements are all in addition to the many Ford features tried and proved to the public's liking on previous Ford models.

WITH MORE TELEPHONES in use than ever before, and people using them more, the number of Long Distance calls keeps going up and up.

We are training hundreds of new operators, adding many miles of new circuits and installing new switchboards to handle them. Everything possible is being done—but it does take time.

Until the job is done we will continue to need your co-operation. It is helpful when you observe the proper sequence in placing your calls with the operator and when you keep your talks as brief as possible.

WHEN YOU CALL:
FIRST, give Long Distance the name of the city you are calling.

DETROIT WINGS EVEN SERIES WITH BOSTON BRUINS

Harry Lumely Brilliant and Wings Score 3-0 Shut-out

Boston, March 22 (CP)— Detroit Red Wings showed Boston hockey fans last night that Wings are still a team to contend with when it comes to Stanley Cup reckoning. With Goalie Harry Lumley sparkling in early-season brilliance, Wings wound up on the long end of a 3-0 white-wash to even their best-of-seven semi-final National Hockey League series.

The drubbing before almost 14,000 fans was a costly one to the Detroiters, for star rookie Pat Lundy suffered a painful Shoulder injury while bouncing home the first goal. Zooming in on defenseless Frankie Brimsek in the Boston citadel with much speed, Lundy crashed into the boards after firing his scoring shot from 10 feet out.

The 3-1 loss Wings suffered last Tuesday was avenged and now the teams are all even for the third game in Detroit Sunday.

Detroit opened with power-house speed and within seven minutes had taken a lead which they extended to 2-0 on Jim Conacher's rally just before the 13-minute mark.

Bruins hung on grimly in the scoreless second period but could not take the initiative sufficiently to retaliate on the score board. It was not until the final stanza that Bruins started to roll, but Lumley was too strong by then and five-man attacks in the last minutes of the game had no effect.

The fourth game will be next Tuesday at Detroit while the teams will return here for the fifth game Thursday.

Kansas City Pla-Mors Defeated by Fort Worth

(By The Canadian Press)

Kansas City Pla-Mors, in spite of the season-long league supremacy, were defeated 3-1 Thursday by Fort Worth Rangers—the fifth place league in the United States Hockey League. Tulsa Oilers, meanwhile, defeated Dallas 8-4 in a game played under Dallas' protest from the second period on.

It was the fourth straight defeat for the league-leading Pla-Mors on Fort Worth ice. Butch MacDonald, the league's leading scorer, saved his team from a shutout at the opening of the 3rd period. Elby Kobussen, Bill Summerhill and Frank Eisenzoph scored the Ranger goals.

The excitement at Tulsa started in the second frame when a series of fist fights and arguments delayed the game 30 minutes. Dallas coach Leroy Goldsworthy filed notice that the Texans were playing under protest after Oiler coach Gus Marker shoved player Paul Waldner of Dallas in the course of an argument over a row between Waldner and Tulsa's John McCormick.

HAMILTON TIGERS SCORE EASY WIN OVER SAINT JOHN

Great Offensive Snows the Beavers Under Avalanche of Goals

Saint John, N. B., March 22 — (CP) — A one-sided 8-1 win over Saint John Beavers last night in the Eastern Canadian Allan Cup quarter finals made Hamilton Tigers heavy favorites to repeat their success tomorrow night and take the best-of-three series in two straight games.

Tigers' great offensive power snowed Beavers under an avalanche of rubber while a strong defence thwarted Saint John's infrequent attacks.

Beavers managed to get the 1st goal last night when Eddie Price scored on a rebound of a close-in shot by Nick Federonick. Hamilton gained the equalizer in five minutes, counted two more before the first period ended, and that was enough for victory.

Doug Runions, daddy of the Tigers, led the sharpshooting with three tallies, Bill Dinning and Dillon Brady had two each and Swat Mason fired the other.

Chips Off The Sports Block

A NICE GESTURE

Albert College students are agog with appreciation over the donation to the school by Messrs. McLean and Jack Haig, of Haig Bros. Coal Company of this city, of a handsome silver trophy for annual competition in Army Cadet work. And they express their gratitude to the donors in neat terms in the current edition of the weekly "Alibi-ette".

"In accepting this trophy," the school editor writes, "the college deeply appreciates the generosity and interest of the donors and wishes to thank the brothers for their gift. An endeavor will be made to have one of them present to present the trophy at convocation this year."

The Haig Trophy stands about eighteen inches high and is composed of two silver cadet statuettes mounted on a walnut base. Between the cadets and surmounting them rises a silver victory figure. Space is provided for the donors' name as well as that to the annual winner. The trophy remains the property of the school while a cadet statuette mounted on a suitable base becomes the permanent possession of the winner.

Jack Haig was a student at Albert in 1926-27 the year the new college opened and has always been interested in the progress of his Alma Mater. Both brothers served in World War II," McLean attaining the rank of group captain in the RCAF and Jack serving with the famous Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. He was forced to retire after extensive service overseas because of ill-health.

Belleville Collegiate athletic squads did right nobly by themselves in COSSA competition this winter, according to statistics just released. The B.C.I.'ers copped the senior boys' basketball title going through the schedule undefeated, and also the senior boys' hockey championship the same way. The junior hockeyists came through with the title for their loop without a loss chalked up against them.

Albert College junior boys basketball squad romped home with the titular bacon undefeated, while the senior girls honors went to the Picton squad with seven wins and one defeat, B.C.I. junior girls won the title of their loop after a hectic three-game series with the plucky Stirling squad. The third and deciding game was won by the collegiate colleens on the Albert floor.

Albert's junior boys basketeers will take part in the COSSA championship tournament to be held in Toronto either on April 5 and 6 or the 12th and 13th. The young hopefuls are practicing faithfully and games with the BCI seniors have been arranged to keep the lads in trim.

Queen's University athletic people are making a move in the right direction with their sponsoring of high school athletics for teams of high schools in small cities and towns in this part of the province. The basketball tournament scheduled for the latter part of April in Kingston will bring together 20 crack high school squads and should be productive of some outstanding basketball. The idea is a good one and is being met with more than ordinary enthusiasm is this part of the district.

Queen's have far-reaching ideas anent the small city high school athletics proposal. They plan track and field, swimming and diving and in midsummer a free football school for teen-aged pigskin punters. All of which makes very good sense and will no doubt be greeted with acclaim by the schools in this part of Ontario.

It is reported on reliable authority that the idea was an overwhelming success in Western Ontario where Western U took over the sponsoring reins. Schools up there caught on to the idea pronto and things at present are in a very flourishing condition. The least the plan can do is to give schools in wide-separated areas an idea of the other fellows strength, and who knows what future intercollegiate stars may be unearthed during the various meets. Many a star college athlete received his early training "in the sticks" and went on to "go out there and die for dear old Rutgers."

Paul Zemke who biographs Jockey Fleming in the current issue of a popular mag., quotes the jockey as follows on one of his adventures in New Jersey:—

"I knew all the politicians. ALL OF THEM. Wait till you hear the gag they pulled on me. They had a police squad car pick me up and bring me to headquarters, where the green light shines. When they got me there they grilled me like a frankfurter as a suspect in a holdup case. They put me in the lineup along with nine other guys and a bird with a stained red bandage on his coco picked ME out as the thug that pulled the job on him.

"I nearly fainted. I called up a big shot pal and told him they wanted $20,000 bail. The big shot said, 'Jockey, that's a lot of money. I can raise it for you in about three months.' I fainted. When I woke up and they told me it was all a rib I fainted again."

And another time: "I tried everything to get in to see a fight at Laurel Gardens in Newark once, and couldn't do. So what did I do? I borrowed a coat from a barber, bought some bags of peanuts and went right through the gate hollerin', 'Get your hot peanuts here — only a dime—10 cents!' That barber is still looking for his coat."

(Contributed)

In preparation for the coming C.O.S.S.A. championship series in Toronto, the B.C.I. senior basketball team and the Albert College junior team played an exhibition game at the college gym on Wednesday.

It turned out to be one of the fastest games seen on local floors in some years, with the Albert boys coming out on top by a score of 39 to 33. Both teams started the game undefeated.

The game started fast, with both teams showing good passing plays but being unable to find the hoop. Spafford for B.C.I. and Hyodo for Albert were the only two players who seemed able to get their eye on the basket. Albert players continually lost the ball on 'steps', while B.C.I. men were called for "holding."

At half time, the score was B.C.I. 16, Albert 15, with Landon of Albert, Hyodo of Albert, and Spafford and Cameron of B.C.I. each having scored 6 points.

After the half time whistle, Albert plays started to click when Captain Doug Lindsay got into the game on guard position, and Lill, at centre for Albert continually broke around his man to take long passes from first Lindsay and then Hyodo, for scores.

During the last half, Albert made no substitutions, and were able to steadily forge ahead, final whistle coming with the score standing 39 to 33. John Lill was high scorer of the game with 17 points made up of 7 baskets and 3 free throws

Charley Marion, 19-year-old brother of the celebrated Slats, turned up in the Cardinals training camp this spring and big brother explained he didn't know what position the kid played "but he was a whiz at football and basketball"... Positions apparently don't mean much to Marty, who was a third baseman when he first reported to the Huntingdon, W. Va., club of the Middle Atlantic League but switched to short when he found the team was well equipped with third-sackers... The day Frank Patrick, the old Chicago Cardinal fullback, arrived to take over his new job as athletic director and head coach at the College of Puget Sound, residents of Tacoma, Wash., and vicinity felt an earthquake shock... Linemen who used to tackle Frank weren't surprised... Don Budget offers the startling news to tennis emphasis that Frankie Parker's forehand (remember the old gags) now is his best shot.

Gordon Gilmore, St. Paul Pioneer-Press: "Reports from the south don't say how well the Saints are drawing in their exhibitions, but they're assured of at least one rooter... They've got a Pigg on third base."

Toronto, March 22 — (CP) — The memory of Harry (Hap) Holmes has been perpetuated by Al Sutphin, chief hockey mogul of Cleveland, O., in the form of a trophy for the perennial award to the best goaltender in the American Hockey League.

Almost anyone who played pro hockey or field lacrosse from 1908 to 1928 would rise to say that a winner of the Hap Holmes Memorial Trophy would have to go some to excell the once-great net guardian in the two sports whose birthplace was Aurora, Ont. For a complete generation of pro sport Hap was a star stopper until he organized, managed and coached Cleveland's first cash-hockey team in 1929, after finishing out his playing career with the Detroit N.H.L. Tigers in the previous season.

Holmes' first love was lacrosse and he starred for years with Jimmy Murphy's Torontos in the old National Lacrosse Association. He duplicated his brilliance in the ice sport, being the cage-minder for the Toronto Arenas when they captured the Stanley Cup. Later he was the stonewall performer for Victoria Cougars and Seattle when they were winning Pacific Coast hockey titles and battling for the Stanley silverware.

Holmes quit his Cleveland coaching job in 1937 and continued to manage the big arena but eventually went to Fort Lauderdale, Fla., to operate a fruit farm because of a break in health. Five years ago, at 53 years of age, he passed on to meet the Final Referee.

The once-famed goalminder was noted for being handy with both stick and fists. He suffered the only knockout of his career at the Maissoneuve Grounds in Montreal but it was an irate hometown fan, with a bottle, and not an opposing player who did it. Torontos and Nationals were playing a crucial lacrosse fixture and the crowd took a dislike to the manner in which Holmes was blocking the Habitants' shots. The fan heaved the bottle which struck Holmes' face, breaking his cheekbone and knocked him cold. That was the only match, on field or ice, that Holmes did not finish.

Another side to Hap Holmes was that he liked nothing better than to encourage youngsters in sport and he developed many minors, wherever he lived. In his later years, he did much for hockey in Cleveland which is why Al Sutphin of the Barons put up the trophy — for a great athlete and a real guy.

The token has been awarded this season to goalie Nick Damore of Hershey Bears, the pick of the A.H.L. circuit.

LESSON NO. 942

By SAM GORDON

The Kibitzer

A rule in which there is no hitch is very seldom found. Unless you face that fact with grace, you haven't been around.

With no top (honor) card lead, a small (lower than a ten) card is led. A small card lead is the fourth best of a longie (four or more cards). Or it is the highest of a short (three or less cards).

A nine is a small card. But a nine lead is never from a longie; never a fourth best. Any three higher cards would contain a top lead. So, the lead of a nine is the best card from a short suit.

For all practical purposes, think of an eightspot lead in the same class as a nine lead; never as a fourth best of a longie. Look upon an eightspot lead as the best card from a short suit.

Three-card groups higher than an eightspot are A K Q, A K J, A K 10, A K 9, K Q J, K Q 10, K Q 9, A Q J, Q J 10, Q J 9, A J 10, K J 10, J 10 9, K 10 9, K 10 9, Q 10 9, A Q 10, A Q 9, A J 9, K J 9.

From the first seven, the king is led. From the next three, the queen is led. From the next three, the jack is led. From the three next, the ten is led.

Only from the last four is an eightspot lead used. And such a suit is seldom led except against no-trump. So, occasions are very few indeed when a fourth best eightspot lead is employed.

Consequently, when partner leads an eightspot, how do you read it? As his highest in a suit of less than four cards. It must be his best card in a worthless suit.

The small cards are from the deuce to the nine. A small card lead is either a fourth best or a highest. But a nine lead always is a highest and an eightspot lead is always considered so.

Suppose you lead the club eightspot from this hand:

♠A Q 6 2
♥Q 6 2
♦K 8 4 3
♣8 4

Partner expects it to be your best club. So it is.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, March 22—(AP)—A penniless immigrant landed in the United States; 25 years later he was a captain of industry. A typical Howie formula, but this one happened in Hollywood.

Twenty-five years ago Thursday 19-year-old Joe Pasternak landed in New York from his native Hungary. Perhaps one reason he has found such success in producing Cinderella pictures starring Canada's Deanna Durbin, Kathryn Grayson, Esther Williams and June Allyson, is because his own life follows the same pattern.

"I first got interested in movies when I was a busboy in a New York restaurant," he said. "Ushers from nearby theatres ate there. I would slip them extra pieces of pie and they would let me into the shows on my time off. I decided acting was a cinch, so I enrolled at a dramatic academy."

Joe spent $300 to discover that he was no actor and the academy was no school. He then got a job as busboy at the Long Island Studio Commissary.

"I slipped Alan Dawn, the director, extra large steaks," he claimed. "Finally he made me his fourth assistant — in charge of the chairs."

Thereafter Joe plodded up thru all kinds of movie chores until he produced a picture called "Three Smart Girls" with a high-voiced little girl from Winnipeg named Deanna Durbin.

You may remember Betty Compson as a shapely, well-stemmed, blond beauty of silent films and early talkies. For your information, she still is shapely, sightly and blond. Miss Compson is back in the movies playing a role in "Claudia and David." She now is 49, but she has a figure that a bathing beauty would envy. Her face appears closer to 30 and her smooth legs taper to a well-turned ankle and a tiny foot.

Greer Garson will get the first post-war dressing room when she starts "A Woman of My Own" with Robert Montgomery. It's a Kelly green and yellow affair with a bath and a telephone, innovations in portable dressing rooms . . . Sidney Greenstreet was moaning on the "A Very Rich Man" set about the clothing shortage. "Where am I going to find a 19½ collar?" he asked.

Queen's University Will Sponsor Athletic Meets For East Ontario High Schools

Basketball Tournament to Start Off Extensive Sports Program; 20 Teams Entered; Belleville Schools Will be Represented

Queen's University, Kingston, as part of a long range plan to further high school athletics in Eastern Ontario, is this year sponsoring a series of athletic meets for schools located in town and small city areas.

Starting off the program will be an invitation high school basketball tournament which is scheduled for April 24, 25 and 26.

Further to the above it is planned to hold in Kingston in the second week in September a high school swimming and diving championship meet. In the last week in August a free football school for teen-agers will be held and high school relays and other track and field events are scheduled for the spring of 1947.

The basketball tournament has been termed the "First Queen's Annual Invitation Basketball Tournament" and entries have been limited to teams from small cities and towns in Eastern Ontario. No urban teams from Ottawa, Toronto, Montreal or Hamilton will participate.

In Two Sections.

The tournament will be conducted in the Queen's gymnasium and will consist of two sections. "A" section will comprise schools of male student enrolment of 160 or over and "B" section of schools under 160 male student enrolment.

The tournament will be double elimination thus assuring each team of a minimum of two games. Equal prizes will be awarded to the winning teams in each section in which ten teams will be invited to compete.

Accommodations Provided.

Sleeping accommodation will be supplied to all visiting teams free of charge, in dormitories situated in the gymnasium building. Teams will consist of ten players, a manager and coach. Meals can be obtained at the Students' Union, next door, at a very reasonable rate.

Balls, for both practice and games, will be supplied, as will spectator accommodation, referees, minor officials, whistles, clocks, etc.

Games will commence at 8 a.m. Wednesday April 24 and will continue at the rate of one game every hour on the hour until semi-finalists are declared. Finals in both sections will be played on the evening of Friday, April 26.

The university swimming pool, locker rooms and washrooms, located in the gymnasium building, as well as the Students' Union will be available at all times to contesting players, managers and coaches.

Coach N. A. (Pete) Beach of Albert College announced today that a team from the school will participate in the tournament. There is also a strong possibility that Belleville Collegiate Institute which has received an invitation, will send a squad.

Trumble's Tally Wins for Stirling

Oshawa, March 22 (Special) — Bruce Trumble's 3rd-period goal, on a relay from Doug. Lavender, gave Stirling a 6 to 5 verdict over Whitby in the first of a home-and-home O.H.A. Junior C semi-final series here last night. Second game will be played here on Monday evening.

Lavender proved the game's big shot with three goals, while Trumble collected a pair. Lee Bastedo was the other Stirling sniper. P. McCloskey, J. McCloskey, Morrison, Lintner and Lowe scored for Whitby.

Stirling—Goal, McInroy; defence, Tanner and Whitehead; centre, Cousins; wings, Lavender and Trumble; alternates, Bastedo, Stapley, Courtney and Dafoe.

Whitby — Goal, McEwen; defence, Heffering and Lowe; centre, J. McCloskey; wings, P. McCloskey and Lintner; alternates: Moore, Morrison, Pascoe, Gates, Hooker, Majcher and Dalby.

INDIANS LACK PUNCH AT PLATE SAYS BOUDREAU

Manager Believes New York, Detroit and Boston Will Fight it Out for Flag

GAYLE TALBOT

Clearwater, Fla., March 22 — (AP)—Dismissing his own Cleveland Indians with a very few words, mainly concerning their lack of punch at the plate, manager Lou Boudreau predicts that New York, Detroit and Boston will put on a merry scrap for the American League title.

In Bobby Feller, Allie Reynolds, Steve Gromek and Charley Embree the Indians possess a four-man pitching staff probably second to none in the game, and in Boudreau himself they still have a fine shortstop who hits over .300. But after that they taper off rapidly.

George Case is the team's new leftfielder. He hit .294 for the Senators last year. The two other outfield jobs will be divided up among such light hitters as Felix Mackiewicz, Jim Serrey and Clarence Campbell.

Les Fleming has sewed up first base duties, and Lambert Meyer will be back at second base.

Ken Keltner, one of the better third-basemen will be back at the hot corner when he signs his contract.

Sherman Lollar, a six-footer who clouted .364 for Baltimore last year, is figured to take over the catching from Frank Hayes, a fine workman but a weak hitter.

Negro Players Will be Barred In Jacksonville

Jacksonville, Fla., March 22 — (AP)— Jackie Robinson and John Wright, Negro players for Montreal Royals of the International League, will be prohibited from participating in an exhibition game with Jersey City here Sunday by a regulation of the Jacksonville Playground and Recreation Board.

George Robinson, executive secretary for the board, said last night that "rules, regulations and policies of the Jacksonville Playground and Recreation Board prohibit mixed contestants in athletic events on their facilities."

"This means," the board secretary explained, "that white and Negro athletes can not play together and would serve to bar and Negro player from the game here Sunday."

The city official said the Montreal club could bring second baseman Robinson or any other Negro player it wished to Jacksonville but that no Negro player would be permitted to play.

The city regulation has been in effect for years, the recreation department secretary said, and when he learned earlier this week that the Negro second baseman might participate in the game Sunday, he notified officials of the Jersey City club, in spring training here, of the Jacksonville regulation prohibiting mixed contestants.

Secretary Robinson said he had not contacted Montreal concerning the issue. After a conference with other city officials, the board secretary said there would be no departure from the policy barring mixed contests.

"DINA CASHMAN"

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

CHAPTER 10

The old Holland place stood in forty wooded acres and had a deep canyon to itself. It had been built in days of the pioneers, gold-rush, railroad-fortune days; it had been somewhat modernized in the nineties. But it was still a pretentious, gloomy, clumsy old building.

Tonight it wore an aspect as cheerful as gushing lights and a wide-opened door could lend it. The Hollands had once been famous for hospitality, and although that day was long dead, something of its glory was on this occasion restored.

The dress, the slippers had arrived. Everything that she and Mrs. Bucket had bought, in a bewildering afternoon of shopping the previous Friday, was there. Her costume was complete, even to new stay. Dina was left alone to enjoy a bath, to get into her undergarments unobserved. The housekeeper returned to help her with the final touches.

The slippers were silver; there was a band of tiny silver roses for her hair. The dress was of heavy white satin, printed with large splashy flower clusters, and at her waist was a cluster of more silver roses from which hung delicate silver ribbons.

Dina had never seen such a gown before; the saleswoman had indeed assured them that there was no other like it anywhere. The girl stood looking at herself in the mirror like one dazed.

Under the little crown of roses her soft burnished hair rippled and curved in waves. Her face was pale but alight with excitement.

The gown was short-waisted; a quaint tightness forced up the young breasts so that a suggestion of cleft showed between them; the narrowness of hips and waistline made the spreading skirts seem all the more flowerlike.

Dina's eyes were blazing. Upon the advice of the saleswoman she had used only a pale lip red; her mouth looked soft and young, and when she smiled at her reflection the smile was sad rather than gay.

"My goodness, you look like another girl!" Mrs. Bucket said in honest admiration.

"Fine feathers," Dina said slowly.

At 7 o'clock she descended the stairs; Rogers came out of the library to meet her. The fact that for one full minute he had not the slightest idea who she was, perhaps was as honest a tribute to her appearance as could have been paid her.

She saw admiration in his eyes before he spoke.

"Geraldine!" he exclaimed.

He caught at her hand, holding her off the better to see her.

"Why, good heavens," he said, "What on earth have they done to you? Good—good—my God!" Still holding her hand, he led her into the library, laughing triumphantly.

She knew he was immensely pleased; responsive warmth stirred even in her own frozen heart.

"Isn't it beautiful?" she said, spreading her skirts.

"Yes," he spoke absently, thoughtfully. "Turn around," he said. "Who did your hair?"

"I did. But I can easily change it. I can put it down again. Sometimes I pin it up that way to make me look older."

"I don't want you to look a bit different," he said musingly, his eyes moving over her in intense satisfaction. "You look exactly right. I must congratulate Bucket and whoever sold you the gown. Now, you'll remember the general plan, won't you? No conversation."

"Dumb," the girl agreed briefly.

"No, not dumb. With those high cheekbones of yours and the way your eyes are set, you'll never look dumb. But be mysterious. You might smile, shrug. 'I'm not bothering with any of you!' That sort of thing. Now one thing more. Someone is going to ask you where you come from. What are you going to say?"

"Russia," Dina suggested promptly. The man widened his eyes, laughed approvingly.

"Russia. After the Revolution. Escaped through Vladivostok."

Dina considered this.

"I think not," she said. "I wasn't alive at the time of the Revolution. I'd better say I've just escaped."

"Fine. But if you're just out of Russia, how did you get here?"

"Well"—Dina's look was anxiously helpful—"you said mystery," she offered, hesitating. Again he laughed.

"'Mystery' it is," he agreed. "You're just from Russia, Miss Cashman? How very interesting! How'd you get out?"

"'Very complicated,'" Dina said slowly.

"You speak Russian, of course'" Rogers Holland pursued.

"'Very little,'" She answered the imaginary question seriously "'So many years I was with my English connections,'" she added.

"Excellent!" the man cried, rubbing his hands in satisfaction. "If you'll just remember to answer slowly. Or don't answer at all."

"They'll think I'm bored," the girl protested.

"Let them! Everybody worries about a bored person. Now sit there in that blue chair; lean your head against the back and put one foot up against the stool. That's right. Take that position whenever you can. This husband of Aline's is an artist, and it's highly possible that you'll do something to him when his eyes light on you."

"And is he rich, Mr. Holland?"

"Wait a minute! Are you to call me that?" he questioned, considering. "Yes, I think you should," he decided. You're less than half my age; you haven't known me very long; I can call you Geraldine, but you aren't quite so familiar yet. You asked me if Aline's husband is rich," Rogers continued. "No, he hasn't a cent. And she has only what Polock gave her in the way of stocks or bonds—whatever it was she lost most of it."

"And of course Rosenstirn's alimony stops like a shot now. That's what interested her in me, my dear," the man went on. "Until now Aline has always had an eye to the main chance. This is her first venture in true love. They're to live in his studio, back of Los Altos somewhere, and he's to paint portraits—I don't know whose!—and keep her amused.

"I shouldn't think a person who's been rich and traveled a lot would be happy very long that way," Dina said thoughtfully.

Rogers did not answer. He sat watching her idly for a minute and then asked abruptly:

"Did you hear from Vere?"

"Yes." Her color fluctuated.

"He wrote," she said. "I had the letter when I got home the day I came to see you."

"What'd he say? Why didn't you tell me?"

"That there is no use my going East," Dina said steadily.

"That's his mother," Rogers observed after a minute.

"His mother was there. I wrote him at Christmastime that I—that I was afraid. They went East, he and she, and he's written me now that I'm just imagining things—not to come."

"Did he say so?"

"Yes. He wrote that he was sorry I was bothered and that his mother was sure I was mistaken," Dina said in a level voice devoid of feeling.

"That sounds like Caroline," the man said almost with triumph. "That's Caroline. What else?"

"That his father might take him to South America and that I wasn't to worry." The girl finished the statement quietly and sat staring ahead of her like a person in a dream.

"As a matter of fact you're not mistak—en?" Rogers asked.

"No."

"You seem to take this very quietly, my dear."

Her eyes moved to his, and he saw that they were no longer a child's eyes; they were infinitely grave.

"I have to," she said. "I—think I've known from the beginning that it would be this way. Not—not that Sunday that we came down from Paradise Valley and we talked all the way. But since. Ever since. I know that it was just liking a girl—having a crush on her, to him, and that it's something that will stay with me all my life. A human being that I'm responsible for. And I'm going to be responsible for it," Dina went on in a firmer voice.

"I don't know just how I'll start, but once I get started I'll be all right. I'll have to go away from home; I won't see my sisters and brothers any more. But that's what happens to girls like me."

"A boy, unfortunately," Rogers said slowly, "feels that he is very lucky if he can get out of a predicament like this. He's only too willing to forget it, to believe that it isn't serious. That's what girls don't know."

"Girls do know. They know," Dina said.

"I can only say that I think you're damn spirited and plucky,'" the man observed. Dina moved heavy eyes to his.

"I have to be," she answered. "I would like to get out of it too, if I could. I've always thought myself—I've always been—I've never been the sort—" Her voice thickened and she fell silent.

"I believe you," Rogers said. "And you're how old? Nineteen? Well keep your chin up; here comes the vanguard!"

There was a stir of laughter and voices in the hall. Hinz began to show in the guests; five of them, and then two, and two, and three, and four.

They came in cold and gay and noisy; two quite elderly men, two elderly wives, a pretty girl Dina's age and the rather uninteresting looking young man she was going to marry, a younger couple, a countess who spoke broken English, a man who had evidently won some sort of tournament and who was under a constant fire of congratulations.

Last of all, when everyone else had had cocktails and canapes and had settled into groups, the Andrew Havenses came. The man looked the artist, the hair on his handsome blond head just a trifle long, his evening clothes just a trifle baggy. He was a tall man with a pleasant laugh and a big firm jaw; his skin was browned, his hands long, fine, and nervous. He seemed quite at ease among all these strangers.

The woman, now for the third time receiving good wishes as a bride, was perhaps three or four years older than her new mate. At thirty-four she was at the peak of her beauty, and an exotic beauty it was.

Her hair was raven black, plastered tight to her head; the skin of her arms and throat and her proud, lovely face was all of a smooth creamy texture; her lips were crimson and her eyes a strange dove blue, heavily lashed in black. The trailing gown she wore carried out a general impression of Oriental aristocracy; it was wrapped about her in a sheath of peacock-blue brocade patterned in darker blue, silver, and black, and clasped with glittering shields of jewels. In her ears she wore heavy pendants of pearls.

She came in with a royal effect of entrance, was instantly surrounded and kissed by the men and women alike, for to all of them this was her first appearance since her runaway wedding.

"Is anyone speaking to me?" Dina heard her demand from the centre of the circle. "Billy—Olive—this is Andy Havens, and you'll all please to like him very much and have your portraits painted by him next week!"

"Aline, you're more beautiful than ever!" a woman said.

"Happiness, darling, happiness! We're living on nothing, and my flushed little face will soon be bending over a dishpan, but I really do like the creature, and so I don't care!"

She was face to face with Rogers; she looked up boldly.

"Toppy, you've got to like my husband," she said.

"I've liked all your husbands, Aline," Rogers said in the silence, with a bow.

Dina saw the smooth alabaster of her face flush faintly; she came back at him promptly.

"Yes, and I thought for a while that I was going to like your second wife immensely! I mean me," Aline said.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, March 22 — (CP) — Industrial stocks recorded further gains and the mining groups were narrowed lower at mid-day. Western oils held steady. Trading was light at 673,000 shares for the 1st three hours.

Jollet-Quebec had a trading spurt on a report that exploration work on the property had uncovered four per cent copper.

In the golds slightly better prices appeared for La Luz, Malartic Gold Fields, Chesterville, Hedley-Mascot, North Inca, Sturgeon and Dickenson.

The liquor and paper stocks were up and the steels and utilities a bit heavier.

NEW YORK EXCHANGE

New York, March 22 —(AP)— Assorted stocks exhibited a fair amount of strength in today's market although early gains running to around five points failed to hold many leaders backed into the loss column.

Air transports and department stores came to the fore after a moderately active opening. Dealings then tapered and trends were irregular near the fourth hour.

On the exchange at noon Distillers Seagram, among Canadians, showed the greatest change with an advance of 2 1-4 points to 91 3-4. On the offside were Canadian Pacific, minus 1-8 at 19 3-4 and Dome Mines, down 1-8 at 25 1-2. International Nickel gained 1-8 at 37 3-4.

Barber and Skater Argues How To Cure Hay Fever

By ARTHUR EDSON

Washington, March 22 (AP)—A barber who says his mind is the equal of Pasteur's is in an argument with the post office department over how to cure hay fever.

Frank X. Cormier, Pascoag, R.I., barber, figure skater, violinist, memory expert and former short order cook, says he had hay fever for 10 years.

Then bingo! He had a whopper of a sneeze one day—and was on the road to complete recovery.

Cormier has set his theories down in a pamphlet entitled, "This is the Story of how I Cured my Hay Fever." It retails for $1.

The post office people think this may be using the mails to defraud, so they called a hearing to peer into the question. The verdict won't be known for several weeks.

The 50-year-old, small but sturdy Cormier, who says he can memorize such things as the United States Constitution merely by reading them over, insisted he had defrauded no one.

"My only interest," he said, "is relieving the suffering of humanity"

His system: Sneeze with your mouth open. Sniff cold air as it floats off chopped ice. Wash your face and hands in cold water. Use your mouth for breathing, "giving the nose a rest."

Cormier said he was peeved at the way the medical profession has spurned him. But he added that was because it would lose "millions of dollars every year" if his treatment became popular.

"I'm just a mouse," he mused, "trying to stampede a herd of elephants."

The government's witness was Dr. Fred W. Norris who said he guessed he knew a thing or two about hay fever—both his wife and his brother have it.

He needed 16 minutes and many a four-bit word to describe the medical profession's theory that pollen causes hay fever. He repeatedly said there is "absolutely nothing" to Cormier's idea.

But Cormier, who represented himself "because no lawyer is smart enough to understand me," was cheerful after three hours of arguing with Dr. Norris and the government's array of legal talent.

Recommendations Made by Comm. In Special Report

Picton, March 22 — County Council yesterday heard the special committee, appointed at a previous session report on an investigation into administration of county roads, following charges of lax administration and alleged loss to taxpayers,made by H. D. Cleminson, Wellington.

There were no charges levelled against any council members, past or present, in the report prepared by Solicitor G. T. Walmsley, K.C., Reeve Norris Whitney of Ameliasburg and Mr. Cleminson.

Following reading of the report Warden Brummell enquired, "Did the committee find any evidence of fraud?"

Reeve Whitney replied, "the report clears up that charge."

Reeve D. Thompson commented, "according to the report, there is no evidence of fraud."

Investigated Road Accounts

"The committee was appointed to investigate county road accounts for the year 1943, advise whether or not, in their opinion, a judicial inquiry should be requested and to bring in such recommendations as seemed desirable for the improvement of County Road Committee procedure," the report stated.

In this year, $50,000 was spent on roads, the greater part connected with purchase of rock from the H. J. McFarland Construction Co.

"Your committee wish it to be clearly understood that its investigation into this phase of county road affairs is not intended to suggest that any member of county council was improperly concerned with the McFarland Construction Co." the report stated.

Then followed a review of tenders for 1943 rock. In this connection the committee found that complete records of rock delivered were not kept.

Asks For Tenders

Then followed 13 recommendations for future procedure. These included competitive prices in the form of sealed tenders to be obtained by advertising; each reeve to be supplied with statement showing approximate expenditure in each township the previous year; that careful and detailed records be kept by all officials, an adequate check on materials used.

Discussion was laid over until June, when council members will have had an opportunity to discuss the lengthy report.

Reeve N. Whitney: We presented the facts as we found them.

Reeve C. Hughes: I don't think any member of council had any thought that there were discrepancies. Like so many stories, it grew by leaps and bounds through rumors.

Reeve D. Thompson: There may have been laxness, but no fraud intended or proven.

Started on Big Scale

Warden E. Brummell: This story was started on a big scale. The public is wise if it gets the true facts before passing judgment.

Reeve Whitney said a thorough check of weight and delivery slips is now being made.

HELP WRONG MAN

Des Moines, March 22 (AP)—A man appeared at the police station last Saturday and asked help in removing from an automobile an intoxicated man he said he had picked up. Two patrolmen promptly obliged, arrested Don Moore for intoxication. Released after paying a $5 fine, Moore soon was back to report his automobile stolen. Blushing patrolmen learned that the man they had helped was arrested at Duluth, Minn, in possession of Moore's car.

SPRING FEVER YAWN DISLOCATES MAN'S JAW

Lancaster, Pa., March 22 (AP)—Charles Flick, 25, got a touch of spring fever yesterday, stretched and yawned lazily, dislocating his jaw. In hospital, pressure was applied to the correct bone, pushing the jaw back into place.

Number of Articles Picked up by Police

Hamilton, March 22 (CP)— A number of unidentified articles picked up by police were examined yesterday by Dr. W. J. Deadman, city pathologist, as investigation continued of the torso-slaying of John Dick, 40-year-old Hamilton street railway bus conductor.

Two people are being held in custody. Bail was refused yesterday for Mrs. Evelyn Dick, widof of the slain man, who was arrested on a charge of vagrancy. Bail was also refused for William Bohozyk, charged with vagrancy and having possession of an unregistered revolver. Police said that Boyozyck, well-known Hamilton athlete, "has not definitely been linked" with the investigation into the death of Dick.

The articles examined by Dr. Deadman were not identified by police but it is believed they were picked up in the search for clues concerning disposition of the head, arms and legs of the murdered man. Only the torso was found in a gully near here last Saturday when the slaying was first discovered. Dr. Deadman was also called in to examine a car picked up by police who suspect it was used in disposing of the body.

Russia Promises To Withdraw From Manchuria

Chinese Forces Reported Moving Toward Szepingkai

Chungking, March 23 (AP)—The Russian government has promised to withdraw all Soviet forces from Manchuria not later than the end of April, Foreign Minister Wang Shih-Chieh told the People's Political Council today.

Wang said the information was contained in a note from the Russian government received yesterday.

The announcement came as Chinese press dispatches told of mounting tension as Communist and government forces moved toward possible full-scale armed clashes in the north.

Wang added that the comunication was in reply to a Chinese diplomatic note sent to Moscow March 6 asking when Russian forces would be withdrawn.

Pressed for details, he promised to give the council a written report of negotiations with Russia over Manchuria.

Government sources said it was not likely the evacuation of Manchuria would include the treaty port, Dairen, which the Russians are garrisoning heavily, or Port Arthur, over which the Soviets were given control in the Sino-Soviet treaty.

Wang's announcement was the first indication of Russia's intentions in Manchuria since a Red Army commander at Mukden said Soviet troops would leave "certainly no later" than United States forces were withdrawn from China.

Government troops were reported advancing toward Szepingkai, Communist-held rail junction town 100 miles north of Mukden, as the Reds sabotaged communications between Mukden and Changchun, capital of Manchuria.

A World Daily News dispatch reported large numbers of Communist troops were massing in Jehol province.

Another dispatch said the Communists were continuing attacks against the Shansi province town of Chungyang, 85 miles southwest of Taiyuan, the provincial capital. Chungyang has been under siege six months.

The Communists also were reported attacking the rail town of Wensi in Southwestern Shansi. Wensi has been besieged two months.

Average Russian Approves Stalin's Confidence in UNO

By EDDY GILMORE

Moscow, March 23 (AP) — Russia's man in the street today voiced his approval of Premier Stalin's expression of confidence in the United Nations and his assurance that neither nations nor their armies want war.

"Stalin answered thoughts that everyone has been thinking—thoughts they have been thinking but failing to say," said a chauffeur.

"That's the kind of answer everyone has been hoping someone would make," said a policeman. "People all over the world have been afraid of one another. They do not want war and I believe they have now got reason to feel better."

"Russians only want peace," said a cook. "They are not interested in war. War brings only disaster and unhappiness to Russia as well as to the rest of the world."

Cashier's View

"Why should people of the world go out and fight," said the cashier in a store. "The average workers all over the world don't want any war and I believe comrade Stalin has spoken for them when he says nations and their armies don't want war."

"I am a soldier, but God knows I don't want war any more than an American or Chinese soldier wants it," said a Red army captain. "Comrade Stalin has spoken with his great wisdom once more."

"I have always said that the Russian people don't want any more wars and all they want is to be left alone," declared a Russian housewife and mother. "They certoinly are not interested in gaining any land from anybody and it sounds ridiculous to a Russian to be accused of being aggressive."

Stalin Gives Answers

"The questions asked Stalin were ones everyone wanted answered," said a student, "and Stalin gave the answers everyone wanted to hear. The answers are calming to the people."

"Equality of nations is right," said an engineer. "The answers should calm down some people who are worried about war."

Pravda, organ of the Communist party, gave Stalin's answers to this correspondent's questions first place in the news on its front page, headed off its news index with the story and displayed both at the top of the page under bold black headlines.

"Questions of Associated Press Correspondent Gaspodin (Mr.) Eddy Gilmore to Comrade Stalin and Comrade Stalin's answers."

Pravda made no editorial comment.

The government newspaper Izvestia also gave first place on the front page to the questions and answers, printing them across two-thirds of page one under the masthead in the same bold type and headlines as Pravda used.

Red Star, the army newspaper, and other Moscow morning publications gave similar prominence to the story.

Canada to Give Gouzenko Every Chance for Life

Ottawa, March 23 (CP) — A high officials here said last night that Igor Gouzenko, former Russian cipher clerk, "had risked his life" by offering testimony in connection with the espionage hearing at Montreal.

"This man has shown great courage and has done high public service by stepping into that witness box," said the official.

"Gouzenko knew that by so doing he wrote his own death warrant and it is up to Canada to see that he and his family have protection to the end of their days.

"And I have reason to believe that the Canadian Government will be alive to their responsibility and see that this man is protected from any attempts which may be made on his life."

He indicated that elaborate plans had been made to ensure the safety of Gouzenko and his wife and child. These plans will remain a top secret and are said to be known only to the inner circle of RCMP officers. The government is understood to have arranged an allowance for Gouzenko.

The informant recalled that several Russians who had embraced democracy, and had testified against their homeland had mysteriously died during the last ten years.

"And Canada is going to make sure that Gouzenko does not suffer a similar fate," he concluded.

ONE POUND BABY BORN

Los Angeles, March 23—(AP)—Physicians disclosed last night that a one-pound baby girl was still alive 24 hours after birth. The child, 10 inches long, was placed in an oxygen tent immediately after its delivery by caesarean section. The child's mother, Mrs. Lind Ververs, was reported seriously ill. Doctors said it is extremely unusual for so small a child to remain alive even for a day.

Easing of World Tension Seen As Result of Stalin's Speech

London, March 23 (AP)—Diplomatic circles and newspapers generally foresaw an easing of world tension today as a result of Premier Stalin's statement to the Associated Press that no country is "seeking another war."

Stalin, who also affirmed his confidence in the United Nations Organization as a "serious instrument" for preserving peace, made his assertions in a written reply yesterday to three questions put to him by AP correspondent Eddy Gilmore.

Gustav Rasmussen, Denmark's Foreign Minister, said the statement would "be welcomed in Denmark" and would "no doubt have a cooling effect on those who have lately shown some signs of excitement."

In Washington, a White House spokesman said that President Truman's reaction was that he always had known that was exactly the way Stalin felt.

British government leaders declined comment for publication. Winston Churchill, reached on the Queen Mary on which he is returning to England following a visit in the United States, said he had "no comment."

London observers close to the international situation however, said that Stalin had removed some of the basis for speculation that Russia would withdraw from the United Nations because of the Iranian issue.

Moscow radio, heard in London, broadcast the text of the interview 10 times in 12 hours. Two supplementary Tass broadcasts carried the interview to bureaux of the official Russian news agency for distribution in the majority of European capitals.

The London Daily Herald described the interview as "calming and encouraging" and said Stalin appeared "confident of Russia's ability to prove she has no desire to dominate Persia (Iran)."

THREE ARE STILL UNIDENTIFIED IN ESPIONAGE CASE

Most Vital Name Of All May Lurk Among These Few as New Disclosures Made

Ottawa, March 23 — (CP) — The unknowns among the 15 persons detained in Canada's spy probe had slimmed to three today but there were indications that the most vital name of all lurked amid those few.

Thirty-six days after police began their roundup, there were indications, too, that the unexpected developments yesterday might be causing consideration in Ottawa among the people who are piloting the over-all case.

There was no immediate indication of what effect it might have but it was known that the action of Igor Gouzenko, former cipher clerk at the Russian Embassy, in unloosing a lot of names in court at Montreal took those officials somewhat by surprice.

They have not expected his disclosures to go as far as they did in that connection.

It was considered possible that fact, coupled with the equally unexpected disclosure of names of two of the five men still detained without counsel here, might work in two directions:

1. They might hasten the third—and possibly final — interim report of the investigating Royal Commission now expected to be tabled in the Commons sometime next week. The second report was released March 15.

2. They might provoke further arrests.

Among Five Still Held

Yesterday's disclosure that Prof. Israel Halperin of Queen's University and Sqdn. Ldr. Fred Poland of Montreal, both 36, were among the five still held at the R.C.M.P.'s suburban Rockcliffe barracks left only three names to be revealed.

Those close to the case who have watched the names unfold are still waiting for that of a man who may well shape up as a ringleader, if not the ringleader of what has been compared to a "vast fifth column" in Canada.

Gouzenko, testifying in the case of Fred Rose, Labor-Progressive Member of Parliament charged with communicating information to Russia unlawfully, gave a considerable list of names, cover and otherwise.

Although national headquarters of the R.C.M.P. declined to comment after the flood really began, they let it be known that no orders for the arrest of Sam Carr, Labor-Progressive national organizer from Toronto, have been issued by the commission.

Gouzenko said both Carr and Rose were "recruiting agents" for the Russian ring.

The commission, still wading through the evidence of the latest of dozens of witnesses, still probing through mazes of documents, has not given the word.

Of the 15 persons detained, one is facing trial in England, two in Montreal, seven in Ottawa and 5 are still held without charge.

In Ottawa court today, Mr. Justice J. C. McRuer will rule on a petition by Poland's wife setting Habeas Corpus proceedings in motion with an eye to his release. Name of the Illinois-born former newspaperman and wartime intelligence officer at R. C. A. F. headquarters, emerged when the petition was filed.

Clad in the nautical attire [illegible], Winston Churchill, accompanied by Mrs. Churchill, board the S. S. Queen Mary for the return trip to England. Highlight of the former British prime minister's nine-week visit in the U. S. was his talk at Fulton, Mo., which created international repercussions.

Gouzenko Testifies Russians Used Communist Party in Canada As "Base" for Espionage Activities

Montreal, March 23 (CP)—Igor Gouzenko, cipher clerk in the Russian Embassy at Ottawa, testified Friday that Soviet security police, some in the Embassy, are operating in Canada and that their operations served as a screen which he believed was in preparation for "future events which could be grounds for war."

He testified that the Russians "created this agency or network (espionage operations) using one particular base and that base was the Communist Party here in Canada."

Gouzenko, first witness at the preliminary hearing of Fred A. Rose, Labor-Progressive Member of Parliament for Montreal-Cartier, charged with communicating information to the Soviet Union, related his schooling in secret operations and told of his work at Ottawa where he coded and decoded messages.

Gouzenko has been under protective custody of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Not Friendly Policy

He testified that he had come to the conclusion that the real policy of Russia was not the one that had been set forth as a policy of friendship.

He was sure from documents he had read that the professed policy was only "a screen" to cover the "real policy" of Russia's relations with Canada, which had nothing to do with creating friendly relations.

He had come to the conclusion that a policy of friendship should be opened up between Russia and Canada and other peoples. But he had no hope that information would come to the Russian people of what was going on so they would be witnesses to their own two-faced policy.

Gouzenko said that from telegrams he had read it was obvious to him that higher authorities in Russia were preparing the ground for what he considered eventually could be grounds for war.

As to the Communist party in Canada serving as a "base" for Russian operations, he said he has "documents to prove my word."

RIBBENTROP AIMS TO UNFOLD DETAIL OF 1939 TREATY

Asks That Hilger, Nazi Councillor at Moscow, be Called

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

Nuernberg, March 23 (AP) — Joachim Von Ribbentrop, former Nazi Foreign Minister, today indicated that he intends to unfold before the international military tribunal the details of his negotiations which resulted in the 1939 Russian-German non-aggression pact.

Through his counsel, Von Ribbentrop asked that Herr Hilger, German counselor who served at the Nazi Embassy in Moscow when the pact was negotiated, be called as a witness. He said Hilger's testimony would elaborate on written evidence obtained from Dr. Friedrich Gaus, former German Ambassador to Moscow.

It was indicated that the former Foreign Minister also would seek to disclose that a shift in the Soviet foreign policy, which swung from economic to political dealings with the Reich, produced the pact which stunned the world in the tense week preceding Germany's invasion of Poland.

Informed quarters said there was a possibility Von Ribbentrop might encounter stiff opposition from the Soviet prosecution in this phase of his defence.

The tribunal devoted a short Saturday session to hearing numerous defence applications for the summoning of witnesses and documentary evidence.

The court expressed concern about the delay in receipt of interrogatory evidence requested from George Messersmith, United States Ambassador to Mexico, who previously served both in Berlin and Vienna, to be used in the cases of Von Ribbentrop and Hans Frank, Nazi Governor General of Poland. The requests were dispatched Feb. 21.

TWO CONVICTED OF VIOLATING WHITE SLAVE ACT

Charged With Harboring and Transporting Alien Women

Buffalo, N. Y., March 23—(AP)—Robert Norman, 42, and Larry Robinson, 33, both of Niagara Falls, N.Y., were convicted yesterday on three counts of a five-count indictment charging they harbored and transported alien women for immoral purposes.

A federal jury composed of 10 men and two women brought in the verdict last night, along with an acquittal for two other defendants tried with Norman and Robinson following a federal investigation of alleged "white slave" activities involving Canadian girls.

The other defendants, James S. Thornton, 37, and Lucy Palumbo, 28, also of Niagara Falls, had been charged with conspiracy to violate the White Slave Traffic Act and immigration laws. Robinson, who was also named in the conspiracy indictment, was acquitted on that charge.

The harboring and transporting charges carry five-year maximum penalties each, making Norman and Robinson liable for maximum sentences of 15 years. Judge John Knight set sentencing for next Wednesday.

In making his charge to the jury, Judge Knight said:

"It is undisputed by either the government or defence that Mrs. Leach (Mrs. Elizabeth Leach, 21, St. Catharines, Ont.) and Miss Kuzick (Miss Lucy Kuzick, 21, Toronto) lived with Norman and Robinson. Nor is it disputed that both girls were maintained in this country.

"Neither side disputes that both girls were prostitutes, a fact which both confess."

HIGH PRICES PAID

Lindsay, March 23 — (CP) — Twenty-three animals were offered at the annual Victoria County Shorthorn sale yesterday and highest price, $275, was paid for Clovelly Max, owned by M. J. Jenkins of Little Britain.

WIDE VARIETY TOPICS TOUCHED ON IN COMMONS

Government Urged To Continue Preferential Tariffs Established In 1932

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, March 23 — (CP)—As the Throne Speech debate neared conclusion, the Commons heard talk yesterday on a variety of subjects — from trade and tariffs to the proposed British loan, from housing and unemployment to the Yukon gold rush.

In a quiet session, nine speakers from both the government and opposition benches took part in the dying debate.

The debate was adjourned by Jean Francois Pouliot (L—Temiscouata), who will resume it on Monday.

Mr. Isnor urged the government to continue the preferential tariffs established in 1932 to develop trade within the empire. New preferential agreements should stipulate that goods being shipped from Canada go through Canadian ports.

Wants Treaty with Cuba

A new market for Maritime provinces fishermen could be opened if the government would negotiate a trade agreement with Cuba, he said, urging that the government modify the West Indies Trade Treaty to remove the clause which barred agreements with countries not mentioned in it. Cuba was one of these.

Mr. Bertrand touched upon unemployment, the shortage of housing, the continuance of controls and the heavy tax burden, saying these were the cause of much dissatisfaction among the people.

There was an immediate need for public works to provide work. Unemployment was increasing week by week and those out of work now felt it took a war to give them jobs.

Opposition Expressed

Mr. Lacroix expressed opposition to the proposed loan to Britain on the ground it was not a "good business proposition" for Canada as there was nothing in the agreement to bind Britain to spend the money within the Dominion.

Referring to Canada's spy inquiry, he urged the government to take steps to ban the Communist Party in Canada and said the probe had shown the Russians were seeking to replace Canada's democratic government with a communistic regime.

Mr. MacInnis called for the lifting of the living standards of Canada's working classes and the removal of controls on wage ceilings to enable low-paid employees to negotiate for "substantial" increases in their wages. Wage rates had to be raised because of the high cost of living.

The "greatest" fear facing the Canadian people today was that of unemployment. The government could remove that fear by putting the people to work producing peactime consumer goods which is in great demand in Canada and throughout the world.

Mr. Fleming described the housing shortage as a "national emergency" and said the government should take strong action to provide more homes for the Canadian people and particularly for returning veterans. The United States had acted quickly to solve its housing problems.

What was needed was a "big" government plan, involving the building of enough homes to meet the needs of the people. Up to now, the government had "dilly-dallied" with the problem, making election promises which had not been fulfilled.

Present System of Jails to Go, New Reform Institution Seen

Petrolia, Ont., March 23 (CP)—The existing county jail system in Ontario will be wiped out under a new Ontario Department of reform, Provincial Secretary Dunbar told the Lambton County Municipal Association annual banquet last night. Mr. Dunbar will head the department.

The reform branch embrace all jails, prisons, reformatories and other correctional institutions, which will come under direct provincial control, said Mr. Dunbar, who also is Minister of Municipal Affairs.

An entirely new type of correction institutions would be established and "we will endeavor to develop institutions so they can give assistance to those who have fallen by the wayside to get into useful and profitable work."

Whereas county council now contributed 50 per cent of the upkeep of jails, with the province paying the remainder, the province would absorb the entire cost under the new department.

The association elected Robert Henderson, Progressive Conservative member of the federal parliament for Lambton-Kent, as president in succession to Roy Bradshaw of Sombra.

Directs R.C.M.P. To Show Reason For Holding Officer

Sqdn. Ldr. Poland in Custody In Espionage Investigation

Ottawa, March 23 (CP)— Mr. Justice McRuer today directed that Sqdn. Ldr. Frederick W. Poland, held in the espionage investigation, should be brought before him next Saturday by R.C.M.P. officials together with with all documents and evidence to show why he is being held.

Poland's name came out publicly for the first time in connection with the investigation yesterday when his wife, through a lawyer, filed a Habeas Corpus petition which, in effect, became a test to the order-in-council under which 14 Canadians have been taken into custody as alleged links in a Russian espionage ring.

The petition charged that interrogation of Poland had finished, that he had not been allowed to see counsel, that the order-in-council was unconstitutional and that further detention was unnecessary.

See Improved Coal Supply For Next Winter

Toronto, March 23 — More and better coal is going to be available in Toronto next winter, if strikes keep out of the picture, in the opinion of E. R. Lockyer, secretary of the Toronto Coal Exchange He offered this word of cheer in discussing fuel prospects for 1946-47.

"I am very definitely of the opinion that the quality is going to be better," Mr. Lockyer said. "There will be a slightly greater quantity of anthracite available. Some of the southern coals like Pochanontas will be increased by 10 to 15 per cent. Most of the difficulty in recent years has been with the lack of proper sizing of coal."

Consumers will still have to take some soft coal next winter to fill their requirements, Mr. Lockyer said. But he believed higher anthracite standards would be attained and with more labor than during the war, the service generally would be substantially improved.

While coal is still king in the realm of home heating, oil and gas are reported to be making rapid strides in public favor. There are between 13,000 and 15,000 oil burners in the Toronto area, and if enough equipment were available there would be another 3,000 instalations made. The Consumers Gas Co. said there were 1,500 homes using gas for house heating purposes and by the end of 1946 there would be a total of 1,800. There is a waiting list of close to 3,000, with orders coming in at the rate of 10 and 12 a day.

A shortage of equipment is holding up a considerable amount of heating plant reconversion, and the picture from this standpoint is far from good. Officials of old-established firms said they were continuing to take orders for oil heating but were not guaranteeing delivery in any specified month. Steel strikes in the United States, and other factors, combined to prevent any accurate prediction of the future supply of heating equipment.

CONVICTED ON 18 CHARGES

Yokohama, March 23 (AP) — Maj. Yaichi Rikitake, 62, was convicted of 18 war crimes charges by a United States army tribunal which recommended suspension of his 15-year sentence because of his age. Suspension also was recommended because no evidence was offered that Rikitake personally committed any atrocity and because the major was incapable of commanding the prisoner of war camp he headed.

Confession Read Before Tribunal Tells of Killing

Aurich, Germany, March 23—(CP Cable)—The prosecution at the R.C.A.F. war crimes trials here today read a complete confession by Johann Schumacher, German soldier-policeman, that he murdered an unidentified Canadian airman at Oberweier, Bavaria.

Schumacher is charged with the murder along with Wilhelm Junge, stocky, hard-faced Bavarian burgomaster of Oberweier, who is alleged to have given Schumacher the order to kill the flier.

When asked to plead at the trial's opening Schumacher told the court: "I am partially guilty." On advice of his counsel, he pleaded guilty. The next morning, however, he asked and was given permission to change his plea to not guilty.

Junge pleaded not guilty from the start.

Statement Involves Burgomaster

Schumacher's confession was contained in a statement he made two weeks ago to a war crimes investigation unit. According to this statement Schumacher said: "The burgomaster told me I had to go from the town hall with the airman and then I shot him."

Schumacher added: "I did not shoot him out of my interest. I am sorry enough that I am here today as a murderer. The whole burden is being put on my shoulders."

The prosecution said Schumacher refused the first order from Burgomaster Junge but when he found the order came from the District Kreisleiter (Nazi Party leader) he felt he had to carry it out.

A statement made by Junge to a War Crimes Investigation unit several months ago was introduced as evidence yesterday. In it, Junge said that the Kreisleiter of the district in which Oberweier was located had issued orders that all Allied airmen taken prisoners "should be beaten to death by the people".

The statement quoted Junge as saying that when the Canadian was brought before him in the town hall, he telephoned the Kreisleiter, who said: "Why has this airman not been beaten to death by the people? Do you not know my orders are that all such airmen should be beaten to death?"

Junge said he did not intend to carry out the Kreisleiter's order.

Two Cubs Found After Bear Shot

Marmora, March 23 —(Special)—Mr. Rose who lives on No. 7 Highway between Marmora and Madoc, shot a large bear this morning. Later it was discovered that there were two small cubs with the bear.

Mrs. Jack Rombough of Marmora went out to where the shooting occurred and took the two tiny cubs to her home where she is feeding them with a baby bottle, much to the interest of the residents of Marmora and district.

It is thought that the bear and her cubs were forced out of their den by the rising waters.

Grand First Principal of Royal Arch Masonry Given Reception By Two Local Chapters

Capitular and Master Masons from throughout the Prince Edward District gathered in the city on Friday evening to tender a welcome and reception to Most Excellent Companion R. V. Conover, Grand First Principal of Royal Arch Masons in Canada. More than 150 sat down to a sumptuous banquet at the Tabernacle Church and served by the women of the church. The head table was occupied by the First Principals of Moira Chapter No. 7 and Quinte Friendship Chapter No. 227, along with the distinguished guests, including Most Excellent Companion Edwin Smith, Grand Scribe E, the District Superintendent Rt. Ex. Comp. C. E. Goodwin of Picton and others.

Tastefully Decorated.

The tables were most tastefully decorated for the occasion and the banquet was all that could be desired and the thanks of the Masons were extended to the ladies by Rt. Ex. Comp. C. A. Wilkins. A very fine musical program was provided and included a number of selections by the brass quartet that performed so well at the recent Kiwanis Music Festival in Toronto. The group included Bob Stebbings, Don Charlton, Bob Blakely and John Fenn, under the direction of Jack Green, their instructor and conductor. Unstinted praise was given these young musicians by the gathering. Bill Navin, who is always so willing to assist any worthy cause, gave a piano solo and also played for the community singing that was conducted by Bert Houston.

Presented With Book.

The appreciation of the splendid address given by the distinguished guest was made by Ex. Comp. Frank Follwell and Mayor of the city. He reviewed the fine military career of the speaker and hoped for him success as he again enters civilian employment. Mayor Follwell presented Mr. Conover with a History of Belleville, compiled and edited by W. C. Mikel, a man who stands high in masonry in this district. Ex. Comp. Arthur Wesley First Principal of Moira Chapter addressed a few well chosen words to Most Ex. Comp Edwin Smith Grand Scribe E welcoming him to the district and hoped for him pleasant memories of his visit. The Grand Scribe E. reviewed the work of Grand Chapter and stated that Royal Arch Masonry was in a flourishing condition in all departments.

Visitors Welcomed.

The toast to the visitors was proposed by Ex. Comp. Bruce Smith First Principal of Quinte Friendship Chapter, who welcomed all and this was responded to by Rt. Wor. Bro. O. M. Newton, District Deputy Grand Master of Prince Edward District. The speaker of the evening stated that excellent reports had been received from Prince Edward District with respects to Royal Arch Masonry and he explained the workings of Grand Chapter and said that the two purposes of Royal Arch Masonry wereto teach and learn companionship and to ensure members and immediate relatives will not suffer the immediate necessities of life. The Grand First Principal spoke at length regarding the Victory Thanksgiving Benevolent Fund that has been sponsored by Grand Chapter so that those in want will not suffer through the years.

History of Masonry Given.

Mr. Conover showed that the budget of Grand Chapter for the past year was $11,792 and there was spent $11,995. He showed that request for benevolence was not very great in the past few years due to war prosperity but he was sure that this could not continue and that requests would be made for worthy charity. He explained that many Masons in Europe were exterminated by the Nazis and these relatives must be looked after in the years to come. The capital fund will be invested and the interest will be used to help the needy. Turning to a history of masonry through the ages Mr. Conover gave one of the most studied addresses that Masons have been privileged to hear in some time.

The speaker traced the growth of Masonry from the earliest times and showed how Capitular Masonry grew. The information imparted in the address was for Masons only and sufficient to say it was full of valuable facts. The enjoyable evening was closed with the Junior Warden's toast.

The petition received by council was signed by all local milk dealers but one.

A committee of Aldermen Hyde, Clarke, Armstrong, with the city engineer, comptroller and Mayor Follwell was appointed to inspect city roadways with regard to decision on which streets will need resurfacing this summer.

Haig Brothers, local coal dealers were granted permission to have a railway spur line built across city property to enter their recently purchased premises on the south side of St. Paul Street, between Front and Pinnacle.

New Uniforms For Firemen

Conditions of the city garbage dumping premises will be investigated by a special committee composed of Dr. Marshall as chairman of the Board of Health; and Aldermen Hyde, Chamberlain and Harvey. The retaining wall on the south side of Campbell Street between Pinnacle and Church Streets has been reported as being in a dangerous condition and owners of the property, Mrs. Lillian Imlah and Mr. A. Bennett will be advised that immediate attention is required.

Under tourist and publicity it was recommended that the city place a full page advertisement in the local Rotary Club souvenir program at a cost of $100, while a full page advertisement will also be placed in the Lawn Bowling Association booklet at a cost of $36.

A special committee was appointed to advise the city solicitor regarding the application of the Universal Moulded Products for the closing of a street allowance on Yeomans Street.

Returned Veteran Opens New Stand

From the uniform of the Royal Canadian Air Force to proprietor of a recently purchased hamburger stand and gasoline service station on the Trenton-Belleville highway is the rehabilitation move back to "civvy street" taken by Lyle Hartman, former Trenton boy. Recently Lyle opened "Harty's Super Hamburgers" at Potter's camp and cabins near Jones' Creek three miles west of the city and during the coming summer months will cater to the needs of passing motorists.

In opening the new stand, Lyle is returning to a business in which he was familiar prior to the war. Well known in the Trenton area as a musician Lyle there played piano and sax in orchestras and also played with Air Force orchestras while serving in the R.C.A.F. He married a Belleville girl.

GEEN — DRUGS

Tuberculosis Just as Sure And Deadly a Killer as Bullets Health Officer Tells Meeting

X-Ray Clinics in Districts of Hastings County Will be Made This Summer

"There were approximately 41,000 Canadian casualties during World War II. During those same war years, almost 40,000 people died of tuberculosis in Canada." This was the startling statement made by Dr. S. A. Holling of the Ontario Department of Health to the Belleville and Hastings Division of the National Tuberculosis Association at the Hotel Quinte Friday night. "Tuberculosis is just as sure and deadly a killer as bullets."

"In the years from 1938 to 1942, more people in Canada died of T.B. than all other infectious diseases combined," he continued. "This is not necessary if proper preventative measures are taken."

"Tuberculosis has been known since the earliest years. This has been found by the examination of mummies in Egyptian tombs. During the reign of the Stuarts, it was the cause of 25% of all the deaths in England. Tuberculosis is no respector of persons," said the speaker. "Chopin, Shelley, R. L. Stevenson, John Keats and General Wolfe were all well known persons who suffered from this dreaded disease. It is a well known fact that Wolfe was so ill that he had to be confined to his tent for a week or two prior to the battle of the Plains of Abraham."

Many Treatments Offered.

"Many treatments have been offered down through the years but it wasn't until recent years that physicians really knew anything about the disease. John Wesley had a "sure" cure. He thought that digging a hole in the ground in the early morning and lying down and inhaling the vapors of the ground would give relief from T.B."

In the time of Charles the Second, sufferers believed in the "King's Touch." They were of the opinion that if they could only touch the king they would be cured."

"It wasn't until 1820 when the stethoscope was invented that physicians had any solid foundation to understand the disease. With the stethoscope they could hear the breath sounds in the chest cavity and this gave impetus to the study of tuberculosis."

"With the invention of the X-ray, physicians were able to notice a pathological change in the lungs with tuberculosis and so had an understanding of the disease."

47 In Canada

"In 1898, the first sanatorium was established in Canada at Gravenhurst. Today, there are 47 sanatoria in Canada treating 13,000 patients. In 1900 the death rate due to turberculosis in Canada was 200 per 100,000 and in Ontario, 160 per 100,000. By 1944, it was cut to 48 per 100,000 in Canada and 20 per 100,000 in Ontario.

"There's nothing very dramatic about tuberculosis" said the speaker. "It isn't publicized like infantile paralysis. In the early stages, there is little or no warning. Nine times out of ten, when the sufferer consults a physician, the disease is moderately advanced. The only certain way to determine tuberculosis in its early stages is by the use of X-ray. In the vast majority of instances, nothing can be determined by the physician in its early stages."

"That is the reason for these mass surveys. Since 1942 when a smaller film was developed, we can handle 1,000 a day. With the standard film used previously, we could only look after about 100 per day."

"We have proved the worth of the survey of large groups including people whose duties confine them to the home" he said. "Of all admissions to sanatoria, over 25 per cent are individuals whose duties confine them entirely to home."

300,000 People Tested

"Up until the end of 1945, we had tested 300,000 people with the new film and for every 1000 tested, we found 12 people with pulmonary tuberculosis. Roughly two of the twelve were active and required immediate treatment in sanatoria. The ten inactive cases had to be periodically followed up to make sure they were doing satisfactorily. Over 90 per cent of the active TB cases discovered were new cases and the patients had no previous knowledge of the infection."

"By these surveys we found a large number of serious non-tubercular chest ailments and as a result, many lives were saved."

"Mass surveys are not the whole answer" continued Dr. Holling. "We have to establish permanent regular chest clinics where examinations are regular and at frequent intervals.

Had to Solicit Help.

"Such an extensive program cannot be financed by the government alone. To solve the problem we had to solicit the help of voluntary agencies in the communities. Early last year the Ontario Tubercular Association was founded and started mass surveys and follow-up chest clinics. They used the sale of Christmas seals to collect funds in their communities. The money raised by this means is used locally and is not put in any general provincial fund," he continued.

"There are thirty-five of these communities in the province," said Dr. Holling. "The National Sanatoria Association collected $3,000 formerly, but under these new committees, $7,000 was collected last year. In this community $4,800 was collected."

"Fifteen areas have already been covered by mass surveys and in these areas, over 90 per cent of the school children were examined. The government assumes quite a percentage of the overall cost of this service."

Dr. Holling went on to describe the arrangements necessary for a mass survey and the organization of the survey.

Expect Mobile Clinics.

He introduced D. R. Wise, the technical supervisor of the surveys. Mr. Wise described the clinics and said that they expected to have mobile clinics in the near future. "This will facilitate the changing of locations and will save a lot of time," he said.

"Previously, the people being examined had to be stripped to the waist. This has not been necessary since the beginning of the year," he stated.

In closing, Mr. Wise described the actual details necessary on the survey and stressed the fact that the results of all X-rays were strictly confidential.

The chairman of the local group, D. L. Storey, stated that the committee had $3277 to spend on mass surveys this year. The service clubs in the city and district have been asked to join in with the local group in sponsoring the Christmas seal drive this year.

It is expected that mass surveys will be conducted in Tweed, Madoc, Marmora and Read this summer. Representatives from these districts are to forward an approximation of the number of people willing to avail themselves of this service in their localities by April 15th.

KELLEHER — In loving memory of a dear husband and daddy, Private Jack Edward (Joe) Kelleher, in his 26th. year, who was killed on Active Service in Germany while serving with the H.L.I. of Canada on March 24, 1945.

When evening shades are falling
And we sit in quiet alone,
To our hearts there comes a longing
If he only could come home.
Our lips cannot tell how we miss him,
Our hearts cannot tell what to say,
God only knows how we miss him
In a home that is lonely today.
God knew all about him, how noble,
How gentle he was and how brave,
How bright his possible future,
Yet put him to sleep in his grave.
God knew all about those who love him,
How bitter the trial must be,
Yet right through it all God is loving
And knows much better than we.
We have lost, but heaven has gained
The best husband and daddy the world ever contained.

—Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by his wife Shirley and daughter Karen.

KELLEHER — In loving memory of a dear son and brother, Private Jack Edward Kelleher, killed in Germany, 24th. March, 1945.

The face I loved is now laid low,
His loving voice is still,
The hand so often clasped in mine
Lies now in death's cold chill.
I often sit and think of him
When I am all alone;
For memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own.

—Sadly missed by Mother, Dad and Allan.

BARLOW — In loving memory of Martha, wife of James Barlow, who passed away March 24th., 1945.

The depths of sorrow we cannot tell
Of the loss of one we loved so well,
And while she sleeps a peaceful sleep
Her memory we shall always keep.

SCHOOL PROBLEMS ARE PRESENTED TO COMMISSION

Taxation of Private Schools, Vocational Education Are Topics Presented

Toronto, March 23. (CP)—The taxation of private schools, vocational education and aid to farmers by young people in Secondary schools were new topics placed yesterday before the Ontario Royal Commission on Education.

The Commission, which has been sitting all week gathering data in its study of the provincial educational set-up, today received briefs from three organizations and from the private schools.

The Ontario Division of the Canadian Manufacturers Association presented a brief on vocational education which recommended establishment of a provincial panel of vocational education under a superintendent reporting directly to the director of Education.

Vocational Training

"Vocational education in Secondary Schools has been well adapted during the past 30 years to public needs but we submit provision should be made for those who may so desire, to pursue their studies at the university," the brief said. "Talented vocational students should be encouraged by finding the path open to schools of higher learning. Ontario could provide for this simply by equating shop work as taught in vocational schools to the study of languages as now carried on in academic schools."

A brief by A. Maclaren, director of the Ontario Farm Service Force, discussed at length the experience gained by the Ontario Farm Service Force in sending thousands of youngsters to work on farms during the Summer and Autumn months. He suggested that the organization be maintained as a permanent part of the educational system; that the department recognize the plan as an educational extension of Secondary School education and that other departments of government be asked to co-operate.

Some Form of Service

The Secondary School courses should be so planned, the brief said, "that every pupil physically and medically fit would be required to serve six months to one year before matriculation in some form of national service, such as farm service, soil conservation, reforestation, community planning, recreation, etc."

On adult education, the National Council of the Young Women's Christian Association recommended co-ordination of the various adult education movements on a voluntary basis through a provincial council which would serve as a clearing house for methods and objective. Training in constitutional procedure through discussion groups in the schools was also urged.

Private Schools

The private schools brief declared there had been a movement on foot for some years on the part of certain municipalities, "especialy the City of Toronto'., to amend the Assessment Act so as to provide for local taxation of real property belonging to the so-called private schools.

"This committee would respectfully submit that your commission should find that the private schools make an extremely useful contribution to the educational life of the Province and the Dominion,'. it declared. "If it is not the desire of the municipality to put these schools out of business it is surely not reasonable to force the parents of pupils of these schools, who already pay school taxes for which they receive no value as individuals, and who pay large additional educational fees in the relief of the province and municipality, to pay still larger fees in order that the municipality may collect taxes on these schools."

Outstanding Musical Talent Will Be Featured in Concert

Two years ago an event of note in the musical life of the city took place when the Energetic Club of Holloway Street United Church decided to present outstanding local talent in concert. The effort proved such a decided success that another similar concert was presented last year.

The third of these concerts is to be presented in April. By popular request, the soprano, Miss Marion Dudley, now Mrs. Kilpatrick, will be the featured lady soloist, with Mr. Edward Shortt, baritone, as male vocalist for the occasion. Mr. Alec Gordon will again offer organ solos.

Last year the club presented Jack Green's now famous pupils to Belleville audiences for the first time. This group, fresh from winning new laurels, will appear in both quartet and solo numbers, Jack Fenn and Don Charlton, trumpets, Bob Stebbings, euphonium, and Bob Blakely, trombone.

Each year the concert has presented an outstanding young artist, Miss Ethel Smith and Master Ronald Elmy having been the two appearing on the first two programs. This year the committee takes pleasure in presenting a young pianist of great ability and promise in the person of Stanley Hagerman, Jr. Rounding out the program will be numbers by the newly organized Y.M.C.A. Boys' Choir, trained and conducted by Edward Shortt.

Drama Festival Planned By Christ Church AYPA

Plans were completed at the last meeting of the Christ Church Junior A.Y.P.A. for a Quinte Drama Festival to be held in the Parish Hall on May 8. Drama was the keynote of the evening, with films making up the bulk of the program, and dramatics entering even into the recreational period.

Each branch of the A.Y.P.A. in the Deaneries of Hastings and Prince Edward has been asked to make an entry in the Drama Festival, and two branches have already signified their intention of participating. The Christ Church branch will provide stage and hall, a suitable small trophy, and an adjudicator from outside of the district. The evening of one-act plays will be one of the major events in the post-Lenten program of the branch.

Three films were then presented: "Attack Signal" which dramatized the King's 1939 Christmas message; "This time we are all in the front lines"; "Shadow River," showing the beautiful Muskoka district which provided material for the nature poetry of Pauline Johnson; and "Duchy of Cornwall," an English film covering a seldom-seen corner of Britain. The projector was operated by Don Yateman.

The devotional portion of the program was built around the theme: "Our Church." Vice-President Marjory Ashton took the chair in the absence of Ed Waterhouse, and announced that the branch would take part in a Lenten evening service next week.

After the films, there was a short sing-song, in which a couple of new songs were introduced, and this was followed by a very clever playing of the game, "Charades." The program was planned and conducted by Ron Button. The evening closed with a circle of felloship and prayers.

GOUZENKO

The preliminary hearing of the 38-year-old Member of Parliament opened in a court room crowded mostly with newspapermen.

Outside, an early crowd of 150 gathered on the steps of the Criminal Courts building. A small crowd stood on the opposite side of Notre Dame Street East. There was no disorder and the half dozen police outside had little to do.

Tells of Early Life

In answer to a long series of questions by Mr. Brais, Gouzenko told of his earlier life before coming to Canada in July, 1943.

At the age of 22 he joined the army's Military Engineering Academy in Moscow for two months. He then attended the Intelligence Academy to learn cipher work, which enabled him to code and decode messages.

Gouzenko testified that although it previously was essential that a candidate for this training be a member of the Communist party, special wartime regulations allowed members of the Young Communist League, such as himself, to be admitted.

This group was known as Komsomol and was a reserve of the Communist League.

Gouzenko said he was a member since he was 17 years old. Candidates were checked by the NKVD, the Department of Intelligence of the Soviet Union, formerly known as the OGPU.

Explains Operations

He said the NKVD was a security policy system which operated through the Soviet Union, at home and at the front.

"Are they in Canada?" asked prosecutor Brais.

"Some are in Canada."

"Are there any at the Soviet Embassy in Ottawa?"

"I understand yes."

Asked the purpose of the military attache's office, Gouzenko said, "Some work was official and some unofficial."

"What do you mean by unofficial?" asked prosecutor Brais.

"There was a centre of Soviet intelligence system in Canada."

"What do you mean by an intelligence system?"

"A system to obtain information through agents which would be valuable to the Soviet government."

"What was the necessity of applying through agents to obtain information?"

"Valuable information is often secret."

"How do agents obtain information?"

"If a man is willing to give information to the military attache staff, he is an agent for that purpose."

"Could such information not be obtained simply by asking for it?"

"No, it was secret."

"Why would it be secret?"

"Because in the hands of other states it could make (sic) some harm for the state from which it was taken."

Mail Well Sealed

Asked by Mr. Brais in what manner mail was sent to Moscow, Gouzenko said documents and messages were wrapped in a special parcel, sealed with five seals, then re-wrapped three times, each time being sealed by the chief of the secret coding division.

Gouzenko said he was replaced by another man, namel Kolokeff, who arrived in June, 1945. Kolokeff had to wait until August before special permission came from Moscow allowing him to enter the secret code room. They had worked together thereafter until the evening of Sept. 5, when, Gouzenko said in reply to a question, he left the Embassy without any intention of returning.

Gouzenko said the Russian people do not know the real life in Canada. The Russian people could not be blamed for this; they would wish to know the real life in Canada or the United States but they have no way of doing so, such as a free press or exchange of free opinions.

Letter Attacking Burwash Conditions Ruled Out of Order

Toronto, March 23.—(CP) — R. H. Carlin, (C.C.F.-Sudbury) was ruled out of order by the Speaker when he attempted to put before the Ontario Legislature yesterday a letter to Labor Minister Daley protesting "deplorable conditions that exist at Burwash industrial farm."

The letter, over the signature of president J. L. Kidd of Local 598 of the Mine Workers Union — (C.I.O.), held "conditions are a disgrace" at the Sudbury district institution.

The letter charged that a 48-hour work week is not observed and "no provision is made for overtime." It claimed also that an "injustice exists in the matter in which the cost-of-living bonus is paid."

IVANHOE

Presentations Made To Two Returned Men

Ivanhoe, March 23.—Two addresses, one by Rev. T. F. Townsend, of Rawdon pastoral charge and a second by Rev. J. W. Houston, of Tabernacle United Church, in Belleville, were features in a 'Welcome Home' service for two returned men George Cook and Leslie Clements, held in Salem United Church on Wednesday evening. Each of the men was given a Bible beautifully inscribed. The presentations were made by two of the church elders, Mr. William Johnston, Sunday School superintendent and Mr. Charles Mumby, treasurer of the church. A Bible was also presented in proxy to Rev. S. A. R. Delve, now of Seeley's Bay, who entered the chaplaincy service from Ivanhoe pastoral charge. During the service readings were given by Mrs. Frank McGee and Miss Alta Hanna, also two duet numbers by Rev. T. F. Townsend and Mrs. Townsend, with Mrs. Elliott, of Stirling, as accompanist.

In his remarks Mr. Townsend said, "We thank our soldiers for the part they played in helping to bring victory to the cause of the Allies and would ever remember their courage and sacrifices. We realize that war is caused by materialism and appeal to you now to join the home folk that together we may win the peace. Peace can be secured and maintained only when human nature becomes definitely changed and the church of Christ is still in the vanguard as a peace agency."

Mr. Houston gave a resume of his experiences as a chaplain which were very interesting and informing. He said, "A chaplain's work is much like that of a regular pastor, only with a changed congregation."

He described a Communion service conducted by two other chaplains and himself while en route to England. He praised the work of the stretcher bearers and told of comrades who had been killed while serving in this capacity. He had taken the place on the battle area of a chaplain who had lost his life while trying to help the wounded. Mr. Houston pointed out that invariably Canadians were anxious to visit Scotland and places in England where great galleries displayed pictures that portrayed the nation's greatness.

The service was in charge of Rev. J. F. Everson, of Ivanhoe, who read a letter of regret from Rev. S. A. R. Delve.

Elephant Riders Take a Soaking

Sydney, Australia (CP)—During a recent spell of warm weather elephants in Taronga Park Zoo here were morose, forgot their usual impeccable good manners.

To try to work off 27-year-old Jill's maidenly mischievouness, keeper Joe Marsillo took her to the elephant track for an hour's work. As soon as her passengers had shuffled down in the saddle, Jill flung her trunk back over her head and drenched them with water drawn from her stomach.

Joe Marsillo gave it up, and waited for the inevitable cool southerly to sweep in from the Pacific.

Wesley's Chapel Unscathed by War

Bristol, England, March 23 (CP)—Oldest Methodist Chapel in the world, and scene of many memorable events in the Methodist Revival, John Wesley's Chapel in Broadmead at Bristol came through the war unscathed. Its treasures, which were stored in the country during the war, have been replaced, and visitors are returning.

Hundreds of GIs have visited the building, which has close links with the early history of the United States.

Francis Ashbury, Pioneer Apostle of American Methodism, whom President Coolidge described as "one of the builders of the nation," was appointed to his special work at John Wesley's Chapel in 1771.

Rector Prefers Cottage in Wood

Claxby, Lincolnshire, England (CP)—Rev. Austin Lee, bachelor rector of Claxby, moved out of his 22-roomed Victorian rectory into a woodman's cottage.

His new home—one mile from the nearest house—is so lonely that foxes come and spend the night on the doorstep.

"That," said the rector, "is the only drawback. I prefer life in solitude in the middle of a wood to living in a mansion where there is not enough coal to light the kitchen fire and where I cannot have a bath."

The rector now travels to and from his parish on horseback as cars can only reach the cottage in summer.

Commonwealth and Empire Scientists

The meeting of Commonwealth and Empire scientists which will be held in Cambridge, London and Oxford in June and July this year will be opened by His Majesty King George. The London Times in a recent article on the announcement stated that the war brought into being the British Commonwealth Science Office one of whose tasks was to survey the broad problems of wartime science as they arose in different parts of the Empire so that the approach to the United States for the interchange of scientific opinion might be co-ordinated. Within the Empire, the scientific problems of peace, both technical and academic, are no less pressing. There are such questions as those of medicine, especially tropical medicine, agriculture, nutritional science and the world fishing industry, while in the more academic field, radio communications and cosmic rays present problems which can only be solved by joint efforts in all parts of the globe.

Imperial scientific collaboration was first put on an official basis with the foundation of the Imperial Institute in 1878. The outstanding example of a centralized organization working for the benefit of the whole empire is the Council of Imperial Agricultural Bureaus formed in 1939 dealing with information on such subjects as soil, science, animal health and forestry. There have been scientific representatives of the Dominions in London and U. K. scientists working in Ottawa since 1942.

The Times points out that the arrangements have been entrusted to the Royal Society "the oldest scientific society in the world, whose name inspires confidence in all that pertains to science." The Royal Society dates back two hundred and eighty-six years to the reign of King Charles the Second. One of the first lectures was by Sir Christopher Wren. Isaac Newton was elected a fellow in 1671 and later became president. In 1710 the Royal Observatory at Greenwich was placed in its sole charge. The early work of the society included the change in the calendar, the ventilation of prisons and the prevention of jail fever, the protection of buildings and ships from lightning, geodetic and general triginometrical surveys, exploration of the Northwest Passage and Antarctic explorations under Captain Cook and others. More recently it introduced safety measures with gas lighting, reorganized the meteorogical department, instituted investigations into color blindness, volcanic eruptions in the West Indies, international seismological probes, international exploration of the upper atmosphere, and has taken the lead in investigations and important discoveries on tropical diseases, including malaria and sleeping sickness. During the recent war its resources were at the Government disposal for the development of many new British discoveries, such as penicillin, radar and work on atomic energy.

British Food Rations

Food rationing in Britain continues on an even stricter basis than during the war. In February, for instance, the total fats ration was reduced from eight ounces weekly to seven. Of this, three ounces may be taken in butter, and four in margarine. Three ounces of bacon are now allowed, whereas in 1944, six ounces of bacon might be purchased. Each person is permitted a shilling and twopence (twenty-three cents) worth of meat every week, and two and one-half pints of milk weekly, with one can of powdered skim milk in addition every eight weeks.

The candy allowance is three ounces weekly, and sugar and preserves are on a basic ration. Prunes, raisins, and canned goods are rationed, as are nearly all foods, with the principal exceptions of bread, potatoes, and most fresh vegetables and fruits.

A serious blow to the British housewife was the curtailment of supplies of dried eggs early in February for lack of dollars. Shell eggs had been available at an average rate of about two and one-half eggs monthly per person in 1945. A box of dehydrated eggs, while not on the ration list during the war years, could be purchased at least once every six weeks, with the grocer conducting an informal rationing system. Deprived of dried eggs, the housewife and her family must now cut down on egg dishes which throughout the war helped to alleviate the shortages of protein foods such as meat and cheese.

A certain amount of cheering market news for late winter has appeared, however, with the increasing availability of fish, and the occasional arrival of a boat-load of oranges and bananas.

Old Silver

People in Britain with money — and nothing to spend it on — are buying up jewels, old silver, pictures and chairs.

So great is the demand that prices have soared, and auctioneers are holding four times as many sales as they did in prewar days, The London Daily Mail reports.

Hundreds of bidders were at six big London sales in one day, and everything auctioned went for high prices. Altogether about $800,000 was realized, but it was described by auctioneers as "one of our less exciting days."

Dessert service — $1,360 (prewar price—$360.)

Porcelain figures — $200 (prewar price—$100.)

Silver — $5 an ounce (prewar price—60 cents an ounce.)

Peace Stamps

A special issue of postage stamps commemorating the peace has been made by the Australian Postmaster General's Department.

They are in three denominations: 2½d red, for ordinary domestic and British Commonwealth postage; 3½d blue, for foreign postage; and 5½d green, for ordinary domestic rate plus registration fee or for air mail fee.

The design of the 2½d stamp features the seven-pointed star and wreath which constitute the official crest of the Commonwealth of Australia. The 3½d stamp shows the Dove of Peace with the Australian ensign as a background. At the top appears "Peace, 1945." Conventional laurel strappings are a border to the design at the upper corners. The design is horizontal.

The dominant feature of the 5½d stamp is an Angel of Peace bearing palm leaves and a banner inscribed "Peace." The angel appears in the constellation of the Southern Cross.

New Way of Hunting Whale

Aircraft will play an important part in the British whaling expedition due to leave for the Antarctic next autumn. John Grierson, Flight Superintendent of British United Whalers — the company organizing the expedition—told the Daily Sketch that planes will be catapulted from a base ship, will carry out reconnaissance work and assist the chasers in every possible way. Walrus aircraft will be used. There are biplanes which with their dual purpose land and water undercarriage will be able to land on the sea.

Prompt Action by Dominions

The nation echoes Mr. Attlee's thanks to the Dominions for their immediate response to the urgent food needs of this country. Once again not merely the governments but the peoples of Canada, Australia, South Africa, and New Zealand are spontaneously doing their utmost to tide Britain over a pressing emergency. For this we all owe them our gratitude — not least Mr. Attlee himself, for the Dominions, by their prompt actions, have unquestionably come to the rescue of the British government.

JUST FOLKS

TO A YOUNG GOLFER

Son of mine, at golf beware
Of the begging millionaire
In the locker room who croaks
He must have a dozen strokes.

Son of mine, beware the chap
Who won't play to handicap.
"Mine's too low!" he loudly roars,
But insists you play to yours.

Son of mine, beware the sick!
Their recovery is quick.
"Few have beaten," hear it said,
"Men who should have stayed in bed."

Son of mine, I pray, be smart,
Wary be and hard of heart.
'Tis experience born of years:
Always false are golfers' tears.

Physical Instructor Will Not Be Employed at Present Time By The Board of Education

Although assuring that the suggestion of instituting a program of physical education in local public schools will be given due consideration, Board of Education members at their regular meeting Friday evening indicated that the services of a physical instructor would not be acquired at the present time.

The matter of physical education for pupils in elementary school was brought to the attention of board members following a meeting of the Queen Mary Home and School Association when after considerable discussion a resolution was passed recommending such a program to the Board of Education.

At Friday evening's meeting board members heard an application for the position of physical instructor read, but it was pointed out the board was not hiring such an instructor at the present time.

Two representatives of the newly formed Junior Board of Trade were present at the meeting with Chairman W. H. Finkle extending an official welcome and outlining the set-up and activities of the board.

Hire Home Economics Teacher

Hiring of a Home Economics teacher qualified to head the Department for September 1946, was recommended by the Advisory Vocational Committee with a note that the attention of former teacher Miss A. E. Grout, B.A., be drawn to the advertisement and that she be advised that an application for the position would receive consideration.

The Collegiate Management Committee recommended to the board that an advertisement be placed for a Guidance Instructor for September with an initial salary as for the head of a department and maximum salary of $3,000.

Invited to Attend

Mr. Norman Davies, Inspector of Agricultural Classes, will be invited to attend the April meeting of the board to outline a program for agricultural education at the local collegiate. On motion of Mr. George Wishart, it was recommended that district agricultural representatives, H. Lynn Fair of Stirling and F. J. Webster of Picton be invited to also attend the meeting, while public school inspector Mr. R. H. Macklem will also be invited to attend. The above three men will be invited to bring any persons they consider might be interested in the establishment of agricultural classes at the collegiate.

Following up decision of the Department of Education making it possible for senior students to quit classes to assist on farms, it was recommended that board approval be given to this measure with release of pupils from classes to be at the discretion of the school principal.

Upon recommendation from the public school management committee the board will adopt a policy of requiring a minimum qualification of the Bachelor's degree for an appointment to a public school principalship, the maximum salary for a graduate of pedagogy to be on a par with the salary of the head of a department in the Collegiate-Vocational school.

Three Appointed.

Approval was asked given to the appointment of Miss Phyllis Beatty, Bethel; Miss Mabel Chapman, Frankford, and Miss June Crosby, of Belleville, to the probationary staff of the public schools.

Indication that the public school management committee is looking to the future was seen in a recommendation that a special committee be appointed to consider the selection of a suitable site, or sites, for the additional school which it is expected will be necessary in the city in the near future to accommodate increased enrolment in the public schools. A public school survey conducted last autumn indicated that increased public school accommodation would soon be necessary. Public school management also asked that the special committee investigate the possibilities of suitable temporary quarters or facilities for public school class room purposes.

Wants Approval.

Correspondence read at the meeting included a letter from W. C. Mikel asking approval of the Board of Education of the Collegiate grounds as a possible site for the proposed monument to Sir Mackenzie Bowell, should this be constructed in the city at any future date. The matter was referred to the property committee as was the content of a letter from Hagersville Asphalt Pavement inquiring re possible pavement of school playgrounds in Belleville.

Commanding officer of the local air cadet corps, T. W. Hetherington, asked permission for the use of a classroom in the Collegiate by squad members for study purposes, the matter being referred to the school principal and school administrator for decision.

One dozen blinds were ordered purchased for the Collegiate with further blinds to be purchased as required, while the same program of replacement will apply to school blackboards. Suitable blinds will be purchased for the principal's office, as selected by the principal.

One of Earliest Openings of Lake Navigation

Sarnia, March 23. (CP)—The freighter Sir Thomas Shaughnessy moved down the St. Clair River en route to Toledo for one of the earliest openings of interlake navigation in Great Lakes history.

The giant freighter and its sister ship, the Captain C. D. Secord, moved out of Owen Sound Harbor yesterday opening navigation at that busy Georgian Bay port the earliest in history. Their start beat their own 1945 record by three days.

Both are headed for Toledo for coal cargoes for Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., where they are expected to open navigation, probably Monday.

Meanwhile it is reported from the Sault that the United States icebreaker Mackinaw is expected to arrive Sunday to smash a passage through the barrier of honeycombed ice in the lower St. Mary's river.

EASING OF WORLD

other hand, said the interview "Shows a desire to persuade the world of Russia's pacific intentions," but that the fact remained that the Russians were "in Persia in violation of their treaty obligations."

In Paris, the mildly-leftist newspaper Resistance commented that Stalin took the time to answer Gilmore, but had not answered United States and British notes on the Iranian situation.

"But do not these words seem to answer certain accusations?" Resistance asked. "Do they not carry a desire for conciliation?"

The radical newspaper Franc-Tireur said the interview gave hope of maintaining the principle of unanimity among the "Big Five."

While United States lawmakers generally welcomed Stalin's declaration, there were many crossed fingers in Washington. The doubt was whether future Russian policy would back up everything Stalin had to say.

Senator Carl A. Hatch (Dem.-N.M.) said he believes the Soviet Chief of State has a "complete misunderstanding" of democratic free speech as it is known.

Re referred to Stalin's remarks that:

"It is necessary that the public and ruling circles of the powers organize a world wide counter-propaganda against the propagandists of a new war, and for the insuring of peace—so that not a single act of the propagandists of a new war should remain without due rebuff on the part of the public and press, so that the incendiaries of war may thus be exposed in good time and may have no chance of misusing freedom of speech against the interests of peace."

EVERYBODY'S INSULIN

Twelve years ago, before the patent on insulin had expired, I became convinced — and I'm still convinced — that vitamin B-complex, particularly B_1 as it was then called (now called thiamine) had a good deal to do with the metabolism of carbohydrate food (starches, sugars.) I tried to make the public as well as the medical profession conscious of this function of vitamin B by referring to it from time to time as "poor man's insulin." Remember?

Unfortunately, the American Medical Association at that time was championing and defending if not actually sponsoring the patenting of insulin as well as the patenting of a process for manufacturing vitamin D — although the Association's own code or principles of medical ethics specifically states (Sec. 5, Chap. III): "It is equally unprofessional by ownership or control of patents or copyrights either to retard or to inhibit research, or to restrict the benefit to patients or to the public to be derived therefrom."

Nevertheless a good many recognized medical authorities and some scientific authorities now believe that vitamin B_1 or B-complex "plays an integral part in carbohydrate metabolism and that the need for this group of vitamins depends upon the amount of carbohydrate eaten." (The quotation is from Wohl's Dietotherapy published 1945.) Of course diabetes is essentially a failure or impairment of the ability or capacity to utilize (metabolize) carbohydrate.

By calling vitamin B-complex or vitamin B_1 (thiamine) "poor man's insulin" I do not mean to imply that any one with diabetes may get along without insulin if he takes Vitamin Bfi Perhaps a better name for it would be "everybody's insulin," by which I mean that if you get enough vitamin B-complex you are less likely to develop diabetes and need insulin — in my opinion. moreover many diabetics have told me that within a month or two after they have started taking adequate daily rations of vitamin B-complex they find it necessary to reduce their daily dose of insulin.

As Joslin states, fully thirty million Americans are now carriers of the potentiality of tendency to develop diabetes. To these people particularly I commend vitamin B-complex.

You are training for diabetes, I believe, if you get most of your calories from refined wheat flour and refined white sugar — as so many overweight, undernourished people do nowadays — and not getting enough B-complex to metabolize the carbohydrate.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

In Love With a Veteran

Met a veteran in .... T.B. hospital. We fell in love. He wants to marry as soon as he leaves the hospital.

(J. W.)

Answer — Don't think of it until you have the opinion and advice of a physician who knows the young man's condition — you should go together to consult the physician about the feasibility of marriage now. For that matter, any couple contemplating matrimony should submit any question of fitness of either candidate or of the possibility of transmitting any disease, taint or defect to a physician who is in a position to know.

Weak Blood

Informed by Red Cross my blood is weak, low in hemoglobin. What can I do for this? I have black circles under my eyes.

(Miss B. F.)

Answer — A thousand and one things may cause it. Send ten cents and stamped self addressed envelope for pamphlet "Blood and Health."

It Does Beat All.

A little bare skin doesn't seem to harm my four boys but it hurts the neighbors. One neighbor remarks: "It does beat all how healthy your boys are when they don't wear enough clothes!" We follow Dr. Brady's teachings at our house.

(Mrs. J. M. H.)

Answer — My teaching — for the information of any one who may not know — is as simple as A B C. It is this: Frost-bite, freezing or minor discomfort is the only possible ill effect any one can suffer from going without clothing or with insufficient clothing in any climate, season or weather. Any child who is not an idiot knows better than you or I or your Aunt Ophelia knows whether the child has enough clothes on at any time.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

What Presidents had living parents?

Only one person whose parents were both still living has ever been President of the United States. Mr. and Mrs. Jesse R. Grant both lived to see their son Ulysses S. Grant inaugurated in 1869.

Eleven other men have become President while one of their parents was still alive. Washington, the elder John Adams, James Madison, James K. Polk, James A. Garfield, William McKinley, Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman became President while their mothers were living, while John Quincy Adams, Warren G. Harding and Calvin Coolidge assumed that office while their fathers were still alive.

What ex-President's death passed without official notice?

John Tyler, President from 1841 to 1845, has been the only President whose death was not the subject of a special announcement or proclamation by the President in office. He was a member-elect of the Confederate House of Representatives at the time of his death in 1862 and President Lincoln took no official notice of his passing.

What Congressman was appointed to the Supreme Court?

James Moore Wayne (1790-1867), a Georgia member of Congress from 1829 to 1835, has been the only person ever appointed directly from the U. S. House of Representatives to the Supreme Court of the United States. Appointed by President Jackson in 1835, Moore remained loyal to the Union during the Civil War and served as an Associate Justice until his death. He was the last surviving member of the Supreme Court who served with Chief Justice John Marshall.

Hunting Permits To be Colored Next Season

Toronto, March 23 — (CP) — An increase from $20 to $50 in the minimum fine for illegal traffic in beaver pelts was recommended Friday by the Ontario Legislature's Fish and Game Committee after D. J. Taylor, Deputy Minister of Fish and Game, said illicit trade in furs has become a "racket" involving $250,000 annually.

Urging forceful action by the committee to restrict illegal activities, Mr. Taylor said the combination of light penalties and fat profits provided a double incentive for those buying furs trapped out of season. The traffic was increasing despite efforts of enforcement officials and police.

W. M. Docker (CCF-Kenora) advocated the minimum fine be lifted to $100. Mr. Taylor said such a high penalty might encourage magistrates to give suspended sentences.

Regarding open hunting seasons, Mr. Taylor said the department will be guided by suggestions of municipal and county councils and members of the legislature. The committee approved its recommendations that deer seasons start the first Monday in November for Parry Sound, Victoria, Haliburton, Peterboro and Muskoka counties. For the rest of southern Ontario it will start the second Monday in November.

As forecast by Mr. Taylor at a previous meeting, hunting permits will be colored next season.

Each zoned area will have a permit of a different shade. Under the new regulations it will be an offence for any person to have more than one licence.

Acting on a request from Pete McGillen of Peterboro, the committee ruled there will be no open season on partridge on Peterboro, Hastings and adjoining counties this year. It deferred action on a suggestion that automatic firearms and steel-jacket bullets be prohibited in hunting and made no decision on a request to limit to five, the number of hunters participating in rabbit drives.

Cost of non-resident moose hunting licences was upped from $41 to $75, compared with the $5 fee for a residence licence. It was recommended that the bag limit for goose hunting be pared from 50 to 35 birds.

"Public Display of Affection" for Jap Women Banned

Tokyo, March 22 —(AP)—Lt.-Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger today banned "public display of affection" by his United States 8th Army troops toward Japanese women. He emphasized there was no ban on fraternization but:

"Public display of affection by men in uniform towards women of any nation is in poor taste. Particularly is this so in Japan among those who were so recently our enemies."

CANUCK AND JERRY COMPARE PRISONS

Montreal (CP)—Don't speak disparagingly of the long arm of coincidence in the presence of Lieut. John H. Roy of Montreal. He knows better.

Roy, a member of the Fusiliers Mont Royal and captured during the Canadian raid on Dieppe, recently visited a prisoner-of-war camp in Military District No. 4 (Montreal) to "compare notes" with German prisoners. Roy escaped temporarily in 1943 and was finally liberated by United States troops in April, 1945.

Roy was talking about his escape to "a rather stiff and formal Luftwaffe colonel who became very interested in learning that Oflag VIIIB in Eichstat, near Munich, had been one of my internment camps."

The colonel said his home was near there and added his sister's house was on a little hill just beyond the internment camp. "I pondered over the location for a minute and then told him when I escaped in 1943, I had gone through her back yard at four o'clock one morning. His eyes really bulged."

Roy, who lost 35 pounds when shackled for 11 months, said interned Germans no longer try to escape as "they realize they will be soon bound for home."

Roy, who said the Germans told him they had been well treated and couldn't understand his own bad treatment at the hands of their countrymen, told how they had talked over the best methods of escape from internment camps.

Murder Case Likely to Break This Weekend

Hamilton, March 23 — (CP) — A high police official predicted Friday that solution of the torso-murder of 40-year-old John Dick will provide one of Ontario's most sensational criminal cases in 25 years. The case may "break" this weekend, he added, and involved a "love quadrangle."

It was reported that officials had reconstructed the slaying scene which opened when Dick left his place of employment as a street railway bus driver last March 6. His dismembered body, identified last Tuesday, was discovered last Saturday by hiking children beneath a rocky ledge off a district Hamilton Mountain road.

Ashes, found Thursday by police together with two blood-stained baskets and a match box, are being sifted to determine if they contain remains of the missing parts of the body — head, arms and legs. It was not disclosed where the ashes and blood-stained articles were found but police believe the man was not killed at the spot the torso was discovered. Police refused to link the two baskets with the case.

An intensified search is being made for a man whom police believe to be the actual killer, one report said.

Two persons have been arrested by officers investigating the case. Bail was refused the 25-year-old widow of Dick when she appeared in court Wednesday on a charge of vagrancy. William Bohozyck, husky Hamilton oarsman who police said "has not definitely been linked" with the investigation, was refused bail yesterday on charges of vagrancy and having possession of an unregistered revolver.

Investigation, which spread from Hamilton Mountain through Beamsville district to the west, has returned to the city with reports police carried out extensive digging operations in the north end.

An automobile being held by police and in which blood stains were found was reported to have been rented in the east end of Hamilton about the time Dick disappeared. It was seized by police the day after discovery of the torso.

Friday, Dick's remains were buried after a service in the United Mennonite Church at nearby Vineland where three weeks ago Dick attended the funeral of his grandmother as a pallbearer. Dick's mother, who spells the family name as Dyck, has not been told her son was a slaying victim.

Natives Dislike Concrete Ceiling

Nelspruit, South Africa (CP)—One hundred three-roomed houses—part of Nelspruit's ambitious sub-economic native housing scheme—have been standing unoccupied for more than a year.

Built of stone, with concrete floors and ceilings the houses are complete with stoves, shower baths and other modern conveniences.

The rental is only 15 shillings ($3.50) a month, but the natives prefer to remain in their unsanitary wattle and daub huts.

When C. G. Cottingham, the town clerk of Nelspruit, asked a deputation from the natives to meet him in front of the town's administrative offices, the leader told him why the houses were unoccupied.

"You have made the ceilings of concrete in order that you may cause them to fall at your will and kill us," he said. "That is why we won't live in them."

The ceilings will not, however, be rebuilt with a substance lighter than concrete. But, when the remaining houses planned under the scheme are built, they will be altered in other respects to permit a lower rental.

Forces Craft Shop Makes False Teeth

Aurich, Germany (CP)—Craft shops in the R.C.A.F. and Canadian army are rousing interest of men in hobbies which later may become their livelihood and also serving as a centre where the men repair all sorts of personal equipment—boots, false teeth, or cameras.

One of the men responsible for crafts shops in which the occupational forces take their recreation is Y.M.C.A. Crafts Adviser R. D. (Bob) Wallace, former English teacher at Brantford Collegiate in Toronto.

Bob came to Germany early this year after setting up shops at the Canadian Reinforcement Units area in England. First interested in crafts at Taylor Statten's camp Ahmek in Algonquin Park, Ontario, in 1938, he has since left a trail of shops at Camp Borden, Petawawa, Kingston, Barriefield and the R. C. A. F. Station at Rockcliffe, near Ottawa.

His job is to set up craft shops in old horse-stables, jails, garages or whatever accommodation is available.

He says the shops have filled a great need among service personnel and "many have gone back to civvy street determined to make their lives happier and themselves better men."

The crafts program in England reached such proportions last year that a central supply depot was set up in Farnborough, Hampshire, to handle the various requirements of 60 shops operating in the Canadian Reinforcement area and serving more than 6,000 men.

Outstanding among the articles produced was a model steam engine, produced in the Barriefield shop. Ornamental cedar chests, laminated skis, radio sets, handbags, bows and arrows, ornamental jewelry and beaten copper ash trays are also among the handicraft products.

Queen's Professor Protests Detention in Spy Probe In Letter to John Bracken

Ottawa, March 23 (CP)—A letter, signed by Prof. Israel Halperin of Queen's University, protesting the manner in which he has been detained in connection with the government espionage investigation was made public Friday by John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader.

"It may sound fantastic," the letter said, "but I have to tell you that no charges have been laid against me... For the past five weeks I have been held in isolated imprisonment, denied access to legal counsel and newspapers, in short, cut off from the outside world."

Prof. Halperin's letter added: "If I am accused of a crime or misconduct, I deny the charge. I cannot know what accusation or slander has been presented to the public by the Department of Justice, either directly or through the mouths of others. But, I have the certain knowledge that there cannot be a shred of true evidence for what is completely false."

He said he had written protests twice to the Justice Minister against what he termed "bastile-like imprisonment." Answers "have in effect merely confirmed that the Minister of Justice is fully aware of the conditions of my imprisonment."

Terrible Injustice

"This imprisonment is a terrible injustice to me and I charge the Minister of Justice with using his authority in a way which sets a dangerous precedent, one which should alarm every Canadian citizen."

Prof. Halperin asked that Mr. Bracken read the letter in the Commons, saying:

"If you are interested in who I am, I will tell you that I am a native-born Canadian, whose occupation is that of Professor of Mathematics in Queen's University, Kingston, Ont. I come from a family whose concern for our country was sufficient to put two sons in uniform. One of them is writing this letter, the other is at the bottom of the Atlantic."

The letter was the first public disclosure that the Queen's University professor who served as a Major in the army during the war, was among those detained in the espionage probe.

Prof. Halperin, 36, was regarded by his associates at Queen's University as a studious type of man whose primary interests were his work and his family. Mrs. Halperin and their three children—four years, a year and a half and six months—lived in Kingston but, since his arrest, Mrs. Halperin has spent much of her time in Ottawa.

A man of medium height and fair complexion, he was born in Toronto where his father still lives and he started a distinguished scholastic career there, graduating from University of Toronto. He won a national scholarship in the United States and a Sterling Fellowship at Yale University.

Went to Queen's in 1939

He later served as E.O. Pierce instructor at Yale, an honor that goes to students of particular promise in mathematics. He attained his master of arts degree at Toronto University and later a degree of doctor of philosophy at Princeton. For a year or two he taught mathematics at Harvard.

In 1939, he joined the staff of Queen's as associate professor of mathematics and taught advanced classes. In 1942, he obtained military leave from the university and enlisted in the Royal Canadian Artillery as a second lieutenant.

He took an officer's training course at Brockville, Ont., and was discharged from the army in October, 1945, in the rank of Major.

For most of his three years in the army, he was posted in Ottawa and was connected with the artillery directorate of the Master General of Ordnance branch.

Little was known at Queen's about the work he was doing in the army, but there was a belief it was connected ballistics. After his discharge, he returned to Queen's and then, one day last month, he telephoned the college and said he was leaving for Ottawa.

He asked that another professor arrange to have classes and conduct examinations for which he was responsible. That was the last time the university heard from him until a few weeks later there were reports he had been taken into custody and a flurry of rumors swept the Queen's campus.

The Halperin home in Kingston is a typical university professor's residence with well-loaded book shelves, holding volumes of the classics and music.

Canadian Policies Should Be Such as to Assist Economic Structure of British Isles

B. K. Sandwell, Toronto Saturday Night Editor, Views World Conditions at the Rotary Club's Ladies' Night Banquet

"The people and the government of Canada should so conduct their economic policies that they can assist in a great measure to maintain a strong economic life in the British Isles, near a Europe whose future is so uncertain," B. K. Sandwell, editor of the Toronto Saturday Night declared here on Friday night.

Speaking to upwards of 160 Rotarians and their wives and guests at the service club's annual Ladies Night banquet in the Hotel Quinte, the distinguished journalist and economist stated that Canada is vitally interested in the economic welfare of "those islands because we are associated with them by an allegiance with the same kind of principles, governments and social status. It is important that we become interested in the economic structure of a Great Britain which cannot afford to be strong. National power rests on a sturdy economic foundation, and Britain must have that if she is to maintain her status in the world."

Seem to be Satisfied

Mr. Sandwell deplored the fact that Canadians seem to be satisfied "with its miserable little 11 millions of people as compared to the 135 millions south of the border. Are we going to be satisfied with this? If we had a few more millions we could be a stronger prop for the economic life of Great Britain and exert a greater influence on the people of the U.S.A. along the same lines."

"If we by conviction and intelligent policy, show that we are anxious to see Great Britain a great nation, we shall have a better chance to see the Americans learn the same thing much quicker than they otherwise would," Mr. Sandwell said.

"We live on a continent that is so capable of being self contained," he went on, "that it is going to be difficult to train its people to consume foreign products, which must be consumed if the economy of the world is to be maintained. We can't eat all our own wheat, and the Americans can't wear all their cotton."

Collapse of outside prices of American cotton and Canadian wheat caused the depression in the early thirties, the speaker said, "When the outside world ceases to buy North American products, then North America ceases to live."

This Changing World

He was worried about the state of mind that exists today in the world, one that is much more dangerous and more deplorable than that which existed before the war. There is so much bitter feeling among the different races of the earth, and even among people, within their own nations. "Canada used to pride itself on being a united nation, now we are kicking each other out of the country."

It is easy to stir up feelings of hostility, jealousy and suspicion. This, Mr. Sandwell pointed out, is not a good atmosphere for a new organization which, it is hoped, will establish a higher level of sympathy and relationship among the peoples of the world.

Canadian attitude toward life is identical with that of the U.S.A. It is a kind of civilization with an accent on success which is a bit dangerous. The reason the 1930 depression made such a terrific impact on the continent was not because a lot of people were out of work, or that a few starved, or suicided, but the fact that it demonstrated a greater number of people than was thought possible were in grave danger of not attaining that success which is the only source of happiness.

The North American continent is a new land with new people. Consequently there is no fixed social relationship. It is a question of the individual getting to the top as fast as possible.

Drift Toward Socialism

The secret of the entire drift toward socialism, Mr. Sandwell said, is the whole business of the state taking the responsibility of things that should be the responsibility of individuals. Half the legislation of this country is socialistic. The C.C.F. has a job to be more socialistic, if and when it gets into power.

"The reason," he said, "is that a great number of people decided between 1930 and 1939 that they would not rely on the old idea that any man who wanted to work could be a success.

"We in North America," he charged, "had more to do with causing two world wars than we care to give ourselves credit for. Our success doctrine became widely known in Europe, in fact it was something of an ideal for Europeans to struggle on. Millions of them came over here to struggle on it. The ambition for success aroused in European people, has not come to an end," he warned. The fact that the Italian nation wanted more success than they could possibly attain themselves led them to an attachment with Germany.

"European ambition to attain the new world is not at an end," the speaker said. "We are in the process of what might eventually lead to some sort of status. Whatever it is, it will be a revolt against the ideas that a man should be judged by the amount of money he makes.

More Responsibility

"North America has more responsibility than it cares to admit," Mr. Sandwell said, "but Canadian responsibility is only a fraction of that south of the border. They made this life and must accept the responsibility. The United States has sufficient naval, military and air power to make them masters of the world. They won't force the world to do what they want it to do, but they can prevent the world from doing the things the U. S. does not want it to do.

"Up to 1914 Great Britain was the most powerful nation in the world. She had financial possessions all over the world and had the power to draw from these possessions the things which were the equivalent to financial interest. "Payments between countries are not paid in money, but in goods and services," the speaker said, "that meant that Britain was entitled to larger amounts of imports than exports. For 300 years she consumed the goods obtained from her possessions, and thus kept the balance of payments The British aristocracy started the tourist business. She sent her young men abroad to spend the money Britain was entitled to from various countries.

Different Position Today

"How different is her condition today," Mr. Sandwell said. "Her position has changed from a debtor to a creditor nation in a generation, No one knows the exact position of Britain but it is safe to say she owes a little more than is coming in. There is no question that when the payments and interest start on the American loans, she will owe a great deal more than she is getting from inside the Empire."

"Therefore," he concluded," "Canadians and the Canadian government should so conduct their own economic policies as to maintain to a strong degree the economic life of Britain."

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Orland Pinkston with the appreciation of the club and guests being voiced by Rotarian Fred Deacon. President "Mac" McLean formally welcomed the ladies and other guests. He introduced President Mark Vanner of the Belleville Kiwanis Club; President Newton Wilbur, Kinsmen Club and President "Bud" Trill, Y'smen Club. A highlight of the function was the splendid voice of Rotarian Jack Deacon who was heard in four selections, with Mrs. Deacon at the piano.

Toast to Ladies

Rotarian Harry Croll, proposing the toast to the ladies, said in lighter vein that he could not picture a "No-woman Land". It would mean that man would lose his best friend, he couldn't have an audience to listen to the story of the pies that mother used to made; men would go around with shingle nails on their trousers instead of buttons; clothes would be seen with grotesque patches; peace would vanish from the human heart, flowers would droop, children's voices would be hushed and the brightness of life depart.

"Fortunately for men," he said, "there is no such place as No,-woman's Land." He extended a warm sincere welcome to the ladies.

Mrs. Grant Sparling, responding to the toast, said it was a joy for the ladies to attend the banquet. "We are thankful for one thing," she said, "and that is, that it takes our husbands away at noon on Mondays. Rotary could do the ladies a favor," she said, "by devising new menus."

She had tried to get out of her husband what he has for lunch at Rotary, but the answers had been very vague. She smilingly requested that the club, "for the wives' sake" add a chef or a dietitian to its roster, so that they could add a Rotary Special to the weekly menus at home.

Marmora.—The regular March meeting of St. Andrew's Women's Missionary Society was held on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. W. Sabine with the President, Mrs. H. R. Haacke in the chair.

Mrs. Burwash gave the treasurer's report and Mrs. Sweet took the number of calls made. Mrs. Trennum recorded the books read by members during the month and the offering was received and dedicated.

Mrs. Burwash reported receiving a note from Miss Coultis, of Maynooth, thanking the Society for a contribution of $5 towards teh purchase of slides for her lantern to be used in her work in North Hastings. A letter was also read by Miss Brown, re the Presbyterial to be held in Trenton on April 4. It is expected Mrs. Haacke, Mrs. Cadigan and a representative from the C.G.I.T. and Mission Band will also attend. Miss Brown was appointed voting delegate. It is hoped to have a special guest speaker for the April meeting which will be held in the church parlor.

Mrs. Haacke had charge of the devotional period, the theme being "Builders together with God". Mrs. Sproul took the study period with Miss Brown, Mrs. Prentice, Mrs. Sabine, Mrs. Sweet and Mrs. Burwash assisting. One new member was welcomed. The meeting closed with the president reading a beautiful prayer poem. Light refreshments were served.

WOMEN'S HOSPITAL AUX.

The regular meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary was held at the Nurses' Residence with the President, Mrs. H. Wray, in the chair. After the usual reports Mrs. Wray welcomed the new members. While the report from the Fashion Show is not complete, the outlook is most encouraging as a large crowd was noted at both performances.

A committee was appointed to buy and distribute to the wards the Easter gifts. A short report was given by Miss Horton on the Indigent Fund. Mrs. J. Galloway presented a cheque to the Auxiliary from a lady interested in the work. Discussion took place as to the advisability of doing the flowers, the matter being left to Miss Horton, who will contact the members when needed.

Mr. Barclay gave a short review of some of the hospital work and congratulated the auxiliary on its excellent style show. He also reported on the progress being made in the matter of the tray morgue. After some discussion about the difference in types of equipment available at this time, it was moved that the buying of suitable baby incubators be left to Mr. Barclay.

CANNIFTON RED CROSS

The Cannifton Red Cross Auxiliary held its final meeting on Wednesday in the Sunday School rooms with a very good attendance. At noon the ladies enjoyed a generous pot luck dinner, and at the end of the day, two large quilts, two crib quilts, one girl's underslip and six babies' vests were handed in.

In reviewing the activities of the Auxiliary during the last six years, the records showed that in addition to the large number of quilts and articles of sewing and knitting which had been completed, the Auxiliary had also been able to contribute $117.90 for the purchase of blankets and $671 to Belleville headquarters.

AVONDALE N.A.

The Avondale Neighbors' Aid met at the home of Mrs. A. Daniels on Thursday afternoon, with a good attendance. The President, Mrs. S. Lough, was in the chair and opened the meeting. Mrs. M. Button and Mrs. Lough took the devotional period. After the various reports had been given it was decided that a plaque be purchased for attaching to the bed-table, which the Aid had given to Christie Street Hospital, the inscription to be similar to that inscribed on the radios, which they had also given. Thirty-one dollars has thus far been turned in on the telephone euchre, which is in progress. Mrs. C. Hermon won the lovely quilt donated by the Aid.

Mrs. C. Holmes and Mrs. Robson then took charge of the program, which took the form of Irish games, contests, etc. with suitable favors and prizes in keeping with St. Patrick's Day. A lovely cup and saucer was presented to Mrs. Louise Craig, a valued member, who is leaving the community. Earlier in the week the neighbors honored her at a party held at the home of Mr and Mrs. L. Reid, where she was the recipient of a beautiful travelling case and a handbag.

Delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Lough and Mrs. Windover. After a vote of thanks for such an enjoyable afternoon, the meeting closed with singing.

Crucial Games Come for Three Amateur Teams as Scramble For Titles Enters Critical Stage

Saint John Beavers, Oshawa Generals and Port Arthur Flyers All in Same Boat

(By The Canadian Press)

It's now or never for three amateur hockey teams tonight as the annual scramble towards the National titles enters the critical stage.

So far there are 10 teams surviving in the race for the Allan Cup and the Canadian senior championship, and nine teams are left in the battle towards the Memorial Cup and junior honors. A loss tonight would mean elimination for the Sain John Beavers in the senior race, and for the Oshawa Generals and Port Arthur Flyers in the junior bracket.

Four senior playoffs are carded this evening. At Saint John the Beavers meet Hamilton Tigers in the second of their best-of-three play-off. Hamilton, the all-Ontario senior champs, won the first game 8-1 Thursday and are all set to ship their equipment after tonight's tussle. But the Beavers, Maritime champions, aren't ready to concede anything. Coach Jack Keating said last night the Beavers weren't as bad as the score of the first game would indicate. "We'll be going out after them," he warned.

Pembroke Opens Series

Pembroke Lumber Kings open a best-of-three Ottawa district final against Cornwall Falcons. In the west, Calgary Stampeders take on Winnipeg Orioles in the first of the western semi-final at Saskatoon, while New Westminster meets Trail Smoke Eaters in the second game of their best-of-five British Columbia final. New Westminster won the first.

In the junior drive Oshawa Generals have to beat Toronto St. Michael's tonight or they've had it. St. Mikes, winners of the Memorial Cup a year ago, lead the best-of-seven O.H.A. final by three games to two.

The big Ontario junior game is at Oshawa, which prompted president George Panter of the OHA to issue a statement at Toronto last night pointing out that Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens — where 14,674 jammed in to see the teams last Wednesday — had an open date tonight, but that it still had been decided that the Oshawa home fans deserved the game. Panter said he was "proud of the sound sportsmanship exemplified by hockey men generally," explaining that Gardens officials had made no request for tonight's game.

The Port Arthur Flyers are in the same boat as the Oshawa Generals. In tonight's only other junior play-off, the Flyers meet Winnipeg Monarchs at Winnipeg tonight in the fifth of their best-of-seven western semi-final—and Winnipeg leads by three games to one.

Ottawa Senators Even Series With Montreal Royals

Montreal, March 23 (CP)—Rallying around goalie Legs Fraser who turned in a brilliant exhibition of puck stopping, Ottawa Senators played determined hockey here last night to thump Montreal Royals 4-3 and tie at 1-1 the best-of-seven final series for the Thomas O'Connell trophy, emblematic of the Quebec Senior Hockey League championship.

Senators came from behind twice to knot the count at 2-2 in the second period and were never headed after that. Stu Smith, who paced the Ottawa victory with a brace of markers, and Jim McFadden were outstanding on the attack while defencemen Bobby Copp and Tony Graboski played steady hockey at the Ottawa blue line.

Jean Paul (Butch) Lamirande, Leo Gravelle and Alex Smart played fast hockey both ways for Royals, each scoring a goal.

Conacher Notified To Appear Before O.H.A. Executive

Toronto, March 23 (CP)—President George Panter of the Ontario Hockey Association said last night, on the eve of the sixth game between Toronto St. Michael's and Oshawa Generals in their best-of-seven O.H.A. junior final, that the O.H.A. "will not tolerate any rough-house tactics" by either players, coaches or fans.

Panter notified Coach Charlie Conacher of the Oshawa Generals to appear before an O.H.A. executive committee meeting here March 29 to show cause why he should not be suspended from organized hockey for misconduct and continual use of abusive language during the fifth game of the Oshawa-St. Mike's series at Toronto Wednesday. St. Mike's won the fifth game 4-2 to take a lead of 3-2 in games.

In a letter to Conacher tonight Panter stated: "Until a decision has been reached you are permitted to continue as coach of the Oshawa club, on condition that any repetition of such conduct shall result in indefinite suspension from all branches of organized hockey."

Chips Off The Sports Block

By GEORGE H. CARVER.

HOT AND HEAVY

The feeling that has been running high all winter between the Toronto St. Michael's and the Oshawa Generals, crack junior "A" squads who are boiling in the throes of their playoff series, wasn't cooled off any by that disputed goal in the Wednesday night battle. Coach Conacher, 'tis said, told Referee Hayes off in no uncertain terms and even the cheering thousands hushed to hear the verbal blast...Oshawa reports that the coach will be disciplined for the blast.

The teams go at it hammer and tongs tonight in Oshawa and with the Generals with their backs to the wall, it should be another of those rousing hell-for-leather jousts that have featured the entire series... The Generals may be without the services of Phil Samis, starry defenceman who suffered a severe cut over the eye in the last game...But the Oshawa faithful are confident that the Gens can take the measure of the Green and not only that, feel sure they can lick 'em in their own Maple Leaf Gardens bailiwick in that all-important seventh game.

The game tonight will be broadcast over a coast-to-coast hook-up and the Maple Leaf Gardens Hot Stove League will be on hand with their inter-period discussions and commentary. George (Soup) Campbell, sports scrivener for the Oshawa sheet remarks aside to friend Bunny Morganson of the Toronto Tely, "that attempt to 'buy' the 6th game for Maple Leaf Gardens on Saturday night is just another bit of proof that Hogtown will always be Hogtown." "And," George goes on, "we dare you to print that."

Montreal Canadiens romp into Chicago tomorrow (Sunday) night where they take on the de-feathered Hawks in the third game of their playoff series. Dick Irvin's squad scored a neat 5-1 win to take their second straight victory in Montreal on Thursday night and apparently have hit championship stride. However, the speeding Hawks may be two games down, but they're back in their own backyard and will give Messrs. Blake, Lach and Rocket Richard a ganging go for their money.

The teams play the fourth game of the series in Chicago on Tuesday night with the fifth if necessary, back in Montreal next Thursday.

The 1946 Dominion amateur boxing championships will be fought in Montreal on May 6, 7, and 8 in the coliseum, it was announced today. As in the past, the blue ribbon meet will take in the following classes; 112, 118, 126, 135, 147, 160, 174 pounds and the heavyweight. 'Entry blanks are being mailed across the Dominion as entries are expected from Vancouver and Victoria on the Pacific coast and Glace Bay, Sidney, Halifax and St. John, N.B. on the Atlantic seaboard.

Another juicy sports tidbit takes place tonight in the Jock Harty arena, Kingston where the Locos, winners of the Intermediate "A" Group of this district meet the Collingwood Shipbuilders in the second game of their playdown series. Collingwood derailed the Haynes Choo-Choos 9-6 in their first tangle but the railroaders are confident tonight's last whistle will see the series even-stephen. A number of local fans are making a safari to the Limestone city to take in the proceedings.

Some of Ed Shortt's intermediate basketball lassies are making the trip with the Trenton Fliers squad to Bowmanville tonight. The colleens will play an intermediate tilt with the Bowmanville gals prior to the Fliers - Bowmanville intermediate playdown tussle. Fliers carry a slim four-point lead with them having defeated the Bowmanville squad 36-32 in the first game of the series staged at the air station this week. The boys and gals are travelling by air force bus and will likely take off from the station at 5 pip emma.

Stirling Marmora Combines eked out a 6-5 win over the classy Whitby Red Wings Thursday night in the first of their total goals, two game junior "C" series. The teams go at it again on Oshawa ice on Monday eventide. Trumbull, starry Stirling player slung home the winning counter with a few minutes to go and his mates held off the Whitby threat for the remainder of the game.

Don't be surprised if you see some of the best leather-pushers in Toronto and vicinity display their wares here this Spring. This corner has it on fairly definite authority that an outstanding boxing card is being planned for the first week or so in April but to date nothing of a substantial nature has come to light. Outstanding mitt-slingers, it is felt, would attract plenty of the faithful, and those who are contemplating the promotion of boxing bouts here would be well advised to toss in the best talent available, even if it does cost a little more masuma to bring it here.

Canadiens Expect Different Battle When They Face Hawks in Chicago

Montreal, March 23 — (CP)— Dick Irvin's Montreal Canadiens, steaming hot on the crest of two easy victories against Chicago Black Hawks in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final series, left for Chicago yesterday expecting tougher opposition when they meet Hawks Sunday and Tuesday, but confident of at least breaking even before they return to Montreal where a fifth game, if necessary, will be played Thursday.

With their punch line of Toe Blake, Elmer Lach and Maurice Richard functioning as it seldom did during the regular schedule, Canadiens completely outclassed Black Hawks to take games on Montreal ice by 6-2 and 5-1.

The majority of players think they'll take the series in four straight games, but coach Dick Irvin and captain Toe Blake figure Hawks will take one of the two games on their home ice.

"They're a different club at home," said Blake. "They took a pretty bad shellacking here and they'll try to give it back to us now."

Irvin said Murph Chamberlain, Billy Reay and Jimmy Peters, who held the famed Max Bentley-Bill Mosienko-Doug Bentley trio to only one goal so far, will again square off against the high-powered Chicago line.

Rookies Gerry Plamondon and Tod Campeau, Quebec Senior Hockey League graduates, accompanied the team to Chicago but coach Irvin explained this was more as a safety measure and that he will ice the same lineup as in the two previous games.

Chicago goalie Mike Karakas didn't show up to his habitual par in the first two contests and looked particularly shaky in the last game and reports from Chicago have it that Doug Stevenson may finish the series in his place. That would be the only change coach Johnny Gottselig considered in the Chicago lineup.

Montreal Canadiens Trounce Concordias

Ray Laplante scored two goals, and Auger and Hubert Bourgie once each for Concordias.

The second game will be played tomorrow night, with a third game Sunday if necessary.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By FRASER MacDOUGALL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, March 23 — (CP) — All the ballyhoo about the National Hockey League retirement of Lorne Carr and Sweeney Schriner may be somewhat to blame for neglect of the close of the active playing career of another member of the Toronto Maple Leafs—rugged Robert (Bob) Davidson.

It's typical of the modest, pleasant Davidson's 12-year N. H. L. career that its end should be overshadowed by headlines for someone else. He wasn't the headline type. He never was selected for The Canadian Press all - star team. He only scored 94 goals in league play, far short of the select 200-goal class which Carr and Schriner entered in their last season.

The 34-year-old Toronto - born Davidson was a team player. His most treasured hockey memories are about the team — when he joined the Maple Leafs back in the 1934-35 season and when the team won the Stanley Cup in 1942 and 1946. It's only under questioning that he'll recall any individual performances — such as the night in the 1942 Stanley Cup play-offs when Toronto lost the first three games of the best-of-seven final and was down 2-0 in the fourth and he scored a goal which started the team to a 4-2 victory. The winning streak extended through the next three games.

Although his playing days are over he will continue with the team. Managing director Conn Smythe of the Leafs "called me up the other day and said I was being placed on the retired list but that I'd remain with the club, either as a coach of a minor league team or in some other capacity."

"I'd like to stay in hockey in some capacity," said Bob. "I like the game."

He has been a thorn in the side of the league's right wings ever since he started to play and they may be pardoned if they rise collectively to cheer his departure—no bad feelings of course, but there's nothing pleasant about trying to score goals with the Davidson elbow in your ribs or with the 185-pound left wing practically riding on your back. The news may be most pleasant to Maurice Richard of Montreal Canadiens who has found to his sorrow that Davidson is a most disconcerting checker.

Davidson himself has no regrets on this concentration on stopping the other fellow from getting goals although it kept him from getting many. "That's what I was told to do so I went out and did it. I was pretty well paid for it and can't complain."

Wilfred (Shorty) Green of Sudbury, a keen hockey observer and one of its top-notch active players said a couple of seasons ago that Davidson was the NHL's most under-rated player. That's the way a lot of fellows feel about him. A clean-living fellow, he's been a credit to the game.

Briefs From Training Camps

(By The Associated Press)

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 23 (AP)—Three New York Yankees are down with colds. Rookie Bill Wight, who has made a fine impression with his hurling on this pitcher-hungry club, is hoping to lick the sniffles and get into action during the weekend. Third baseman Snuffy Stirnweiss and pitcher Clarence Marshall are the other sufferers.

Daytona Beach, Fla.—Joe Hatten has been so widely heralded that the rookie southpaw had a big audience for his initial workout on the hill for Brooklyn Dodgers. Hatten showed plenty of stuff in a long workout.

Anaheim, Calif.—St. Louis Browns' infield for opening game probably will find Chuck Stevens or George Archie at first, Johnny Berardino at second, Mark Christman at short and rookie Bob Dillinger at third.

St. Petersburg, Fla.—Southpaw Harry Brecheen joined St. Louis Cardinals' long ailing list Friday when he fouled a ball against his own right ankle, making it doubtful whether he will take his slated turn against New York Yankees here Saturday.

Los Angeles, Calif.—The National League champion Chicago Cubs, still smarting from a 5-4 10-inning defeat by the St. Louis Browns yesterday, planned to use Claude Passeau, Hank Wyse and what other pitching timber Manager Charlie Grimm could find today in an effort to even their series.

West Palm Beach, Fla.—The toast of the Philadelphia Athletic training camp today is rookie rightfielder Bill James. James, who batted .290 for Lancaster last year, led the A's attack with four hits in four trips to the plate yesterday as the Mackmen defeated the Phils 9-2.

Miami, Fla.—Philadelphia Phillies return to normal today by playing only one team—Toronto Maple Leafs. The Phils broke up yesterday, taking off in all directions for games with the Athletics, the Giants and Baltimore of the International League.

Orlando, Fla.—Showing his worry over the third base spot, Washington Manager Ossie Bluege has asked owner Clark Griffith to "pay until it hurts" in an effort to acquire Ken Keltner, holdout third baseman of Cleveland Indians. "He's been the best third baseman in the league for a long time, and that's the only position where we are weak," says Bluege.

LESSON NO. 943
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The meaning of a small card lead should easily be guessed. If not his fourth from highest card, it must be leader's best.

A small card is any card lower than an honor; 9, 8, 7, 6, 5, 4, 3, or 2. The lead of such a card may be a fourth best. Or it may be the highest of a short suit (three cards or less.)

However, the lead of a nine is never a fourth best. It must be the highest of a short. Because any three cards higher than a nine contain a sequence from which an honor lead is preferred.

Of the three-card groups higher than an eightspot, only four are not sequences; 16 are. So an eightspot lead is seldom a fourth best. It is usually the highest of a short.

The lead of a seven is more often the highest of a short than fourth best of a long. But partner must discover which it is before deciding whether it is one or the other.

The lead of a six or a five could as easily be a fourth best or a highest. A four or a trey lead is more likely to be a fourth best than a highest. But neither could be a highest, of course.

Only when a deuce is a singleton can it be the highest. Because there are no cards lower. So a deuce lead is practically always a fourth best. That much is quite obvious.

All this is very interesting, of course. But it is not definite enough for accuracy in a scientific game like bridge.. So, there is a simple rule for making sure. In a few days I will tell you about it.

Suppose you lead the heart seven from these hearts:

As soon as you lead that seven, partner sees the hearts in his own hand and dummy. If he learns it is not your fourth best, he is sure it is your highest heart.

You can overcome boredom with a basis to work from.

Copper Cliff Rangers In Running for Title

Toronto, March 23 (CP)—Copper Cliff Rangers, winners of Sudbury district's Midget National Hockey League championship, today advanced into competition for the all-Ontario midget hockey title The runner-up team, Sudbury, also goes into the provincial competition

Rangers last night defeated Sudbury Red Wings 9-1 in midget N.H.L. playdowns at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Today's competition will be between Copper Cliff, Sudbury, St. Michael's College minor midgets of the Toronto Hockey League and an Oshawa team representing the Ontario Minor Hockey Association.

The midget N.H.L. league transplated itself from the nickel belt for the series and the young players said it gave them "the thrill of their lives" to play in Maple Leaf Gardens. Georgetown and Weston are southern Ontario affiliations of the league.

Results of yesterday's series were:

First round—Copper Cliff 10, Georgetown 0; Sudbury 6, Carson 3; Weston 1, Falconbridge 1.

Third round—Copper Cliff 9, Sudbury 1; Falconbridge 6, Georgetown 2; Weston 3, Garson 0.

SOLDIER'S DREAM REALIZED

Atlanta, March 23 (AP) — A dream cherished by a boy and a girl while he was overseas was realized last night when they had the prettiest wedding the city could afford in Atlanta's Memorial Park.

While photographers' bulbs flashed and nearly 10,000 persons looked on, Cpl. Ernest Shafto of Farmingdale, N.J., and Kathleen Jordan of Decatur, Ga., took their vows.

Forming the background of the improvised altar was the multicolored fountain under which the couple had courted.

In Manhattan

By MICHAEL O'MARA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York, March 23 (CP) — An object lesson in the truth of hoary theatrical adage—that novelists, as playwrights, make good novelists—was provided this week by "Flamingo Road," an adaptation by Robert and Sally Wilder from the former's book of that name.

The best-seller novel packed plenty of punch with its exposure of petty politics and local and state-wide rackets in the southern United States. The play is a dreary bore.

Authors who want to see their work come to life behind the footlights are wise when they collaborate with men already skilled in dramatic techniques. When they attempt the job of revamping themselves, they almost invariably show a distaste for blue-pencilling their own work. The result, as in this case, generally turns out to be cramped, cluttered and confused.

A coterie with backgrounds probably as varied as those of any group of rivals in the world, New York theatre producers run the gamut from erstwhile carnival barkers to former Wall Street brokers.

Mike Todd is the refuge from the midway; John C. Wilson and Howard Culman know as much about ticker-tape as they do about third-row tickets.

Oscar Hammerstein II is a grand-nephew of his late namesake, an operatic impresario. Herbert Fields is the son of the late Lew Fields of "Weber and Fields." Paula Stone is the daughter of Fred, the first of the famed Stepping Stones. Gilbert Miller's father was actor Henry Miller.

Jed Harris and Herman Shumlin used to peddle magazines in New Jersey. Billy Rose was a song writer and a secretary to presidential adviser Bernard Baruch during the First Great War. George Abbott and Howard Lindsey were actors and the latter's partner, Russell Crouse a newspaperman.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press)

Because of the controversy at Jacksonville, Fla., over the appearance of Jackie Robinson and John Wright, Negro ball players with Montreal Royals, the exhibition game with Jersey City scheduled for Sunday was called off last night. The rules of the Jacksonville Recreation Board prohibited mixed games where an admission is charged, it had been announced. Rather than drop the players, the game was cancelled.

Robinson and Wright have already taken part in a number of exhibition games in other Florida cities without objection.

After piloting 53 steeplechase winners in the present English racing season, jockey Fred Rimell was yesterday found to have a fractured vertebra and will not ride Poor Flame in the Grand National April 5.

The $10,000 one-mile derby trial at Churchill Downs yesterday drew the nominations of 96 of the 149 Kentucky Derby candidates, including six three-year-olds from Maine Chance Farm. The trial takes place April 30, four days before Derby Day.

One-time coach of Regina Rough Riders in the Western Football Conference, Harry Wilbert Crapper died suddenly yesterday at his home in Niagara Falls, Ont. He was born in Petrolia but spent many years in the Canadian West.

Outfielder James (Buddy) Heximer has signed a 1946 contract with the Roanoke, Va., club in the Class B. Piedmont League and was scheduled to leave his Niagara Falls, Ont., home to report to the team at Bennettsville, S.C., next week. For the past three seasons he has played with the Navy nine at Halifax, N.S.

After dividing two games with Wembley Lions at London, Hammarby Hockey Club of Stockholm proved no match for a Canadian servicemen's team last night at Wembley Stadium, the Canucks registering an easy 9-1 victory. The Swedish players showed little in the way of combination or defensive strategy. Leading scorers, with three goals apiece, were Hub Macey of The Pas, Man., and Orm Tustin of Owen Sound, other tallies going to Bob Lee of Toronto; Gus Giesebrecht, formerly of Detroit Red Wings, and Frank Boucher of Ottawa.

Women jockeys rode the first three horses yesterday in the Kiplingcotes, Yorkshire, Derby, a four-mile cross-country affair which has a history of 472 years. Four of the seven starters were ridden by women, the winner being Miss Rachel Frank.

Swedish competitors carried off chief honors yesterday in the International championship 30-kilometre ski run at Zermatt, Switzerland. The winner was Gunnar Karlsson, Swedish 50-kilometre champion.

The United States is due for a tour by another Swedish runner. Lennart Strand, who defeated both Gunder Haegg and Arne Andersson in 4:04.8 last September, announced he had accepted an invitation to tour the U. S. next summer.

AT THE McCARTHY — Maria Montez and Robert Paige are co-starred with Sabu in Universal's adventurous picture "Tangier," now playing at the McCarthy Theatre.

Briefs From Training Camps

Daytona Beach, Fla., March 22 (AP)—Eddie Basinski, Brooklyn Dodger infielder, has been summoned to appear before Commissioner B. "Happy" Chandler in Miami Monday. "All I know is he wired me to appear before him and of course I will," Basinki said in denying reports he has been approached by a representative of another major league club.

St. Petersburg, Fla.,—Joe DiMaggio has hit 10 homers for New York Yankees so far during the training season. His latest came yesterday against Detroit, a 380-footer over the left field fence at Lakeland. Charley Keller struck out four straight times in the game.

Orlando, Fla.—The "B" squad of Washington Senators is so cocky over successes (six wins, two losses, one tie) in the Grapefruit League, it has challenged the first team. A game for the camp championship probably will be played Monday.

Miami Beach, Fla.—Johnny O'Neill, the shortstop whom the Phillies bought from Portland, is a bust so far at the plate. In 25 times at bat he has made only two hits for an .080 average.

Pasadena, Calif. — Chicago White Sox have sent infielder Bill Metzig and pitcher Nick Popovich to Little Rock of the Southern Association and outfielder Joe Smaza and pitcher Frank Martin to Shreveport, La.

Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.—Since Bill Posedel has started displaying his pre-war pitching skill, Manager Billy Southworth of Boston Braves has decided to carry 10 twirlers instead of nine.

West Palm Beach—Manager Connie Mack of Philadelphia Athletics has designated Gene Desautels as the No. 2 catcher on the team behind Buddy Rosar.

Lakeland, Fla.—Detroit Tigers today probably will lop 12 players or more from their squad of 60 candidates in training here.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, March 23 —(AP)— Santa Anita is looking for a sell-out of its 1,000 boxes before the big harness racing meet opens there April 16 . . . Adolph Rupp's observation on the damage he saw in Germany: "Our accuracy bombing was very good. Our boys missed every stadium, brewery and distillery." . . . If Mrs. Elizabeth Graham starts three horses in the Kentucky Derby, she will be the first owner to start a triple entry since Green Tree did it in 1931, when Twenty Grand won. . . . Gil Coan, the Washington Senators ballyhooed rookie outfielder, has flopped so badly in training that the other day he drove over to Cocoa, Fla., to ask his old coach, Bert Niehoff, what was wrong.

Although it looks likely that a U. S.-Britain challenge golf match will be arranged this summer, it won't be for the $600 side bet Britain's Dick Burton offered. Byron Nelson, or Ben Hogan could collect that much for finishing third or fourth in one of the weekly opens.

Speaking Out.

One of those sudden silences fell over the Garden basketball crowd the other night just in time for everyone to hear referee Pat Kennedy shout: "Leave me have that play." . . . And when the Yanks' Tony Sabol failed to complete a double play in an exhibition, umpire Bill Summers explained: "He didn't touch the bag close enough to it."

Colored Player Will Strut Stuff With Los Angeles

Los Angeles, March 22 —(AP) —Kenny Washington, all-time Negro football great, will have a chance to strut his stuff this fall for Los Angeles Rams, defending champions of the National Football League.

Washington was signed yesterday by general manager Charles F. (Chile) Walsh after the Rams purchased his contract from the Hollywood Bears of the Pacific Coast pro league.

The first member of his race contracted by a National League club in 13 years, Washington assumes a position in football similar to that of his former teammate at Ucla, Jackie Robinson, Negro infielder signed by Brooklyn Dodgers for their Montreal farm.

However, Washington has precedent on his side. In its infancy, the National League had such Negro standouts as Fritz Pollard at Akron, Ink Williams, Bob Marshall, Sol Butler and Duke Slater at Rock Island. Slater, one of the all-time tackle titans, later starred for Chicago Cardinals. The Cardinals, incidentally, had the last previous colored player — halfback Joe Lillard of Oregon in 1933.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, March 23 (AP) — Arthur William Brown, who has been drawing beautiful women for more than 40 years, has entered the current controversy over whether women should return to short hair.

"Long hair is more exciting, more 'sex-citing,'" said Brown, who is here to create poster art for "Claudia and David."

"This short feathercut bob is nothing but a plot conceived by the milliners and beauticians.

"Cutting women's hair is Samson and Delilah in reverse," he said. "The secret of Samson's strength was in his long hair, and that applies to women too. Their strength and beauty lies in their long hair as well."

Brown even ventured a list of the outstanding long-hairs in Hollywood. They are Gene Tierney, Joan Blondell, Paulette Goddard and Lauren Bacall. All were models for Brown except Bacall. "She was too lanky."

This is Hollywood.. The tourists fitting their shoes into the footprints of the stars in the Grauman's Chinese forecourt.... Senior teams contending for the Allan Cup and the Canadian senior hockey championship were reduced to 10 today after Pembroke Lumber Kings eliminated Ottawa QMG. The Lumber Kings, Ottawa district senior favorites, beat the QMG team 4-1 at Cornwall last night to win their best-of-three play-off in two straight games. Pembroke now opens the Ottawa district finals against Cornwall Falcons on Saturday night.

Two other senior play-offs made progress last night. Hamilton Tigers, the all-Ontario champs, walloped the Saint John Beavers 8-1 in the opening game at Saint John of their eastern quarter-final. The second game will be played at Saint John Saturday. At Trail, B.C., the New Westminster Royals beat Trail Smoke Eaters 6-5, in the first of the best-of-five British Columbia senior final. The second game will be played Saturday.

KINGSTON SAINTS BEATEN

Oshawa, Ont., March 23 —(CP) —A jittery band of junior B. Ontario Hockey Association players from Kingston went down to defeat 8-2 here last night at the hands of Scarborough Rangers in the first game of a home-and-home series. Scarborough rattled in seven goals without a reply in the first frame before their opponents settled down to make a game of it.

Kingston Saints outscored the Rangers 2-1 in the last 2 frames, allowing them but one more goal in the second stanza. De. Laat counted three goals and an assist for the victors. Kingston goals were by Shepherd and Ferguson.

Little Benny's Note Book

The census taker was on our block today, and when he came to our house I ran in to tell ma, saying, He's here, ma, are you going to tell him your right age if he asks you?

I certainly am not, I told your father I wouldn't and that's my ferm intention, ma said, and I said, Anyways, he's at the front door.

There's no reason why I should stand facing him in a glaring light when the question of age comes up, ma said. Go and ask him to come in and sit down, she said.

Which I did, and ma fixed her hair and came in the living room to talk to him. Being a little census taker with a big envelope full of papers, saying to ma, I wont take up much of your time, I'd just like to know how many persons live in the house, and their ages.

Oh I see, well there's just my busband William P. Potts, and myself, and my son Benny, ma said, and the census taker said, And their ages?

Oh yes, their ages, ma said Mr. Potts is 47 and Benny is nine, and as for myself, I'm just 40, not quite, she said, and the census taker put his pencil down and his eyebrows up, saying, Forty, did you say?

Yes I did, is that such a serprising age? ma said, and the census taker said, It is for you.

Well, really, I mean really, ma said, and a census taker said, If you had told me you were 35, even then I'd have thought you were adding it on for reasons of your own, but forty, well, I cant believe it.

Oh, I see what you mean, oh, that's nice of you, I'm sure, ma said, and the census taker said, Not at all, I'm sorry to of disterbed you.

Not in the least, if all census takers were as pleasant and agreeable as you I'd be a greater beleever in public ownership, ma said.

And she went to the front door with him still smiling happy.

"DINA CASHMAN"

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

CHAPTER 11

There was a shocked little ripple of relished laughter from the circle that had more or less unconsciously grouped itself about the two.

"I never liked her, really," Rogers countered. And again there was a laugh.

"She wasn't very nice," Aline said with a dangerously quiet smile.

"I think everyone knew it but herself!" the man suggested sweetly. "You know how it is."

"Indeed I know how it is, Toppy." Alice finished the exchange on so significant a note that suddenly the laughter went out of it, and as she turned superbly away Dina knew that she had scored. Toppy! That had probably been her little pet name for him. Rogers might join in the laugh that greeted Aline's latest hit, but Dina saw the shadow that crossed his face.

A moment later in her triumphant progress Aline Havens came abruptly upon the girl in the flower-splashed gown, stopped short. Rogers introduced them.

"Miss Cashman, Aline. Geraldine, this is Mrs. Havens."

Dina rose; her eyes were wide and dark, her face pale. She looked younger even than her years, startled, shy, naive.

"Geraldine what, darling?" Aline demanded.

"Cashman."

"Oh?" Aline looked at him, looked at Dina for explanations. "Do I know her; do I know her people?" she asked.

"I don't think so. She's by way of being a ward of mine for the time being," Rogers said.

"A ward? Staying with you? But how very nice," Aline commented sweetly.

"Not staying with me. No; I'm under orders to send her home at half-past ten," Rogers answered amiably. "Was it half-past ten, Geraldine?" he asked.

"About then," the girl confirmed it simply.

"Although, since that perfumed little garbage barrel you call your mind jumped so quickly at conclusions, Aline," the man added. "I may say that I think Bucket would be equal to the situation even if Miss Cashman were my house guest."

"In school?" Aline asked Dina after an exchange of some low-toned pleasantries at Rogers expense, upon the part of one or two of the onlookers, that she did not follow and at which everyone laughed maliciously.

"No."

"Just visiting California?"

It was cross-examination; he had warned her it would come. But surprisingly Dina found herself rather enjoying it.

"No. Not visiting," she answered thoughtfully and slowly.

"Try the red-hot pincers, Aline," Rogers said. "Try the iron maiden. You can make her talk!"

Dina turned dutiful eyes toward him.

"Should I talk?"

Rogers smiled; he came over to stand beside her. Aline had sunk gracefully into the chair Dina had vacated, and the girl was standing before her as if under inspection. But to have the man join her changed the situation and gave her the advantage again.

"You know very well you shouldn't talk," he told her.

"I seem to feel mystery and intrigue in the air," Aline said. "You're not Mata Hari, I suppose?" she said lazily to Dina.

Dina had seen Mati Hari in a movie. But she wasn't quite sure of the answer to this, and her startled eyes went to Rogers with an effect better than anything for which he might have hoped.

"No," he answered. "She's not Mata Hari."

"Come over here and talk to me, Miss Cashman," old Mrs. Prince said authoritatively at this point. She patted the sofa seat beside her with a puffy, ringed hand. "I like pretty people," she added. "Tell me all about yourself!"

This was a large order and infinitely alarming to Dina. But she had been bred in the hard school of having to please marketing women; she knew instantly what was Mrs. Prince's favorite topic of conversation and could find her way to it.

"They're beautiful," she said as she sat down.

The old lady's eyes followed Dina's to the onyx and pearl bracelet that encircled her soft, old, fat arm.

"They're old-fashioned," she said. "But I won't have 'em changed. They were my mother's."

"Oh, I wouldn't change them!" Dina protested. "Because what would you get for them?" she was going to add. Fortunately she stopped in time.

"Everybody's always for having everything reset," Mrs. Prince complained. "I think it's ridiculous. My mother was a Belknap of Virginia; she was raised like a princess. She had a young mammy when she was nothing but a baby, and that same mammy—Mammy Sula, they called her; I remembr her well—was with my mother when she closed her eyes. There wasn't a day of my mother's life—"

After about ten minutes she paused for breath, and Dina said respectfully: "It sounds like a book."

"I could give you stories—wish I had time to write 'em— my cousin Missy-Lou Cremartie's just had a book published—calls it "Faithful to the Gray," said Mrs. Prince.

Again Dina listened. She could have gone on thankfully listening for hours. It was so safe, sitting here on the wide divan and letting the dinner party ebb and flow about her!

A man or two joined them — one a very old man who listened attentively to everything old Mrs. Prince said and now and then commented with a reminiscent dry chuckle and an appreciative "Remember it perfctly. Lily!" The other was the vapid-looking youth who was shortly to marry Miss Mary Louise Ledyard.

"Geraldine, will you sit at the head?" Rogers said as they went out to dinner. Dina gave him a glance of wild appeal, but she had no choice. He sat at one end of the long table, and she found herself enthroned opposite to him.

Fortunately for her, the man on her right assumed immediate control of the conversation. He was an impeccably handsome and well-groomed person of perhaps 50 whose life was spent on the polo field, at the bridge table, at formal dinners, on the golf course or tennis courts, at Palm Beach or at Easthampton as the season indicated.

He knew a great many famous persons in society, in New York's literary and dramatic circle, and in Hollywood, and he had a great many delightful anecdotes of them to relate—all of them flattering, kindly, and innocuous.

Dina need feed him only the compliment of her bright-eyed interest and an occasional "Oh, tell me about her!" to keep him content and avoid any of the silence she so dreaded. He was rapturously describing the dove shooting at Pasa Robles when the woman on his other side suddenly engrossed him by the simple method of saying, "Reggie, stop talking to Miss Cashman and pay some attention to me. After all you and I were compromised once, at Violet's, remember? Remember how awful that was? That ought to give me some rights!"

Reggie almost instantly obeying this command, Dina found herself for a moment ignored; she leaned back in her enormous chair, surveyed the brilliant scene, and told herself that she would serve Rogers' purpose just as well in silence as in any other way. He had not asked her to make any of them like her.

"Are you trying to think of something to say? I am," said the man at her left. Dina turned with a quick smile and found him to be Andrew Havens, the bridegroom who was the quite unconscious cause of her being here at all.

"Well, I wasn't," she said; "but if you can't, I could try."

He laughed, and they brought their heads a little nearer.

"I'm really very shy," he confessed, "and I know the cure for it, too."

"I wish I did!" Dina said.

"I never get up courage to use it," the man continued. "It's just to get on top of itself, if you know what I mean. Just to say, "Oh heck, everyone's shy and someone has to talk!" Then you just rattle along saying everything that comes into your head, and that starts the others, and the first thing you know they think you're a social asset."

"And what's that?" Dina asked, liking him at once.

"A social asset? A person everybody likes and invites places. Just from what I heard I should think that man on your other side was one."

"Mr. Tegbury? He might well be."

"Then you don't know him?"

"I've never met any of these people until tonight. Except Mr. Holland, of course."

"You haven't and I thought you knew them all and all the fathers and mothers knew yours."

"Oh, no!" Dina was conscious of a little inward shiver as she reflected upon the impression that the Cashman family would make should it suddenly be introduced into this stately dining room.

"I knew my wife didn't know you, for she took me aside before dinner and cross-examined me," Andrew Havens said simply. "She told me to find out all about you."

"You wouldn't find it very interesting," Dina told him. "Isn't she beautiful?" she asked, glancing down the table to look at Aline, exquisitely posed in a high-backed chair beside Rogers.

"Yes," the husband said, his eyes filled with adoration. "She is the most beautiful woman I've ever seen. And the lovely part of it is," he went on, "that inside, in her nature, in her heart, she is just as beautiful. Sweetness—you never saw anything like it! Servants adore her; she'll stop in the street to speak to some poor little waif of a child. She's had very little happiness in her life," he went on, his eyes shining, "and—and we're very happy now," he finished shyly.

"I think Mr Holland said you're staying at a place at Los Altos?"

"Back in the hills, yes; it's a friend's place. He's in the East. It's nearly up to the Skyline Boulevard. It was a farmhouse and barns when he took it; he's not done much to it. But now that the place has a mistress," Andrew said, his face glowing with anticipation, "we're going to do great things, build a terrace and have a grill—so that we can have our friends there."

"It sounds lovely," Dina commented, anxious only to keep the conversation flowing smoothly and avoid pitfalls.

"It's pretty rough now, especially for anyone like Aline," he explained apologetically. "She's always had a maid, you know. I get breakfasts," went on Andrew, "and carry her tray, and we picnic. We've only been home four days, but we'll get it all licked into shape pretty soon."

"You two are having much too nice a time," Aline said suddenly behind them and leaned over Andrew's shoulder to kiss the top of his head and lay her cheek against his temple for a second. "I had to come up here and ask you if you still loved me!"

"Aline, for heaven's sake, cut all this bridal-suite stuff!" a woman said.

"You're a complete idiot," Andrew said. He got up to escort her back to her place, and she looked about the company with her eloquent dove-blue eyes and said defiantly, "I don't care; he's the nicest person alive!"

When he came back to his seat Dina was talking with, or rather listening to the agreeable and courteous Reggie.

The Worker

The indoor worker is often over fatigued by the monotony of his work until it gets on his nerves and brings headaches, irritability, loss of sleep and indigestion.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma's toothake came back, and this morning at breakfist she said to pop, I've decided to keep my appointmint with the dentist after all, William. It will be a perfect test for my new powers of relaxation. I'm going to take my relaxation book with me to read while I'm waiting in his waiting room, and I may even read it while I'm sitting right there in the dentist chair, she said.

Meening her nervous book called Relaxation, the Key to Happiness, and tonight when pop came home ma said, William, it werked, it worked like a magical charm. I sat in that dentist chair as relaxed as a fallen snow flake while the dentist worked on me with his drills and goodness knows what all, and every werd in the book came true—I didn't feel any more pane than the man in the moon, she said.

Yee gods, you must of hipmotized yourself pop said, and ma said, Just to prove I'm not eggsagerating, I admit I did feel one sharp twinge, but I stuck to my original and relaxed like a proverbial jelly fish. I simply made my mind as blank as an empty vacuum and my mussels as limp as an abandoned rag, and dreamily told myself that where there is no mental or fizzical tension there can be no pane, and after that first twinge I felt as carefree and comfortable as if I was sitting in the Zipper Tea Room, she said.

For Peet sake the dentist must of given you a shot of novacaine, pop said. That was the stab you felt—the hypodermic needle, he said, and ma said, Oh dear, then that explains why the right side of my face still feels more dead than alive. Anyway, William, I dont care, it was a moral victory on my part, because otherwise I know I would of imagined he was herting me even though he wasn't so the principal is the same and I'm quite sattisfied, she said.

Then so am I, pop said.

Being the end of the subject.

Toronto Brokers Released on Bail After Arraignment

Toronto, March 23 (CP)— In the first prosecution recommended by the Ontario Securities Commission in its survey of securities selling practices in the province, two Toronto brokers, K. L. Morgan and Ed Dempsey, were arraigned before Magistrate A. L. Tinker yesterday on charges of conspiracy to defraud and false advertising and remanded until March 29 on bail of $5,000.

A warrant is out for a third Toronto brokerage member, W. A. Dempsey, charged with conspiracy. Dempsey is believed to be at Favorable Lake, 250 miles north of Kenora, Ont., and Ontario Provincial Police have been instructed to arrest him.

Police stated the spring breakup may delay Dempsey's arraignment. Airplanes provide Favorable Lake with its only transportation link with the outside world and at present planes cannot land on either skis or floats.

The licence of Morgan, Dempsey and Company was suspended early this month after sharp fluctuations in Habitant Gold Mine shares brought inquiry by the Securities Commission.

Ontario Moves To Eliminate Tax On Indemnity

Toronto, March 23 (CP)— A possible new ground for conflict between the Dominion and Ontario, with far-reaching implications for perhaps all Canadian legislative bodies, loomed today following a statement by Attorney-General Blackwell that the province intends to proceed with a bill classifying sessional indemnities as tax-free expense allowances.

In carefully-chosen language, Mr. Blackwell told the Legislature yesterday that too much attention should not be paid newspaper reports quoting Ottawa officials as casting doubt on the province's authority to carry out such legislation. Then he added that if the Federal government seeks to interfere with the bill under existing tax provisions, "this government will carry the issue to the highest court in the Empire."

The bill is in the form of an amendment to the Legislative Assembly Act making the $2,000 indemnity to private legislature members a non-taxable allowance payable on a yearly basis and Mr. Blackwell said that if it is enacted, "I hope the Dominion Government will consider its responsibility to the members of provincial legislatures and municipal councils...and will discharge the responsibility that goes with the power to enact legislation to all taxpayers within the same comparable group."

He then outlined the hardships facing out-of-town members whose expenses and income taxation under the present system of indemnities might leave him with "somewhere between $250 and $850" for the year. This was in contrast to such persons as commercial travellers and labor executives, whose expenses could be deducted.

Apply With Equal Force

In justifying Ontario's bill, given first reading last Wednesday, Mr. Blackwell noted that the Federal government last fall made provision for payment of $2,000 in expenses to members of Parliament and Senate, in addition to their $4,000 indemnity. Mr. Blackwell quoted statements made by Prime Minister Mackenzie King at that time and said that "if these statements of principle and policy (by Mr. King) are right in relations to the members of the Dominion parliament, they apply with equal force to the members of the legislature."

This contention, scoupled with Mr. Blackwell's reference to the Dominion's responsibility for legislation affecting all taxpayers "within the same comparable group," appeared to indicate the Attorney-General hopes legislation similar to that passed by the Federal government will be authorized for all Provincial legislatures and municipal councils.

Must Be Passed On

Mr. Blackwell's hour-long address provided "the highlight of an unusually eventful Friday sitting marked by some new legislation and a statement by Premier Drew that some school boards and municipal councils are misusing provincial educational grants. The government, he said, pays about $33,000,000 in grants annually to defray 50 per cent of all Ontario educational costs, but "only a fraction of that" is being passed on to taxpayers.

The boards and councils, which he did not identify, were embarked on "spending sprees" which denied to the taxpayer the benefits intended by the grants.

Given first reading were bills to the name of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway to Ontario Northern Railway, a move designed to end confusion with the Texas and New Orleans Railway which has the same abbreviated "T. and N. O."; and to provide collective bargaining and exclusive representation in the case of an agency chosen by a majority of workers in any plant.

The railway bill was introduced by the Premier and the labor bill by R. H. Carlin (CCF-Sudbury).

BLUE BABY ARRIVES IN BOSTON

Mrs. Frank Kidd, of Peterborough, Ontario, is shown with her 2½-year-old son, Jimmy, as she arrived in Boston after an overnight train ride to take her child to the Massachusetts General Hospital for treatment as a "blue baby." Whether or not Jimmy will undergo the famed Blalock operation depends on the results of a period of observation, hospital authorities said.

L.C.B. Shows Large Profit

Toronto, March 23 (CP)—Value of spirits, wines and beers sold through the Liquor Control Board of Ontario totalled $102,885,847 in the fiscal year ending March 31, 1945 compared with $95,819,513 in the previous fiscal year, it was shown yesterday in the annual report of the Liquor Control Board tabled in the legislature by Premier Drew.

Of this, the sum of $18,712,616 was paid to the Provincial Treasurer on account of profits, licence fees and so on. The Board also paid to the various municipalities 20 per cent of fees received from hotel authorities totalling $335,860. This was distributed to 315 municipalities. In addition, the Dominion government received $14,219,549 in customs and excise duties and sales and excise taxes on spirits, wines and imported beers purchased by the Board. Also paid to the Dominion for malt duties and taxes on domestic beers and wines sold in Ontario was the sum of about $22,000,000 making a total of about $36,200,000.

Grand total of revenue payments received y Dominion, Provincial and municipal governments was in excess of $55,000,000. This was exclusive of Dominion and Provincial corporation and municipal realty taxes paid by the respective manufacturers and authority holders.

Film Council Seeks Extra Funds To Buy Projector, Screen

At the regular monthly meeting of the Belleville and District Film Council, held at the Corby Public Library, it was disclosed that slightly over $400 had been contributed toward the Council's drive to raise funds for purchasing a projector and screen. A further $300 is still required to reach the objective, and an intensified campaign for contributions and memberships was planned.

The chairman, Inspector of Public Schools Macklem asked all present to do their utmost to help publicize the work of the Council, which, he believed, was not generally understood in the district "It may not be realized," he said, "that a modern sound projector, operator and a considerable number of good films are available at the library to any organization at a very nominal cost."

The Council's latest acquisition, "West Wind", a color film of 20 minutes duration, has been well received by the various member organizations. It deals with the work of "Tommy" Thompson, whose promising career as a great Canadian artist was so tragically cut off after only four years serious painting. The scenes in Algonquin Park, and the parallels drawn in his stark, powerful paintings, are very impressive.

Several teachers present emphasized the value of the Council's facilities in the educational aspect of motion pictures. The low cost of visual education when advantage is taken of membership in the Council has been a factor in its adoption in rural schools.

Bateman Motors $5; City Council $100; County Council $100; C.N.R. War Veterans' Association $25; Garage Men's Association $10; Keyes Supply Co. $5; Garage Supply $10; Kiwanis Club $100; Motor Mechanics Dept. Collegiate $5; South Hastings Educational Association $5; Trudeau Motors $5; Y's Men's Club $26; Mrs. O. G. Godden .50.

In addition, the following organizations have become members of the Council: Baptist Church, Centre St. Church, Christ Church, Consolidated Co., Electric Maintenance Club, Energetic Club (Holloway St. Church), Engine Men's Educational Club, Good Companions Club (Tabernacle Church) Holloway St. Church Young People's, Knights of Columbus, O.S.D., Plainfield W.I., Queen Alexandra Home and School, St. John's Mission, St. Michael's, S. Hastings Educational Association, St. Thomas' Men's Club, Young Women's Guild, S.S. 2 Ameliasburg, Albert College, Queen Mary Home and School.

U.S. Decrees Same Dress for Army Officers, Privates

Washington, March 23, (AP)—Officers' uniforms are on their way out of the United States army.

By June 30, 1948, the highest colonels and the lowest privates will be garbed in identical fashion, except for insignia.

The War Department's' order decreeing this comes at a time when criticism is still being heard from American ex-servicemen about the so-called "officer caste system" and it privileges.

There has been no hint yet that the navy contemplates a similar move. That service is experimenting with modernizing the traditional seaman's uniform, with its bell bottom trousers. Changes in officers' uniforms also are being studied. However, no final decisions have been reached in either case.

Under the new order, issued last night, all personnel will wear battle jackets and trousers of the same olive drab shade now used in non-commissioned men's clothing. For Summer and tropical wear, the duty uniform for all ranks will continue to be the familiar khaki, with the addition of a battle jacket in tropical worsted material.

Ottawa to Study Legislature's Act

Ottawa, March 22 (CP)—Revenue Department officials today were hesitant to offer opinions on the action of the Ontario Legislature in classifying its members' $2,000 sessional indemnity as a tax-free expense allowance. They said they wanted an opportunity to study the Ontario legislation fully before voicing an opinion.

Ordinary expense allowances, such as those given business men, are only exempt when the expenses are detailed. A flat expense or living allowance is taxable.

The Federal government, parent of the income tax legislation, made a $2,000 allowance to members of the Commons tax-free, however. Possibility was seen that Federal legislation might be necessary, if the Ontario members were to have their $2,000 free of tax.

Newcastle-on-Tyne, England—(CP) — James Griffiths, minister of national insurance, had asked for an investigation into the costs of funerals. "I am certain there is a good deal of exploitation," he said.

Study of Wild Life Draws Wide Appeal

Winnipeg, March 23 (CP)—Along the waterfowl flyway of the American continent millions of game birds fly each year to breeding grounds in northern Canada, making it a paradise for naturalists and hunters.

Great flocks of ducks and geese come from the south following the central, Mississippi and Atlantic flyways to the breeding grounds. The paths lead directly through Manitoba.

Sportsmen, conservationists and students of natural history all have displayed interest in the game birds and animals here and to supply them with data the Travel and Publicty Bureau of the Manitoba Department of Mines and Resources has published a 47-page, color-plated booklet. It is titled 'Game Birds and Animals of Manitoba."

Illustrated in natural colors, it carries descriptions of the famed Canada goose, the aristocrat of the migratory bird world; the brilliant plumaged wood duck, pheasant and mallard, the teal and canvas-back, a table delicacy.

The forest regions of Manitoba provide big game hunting, and the booklet gives detailed descriptions of moose, white-tailed deer, mule deer, elk, barren grounds caribou, and woodland caribou.

The foreward to the booket is by Resources Minister J. S. McDiarmid who explains there has been a marked increase in the study of wild life in the last two decades.

"Our young citizens who will be tomorrow's sportsmen, natural scientists and conservationists may find in this book an introduction to the fascinating world of wild life that awaits their exploration," he says.

Stressing the need for conservation, he added:

"If, in indicating the extent of our game resources it also plants firmly in the reader's mind the resolve that these resources must not be wantonly destroyed, that on the contrary, they must be protected, maintained and wisely used, it will have made a significant contribution to the life of the province."

Capital Closeups

By JACK BRAYLEY

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, March 23 (CP)— A survey of the first week of serious oratory in the Commons showed there is some substance in the observation of Joseph Burton, veteran C.C.F. member for Humboldt in Saskatchewan, that wartime opposition leniency is over and "the gloves are off."

Mr. Burton, tall and spare, said the opposition had generally refrained from severe criticism during the last six years for fear of hindering the war effort. But the war was over and so was the "truce."

Acidly discussing the niceties in last week's formal speeches by the mover and seconder of the Speech from the Throne, he declared—amid some lusty desk thumping in his own section:

"In my humble opinion it would have been much more appropriate and to the point to move an address congratulating His Excellency (the Governor-General) upon the high sense of duty which caused him to read a speech that displayed such a bankruptcy of ideas on the part of his ministers."

He scolded Agriculture Minister Gardiner for what he called the Minister's attempt to take all the credit for last year's bumper wheat crops. He was old fashioned enough, he said, to give some of the credit to the Lord for furnishing the good weather.

Patches: One of the notable things about the honor guard furnished by the permament force Royal Canadian Regiment for the departure of the Governor-General the other day, was that the overseas men displayed no battle patches on their shoulders. Their only distinction was their campaign ribbons. It was explained the men were interim force and permanent force volunteers, coming from various overseas divisions and having the right to wear a variety of patches.

In order to make the guard uniform, the patches were ruled out but it is understood that patches soon will be dispensed with in all permanent force regiments.

Iranian Issue Discussion is Delayed Until Tuesday, U.N. Leaders Decide; U.S. May Insist on Report if Agreement Made

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York, March 25 (CP) — United Nations leaders decided today to limit the opening meeting of the Security Council meeting to formalities, including a message from President Truman. All discussion of the Iranian issue will be delayed until tomorrow.

The agreement came after the United States group, headed by James F. Byrnes, Secretary of State, and Edward R. Stettinius, permanent U.N.O. representative, received word that a delay of one day was agreeable to the Russian delegation under Ambassador Andrei Gromyko.

The development gave additional time for the American, British, Iranian and Russian delegation here to receive official information of the reported Soviet agreement to pull the Red army out of Iran, and also to get instructions from their governments as to how each should proceed on the case when it does come up before the council.

U.S. May Insist Upon Report

The one sure move thus far seen by officials here was that the United States definitely would insist on a report from both Russia and Iran on whether agreement has been made, and attempt to put behind any agreement, assuming is is approved here, the full prestige of the council to assure its enforcement.

The delay came as clearing international skies brought hope that the first North American meeting of the Security Council would not have to face the more serious ramifications of the Iranian issue.

The council meets late this afternoon to hear a welcoming address from President Truman read by James Byrnes, Secretary of State, and a welcome to the State by New York's Governor Thomas Dewey.

The career diplomats and their advisers representing the 11 countries on the council will meet in an impressively arranged chamber in Hunter College gymnasium, the Bronx.

Forecast of Life-or-Death Test of League

Memories of the fiery exchanges that marked the council's first meeting in London earlier this year, and the threatening situation created by the Iranian problem, prompted many to forecast that the session opening today would be the life-or-death test of the young world league.

But last minute reports that Russia belatedly was fulfilling her pact with the British and Americans to move her troops out of Iran, brought hope that discussion on that ominous situation might be averted or postponed.

The council is composed of the United Kingdom, United States, Russia, France and China as permanent members, and the following elected members: The Netherlands, Poland, Australia, Mexico, Brazil and Egypt.

It is generally agreed that a success or failure of the U.N.O., rests on the continued close relations and sincerity of purpose of the Big Three—United Kingdom, United States and Russia.

Crisis of First Rate Importance

Thus the situation created by Russia's failure to withdraw her troops from Iran on March 2, in accordance with agreement, the appeal from Iran to the Security Council and the American move to have the Iranian appeal made first item of business on the agenda here, created a crisis of first-class importance.

There will be many other knotty problems facing the council but none of them with the potential threat to the organization and to the peace of the world, presented by the reported Soviet military operations in Northern Iran.

The council is meeting in the temporary quarters which will be its home until a permanent site is erected in the nearby Greenwich area on the New York-Connecticut border.

All 51 members of the United Nations are entitled to have observers sit in on the council sessions most of which will be open also to the press.

Canada's observers will be Charles Ritchie of the External Affairs Department, and possibly, in the early stages, L. B. Pearson, ambassador to the United States, now attending the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration council meeting in Atlantic City.

Third Interim Report Expected On Wednesday

Ottawa, March 25 (CP) — The third interim report of the Royal Commission investigating espionage activities in Canada probably will be made public Wednesday, it was learned today.

It will name the five men still held without charge at the R.C.M.P.'s suburban Rockcliffe barracks and they—according to procedure followed in the two previous reports—will be charged the same day in magistrate's courts in whatever locality their offences allegedly occurred.

In the wake of the interim report, the two-man Royal Commission will turn in a roundup report on the over-all case as it now stands. This report now is expected a short time after the third interim report.

It will contain the commission's recommendations for future conduct of the case. For the first time it probably will divulge whether the espionage inquiry—which already has resulted in 14 arrests in Canada and one in Britain—can be expected to turn into new channels.

As it now stands, only one of the 15 detainees was not a government employee at the time of the alleged crime. That one is Fred Rose, Labor-Progressive member of parliament for Montreal-Cartier, whose case is unfolding in a Montreal court.

Any Future War Over at One Blow, Yamashita Forecast in Death Cell

Washington, March 25 (AP)—Gen. Yamashita, in a death-cell prediction, asserted any future major war would be won at one aerial blow, the Infantry Journal reported today.

Before he was hanged Feb. 23 in the Philippines as a war criminal, the "Tiger of Malaya" was quoted in the semi-official military publication as stating the atomic bomb and Allied long range bombers had convinced him that ground forces had virtually lost their role in warfare.

In a 1,500-word statement of his views as a professional soldier, which the Journal said was dictated in his death cell, Yamashita predicted any future major war would be settled from the air with a single blow by atom bombs.

Saying the strategic objective remains of destroying an enemy's will to fight by knocking out industrial areas, ports and railways, Yamashita continued:

"The war will be over, to all intents and purposes, even if enemy forces are still in existence, still unengaged and still undefeated. They will be dependent on supplies which they can never receive.

"And the employment of our own ground forces will be necessary only if those doomed enemy combat forces continue to wage their hopeless fight to the end."

As a general principle, Yamashita concluded that "in the future any country which possesses the largest terrain in area and gains the highest technical progress, that country will be in a highly enviable position.

"In fact, it will be almost unbeatable."

COUNSEL OBJECTS TO SECRET TREATY DISCLOSURE

Prevents Lawyer For Rudolf Hess Reading Into Trial Excerpts Of German-Russo Pact

By NOLAND NORGAARD

Nuernberg, March 25 (AP) — An objection by the Russian prosecutor prevented counsel for Rudolf Hess from reading into the court record today excerpts from what he called a secret treaty concluded by Germany and Russia three days before the Nazi attack on Poland.

The lawyer asserted before the international military tribunal that the alleged treaty fixed spheres of influence in Eastern Europe and that details were contained in an affidavit submitted by Dr. Friedrich Gaus, former German Ambassador to Moscow.

Soviet prosecutor R. A. Rudenko jumped up to object to the reading of "surprise documents" before they were translated and submitted to the prosecution.

"I don't know what kind of documents he is talking about," Rudenko said. "It sounds like hearsay to me."

When Chief Justice Sir Geoffrey Lawrence sustained the objection, Hess' lawyer countered with:

"In that case I must ask permission to call Soviet Foreign

RUSSIA PROMISES TO HAVE TROOPS OUT OF IRAN SOON

Announcement Draws Approval From Unofficial Sources in Great Britain

London, March 25 (CP) — A Russian announcement that Red army troops are withdrawing from Iran drew approval today from unofficial British sources, who said the statement, if borne out by actual performance, would be a satisfactory answer to Britain's recent protest to Moscow.

The announcement was made last night by the Moscow radio, which said:

"Evacuation of Soviet troops from the regions of Meshed, Shahrud and Samnan, which started March 2, already is completed.

"The evacuation of remaining Soviet troops started March 24, according to an agreement with the Iranian government. The Soviet command of Soviet troops in Iran believes that the complete evacuation of Soviet troops will be concluded within five to six weeks if nothing unforeseen happens."

A dispatch from Tehran, filed approximately nine hours before the broadcast was recorded here, quoted Premier Ahmed Qavam of Iran as saying that "up to the present we have no official reports of Soviet troop movements out of Iran."

Qavam denied reports that direct negotiations were still under way with Russia and indicated that the next moves were up to Russia or to the security council of the United Nations which meets today in New York.

The Premier had indicated Saturday, however, that the withdrawal might come soon.

A delayed dispatch filed Friday from Tehran quoted a highly responsible source there as saying Russia troops "in great numbers" continued to pass through Tabriz, capital of semi-autonomous Iranian Azerbaijan, toward the Iranian towns of Mianeh to the southeast and Mayanduab and Khoi to the west.

The general feeling here was that the withdrawal announcement—coupled with an earlier Russian statement that Red army troops would evacuate Manchuria by April 30 and Premier Stalin's assertion to the Associated Press that he had faith in the United Nations—would have a beneficial effect on the security council meeting.

The Moscow radio, in another broadcast last night, announced that Andrei Gromyko, Soviet Ambassador to the United States, had been appointed permanent Russian representative on the security council.

Death Sentence For Two Germans On Slaying Charge

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Aurich, Germany, March 25 — (CP Cable) — The R.C.A.F. war crimes court sitting here late today sentenced both Wilhelm Junge and Johann Schumacher to death by shooting for the murder of an unnamed R.C.A.F. prisoner of war at Oberweier, Bavaria.

The sentence followed the conviction of Junge, former burgomaster and Nazi party leader of Oberweier, and Schumacher, policeman-soldier of the town, on charges of being concerned in the killing of the Canadian in July, 1944, after the flier had parachuted from his blazing R.C.A.F. bomber.

GEN. MIHAILOVIC REPORTED HELD AS WAR CRIMINAL

Hunted for Nearly Two Years, Arrested in Yugoslav Hills

By WILLIAM B. KING

Belgrade, March 25 (AP) — Gen. Draja Mihailovic, once hailed as a guerilla hero in the fight against the Nazis, was officially reported under arrest as a traitor and war criminal following his capture by Yugoslav authorities.

Interior Minister Alexander Rankovic announced to a cheering parliament yesterday that the wartime leader of the Chetniks, who had been hunted for nearly two years in the Yugoslav hills by Marshal Tito's forces, had been seized March 13.

Rankovic did not say where the capture occurred, but it was rumored that Mihailovic, King Peter's former War Minister, was trapped near Vishegrad, near the Serbian-Bosnian border.

An official radio broadcast said the General was captured in a mountain cave guarded by only 11 men of his forces, which once were estimated to total as many as 200,000.

The radio account quoted Rankovic as saying:

"These (11) men were all that was left after his disastrous defeat of May, 1945. There is no doubt Mihailovic was the last hope of all reactionaries..working, openly or secretly, against the Yugoslav federal republic."

Dr. Ivan Subasic, former Foreign Minister, said last May that Mihailovic "will be shot" when captured. He added that the Chetnik leader would be given a "fair trial, but we have enough legal evidence to convict him."

The 49-year-old bespectacled Serbian guerilla leader organized the first Yugoslav resistance bands in the hills after the Germans streamed into Yugoslavia in April, 1941. He was promoted to General in December, 1941 and a month later, King Peter appointed him Minister of War, Navy and Air Force.

The Soviet Union accused him in February, 1943, of collaborating with the Axis. Later, Tito, leftist partisan and now Yugoslav Premier, accused him of collaboration and of inciting Bulgarians to fight the Partisans.

The giant generator will measure 77 feet in length and 17 feet in width.

CURTAILMENT USE OF GRAIN MAY BE RECOMMENDED

Report UNRRA May Ask Less to Be Used In Making Liquor And In Feeding

By ALEX SINGLETON

Atlantic City, March 25—(AP)—The important inner council of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration today was reported to recommend sharp curtailment of the use of grain for making liquor or for fattening hogs and chickens on the grounds that it can be better used to feed the world's hungry.

This was the first major development to emerge from a tightly-deadlocked session called to thresh out a demand from money-poor countries dependent on U.N.R.R.A. relief for an "equal break" with countries holding financial reserves on the market for available surpluses.

Still to be decided was the question whether or not U.N.R.R.A. should recommend world-wide rationing of commodities in short supplies — particularly fats, cereals, and oils — as recommended by director general Herbert Lehman.

Meanwhile, there was no decision on whether U.N.R.R.A. would decide which way it would go on three questions as a basis for future allocation of the world's available food supplies, namely:

1. On the basis of the length of occupation and the amount of destruction.
2. Whether it should depend on the eating standards before the war.
3. Establishment of a minimum caloric scale as a basis for allocating food.

Synopsis: Light scattered showers have occurred over Ontario, though in other districts of Eastern Canada the weather has continued fair. It has been a little milder in Ontario and Quebec with moderate temperature over the prairie provinces.

Moscow Ordered Zabotin to Obtain Methods, Drawings

Messages Read at Court Hearing of Fred Rose

Montreal, March 25 (CP) — Russia's interest in United States and Brazilian troop movements in Europe last August and her anxiety at the same time to obtain full information about the atomic bomb were shown in evidence today at the preliminary hearing of Fred Rose, charged with communicating information to Russia.

The evidence was in the forms of telegrams from Moscow to Col. Zabotin, former military attache to the Russian embassy at Ottawa.

One telegram asked the location in Europe of the 1st. Brazil Infantry and these U.S. formations: 16th. Army Armored Corps, 6th. and 18th. Armored Corps. Location and setup of United States occupation troops in Germany was also sought.

Marked "Urgent."

The telegram was dated August 11, 1945, signed "The Director (Chief of the First Intelligence Division at Moscow)." The telegram was marked "urgent."

The telegram regarding the atomic bomb was dated August 22, 1945, and read:

"Take measures to organize the obtaining of documentary materials of the atomic bomb: the technological process, drawings, calculations."

Still another telegram, dated August 14, 1945, sought information about "the method and technological processes of the production VV and the powders."

Draws Strong Objection

Introduction of the telegram referring to troop formations brought a particularly strong objection from defence counsel Joseph Cohen, K.C.

Ignor Gouzenko, former cipher clerk in the Russian Embassy at Ottawa, testifying for the third straight day of the hearing, said the telegram had been decoded by a new clerk, Koulakov, and not by himself.

F. Philippe Brais, K.C., special prosecutor, said the reason he introduced Koulakov's name at all was that eventually "all" were to be named as co-conspirators in the alleged spying activities.

"Then if the cipher clerks are to be named co-conspirators, I contend that Gouzenko himself is a co-conspirator; is that so?" said Mr. Cohen.

"Quite", said Mr. Brais, his face lightly flushed—"if you can prove it."

Mr. Cohen turned to Judge Rene Theberge and said the defence would accept introduction of the telegram bearing in mind that the prosecution had admitted that Gouzenko himself was a co-conspirator.

The morning session ended at 12.35 p.m., and Mr. Cohen asked that cross-examination of Gouzenko be postponed until tomorrow. The court agreed. This afternoon's session was scheduled for 2.15 p.m.

Alleged Activity Referred to Alleged activity of Fred Rose as a recruiting agent for the Russian espionage was referred to in a telegram to intelligence headquarters at Moscow from the Soviet military attache at Ottawa.

The telegram was described by Igor Gouzenko as a reply to a previous telegram to Col. Zabotin, former military attache to the Embassy at Ottawa, dated Aug. 14, 1945, from the inspector of the first intelligence headquarters in Moscow requesting information on the method and the "technological production of munitions and explosives vv."

Col. Zabotin's reply stated "the tasks will be detailed to Gray, Bacon and the professor through Debouz. The professor is still on command. Debouz will meet him at the end of the month."

Gouzenko then identified the persons named in code as Gerson, Halperin, Dr. Boyer and Rose.

When Gouzenko said "Gerson" it was the first time during the hearing this name has been linked with the cover name "Gray."

The others are Prof. Israel Halperin of Queen's University, Dr. Raymond Boyer, who was a chemistry professor at McGill University and a staff member of the national research council, and Rose.

Refers to Telegram

F. Philippe Brais, K.C., special prosecutor for the justice department, referred to a telegram addressed to the "director" at Moscow, submitted Saturday as evidence.

Mr. Brais quoted the following sentence: "Debouz obtained data from conversations with officers who had taken part on the western front."

Mr. Brais noted that the telegram was addressed to "director on number 8393."

Gouzenko said this meant "this telegram is an answer by Col. Zabotin to a telegram he had received from Moscow bearing the number 8393."

"Do you recall the contents of 8393?" asked Mr. Brais.

Joseph Cohen, K.C., defence counsel, objected, asking that either the telegraph be produced or that the question be phrased in another manner.

Mr. Brais said the telegram was unavailable, then asked Gouzenko "did you bring 8393 when you left the Russian Embassy?"

Gouzenko said no.

Objects to Manner

Mr. Cohen objected to the manner of the examination. He said Gouzenko pretended that for five months prior to his departure from the Soviet Embassy he picked up documents which he felt would be of value to expose the conspiracy he claims existed.

"He goes out of his way to pick out documents in which Fred Rose, under the pseudonym Debouz was mentioned. He brought the reply to 8393 but did not bring the original which might be either beneficial or harmful to my client ...We have witness' word only as to the telegram which might or might not be harmful to Rose. I submit this is hearsay evidence in that we must accept the recollection or honesty of the witness as to the contents of that telegram."

Mr. Brais said he would leave it to Mr. Cohen to cross-examine the witness if he desired.

Mr. Cohen said he would reserve this right.

Mr. Brais then produced a telegram from Moscow addressed to Grant (Zabotin). The telegram, signed "The Director" said:

"In the mail of 23/8/44 were received from you Gray's (Gerson's) two materials, the monthly reports on the research of separate technological questions in the field of production of war materials. On the basis of short and unrelated data it is impossible to judge the method and work of the Canadian and English production of war materials, powders and chemical materials. It is therefore desirable to obtain the following information:

Egyptian Men Call in Wife, Say 'Go' Three Times and They are Free Again

By HAL BOYLE

Cairo, March 25 (AP)— Divorce is easy for men in Egypt. They just call in the wife, say "go" to her three times and they are free men again.

But for the ladies it is no such simple matter.

"Here a woman not only can't say 'go'," one girl told me. "She can't even say 'come'."

Getting married to a man of her choice is of much more concern to the educated young Egyptian girl than how she will dispose of him later, if she decides to change her mind.

Meeting the man himself is the biggest problem in this land where courtship has many more barriers in its path than marriage.

Moslem girls sit in co-educational classes with men in the universities, but they can't meet them outside.

"We can't dance or go out on a date with strangers," one girl explained. "And all men are considered strangers to us except our brothers and our married cousins. Our social life consists of trips to cinemas and evenings at home."

Girls go to the movies in groups, never alone or with a boy friend. A girl usually can't even invite her boy friends to her home, because that would bring up the question of how she met him.

The telephone is playing a major role in breaking down these old standards, but a young man embarked on phone courtship can't simply ring up his girl at her home. If he did, her scandalized parents would refuse to call Fatima to the phone. So he has his sister do the calling and then he takes over. His girl in the meantime at her end of the line, has to keep up the pretence she is talking to his sister.

This manner of courting ties up a lot of wires. In 1930 the Egyptian government helped to make up a financial deficit by putting an overtime charge on phone conversations lasting more than three minutes. Love balanced the budget.

Elopement is practically unknown. Virtually no girl would marry against her parent's wishes.

The girls themselves feel that they have been born in an unhappy time for young love, when the old stern ways are bending under the impact of modernity but haven't been broken. They are freer than their mothers were, less free than their daughters will be.

The Bay of Quinte, in this part of the district at least, has shaken itself clear of its winter ice shackles.

The ice went out of that part of the bay west of the Bay Bridge over the weekend and clear water is reported as far as the eye can see "down-bay."

The Glenora - Adolphustown ferry started operations last week, denoting that ice obstacles in that section of the bay have disappeared.

A prize sow of a Wellington farmer presented fourteen squealing offspring to her owner, and still has her family intact.

Twin colts were born to a heavy draft mare down around Picton way, and Roger Parks of this city is at present the proud owner of eighteen Cairn terrier puppies, the offspring of more than one proud canine mother.

Junior Farmers Enjoy Trip Through Plants

From 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. they were entertained by the Quaker Oats Company. They were divided into four groups and were conducted through the various departments of the Quaker Oats plant. The boys were particularly interested in the manufacture of breakfast foods and also in the manufacture of mixed feed for the various classes of livestock.

The boys then visited Canada Packers where they judged five live bacon hogs under the supervision of Mr. James Turnbull, Dominion Swine Grader. Canada Packers gave the boys a complimentary luncheon at noon. Mr. Gordon Marshall presided over the luncheon. Mr. Elgin Senn was the guest speaker and gave the boys a very interesting talk on how to make a success of farming. Mr. Gordon Matthews, Manager of Canada Packers, Peterborough, also addressed the boys on why the price of hogs fluctuates.

On returning to the Canada Packers Plant after lunch, the boys examined the five carcasses from the hogs that had been judged alive in the morning. Mr. James Turnbull was also in charge of this demonstration. After this hog carcass demonstration the boys were conducted on a tour around the plant.

At 3:30 the party arrived at CHEX broadcasting station and were shown many intersting features of the station. At 4:05 a number of boys were interviewed by Mr. Don Nairn, Farm Commentator for CHEX. The broadcast was over at 4:30 and the boys were all agreed that they had had a very instrictive and interesting day in Peterborough.

The executive of Thurlow township Junior Farmers is: President, John Huffman, Corbyville; Vice President, Clayton Ritz, Corbyville; Secretary Treasurer, Carl Thompson, Corbyville.

Former Airman Joins Police Force of City

Former member of the R.C.A.F. service police personnel stationed at Mountain View, William "Bill" Warring, formerly of Hamilton, Ontario, donned the uniform of a constable in the Belleville city police department today, bringing the force to its full complement following the retirement of two constables during the winter months.

Discharged from the R.C.A.F. only last week, Constable Warring had a spot of over two years' police work during his tenure with the Air Force and for a period of one year was on "town patrol" with the service police in Belleville. Later he was stationed at Mountain view.

A former plastic mixer in the Ambitious City, Constable Warring joined the air force in the summer of 1943. He is married and has two daughters and expects to move his family to Belleville in the near future.

Constable Westlake who joined the local force last week, and Constable Warring, will fill the vacancies resulting through retirement of Constables Potter and Minaker.

EISENHOWER COACHES PUPIL ON FOOTBALL

Grinning General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, U. S. Army chief of staff, shows Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, chief of naval operations, the correct way of tucking a football under the arm to make a run with it. The little bit of coaching took place during a meeting at the War Department, Washington, D.C., in which the chiefs of staffs of the army, navy and air forces signed endorsements of a series of football games to be played this fall for the benefit of army and navy relief organizations.

Shirts Hard to Get

No garments new for me and you,
The Springtime will enhance,
We're in a haze from shirtless days,
Thank goodness, we've got pants.

If you see a gentleman, gentlemen for that matter, noted for their former sartorial elegance, wearing a shirt that is slightly frayed at collar and cuffs, don't think he is going to the dogs, or losing his former respect and pride in his appearance.

For shirts, according to gent's clothing stories, just "aint" to be had, not even if you are the son-in-law of a merchant, or secretary to the manufacturer.

Like income tax rebate cheques, shipments of shirts arrive at retail centres when they are least expected. And calling them shipments is a bit of exaggeration for the consignments generally are no larger than dozen lots.

And if the mere male of the species happens to be in a store when they arrive, he will get a modern toga, but fifteen minutes after arrival, they are just not to be had.

Prospects for the immediate alleviation of shirtless days are none too bright, according to a Front Street dispenser of men's apparel. Manufacturers are said to be hard put to release even small allotments, as evidenced in the fact that one merchant here had an order for five dozen of the rare garments, and received exactly six, some several weeks later.

However, there is a slight shade of silver lining to the cloud of shirt disappointment. Cravats can be adapted to fit pyjama tops, and even the ancient nightgown may look dressy if adorned with a snappy Tom Cat bow tie.

Work of County Agricultural Committee Reviewed, General Meeting Held at Stirling

The Hastings County Agricultural Committee, which was organized last year under the Agricultural Committee Act, met in the Ontario Department of Agriculture Office, Stirling, on Wednesday last for the purpose of reorganizing for 1946. This was a general meeting and was very well attended.

Col. R. Vanderwater, chairman of this committee, was in charge of the meeting. The chairman, in his address, reviewed the work of the committee during the year. He pointed out that representatives of the committee had attended a meeting in Guelph in June and also a meeting in Toronto in October, at the request of the Ontario Minister of Agriculture, Col. the Hon. Thomas L. Kennedy.

Mr. H. L. Fair, Secretary Treasurer of the Committee, reviewed the work that had been done to date on calfhood vaccination and on a rural community centre for Hastings county.

Mr. Erle S. Denyes, County Clerk for Hastings, reviewed the work done so far on the Moira River survey. He also pointed out that the Hastings County Council was providing leadership in reforestation by purchasing a 150 acre lot in Hungerford township for the purpose of establishing a county forest. The Hastings County Council hopes to plant around thirty thousand pine trees in this new forest this spring.

Mr. H. H. Reid, Manager of the National Employment Service, Belleville, spoke briefly on the farm labor supply. He gave the committee his assurance that everything possible would be done by his office to supply farmers with experienced help this year. He stated that farmers in need of help should place their orders as soon as possible with his office.

Reforestation: The Hastings County Agricultural Committee went on record as commending and endorsing the work of the Hastings County Council in establishing a county forest and other work in the interest of conservation. The Hastings County Council was also commended for its effort in getting a survey started on the Moira River and its tributaries.

Hastings County Health Unit: The Hastings County Federation of Agriculture was commended for its efforts in trying to establish a Health Unit in Hastings County.

Assistant Agricultural Representative: The Ontario Department of Agriculture was requested to appoint an assistant to the Agricultural Representative in Hastings County.

After the general meeting adjourned, the Agricultural Committee met and elected its officers as follows:

Chairman: Col. R. Vanderwater, Foxboro; Vice Chairman: Wilfred Forestell, Madoc; Executive Committee: Cecil Ketcheson, Halloway; Morley Sine, Frankford No. 2; E. J. Pyear, Stirling No. 3; Secretary Treasurer: H. L. Fair, Stirling.

Meetings of this Agricultural Committee will, in future, be held quarterly. It was decided to hold the next meeting late in June.

Drives Ten Years Without Accident

He's a stranger to a parking ticket. Traffic cops wave to him, but only as a greeting. He has yet to note a scratch on his shiny truck and the only reason he has visited a garage is for refuelling purposes.

He is Alfred Foster, Yeoman Street, warehouseman for the Belleville branch of the Supertest Petroleum Company, who was presented with a handsome silver water pitcher the other day in recognition of ten years driving operations of company trucks with not an accident, nor is there a demerit mark against him on the company records.

For the past ten years, Foster has driven his truck on his daily rounds. And with almost monotonous regularity he has returned "scatheless".

Presentation of the trophy was made by Mr. Grant Davis, manager of the Toronto division of the company, who congratulated Foster on his splendid record. Present at the ceremony were Messrs. Harry Moorman of the Riggs Garage, district distributors for Supertest products and Lloyd Hicks, district superintendent.

China's Army Moving Into Manchuria

By SPENCER DAVIS

Mukden, March 22 — (Delayed) —(AP)—China's new 1st Army, tempered into a tough fighting force by Gen. Stilwell in Burma's steaming, is going strong in wintry Manchuria — on foot.

Seven miles outside the stone gateways of Mukden's ancient walled city, I saw long lines of these India and Burma veterans.

Their objective was the railway city of Szepingkai, 100 miles to the north and deep in the central Manchurian Plain. The city fell to Chinese Communist forces earlier this week when the Russians withdrew.

So the 1st Army under American-trained Gen. Sun Li-Jen, out of the heat of malarial jungles, was marching in weather of the other extreme to Szepingakia, whose seizure by the Communists had disrupted traffic over the main rail artery from Mukden to Harbin.

Already the Russians have protested the asserted failure of the Chinese to adhere to the treaty for joint management of this railroad line. The Russians charged that the Chinese had stopped rail traffic at Szepingkai and said it was imperative that the line be reopened.

Men of the 1st Army left Mukden to the rousing cheers of their countrymen. Civilians thronged the streets, shot off firecrackers and clapped their hands to show their regard for Gen. Sun's men.

The absence of trucks, jeeps and weapons carriers was only too noticeable. Some of the men carried heavy duffle bags on their heads. Others balanced their burdens with bamboo poles, stretched coolie-wise across their shoulders.

SUFFERED SEVERE SHOCK

Hamilton, March 23 —(CP)— When copper fishing line attached to a kite he was flying for his six-year-old son James came in contact with a power line carrying 13,200 volts, Jack Ramsden, 30, of Hamilton, later yesterday suffered severe shock and burns about the hands and feet.

Firemen Answer Four Alarms Over Weekend

Four alarms were answered by the local fire department over the weekend, one of the blazes being at the city dump on Sunday where firemen spent the better part of the day in their efforts to bring the blaze under control. Firemen were at the dump from 8:30 in the morning until three o'clock in the afternoon and ran 1,100 feet of hose to play water on the fire.

Burning of refuse oil and grass at the rear of the Shell Oil service station on Dundas Street caused firemen a few anxious moments, also on Sunday, when a blaze which threatened to do considerable damage was quelled only with the use of foamite.

On Saturday grass along the Bay Bridge road became afire and slightly damaged some guard rail fence posts before being extinguished, while still another grass fire was quelled at 108 Station Street.

COUNSEL OBJECTS

Commissar Molotov to establish if this agreement was not actually concluded."

One provision of the alleged secret agreement, the lawyer said, was that Germany "declared itself uninterested in three Baltic States—Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia—and Finland."

The tribunal ignored that request and the galleries tittered.

Warned British Gov't.

Earlier, a document introduced by Hess' counsel claimed that the former Deputy Fuehrer had warned the British government, a month after he parachuted into Scotland, that the Nazis planned to establish concentration camps and to starve the British population if an attempt were made to continue the war after an invasion of the British Isles.

This threat was contained in the minutes of a Hess interview with Lord Simon June 10, 1941. Only selected portions of the 70-page transcript were read into the record.

"England once created concentration camps in the Boer war and, according to a monument there, I believe 26,000 women and children were left to perish," Hess was quoted as saying in a passage skipped by the defence.

"Accordingly, we would not hesitate if the British Empire does not want to give up the war to exercise in the same manner pressure on the mother country."

Common colds kept Joachim Von Ribbentrop and Julius Streicher from attending court this morning. Von Ribbentrop was reported to be working in his cell on documents for his own defence.

Killing Ordered By Kreisleiter Says Witness

By ROSS MUNRO

Aurich, Germany, March 25—(C.P. Cable) — Wing Cmdr. Pat Durdin of London, Ont., prosecutor in the R.C.A.F. war crimes trials taking place here, today told the court that two Germans accused of killing a Canadian airman at Oberweier, Bavaria, have "convicted themselves out of their own mouths."

As the second R.C.A.F. trial drew to a close, Wing. Cmdr. Durdin said that Johan Schumacher, German soldier-policeman accused of the actual killing of the Canadian, admitted shooting the flier and Wilhelm Junge, burgomaster and Nazi leader of Oberweier accused of issuing the order to kill the Canadian, had confessed to fellow-prisoners in a prison camp several months ago that the airman was shot as an order from the Nazi district leader, or Kreisleiter, acting through Junge.

The prosecutor called the killing a "cruel and cowardly murder." He stated that Schumacher's act was that of a "cruel and hateful coward obsessed with the ideology he has seen crumble around him."

Wing Cmdr. Durdin said that Junge had made a sustained effort to have the Kreisleiter's orders carried out to the letter.

Earlier, Schumacher, testifying in his own defence, said he had protested Junge's order to shoot the captured airman but Junge had reitertated a definite order. Without such orders from the burgomaster, the airman would not have been killed but would have been delivered to the police at Rastatt, a neighboring town, Schumacher said.

"I considered the orders from Junge binding on me to a certain degree because Junge was superior in the community and had received instruction from the Kreisleiter as to what should happen to the prisoner," the defendant said.

Junge attempted to shift the blame for the killing to the Kreisleiter, stating that he had telephoned the Kreisleiter when the Canadian had been brought to him. He said the Kreisleiter, his immediate superior in the Nazi party, had ordered the killing.

10 Best Dressed Men Named by Tailors Guild

New York, March 25 (AP) — The Custom Tailors Guild of America today presented its nominations for the ten best dressed men in the United States—and, incidentally, listed what a well dressed man's wardrobe really should include.

Sartorial top-notchers were:

Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., chief United States delegate to United Nations Organization; Actor Ray Milland; orchestra leader Guy Lombardo; Morton Bernstein, vice-president of the National Silver Company; Crooner Perry Como; Alfred Gywnne Vanderbilt, society horseman; baseball star Hank Greenberg; John Brownlee, Metropolitan Opera baritone; Actor Alfred Lunt, and Publisher Henry R. Luce.

As for that wardrobe—it includes this minimum; Three sport jackets (solid colors); six pairs of slacks (solid and plaids); six business suits (mostly solids); two topcoats (one camel's hair, one blue); two overcoats (one brown or grey, one blue); one summer dinner jacket (grey jacket blue trousers); one regular dinner jacket (single breasted, with vest of same cloth in London blue); six hats; twelve pairs of shoes (six business, four sports, two dress).

Chess Master Dies

Lisbon, March 25 (CP)— Dr. Alexander A. Alekhine, 53, several times holder of the International Chess title, died yesterday of angina pectoris in his hotel room at nearby Estoril.

Born in Moscow, Dr. Alekhine began competing in international chess matches when he was 16 and first won the world title in 1927.

Answering charges of anti-semitism and pro-Nazi sympathies, Dr. Alekhine said recently that articles under his signature appearing in wartime German newspapers were written under duress. He had remained in Vichy, France, until the liberation when he went to Lisbon.

An invitation was extended to him to play in the victory tournament at Hastings, England, last Christmas, but this was retracted after British and American protests. Mikail Botvinnik, Russian champion, signed an agreement a few weeks ago to play a $10,000 match for the world's title with Alekhine in England.

Dr. Alekhine had lost the title to Dr. Man Euwe of The Netherlands in 1935 after winning it in 1927. He regained the title in 1937 and was the recognized holder when the Second Great War broke out.

Born in 1892 of wealthy parents, he attended military school and obtained a law degree at the Imperial Law Schol, St. Petersburg. He left Russia after the First Great War and became a French citizen.

Dr. Alekhine's chess career was marked by sharp rivalry with Jose Raoul Capablanca, the Cuban champion, from whom he won the championship in 1927.

Postal Department Says Criticism Of Rates Unjustified

Public criticism of "exorbitant" postage rates being levied on parcels of food and comforts to many of the countries in continental Europe are entirely unjustified insofar as the Canadian Postal Department is concerned, according to a recent press release from Ottawa.

Although the postal department is both willing and anxious to do all in its power to help in the problem of relief to countries in distress, this is not primarily one coming under the jurisdiction of the department. The release indicated there was a misunderstanding on the part of the Canadian public in regard to postal rates to other countries and restrictions on articles which can be shipped to the United Kingdom and continental countries.

Postal rates from Canada to other countries are determined by the cost of land and sea conveyance as well as charges which must be paid for transit services provided by other postal administrations. Whenever authorities in other countries are able to make reduction in their charges for handling Canadian mail, the Canadian Post Office will promptly pass along such reductions for the benefit of the Canadian mailer.

Restrictions such as the seven-pound limit on food parcels to the United Kingdom did not originate with the Canadian post office but were imposed by British authorities in the light of their own domestic conditions, one of the reasons being to protect the rationing system. Morale would be adversely affected if there were no restrictions on foodstuffs from overseas, and the privileged few with friends in Canada were able to receive unlimited quantities while their neighbors were strictly rationed.

Agree to Recognize Autonomy

By ERIC DOWNTON

Moscow, March 25 — (Reuters) —Reports circulating in foreign circles here today said that the Iranian government has agreed to recognize the regional autonomy of Azerbaijan province in northern Iran, and to remove a number of "reactionaries from office."

The Iranian government is also said to be revising its policy regarding oil concessions to foreign powers.

No confirmation of these reports was available in official Soviet quarters.

Trenton Fliers Are Eliminated By Bowmanville

Bowmanville, March 25.—Bowmanville eliminated Trenton Fliers in an Ontario Amateur Basketball Association Intermediate "B" play-off here Saturday night, outscoring the RCAF team 41-30 to take the round, 73-66. Trenton won the first game, 36-32.

Ross Gilbert, former O.A.C. cage ace, paced the locals to victory with 16 points, and Don Mason was also conspicuous with 12 points. Art Clemence, who bagged 15 points in the first game of the series, was held to only one basket, but set up many scoring plays.

Lofty Willis, playing coach of the Trenton team, starred for the losers. Bowmanville will now tackle Toronto Moss Park in an Ontario semi-final series. First game will be here next Saturday night.

Two Seriously Hurt In Sideswipe Accident

As a result of a sideswipe collision between two vehicles proceeding in opposite directions, two persons were seriously injured early Saturday evening in an accident occurring six miles south of the city on the Belleville-Picton highway.

Injured were William Rion, 57, Picton, who was admitted to the Belleville General Hospital suffering from a possible fractured ankle, and Thomas Skelton, local letter carrier, who was reported to have suffered a broken nose, facial lacerations and rib injuries.

The two injured men were passengers in the southbound vehicle driven by Vincent Rion of Picton when the auto in which they were riding was in a sideswipe collision with a northbound vehicle driven by Floyd Atkinson, Deseronto. Following the accident, the Rion driven auto careened across the highway and came to rest in the opposite ditch. Extensive damage resulted to the Rion auto, it was reported.

35 INDICTED

Columbia, Tenn., March 23 — (AP) — Thirty-one Negroes and four white men were indicted yesterday by a county grand jury on charges ranging from assault with intent to commit murder, to carrying dangerous and deadly weapons, in connection with racial disturbances last month.

Former Diplomat Says America Needs to Be Aroused to Red Menace

Philadelphia, March 25 (AP).—The United Nations Organization is "a complete washout" because of the veto power insisted upon by Russia, George H. Earle, former United States Minister to Austria and Bulgaria, said.

Arriving here with his Paris-born Belgian wife whom he married in Turkey, Mr. Earle reiterated to reporters his plans to devote the immediate future to awakening the American public to "the frightful menace of Russia."

He said there are 15,000,000 persons in Russian concentration camps "because they disagree with the Bolshevist Government."

"And half of that number are Jews," he added. "Hitler hated Jews because they were Jews. But Stalin hates them because they are individualists. What he wants is sheep.

"I am absolutely certain that when the Russians are able to manufacture the atomic bomb in quality and quantity, they will wipe the American people off the face of the earth."

Before he landed in Boston Saturday, Mr. Earle, terming Russia the "greatest danger that ever threatened America," called for an ultimatum to the Soviet to "get back to her own country" or use of "the atomic bomb on them while we have it and before they get it."

He voiced his opinions in an interview in his stateroom aboard the American Export liner Exhibitor which brought him home after several years in the Balkans and Middle East.

Mr. Earle, who served as an observer for the late President Roosevelt while a commander in the navy, declared he probably knew more about Russia "than any American living," and accused American statesmen of being "Pollyannas" on the subject of Russia and "lulling" the American people into a false sense of security.

Large U. S. Crops Seen

Expectation of large crops in the United States this year is one of the hopeful signs, one that leads to the view that that country will escape return to rationing. American farmers are to be working half a million acres more than in 1945, namely 357,500,000 acres which though it is three per cent below the acreage asked by the Government is generally considered a favorable condition in view of the labor, machinery and other equipment shortages. The weather comes in to count as an element as also price revisions which may change the acreage.

It is expected that the wheat harvest will be a bumper crop. Oats, peanuts, tobacco and rice are other crops that likely will be very large. Corn, hay, sorghums, barley, soybeans, flax, white and sweet potatoes, sugar beets, dry beans and peas appear likely to fall short.

The Inevitable Result

Part of the mighty army that Hitler threw against the world in his unsuccessful effort to crush freedom has been disbanded, two and a half million men of the erstwhile Wehrmacht having come in the British zone to the end. In the American zone a like process is in store for the once powerful German force. Soon the whole great force of might which was the greatest ever assembled to try to crush democracy and the states about Germany, will be no more.

It was just ten years ago this month that humanity began to see signs whither Hitler was heading. In early March 1936 he sent his Wehrmacht across the Rhine into the demilitarized zone where he struck his first blow without meeting resistance. It was from then on a time of swiftly moving events as the German Fuehrer began to unfold his infamous plan.

Hitler little thought when he sent his troops across the Rhine, he little thought when he used blitz warfare on Poland, when he forced France out of the war in the spring of 1940, that by March of 1946 he and his army would have disappeared, Hitler to be a suicide, numbers of his cruel henchmen having been tried and convicted of war crimes and sent to their doom for atrocities. He little thought nor did the twenty-one German leaders on trial at Nuernberg at the present time that a few years would bring such a change. No German could have foreseen the sweeping power of fate and punishment of evil which swept in upon Germany to bring her to defeat.

Hitler could not have thought then that in 1946 the Allies would be in possession of Germany and be laying the foundations of freedom from tyranny for the Germans and giving the Germans their chance to become respected as a people among peaceful and civilized nations. The re-education of Germany has been begun and it is expected this will take a long time.

Greek Elections

The Greek elections are to be held on the 31st of March. The 20th of March was the last day on which names of candidates could be registered. The Greek Government has not allowed itself to be deterred by pressure from the Left Parties from adhering strictly to the timetable which it has itself fixed. Any deflection on the Greek Government's part would in fact be inconsistent with the mandate which the Greek Government assumed on taking office last November.

London commentators point out that the decision to hold elections on the 31st of March is the sole responsibility of the Greek Government. The Greek Government has indeed consulted the United Kingdom Government on the subject on various occasions, and the United Kingdom Government has consistently advised the Greek Government to stand firm.

The United Kingdom Foreign Office has now issued a statement making the United Kingdom Government's position in this matter clear.

The United Kingdom Government would depreciate any further postponement of the election date (it was originally agreed to hold elections in 1945).

The effects of postponement would be felt politically and economcially. Politically, not only is there, according to the United Kingdom Government's information, no ground for anticipating that the state of security of Greece would improve if the elections were postponed for two months, as the Left Parties demand, but it is not to be excluded that the present tension between the Right and Left might become aggravated.

Economically, as the Foreign Office statement puts it, "the reconstruction of the country would be hampered." This, it is observed in London, is if anything, an understatement.

The Greek financial and economic position is recognized on all sides to be extremely grave. It was the Greek Government's realization of this gravity which led it to solicit urgent British assistance three months ago. Greek ministers came to London in the new year and an Anglo-Greek financial and economic agreement was reached and its terms published on the 24th of January.

The United Kingdom Government undertook to grant Greece a credit of ten million pounds sterling, for currency reform, to waive repayment of the Greek war debt of forty-six million pounds sterling, and to make available to Greece large quantities of consumer goods and industrial material.

The Greek Government undertook to carry out a drastic program of retrenchement, including, apart from currency reform, an increase of taxes, a reduction of unproductive expenditure, the readjustment and stabilization of wages, and price control.

Such a program could only be carried through by a Government formed with the support of the majority of the electorate. The present "Caretaker" Government has not felt able to proceed far along the unpopular road of economic stringency.

Competent authorities consider that the prolongation of political uncertainty in the absence of elections, and the consequent delay in introducing the necessary financial and economic reforms, would spell financial and economic disaster.

This, it is emphasized in London, is perhaps the most cogent of all the reasons for holding the Greek elections as soon as possible.

There are other reasons to which the Foreign Office statement draws attention. Thus, there is the desire manifested by the Security Council and shared by the United Kingdom Government, that British troops should be withdrawn from Greece with the least possible delay. There are international arrangements completed between the Greek, United Kingdom, United States and French Governments (in which the Russian Government unfortunately decided not to join) for the elections, ensuring as far as possible that they are free and fair.

Accordingly, the United Kingdom Government declares it to be both the right and the duty of the Greek people, parties and press to get an overwhelming poll on the 31st of March.

Jay Walking

Jay walking in Northern Ireland is against the law, which is rigorously applied and carried, like all laws in the British isles. There is no favoritism.

An example is seen in a recent account of a case before the Resident Magistrate of a small town in the County of Tyrone in Northern Ireland.

Bernard Begley. Creggandevesky, Carrickmore, was summoned for jay walking. The police said defendant, at Carrickmore Fair, had stepped out in front of a motor car and got knocked down. Thomas McElhatton, a motor lorry driver, said he was approaching Carrickmore from the Omagh road, and near the town he saw a crowd of people. He changed from third to second gear and sounded the horn and approached the crowd. Defendant just stepped out at the rear of the lorry and was struck and fell. The court imposed a fine of five shillings on defendant.

And that's that!

BLACK EYE

Well, it had to come, I knew.
Never boy to manhood grew
But a black eye, soon or late,
Would be his as sure as fate.

Every mother of a lad
This experience has had,
And 'gainst neighbor sons rebelled
As that "shiner" she beheld.

Now it's over with and done!
He came home last week with one.
And his mother says the source
Was a bigger boy, of course.

But his grandpa laughs out loud,
And he tells in manner proud:
As a boy, he'll bet a hat
He'd a blacker eye than that!

Looking Ahead in Ottawa

(By The Ottawa Staff of The Canadian Press)

Ottawa, March 25 — (CP) — Complaints that the St. Clair River is being polluted by discharges from the government-owned Polymer Corp. synthetic rubber plant at Sarnia, likely will be referred to the international joint commission, a body with both United States and Canadian representatives.

The matter of pollution of water throughout the Great Lakes system is one that has cropped up periodically. The most recent complaint is that the Sarnia plant is dumping chemicals into the river which affect the water in the immee taide the immediate area of Sarnia and Port Huron, Mich., and on down Lake St. Clair to the Detroit river in the area of Detroit and Windsor.

When the rubber plant first came into operation there were complaints by Port Huron residents, immediately across the river, that it created a smoke nuisance but since then steps have been taken to reduce smoke which, the American neighbors said, was causing serious damage to a number of fine homes along the shore.

Budget: Word reaching parliamentary circles is that industry is urging Finance Minister Ilsley to bring down the budget at as early a date as possible so development plans can be worked out with a knowledge of new taxes.

Gold miners, particularly, are confronted with some increases in costs of operation whereas the price of gold is unchanged and they are said to be anxious for assurance as to some tax relief and at the same time to know how far the government is prepared to go in keeping down the cost of living.

International: During the next few weeks there will be announcements from the office of Prime Minister Mackenzie King on the appointment of Canadian representatives to various international conferences and commissions.

One of the first appointments will be a representative to the international committee on refugees which meets in London early in April. Other officials will be sent to the next meeting of the security council and to various other United Nations branches.

SAD ORDEAL

Hirohito Makes Third "Meet The People" Tour

Tokyo, March 25 (AP)—Crowds shouting "Bainzai" greeted Emperor Hirohito today on his third "meet the people" tour within a month.

He visited a hospital, a silk mill, an industrial plant and a prefectural government office.

The tour, which took Hirohito about 40 miles from Tokyo, proceeded smoothly except when a minor official bowed low close to the Emperor's limousine and was smacked in the head by an opening door.

Hirohito's chauffeur and other court attendants quickly rendered first aid and the man recovered sufficiently to show the Emperor a reclaimed land project; wheat and potatoes grown on a former Japanese airfield which still is littered at the edges with ruined planes.

At Takasaki National Hospital, the Emperor visited former Japanese servicemen who returned ill from overseas duty.

As Hirohito took a dusty 40-minute ride from the hospital to Toyooka silk milk, thousands of children along the road yelled and waved heartily to his American escort and then bowed to the Emperor.

At the silk plant, Hirohito followed the processing of cocoons into silk step by step and questioned many employees about their jobs and working conditions.

The inspection was concluded with a tour of Riken industrial plant, which is on supreme headquarter's schedule of restricted concerns. It once turned out ammunition and armaments but now manufactures parts for coal barges.

VETERAN OF 1914-1918 DOUBLE AMPS CASE DIES IN TORONTO

Toronto, March 25 (CP)— W. J. Gartley, a double amputations case who weighed less than 50 pounds but nevertheless was a successful farmer, died Saturday at his home in nearby Islington at the age of 51. Despite his handicaps, he tended a herd of shorthorn cattle which was the envy of his neighbors.

Kangaroo Facts

(Our Dumb Animals)

Kangaroos are just kangaroos to most people who think of them as a single species. In reality there are a great many kinds of them, over a hundred species, in fact. Some are big ones, over six feet high and weighing 200 pounds, while others are little fellows no bigger than rabbits.

We all know that kangaroos can jump, but many of them have other accomplishments, as well. Quite a number are strong swimmers and, when pursued, will take to the water where they can outswim either horses or dogs. One family, the tree kangaroos, are skilful climbers who spend much of their time high up in trees like monkeys.

A kangaroo may look shy and wear a gentle, timid expression, but when it comes to a fight, he makes a brave and dangerous opponent who must be treated with respect.

Signed letters, not more than one page or 100 words long, pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease, diagnosis or treatment, will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped self addressed envelope is enclosed. Letters should be brief and written in ink. Owing to the large number of letters received only a few can be answered here. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. Readers addressing letters to Dr. Brady will please include the word "Canada' on their return envelopes, as these letters have to be forwarded to Dr. Brady. And it is requested that readers use standard size envelopes that will hold a small booklet

ADDICTION TO ALCOHOL

In answer to a query that comes up frequently, and is usually anonymous, I regret to notice, I can assure you that there is no medicine one can give secretly or disguised in coffee or anything of the sort, that will have the slightest effect on an addict's desire for or craving for liquor.

Further I can assure you that no medicine or combination of drugs will cure any one of addiction.

Sheer strength of will does it sometimes.

Prayer does it sometimes.

The method of treatment given to the medical profession by the late Dr. Alexander Lambert years ago will restore some downright bums to sobriety and industry—I know because I have seen it do so. It can be given only to the patient in hospital or other institution under the control of the physician. I am glad to give any Doctor of Medicine who is not familiar with the method and has not access to Lambert's original report, the reference, provided the doctor asks for it and incloses stamped self addressed envelope.

A reader asks: Is there anything you can give a party (a drinking party, I suppose) who at weekend drinks very heavily and the first part not. When he gets paid his first stop is a saloon, but the first of week O.K.

I can give that drinking party Alcoholics Anonymous. The telephone directory or perhaps the classified columns will give the address of a group in your own or some nearby community. These are groups of people who have themselves won the battle or are now fighting the battle with alcoholism, and they want to help others who need help in fighting the battle. There is no charge or fee, nothing to buy, just the invitation to you to come to a meeting and see for yourself what it is.

Here's another reader who says: Through my drinking after having become an alcoholic I lost everything that was near or dear to me in life. After about three years of membership in A.A. (I learned about the organization in your column) without touching a drop of alcoholic liquor or beverage I have no desire whatsoever to do so. I have regained almost everything I lost as well as my self respect and the love and respect of my family and my friends. I enjoy my home as I never did before... the fine class of people I meet at the A.A. meetings. I'd say if A.A. is honey, as one of your correspondents seemed to think, it is a pretty good brand which I strongly recommend to any one ill of the damnable disease called Alcoholism.

On request, if you inclose ten cents and stamped self addressed envelope, I'll send you a booklet on "Dipsomania"—it is a practical consideration of the cause, prevention and treatment of the craving for alcoholic liquor.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Another Cup of Coffee, Please

I can't understand how a doctor who poses as a healthy authority can sanction some of the things you do—particularly... and coffee drinking... (Miss W. H.)

Answer—For most adults a cup or two of coffee with breakfast is beneficial, I think. Children under 16 should never have coffee, in my opinion. Strong coffee taken late in the evening may keep any one awake, but if one does not retire within three or four hours after coffee, it is unobjectionable in that way. When I say coffee I mean coffee, not the horrible stuff many misguided folk take for coffee. In the red book "What to Eat and Why" there are chapters on coffee, chocolate, cocoa, tea and directions for making good coffee. For copy send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope (not a toy envelope).

The Miracle Medicines

From the staid... I quote: "... such anti-bacterial agents as the sulfa drugs and penicillin, the vaccines and serums which have been performing miracles." Please comment. (A. D. B.)

Answer—It might not be tactful—you see, the "miracle" line is still being sold to the credulous public by the same kind of medical merchants as those who sold the public the one-shot syphillis cure (606)—THERAPIA MAGNA STERILISANS, don't you remember? Sulfa, penicillin, vaccines and serums have their proper uses but haven't we overplayed the "miracle" touch?

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Did Confederate veterans get pensions?

Section 4 of the 14th Amendment to the Federal Constitution provides in part that "neither the United States nor any State shall assume or pay any debt or obligation incurred in aid of insurrection or rebellion against the United States."

Persons who fought in the Civil War on the Confederate side did not receive pensions from the Federal Government.

A government could hardly be expected to pension persons for waging war against it.

But the provision in the 14th Amendment has never been regarded as a bar against State pensions to Confederate veterans. Such pensions have been construed as money given in appreciation but not in payment of past services.

All eleven of the former Confederate States — Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia—provided pensions for ex-Confederate soldiers and their widows.

Of the principal border States —Maryland, Kentucky and Missouri—all of which supplied many men to the Confederate armies, only Kentucky provided pensions for former Confederates.

Although Kentucky, which tried to remain neutral was never officially a member of the Confederacy and it furnished about 90,000 men to the Federal armies, the State was admitted by the Confederacy, had Representatives in the Confederate Congress and furnished 40,000 men to the Confederate armies.

Confederate pensions were also provided by Oklahoma, although it did not become a State until 1907.

The people of thirteen States were taxed to pay pensions to the veterans of both sides of the Civil War.

Proposed Changes In Liquor Laws Only Major Bill

Toronto, March 25 —(CP)— Announcement that Ontario's minimum wage for men will be instituted under existing legislation leaves proposed changes in liquor licensing laws as the only major bill likely to be introduced in the waning weeks of the 22nd legislature.

The Speech from the Throne forecast that a minimum wage for men would be established as a "new departure" for Ontario and it was taken for granted in most quarters the minimum would be provided through a bill introduced in the House. But Labor Minister Daley disclosed last week that authority for such a law already is contained in the Minimum Wage Act, which became effective in 1920.

Under the act a five-member minimum wage board, including two women members, was created to set minimum wages for women and girls under provisions in the act. In 1937 the administrative board became the industry and labor board, which now comprises three members who prescribed wages after conferences with employers and employees or upon union representations. The wage rates set now are filed with the registrar of regulations under the Regulations Act of 1944.

Through the years there has been no minimum wage for men but Mr. Daley said the act contains authority for such minima without resource to new legislation. Attorney-General Blackwell, speaking after Mr. Daley, said he believes no standard minimum wage would be acceptable to employer or employee.

Salsberg Raises Issue.

It would be more acceptable, Mr. Blackwell said, to prove for such rates under existing regulations. Then changes in rates could be made by the board as conditions warranted.

The issue was raised by J. B. Salsberg (Lab.-Prog.-Toronto St. Andrews) during the second reading of Mr. Daley's bill to amend the Minimum Wage Act. Mr. Salsberg asked how the government proposed to institute the wage floor promised in the Throne Speech.

A bill setting a 65-cent hourly minimum meanwhile has been introduced by A. A. MacLeod (Lab.-Prog.-Toronto Bellwoods) and given first reading. Labor previously has been divided to some extent on rates fixed by statute, some contending that the "floor" would tend to become a "ceiling." Now greater unity is said to have been expressed regarding a 65-cent minimum.

The amendments in Mr. Daley's bill give the board authority to set minimum rates for part-time employees and eliminate a clause setting overtime rates at not less than 1/40th of the weekly wages.

Proposed liquor regulation, also forecast in the Throne Speech and an insistent topic of speculation for more than a month, remains a closely-guarded secret. There is a feeling among some government sources that the new laws might not be introduced at the session, which enters its fourth week today with debate opening on the budget address. H. C. Nixon (L-Brant) will be financial critic.

Col. N. Sherman, Brighton, Retired

Ottawa, March 25 — (CP)—Defence headquarters today announced retirement from the Canadian Army of Col. Norman C. Sherman, 57, of Kingston, and Lt.-Col. J. W. Weir of Vancouver.

Col. Sherman, a native of Brighton, Ont., and a permanent force officer for more than 35 years, served with the Royal Canadian Electrical and Mechanical Engineers. He is a veteran of both the First and Second Great Wars.

Col. Weir served throughout the northwest Europe campaign as personal assistant to Gen. Crerar, and accompanied Gen. Crerar on his farewell tour last fall of military establishments in the Dominion.

Col. Sherman served as chief ordnance mechanical engineer at defence headquarters, Ottawa, and later became officer commanding the ordnance training centre at Barriefield, Ont. He served overseas briefly with the 5th Canadian Armored Division as technical advisor and in 1942 was posted to Pacific Command where he was responsible for the maintenance of fighting equipment workshops, weapons and vehicles. His last appointment in Pacific command was deputy director of mechanical engineering.

DUTCH INTRODUCED TEA

Tea was introduced into Europe from the Orient by the Dutch in 1645.

FARMS A FACTOR IN DEVELOPMENT OF SOUTH AFRICA

Capetown, March 25 (CP) — Lord Strabolgi, British Labor peer suggested in a recent broadcast from Johannesburg that South Africa would be capable of supporting 20,000,000 Europeans in a good standard of living following a greater agricultural development in the Union.

Speaking after a tour of the Union, Lord Etrabogli said there is not only a great need for an increase of the European population but also the space and opportunity is available for the right type of new settler. He believed that the extent of what was being done for non-Europeans was not always appreciated by Britain.

Senator C. F. Clarkson recently declared there is no question of large-scale immigration to the Union until soldiers awaiting demobilization and 6,000 Union nationals who are waiting to come home have been rehabilitated. Because of the non-European population, the Union is unsuited for a policy of unselected immigration, he said.

Skilled artisans are needed but there is no call for unskilled labor, he said. There is a steady trickle of Imperial troops to South Africa and in the five years up to 1939, 20,000 settlers of British and Netherlands stock arrived in the Union. Of these, 14,000 subsequently left, Senator Clarkson disclosed.

Wool statistics released recently show that the British Wool Commission took 699,482 bales of South African wool in the 1944-1945 season.

It is anticipated that 650,000 bales will be the total South African clip in the season ending June of this year. Value of the sales for the first six months of this season to January 31 exceeded £14,000,000 ($63,000,000.)

Sales to the United States jumped to 362,000 bales for the first six months of the present season compared to 76,000 bales for the similar period in the previous year.

A tribute to farmers for their efforts in food production was paid by Dr. C. H. Neveling, secretary of agriculture who said in his annual report before the Assembly that the Union emerged from the war with an increased production potential though with a more impoverished soil.

The nation was alive to the importance of the soil, he said. As long as commodities remain scarce complete removal of price control would lead to inflation.

The manufacture of agricultural implements and spare parts has risen from 10,000 tons in 1943 to 16,000 tons in 1945 with a marked improvement in quality, Dr. Neveling disclosed.

Figures issued by the Railways Travel Department show there was a decrease in the number of tourists but more business visitors to the Union in 1945 than in the previous year.

Last year 27,200 tourists and 4,654 business visitors came to the Union from South African territories and overseas. Most of the visitors came from Bechuanaland and Rhodesia.

Canadian Nickel brings Tea to your Table

CANADA produces no tea; India produces no Nickel. So Canada imports tea from India; India imports Canadian Nickel and articles containing Canadian Nickel.

Less than three per cent of the Nickel produced in Canada is consumed in Canada. The rest is exported, and the money received helps to pay for tea and other products necessary to good living in Canada. Canada cannot keep on importing from other lands unless Canadian goods are exported.

Also, we must continue to export Canadian Nickel if we are to continue to employ thousands of Canadians in the Nickel mines, smelters and refineries, and other thousands who produce the lumber, power, steel, machinery and supplies used by the Canadian Nickel industry.

By constantly expanding the use of Nickel at home and abroad, the Canadian Nickel industry brings additional benefits to Canada and Canadians.

Large Class Confirmed By Bishop Lyons

Christ Church was packed to capacity Sunday night when the Right Reverend John Lyons, D.D., Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario, made his annual visitation. A large class of adolescents and adults was presented to him by the rector, the Reverend J. Grant Sparling, assisted by the Reverend Everett Smith, for the rite of confirmation.

Lay Reader George Meades read the Scripture passages.

In addressing the large congregation, the Bishop spoke on the Lenten message, "Lent is a time when we appreciate reality." He urged the people to get down to the fundamentals of Gospel living and stated that it was the only power which could save the world.

Their attention was drawn to the great advance movement in the church at this time which is an attempt to carry out our Lord's commandment to preach the gospel to every creature everywhere.

Bishop Lyons' last word was to the candidates. He congratulated them on the step which they were taking in an age when the world was pulling hard in another direction. He reminded them of their new privileges as communicants of the church and also of the responsibilities which fell on them as a result of their Christian profession.

The music for the service which was of a character appropriate for the occasion was under the direction of choirmaster Arthur Simson with Mrs. Grace Calvert at the organ.

Skin Feel Sandpaperish? Try This Beauty Program

A delicate creaming soothes wind-roughened skin

By HELEN FOLLETT

MARCH winds may blow and we may have snow, and you may be dismayed to find that your skin feels like sandpaper. That, it would seem, is a terrible kettle of beauty fish. Too bad we could not have been born with weather-proof faces.

Still and all, it is often one's own fault if the complexion is sick abed. It won't get that way if it has proper care.

Before Bedtime

Do you give your sacred phiz a careful washing, a delicate creaming, a little petting and patting before you go to bed? We guess the answer, which is "Now and then." What can you expect? Harsh winds flay the skin. Comfort it with a soothing emollient. Let the cream remain on over night.

There are other reasons why mid-season complexions look hang-overish. One may not have enough fresh air or exercise, both necessary to speed up circulation, to bring coloring to the cheeks. Possibly there have been too many parties on the social calendar, disregard for diet. Late hours take a tuck in the sum total of pulchritude.

Health Bells Ring

We hope this good looks class will bear with us when we ring the health bells. Many of us depend too much on make-up, all the dainty beauty props. They can't attain their purposes unless one has vitality and animation.

If you would defy old Meanie Time, have your days organized. So many hours for work, so many hours for play, so many hours for sleep. Sleep is vitally important. Cut down on rest, awaken with step slow and head heavy, and that woman in the looking glass will make dreadful faces at you. Your eyes will be dull, skin grey or yallery.

Attend to your beauty chores, but remember they will not bring rewards unless you walk hand and hand with the goddess, Hygeia.

The Experts Say

By HELEN BANNERMAN)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, March 23. —(CP)— "What is so good on a blustery night, as a savoury stew that's seasoned just right?" enquires an old couplet popular these days with the Agriculture Department consumer section.

A good stew no longer exists under a cloud of abuse and scorn as something mother makes on wash day because it doesn't require any special care. While it takes only a fair amount of skill to turn out a well-cooked stew, a mouth-watering stew, rich in flavor, filled with tender crisp vegetables and juicy cubes of meat, requires a real knowledge of cookery.

The Agriculture Department home economists say that whether you prefer light or dark stew, the seasoning is important. A bit of spice or herb added to a stew lifts it out of the ordinary. Parsley, bay leaf, cloves, thyme, celery leaves, pepper corns or chili powder are just a few suggestions that you might try. The chief difference between a brown and a light stew is that the meat is dredged with flour and browned in hot fat when making a brown stew, while the flouring and browning are omitted in a light stew. To obtain that rich brown that does not disappear from the meat as the stew cooks, brown the meat slowly.

To get those tender, crisp vegetables in place of the soggy, over-cooked kind don't add any of the vegetables to the stew too soon. If you have vegetables such as carrots, potatoes and turnips which require different cooking times, add each one to the stew allowing time for it to cook to just the right degree, but no longer.

Some people prefer to cook their vegetables partially apart from the stew and add them five or ten minutes before serving, to allow the flavors to blend.

Veal Creole is one of the recipes recommended by the Consumer Section for use in March and it differs from the usual stew since it contains spaghetti. But it is a stick-to-the-ribs type of main dish that will soon be listed among the family favorites.

To make Veal Creole you will require two pounds of veal (shoulder or other cut suitable for stewing), flour, two onions, one cup of diced celery, one cup uncooked spaghetti, broken into pieces, two cups of water, two cups of tomato juice, salt and pepper to taste.

Wipe the veal and remove the fat. Cut veal into 1 1-2-inch cubes. Roll meat in flour, brown meat and onion slowly in the fat taken from meat. Add water. Bring to boiling point and simmer 1-2 hour. Add remaining ingredients and season. Simmer one hour longer. Thicken with a paste made of flour and water. This makes six servings.

You can help yourself to health, energy and good cheer if you eat the right foods to keep fit, says the Nutrition Division and offers these suggestions especially designed for those who eat in restaurants.

Whenever you eat, be a good shopper. Don't fill up on one line of food and miss eating green vegetables, fruit or milk. Don't let your food dislikes keep you from a round-up of all the foods you need.

Dean of Diocese Outlines Details Of Anglican Drive

Work, companionship, and sense of the presence of God are the three main ingredients necessary for the success of the forthcoming Anglican Advance Campaign, the Very Rev. A. Briarly Brown, D.D., Dean of the Diocese of Ontario, told a large congregation at St. Thomas' Church on Sunday morning.

Dean Brown drew his address from characteristics featured in the famous painting, "The Angelus", the dress of the characters denoting "Work"; the young man and woman, "Companionship" and the church steeple and bell in the background characterising the sense of the presence of God.

"Work was an expression of self," the speaker said. "It is not enough to pay one's way through life, but to work our way life. One must work his way campaign is that every member of the Church of England will be asked to do something. And in so doing they will rededicate themselves to God afresh. Every soul in the church will be challenged to do this.

Nothing Finer

Referring to friendship and companionship, Dean Brown said, "they are the most priceless things in the world." There is nothing finer than daring to come out of the shell and link up with fellow men, in the Christian church. There are loveless congregations and loveless countries. We in Canada rush out into the open in our eagerness for friendship. Other countries think we are forward, but they do not understand."

The only way to make the Anglican Advance Campaign a success is for all to work, pray, sing and give together. The amount asked may seem colossal but it is surprising how attainable the objective can be.

He described the system used in Kingston in which families were assessed a few cents per week. "The money part of the campaign," the speaker said, "was a matter of reaching out and feeling that the family was a congregation in itself."

Causes Sense of Presence

The ringing of bells causes the sense of the presence of God to permeate life. It is something that is caught one from another from the child, to youth, to middle age with its attitude of being cynical pessimistic and sometimes resentful, to old age which is pushed on the shelf and forgotten.

This third ingredient is important to the success of the campaign. Other denominations are holding similar affairs. It is in the wind, and is attainable if all work together.

"We must suggest to our so-called Anglican friends who do not go to church, that they have a piece of work to do and they must do it, if they are to be counted among the sheep and not the goats."

"There is something permanent in what we are going to do in the next three years," Dean Brown concluded. "And what we do will directly affect the Dominion for the next fifty years. We are going to hear the Angelus bell ring out, and when we do, we must express ourselves in work, friendship and a sense of the presence of God."

The builders of the church in Angola, missionaries and African Christians look to us to help carry forward God's purpose in the years ahead. We, too must be builders with God and with our fellow workers in Angola. As we close our study book, let us think of the future of Africa and our own responsibility, remembering that "Black and White" work together to carry out God's plan and purpose.

"I slept, I dreamed, I seemed to climb a hard, ascending track,
And just behind me labored one whose face was black.
I pitied him, but hour by hour he gained upon my path,
He stood beside me, stood upright, and then I turned in wrath.
'Go back', I cried, 'What right have you to stand beside me here?'
I paused, but lo, the black man was not there
But Christ stood in his place and oh, the pain,
The pain that looked from that dear face."

HOW TO MIX TWO CAREERS IN ONE HOME

By DENISE DALTROFF

New-York, (AP)—Roso Bampton knows a secret a lot of women would like to know—how to weld marriage and career.

Miss Bampton is a dramatic soprano of the Metropolitan Opera who has warbled on concert stages of North and South America, Africa and Europe. Her husband, Montreal-born Wilfred Pelletier, is a Metropolitan Opera conductor and head of the orchestra and opera department of the Juilliard School of Music.

Don't those exacting careers ever collide? "Not if we can help it," said Miss Bampton with a chuckle. "We have been married nine years now and we saw long ago that if we were both to get the work done that we wanted to do, it would be a case of give and take—push and pull.

"I have a gem of a housekeeper and she helps me to give Pelley the comfortable home he needs. The day he has a concert I keep the house especially quiet. I don't even practise at home; I go to my accompanist's studio. Pelley has no time for much social life; and I understand that and don't fuss about it.

"My career requires a lot of concerts and that means absence from home. That's a place where Pelley gives. He understands why I go and he doesn't complain. He always has helped. I might not be at the Metropolitan now if it had not been for him. Years ago, after I had had an audition and had been offered a job there, I decided I didn't know enough and wasn't ready yet to sing at the Metropolitan. But Pelley came to see me and talked me into it and helped me prepare for my debut."

Miss Bampton, tall, dark-haired and fair-skinned, with eyes as green as the sea, glanced toward her husband as they sat in the living room of their Park Avenue duplex apartment.

"Well, she gives a lot in understanding," he declared. "I'm supposed to be a prima donna. The day before a concert I like to be alone, and eat alone. She understands. Only a professional would. She does a lot of things to make life easier."

Don't two-high-strung musical temperaments ever get on each other's nerves? The Pelletiers looked at each other and grinned.

"Yes, when she tries to make me eat before a performance," said the maestro, who organized and conducted the first Bach-Beethoven festival in Montreal and is also responsible for many musical events in his native city. "I don't want to eat then. But they run after me with calf's liver. We came to words over calf's liver. All I wanted was a glass of milk and to be let alone."

"We have no difficulties when we do what he wants," said Mrs. Pelletier, her green eyes dancing.

That sums up the Pelletiers' opinion on how to make marriage and a career click. But their friends will tell you that the real secret of their success is that Pelletier gives unstintingly of himself and his comfort to further his wife's career and that in their home life Rose Bampton puts her own desires in the background and considers her husband first and last.

Opulent Tailored Satin

By PRUNELLA WOOD

AMONGST the rash of new housecoats and hostess regalia, there have been few of the suavely tailored type, running as we have of late, to Oriental draperies and ingenuity.

But this ice blue satin coat, with its shiny black polka dots and jet type buttons is as tailored as a bath robe. Quite provocative, in opulent-looking satin. There is a generous skirt width, a deep slashed V neckline. The model is ankle length.

Soviet Customer Of Snake Queen

Johannesburg, (CP) — South Africa has a snake queen. She is Mrs. G. Peers, who runs a large snake park. But besides her big trade of exporting live snakes, Mrs. Peers does a huge business in venom.

One of her best customers is the Soviet government, which is purchasing large quantities of cobra venom for use in cancer research.

The boom in reptiles which is bringing a fortune to Mrs. Peers and has created a big export trade in live snakes for South Africa is due mainly to the war.

British zoos, which kiled off their snakes when the war began in order to avert escapes during air raids, now are ordering replacements.

American zoos are ordering large batches to replace wartime deaths. Cobras and puff adders are in special demand.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Slick Make-Up is the Answer

Have you ever heard of curly eyes? It's a new one on your good-looks reporter, who fancied that she had seen and heard pretty nearly everything that has to do with the modern interpretation of pulchritude.

Beauticians explain curly eyes as that wide-open, eager expression of youth. You get the effect by applying eye shadows, blending upward at the far terminal of the lids, by using the pencil on your winkers, extending the line a fraction of an inch beyond the natural growth. Tricky, eh? You might try it when the heavy evening date is on and you are flaunting your grandest dry goods. Shadows are not for daylight use. Oh, mercy no! Not these practical days. Women are people now, you know, not merely decorations on the social landscape.

If you are going to be a make-up smartie, take a survey of your features. If the eyes are best, play them up. You do that little thing by carrying neat eyebrows that are not exaggerated in pattern, but are clear-cut and lustrous. If they are light in color, use a little brown mascara. Apply mineral oil to the lashes; brush them upward, so there will be curly ends.

When shadows are used, it is a good plan to apply a creamy foundation first, to impart a higher gloss. Even without shadows, lids should not have a dull finish. Keep the powder pad off the premises. A powdered surface seems to dull the eyes; moist eyelids accentuate color and expression.

Is your complexion your best point? Be careful with make-up. If you are pale, feel the need of rouge, brush it lightly over the cheek bones. To let the synthetic blush extend downward over the cheeks is to give one a dragged-out look. Nature places blushes high. And don't forget to give a tiny touch to the chin and the ear lobes.

If you are going to be a make-up smartie, take a survey of your features.

If one would make a large nose appear smaller or a heavy, wide chin to recede, a darker powder should be applied. Some fussy women put darker powder under the chin and jaw bones; this practice, it is believed, give a more youthful contour from the chin to the ear lobes.

Would you give emphasis to your mouth? Then choose your lipstick with care. Avoid true reds. If the mouth is to display its good points, graceful outlines, keep as close to the natural coloring as possible. Brilliant coloring is an old story. Today we have a keen perception of beauty. The slap-dash method of putting on complexion highlights is outmoded.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

She Should be Invited Directly by Her Fiance's Family

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My fiance lives with his parents in a city some distance from where I live. Next month I am going there to meet his parents, and because their home is too small to accommodate guests, I am staying at a nearby hotel. I am under the impression that I should pay my hotel expenses while there, even though my fiance requested me to come. Am I correct? And even though my fiance did ask me to come and offered to send money to defray my travelling expenses and hotel expenses, shouldn't I pay my own way?

2. What is the correct way for me to sign the hotel register?

T. W.

1. I believe that you should put your plans to "meet" your fiance's parents on a firmer, more dignified and self-respecting basis. In the first place you shouldn't even consider making this trip unless or until your fiance's mother has written directly to you inviting you to come, explaining the fact that they have no guest room but that if you will come, they will make arrangements for you to stay at a nearby hotel. The fact that your fiance "requested you to come" is definitely not an adequate invitation for this so-significant visit; this invitation must be seconded by his mother, particularly since it involves accommodation-explanation.

In her letter to you I should think it would be natural for her to make it clear that "you are, of course, our guest at the hotel, as you would be if you were staying at our house." If you have not received any word of invitation or plans from your fiance's mother, you should write him saying that you and your mother cannot make any definite plans for your coming until you receive word directly from his mother that the visit is convenient and agreeable to her.

Don't be self-conscious about writing such a letter; it has to be done to set right such plans-for-visiting. Your fiance and his mother will respect your showing that you know what's what, and I should think your family would feel more satisfied with definite plans. You should pay your own travelling expenses; and unless your fiance's mother makes clear in her letter that you are to be their guest at the hotel you of course must assume your hotel expenses. Really more important than your questions about expenses are the questions you and your family should be considering now as to your being properly invited and safely provided for by your fiance's family.

2. Miss Theresa Wilson is the proper form of name for you to sign on the hotel register.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Her Heart Was Broken Once—Now She's Afraid to Love Again

If you bit into a wormy apple, would you give up eating apples forever because you were afraid of getting another wormy one? Of course you wouldn't!

If you threw yourself into a chair that had a weak leg, and it broke and you sat down hard and got some beautiful bruises, would you sit on the floor the rest of your life rather than trust yourself to another chair? Well, hardly.

Or if you bought something in a store and when you got home found the clerk had short-changed you, would you stop shopping for all time? Certainly not.

What you would do in such cases would simply try to be more careful next time. That is, you would if you had the sense to learn from experience. If you didn't, naturally the same things would be likely to happen to you again.

What I'm leading up to is this: It wouldn't be any sillier to give up eating apples or sitting in chairs or shopping just because you got a bad break once when you did one of these things, than it would be to decide you daren't love anybody ever again just because someone once let you down.

Here's a girl who feels that way:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I am 19 years old and I met a fellow in the Air Force who is 23. He said he loved me and asked me to wait for him till he got his discharge. But he now has his discharge, and I have received only one letter from him, although he has been away from here for weeks.

"I have been going with another fellow whom I've known only a very short while, but I like him lots. Mom thinks I should wait to see if E.W.C., comes back before I start dating again, but I've waited so long for him it does look a little hopeless.

"You see, Miss Fairfax, my heart was broken once by a fellow I waited for three years, and I still love him terribly. I could never love E.W.C., or anyone else as much. I'm trying very hard to avoid another heartbreak. I'm really afraid to love anyone for that reason. I still love this man too much, I know, but he has a corner of my mind filled with his memories, and they just won't seem to let me alone. I'm also very much afraid this love I'm still holding will come between me and any fellow I marry. Understand, please. I don't want to hang on to this love that I know can never be, but I seem to be helpless.

"Should I wait for E.W.C., or go on having dates with other fellows? Do you think there's a chance of E.W.C. coming back.

"Worried Mind"

I'm afraid I can't agree with your mother in this. I think you should put E.W.C., out of your mind and go out with any other young man who invites you. If E.W.C., should come back, with a sound explanation of why you didn't hear from him and you yourself wish to give him another chance, that's another matter. But I think you would be very foolish indeed to cross other boys off your list and just sit home waiting.

As for being afraid to love anyone else because someone once treated you badly—well, I've alerady told you what I think about that. You've got to take a chance on people in this world. No guarantee comes yith any of them. If one of them lets you down, it hurts, of course. But the sensible person just charges it off to experience and tries again, being a little more careful, if possible, to find out if the man is worth loving before giving him a heart to keep. You don't have to "hang on to this love" if you don't want to. Just keep going and it'll fade out of itself. That's the way Nature is about such things.

Make Bright Show Of Welsh Woollens

By ADELAIDE KERR
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, (CP)— The woollen industry of Wales, sadly crippled when women ceased wearing flannel petticoats, shows it has recovered much of its vigor with a display of brightly-colored checked blankets, and honeycomb weave quilts and traditional flannels which were on show at the International Wool Secretariat here.

Nearly all had an air of individuality and freshness of color, probably because the industry is still confined to small mills and factories. Many of the exhibits were handwoven and most of the wool was from local sheep.

The rugs and blankets were in a variety of mixed rich colors with one spectacular one in peacock blue with an orange and black design. The honeycomb weave quilts were generally pink and white or blue and white while some of the Welsh flannels were in the traditional black and red stripes or checks for the Welsh national costumes. Others were plain with a natural yarn spun with the colored threads giving flocked shades.

Lady Megan Lloyd George, in opening the exhibition, gave some background on this oldest of Welsh industries, its decline and hopes for the future.

She said the Welsh woollen industry existed in the 11th and 12th centuries as a domestic craft and later on all parts of Wales had their own little industry and could cater not only for local needs but also had a surplus to export.

"But when," Lady Megan said, the capital resources to do so and except for small scattered units the industry died out."

Today Wales can produce little more than she requires for herself but the quality of the materials produced is high, and with way to artificial silk flimsies the industry began to decline rapidly. Wales did not take advantage of the new mechanical inventions, one reason was she did not have "the pink flannel petticoat gave the great demand for export trade the Welsh woollen industry hopes to obtain financial help to reorganize to meet modern demands.

Highlights and Eye Shadow

Hilary Brooke adds sophis tication with eye shadow

By HELEN FOLLETT

GIRLS who practice the slap-dash method of applying make-up have no business playing with eye shadows, they call for real technique. These enchanting pigments for the eyelids belong to the smartie who is put together perfectly to the last thread, whose coiffure has every hair in place, who is of the mode, strictly up to beauty par. She can get away with them.

Eye shadows are final grand flourish in makeup. On the sophisticated type they are mysteriously enchanting. They throw the shy and modest violet completely out of character unless she carries an air of chic.

Blue Favorite

Ever since shadows have been an item in the make-up kit, blue has been the favorite color. It is the good old steady stand-by for blondes, brunettes and the betwixt-and-betweens. If the eyes are blue, the application must conform, so it will not make the eyes play second beauty fiddle.

It is better to have them too light than too dark. The blonde charmer may find sage green more flattering than blue; one must experiment.

On the redhead, green soul window shutters are wunnerful. They not only enhance the eyes, but they form an enchanting contrast to the flaming thatch. A combination of olive and bronze does the business if the hair is a dark auburn. Get two compacts, apply the olive over the bronze, blending with light movements of the fingertips.

Grey and Brown

Be wary of grey and brown shadows. They're lined up with the rest of them on cosmetic counters, but beauticians are not keen about them. You'll find purple; if applied recklessly one is likely to look as if one had accidentally acquired facial bruises.

Mauve is something else again. On the white-crested woman who has blue eyes and the delicate transparent complexion that comes with the year, they are honeys and no mistake.

BODY IDENTIFIED

Hamilton, March 23 —(CP)— Police last night identified a body recovered from Hamilton Bay as that of Melbourne Hedley Hanson, 54, of Hamilton, missing since last Dec. 29 and prior to that in poor health.

Jobs Follow Organization—

But Employers and Workers Must Assist

Organization of Canada's manpower during the war was made possible through co-operation of employers and workers.

This co-operation is no less necessary to assist in organizing the employment market during the present critical period.

Some manpower controls still remain. These are still law. They are aimed at assisting in organizing the employment market.

Remaining controls are designed to help employers and workers—and actually require only minor assistance from the public.

YOU ARE URGED TO COMPLY WITH THE FOUR CONTROLS WHICH REMAIN:

1. Employers MUST notify the National Employment Office of any need for workers, as soon as that need is known—and before anyone is engaged to fill the employment vacancy.
2. Where employers engage workers outside the National Employment Service they MUST notify the nearest NES Office within three days, that an employee has been engaged. (Form NSS 312 is provided for this purpose.)
3. Unemployed workers seeking employment MUST register with the National Employment Office if unemployed for 7 consecutive days.
4. Generally speaking, any employer or employee MUST give 7 days' notice to the other party of any intention to terminate employment. (Form NSS 120 is still required.) Exceptions may be learned from the nearest NES Office.

The partners to industry—employers and employees—should help the National Employment Service to promote a high level of employment by complying with these simple rules.

Only with public support can an employment service give full assistance to the community.

Make full use of the Local Office of the National Employment Service. It is there to serve your needs, and those of the entire Community.

3 Junior Teams Eliminated Over Weekend From Further Competition for Memorial Cup

Oshawa Generals, Montreal Concordias and Port Arthur Flyers Fall by the Wayside

(By The Canadian Press)

The annual springtime scramble for Canadian hockey honors was boiling right down to essentials today, with only six junior teams left in the hunt for the Memorial Cup and 10 senior teams surviving in the race for the Allan Cup. Over the weekend three junior teams were eliminated from further competition but the seniors remained as-you-were.

In the junior fight Toronto St. Michaels overwhelmed the Oshawa Generals 9-0, at last winning the O.H.A. junior title by four victories against two losses in a best-of-seven final. Montreal Canadiens eliminated Montreal Concordias by two victories to one in their best-of-three affair. Concordias had won a bitter 9-8 overtime struggle Saturday but Canadiens took the clincher 8-6 yesterday.

The third junior team losing by the wayside was the Port Arthur Flyers, beaten by Winnipeg Monarchs 8-3 in the fifth game of their best-of-seven western semi-final. Winnipeg won by 4 games to one.

Beavers Win One

Along the senior trail Saint John Beavers came back with a 6-5 victory over Hamilton Tigers, to tie up the best-of-three playoff between the Maritime and Ontario champions at a game apiece. Pembroke Lumber Kings walloped Cornwall Falcons 13-1 in the first of the best-of-three Ottawa district final. Montreal Royals took a 2-1 lead over Ottawa Senators in their best-of-five final when the Royals edged out a 3-2 victory in the third game.

In the west, the British Columbia senior final was tied at a game apiece in the best-of-five affair when Trail Smoke Eaters edged New Westminster 3-2. And the western semi-final between Calgary Stampeders and Winnipeg Orioles opened with a 5-1 victory for Calgary. This is a best-of-five series.

In the junior competition eastern semi-finals open this week.

Montreal Canadiens and Ottawa St. Pat's start their best-of-three series at Montreal Tuesday. Toronto St. Mikes and Copper Cliff Redmen, titleholders of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association, clash for the all-Ontario title in a two-game total goal series with games at Toronto on Wednesday and Saturday.

The western junior final between Winnipeg Monarchs and Edmonton Canadiens, a best-of-seven series, opens at Edmonton Tuesday night.

Oshawa Generals looked only a shadow of their old selves when Toronto St. Michaels trounced them Saturday in Oshawa. It was the third straight victory for St. Mikes, for whom Leo Costello and Eddie Harrison each had 3 goals, the others coming from Tod Sloan, Bob Paul anl Eddie Sanford. The Generals seemed out of the picture entirely after the first 10 minutes of play.

The Oshawa game was fairly peaceful, in contrast to the last previous game at Toronto which resulted in Generals' Coach Charlie Conacher being notified to appear before the O.H.A. executive to show cause why he should not be suspended for abusive language. Twelve penalties were handed out Saturday, seven going to St. Mikes, and the only real flare-up came in the last three minutes when Fleming Mackell of St. Mikes and Ross Lowe of Oshawa drew majors for fighting.

KITCHENER KIDS STILL ONE OF BEST LINES IN HOCKEY

Lead Boston Bruins to 5-2 Victory Over Detroit Red Wings

Detroit, March 25 — (CP) — Boston's Kitchener kids served notice last night they are still one of the National Hockey League's best lines when they led the Bruins to a 5-2 victory over Detroit Red Wings and a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven games semi-final Stanley Cup series.

Milt Schmidt, Bobby Bauer and Woody Dumart, hot and cold during the regular season, really blazed as they scored four goals, assisted on the fifth and polled up a total of eight scoring points. The Wings didn't enter the scoring picture until the second half of the third period and by then it was too late.

Boston won the first game of the series 3-1, dropped the second 3-0, and the position looked bright for Detroit as the teams moved here for the next two games. But home ice didn't help the Red Wings whose hopes of reaching the cup finals are definitely drooping now.

Schmidt sent Boston into the lead in the third minute of the game, sweeping around defenceman Bill Hollett to drive the puck past Harry Lumley in the Detroit nets. He swept around the defence again soon after the second period started and passed to Dumart who poked in the second goal.

Detroit was still in the game up to this point but Bruins, who make a habit of scoring goals early in the period, had increased their margin to four goals before the third frame was two minutes old. Defenceman Pat Egan tallied the first on Bauer's pass, and Schmidt followed right up with the second.

Dumart got number five at 11:40, Bauer drawing the assist on this counter and Detroit finally broke the goose-egg a minute later when Fern Gauthier scored on Hollett's rebound.

The teams meet here again tomorrow night then move over to Boston for the fifth game Thursday.

CANADIENS DUNK BLACK HAWKS BY WINNING 3RD GAME

Veteran Toe Blake and Buddy O'Connor Prominent in 8-2 Score

By PIERRE Le MOYNE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Chicago, March 25 — (CP) — Montreal Canadiens, travelling as fast as they have at any time this season, stand one victory away from a place in the Stanley Cup final today after swamping Chicago Black Hawks for the third time in succession.

The National Hockey League champions rolled up the highest score of the best-of-seven semi-final series last night in drubbing the Hawks 8-2. They won the first two games in Montreal 5-1 and 6-2 and hold a 3-0 lead in the series.

Chicago, after going behind two goals in the first period, rallied to tie the score before the frame ended, but they wilted completely after that and the Montrealers drove home three goals in each of the last two periods without reply.

Veteran Toe Blake and Buddy O'Connor shared scoring honors for the Canadiens with two goals and an assist apiece. Blake's points, incidentally, raised his playoff total to nine, half-way to the N.H.L. playoff scoring record of 18 which he himself holds.

Kenny Mosdell, Murph Chamberlain, Maurice Richard and Bobby Filion were the other Canadiens scorers, while Max Bentley and Clint Smith tallied for Chicago.

The teams meet here again tomorrow night, returning to Montreal for a fifth game Thursday —if it is necessary.

Louis Reduces Only a Pound In Two Weeks

By The Canadian Press

Although he has been cut down to two meals a day, Joe Louis, defending heavyweight champion, has been able to reduce his avoirdupois from 220 to 219 pounds in two weeks of training at West Baden, Ind., for his title bout at New York in June. His handlers said, however, he would get down to serious business when he moves to his camp at Pompton Lakes, N.J., in a couple of weeks.

Contender Billy Conn revealed at Pittsburgh, however, he had knocked off 10 pounds, was down to 190 and aimed to weigh 182 pounds when he climbs into the ring to face Louis.

After doing his running as a Canadian serviceman for several years, Gerald Cote of Ste. Hyacinthe, Que., returned to civilian competition Saturday at Medford, Mass., to win the annual 20-mile road race, a tune-up for the Boston marathan April 20.

Sprint champion of Australia, Brian Dunn Saturday equalled the world record of 5.4 seconds held by George Parker, American, since 1914 when he won the 50-yard dash in that time at Sydney.

Hannie Termeulen of Holland won the 100-yard free-style swimming event at London Saturday in 60 seconds flat to establish a new record of the British Amateur Swimming Association.

By a wide margin of points, Musina, Italian heavyweight boxing champion, defeated Primo Carnero, former world titleholder, in a match at Aireste.

In answer to increasing agitation, accompanied by numerous convictions against bookies, the New Zealand government announced at Wellington the appointment of a Royal Commission to study the anti-gambling laws of the Dominion. Bookmaking has been illegal for 30 years.

An entirely new team headed by Pauline Betz was named Saturday at New York to represent the United States in the Wightman Cup tennis competitions against Great Britain at Wembledon June 14-15. The last contest was staged in 1939 at Forest Hills, N. Y.

The jumping competition, final event yesterday of the International Ski Tournament at Zermatt, Switzerland, was won by Leo Laakso of Finland with leaps of 184 and 197 feet.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By GEORGE H. CARVER.

With no intention of letting any grass grow under his feet, President Don Thomas of the Belleville City Baseball League has called a special meeting of his executive for Tuesday night to appoint three other directors to the governing body. The conclave holds forth at 8 p.m. in the sports emporium of one Red Townsend. Directors are urged to be at the rendezvous on time so that important matters may be discussed.

Baseball, like hope, is springing in the eternal sports breast, and the latest reports have it that the northern sections of the county are going in for the summer pastime in an organized manner. Coe Hill and Bancroft have organized junior squads and are desirous of forming an O. B. A. Junior "C" group which should meet with the approval of the smaller centres in the county and district. With these two squads as a nucleus, efforts are being made to interest Marmora, Madoc and perhaps Tweed, into what could be a nice league. Picton has a junior "C" team organized and may possibly be induced to enter providing the distance does not appear to be too great.

As a matter of fact the loop is already in the form of organization with Coe Hill and Bancroft entered. The appearance of Tweed and Marmora and Madoc in the league which will operate under the O.B.A. would give fans of the northern part of the county some outstanding summer entertainment. It seems the youngsters of the north are just as anxious to play baseball as their southern cousins, and being in a more or less isolated spot, would take a great deal of interest in organized sport. Representatives of Marmora, Madoc, Tweed or any other northern community desirous of organizing and entering a Junior "C" squad should contact Ken J. Colling at Kingston General Hospital, Kingston.

And in passing we might mention the fact that we overlooked Trenton. While we have no definite information here regarding junior "C" talent in the sports-conscious community to the west, there might be sufficient youngsters up there to form a squad. How about it, lads?

A RUDE AWAKENING

Before Billy Rogell, one-time great Detroit shortstop, moved up to the big leagues, he was a milkman and the one customer he particularly delighted to serve was his idol, Oscar Melillo of the Browns. Each morning Rogell would clatter up the Melillo steps and cheerfully sing out: "Oh, Mr. Melillo. Here's your milk," thus awakening his hero.

* * *

Years later Rogell was a base runner, taking a lead off second. Then he noticed that Melillo was standing on the bag, peering quizzically at him. "Do you remember those days, Billy," asked Oscar, "when you used to wake me up every day while delivering my milk?"

"I sure do," said the Tiger ace, happily.

"That's a long time ago," continued Melillo, dreamily, "and I've been waiting all these years for the chance to wake you up. The time has come, Billy, and revenge is sweet."

* * *

After that rather vague conversational preliminary Melillo flicked out his glove and tagged Rogell between the shoulder blades. He'd caught him fast asleep off second with a hidden-ball play. It was needless to say, a rude awakening.

THERE AINT NO MO'

Oshawa Generals cannot say they didn't get "kissed" on Saturday night. Speaking from a rubber osculation standpoint, the affair was a one-sided "kissing" melee with the Green of St. Mikes dishing out nine loud smacks squarely on the Generals kisser without a comeback. For the Green rose in its might, hurled back the Generals bid in the first period with two nifty goals, then just to show they weren't in a jocular mood, poured five more passed a stunned Generals' team and added two in the final chukker to put the Junior "A" championship in the well-known container.

But, according to city fans, not a few of whom saw the fireworks, the score does not indicate the difference in play or the teams. St. Mike's got the first tally early in the first period, and the Gens unleashed a furious attack for the next ten minutes that saw them hit the goal-post three times. The Green on a breakaway scored their second goal, and after that it "wuz the Oirish." Feelings ran high throughout the pastime and the kids of both squads carried sticks high and their gloves loose. St. Michael's proved themselves the better squad on Saturday night, but they had to give the best they had at all times to down the plucky fighting little Generals from the Motor city.

GOAL-FEST

Goal-hungry fans down Kingston way had their appetites satiated on Saturday night when the Kingston Locos and Collingwood Shipbuilders staged one of the wildest scoring orgies seen in the Harty Arena in many a moon. Twenty-three pucks sizzled by both goalies and when the rubbery smoke had cleared the Choo-Choos had fourteen racked up on the credit side of the shinny ledger. The victory evened the two-of-three series between the squads and the third game of the second round of the Intermediate "A" playdowns will be played in Kingston tonight, the Collingwooders deciding to stay over and finish the series there instead of both squads making the arduous trip to their home bailiwick.

A couple of the boys who had gazed on the wine when it was much, too much of a scarlet hue, and who had rinkside seats at the game, decided to blow their enthusiasm in an unusual manner. After several shots of tonsil irritant they figured they were so high, the only way to reach terra firma was to flutter to earth somewhat after the style of a paratrooper, but in reverse. They took off from the rinkside, poised more or less gracefully in midair, then while a packed house roared its pleasure, landed on their noggins on the ice surface. They apparently struck a part of the ice which was hard, for they had to be escorted, by the lads in blue from the ice, and their hockey for the evening was over.

Bowmanville's Intermediate basketeers proved too scientific for the Trenton Fliers on Saturday night, defeating them 43-32 in the second game of their total-point series and winning the round by a 7-point margin. Fliers defeated the winners in the first game 36-34. The air force lads were eliminated after going through a highly successful season in their district, and they went down fighting before a team that held only a slight edge on them in all-round play.

Five of Coach Ed Shortt's Intermediate girl basketballers, bolstered by two subs, trekked along with the Fliers and defeated a Bowmanville girls team 23-9 in a smart prelim to the men's game. The game was an exhibition affair, and was played in order to give the local colleens a chance to keep in trim for the all important Toronto tournament.

Minneapolis Millers Win Two Over Weekend

By The Canadian Press

Minneapolis Millers featured play in the last weekend of the regular United States Hockey League season, trimming Omaha, 5-3, Saturday and St. Paul 2-1 Sunday. The double victory at the expense of the loop's second and third teams gave a measure of satisfaction to the hard-luck Millers who never emerged from the league cellar all year but showed occasional flashes of top-notch form.

In the other Sunday encounter, Kansas City stopped Omaha, 9-5, and settled down to await the opening of their semi-final series in Kansas City Tuesday against St. Paul. Omaha will entertain Tulsa in the other playoff opener.

The victory cost the Pla-Mors the services of defenceman Leo Reise for at least one game. The burly blueline man suffered a cut tendon in the left leg. Wingy Johnstone took four stitches to close a scalp cut. Balm for 5,000 Kansas City fans was a goal and two assists by big Butch McDonald, to give him 95 points for the season and an eight-point edge over his nearest rival, Peewee Reed of Dallas.

Fort Worth took Dallas, 5-3, Saturday while Tulsa bowled over the Pla-Mors, 7-4 in the fifth game of the weekend.

Doubtful Whether St. Louis Cards Can Repeat Without Third Baseman

By GAYLE TALBOT

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 25 — (AP) — As most of the Florida-based clubs went into their final full week of training today before breaking camp and heading north, this question was being asked with increasing interest:

"Can St. Louis Cardinals do it without Whitey Kurowski?"

Up until a few days ago, there was an almost unanimity of opinion among baseball men in Florida, at least, that the St. Louis club would romp to the National League title behind its superb pitching.

But many of the boys have begun to waver since it has become apparent that Kurowski, the star third-baseman who hit .323 and drove in 102 runs last season, has no intention of reporting to the Cards at the salary President Sam Breadon is willing to pay him.

They are saying now that unless Breadon can obtain a run-producer in exchange for Kurowski, it is likely to be an extremely close race, with the Cubs fully capable of winning out if their pitching stands up.

Manager Eddie Dyer is understood to be insistent that Breadon not sell Kurowski outright to Boston Braves or any other club, but get him another hitter in return.

Red Schoendienst, who is filling in for Kurowski at the moment and doubtless will start the season at third, unless Whitey reports soon, is experiencing some arm trouble and is getting the ball across to first slowly.

Oshawa Victors Defeated By St. Michael's

Toronto, March 25 — (CP) — Toronto St. Michael's College won the Ontario midget hockey championship by defeating Oshawa Victors 3-2 Saturday after Northern Ontario representatives had been eliminated in the semi-finals.

The victory came at the end of two days of lively midget hockey battles in Maple Leaf Gardens.

The semi-finals saw Oshawa Victors down Sudbury Red Wings 4-1 and St. Michael's trounce Copper Cliff Rangers 6-2.

In the final, Bob Holland notched the first Irish counter midway through the second frame and assisted Prendergast on another a minute later. Solo rushes by Esposito and Bradley tied the score near the end of the session. Prendergast's second tally with less than a minute of the second period remaining gave St. Michael's the deciding marker.

The series started Friday when the Sudbury district's midget N.H.L., with Georgetown and Weston affiliated, moved its playoffs to the Maple Leaf Gardens. By Friday night, Copper Cliff Rangers had won the midget NHL title.

Saturday they entered a series with Sudbury Red Wings, St. Michael's College minor midgets of the Toronto Hockey League, and Oshawa Victors of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association for the all-Ontario title.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Montreal, March 25 (CP) — Most sports are recovering with a rousing bang from the effects of the late war, but tennis is one pastime which is bound to feel the pressure for some time to come.

Lack of tournament competition through the war years has left the boys rusty, and those pre-war stars who were in the services didn't get much of a chance to keep the moss off their pet shots. The hockey, football, baseball, etc., followers had lots of chance to keep their hand in, but tennis as a strictly individualist sport wasn't given much attention in military athletic programs naturally.

So, the season just around the corner won't see as much dazzling play but will be devoted to rebuilding interest and redeveloping talent, according to prexy Charles Leslie of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association.

Even the boys trying to get an early start on the season's play are having a rough time. Don McDairmid, the Dominion's ranking ace, felt pretty good about getting on the courts the other day on the earliest date known in Ottawa but he must have wondered if the robins weren't wrong when the female stars had to leave to take their part in that skating show!

On Wry:

Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson tells this one about the second Canadiens-Hawks playoff tilt: Max Bentley, morose about the way he and his linemates have been fenced in during the series, was sitting on the penalty bench when Canadiens' Leo Lamoureux came dawdling by.

"Max," says Leo, "the way you're going you'll never make the all-star team."

"The hell with the all-star team," Bentley growled, then opined, "come to think of it, I'll be lucky to stay in the league, the way we're going."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

LESSON NO. 944.
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

I love little Kitty. Her cooking's divine. When Kit plays bridge with me, I'd much rather dine. Her bidding is stinko. She leads in a daze. But when she makes biscuits, who cares how she plays.

Whip up a batch of interest in this pair of hands.

SOUTH
♠Q 7
♥A K Q 6 4
♦K 9 8 7
♣9 8

NORTH
♠A K 9
♥J 10 9
♦Q J 5
♣5 4 3 2

The bidding should go like this:

SOUTH	NORTH
1 H	1 NT
2 H	3H
4 H	Pass

Almost any bridge pair would reach a game contract in hearts with these cards. Not all may use the same bids to get there. But there is no accounting for some tastes.

An opening one bidder says his pair expects to take seven tricks. The opener promises five of them. His partner is assumed to have two. With that as a basis each raise in number by either uses up another trick.

When north responds with one no-trump, it is not a raised number. So, he does not consume a third trick. Only when he bids three hearts over two hearts is his third trick used up.

The heart assist by north admits what suit is best for trump. With his own seven and partner's three, south can accurately count the ten tricks needed for a game contract.

Many players have never learned such an accurate method for the counting of combined tricks. Some have never even heard of it. They were weaned on a different count that requires some guessing.

Ask a guesser how many tricks he has and he will usually state "about" so many. Or he will tell you he has "so many and a half." He seldom announces the exact number.

A customary guesser is frequently a presser.

Hollywood Column

Hollywood, March 25 (AP) — Four years ago a 14-year-old girl from Scranton, Pa., decided she wanted to be a movie star. She barged into a talent scout's office in New York and told him of her ambition. No matter how hard or how long it would take, she knew she could make it. She was signed then and there.

Ten years ago one of the Bethlehem Steel Company's heirs left school and decided to try his hand at acting.

The girl is Beverly Tyler and the boy is Tom Drake. Today they are playing the leading roles in M.G.M.'s "The Green Years." Their histories add two new chapters to the Hollywood success story.

Tom was spotted in a Broadway production of "Janie" and whisked out to Hollywood in 1943. He arrived on a Monday and two days later was given a leading role in "Two Girls And a Sailor."

Drake continued to get supporting roles and was slowly being typed as an adolescent. The bobbysoxers filled his mail box with their letters. But he was becoming dubious of his potentialities.

Four weeks from now "The Green Years" will have its premiere at the New York City Music Hall and the tall, brown-haired heir who shut his books in the hope of fame via the entertainment field will have his chance to convince himself of his ability.

Errol Flynn won't be back before the Warner cameras for at least six months. He'll be seeing the world from the deck of his boat, "The Zaca."... John Carradine has demanded $50,000 damages from his former wife, Ardanelle, charging that she had him falsely imprisoned last summer in an alimony dispute, causing him to lose a valued role.

Dates for Royal Canadian Henley Set at Meeting

Toronto, March 25. (CP) Dates for the Royal Canadian Henley Regatta at St. Catharines next Summer and new weight classifications were established Saturday at a meeting of the Canadian Association of amateur oarsmen attended by delegates from Hamilton, St. Catharines, Ottawa and Toronto.

Plans for a record Henley were made for the big rowing meeting to be held over the Port Dalhousie course July 24, 25, 26 and 27. Practically all rowing clubs have benefited by the return of first-class athletes from the fighting services.

During the war years, the 140 pound and 150 pounds classes were eliminated in favor of a 145 pound class. The C.A.A.C. will restore the accepted weights but will also retain the 145 pound class and 155 pound classes as an experiment designed to accommodate the growing demand for heavier weights.

The Association pointed out that Canadian young men would appear to be growing in weight and stature, and the race weights change accordingly.

A committee was appointed to consider a definite point system of scoring for the various events. The system used by the National Association in the United States is said to be too complicated for the Canadian Association when it comes to singles, doubles, fours and eights.

The meeting heard suggestions that the C.A.A.O. assist in financing rowing clubs from coast to coast, with the aim of developing the sport across Canada and augmenting entries at the annual Henley.

Kingston Locos Even Series With Collingwood

Kingston, March 25. (CP)—By beating Collingwood 14-9 Saturday night, Kingston Locos tied their O.H.A. Intermediate A best-of-three playdown series 1-1. The third game is to be played here tonight.

McGregor and Carr-Harris each ran in four goals for Locos, Catlin and Partis collected two each, and Lay and Nicholson each added one. Scott, Davie, and White each got two for Collingwood, and McGuire, R. Sandell and Kirby notched one apiece.

On the offensive most of the time, Locos scored three goals in the first period, six in the second and five in the third. Collingwood got one in the first, four in the second and four in the final frame.

The hectic second period with 10 goals and five penalties also saw two men injured, Partis for Locos and McGuire for Collingwood, and attendants carry out two drunks who fell on their heads on the ice.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, March 25 (AP) — New York Rovers' Freddie Metcalfe, one of the best coaches in amateur hockey, is taking on a big responsibility for one of the few propressive moves that sport has made around New York.... This spring the American Hockey League blossomed out with a promotion program and now Tom (Double-Header) Lockhart has handed Metcalfe the task of trying to develop new talent where hockey talent never has been found before...Lockhart, who continued to boss local amateur hockey though he has moved up to the pro Rangers, explains it this way:...Metcalfe will have charge of a couple of junior leagues which may produce some players for the metropolitan or eastern circuits. He will continue to coach the Rovers and scout for the Rangers in the off season and next winter he'll conduct a weekly school for high school, college and club coaches...The last is probably the biggest job of all, for one hitch in developing young players outside Canada has been that the kids had no one to show them the right way to play.

Brawn Not Glamor In Aussie Contest

Sydney, Australia, March 25—(CP) — On the heels of a "Miss Australia" competition has come the search for "Mr. New South Wales" but instead of glamor pictures of themselves in swimsuits, men contestants are sending pictures of Jersey cows, pumping plants and silage pits to impress judges.

The winner of the New South Wales Agriculture Bureau's progressive farmer competition will tour American farming districts for six months as the guest of the United States Government's Department of Agriculture.

Farmer contestants are being judged not only as growers, organizers, businessmen and citizens, but on the letters they write, their self-confidence and charitable instincts.

When "Mr. New South Wales" returns home, the Agriculture Bureau hopes to arrange a reciprocal tour of Australia for an American farmer.

QUOTES PONTIFF

Baltimore, March 25 — (AP)— Pope Pius was quoted yesterday by an officer of the United States Naval Reserve, in an interview with the Baltimore Sun, as having said he approved the manner in which the Nuernberg trials were being conducted. The pontiff also declared he "wanted to see justice done" at the trials.

Toronto, March 23 —(CP)— Mrs. Arthur Robertson of Haliburton, 50 miles east of Toronto, youthful mother of five children, has been missing from her home for 10 days, it was learned last night.

Rumored John Dick Feared for Life

Hamilton, March 25. (CP)— Rumors that John Dick, 40-year-old bus driver whose torso was found on the Hamilton Mountain March 16, had told a friend on March 5 that he "feared for his life" today widened the mystery surrounding his slaying.

Police have established that Dick was last seen on the morning of March 6. He was seen drinking coffee at a stand near the car- barns that morning—but he did not report for work that day. Police also disclosed that Dick's money-changing machine with $75 in tickets and cash, and his uniform cap and coat, were still missing.

There was nothing definite about the statement of a friend of Dick's that the man feared for his life. It was intimated however that in some manner Dick might have stumbled on to some information that made him a dangerous person to some one. Inspector C. W. Wood, of the Provincial Police Criminal Investigation branch, replied "I don't know," when asked about rumors that an "imported gunman" was being sought.

Police are still searching for the head, arms and legs. Only the torso was found accidentally at a lonely spot a week ago Saturday.

The slain mans widow, Mrs. Dick, is held in custody on remand on a charge of vagrancy, and also held is William Bohozyk, amateur oarsman, charged with vagrancy and with possession of an unregistered revolver.

Mrs. Dick's father, Donald MacLean, age 62, was charged in court yesterday with stealing a quantity of street-car tickets from the Hamilton Street Railway, of which he was an employee, like his son-in-law. MacLean was remanded on $2,000 bail until Friday.

Canadian Engineers Repair German Roads

Oldenburg, Germany, March 25 (CP) — Since the establishment of the Canadian army occupational force last fall, stretches of German road equalling the distance from Montreal to Saint John, N.B., have been repaired by No. 1 Canadian CRE (Command Royal Engineers) Works of Oldenburg.

This work, which required 75 trainloads of crushed rock and 5,000 tons of tar, is only part of more than 1,100 jobs the 175-man unit has done. Others include normal maintenance on barracks, repairs to the Oldenburg airport buildings and a contribution to civilian housing of 50 wooden huts produced in the Osnabruck factory and 40 others salvaged from the Freisian Islands.

The unit makes use of army, civilian and German prisoner of war labor.

Formation of Junior "C" Baseball League Under Way in North Hastings District

There is a strong possibility that holiday-makers and vacationists, tourists etc., who while away the balmy summer days in the beautiful stream-slashed, forested hills of North Hastings, will get a tasty dessert of baseball added to their pleasure this year.

For it seems that Mr. A. G. Giles, secretary of the North Hastings League, who gets his mail at Coe Hill, is seeking entries for a junior "C" loop, and already has two teams within the organization fold.

It's a fact Coe Hill and Bancroft the latter under the guidance of Mr. M. Burns, have gathered together some classy kid players and are readying them for organized baseball this year.

And they feel that two, three or four more teams of junior "C" calibre would be more than welcome and would round out a circuit that would make life pleasant for baseball fans in the north, and the centre and the south, too, for that matter.

Mr. Giles is anxious to get in touch with Marmora, Madoc and Tweed interests to find out if there is any possibility of securing entries from those villages. He feels that the inclusion of teams from Trenton and Picton would add more rivalry and color to the loop and will contact interests there.

While little or nothing is known as yet regarding the possibility of a Trenton entry, Lou Yanover of Picton has organized and will sponsor a junior "C" team. In the absence of "C" squads in this immediate district, it looks as though the Pictonians will be forced to play exhibition tilts until playdown time.

However, a Picton entry would receive favorable consideration, if transportation and distance prove no obstacle. Those desiring full information regarding the proposed "C" loop should contact Ken J. Colling, Kingston General Hospital or Mr. Giles at Coe Hill.

London Organist In Toronto Post

Toronto, March 25 (CP) — Canada's "developments and expansion in the arts" led a brilliant young Englishman, master of music at St. Martin-in-the-Fields London since 1938, to come to Toronto as organist and choirmaster of the Metropolitan Church. For S. Drummond Wolff, B. Mus, (London) F.R.C.O., A.R.C.M., wants to be part of this musical expansion "as a Canadian."

Holder of the Limpus Prize awarded for the highest marks in the F.R.C.O. examination, he studied under Sir Walter Alcock, organist of Salisbury Cathedral, and under Dr. Ernest Bullock, late organist of Westminster Abbey.

Under Lillian Massey Treble endowment, this appointment at Toronto's "Cathedral of Methodism" calls for a man who is a graduate of one of the four major English universities and a fellow of the Royal College of Organists, besides requiring him to give a certain number of free, public organ recitals every year.

Not only the office, but also the new holder, is unique. He broke precedent by inviting the congregation to come and have the organ explained to them. He also plans congregational singing rehearsals. The congregation at the famous old church in the heart of London became expert enough to sing well unaccompanied, he said.

Dr. Wolff, who also wishes to increase the choir, said: "I don't mind looking foolish occasionally if I can get good music as a result." Most enthusiastic about choral singing, for it uses human instruments, he hopes to accomplish much in this field, believing "an artistic approach to words and to meaning facilitates good phrasing in singing."

Remember When

Consternation among golf professionals was caused by a slow motion picture showing that Bobby Jones and Joyce Wethered had "unorthodox styles". That was 15 years ago today. The amazement didn't last long because it developed immediately that many other famous players also broke most of the dules laid down by professional teachers.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

CHAPTER 12

"There's one thing about my wife," Andrew Havens told Dina, "she's completely unpredictable. She says herself she's like a little girl who's discovered happiness for the first time in her life. She hates to hurt anyone and she hates anyone to be cross at her.

He reflected upon this with a half-smile and in obvious satisfaction while a salad was passed and presently said in a confidential undertone:

"When we met each other," he continued as Dina listened, absorbed. "I'd just arrived here in California; I didn't know any of these people, and I didn't know that Aline was engaged to Rogers. She didn't tell me! D'you see the consideration there, Miss Cashman? She didn't want to hurt Rogers Holland, humiliate him. It wasn't until after we were married that she told me that she had had to break it off with him, and then—"

"Then she said," he resumed, "that the very first dinner engagement we made must be here; she wanted Mr. Holland to know me and me to know him; there musn't be any hurt feelings or silences or anything unexplained! That, I think," Andrew finished with satisfaction, "gives your a pretty good idea of what she's really like. It's"—he spoke reverently—"it's angelic!" he said.

Dina drank nothing. She had been feeling physically upset all day and dared risk only a little chicken and some salad accompanied by the dry, crisp crackers and toasted breads which all these eating and drinking folk seemed to feel were helpful to reducing. It was therefore in a state of chill and weakness favorable for the wildest apprehension that she found herself accompanying the other women upstairs after the meal.

An enormous bedroom filled with comfortable chairs brightened by a wild fire had been placed at their disposal.

Dina sat in a big chair, shrinking back into the protection of its depths, watching the other women, listening to them, managing never quite to catch anyone's eye. But Aline, powdering her nose, touching the shining, flawless helmet of her black hair with a ringed hand, had no notion of letting her escape.

"How long have you known Rogers, Miss Cashman "

"Not—very long," Dina answered hesitantly.

"Your people's friend?"

She smiled demurely.

"I hope so."

Aline rose, strolled across the room, stood at the hearth looking down at Dina.

"Tell me something about yourself," she said winningly. "You see, I happen to know Rogers Holland extremely well. In fact, I was engaged to him."

"He told me," Dina said.

"So it seemed odd to me to find you here tonight—his ward, he said, didn't he —when he never mentioned you to me."

"Well, Aline," said a stout, handsome young woman who had been complaining bitterly of her slippers and now had them off and was studying one attentively, "I can imagine myself being engaged to a man, and even breaking the engagement, without expecting to know absolutely everyone he knew!"

"Certainly," Aline agreed sharply, resenting the reflection upon her common sense; "but I'm surprised, that's all. What did he tell you about me?" she demanded with an amused glance about the circle.

"That you were engaged and that you married someone else," Dina answered simply.

"I think you have the rottenest manners, Aline, I've ever seen in my entire life," the stout woman said dreamily, trying on a slipper and wincing.

"Rogers told me you asked him to give this party," another woman said reproachfully. "I think it was wonderful of Rogers to do it after the way you treated him."

"How did I treat him, Lucy," Aline asked, not opening her eyes.

"Well," began Lucy uncertainly. Dina could tell from her tone that she was a good-natured soul who disliked fomenting trouble. "I mean, you did throw him down pretty hard," she said; "the wedding date all set and everything. And we all know, no matter who you happen to be married to, that Rogers just blindly adores you."

"Can't help that." Aline opened her eyes, looked into space with the hint of a self-conscious smile on her lips. "I met Andy," she said eloquently.

"I met Andy!" Dina heard old Mrs. Prince mutter under her breath.

"D'you like him?" Aline was now demanding. "Now, tell me, everybody, don't you think he's really—no, but I mean, isn't he really divine?"

"Magnificent," someone said obligingly.

Dina was for the moment forgotten, and she was presently glad to drift downstairs with the other women and find Mrs. Bucket about to come up again, in search of her.

"Hall is here with the car when ever you're ready," said Mrs. Bucket.

"Oh, but I thought he said half-past ten!" Dina exclaimed her heart rising on a wave of relief.

"It's nearer eleven," Mrs. Bucket told her, smiling. You can say good night to Mr. Holland now if you like," she suggested. Dina who had been all ready for departure, was reminded of her manners and went at once into the big drawing room, where several card games were already in progress. Rogers was playing; he glanced up as she came near him and stood for a moment looking over his shoulder.

"Doubled and vulnerable — eight hundred. That'll learn 'em, Lucy! Nice bidding. And are you, going, my dear?" he added, rising to face Dina.

Dina walked beside him to the hall. Mrs. Bucket was waiting.

"You'll go home with her, Bucket?"

"I will indeed, sir."

"You were perfect, my dear," Rogers said to Dina, "and you carried off the honors of war splendidly. This"—he put an envelope into her hand— "is for you. Thank you very much, and my best wishes." He bowed.

"Nobody need go home with me'," Dina said, suddenly tired and depressed.

"Bucket will go, of course. And I mean," he said, "to see Vere's mother when she comes back from the East and have a talk with her. I'm only sorry that I can't promise you much from it."

"Thank you," she felt desolate, alone, and outside again. Silently she went with Mrs. Bucket to the housekeeper's room and began to discard her Cinderella finery for the street clothes that now looked cheap and tawdry.

"He was pleased, you could tell that," Mrs. Bucket said, shaking and folding the silver-and-white creation. "And you did look lovely at the head of the table, my dear.

Dina and Mrs. Bucket slipped quietly out of a side door, to find Hall and the car waiting. The looming, lighted bulk of the old Holland mansion faded away into the night; they coasted down the long avenue of trees.

"I wonder if I will ever see it again," Dina said half aloud.

"I had a feeling about you," Mrs. Bucket said unexpectedly.

"It was as if she—his wife — had come back. She wasn't anything like you, but I had a feeling just the same. Seeing you so lovely at the head of the table — you had a good time, didn't you?" she interrupted herself to ask, as Dina did not speak.

"Oh" yes—lovely." The girl's voice was lifeless. "Mrs. Havens is beautiful, isn't she?" she asked in turn.

"She's a beautiful devil," the other woman said. "I've never liked her, not from the first minute I saw her, and that would be fifteen or sixteen years ago. From the beginning she's been cold and hard and spoiled. She's got two children! What does she care! I don't know. What makes a man want to marry a woman like that, but they all do."

"Look at Mr. Holland now," Mrs. Bucket went on, as Dina did not speak, "You'd think he'd have better sense than to break his heart for her! Oh, I know, you think he's a little queer, being so fat, with his stamps and his glasses.

"But that's just the outside. There never was a finer boy than he was, twenty years ago. But life twisted him and hurt him, and he tries to get back to it. He was married, you know, to a quiet cold sort of woman—very small and delicate always, and dying—you might say—from her wedding day. One poor little baby she had after another, four of them, and they all died.

"Two days—three days—and the little things wilted like flowers. This was a dreadful house in those years, for he wanted a son and she did, too, and they came to see that there'd never be a healthy child. She lived eight or nine years after the last one, but she never was well. He watched her and cared for her; that was his life—"

"He loved her?" Dina put in.

"Yes, I think he did," the housekeeper said judicially; "but her being so ill ended his life, in a way. He got so that he was always here at home, and when she died five years ago he didn't change his ways at all."

"Mrs. Bucket," the girl said suddenly, "you know Vere Holland, don't you?"

"I do indeed. He comes here now and then. But Mr. Holland and his mother—she's taken the name Holland back again — don't get along. She's another of the Aline sort," said Mrs. Bucket.

"And do you think he—Vere" —Dina asked, trembling—"do you think he is good?"

"Vere? I don't know that I'd trust Vere too far," the woman answered thoughtfully. "There isn't a mean bone in his body, I'll say that for him, but his mother's spoiled him, and she's talked a lot of worldly nonsense at him too. It isn't right that any woman should talk of a man as she talks to him of his father. I've met Mr. Van Holland, and you wouldn't want to meet a nicer man. What's the matter with you?"

The question came suddenly, for Dina had leaned forward in the car and by the flashing of passing lights the other woman could see the tragedy in her face.

"Will you help me, Mrs. Bucket?" Dina asked breathlessly. "I'm in trouble. It was that that first made me go to see Mr. Holland. I've no one else to ask; I don't dare tell my father or mother; I don't know what to do!"

"What's the matter?" The housekeeper asked again. The change in her tone made Dina's heart sink. It was withdrawn, cautious. But Dina could not stop now.

"You see"—she stammered eagerly—"I know Vere Holland! I was trying to find him; I have to find him. But now, now I don't know what to do."

"Vere?" Mrs. Bucket demanded in a heavy, incredulous voice.

"Yes! We went about together all through November. And now he's gone away, and I have to see him; I have to talk to him! But I can't—I can't wreck his life."

Her voice sank. There was a silence, terrible to Dina.

Atomic Bomb Test Will be Delayed For Six Weeks

Washington, March 23 —(AP) —Officials said last night the atomic bomb test at Bikini Atoll would be delayed for six weeks.

The test, involving more than 100 warships, had been set for May 15. Under new plans it will be held about July 1.

An official who declined use of his name said the postponement was due to a conflict with the United Nations Conference in New York, preventing some observers from attending.

General Tai Li Reported Dead In Plane Crash

Chungking, March 25 (AP) — The widely-reported plane-crash death of Gen. Tai Li, head of China's secret police, has not been confirmed officially, but the Juomintang newspaper World Daily News said today that the government has selected Lt.-Gen. Cheng Chieh-Min as his successor.

Gen. Cheng, government commissioner at the Peiping executive headquarters and a member of the commission which arranged the truce with Chinese Communists, formerly was director of the intelligence department board of military operations of the National Military Council. Aged 47, he is a graduate of Moscow's Sun Yat-Sen University. He flew from Peiping to Chungking yesterday for a conference and then returned to Peiping.

Further evidence that Tai died in the crash of his special plane near Nanking March 17 was reported today by Shun Pao, one of Shanghai's most reliable newspapers.

A correspondent for the paper said the body of Tai Li, chief of the Supreme Military Council's Bureau of Investigation and Statistics, had been identified by his own chief of staff, Li Chuan-Shi, although it had been badly burned.

CANNOT MAKE COMMENT

Montreal, March 25 (CP) — Judge Rene Theberge, at the resumption today of the parliamentary hearing of Fred Rose charged with unlawfully communicating with Russia, voiced a warning that "all those who make comment on the guilt or innocence of a person before the court —will be treated according to the provisions of the law."

Judge Theberge spoke after Special Prosecutor F. Philippe Brais, K.C., had drawn the court's attention to a pamphlet he said was being circulated in Montreal, headed "On Guard for Liberty, Citizens of Montreal! Freedom of Speech Denied!"

Chelmsford, England (CP) — Two 16-year-olds—John Davis, $11-a-week machine operator, and Mary Piggott of Springfield, were married recently at the registry office here. The justices gave their consent a few days before the marriage.

Toronto, March 25 — (CP) — Following a two-day meeting of union representatives, Harry Simon, American Federation of Labor organizer, said last night that Canadian car manufacturers would be presented with demands for wage increases for boys, men and women workers and that an organizational drive would be started.

MALARIA HITS BADLY BOMBED ITALIAN CITY

(By FRANK BRUTTO)

Cassino, Italy, March 25 (AP) —Death that two years ago stormed through and over Cassino todays lurks there in a strange form—malaria that continued to spread through the winter.

In the fierce Allied onslaught that destroyed the town March 15, 1944, some 3,000 of its inhabitants were killed and 4,000 wounded.

(Cassino finally fell to British and Polish troops May 18, 1944, in an Allied drive which also resulted in the capture of Esperia, overlooking the Liri Valley, and the coastal town of Formia. A Canadian armored brigade, veterans of previous engagements in Italy and Sicily, played a prominent role in smashing the Gustav Line in the early stages of the Spring offensive.)

Today, malaria is taking a quiet, enervating toll among the few thousand survivors who have trekked back to the ruins. On the rubble of the town's southern limit a sign announces and warns:

"Cassino—out of bounds — malignant malaria."

Amidst the ruins, the people of Cassino are making no effort to drain shell holes full of mosquito breeding, stagnant water.

In the swampy fields— where once some 12,000 lived on neighboring farms—only 100,000 of an estimated 500,000 mines have been removed.

Barrack Quarters.

Only some 20 buildings have been or are being erected among the ruins of the town that once sheltered 12,000 people. Of the few thousands who have returned nearly all are quartered in 21 barracks laid out like dominoes south of the old town.

They live—most of them—from charity, the black market and a thin thread of hope for tourists who have not yet begun to arrive.

The Italian government does not plan to remove the ruins, but intends to let them lie—an awesome monument to modern warfare and—those of Cassino hope—a rival for Pompeii.

The wreckage of Cassino—where two powerful armies for months locked in equal combat ground everything about them into destruction—lies like a great white blaze on the earth.

Bone white stones spread on the plain, reach up the hill and end amidst the marble rubble of Monte Cassino Abbey. With the exception of the abbey, which will be rebuilt, they may lie there for centuries—bleaching in the wind, sun and rain.

A spark of life now has returned to that rubble, but it is a spark that accentuates the completeness of the surrounding ruin. British and Polish cemeteries, their crosses in clinical and ordered symmetry, still further emphasize the utter destruction.

North of the town first signs of the havoc are piles of unusued shells, broken guns, shattered tanks. The twisting, eight-kilometre road that leads to the famous monastery founded by Saint Benedict in 529 on the ruins of an ancient temple to Apollo — is strewn with shells, with duds, with twisted guns.

Two monks—gingerly lifting their cassocks—lead the way thru' the desolation. One in faltering English says, pointing to rubble: "Here 300 Italians." Three hundred Italian civilians who took refuge in the abbey lie under 60 feet of crumbled stone.

ENDED 'FLU

Man has demonstrated that the test tube, too, is mightier than the sword. He is Dr. Wendell M. Stanley, biochemist and member of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, Princeton, creator of the modern miracle that has ended the peril of flu epidemic forever. Dr. Stanley is the discoverer of the centrifuge type influenza vaccine that will provide immunity to the disease that has killed more people than all the wars in history.

BOYER SAYS HE GAVE ROSE REPORTS ON RDX

Byrnes Objects to Russ Proposal on Iran

Moscow Prefers No Outside Help In Russ-Iran Disputes

Gromyko Says Question Of Troop Withdrawal Settled

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, March 26 —(CP)— James F. Byrnes, United States secretary of state, objected sharply in the United Nations Security Council today to a Russian proposal that the council should reject Iran's appeal for help in settling its troubles with the Soviet Union.

Mr. Byrnes, who had been taking copious notes on the arguments of Soviet Ambassador Andrei Gromyko, arose immediately after the slow-voiced Gromyko finished his contention that the troubles were already settled as a result of the Moscow-Tehran agreement for withdrawal of Soviet troops.

Britain Wants Real Facts.

London — (CP) — A British Foreign Office spokesman said today Sir Alexander Cadogan had been instructed to ask Andrei Gromyko of the Soviet Union to explain "the real facts" of the Russian evacuation of Iran.

Sir Alexander and Gromyko are their countries' chief delegates at the New York meeting of the United Nations Security Council.

The spokesmen said messages were being exchanged "all the time" between Sir Alexander and Foreign Secretary Bevin of Britain.

Sir Alexander also has three other questions on his list, including a request for a Russian report on negotiations leading up to the announcement of the Russian evacuation and details of the terms to which Iranian Premier Amhed Qavam agreed.

Another British question posed to Moscow more than three weeks ago and still unanswered as the request for an explanation why Russia kept troops in Iran beyond the March 2 deadline for the withdrawal of soldiers under the British-Russian-Iranian treaty.

Meanwhile, two members of the House of Commons today were named to fly to Iran to make an unofficial inspection of Iran and to verify reports from Moscow and Tehran that Red Army troops were withdrawing.

Girl Wounded, Man is Held By Sarnia Police

Sarnia, March 26 — (CP) — Eighteen-year-old Ella Boyle was in serious condition in hospital today with bullet wounds in the breast and one arm, while police held Ivan Newstead, 27, on a charge of shooting with intent.

Police said the shooting at nearby Point Edward late last night was the result of a lovers' quarrel. Shortly after the girl had been wounded by a bullet fired through a kitchen door, Newstead gave himself up to police chief Hugh Peden of Point Edward and surrendered a second-hand .22 calibre rifle.

Police said Newstead told them that he and the girl had toured a good part of Canada, including Manitoba, and had reached Point Edward about three weeks ago where hte girl made her home with a relative.

According to police Newstead complained the girl had grown cold towards him and in a fit of depression he purchased a rifle and shells in Sarnia yesterday. Police said Newstead told them he went to the house where the girl was staying and fired through the window of the kitchen door.

The original place of residence of the pair was not established.

FRANKENSTEEN DEFEATED

Atlantic City, N. J., March 26 (AP)—Richard T. Frankensteen, union leader who was defeated by Edward J. Jeffries, incumbent in last year's Detroit mayoralty election, announced last night he would run for Congress next fall.

Mrs. Evelyn Dick Is Charged With Murder

Hamilton, March 26 —(CP)— Mrs. Evelyn Dick, 26, was charged today with the murder of her husband, John Dick, 40, whose torso was discovered 10 days ago off a district roadway.

The charge, laid by Inspector Charles Wood of the Ontario Provincial Police, alleged the crime was committed "on or about" March 6, 10 days before the mutilated corpse was discovered by playing children.

Mrs. Dick, who was separated from her husband last December after a marriage lasting only a few weeks, will appear in court tomorrow and it is expected the hearing will be adjourned.

Teeth, Finger And Toe Bones Said Found by Police

Hamilton, March 26 —(CP)— An alert neighbor who saw ashes being spread and dug into the earth on a lot in Hamilton is reported today to have led police to the discovery of teeth and finger and toe bones, said by police to be part of the remains of John Dick, Hamilton's torso slaying victim.

Another touch of the gruesome came in a report that the furnace of a Hamilton house yielded an almost complete human skull. These finds followed the news from police last night that a cement-lined suitcase containing the badly-decomposed body of a newborn infant had been found in the home of 26-year-old Mrs. Evelyn Dick, widow of the torso victim.

It was reported today that the case, which a police official promised would be one of the most sensational in 25 years, is near completion. It is said that officers have the full facts regarding disposal of the body and there remains but one angle to be cleared up. It was reported that this may involve another man.

There were indications in official circles that a charge of murder may be laid tomorrow.

The suitcase containing the baby's body was found in a cupboard by police searching her Garrick Street residence for clues in her husband's slaying.

SIGNS OF SPRING

Guelph, March 26 —(CP)— Pussy willows and snowdrops on sale at the Guelph market a few days ago gave the stalls a touch of spring. No spring chickens have appeared yet but vendors say it won't be long now.

Fog Keeps Strawberry-Laden Plane Circling Over Toronto 90 Minutes

Toronto, March 26 —(CP)— An airplane bearing a load of strawberries from Texas was among aircraft forced to circle Toronto airfields today when a heavy fog delayed landings. The strawberries made a 90-minute circuit before the weather cleared enough for a landing.

Early-morning traffic in this district was generally slowed by the fog blanket and hundreds of motorists left vehicles at home in favor of slow-moving street cars. The fog lifted before noon.

Many minor accidents on the highway were reported and at Toronto planes were unable to land until the low-hanging fog cleared. One plane, loaded with strawberries from Texas, circled more than 90 minutes before the ground cleared. Four street cars collided in two separate suburban accidents and one woman was injured slightly.

"The ground is very cold and has a great deal of moisture," the weatherman explained. "With the clear sky and mild temperature, the air is cooled off and the moisture arises from the ground. Actually it is a very low cloud."

He added that the temperature dropped several degrees overnight with a resultant rising of moisture.

PLUTONIUM CAN BE "DENATURED" COMMITTEE TOLD

Element Can Be Made Useless for Bomb Making Yet Prove Useful to Industry

By JACK BELL

Washington, March 26. (AP)— An easier road toward worldwide sharing of atomic energy secrets appeared possible today with reports that scientists have discovered how to render plutonium useless for bomb-making.

This "denaturing" process would not interfere with the release of atomic power for industrial purposes, it was stated

These reports were carried to the Senate's Special Atomic Commitee yesterday by Dean Acheson, Under Secretary of State. Members said he presented a study which urged an international licensing system to control raw materials and the production of atomic energy for peaceful uses.

But the recommendations were quickly overshadowed by statments three Senators credits to Mr. Acheson that scientists have learned how to "denature" both plutonium and U-235. These are the substances which furnish the atoms that are split to release vast power.

One Senator, who declined to be quoted by name, said the problem of sharing atomic energy secrets with the rest of the world may be "very much simplified" if the process is proved in practical operations.

He pointed out that if a way can be found to control tightly the world's supply of fissionable material and if it can be treated to make it useless for explosive purposes, then there need be little fear of the secret manufacture of atomic-bombs.

But he added that there still is a long way to go—even if the element can be so "poisoned"—to make certain thatit could not be manufactured in the original form in which it was used in the Nagasaki bomb. The understanding of all concerned, he said, is that once the plutonium is "denatured", it is extremely difficult to return it to its original qualities.

There was a feeling among Senators, also, that the reported denaturing discovery may open the way for commercial use of atomic energy.

Dr. Edward U. Condon, director of the government's bureau of standards and scientific adviser to the atomic committee, acknowledged that this was the "implication" of the discovery.

Dr. Condon said ways have been found to harness nuclear fission for industrial purposes. But the danger has been, he added, that a plant thus turning out atomic power might at the same time be making bombs as a by-product.

N.Y. Paper Says Sam Carr For Years Received $1,000 Month From U.S. Communists

New York, March 26 (CP) — The New York Journal-American reported today in a front-page story that Sam Carr, named as a recruiting agent for an alleged Soviet spy network in Canada, "for years received $1,000 a month from the American Communist party."

Carr, National organizer of the Labor-Progressive party in Canada and prominent in Toronto left-wing circles, was mentioned by Igor Gouzenko, former cipher clerk in the Soviet Embassy at Ottawa, in testimony he has given in Montreal regarding Russian secret operations in the Dominion.

The Journal-American story, originating in New York and written by Howard Rushmore, said: "The first official link between American and Canadian Reds in the far-flung spy network set up by the Kremlin brought

N. Y. PAPER—Page 11

WORK OF VETERANS COM. OUTLINED FOR NEW SESSION

Much of Evidence in Report Not Acted Upon During Last Session

Ottawa, March 26 (CP)—A 79-page report that will background its deliberations in coming months was placed before the Veterans Committee of the Commons today at its first meeting of the second session of Canada's 20th parliament.

The report represents the work of an interdepartmental committee of three men which labored in the months between the first and second sessions—the first ended in December—to gather material on 15 subjects that will confront the committee.

Much of the evidence concerned matters which occupied the attention of the parliamentary committee at the last session but on which it reached no decision.

This included the rights of civilian personnel such as overseas fire fighters, auxiliary services supervisors, merchant seamen and flying instructors to veterans' discharge benefits equivalent to those of servicemen.

Objection was taken to imposition of income tax on basic wages of 100 perchant seamen who were prisoners in Germany and for non-payment of war service and special bonuses during confinement.

Heard Many Requests

It was urged that seamen should participate in all rehabilitation benefits.

The committee heard, too, requests that Halifax pilots be granted benefits equivalent to those of merchant seamen.

The National Council of Veteran Associations suggested that the veterans bureau of the veterans department be given the status of a commission to free it from "what might be considered departmental influence." This would also give the chief pensions advocate "powers equal to the power of the chairman of the Pension Commission."

However, the committee received no confirmatory opinion to back this view and pointed to the Canadian Legion's opinion that the "bureau has functioned admirably."

Support for aid to veterans wishing to establish small businesses came from the Legion, the National Council of Veterans Associations, the Toronto Reconstruction Council and the Citizens Rehabilitation Council of Vancouver.

The servicemen's own services urged extension of payment of $100 to winners of the Military Cross and Military Medal in the Second Great War to those who won them in the First Great War.

CURB ON ARMIES 'LIVING OF LAND' DEMANDED BY U.S.

Proposal is That 48 Nations Ban Forces Requisitioning Food Stuffs

By ALEX SINGLETON

Atlantic City, N.J., March 26 — (AP)— A sharp curb on the practice of liberating armies "living off the land" has been demanded in a United States move aimed primarily at the Red army, but gauged broadly enough to cover the activities of all armed forces.

The United States proposed to the 48 members of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration's that they adopt the principle that their military forces refrain from requisitioning foodstuffs — other than perishable fruits and vegetables — or using fuel "or other supplies" included in the U.N.R.R.A. relief program.

Without mentioning the purpose, the United States simultaneously advocated a barrier against use of relief supplies by liberating forces by proposing a ban against "impeding in any way the equitable distribution of imported and indigenous relief supplies."

To give force to the plan, the United States — financial source of approximately 75 per cent of U.N.R.R.A.'s supplies — proposed that violation of its plan to assure minimum living standards be met with a downward readjustment in the aid to the countries whose armies are responsible.

in Austria.

C. Tyler Wood, an American state department official, outlined the policy.

Mr. Wood said yesterday the United States has "full confirmation that in Austria the Soviet occupying forces have acquired and are acquiring large acreages of land upon which a substantial part of the food supply of the population depends."

He added that he had been informed that Russia was opposing an U.N.R.R.A. proposal that "oil and gasoline necessary for the relief program (in Austria) shall be provided from the indigenous production which is now under Soviet military control."

He declared, however, that his remarks were not aimed solely at Russia.

"The principle which I am here proposing," he said, "has been fully approved by my government, but I hope that if there should be any case in which the United States armed forces are at fault in this respect, it will be brought to the attention of my government or raised before the U.N.R.R.A. council of the central committee."

PARLIAMENT MAY FACE FIRST TEST OF STRENGTH

Conclusion of Debate On Throne Speech Is Expected Late This Afternoon

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, March 26—(CP)—The Federal Government is expected to face its first tests of strength of the current session today on conclusion in the Commons of the Throne Speech debate, started March 15.

The tests are scheduled to come on opposition amendments moved earlier in the debate by John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, and M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader. The amendments, moved in the form of non-confidence motions in the government, criticized the reconversion, housing, rehabilitation and employment policies of the administration.

Party whips said they were confident votes on the amendments and the motion for adoption of the Throne Speech would be reached by tonight at the latest.

The Throne Speech debate was continued yesterday without any major developments. Participants included Harry Jackman (PC—Toronto Rosedale); D. F. Brown (L — Essex West); P. E. Gagnon (Ind — Chicoutimi); Norman Jaques (SC — Wetaskiwin); H.G. Archibald (CCF — Skeena); Lawrence Skey (PC — Toronto Trinity); Anthony Hlynka (SC—Vegreville); E. B. McKay (CCF — Weyburn); Chester McLure (PC—Queen's), and J. F. Pouliot (Ind.-L. — Temiscouata).

When the House opened, Trade Minister MacKinnon announced that to induce western farmers to market wheat held on farms, the government has worked out an arrangement whereby payment for wheat now marketed may be deferred to avoid increases in income tax payments. Mr. MacKinnon also announced that the guaranteed price for flaxseed, effective Aug. 1, will be increased from $2.75 to $3.25 a bushel. The oats, barley, rapeseed and sunflower seed programs remained practically unchanged from last year.

Homeless Australians Seize Vacant Accommodation for Living Quarters

By WILLIAM STEWART
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Sidney, Australia, March 26 — (CP Cable)—Victims of the housing shortage blamed on the war, homeless Australians including the families of servicemen, are solving their problem by seizing what vacant accommodation they can find.

The plight of these people who are taking the law into their own hands is front-page news in Sydney where the Sydney Sun is running a story of the latest such seizure under a bold headline: — "Grab move spreads."

During the last week three Sydney buildings have been occupied by men, women and children who have settled in them despite the lack of convenences and are staying put while the authorities discuss what to do.

The housing shortage is said to be due to the absence of wartime building, the current material scarcity and an increase in the number of families because of the accelerated rate of wartime marriages.

Accommodation is so scarce that Cumberland county council which carries out city planning for Sydney has reported it is unable to find office space.

For some families the housing problem was not urgent while the weather was hot and they could live outdoors. Now, however, summer is fading in Australia.

The first seizure occurred last week in the heart of free and easy King's Cross district when a small group moved into an old mansion which until recently was a Royal Navy canteen.

The Communist party, and its organ, the Tribune, it was claimed, inspired the action to draw attention to the housing situation.

The group, including an expectant mother, got the water turned on in the candle-lit mansion and soon were well enough organized to have a public relations man at the door to greet reporters.

During the weekend, a 72-room private hotel at Bondi near one of Sydney's best-known beaches was taken over by another group and court arrangements have been made permitting them to stay while terms are sought from the proprietors.

The third place seized is a cottage which the municipality of Ashfield intended to convert into a baby clinic.

Desired Russia To Have Reports On New Explosive

Information Given Accused M.P. For Over One Year

Montreal, March 26. (CP) — Dr. Raymond Boyer, former chemistry professor at McGill University, testified today that for a year and two months he gave Fred Rose information about the new explosive RDX becouse "I was anxious to do what I could to have the Soviet Union obtain the process officially from Canada.

Dr. Boyer, formerly on the staff of the National Research Council, who, as well as Rose, faces charges under the official Secrets Act, answered affirmatively when F. Philippe Brais, special prosecutor for the Justice Department, asked: "I take it Canada had refused to give this information officially."

Capt. Gordon Lunan, who was committed to jail for a week yesterday by Judge Rene Theberge because he refused to answer questions, made a brief appearance in court today and still refused to answer questions.

Lunan was shown a letter, contents of which were not divulged. He declined to answer questions about it.

Defence Counsel Lucien Genbron, K.C., then asked the court's permission to give Lunan a message from Lunan's attorney in Kingston. Permission was granted and Lunan withdrew.

Mr. Cohen began his summing up for the defence when the morning session was less than an hour old.

No Cross-Examination

Mr. Cohen said his decision not to cross-examine Igor Gouzenko, formerly cipher clerk in the Russian Embassy at Ottawa whose evidence began on Friday and ended yesterday, was consistent with the decision to cross-examine no witnesses at the preliminary hearing.

He said there were "strange provisions" in the official Secrets Act, enacted in 1939 when there was "perhaps a little hysteria too."

The charge of conspiracy against Rose was perfectly legal but "unfair", and the complaint should have mentioned with whom he was supposed to have conspired.

Dr. Boyer, a crown witness, said he told Rose "what materials were in the process and the way in which it was to be used."

Special Prosecutor F. Philippe Brais, K.C., asked, "How long did you communicate with Rose regarding your progress."

"About one year and two months."

Dr. Boyer said the reason he passed along the information about RDX was because he was "anxious to do what I could to have the Soviet Union obtain the process officially from Canada."

"I take it Canada had refused to give this information officially," said Mr. Brais.

"Yes."

"How long were you communicating with him (Rose)??"

"About a year and two months."

"You gave him progress reports in your work on RDX?"

"Yes."

To Help Soviet Union

"Did you know what the information was for?"

"Yes, to help the Soviet Union."

"How did you know it was to help the Soviet Union?"

"I was told a Russian technical mission was in Canada and had asked for the process."

"By whom were you told this?"

"By Dr. J. H. Ross."

Replying further to Mr. Brais, Dr. Boyer said he gave Rose the information late in 1943 and 1944.

Dr. Boyd discussed his achievements in explosives work and said it was done "with the aid of many others." Results toward the "final achievement" came "step by step."

Questioned further by Mr. Brais, Dr. Boyer said he knew Fred Rose and first met him in 1938 "in someone's house."

"In whose house was that?"

"I'm not sure; I don't recall."

Subsequently he met him where Rose lived by invitation from Rose.

"Did you ever speak to him about your work?"

"Yes."

"How did it come about?"

"He telephoned me and invited me."

"On that occasion what was the conversation about?"

"It was about the new process for manufacture of the new explosive."

"Did he broach the subject or did you?"

"I don't remember. Information of its discovery had already been released in the press."

Dr. Boyer Makes Brief Appearance

Montreal, March 26 — (CP) — Dr. Raymond Boyer, former McGill University chemical professor and formerly on the staff of the National Research Council, made a brief pro forma appearance today for his preliminary hearing under charges of violating the Official Secrets Act and judgment will be given April 2 whether a prima facie case has been made. If Judge Rene Theberge decides it has, then he will order Dr. Boyer for voluntary statement.

The proceedings in Dr. Boyer's hearing lasted only a few minutes. His appearance as defendant came about an hour after he had testified as a Crown witness in the hearing of Fred Rose, Labor-Progressive Member of Parliament for Montreal-Cartier, also charged under the Official Secrets Act.

Two Bear Cubs Will Be Kept As Tourist Attraction

Two-month-old bear cubs are being groomed in Marmora as potential tourist attractions. The little Bruins are being fed via the nipple-bottle method and later will be placed in a cage by their adopted "mother" Mrs. John Rombough, wife of a Marmora service station owner.

The cubs were made orphans and entrusted to the tender mercies of humans last Saturday morning, when their mother, said to weigh in the vicinity of 300 pounds was shot and killed near the highway halfway between Madoc and Marmora by a hunter named Rose.

Rose was surprised by the bear when she loomed up in front of him near a wooded rocky field off the highway. Madame Bruin showed no signs of fright, in fact she appeared to be the opposite. Rose unarmed, dashed home for his rifle.

The large bear was still in immediate vicinity when he returned, and a well-aimed shot sent her toppling to the ground, dead.

Investigating his kill, Rose heard whimpering in the immediate surroundings and investigation disclosed two small cubs huddled in a rocky crevice. He brought them to Marmora where Mrs. Rombough immediately adopted them. Hundreds of curious spectators have viewed the little fellows since their arrival in the village.

The Romboughs plan to raise the bears and keep them as a tourist attraction.

Strict Enforcement of Traffic And Parking By-law Asked By Members of City Council

Practically All Lots on Emily Street Extension Sold to Veterans Who Will Construct Modern Homes

Recommendation from committee meeting that the present parking by-law in the city of Belleville be strictly enforced drew a few verbal shafts from members when the matter came before the regular meeting of council for ratification, Monday evening.

Brought to the fore through deferment of the installation of parking meters, the recommendation was placed by Aldermen Butler and Woodley. Alderman McDougall started the ball rolling when as the matter came up for vote he asked if any discrimination would be made for out-of-town motorists.

To this Alderman Woodley replied that in the past it has been the practice to show leniency to out-of-town motorists in regard to strict adherence to the one hour parking by-law. Alderman Thompson failed to see the merits of such a procedure, however, and claimed "it was up to the police to treat all alike."

"As a matter of fact," put in Alderman Follwell, "it is the out-of-town motorists who actually pay, while in many cases, the city motorists pay nothing."

When the recommendation to strictly enforce the parking by-law came up for vote it was carried by a considerable margin.

Places Advertisement

Placement of a $36 advertisement in the Lawn Bowling Annual drew a query from Alderman Clarke before the matter was passed. Mr. Clarke stated the council had already given the local bowling association a sizeable grant and if the advertisement was for their booklet he was opposed. Alderman Follwell, as chairman of publicity, explained the advertisement would go in the annual of the provincial association, assuring that it would be splendid publicity for the city as approximately 7,500 copies of the booklet are printed for distribution.

Several Lots Sold

Sale of several lots on the Emily Street extension to veterans of the armed forces came up for ratification with the inclusion of a building covenant calling for construction of a dwelling of comparable value being questioned by Mayor Follwell.

Alderman Clarke stated the clause had been inserted for the protection of other prospective builders in the area as one of the veterans had intended moving a "shack" to his lot. Mayor Follwell felt that if circumstances were desperate the city should "leave the door open," but agreed to the covenant clause when the matter was explained.

Councillors voted to close a portion of Yeoman Street north of the C.N.R. tracks, and also recommended that more lights be placed at the corner of Bridge and Coleman Street.

Opposed Motion

Alderman Charles Hyde was definitely opposed to the city sending two delegates to the mayors' convention in Vancouver, expressing the opinion that one man would be sufficient in view of the great distance and expense involved. Alderman Trudeau was of the same opinion, declaring the money could be used to better advantage. The motion for Mayor Follwell and Alderman Thompson to attend the convention passed in council.

Council took no action on a request from members of the local restaurant association asking for three collections of garbage weekly instead of the present two. The matter was referred back to committee for further discussion before being voted upon.

Referred to Comptroller.

A local board of health resolution requesting that dumping of garbage in the open lot at the corner of Foster and St. Paul streets be stopped was read in council the matter being referred to the comptroller for correction.

Council concurred in a City of Brantford resolution asking that the municipal government be given some definite control over board of education expenditures.

The resolution stated that in the city of Brantford increased costs of education had resulted in the enforced reducing of other city services, and asked that education estimates be received by the council at an earlier date and that complete details for proposed expenditures be given.

Asked to Amend Statutes.

The resolution also asked that the provincial government amend statutes to enable all grants for education to be paid directly to the treasurer to be applied in the reduction of the tax rate, such as was the expressed desire of the province. It was felt that the municipal body responsible for providing the funds for educational costs should have a definite voice in the expenditure of the same.

Council was advised through communication from the Department of Reconstruction and Supply that stocks of reserve wood fuel were being disposed of and that in the future it would be up to the municipality to see that sufficient supplies were available. During the war reserve stocks of fuel had been set up, but this service was now discontinued, it was stated.

Wants Traffic Light Placed.

Under inquiries Alderman Chamberlain asked regarding the possibilities of the city establishing a playground in the Foster Ward area south of Bridge Street, while Alderman Tice asked regarding the placing of a traffic light for the protection of school children in the King George School area.

Alderman Follwell wanted a motorcycle patrol on streets throughout the city, declaring that taxis and cleaner trucks were "zooming" past at from 40 to 50 miles per hour.

Mayor Follwell explained that the lack of a rider had prevented police from carrying on with their former motorcycle patrol but in recent recruits to the force, the department now had several riders and the matter would be taken up with the police commission.

Alderman Follwell also asked what was being done regarding a safety patrol at schools, the Mayor replying that the matter had been approved by the commission and shortly police would go into each school and instruct pupils in the interests of safety and in the observance of traffic regulations.

Inquired of Progress.

Alderman Trudeau inquired regarding progress on the parking area along the proposed riverside drive with Alderman Armstrong replying that weather permitting the area would be in fair condition by another week.

Street signs along Highland Ave. were lacking according to Alderman Hyde who asked that something be done about the matter by the Regional Planning Committee, while Alderman Woodley wanted the fair grounds "fixed up" in view of the fact that lights were to be installed. The Alderman was informed that the Parks Board was looking after the matter.

Alderman Trudeau asked about the possibilities of the city purchasing its own gravel pit, claiming considerable money could be saved if this was done. Mr. Hyde stated the matter was being investigated.

Mayor Follwell asked about the clearance of brush on East Moira from St. Charles to the C.N.R. tracks.

Two British M.P's Leave on Iran Inspection Tour

London, March 26 (CP)—Two members of Britain's parliament undertook today a trip by plane to the Middle East to make an unofficial inspection of Iran and to verify reports from Moscow and Tehran that Red Army troops were withdrawing from that country.

The two — Brigadier A. H. Head, Conservative, and Michael Foot, Labor Party member and writer for the London Daily Herald—will be gone for two or three weeks.

Hector McNeil, parliamentary Undersecretary for Foreign Affairs, said "necessary arrangements" had been made for the visit and added that he did not believe any "unreasonable barriers" would be encountered.

Prime Minister Stalin asserted today that so far as the Soviet Union is concerned, the question of the withdrawal of Red Army troops "has already been solved" by an agreement between Russia and Iran.

Stalin's statement was made in answer to a cablegram sent from New York by Hugh Baillie, President of the United Press, who asked the Prime Minister whether he wished to "reply to Churchill's argument in favor of the necessity for rapid action by the Security Council of the United Nations Organization on the question of Iran."

Stalin's reply, as broadcast by the Moscow radio, read:

"I thank you for your amiable proposition. I should not find Churchill's arguments convincing.

"Inasmuch as the question of the withdrawal of Soviet troops from Iran is concerned, as is known this question has already been solved in a positive means by agreement between the Soviet government and the government of Iran."

Meanwhile, a dispatch from Tehran quoted Prince Firouz, Minister of State and Propaganda, as saying that the Russian withdrawal began Sunday night and was continuing.

Informed foreign quarters in Moscow, commenting on a Soviet announcement that all Red Army troops would be out of Iran within five or six weeks if nothing "unforeseen" developed, said they believed Iran had promised that no such development would occur.

CATCH OF HERRING

Sarnia, March 26 —(CP)— Dip net fishermen report they are getting fair catches of herring at the base of the Blue Water Bridge. On the opposite side of the St. Clair river scores of Americans also dip and their luck is said to be "fair."

Safety of School Children Concern Of City Council

Indication that considerable concern is being felt regarding the safety of school children in crossing busy traffic arteries on their way to and from school was seen at the regular council meeting Monday evening when one of the aldermen inquired regarding the possibility of traffic lights being installed at King George School.

Already a traffic light has been recommended for Dundas Street near Queen Alexandra school, but installation of the light has been help up pending approval of the Department of Highways.

Speaking to council Alderman Tice declared that already an accident had occurred at King George School and residents sending children to this school felt that some form of protection should be afforded at this point.

Mayor Follwell indicated that the matter had been before council with the decision that lights would be tried on Dundas Street, and if found feasible, would be installed near schools on other streets in the city.

Alderman Butler declared that the police commission last year had made a report on the matter, but that for some reason the report had never gone to the press. He felt that considerable publicity was needed on the subject as the commission was apparently getting no co-operation from the highways department.

Alderman Jack Allin, sitting in open council for the first time since his return to that body following the resignation of Alderman Graham, stated that Principal Everett Fairman had been doing a "good job" regarding safety instruction of pupils at King George School, but there was still much to be desired.

Council Invited To Meeting On Health Unit Plan

Members of the Queen Alexandra Home and School Association will lend their assistance toward increasing interest in a community health unit for Belleville and Hastings county, it was learned at the regular meeting of city council when members were invited to the April meeting of the Association.

Appearing before council, Mrs. Gilbert Scott, head of the Home and School Association at Queen Alexandra School stated that Miss Edna Moore, supervisor of public health nursing for Ontario would be in the city to address the association and extended a cordial invitation to council members to attend the meeting and to contribute to the following discussion period. "Advantages of a community health unit would be fully outlined at the meeting," she said.

Appreciation of the Home and School Association members for council action in promptly looking after a request for a traffic light to be installed on Dundas Street near the Queen Alexandra School, was expressed by Mrs. Scott. Installation of the light had been held up temporarily by the Department of Highways, but the council had shown its willingness to co-operate in affording protection for children crossing the busy street in front of the school.

Mrs. Watt, school nurse, also spoke briefly to council in invitation for members to hear Miss Moore.

Mayor Frank S. Follwell thanked Mrs. Scott and Mrs. Watt for attending council meeting and felt sure the city council, as well as officials of the county council would look favorably toward the establishment of a health unit in the area.

Later in council, members concurred in a Department of Health recommendation that the council take necessary steps to call a meeting of city and council officials to discuss the feasibility of setting up a health unit of all municipalities in Hastings county and Trenton.

Mystery Surrounds Death of Model

Montreal, March 26 —(CP)— Mystery shrouded the death of Mrs. Marie Aurore Tessier, 45, well known here as a model, whose body was found yesterday morning, lying across a bed in her fashionable, West-End apartment, strangled to death with a twisted silken nightgown knotted tightly around her neck.

While police awaited the outcome of an inquest, they continued search for an unknown male companion who apparently accompanied Mrs. Tessier to her home Sunday night. Other residents of the apartment house told police they heard loud talking between Mrs. Tessier and a man in the apartment corridor, followed by the slamming of a door.

Mrs. Tessier, "Miss Montreal" of 1925, worked as a model under the name of Marcelle Gauthier. It is believed she was to have been married last month, but for reasons not yet clear, the marriage did not take place.

Police said there were no signs of struggle in the apartment and none of the objects in the house were touched. There had been signs of two or three persons drinking liquor, and a whisky bottle and three glasses were taken as evidence.

The dead woman, in stocking feet, but otherwise fully clothed, was discovered by Arthur Greenwood, 40, an employee of the R.A.F. Transport Command, and a boarder in the apartment. He had returned from a weekend at Phillipsburg, Que., and found the apartment door, and the door to Mrs. Tessier's room open.

COLLEGIATE NEWS

ASSEMBLY

It was very nice to hear the band in assembly again even though its return did mean that the opera had become a thing of the past.

Reading from the Book of Matthew, Mr. Shiels showed us not only a great example of literature everywhere quoted today but a sure theory for life.

Appealing to any military instincts that the girls might find in themselves, Nora Ellis told of expectations for the renewal of the old flag signal corps again to be under her able training.

Preparations for the election of the Students' Council of 1946-7 are well under way but George Manjuris deplored the fact that the Elevator for 1945-6 probably would not be available until 1950 since there is not a worthwhile cover for it yet. (We wonder, has George any serious intentions of becoming a diplomat, if he is allowed to live that long.)

After the last few announcements were made by Mr. Currie the band played and a very enlightening picture on the habits of salmon was presented.

GIRLS' SPORTS

Last Wednesday, March 20th, our "B.C.I. Junior" girls met the "Stirling" girls on the Albert College floor. (Sorry that I misinformed you in last week's edition.) The game started at approximately 3.30 p.m., so our girls did not have much support from the Collegiate body. But they really were a credit to the school. They set out with one goal, and that was to win that game so they would be entitled to go to Toronto—and they did win, with a score of 23-18.

I'm sure the spectators will agree when I say that it was a very exciting game. From the first whistle to the last, both teams were really playing in earnest. Scoring for B.C.I., Betty Holway excelled in the first half by gaining 12 points for the team. She was assisted by Lois Flindall with 5 and Fay Campbell, 2. At the end of the first half, the score was 19-10 in favor of B.C.I. But in the second half the girls found that the opposing team was beginning to creep up on them. Stirling succeeded in scoring 8 points while B.C.I. was only able to secure 4. But "all's well that ends well," and the final score was 23-18.

Many of you are well acquainted with the girls of our Junior Basketball team, but just to refresh your memories, here are the girls who won the Bay of Quinte C.O.S.S.A. championship and are going to Toronto in April.

B.C.I. JUNIORS

Captain: Lois Flindall.

Forwards: Betty Holway, Fay Campbell, Mary Tomaso, and Lois Flindall.

Guards: Bonney Hetherington, Dorothy Dobbs, Doreen Bell and Dorothy Flintoff.

Boys' Sports

Inter-form basketball came to a triumphant end last Friday for 13B when they defeated 10C (26-14) in the second game in a two-out-of-three series. They won the first game the day before. Bill Spafford and Sliv Cameron led the winners with 8 points, followed by Watson 4, Rollins 4 and Wonnacott with 2. For the losers it was Summers 5, Clare 3, Ethier 2, Ward 2 and Haggis 2.

On Wednesday in the exhibition game at Albert, B.C.I. seniors came out on the small end of a 39-33 score. However, our boys are determined to take revenge when the College comes here this Wednesday. Spafford was out in front in this game with 12 points, Cameron had 8, Lyall 6, Vaughan and Miller each 2, and Rollins, Watson and Gerow had 1 each.

Congratulations to "Pirates" Cast

Among the out-of-town guests who witnessed the "Pirates of Penzance," comic opera produced at B.C.I. last week, were Mr. and Mrs. Hutchinson of Welland, Ontario.

Mr. Hutchinson, Works Manager of the Page Hershey Company of Welland, is an accomplished musician and music critic. He has distinguished himself in Niagara Falls and Welland by conducting the "Little Theatre" orchestras. Having seen the same opera enacted in Hamilton three weeks ago, Mr. Hutchinson was one who could authorize an opinion of our attempt to produce better music for Belleville. He voiced loud praises of the splendid performance and excellent stage properties and management which contributed to the audience the finest in musical entertainment.

As a matter of local interest, Mr. Hutchinson designed the Belleville Bay Bridge which has been in constant use for many years, linking the counties of Hastings and Prince Edward, although he had never actually seen the bridge itself until last week.

I'm sure we all feel that these compliments are due to all who aided in making it possible to stage this show as all concerned did their best to ensure a long-remembered success.

R. G. D.

Coming Events

The first game of the BCI-Albert home and home basketball series has gone down in the record books, with BCI on the short end of a 39-33 score. This defeat is our team's first set-back of the season, and we feel sure it will be the last. Playing on home ground and with another week of practice under their belts, our boys should be able to take the measure of the boys from the "College on the Hill." And, if you want to see them do it, be sure to be on hand in the BCI gym come Wednesday afternoon. We can promise you that this game will be one of, if not the best, games of basketball ever presented by any collegiate.

As you know, if you have paid any attention to the announcements made by the Students' Council in the last two assemblies, election time is near. So near in fact that nominations closed on the 25th of this month and the names of the nominees were made public about one hundred and twenty minutes ago (provided you read this around 6 p.m. on Tuesday). The election speeches will be held over until some time after the examinations—the 15th of April, to be exact. Voting will be on the 16th, while on the 17th the newly elected executive will take their places on the stage during the regular assembly period.

While sitting here composing this column, we see a certain young gentleman running round and round the building. It appears that he is training for the forthcoming cross country race to be held on April 17. Are you?

That is about all the "Coming Events" we have on this week's docket so we will end this column, pick up our books, go home and cram for the coming exams—and we advise you to do likewise.

CUFF NOTES

Many and odd are the organizations extant in and about the school. Perhaps the newest, and oddest, is the Upper Foster Avenue Valpy-bashing Association whose sole function is to bop Valpy the Frog, diminutive head of the U.F.A.V.A.

You have heard, in times gone by of Windy the Ghoul, Looie the Louse, and other oddities who caught my attention. However odd they may have been, they are pallid nonentities in comparison with the peculiarity of Valpy the Frog. To give you some idea of his distinctive qualities I print the following conversation as transcribed on a wire recorder at the first meeting of the U.F.A.V.A.

(Scene...Upper Foster Ave. The house is silent except for loud screams and squishes from Valpy. Enter Looie the Louse.)

Looie—Sounds like somebody is taking a beating in here.

Boozer—Ah, it's only Valpy.

Looie—In that case I will have another cup of coffee.

Muscles—You know, Looie, Valpy is like that coffee of yours ...dirty, brown and thick on top.

Snuffy—Valpy, shaddup. (Loud squish as Valpy is bashed.)

Curly—I wonder why his hair stands up like that in the back?

Snuffy—Valpy, shaddup. (Loud squish as Valpy is bashed.)

Muscles—Valpy is the type that can walk into a perfectly quiet room, sit down under a big picture and have the picture fall on his head.

Boozer—If it did, it would probably sink right out of sight into that swamp of his.

Curly—The reason they can't tell all about the Russian spy scare is because Valpy has most of the secret documents sunk in the quicksand behind his left ear.

Muscles—Valpy was one of the early models of home sapiens. He got out of the work-shop before they found a feasible way of cramming brains into his head.

Boozer—When we were playing basketball at Queen's, their coach said that with a lot of training and a new kidney Valpy would make a good substitute.

Looie—That's some brush-cut. You look even more like a swamp than ever, son.

Curly—He also looks like old "Falling Hair" the Indian.

Curly—Valpy, you're too quiet. Say something.

Valpy—I...........

Snuffy—Valpy, shaddup. (Loud squish and screams.)

Looie—O.K. Meeting's adjourned. Put the body out front, the garbage men will collect it tomorrow.

"In the Spring a young man's ......"

"Ahhh, Shaddup!"

Fifty Motorists Pay Fines For Overtime Parking

Notice that the city police department is carrying out to the letter the recommendation recently passed in city council for the present parking by-law to be strictly enforced was seen in police court Tuesday morning when no less than fifty motorists' names were listed on the docket as having paid the $2 fine for overtime parking.

The morning's docket was possibly the largest in many months as 84 cases were listed, including 16 drunks, four charges for failing to stop at stop streets and two charges against motorists for making "unnecessary" noise. All traffic cases, with the exception of one charge of drunken driving were settled out of court, the accused in this particular instance requesting two weeks' enlargement of his case. The request was granted.

A Wartime Prices and Trade Board charge against a district farmer for last autumn allegedly selling potatoes over the ceiling price was enlarged for two weeks.

Given Three Months

Remanded last week for sentence following conviction on a break and enter charge, William Archer and Roland McGrath were sentenced to the maximum of 3 months in the county jail when they appeared today before Magistrate T. Y. Wills. Douglas Woodcock, also convicted of the same offence, was given suspended sentence of one year.

Woodcock, it was brought out in court last week, had acted as "lookout" while McGrath and Archer entered the grocery store owned by William Dennis, Pine Street. The trio had been observed as they were about to enter the premises with result that police converged on the area and arrested the trio.

An assault case completed the morning's docket.

JUNIOR BOARD FORMED

FORMER PREMIER ATTACKS BUDGET IN LEGISLATURE

H. C. Nixon Says Budget Constituted "Jockeying" for Bargaining Position

Toronto, March 26 — (CP) — A suggestion by H. C. Nixon (L—Brant) that provincial treasurer Frost's budget address constituted a "jockeying for a bargaining position" at the Dominion-Provincial Conference next month yesterday drew a reply from Premier Drew that there was no "underestimating and no padding in the address which forecast a $21,065,-694 deficit.

Leading off the budget debate as opposition financial critic, Mr. Nixon in the Ontario Legislature criticized the budget for expenditures he said would start the province on a "perilous" road, urged greater uniformity in educational grants and ended by moving an amendment to the motion to adopt the speech. The amendment condemned a deficit he said was forecast without provision for revenues to meet increased expenditures.

"I cannot credit," said Mr. Nixon, "that our cautious provincial treasurer will actually put the old Tory spending machine in high gear and let her go headlong down the mountain with the accelerator clamped down on the floorboards."

Carefully Considered

Premier Drew said all estimates had been carefully considered by Mr. Frost. As for the Dominion - Provincial Conference, Ontario was showing as much eagerness for an agreement as any other province. If no agreement were reached, the province could invoke "back-taxing powers" which it had never completely used under the agreement of March, 1942.

"Our position is strong," he said, "We are not going to sign on the dotted line just because the dotted line is there."

Mr. Nixon, saying "I condemn this budget without reservation, "reopened the debate after the premier tabled an exchange of correspondence with Prime Minister Mackenzie King in which the prime minister said no immediate repeal of the Canada Temperance Act is contemplated. Thus, said the premier, the province has no recourse but to enforce the Act which he said makes a "farce" of liquor administration in Ontario.

It was regrettable the Act could not be repealed because "at least" six provinces besides Ontario had indicated that was their desire. In Ontario retention of the Act would mean that authority licences in affected areas would not be renewed when they expire next month.

Where Enforced

(The Temperance Act is in force in the district of Manitoulin, which has no authorities, and in three counties — Perth (except for Stratford) with 13 hotel authorities, Huron 11, Peel four club authorities and one Legion authority.)

After Mr. Nixon and the premier spoke in the budget debate, expected to end today, William Docker (CCF — Kenora) made a brief reference to the budget by saying he doesn't approve of the deficit because he is Scotch. He said free enterprise now is on trial, with labor seeking one thing, farmers another, and business looking for profits. A "common understanding" among all groups was needed and it didn't matter if the government which provided it was Progressive Conservative, C.C.F. or Liberal.

"If you follow the road of selfish interests you will go down to defeat and oblivion," he warned.

Replying to Mr. Nixon's charge that there was lack of uniform policy in supplementary estimates for educational grants to school boards—it was 33 per cent of earnings last year and 20 per cent this year—the Premier said he hoped a uniform system of payment will be evolved following a report by the Royal Commission on Education. The Commission was long overdue, because the last one had been appointed more than 100 years ago.

Everything Possible Done

Similarly, in reply to Mr. Nixon's appeal for "more aggressive action" in assuring that benefits of the grants be passed on to taxpayers by school boards and municipal council, the Premier said "everything possible will be done" to ensure caution in expenditure of grants.

Mr. Nixon asked why liquor revenues should drop $4,000,000 and succession duty $500,000. In addition, $47,000,000 for highways seemed high if materials were not available. It seemed strange too that capital expenditure should jump from $8,600,000 to $32,300,000 in one year.

The House in committee discussed a bill to amend the planning and developing enabling municipalities to register master plans with the Department and validating emergency housing agreements. Earlier it gave first reading to amendments to the Securities Act extending the power of the Ontario Securities Commission to stop transactions and security sales where a broker is being investigated or his registration reviewed.

In his speech Mr. Nixon said he does not see how Ontario can do other than sign on the dotted line. The other provinces "are going on and we cannot stand alone."

To this Premier Drew replied that "I had an advantage on Mr. Nixon in that I was at the (last) Dominion - Provincial Conference" and it could be stated definitely that the original proposals by the Dominion were not satisfactory to any Province. Often, the Premier said, Ontario was arguing on behalf of other Provinces.

Cost $2,049 For Trip

It cost Ontario $2,049 to have Labor Minister Daley represent the Province at the International Labor Conference in Paris last fall, it was shown in a reply tabled by Premier Drew. The Minister was replying to Dr. M. T. Armstrong (L.-Parry Sound.)

Salaries paid Premier Drew's executive assistant, his private secretary and his press secretary were shown in another reply at $5,000, $4,000 and $4,000 respectively. No travelling expenses are allowed.

Expenses incurred by the Agricultural Commission since its appointment in 1943 totalled $35,684. The chairman receives $10 a day and members $10 each.

Another reply showed 331 payments have been made as discretionary mothers' Allowances of $10 since the plan started. It was also shown that no children of jobless mothers were enrolled in Dominion-Provincial day nurseries or day care centres at Dec. 31, 1945.

Part of Transmission Lost When Motor Car Hits Deep Mud Hole

To drive something like 100 miles with considerably less than a complete transmission may sound like a difficult feat but just this was unknowingly accomplished by a North Hastings motorist the other day.

Driving to Belleville from the north part of the county the motorist drew his mud spattered car into a service station with the request that the attendant "look at the transmission as it seems a bit dry."

The car was driven onto the grease pit and the attendant crawled beneath to check only to almost immediately call "Transmission, what transmission do you mean?" The complete lower half of the transmission, together with the reverse gears were missing.

The driver then remembered that while negotiating a mud hole north of Bancroft something solid had struck underneath the car but he drove on without investigating. He had driven the entire distance into Belleville without a reverse gear and with only the top half of his transmission housing.

WM. B. PRESTON, PUBLISHER OF BRANTFORD, DIES

Former President of C.D.N.A. and Former President of Canadian Press

Daytona Beach, Fla., March 26 —(CP)—William B. Preston, 63, veteran Canadian newspaperman and publisher of the Brantford Expositor, died here Monday night, five days after suffering a cerebral haemorrhage. He had been holidaying in Florida. Efforts are being made to arrange shipment of the body to Brantford for funeral services there.

Preston was the son of Thomas Hiram Preston, who purchased the Brantford Expositor after going there from Winnipeg more than half a century ago, and who died in 1925. W. B. Preston is survived by his widow and two sons, John Champion and Peter MacDonald Preston, both of whom now are on the staff of the Brantford Expositor after serving with the armed forces. John was with his father when he died peacefully at 9.10 p. m., after lapsing into a deep coma.

W. B. Preston was president of the Canadian Daily Newspapers Association in 1929 and president of The Canadian Press in 1935 and 1936. He had succeeded his father as president and managing director of Preston and Sons Ltd. in 1925. Born in Winnipeg in 1883, he started on his father's newspaper as a reporter and worked through the advertising and business departments before assuming the presidency, He was a good athlete in his youth and in later years was active in charitable and club affairs.

Following his father as head of the Expositor, and training two sons in the same paper. W. B. Preston was a strong believer in the personal touch between employer and employee. There never was a strike on the Expositor under the Prestons, and at a banquet on the 50th anniversary of T. H. Preston's purchase the Expositor's composing room chief told the gathering — "We didn't always get what we asked for, but we generally got more than we expected."

He played basketball and hockey in his youth and in his early years on the Expositor travelled to other cities covering activities of the Brantford Lacrosse Club in the days when it played such famous teams as Toronto Tecumsehs and Montreal Shamrocks.

He was president of the Brantford Board of Trade and of the Brantford Rotary Club in former years, and an honorary member of the Board of Trustees of the a weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Brant Sanitarium.

YOUNGSTER AT WHEEL ANOTHER AT ACCELERATOR

Medford ,Mass., March 26. (AP)—The unorthodox course of a truck attracted the attention of police in a cruising car. The cruiser pulled alongside to investigate and officers found: A 12-year-old youngster at the steering wheel and a 10-year-old working the accelerator with his left foot. "We found it in Cambridge and decided to take a ride," said the youngsters. "We want to go home now." They did—after a stern lecture.

Early Spring Clean-up

Unusually mild weather this March with every trace of snow and ice gone, though there is nothing positive to show that there may not be more snow, has made it possible for the city department of public works to get early to work cleaning the streets. Citizens have helped — that is — many of them, and these have cleared their lawns and boulevards so that the ragged appearance which usually meets the eye as the lawns are first seen in the spring has been removed in many sections.

Now the city department has men out clearing the gutters and sides of the streets.

All means a brighter and more tidy appearance of the city.

How much refuse is picked up and cleaned from the lawns and streets in the months when there is no snow on the ground can be gained by what is left as a residue on the lawns and roads when the snow and ice have gone. In some places the collection of old papers, wrappers off candy bars and emptied cigarette and tobacco packages, loose papers which one finds on some lawns is far greater than would be thought possible. But the removal of the snow is the proof that a great amount of waste finds itself on the streets all the time and it is the part of the tidy citizen and the department of works to keep this collected while it is visible in plain sight of everybody in the summer, and when they are exposed to the melting of the snow in springtime.

Of course certain streets are more in use by traffic than others, the wind plays its freaks in blowing papers from one property upon another.

How essential is cleaning is shown on the main streets of business where the individual merchant or members of his staff do a great service in maintaining cleanliness of the business district.

In Belleville the citizens as individuals and the corporation by their attention to these matters keep Belleville in the ranks of the tidy communities, so that the streets are something to be proud of and the lawns something to be praised for their general appearance.

Springtime is the time of the year when streets if not kept clean will easily look their worst for the sprouting grass gives so much color that if there is any waste paper or sticks or branches or other litter on the lawns they can be easily distinguished and they make the finest street and lawn look drabby and grimy. Fortunately spring adds the impulse for cleaning by attracting to the green lawns and the boulevards and roadways public attention. The green grass growing all around sets any debris in prominence and soon the litter is taken away for it becomes too noticeable.

Belleville citizens and the corporation have paid close attention to these matters in respect to natural beauty of the city So Belleville is among the tidy and clean looking cities and the streets and lawns are things to be proud of for their appearance.

Meteorology, the Weather

Man's attention to meteorology has been increased greatly since the beginning of the Second World War. Those who were old enough at the time of the first war with Germany know that meteorology did not play anything like the importance it assumed in the recently ended struggle. As a result the weather people have been accustomed to speak of casually and in general terms takes on great significance, public appreciation of which has developed since the removal of restrictions after the war's end. Knowledge of weather conditions and air currents were an essential and developed greatly as required by aviation and sailing of ships.

The first postwar conference of world meteorologists of 46 nations has just been held in London. Committees were re-established and six regional commissions were set up each covering broadly one continent and adjoining oceans. Steps were taken to adapt to peacetime purpose wartime developments. Needs of long distance civil aviation were given prime consideration.

Britain took the lead in meteorology in war years. Readings were obtained at all heights into the stratosphere. As a result pilots on the information given them can decide the levels at which flying conditions are best.

Among the developments of British scientists is one, that of detecting thunderstorms across the Continent of Europe. They came to use a cathode ray revealing storms 1,500 miles away and data on approaching depressions and fronts. Importance of thundery regions may be realised from the fact that in these areas severe icing, treacherous air currents and electrical disturbances are found which upset the pilot's instruments.

Wind velocity aloft is measured by two methods, one employing direction finding and the other using radar. Pressure temperature and humidity are measured by a radio sonde instrument — a British invention — sent up on a free balloon. United Kingdom scientists have also developed an instrument to measure humidity at very low temperatures. For heights above the capacity of radio sonde and wind finding technique, British scientists use a very high velocity gun. Teh shell is filled with a smoke composition and the smoke cloud produced at the burst can be followed by theodolites to give both speed and direction of wind. A systematic series of wind determinations has been made at a height of 30 kilometres, though greater altitudes may be obtainable.

Today it is possible to study the atmosphere in three dimensions, instead of confining attention to the ground level and this outlook is considered the greatest advance in meteorology in recent times.

The British board furnishes weather forecasts to 500 stations in Britain and to the French authorities in Paris. Bulletins of immediate and future upper air conditions over an area of Archangel, Cairo, the Azores and Greenland are issued every six hours.

British flying has been of benefit to safe flying throughout the world.

Many Tourists Expected

Canada has had the very best advertising through the presence of Americans in this country during the war years. These people who know Canada give Canada the right kind of publicity.

This is one of the reasons which it is believed will lead to the present year having a very large ingress of visitors from the United States. The end of the war last year caused a spurt in the visit by Americans to Canada though it came too late in the season and there still remained the restrictions on gasoline which now are out. With a full season available for touring and most of the service people back there will naturally be a great deal of motoring this summer in Canada and the United States. Canadians may expect many visitors.

Canadian Horses for Europe

It was in 1665 that the first horse brought to Canada from France was disembarked from a sailing ship at Tadoussac. It was presented to the Governor of New France, Augustin de Saffray de Mesy, by the settlers. Now horses are going in the other direction. A special Canadian National train of 22 stock cars carried 374 horses from Alberta and Saskatchewan to the dockside recently and movements of Canadian horses to France will continue every second week as long as there is space on the boats.

When the space ships come into vogue, with weekend jaunts to the other planets, there is likely to be some frantic alibiing for not getting back to the office by Monday morning, says Hamilton Spectator.

PIONEER SPIRIT

If you're sure 'twill work, go to it!
Try it often; you may do it.
Wrong the first time, try the second;
Failure's not so quickly reckoned.
Don't sit down a beaten, glum thing;
Every failure teaches something.
Right way? You may come upon it,
Staying with it, working on it!

If you've caught a gleam, pursue it!
You may find there's something to it.
Into mazes it may lead you;
Barriers fearsome may impede you;
Strange occurrences disturb you;
Accidents beset and curb you,
But keep at it! It's by chances
In discovery man advances.

If you think it, work to prive it!
Mountain'd stop you? Faith may move it!
Go beyond the printed pages;
Pay no heed to scoffing sages;
Many a smart man's hurtful jeering,
With success, has turned to cheering.
Get out there, a stout forerunner!
Don't you be a "can't-be-doner!"

Russian Letter

Written For The Canadian Press
By P. IVANOV

Moscow, March 26 (CP)—More than 650 motion picture theatres and 7,000 cinema installations were destroyed by the Germans in Russia, but restoration and new construction began as soon as the areas were liberated.

Some 532 theatres were rehabilitated or rebuilt and 3,000 installations were put back in operation this year, two-thirds of this number in liberated territory.

Fur auction: Karakul will be a prominent item at the Soviet Union's first post-war auction in Leningrad's "fur palace", now being rebuilt after receiving extensive damage during the city's seige. The auction attracted world-wide attention before the war.

Karakul breeding mainly practised in Central Asia, was affected little by the war. State farm herds increased 20 per cent and collective farm herds were improved by introduction of thoroughbred rams from state farms.

There are more than 70 karakul breeding state farms in the U.S.S.R., the largest being at Uzbekistan, Turkmenia. The name comes from the Uzbek word kara kul, meaning black wave.

Mountain research: The Pamir Mountains—the "roof of the world"—topped by the 24,599-foot Stalin peak, are the scene of experiments to fathom their economic possibilities. Scientists, geodesists and geologists are going higher and higher in the mountain wilderness to carry out experiments.

Miologists have established a base at 12,660 feet up the eastern Pamirs on the Chinese border and started experimental agriculture there, although there are never more than 20 days a year when water does not freeze.

Local cattle breeders last year began to cultivate barley, radishes, turnips, carrots, lettuce and cow cabbage and some peasants have even grown grain.

PARLIAMENT

Relieved of Contributions

Labor Minister Mitchell announced that conscientious objectors engaged in alternative service work who have or who take a farm job in the future will be relieved of making compulsory contributions to the Red Cross. Contributions from some 10,870 objectors totalled $2,248,913 at the end of last January.

Mr. Poullot and Mr. Gagnon expressed their opposition to the recent $1,250,000,000 Canadian loan to Britain, bringing to five the number of French-speaking members from Quebec who have already indicated they will oppose ratification of the loan agreements.

Mr. Gagnon said he agreed with the people who felt Canada already had done enough — in fact too much — for outside countries. The Canadian people felt they were giving constantly and receiving only bits and pieces in return.

Victorian "Imperialists" in Canada, Mr. Poullot said, should not criticize Fred Rose (Lab.-Prog.—Montreal Cartier), charged in the espionage investigation, for thinking first of Russia. They themselves thought first of another country — Britain—before thinking of Canada.

Wants Better Treatment

Mr. McKay, a Flight Lieutenant in the R.C.A.F. from 1941 to 1945, called for better treatment of Canadian war veterans. He urged increased grants and loans to those wishing to start farming, to those taking vocational training and to those continuing their education.

He said that the government should fulfill its wartime promises of full employment in the postwar years.

Lincoln, Sr., president of the Lincoln Electric Co., of Cleveland, O., is shown after his arrival in Joliet, Ill., from Buffalo, N.Y., to aid his son who is being held in connection with the brutal attack on nine-year-old Carol Williams, a farmer's daughter. The child is near death in the hospital. The younger Lincoln, father of two children, is said to have confessed to authorities that he beat and shot the girl after he had picked her up in his car near Joliet.

MACKENZIE'S COLUMN

Greediness For Territory Only Bar to Peace

By DeWITT MACKENZIE

Paris, March 26 — (AP) — Whenever two or more serious-minded people get together these days the conversation inevitably arrives at a discussion of whether Europe is headed for another conflict.

The danger of a further upheaval does exist. However, war not only is not inevitable but the balance is on the side of peace at this writing.

The existing threat is due to differences among the major powers in connection with the realignment of the zones of influence in Europe and in Asia. Power politics is another designation for it.

The newborn might of Russia is pouring into much of the vacuum created by the disappearance of Germany, Italy and Japan as first-class powers, and by the inability of France and Britain to defend their place in the sun.

There remain some highly delicate points to be settled — for example, Moscow's intentions regarding Austria, Turkey, Iran and Manchuria — but when they have been ironed out the danger of trouble will have been reduced to a minimum, unless some power displays ambition to exceed the new zones of influence.

Generalissimo Stalin, in an interview with the Associated Press the other day, expressed confidence in the United Nations as an instrument for preserving peace. That reflects the views of numerous statesmen with whom I have talked recently. All are keenly aware of the dangers to peace, but none believes the dangers are unsurmountable.

The degree of success of the United Nations Organization will be in direct ratio to the degree of agreement among the Big Three — Russia, Britain and the United States.

Many competent observers are encouraged by the more positive stand being taken recently by the Big Three in their dealings with one another.

Military leaders and statesmen alike recognize that the moment has arrived when firmness and frankness is necessary.

The United Nations Organizations had dangerous waters to negotiate, apart from the manoeuvring of the European powers for position other problems are developing out of the chaos caused by the war. The plague of hunger which is sweeping both Europe and Asia is likely to produce numerous crises among the distressed people. Inflation is creating impossible situations in many countries. And there are the political troubles of India, Indonesia and China.

But none of the problems, serious as they are, need cause another global conflict — barring one contingency. That contingency would be the attempt of a major power to take advantage of a crisis to extend its own territory or zone of influence. Give us another few months and we shall be able to say whether there is any power which has such unholy ambitions.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Signed letters, not more than one page or 100 words long, pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease, diagnosis or treatment, will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped self addressed envelope is enclosed. Letters should be brief and written in ink. Owing to the large number of letters received only a few can be answered here. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. Address Dr. William Brady, care of this newspaper.

Readers addressing letters to Dr. Brady will please include the word "Canada" on their return envelopes, as these letters have to be forwarded to Dr. Brady. And it is requested that readers use standard size envelopes that will hold a small booklet

WHAT DO YOU MEAN, YANKEE STOMACH?

Coming upon the term "Yankee stomach" in this column a number of readers express desire, request or demand for an explanation.

n the first place, Yankee means North American.

In the first place, Yankee means stomach does not necessarily mean gastric ulcer, stomach ulcer, peptic ulcer or duodenal ulcer But we had better stipulate right here that a good many people with Yankee stomach who think they have ulcer haven't, and on the other hand a good many who think they have just "acid stomach" actually have gastric or duodenal ulcer.

For instance, people who smoke too much—and it seems that feminine smokers are given to excess in this respect, smoking before or even in the course of a meal—are likely to develop hyperacidity of the stomach and other symptoms which may point toward ulcer, yet no sign of ulcer can be found by X-ray. No amount of dieting or medicine taking can give any lasting relief in these cases until the smoking is stopped, I said stopped period.

Stopped for how long? Oh, I don't know—it's your stomach — how long do you want to continue free of trouble?

Sure, sure, there are remedies to alleviate the pain or discomfort, whether you have ulcer or not. You will find detailed instructions for using them in the pamphlet "Yankee Stomach"—ask in writing for it and inclose self addressed envelope, regular size, not a toy envelope. These booklets and pamphlets are not large, but after all it is not practicable to send them in toy envelopes

Reverting to the question of giving up smoking for the relief of ulcer symptoms, I can't tell you how soon you would notice relief or improvement in your condition after you stop smoking. But I can assure you this does not depend on "getting the nicotine out of your system." I doubt whether the nicotine has anything to do with the ill effects of smoking anyway. From scientific studies of the question there is little or no evidence that the principal injurious elements is CO—carbon monoxide gas in the smoke.

Anyway, it is not how long it takes to get all the nicotine out of the system, but haw long it will take to repair the damage that has been done to the vital cells and tissues—if repair is still possible.

Likewise it matters little how long it takes to get alcohol out of the system, but how long it will ter of hours—but the important question is how long it will take to repair the damage the alcohol has done to the cells and tissues.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

The Time to Save Teeth

Daughter, 18, has as many fillings now as I have at 53. Her teeth seem to crumble away . . . dentist has no suggestion. (Mrs. T. H.)

Answer—I forgot whether it was Holmes who said that in order to achieve longevity one must begin about a hundred years before birth, or some such Hibernicism. The soundness of a child's teeth depends primarily upon the state of the mother's teeth in the 280 days before the child is born. Secondly upon (a) nutrition and (b) the quality of the dentistry the child receives. Send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope and ask in writing for booklet "Save Your Teeth."

Tut! Tut!!

Please use your great influence to persuade young mothers and high students that going without necessary underwear in chilly spring weather is just the way to cause colds, flu etc. (Mrs. J. M.)

Answer—On the contrary, Ma'm I assure them that what they please to wear or not wear in any circumstance has nothing whatever to do with any illness or indisposition—except possible frostbite.

Caffeine

Would eight or ten cups of coffee a day be in excess for a healthy person to drink without harmful effects especially upon mental functioning? (L. E.)

Answer—Yes.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Is a Senator a Congressman?

Congress consists of two branches — the Senate and the House of Representatives.

In popular usage, however, Congress is applied to the House of Representatives to distinguish it from the Senate.

Frequently visitors at the Capitol in Washington ask, "Where does Congress meet?" when they meet. "Where does the House of Representatives meet?"

This usage probably arose from the fact that Americans were familiar with "Congress" as the name of the national legislature many years before the Senate was created by the Federal Constitution. The House of Representatives, rather than the State, resembled the Continental Congress and the Congress under the Articles of Confederation in its organization and naturally supplanted the latter body in the eyes of the public.

A member of the House of Representatives is officially and correctly designated a Representative; a member of the Senate, a Senator. Strictly speaking, a member of either the House or the Senate might be, and occasionally is, called a "Congressman."

This, while technically correct, is unofficial and misleading, because when the average person uses "Congressman" he almost invariably means "Representative."

In fact, the latter usage is so well established that any person who desires to obtain the good opinion of Senators will never call them Congressmen.

New Pamphlet Issued on Roses

The rose is probably the oldest flower in cultivation, says R. W. Oliver, Division of Horticulture, Dominion Department of Agriculture, in his introduction to publication 777 on "Outdoor Roses in Canada", just published by the Department. No one can tell when the rose was first introduced into gardens, but, in the Bible, in Greek mythology, and in the writings of the early Romans, frequent mention is made of its cultivation. There is neither description nor pedigree of these old roses, but about 45 B.C. Herodotus wrote of a rose with 60 petals, so that even by that date the rose had developed considerably from the five-petaled species native to Asia, Europe, and America. Everything about outdoor roses in Canada and how to grow them will be found in the publication, a copy of which may be obtained by writing to Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Bush was sentenced to the farm for 90 days, but escaped after serving three. His old record was revealed when police took his fingerprints recently in an auto accident.

Aga Khan a Deity Who Goes to Races

India, beset by civil unrest and threatened by famine, has turned its attention to a contrasting picture, the weighing with diamonds of a well-fed, cosmopolitan gentleman, Dwight Pennington writes in The Kansas City Star.

The gentleman is the 68-year-old Aga Khan, owner of one of the world's finest racing stables, familiar of European society in the decades between wars, married four times, but spiritual leader of perhaps ten million Mohammedans and worshipped as a god by hundreds of thousands of them. In Bombay, pilgrims assembled by the tens of thousands, bearing gifts in honor of his diamond jubilee, the sixtieth anniversary of his rise to leadership.

His actual income and his monetary worth never have been revealed. He inherited much from his father. The ten million members of the Ismail sect of the Moslems must donate two percent of their income to his agents, and the hundreds of thousands of Khojas, a more select group, give 10 percent. That produces enormous revenue, even after administrative expenses are deducted.

Fund for Relief.

Wise investments in many parts of the world have increased the Aga Khan's income. A large part of it goes into a relief fund, for sufferers from famine, flood and other disasters. But plenty is left for the Aga Khan to live in style.

Before the Second World War he spent about eight months of each year in Europe. There he dresses and lives like a prosperous Western businessman. His racing stables were valued at five million dollars in the '30's., and his horses twice won the English Derby, Blenheim in 1930 and Blenheim's son, Bahram, in 1935. He has a great collection of jewels, his rubies alone having been appraised at 250 million dollars.

Three of his wives, including the present one, have been Europeans. His first wife, from his own country, died in 1926. His second, an Italian, became a Moslem before their wedding. He divorced her, it is said, with a curt note reading, "You are divorced."

Useful to British.

His life has not been so carefree and indolent as Westerners are led to believe. He has been a real leader in the Moslem world and especially has served the British well in their dealings with the great Moslem minority in India. The list of his honors is long in the British "Who's Who" and he has been toasted by the King at the Jockey Club, of which he was the first Oriental member. He was the founder and long the leader of the Moslem League in India, always advising the acceptance of British proposals aiming toward a gradual increase in self-government. More aggressive elements took control of the league in the middle of the '30's.

Within the Moslem church he has been a leader in the direction of reform and unity. Since the decline of the caliphate, there has been no recognized head of all the 70 Mohammedan sects, with some 250 million members. When 25 years old, he was called upon to preside over an all-Moslem educational conference, and at that time spoke out against meaningless prayers and pilgrimages. He turned his attention to education, and was the leader in a program which raised the Moslem college at Aligarh to the status of a university.

Example for People.

Still earlier, at the age of 20, he had persuaded his people to be vaccinated, contrary to their traditional belief. With a smallpox epidemic spreading over the country, the young Aga Khan travelled among his followers and was vaccinated repeatedly in the presence of large crowds as an example.

At that time he already had been leader of his sect for 12 years. He was eight years old when, at the death of his father, he was raised to leadership with the formal title of Moulana Hazar Imam, Sarkar Saheb His Highness Sir Aga Sultan Mohammed Shah Aga Khan. A direct descendant of Mohammed through the prophet's daughter, Fatima, he was entitled to the place by heredity, but was prepared for it by rigorous study. Trained in Moslem theology, he also studied Persian and Indian history, literature and philosophy. Then he turned his attention to the West, under English tutors and later was graduated from Eton and Cambridge. It was said that as a boy he was caned severely for delinquencies in school. When an old servant protested his health might be impaired, the story goes, his mother replied he might better be dead than ignorant.

Bath Water Sold.

His learning has been applied often to the welfare of his people, but he has not disabused them of superstitious rites from which he profits. For example, a group of elders gives him his weight in gold each year and receives in return several barrels of water in which he has bathed. This they sell at $5 a vial for its supposed healing value.

Western associates have sometimes proposed that he tell the followers who worship him as a god, the Khojas, that he is not really divine. This he has refused to do. A French novelist, Maurice Barres, told of seeing a group of Moslems worshipping at a roadside shrine in Syria. Barres recognized the picture as that of Aga Khan and asked the priest in charge, "Are you sure he is a god? I've met him often in Paris and at horse races." To which the priest replied: "Why shouldn't he go to Paris if he wishes and why shouldn't a god enjoy horse racing?"

"MUSTARD POULTICES HELPED PREVENT SEVERE COLDS"

SAID MRS. McLELLAND

"My husband was a fireman and is now an engineer," explained Mrs. Margaret McLelland of Moose Jaw. "He is subject to severe colds as he comes from extremely hot temperatures to extremely cold ones, sometimes 40 degrees below zero. Many times I have saved him from severe colds and chest congestions by making a mustard poultice for him, using one tablespoonful of mustard to four of flour. We find mustard exceedingly helpful."

Uses Mustard Poultices on Children

"I don't hesitate to use a mustard poultice on my children," Mrs. McLelland continued. "Although they are very young, one only 8 months old, I make a poultice, using 1 tablespoonful of mustard to 6 tablespoonfuls of flour, at the first sign of a cold."

Mustard Treatments Help Relieve Many Ailments

Like many another Canadian housewife, Mrs. McLelland finds that mustard poultices help to relieve many other every-day complaints, such as severe cramps and backache. She also finds that a mixture of two tablespoonfuls of mustard in a foot bath of water makes a comforting treatment. The unique properties of mustard help give relief to many who suffer rheumatic pains or from the pains of arthritis, neuralgia, or neuritis. Mothers, new and old, trust safe, reliable mustard as a home remedy. The mustard treatments, either as poultices or baths help give quick, soothing relief from chills, colds and other winter infections.

Poultices should never be left on longer than 20 minutes and always call your doctor if symptoms appear serious.

'Pitched Battles' Near Mukden Are Reported

By HAROLD K. MILKS

Chungking, March 25 —(AP)— "Pitched battles" between Central Government and Communist troops near Mukden were described here today as the Government and Communists were reported on the verge of agreeing to send truce-inspection teams into Manchuria.

Dispatches from Mukden said that four regiments of Communist reinforcements under Gen. Lin Piao had hotly contested Government entry into Fushun, important coal centre 30 miles east of Mukden.

The Communist forces now are withdrawing to the northeast under the pressure of Government forces, which are continuing to advance, the report declared.

Ho Ping Pao, Chinese army newspaper, reported the occupation of Fushun and said another Central Government column driving up the Airen-Mukden railroad from the south had occupied the rail centre of Liaoyang 30 miles south of Mukden. Liaoyang is approximately halfway between Mukden and the great steel centre of Anshan, where the column was reported yesterday.

The Fushun battle report was the first indication of any serious clash between the two forces in the area, where observers have feared that such an engagement might provide the spark needed to rekindle the smouldering civil war.

Meanwhile, the Communist New China Daily News published a Manchurian dispatch saying that Gen. Chow Pao-Chung, commander of the pro-Communist 3rd Route Army of anti-Japanese Allied forces, had demanded recognition of his troops by President Chiang Kai-Shek.

Must Procure Licence Plates Before April 10th

Toronto, March 25 —(CP)— Highways Minister Doucette said today April 10 has been designated as the last valid day for 1945 motor vehicle number plates and drivers' licences in Ontario. He said recent federal steel regulations will prevent a reversion to the two-plate system in 1947.

Acknowledging Ontario previously indicated two plates would be used in 1947 as in pre-war years, Mr. Doucette said the steel shortage in Canada, aggravated by steel strikes in the United States, would permit only one plate for each motor vehicle.

SWORN IN AS MINISTER

Toronto, March 26 — (CP) — Hon. G. Arthur Welsh, D.S.O., appointed minister without portfolio in the Ontario government last January, Monday was sworn in as Minister of the new Department of Travel and Publicity.

Premier Drew indicated previously that Mr. Welsh, who represents the riding of Muskoka-Ontario, would be the new travel minister.

Lieutenant - Governor Albert Matthews presided at the swearing-in ceremony, held in the Lieutenant-Governor's chambers at the Parliament Buildings.

REBUILD NEW GUINEA

Rabaul, New Guinea (CP) — Australian and American engineers in New Guinea have built wharves, airdromes, bridges, viaducts, causeways and roads that have called for the greatest skill and endurance. Most of the work was done by manual labor with axes, picks, shovels and crowbars.

Shutting Out the Sea From a Dutch Island

London Calling)

On the map, Rammekens is a place a few miles from Flushing—only it is not a place at all. It is a bleak and intolerably desolate wasteland, grey and cold and misty and miserable. It looks like the end of the world.

You stand shivering on the mud there, and the wind comes sweeping across the waters of the Scheldt estuary and hits you and pierces you, because you are the only upright thing on the devastated fen. Around you the malevolent tides, black and green, claw at the dyke banks, smashing and sucking at the clay, seeking to carry away even the black skeletons of trees sticking up out of the flood—trees which these salt waters have already killed. This is Rammekens Gap: sinister name of a grim place.

On the day chosen for the attempt to seal this last breach, we went up before dawn. And, thank heaven, the weather was then relatively calm, but still grey, and cruelly cold.

As the hour of slack water approached there were a couple of thousand folk freezing and watching. The scene was raw and desolate still. The gap did not look too wide now, for the dyke bank on either side had been built out with hundreds of tons of stones, with thick mats of woven brushwood, with clay and with black sand that was being pumped in day and night through great pipes from a dredger a mile away.

At one end of the bank was half-entombed an old German concrete ships that had been meant for the invasion of England. On the gap-banks against the sky—banks looking like slag-heaps at an English colliery — stood the crowds, looking at the swirling waters. Eleven steam tugs stood by; and two huge floating cranes. Beyond, inland, we saw the grey flooded fields, with forlorn bits of dead hedges and the tops of ruined houses sticking up from the water.

The onlookers were thinking, I know, of the disaster and the reconstruction that had already happened and had brought them to this moment. It was in the Autumn of 1944 that the Royal Air Force bombed Walcheren. It was a painful necessity.

We had to flood the Germans out of this heavily defended island which barred the way to Antwerp and Germany, and to final victory. The bombing broke the dykes in four places and let the sea in. So most of Walcheren—which is like a saucer twelve miles across, with dykes all round the edge—was laid under water. It looked as though a fertile and beautiful country was lost beneath the North Sea.

But the Dutch cannot bear to let the sea win. In the last few months crack dyke-engineers and 3,000 workmen closed three of the four gaps, and so drained three-quarters of the island. Their greatest enemy were those strong tidal currents roaring in and out of the gaps in the 20-foot-high dykes—in and out four times a day, savagely scouring the channels, deeper, deeper all the time.

The workers narrowed the gaps by extending the broken dyke ends, and the narrowing made the tides dash through all the fiercer. But the Dutchmen persevered, through storms that swept their work away. They sank old ships and concrete invasion barges into the holes—and they were successful. They drained the water away from 35,000 acres, and were now confronted with the task of sealing the Rammeken Gap—the last and most difficult one—in order to get the last 6,000 acres back from the clutches of the sea.

The people are beginning to come back, though Walcheren still presents the sad sight of broken houses caked with salt, with shellfish on the rotten walls, and seaweed in the chimneys. The devastation made the starting of the dyke-repairing job vastly difficult for the men. They had no machines, no materials, no electric power. There were 1,000,000 German mines beneath the waters. But, as the war ended, the British let Holland have masses of equipment; huts, mine-detectors, 2,000,000 sand bags, ropes, rubber boots for the workmen, bulldozers, locomotives, landing-craft, and some British technical experts.

The hour came, the hour of slack water; the turn of the tide. Within that hour the job had to be done. And as the action started we all watched one thing — the thing that had been towed from England to dam the hole: an enormous floating concrete block—a Phoenix caisson, that had been one of the main elements of the British artificial harbor "Mulberry", on the Normandy beaches in 1944.

There it lay, ready at the side of the gap, a towering great grey thing, an anti-invasion breakwater this time. It looked like a great block of flats half submerged— 200 feet long, 50 feet high out of the water—with men standing on top of it—the engineering staff, directing the operation from the very instrument they were using. Four steel hawsers ran from the caisson to two bulldozers on land and to winches on the floating cranes. The hawsers were to manoeuvre the breakwater across the gap.

And they did move it, when the moment came, and the first orders were given from the top of the concrete mass—given calmly through a megaphone by a big Dutch superintendent with a wide, wise face under a battered slouch hat. With cables tight, the mountainous block moved. In a few minutes, there it was in the gap. No flurry, no disaster.

But this was only the beginning. At once, tugs and barges and cranes converged from every side, and clay and stones and masses of old torpedo-netting were flung into the water all around the sunken caisson, for there were still gaps below it on either side to be stopped; these would be the danger spots when the tide came rushing in.

Most spectacular now were the big steel barges with 200 tons of enormous stone boulders aboard each. Each in turn moved to the side of the caisson. Beneath the vessel's waterline a compartment was flooded, the barge then tilted sideways, and shot the whole 200 tons of stone—all together—roaring and splashing into the water, all in two seconds, and—miraculously, it seemed — the barge righted itself, while men still on board clung to the rails like monkeys.

Night fall—and electric floodlights weirdly lit the scene. The dumping work never stopped. It dare not stop. The test was here now, here with the rising tide: the water ten feet higher on one side of the new stop-gap than on the other, causing enormous pressure and a terrifying rush of water through the small holes still under the caisson and at the sides. Would it hold?

For hour after hour there was anxious watch as the grim tides of Rammekens Gap scoured those remaining holes. But it did hold. Daylight came, but the work never stopped—sandbags, stones, sandbags, stones, brushwood, mattresses, clay, sand, more sand, thousands of tons of everything tipped in to fight the thwarted sea that leaned with new pressure against the walls of the land. Work has never stopped since.

Of course Walcheren's dykes have to prove their stability against the Winter's gales. But it does look as though they will hold, and that all the floods will soon be gone from the island again. Soon the Dutch should be able to begin once more, begin the long hard job of cleansing the island of the salt which has, for the present, poisoned and killed everything that grew out of it. In two years, perhaps, the farmers may achieve the first new small crops. In five years things will really begin to grow; it will be twenty years before the orchards appear.

After an excellent breakfast prepared by Mr. Royal and Mr. Lee and served by members of the Columbian Squires, Mr. Harold Barrett, competent master of ceremonies for the occasion, began the program for the morning. The assembled guests sang "Holy God, We Praise Thy Name", after which Rt. Rev. Monsignor Nicholson delivered a truly inspiring address on the influence of religion on democracy, and the threat to western civilization by anti-Christian philosophies of life. Mr. George Forhan, on behalf of the fathers and sodalists, moved a vote of thanks for the excellent address given by Monsignor Nicholson. Brief talks were given by the President, Miss Gertrude Lynch, and by Miss Mary McDougall, chairman of the Apostolic Committee which was in charge of the breakfast. Hair That Needs Disciplining

Here's Jeanne Crain, her hair combed two flattering ways.

By HELEN FOLLETT

HAIR does not always take kindly to a new arrangement. Having become accustomed to a certain pattern, it wants to fall into it. We are telling you this so that, if the locks are long and you are about to wad them atop your head into one of those fat doughnut wads, you needn't be surprised if it snarls at you.

It will refuse to stay up in the rear, so you'd better pin it down with tuck combs. If you'll put some brilliantine on the bristles of the brush, groom upward vigorously before you arrange it, that will help.

The girl who has worn bangs for years, decides she's sick to death of them so sweeps them upward with the rest of her wool, has a maddening time. They are determined to continue on their downward way.

A permanent wave ,rolling these wayward tresses up on metal curlers, will get them under control in course of time. One can't wear the same old coiffure year after year whether hair likes a change or not. Locks must be disciplined.

Straight hair is accepted now by girls who model fashions. Brushed up, front, back and sides, done in a bun on top. All very well. These girls make pulchritude a business. They have good features. They have manner and presence. They can get away with it.

Average Woman

The average woman will keep right on making her twice or thrice-yearly pilgrimages to the beautytorium where she will get a permanent wave. Fluff and rolls and ringlets have a flattering enchantment that straight tresses can never attain. They form a soft frame for the feminine phiz.

And, while we are on this subject, let us urge the good looks class to give hair and scalp daily attention. Keep hair clean and shining bright. It is subject to changes, the same as the complexion. Keep the scalp toned by friction, hair vitalized by brushing.

BEAUTY

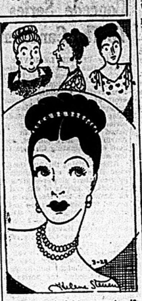
Hair and Scalp Care

Young girls, to the last pretty lassie, wear flowing, shoulder-length tresses, and what could be sweeter? Women are divided into two clans, the shorties and the longies. They either have four or five-inch cuts, or they have put their minds on hair growing, have upped their hair in various arrangements, some of which are pretty terrible if their structure has not been thought out by a stylist. Straight hair—sleeked back, front sides and rear, and wadded atop the pate—is all right for the reigning beauty. On the plain woman it is a good-looks crime.



The sleek, straight upswept coiffure is all right for the reigning beauty.

This season of the year, hair may look as if it were all tired out and in need of petting. Hot, dry air in offices, shops and homes does not enhance the silky threads. Lack of sunshine, fresh air and exercise to stimulate circulation may have a depressing effect upon the growth. If you have the leisure, you will find a course of professional treatments a good investment. While you are getting them you can rest your eyes and your soul, relax utterly feel like purring. Beauticians say that home treatment is often too casual. Not always even that. Usually it is overlooked entirely.

It's the scalp that must have attention. It must be kept scrupulously clean. It must be frictioned.

Improper shampooing, that leaves deposits of soap scum on the shafts and the scalp, will prove ruinous to the healthiest hair. There should be three rousing applications of melted soap, each soaping followed by a thorough rinsing with a bath spray and a strong current of water, fairly hot. When the hair is thoroughly clean, it shines; every hair is separated from its neighbor. Any beautician will tell you that home shampooers have come to her with hair so matted with soap that she has had to use eggs or an oil shampoo to remove it.

Improper shampooing takes the life out of a permanent, the coil quality disappears. Many girls, bawling about an oily condition, will find that this trouble has vanished when the map has been thoroughly laundered.

Brushing is helpful because it keeps the hair cleaner, gives it luster. But that is not enough. The scalp should have a few minutes of friction every night to keep circulatory streams on the run. These streams carry nourishment to the papillae in which the hair roots rest. Massage keeps the flesh from tightening up, restricting the functions of the blood streams.

If there is any serious disorder of hair and scalp one should consult a physician who specializes along these lines. Your family doctor will be glad to recommend a reliable dermatologist.

Ready-made Thank-you Cards Are a Social Atrocity

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please settle a dispute in our family as to whether it is proper to send printed "thank-you" cards regardless of the number of gifts received? I maintain that they are proper to acknowledge gifts when many gifts are received.

R. D. E.

I wish I could settle this dispute, for I would like to spare all givers-of-gifts the shock and bitter disappointment of receiving a ready-made card of thanks to "acknowledge" their kind thought and their gift.

A ready-made thank-you card is a social atrocity, and the sending of these cards is inexcusably rude and callous. They "acknowledge" no appreciation of a kind thought or a gift. . .they acknowledge only the fact that the one who stoops to send them has no sense of good taste and is unwilling to take the trouble to show proper appreciation by writing a personal note of thanks.

Sending a printed (or engraved) card of thanks is a tawdry way to thank a friend for a gift. Think of your friends' reactions when, instead of receiving the personal note expected from you, they receive bleak, impersonal words which the printer or the card-manufacturer "made up" for lazy or cowardly people who won't write notes. Not a word of your thanks on the card. . . the words don't become yours just because you sign your name to them! They're still someone else's words, someone unknown to you or to the receiver. And what the donor wants, has the right to expect, and should receive, is your words.

The fact that "many gifts are received" has no bearing on this rule that personal notes should be written. If personal notes aren't written, doubtless there won't be so many presents on the next gift-occasion! For naturally people aren't inclined to send gifts to people who don't show proper appreciation.

Even if you don't write more than a sentence or two of appreciation, the "Thank you" will be your "Thank you", written in your handwriting, which will mean something personal and gracious to the receiver.

Surely none of us should be the kind of person who would be willing to admit that we can't write, or that we won't take the trouble to write a simple sentence or two of thanks for the kind thought of a friend and for a gift that has been planned for our happiness.

Flowers from the Prospective Bridegroom

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

To settle an argument, will you please tell me who pays for the bride's bouquet and the corsages for "the mothers" at a wedding? I say that these are supplied by the groom; my friend says not.

W. A.

Always the prospective bridegroom, if he knows what's what, sends a corsage to the bride's mother and one to his own mother. Usually too it is he who gives his bride her bouquet; however, sometimes the bride's family orders her bouquet when they order the other flowers for the wedding, the flowers for the church, reception, for the bridal attendants.

Hope Chest and Bridal Showers

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Who buys an engaged girl's hope chest?

2. At a shower that I am giving does the girl's fiance stay to help open the presents, or does he just bring his fiancee to the shower, leave at once, and return later and after all the gifts have been opened?

H. S.

1. Her hope chest is usually purchased by the girl or her parents. However, it is proper for her fiance to give it to her, if he wishes.

2. Usually the girl's fiance does not appear at the shower, unless it is one given in the evening to which men are invited to come in after the gifts have been presented and opened. He may, of course, escort his fiancee to the shower but he should leave her when they have arrived at the hostess' door. By no means should he "stay to help open the presents", for this part of any bridal shower, daytime or evening, is a "woman's world". Sometimes at an afternoon shower, the fiance of the guest of honor arrives at the end of the shower, to escort his fiancee home.

Plans For Informal Double Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman::

1. My younger sister and I are planning to have a double wedding in June. We are planning to wear long white dresses, but the wedding is to be on the side of informality. Do we need each other as attendant or can we each have one attendant?

May our father give us both in marriage- If not, we have a brother-in-law whom we thought of asking to give my younger sister in marriage. Would this be correct? Does the bride walk on the right or left of her father or other "escort"?

2. Is it necessary for the bridegrooms to be dressed alike? Must they both wear dark suits?

3. Do the familes of both bridegrooms sit on the same side of the church? If so, what is the seating arrangement?

4. Wheh do we, the brides, throw our bouquets?

Sisters

1. If you and your sister wish to keep your double wedding very formal, and the wedding party very small, you may both go to the altar escorted by your father, you on his right arm and your sister on his left arm. Then (1) your sister may be your maid of honor, and you her matron of honor; or (2) each bride may have one attendant, the attendants walking together before you two brides with your father.

If the church aisle is too narrow for this arrangement, this is a correct procedure: Your attendant, followed by you on your father's right arm; then your sister's attendant, followed by your sister on her brother-in-law's right arm. It is proper for your sister to be escorted by her brother-in-law, if he is her closest relative, but your father gives both brides in marriage, first you, his older daughter, and then his younger daughter.

2. In the interest of general harmony the bridegrooms should be dressed as nearly alike as possible.

3. At a double wedding the parents of the two bridegrooms may share the first pew on the right of the aisle. Or they may draw lots to determine which parents are to occupy the first pew (with the members of their immediate family) and which the second The pews on the right of the aisle comprise "the bridegrooms' side": the first or first two pews for parents, brothers and sisters; the next several pews, assigned alternately, for close relatives of the bridegroom; the remaining pews for other relatives and friends.

4. You brides (you first) throw your bouquets just before you leave the reception to change from bridal attire to travelling costume.

The Newlyweds Usually Depart Before Reception Guests Do

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My mother and I are having quite a controversy, which I hope you can settle for us. I am having an informal wedding with a reception at our house. On the invitations we stated that the hours of the reception were to be from 1.30 to 3.30. But now we find that in order to catch the plane we must leave the house at 2.50. My mother thinks it would not be polite for us to leave before 3.30, the hour we mentioned in the invitations. Please tell us what would be proper.

—S. A.

You and your mother needn't be at all concerned about the fact that you and the bridegroom must depart at 2.50, for undoubtedly all the guests will have arrived by 2.30 at the latest and it is quite customary for the couple to leave while the guests are still at the reception. It's really more festive too for the couple to leave while the guests are there to shower them with good wishes, and perhaps with confetti!

Fashion Flashes

IT'S NECESSARY that a coat be very good if it is to have a chance in this big suit season. Very, very good is a coat of navy woolen with five white stripes set at repeated intervals. The stripes are handled chevron-fashion on the bodice which has a dolman sleeve, casual collarless neckline and slim waist marked by a wide belt of navy blue calf.

THE PIGTAIL CROWD likes black! Favorite evening attire of youngsters at western resorts is the dirndl skirt with ruffled hem, done in any fabric, so long as the color is black. With it a dreamy white cotton blouse with slightly scooped out neckline and puffed peasant-type sleeves.

A GOOD JOB of designing and styling new accessories for wear with spring suits has been attained. Nice to dress up a navy suit is a set consisting of red, white and blue plaided silk taffeta ascot and navy fabric gloves with wide turnover, flared cuffs of the plaid silk.

IT'S WONDERFUL to have beautiful floral prints of pure silk crepe. Huge scarlet poppies on a black or dark gray ground is used for a beautiful afternoon frock made with softly cascading side-drapery on the skirt. Surplice-closed bodice has deep dolman sleeves.

RETURNING to the fashion fold is the light-colored coat of fine woolen with huge cuffs, collar or border or fluffy fox in shades to tone. Off-white, pale beige, light gray and greige are the favored shades. Coats are generally short, some with flared backs.

IMAGINATION, artistry and ingenuity mark new fashions created for the movies. Worn with a simple white crepe dinner dress, in a current movie, is a floor-length, wide stole of black net covered with coin-sized paillettes in red, green, electric-blue and silver.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

At 22 She "Dates" A Boy of 17, But Suspects She's Making a Mistake

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl of 22 and I date a boy of 17. I have known this boy for 3 years. I like him very much, and he seems to like me, too. We have dates every Saturday and Sunday.

I want to date an older boy but am afraid of making this boy mad. I don't think I love him, but when he is away, I begin to want to see him. I don't know if it's love, or just that I'm lonesome.

I write to a boy in his twenties. He is an ex-soldier. I used to write to him when he was in Germany. He says he is coming to see me soon. What shall I do about this other boy? Should I go on with him or what?

M. T.

I think you're right, M. T., and it's just that you are lonesome. I don't think it's love. You have an affection for this boy such as you might have for a younger brother with whom you had had good times and whose companionship you would miss if he went away. But a boy of 17 is scarcely old enough for a 22-year-old girl to take seriously, and he shouldn't be taking you seriously.

The boy in his twenties is much more appropriate for you, and I think it's fine he's coming to see you. If I were you, I'd tell this younger boy about the visit you expect. Tell him in a perfectly normal, matter-of-fact way, and suggest that he'll be interested in meeting this older man and hearing about his experiences abroad. Then when the ex-soldier arrives, your relationships will probably adjust themselves all around.

In the meantime, couldn't you have something else to do occasionally on a Saturday or Sunday, and gradually ease out of your concentration on this 17-year-old?

A Deserted Mother Has to Support Herself and Her Daughter

I am a mother 27 years old and have a daughter 8. My husband deserted us, and it's been rather hard taking care of my daughter and working at the same time. I love her dearly, and it almost breaks my heart to leave her.

Miss Fairfax, I wonder if you couldn't help me get a job in some motherless home or some other home where I could keep my daughter with me?

Weary Mother.

I can fully understand what a hard problem you have in trying to make a home for your daughter under trying circumstances, and of course you want to be with her as much as possible.

Would there be any possibility that you could get a parttime job for the hours when the child would be in school? There are so many demands these days for part-time workers in all sorts of capacities—housework, salespersons in stores, taking care of children, etc.—that you should have no difficulty finding a place where hours could be arranged so that you could be home with your daughter after school and in the evenings.

If you wanted to try for a homemaker's position in a motherless household—and such opportunities do present themselves occasionally—I think you would have to watch the "Help Wanted" columns of the newspapers in the nearest large city to you, and be prepared to go anyware the opening might happen to be. You're not likely to find opportunities of that type in a small town. Or you might put a little advertisement yourself in the "Work Wanted" column, stating that you are a mother with a young daughter and are looking for a housekeeping job where you could keep her with you. Good luck to you!

Writing Letters to Strange Men Not the Right Answer to This Problem

I live in a small town and there are not many teen-agers in my vicinity.

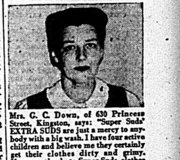
I would like very much to correspond with some serviceman about 17 or 18 years old. I do not know where to obtain any addresses, and would like you to advise me on this. I am 15 years old and would like to know if I'm too young to do this, and if it's proper.

Anxious.

There ought to be better ways for you to find congenial friends than by trying to strike up an acquaintance with some stranger through correspondence, "Anxious." I certainly wouldn't approve of such an idea at all.

I hear quite a lot from teenagers who live in small towns where there apparently are not too many girls and boys of the same age, and I'm sure it must be a problem sometimes.

But even so, there must be ways out of the difficulty. How about your school friends? You must be in high school, where all sorts of activities for both boys and girls go on all the time. And isn't your town close enough to other towns so that there might be opportunities of making new acquaintances through clubs and other groups? Are you quite sure your opportunities for companionship are really so limited and that you're not just anxious for a little more exciting adventure than perhaps comes your way? Think it over and let me know. Perhaps, if you're really at a loss for friends, I can make some further suggestions.



Mrs. G. C. Down, of 630 Princess Street, Kingston, says: "Super Suds' EXTRA SUDS are just a mercy to anybody with a big wash. I have four active children and believe me they certainly get their clothes dirty and grimy. However, thanks to Super Suds, clothes are a cinch to wash. It takes so much less rubbing to get things clean with Super Suds, and that helps things wear longer. Saves loads of time, too."

Thank you, Mrs. Down, for your grand letter. You see, Ladies, Super Suds is Concentrated. Super Suds actually gives you far more washing-power . . . livelier, richer suds, without hard rubbing. And Super Suds costs no more than ordinary washday soap.

DICKEY'S CHANCES OF CATCHING ALL YEAR ARE SLIM

Great Catcher is Having Difficulty in Getting Legs in Shape

By GAYLE TALBOT

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 26. (AP)—Bill Dickey's chances of catching a full quota of games for the Yankees this year, despite his 38 years and his long siege in the armed forces, do not appear quite so bright as they did a week ago. He is having difficulty getting his legs in shape.

Before the war Dickey's long legs were one of the wonders of the game. One of the big reasons for their excellence was the fact that Bill devoted a large part of his winters to bird hunting, his greatest love next to baseball. Tramping up and down the hills kept his legs toned up. He is learning now that the somewhat sedentary job he had in the navy did his pins no good.

After doing his first four-inning stint behind the plant the other day he reported that he was one large ache and pain from the waist down. He asked for a chance to work it out, however, and Manager Joseph V. McCarthy obliged by naming him to start yesterday's game with Cleveland here. Dickey then hit himself on the toe with a batted ball during the pre-game practice, forcing him to withdraw, and that might prove an additional setback.

Dickey is extremely anxious to play at least one more season, and feels he can help the club.

Aintree Course All in Readiness For Steeplechase

By The Canadian Press

The Aintree Course in England has been cleared of all military impedimenta for the first running in six years of the Grand National Steeplechase April 5, it was announced at Liverpool last night. The racing area had been used by the United States army. The favorite for the 103rd renewal of the gruelling test is Prince Regent whose odds have dropped to 51 to 1 in the listings. The horse, owned by J. V. Rank, won the Gold Cup at Cheltenham March 14 in a rehearsal for the classic.

Accommodation in Liverpool hotels has been sold out for weeks and rooming-house rates have jumped to £5 for bed and breakfast for the big day. A crowd of 250,000 is expected.

Sportsmen say box lacrosse will return to Orillia this year. The town has organized a lacrosse club with Reginald P. Grant as President. Frank E. Curran, who managed the Orillia Terriers when they won the Dominion title in 1935, is first vice-president. Other vice-presidents are Glen Phelps and Kenneth L. Macnab. Clayton Parnaby is secretary-treasurer.

Still undecided is whether the club will enter a senior or an intermediate team. Formation of the club recalled that in eight years in top-notch senior lacrosse, Orillia never failed to make the playoffs. Terriers won the national title in 1934, 1935 and 1936. In 1937 they were runners-up. The new club is the first to be organized in Orillia since the town's Senior B club was set up in 1941.

Leading trainer of the United States last year, Stanley Lipiec announced yesterday at Miami, Fla., he had lost his job as conditioner for Mrs. Wolf's stable over difference with union blacksmiths. The latter refused to shoe his horses after he had started the steeds at Fullstream Park during shoers' strike.

The Oregon Gun Club of Portland, Ore., was advised yesterday by the National Rifle Association that a run of 307 consecutive bullseyes at 50 feet in tournament competition by Willis B. Miller had been recognized as a new United States record. The previous best score was 280.

IN ONTARIO FINAL

Port Colborne, March 26 (CP)—Port Colborne Fliers won the O.H.A. Intermediate "A" Group title in two straight games by defeating Niagara Falls 8-5 last night in the second of the best-of-three playoff. Port Colborne qualified to meet Kingston Locomotives in the Ontario final.

PEMBROKE WINS FROM CORNWALL

Ottawa, March 26 (CP)—Pembroke Lumber Kings last night defeated Cornwall Falcons 11-5 to sweep their best-of-three final series in two straight games, capture the Ottawa District Hockey Association championship and earn the right to advance against Hamilton Tigers in the Allan Cup playdowns.

The powerful Lumber Kings, heavier than Falcons, displayed the same tight defence and bold offensive play which won them the first game 13-1 at Cornwall Saturday.

Backed by the stalwart netminding of Louis St. Denis, the Lumber Kings played wide-open hockey and although Cornwall staged a hard series of offensive rallies, the outcome of the game was never in doubt.

The Giesbrecht brothers showed their usual top form, with Fred notching four goals and two assists. Lloyd Mohns scored two, and other Pembroke goals were evenly divided between Down Selkirk, Bert Giesebrecht, Flask Anslow, Eammy Kelly and Merrill Gullick.

Cornwall's Beezie Filion notched two, while Jack Reid, Pete Piquette and Frank Lapenze made the other tallies.

Pembroke: Goal, St. Denis; defence, Simon, Morns; centre, R. Giesebrecht; wings, Kelly, Selkirk; subs, B. Giesebrecht, Gullick, Fitzpatrick, Anslow, Kahl, F. Giesebrecht.

KINGSTON LOCOS WIN SERIES

Kingston, March 26 (CP)—Kingston Locomotives defeated Collingwood 9-2 here last night to win their O.H.A. Intermediate A group playoff, taking the best-of-three series 2-1. Kingston now meets Port Colborne in the next round.

Once again Carr-Harris led the Kingston squad to victory, scoring three goals as the Locos outclassed the Collingwood team. McGregor shared the limelight with two for the Kingstonites.

Although the northern contenders defence fell apart in the later stages of the game, they looked good until midway through the second period. C. Cutters sent them into an early lead on G. Butters' pass and Kingston couldn't make the score sheet till early in the second. Then they went into the lead at the 9:50 mark and landslide began.

Collingwood's second goal came from Scott's stick in the last minute of play.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By GEORGE H. CARVER.

The first boxing show of the season is scheduled for the Hume Arena on Friday, April 5 and the card as this corner saw it appears to be an attractive one. Heading the bouts is Geo. Polmanter, clever young 145 pounder and Belleville district champion, who is matched with Dane Thompson, Oshawa's ace welterweight. Jerry Downes, popular Belleville youngster has the semi-final spot with Ron Tennant, Port Hope district champion. In the heavyweight class, Tony Lacerre, called the Belleville giant will throw leather at Tiny Ainsworth, dubbed the Cobourg "Blond Bomber." Soup Mondeville, Fred Harding, Ronny Mansfield and Bill Westfall are also on the card with other fighters.

To Cliff Argue, members of the Provincial Lawn Bowling Association Council, goes the columnar orchids for his successful efforts in bringing the Ontario Lawn Bowling Championships to Eastern Ontario for the first time. Mr. Argue put forth the benefits to be had from staging the important greens jousts in this city on September 2 (Labor Day) and 3 in a stirring address to the provincial body which conclaved at the Toronto Granite Club on Saturday.

The championships which will be decided here on September 3 after the singles, doubles and rinks are run off in Kingston and on the local greens, will bring a lot of publicity to this city as well as giving district enthusiasts the chance to see the cream of Ontario bowlers in action.

London, Hamilton and Agincourt District entered strenuous bids to bring the titular bouts to their various districts but Mr. Argue's arguments (he's well named) carried a lot of weight and Belleville was selected as the venue on an overall majority on the first ballot.

The championships will attract rinks from the 16 districts who hold the championships of their own areas. That means that the participating bowlers will be the topflight trundlers of the province. The winners will be presented with handsome blazers with the provincial championship crests done in gold braid adorning them.

The Provincial Lawn Bowling Championships and the Rotary Club Regatta, which is gaining more of an international flavor with each mail, will be two of the biggest sporting events to be staged here this summer. Regatta officials are delighted with the number of entries that have arrived, and present prospects point to one of the largest contingents of speed boat drivers ever to appear on district waters, vieing here on August 7 for world championship honors. "Pops" Cooper, Kansas City, who has been flitting around Florida waters winning races with his "Tops Pop III" has written Lloyd Hicks, regatta chairman, saying "just try and keep me away."

Non-professional baseball clubs will be fighting harder than ever to capture the 1946 national championship.

That's because the No. 1 team in the United States—to be determined by the outcome of the twelfth annual national championship tournament at Wichita, starting Aug. 16.—Will be awarded a $10,000 cash prize and the right to represent in the Canadian-American series, which takes place the following month.

Canada will be represented in the International playoff by the winner of the annual Dominion tourney at London, Ont., in August.

U.S. teams will qualify through 48 state championship tournaments, scheduled in July and early August.

The National Baseball Congress, which sanctions these tournaments, also sponsors a National Association of Leagues, Umpires, Scorers and Old-time groups.

Trenton Fliers Play in Oshawa

It will be "do or die" for Trenton R.C.A.F. "Fliers" tonight when they tangle with Bobcaygeon "Kinsmen" in the third and deciding fixture of their best-of-three O.H.A. Intermediate "B" playdown series in Oshawa.

The Fliers got away to a good start in the series when they edged the Kinsmen 4-3 in the first game in Lindsay but suffered a severe 10-4 setback a week ago Saturday in Oshawa when the 'Caygeon aggregation unleashed a savage scoring attack to smother the airmen in their worst defeat of the current season.

The Fliers, still smarting from the drubbing in Oshawa, are determined to give the Kinsmen a taste of their own medicine tonight and so continue in their quest for provincial honors.

The Trenton attackers just couldn't seem to get going in the last encounter and as a result, their offensive gave the Bobcaygeon rearguard little to worry about. According to coach "Wish" Saunders, it will be a different story tonight.

The airmen will be without the services of "Al" Middleton, valuable defence stalwart who is, at present, enjoying a spot of leave in Calgary, Alberta. His absence will be greatly felt behind the Trenton blue-line.

Remember When

Toronto Maple Leafs scored one of the most sensational upsets of Stanley Cup playoff history 10 years ago tonight. Tailing Boston Bruins by four goals on the round, Leafs took advantage of a misconduct penalty to Eddie Shore to score six goals in less than 12 minutes and take the game 8-3 and the round 8-6. They lost in the finals to Detroit Red Wings.

New York, March 26 (AP) — Cleveland Indians' Lou Boudreau, recognized as a champ for his size in the knife and fork league, took a flying start on the shrimp cocktails when President Will Harridge of the American League tossed a party in Clearwater, Fla., the other day... On his fifth, Lou shouted to the boss: "Mr. Harridge, I'm taking out that $50 fine you handed me three years ago in shrimp tonight. Okay?"... Harridge beckoned a waiter and said: "Boy, bring Mr. Boudreau two more shrimp cocktails. They're a little small."... So Lou manfully downed his sixth and seventh.

Hawks Practically Concede Series To The Canadiens

By PIERRE LEMOYNE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Chicago, March 26 (CP)—The steaming hot Montreal Canadiens, resting comfortably on the crest of three easy victories against Chicago Black Hawks in their best-of-seven semi-final series for the Stanley Cup prepared to meet Hawks in the fourth game here tonight, confident of eliminating Chicago from the series.

After waltzing through the Chicago lineup in easy fashion to hammer their slower-skating opponents by counts of 6-2 and 5-1 on Montreal ice, Canadiens expected tougher opposition in Chicago but changed their opinion after the thorough 8-2 lacing they handed Hawks Sunday.

Coach Johnny Gottselig of the Hawks said before the game he expected his boys to break out of their lethargy and play their hearts out tonight but he practically conceded the series to Canadiens.

"I'l grant you that the boys haven't been playing up to par," Gottselig said, "but there is really nothing much we can do. Canadiens are playing now as good hockey as I've ever seen and at the pace they're skating, I doubt if any team can stop them."

Coach Dick Irvin had protested to league president Mervyn (Red) Dutton against the lighting conditions of the Chicago stadium. Dutton said he would investigate the matter.

Halifax, March 26 — (CP) — Ottawa St. Pat's made a big impression here when they crushed Halifax St. Mary's in two straight games last week. It was the first Memorial Cup encounter the Halifax fans have been let in on, and they gave the home boys good crowds to play to. The Santamarians were ahead or other Maritime junior outfits, but needed more polish which may be supplied next season by an imported coach.

St. Pat's found time between trains to defeat an all-star Moncton junior team 14-3 as they passed through on the way back to the capital to await the next round.

A glance at any sports page these days indicates baseball is taking over from hockey. Spring cleaning is in order with old leagues being brushed off and new officers installed in clubs. The surest sign of all has appeared—the kids have started sandlot games.

With the return of many of the younger players to the fold civilian teams should be given a shot in the arm, and perhaps some of the old boys can retire — and for some of them it must be just about time.

One of the oldsters, Murray Vevo, Yarmouth, N.S., has capered around the diamond as long as anyone else known in these parts. Last summer at the reported age of 49 he managed to get in his usual full season with Yarmouth. In order to rebuff suggestions of senility he caught several games, coached many and batted well. His favorite trick was to scamper across home plate and finish with a quick handspring, especially when the run meant victory.

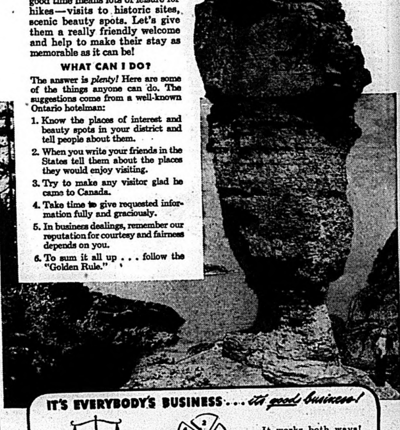
Another pleasant memory for them!



In the coming summer we may expect hundreds of visitors from the States. For many of them a good time means lots of leisure for hikes—visits to historic sites, scenic beauty spots. Let's give them a really friendly welcome and help to make their stay as memorable as it can be!

WHAT CAN I DO?

The answer is plenty! Here are some of the things anyone can do. The suggestions come from a well-known Ontario hotelman:

1. Know the places of interest and beauty spots in your district and tell people about them.
2. When you write your friends in the States tell them about the places they would enjoy visiting.
3. Try to make any visitor glad he came to Canada.
4. Take time to give requested information fully and graciously.
5. In business dealings, remember our reputation for courtesy and fairness depends on you.
6. To sum it all up . . . follow the "Golden Rule."

IT'S EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS . . . it's good business!

Worth his weight in gold! The Province of Ontario profits to almost the same extent from tourist business as it does from the gold mining industry. It is up to each of us to see that it goes on growing.

This diagram shows how Ontario's tourist income benefits everyone. Every dollar is shared this way... 1. Hotels; 2. Stores; 3. Restaurants; 4. Taxes, etc.; 5. Amusements; 6. Garages.

It works both ways! They treat us royally when we visit them . . . we can't do less than return the compliment. Remember that it costs money to take a holiday . . . so let's see they get a good return for every penny they spend.

"Let's make them want to come back!"

LESSON NO. 945

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

When playing with Hollowhead Harry, your load becomes too big to carry. As faith in his harmony ceases, your own game is all shot to pieces.

If partner fails to co-operate in defence, your props feel shaky. Not only are you uncertain in what he shows, but you are afraid that what you are showing him is not receiving attention.

South is declarer at a four heart contract in this deal.

NORTH
♠A K 9
♥J 10 9
♦Q J 5
♣5 4 3 2

WEST	EAST
♠10 8 6 4	♠J 5 3 2

♦10 6 4 3 2	♦A
♣K Q J	♣A 10 7 6

SOUTH
♠Q 7
♥A K Q 6 4
♦K 9 8 7
♣9 8

When dummy is seen, it looks as if only two clubs and diamond ace will be taken against it. But the defenders were able to sink the contract by reading the meaning of the opening lead.

The opening lead from west was the club king. The lead of a king is either from A K with others or K Q 10. Holding the ace and ten, east quickly realized that his partner started with K Q J.

East hopped right up with the club ace on partner's king and shot back the diamond ace. After that, east led back a club. West won it and returned a diamond. East trumped and wrecked the contract.

The opening lead of an ace says: "Partner, if I do not continue this suit, I have no more cards in it." His partner says the same if it is done at his earliest opportunity.

Leading his ace of diamonds before returning a club said he had the ace alone. There could be no other reason for overtaking partner's good trick. Because one does not run with a side ace without cause.

Suppose east had overtaken the west club king with the ace and returned a club at once. That would have said he could trump the third round of clubs. Otherwise, why overtake?

Partners really click when they understand such lead signals in their refence. Otherwise, taking partner's trick looks crazy. Like the players.

No signal is good unless understood.

Hollywood, March 26 — (AP) —Dan Duryea was puttering about the flower garden of his hilltop home. Yes, this is the same guy who is slapping, kicking and otherwise maltreating Joan Bennett on the current screen.

Duryea disclosed that unlike the character he portrayed in "Scarlet Street," he does not hold with the theory from a Noel Coward play: "A woman should be struck regularly — like a gong."

"I've never practised that theory," said mild-mannered Dan. "But I've been surprised to learn how many people approve of it."

He cited examples from his fan mail. One said: "It is refreshing to see you treat women that way." Another: "What a stinker! What a heel! How I love it!"

Duryea recalled that he had played a sympathetic role in "Sahara," but it wasn't until he started bouncing Bennett around that he found fame.

As I left him, he expressed concern over a trellis of sweet peas. "It was too cold for them this year," he said.

Note to newspapermen with a play salted away in the trunk with the great American novel: Jean Dalrymple, New York press agent and producer, wants to read it.

Miss Dalrymple is offering a $500 advance to the best play idea, fragmentary or completed play written by a working newspaperman. "I am doing this because of the pitiable condition of the theatre today," she told me. "The best writing talent is attracted to Hollywood where it becomes lost. Newspapermen should be the prime source of plays. They learn to write in concise and condensed form, as a playwright does.

"The only trouble is that most newspapermen won't write except on assignment. That's why I'm offering the $500."

HAMILTON TIGERS CONTINUE IN ALLAN CUP RACE

Defeat Saint John Beavers 3-0 in Third and Deciding Game of Series

(By The Canadian Press)

Saint John Beavers and Cornwall Falcons were out of the Allan Cup race today, leaving only eight teams in the hunt for the Canadian senior amateur hockey title.

The Beavers were eliminated by Hamilton Tigers, all-Ontario senior champions, who took the hard-fought third game of the Ontario-Maritime senior tilt by a 3-0 score at Saint John. Hamilton scored a goal in each period to win the series by two games to one.

Falcons were the victims of the powerful Pembroke Lumber Kings, who won their best-of-three series for the Ottawa District title in two straight games. The score last night was 11-5 in Pembroke's favor.

The only senior play-off in the west resulted in a 4-3 overtime victory for New Westminster over the Trail Smoke Eaters, giving New Westminster a lead of 2-1 in the best-of-five series.

Along the junior front, where six teams remain in the running, Copper Cliff Redmen arrive in Toronto today for a best-of-three series against Toronto St. Michaels in an eastern semi-final. Montreal Royals and Ottawa Senators are engaged in the other bracket.

The west is already down to two junior teams, Winnipeg Monarchs and Edmonton Canadiens.

Copper Cliff won the Northern Ontario Hockey Association's junior crown while Toronto St. Mikes disposed of the Oshawa Generals by four games to two in a gruelling best-of-seven series.

How the youngsters from northern Ontario would shape up against St. Mikes will be decided in a best-of-three series at Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto, with games Wednesday and Saturday and, if necessary, next Monday.

The Redmen haven't had a serious contest since they defeated Porcupine Combines March 15 to win the Northern Ontario junior final by three games to one. They have a tight band of 11 youngsters who didn't have a junior league schedule during the season, but instead played against senior opposition — and won 3 and tied one of their dozen games.

PLAYDOWN SURVIVORS

(By The Canadian Press)

Eight teams remained in the running today for the Allan Cup and Canadian senior hockey championship, four in the east and four in the west.

Belleville Selected as Site For Provincial Championships Of Lawn Bowling Association

Kingston Club Will Assist in Holding the Preliminary Stages of Singles and Doubles Competition

For the first time in the lawn bowling history of Eastern Ontario, the championships of the province under the aegis of the Provincial Lawn Bowling Association will be held on the greens of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club on September 2 (Labor Day) and 3, it was announced by Mr. Cliff Argue, past president of the Belleville Club and a member of the P.L.B.A. council.

The decision to hold the coveted championships here was made at a special meeting of the executive of the P.L.B.A. held at the Granite Club, Toronto, over the weekend Belleville was made the venue of the blue ribbon bowling event after London, Hamilton, and the Agincourt district had made spirited attempts to obtain the affair for their respective districts. This city got an almost unanimous verdict when it was awarded the championships by an overall majority on the first ballot.

The championships will attract the cream of Ontario bowlers with champions from the sixteen districts of the province vieing for provincial honors.

Mr. Argue Presents Case.

Mr. Argue in his address to the P.L.B.A. executive and council pointed out that the championship events had never been held in Eastern Ontario, and he felt it was about time that eastern bowlers were given some consideration. He pointed out the advantages to all concerned and outlined the bowling and other facilities that were available here. "Belleville," he said, "was the ideal location for such an event and we shall do all we can to make the championships an outstanding event in the history of Ontario bowling."

The final events of the championships will be bowled on the greens of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club, but of necessity and due to the fact that so many will be competing, the greens of the Kingston Lawn Bowling Association will be utilized.

Singles, doubles and rinks will be the bowling order of the events. The rinks will stage their play in Belleville on September 2 while the singles and doubles will bowl on the Kingston greens. One September 3, the final stages in all events will be bowled in Belleville and the championships awarded.

Rinks will be placed in groups of four so that each team will bowl each other on the first day. On the second day the semi-finals and finals of each event will be played an the championships awarded.

Bowlers from Windsor to the Quebec border will be here to vie for the coveted titles. An official invitation was extended to the bowlers by Mr. Argue on behalf of Mayor Follwell and the city of Belleville.

The crowning event of the championships will be staked in the clubhouse here following the announcement of the winners. Handsome blazers, adorned with the championship crests in gold braid will be presented to the fortunate bowlers.

The official presentation was made by Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, Minister of Welfare for the province of Ontario and beside hockey players were many municipal officers to bring the total attendance to about one hundred.

Speaking on behalf of Bata Shoe Company of Canada Ltd., Mr. Dave MacDonald, personnel manager, welcomed all the visitors to Batawa and offered congratulations to the executive of the league for their efforts of the past and also to the winning team.

Loucks, editor of Frankford Advocate, Mr. J. Ormiston and E. Elby of the Trenton Courier Advocate, J. Watson, North Hastings Review. Officials of the League included Secretary Treasurer W. Hon. W. A. Goodfellow

Prior to making the presentation to the winners Hon. W. A. Goodfellow spoke of the neighborliness that was created by the competing towns and urged the executive, who had already displayed good sportsmanship to keep it alive by following up the encouraging gesture of the Bata Shoe Company who were responsible for the fine banquet and the president of the company who had offered such an excellent incentive in the fine trophy. "This trophy said he, "is one of the finest pieces of craftsmanship and is a worthy tribute to the memory of the late Thomsa Bata in whose honor and memory it was given.

The Trophy

The beautiful four-pillared silver trophy was then uncovered for all to see and the official presentation took place. It is now in the village of Marmora on display and will remain there as long as Marmora can produce a team to hold the championship. Inscribed upon the plaque are the following words: "Presented by Thomas J. Bata in memory of his father, late Thomas Bata founder of the world wide Bata Shoe organization for annual competition championship of Trent Valley Hockey League.

President Bill Shannon

President Bill Shannon briefly outlined the history of the league, revealing its half century existence and expressed the thought that its revival was largely due to the shot in the arm enthusiasm created by the Bata Shoe Company's interest in it. "We have been given a good start and the appreciation of the town's people and players around the circuit is beyond words."

Mayor E. Ayrhart

In bringing greetings from Campbellford, its colorful Mayor Ernie Ayrhart said it was a most unusual gathering where the ties of real friendship were drawn tighter. In the spirit of good humor he said he had been born in Stirling, lived in both Marmora and Madoc but had selected Campbellford as the most likely place for his home town." It was his hope that sporting rivalry between these friendly enemies would be extended into summer pastimes, such as baseball and the entire circuit would be strengthened by it.

Expression of Thanks

Manager Bill Easton of the Bata team expressed the appreciation of all present to the Bata Shoe Company for the fine party and the excellent trophy and for the sponsorship of his team, to the executive of the league, to the visiting artists and Hon. Mr. Goodfellow for their assistance and to chairman Art. Duncan.

Montreal, March 26. (CP)—Judge Rene Theberge, presiding over the preliminary hearing of charges that Fred Rose, Labor-Progressive Member of Parliament for Montreal-Cartier, violated official Secrets Act by communicating information to the Soviet Union, yesterday ordered David Gordon Lunan, former Canadian army captain and Wartime Information Board employee, held in contempt of court.

The detention of Lunan came as a dramatic close to a day in which documents were introduced alleging that Russia sought information about the atomic bomb, explosives and munitions, and American troop movements, and followed an admission by Miss Kathleen Willsher, who was employed in the British High Commissioner's office in Ottawa, that she had given information to Rose.

Both Lunan and Miss Willsher have been charged under the official Secrets Act in connection with the Royal Commission Espionage Investigation, and had been released on bail when called to testify at the Rose hearing.

Lunan was held in contempt of Court when he declined to answer certain questions which he held might have bearing on his guilt or innocence. He had been granted the protection of the court, that whatever he might say would not be used against him at his own trial.

His own preliminary hearing is scheduled to open in an Ottawa court later this week, and he will be transferred to Ottawa, Wednesday, under Royal Canadian Mounted Police escort, unless he decides to answer the questions, in which case he could be relieved of the contempt charge by Judge Theberge.

Acquainted With Rose

Lunan came to Canada in 1938 from his native Scotland, and he was acquainted with Rose when he was seconded to the W.I.B. in 1944. However, he could not recall everything he had conversed about with Rose.

Special Prosecutor F. Philippe Brais read documents presented earlier in the day in which Lunan was alleged to have dealt with Maj. Rogov of the Russian Embassy staff. Lunan declined to answer questions relating to these allegations.

Miss Willsher, 40, said she met Rose in 1935 or 1936 at a study group. In 1939 Rose asked her for information concerning the domestic policy of the government, and its attitude on foreign policy. She had not seen him since then.

Igor Gouzenko, former cipher clerk at the Russian Embassy in Ottawa, completed yesterday testimony which he began Friday. He told of documents which he took from the secret coding room when he quit his job last September.

Wanted A-Bomb Information

Telegrams asked agents in Canada to seek information on the atomic bomb, munitions and VV (used in depth bombs), and disposition of American troops in Europe.

At one point when Lunan refused to answer questions, he said he wished to abide by the rules of the court but he felt that in his own interest, since at the moment he is so much involved and his position already has been "prejudiced and I have already been found guilty in the press," he should not have to answer.

Mr. Brais told the court that the press had been asked to present reports with justice and equity for all.

"I may say that no one so far has acted in violation of that request," he added.

Did Not Recall

Lunan was asked about testimony given the Royal Commission inquiry.

"Will you confirm that you were asked if you had an interview with Jan (Major Rogov) and had an invitation to meet him and to converse with Fred Rose and that you answered 'yes'?" asked Mr. Brais.

Lunan said he did not recall either the question or his answer, adding he did not read his deposition before the Royal Commission.

At one point during the questioning of Lunan, and his refusal to answer, Mr. Brais said he did not think "you quite understand your position, Capt. Lunan."

"The court has made it very clear to you that nothing you say in this court can be used against you at any time."

Documents about which Lunan was questioned were first introduced into court Friday and Saturday.

Lunan will be permitted to attend his own preliminary hearing at Ottawa Thursday on espionage charges, it was learned today.

Due for confinement here until he consents to reply to questions, the former Canadian Information Service official will be brought to Ottawa "under escort" for his scheduled preliminary hearing in Ottawa police court where he faced seven charges of conspiracy and violation of the Official Secrets Act, a Royal Canadian Mounted Police official said.

Lunan, although freed on $6,000 bail at the time of his arrangement, now will be kept in police custody until such time that he is reinstated on the "contempt of court" charge here.

DECOMPOSED BODY OF NEWBORN BABE FOUND IN CLOSET

Discovery in Mrs. Dick's Home Adds New Touch to Torso Slaying

Hamilton, March 26 — (CP)—A cement-lined suitcase which yielded the badly-decomposed body of a newborn infant in the home of 26-year-old Mrs. Evelyn Dick added a new touch of the gruesome today to the torso slaying of the woman's husband.

The suitcase, weighty with its burden of death, was pulled from its cupboard hiding place as police, seeking clues in the slaying of John Dick, searched his Garrick Street house where his widow lived.

That was a week ago. And yesterday, when news of the discovery came out, there were expressions of irritation from police who have worked long, and at times silently, since Dick's body, lacking arms, legs and head, was discovered March 16 on a slope of Hamilton Mountain.

One police officer pointed out that the finding of the baby's body "has no connection with the slaying of John Dick, although it was discovered in connection with our investigations into the Dick murder."

Police are believed still searching for the head, arms and legs of Dick's body. The city seethed with rumors, including a report that ashes and other articles had been picked up in the search for clues.

But the police were silent as to what progress was being made in the intense investigation.

As off-shoots of the probe, Mrs. Dick is in custody on a charge of vagrancy, to appear in court Wednesday. William Bohozyck, former oarsman, also is in custody on a charge of vagrancy and possession of an unregistered revolver, to appear on Thursday. And the widow's father, 62-year-old Donald MacLean, also a Hamilton Street Railway employee, is on bail of $2,000 on a charge of theft of a quantity of streetcar tickets from the H.S.R.

Detective John Thompson of Hamilton, veteran Inspector of Detectives leading municipal police cooperating with high officers of the Provincial Police, pointed out last night that no charge of murder has been laid against anyone.

Detective Inspector Thompson added the non-committal remark that "the case is becoming more involved every day." But he did say that no new developments were expected immediately.

"DINA CASHMAN"

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

CHAPTER 13

"You that looked like a little girl," Mrs. Bucket presently murmured, as if she spoke to herself.

"I know, I know!" Dina said in a sick voice.

"Does Mr. Holland know?"

"I told him."

"And he said?"

"He said that Vere's mother was a hard woman and that she would try to make him think it wasn't true."

"Yes, and she will, too," Mrs. Bucket said. "And you want to go find him, wherever he is, and tell him he's got to marry you, is that it?" she asked.

"What else can I do?"

"You write him what you thought?"

"Not—not in words, exactly. But he couldn't mistake it."

"And he didn't answer that?"

"Yes, just a week ago. He said not to worry and that his mother was sure everything was all right."

"H'm" commented Mrs. Bucket. "How long were you and Vere going together?"

"Only a few weeks. Then he asked me to go up to the Sierras, skiing. It was so wonderful."

"And you went every weekend?"

"No, only once. We were planning to go again, we were planning so many things—talking of being together always—"

They were reaching the unsavory neighborhood of Bonita now.

"I asked Hall to leave me at the station," said Dina.

"We'll have to do something about all this," the housekeeper said hurriedly as they parted.

"Thank you a thousand times for being so good to me!" Dina had to climb past her companion to leave the car, and suddenly Mrs. Bucket drew her down and kissed her wet face.

"Mr. Holland has your address?" she asked. "Yes, I know he has. You'll hear from me. Good night!"

It was midnight. Dina picked her way carefully through wide, shallow puddles and heaps of refuse.

Long familiar with its limitations, Dina noiselessly entered the kitchen and in the warm atmosphere of grease and pipe smoke and coffee began rapidly to undress.

She was clad only in her under garment and carrying the others over her bare arm when she went into the bedroom.

A little groping under the curtain that hung at an angle across one corner of the room secured her nightgown. A dim shaft of light from the adjoining room and a step beside her made her start.

"Mama? Goodness, you scared me!"

Mrs. Cashman was carrying a candle; she shaded its light with a lean, ungroomed hand.

"Dina, have a good time?" she whispered.

"Oh, fine." It all seemed like a dream now and almost as hard to recall as a dream.

"Where were you?"

"Up Burlingame way." Mama thought, of course, that it had been just one more dining and dancing party with the neighborhood group. Dina hoped she never would think differently.

"What I got up to tell you was that Lou was real sick," her mother said. "I moved her in here because nothing would do but that she had to sleep in Dina's bed."

"Sick!" Dina stood still in dismay. Lou was her favorite among the sisters; the pale, anemic, undernourished small girl of ten had always seemed to draw actual strength and vitality from Dina.

"What was the matter?"

"Oh, her cold is worse and she felt real hot. We had some pork sausage and hot cakes, but she didn't eat much. Dooley said they'd had some cake over to Bridges'."

"Ah, the poor little thing!" Dina, by candlelight, sank on her knees beside the bed, her practiced hands inside the collar of Lou's flannel pajamas. "She's good and damp; she hasn't any fever," she whispered.

"No, I think she's all right. But my gracious, what crying and carrying-on when she came in for supper and found you'd gone! She didn't want anyone but Dina; I think she cried for a good hour. Pop was in here and everybody, trying to comfort her. She certainly thinks the world and all of you."

"Lou, my little old sweet," Dina murmured, her cheeks against her damp, cool little face. The drowsy child stirred and mumbled contentedly. "Has she been coughing, Mama?" Dina asked.

"Not like she was last night. Well, I'll go back," Mrs. Cashman said, yawning. "I'm glad you had a good time."

"You came back, Dina," Lou muttered, clinging tight.

"Of course I came back, you silly! What were you crying about?"

"Becuz I missed you so." The thick, hoarse little voice dwindled away. "Don't go 'way again, Dina," Lou whispered. "I cry when you're not here."

"I'll be right here." Dina was kneeling beside the bed; now she drew an old blanket about her shoulders and settled on her knees, holding Lou's little relaxed hand against her cheek.

Dina, holding her little sister's hand, knelt motionless for a long while. She thought, with an ache as keen as physical pain in her heart, of this child's love for her and that she had betrayed her. Lou needed her; her mother needed her; Dooley and Myrna, just beginning to grow up in the disorder and danger of the Flats, needed her.

With all its poverty, crampedness, and ugliness, still this was home. These were the rooms she knew, the chairs and beds and plates and towels; these were her own people. They turned to her. Dina could do it; Dina could fix it; Dina could make them laugh, could find the right touch to make any meal satisfying, could solve their school problems.

And now the curse of womanhood lay heavy upon her. Now she must carry within her for long, slow months the very proof of weakness, of unforgivable stupidity. Life would not forgive her and time would not forgive her. For that one hour of forgetting the law she would pay all her life long, through all the days to come, and an innocent human being would pay, too; be shamed, be marked, be set apart.

A child! Her spirit writhed away from the thought of it. A little boy like Donny or a tiny, delicate girl like Lou, the Lou whose small, sweating body was lying against her arm. Small shoes to be tied; small mouth into which cereal must be spooned; little questions coming along, harder and harder to answer. Her child!

"Oh, there must be a God!" she whispered. "There must be, or people wouldn't go on praying to Him! O God, help me out just this once! Don't make me go away from home; give me a break! Don't let them all be ashamed of me, asking Mama what Dina did and why she had to go away! Help me, help me, help me!"

Ten days later Dina sat in Mrs. Bucket's pleasant downstairs room, finishing a long talk with the housekeeper. Outside, upon the dark old gardens of the Holland house, the warmth and light of a glorious hot Spring day were doing their best to make an impression.

Dina sat sober and quiet, facing her. The talk had been a serious one; they had differed at its beginning but they were in agreement now. Dina had steadily maintained her point; she could not come as a chamber-maid, as assistant housekeeper to the Holland mansion.

"If you knew how I'd love it, Mrs. Bucket, and what it would mean to me to get away from everything and to be here with you!" Dina had said more than once. "But—don't you see?—I can't. It's too near my mother and father and all the people I know. And there might be a chance—there'd always be a chance that he might come in—Vere. It's his uncle's house. And I couldn't bear—I couldn't bear ever to see him, to have him know where I was or what I was doing."

"But then where will you go, Dina?" Mrs. Bucket asked. "I have a hundred dollars, I'll go—oh, not too far. Los Angeles, maybe, or San Francisco. Some place where I can get lost, where I can work, where there's a big hospital that has free wards," the girl finished, with a smile that her suddenly watering eyes belied.

"You'll get a job?"

"Yes. I'll stay here until —oh, April maybe. I get eighteen a week at the grocery. That's all Mama has except what Art gives her when he gets after-school jobs and Pop's relief check the first of the month.

"Anyway, it's always gone in the first week. So they need me. And someday," the girl said, with her pale face and tear-rimmed eyes suddenly filled with a look of determination, "I'll come back, and I'll really help them all."

"What I'm wondering about," the housekeeper said, "is how you can get a job, the way you'll be, by April or May. I had a long talk with Mr. Holland about it," she went on, "and I think he's going to ask you to let him help you out, for a while anyway. You should take it, my dear," she went on, "for though I know it's hard to be under obligations to anyone, you have to remember that his family owes you a-a-an apology. His family has done you wrong."

"No, no, no," Dina said in a weary voice, her eyes staring out of the window. "I did it myself."

"Vere's twenty-four," Mrs. Bucket went on. "What he ought to be is horsewhipped and stood up before a priest and married to you. What he ought to be is taught his responsibility to his child. My God, when I think what a child is, the way my husband and I felt about our first one, that we lost!"

"I don't think either one of us thought much of the responsibility," Dina put in faintly as Mrs. Bucket, knitting furiously, stopped short.

"It doesn't matter what you did, you were both in it, and to have you driven out of your home, away from your mother and father when they need you and when you need them, and to have her—his mother — writing that she refuses to have anything to do with the matter, I tell you it's all unfair!" the older woman said vigorously.

"Did she write that?"

"That's what she wrote. And that the boy had some—I don't know whether she said 'chivalrous' or 'noble' or what she said —some notion that he was responsible. Some notion, indeed!" the housekeeper repeated.

Dina sat silent, her very soul racked.

"But then why doesn't he come back?" she presently asked. "He knows, he must know, how I feel! I wouldn't want to do anything that would hurt him—that would change his life. But just to have him to talk to—" Her voice suddenly thickened.

"I don't understand it and I don't understand them," Mrs. Bucket said. "I know Mr. Holland wrote her, and I know he feels that she and Vere should make it right by you. I don't know what he felt when he wrote, but I can tell you her letter made him mad. I've never seen him so mad!"

Again Dina found nothing to say. The shame of being discussed, pitied, casually abandoned by the man she had so loved kept her silent.

"I want you to promise to write me, to keep in touch with me," said Mrs. Bucket. "I loved Vere when he was a little boy. Once when Mr. Holland was away"—she hesitated, went on in a somewhat hurried tone— "once when he was away Vere came here to stay; he was a lovely little boy then. Your child will be his child."

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop went to sleep at the Glussinsky Modern Bally last night, and this morning at breakfist ma said, Really, William, I mean really, I'm ashamed of you, those tickits cost nearly 4 dollers apiece and you sat through practically the whole performance snoring like a baby

My dear, I assure you I didn't waist a cent, pop said I had the most amusing dreem I wouldn't of missed even for 5 dollers, I'll tell you about it, he said, I don't care to hear it. You slept the intire way through their most famous bally, The Dammed and the Free, she said.

You wrong me, I stayed awake long enough to be convinced that not a sole in the audience or on the stage either had the faintest idea what they were dancing about, pop said. As far as I could make out, they were just a gang of undressed people searching for a language to express the hidden meenings of an unthought thought, he said, and ma said, Now William, The Dammed and the Free had a perfectly wonderfill story running all through it for anybody that was half awake.

I'm just about half awake now, what was the story? pop said, and ma said, Well, it was about a lost sole searching for its conscience amid the figments of its imagination representing its passed sins and mistakes. The little man in the black tights was the lost sole and the woman all in flowing red was Temtation always following him to try to prevent him from overcoming the three Obstacles—Greed and Lust and Vengeance, but in the end he overcame them and dissappeared with a mighty spring in a great blaze of light representing Freedom, she said.

How the mischiff did you ferret out all that? pop said, and ma said, Because it was all explained right there in the program as plane as day.

It's a woman's werld and I'll have another cup of coffee, pop said.

Which he did.

NEW YORK PAPER

into sharper emphasis the role of Arthur Adams, head of the Moscow espionage group.

"The New York Journal-American last Dec. 3 revealed that Adams, then living in the Hotel Peter Cooper (New York).... had since 1938 directed a gigantic spy organization which may have obtained details of atomic development.

"In 1939, William Weiner, treasurer of the American Communist party reluctantly testified before the Dies committee (of the United States Congress) that he and Earl Browder, then national head of the local Reds, had been sending Carr $1,000 a month for a considerable period ...

"To what use this money was put was not revealed by Weiner..

"It is known by this newspaper that Adams, who disappeared last January from his hotel leaving thousands of dollars in various local banks, was in close touch with Canadian confederates in the spy ring

"Adams came to the United States in 1938 on forged Canadian papers which were obtained by Canadian officials. He is now believed under arrest by the mounted police in Ottawa."

(Reports of the Montreal court hearing of several persons charged with espionage named an "Eric Adams" as a go-between in the leakage information. During earlier testimony, "Eric Adams" was identified under the cover name of "Ernst." t was authoritatively learned in Ottawa that "Eris Adams" is held by the R.C.M.P. $t is not know whether he is the same Adams referred to by the Journal-American.)

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

New York, March 26. (AP) — Assorted rails and industrials continued to make headway over the recovery road in today's stock market although many leaders seemed fatigued by the recent climb.

The fact that the 60-stock average had regained about 70 per cent of the Februarw slump tended to exert a cautionary influence and cause a certain amount of profit cashing. The somewhat brighter foreign picture and persistent Wall Street hopes of a bulge in price ceilings again inspired much of the bidding.

On the board at noon Canadian Pacific at 20 1-8 and International Nickel at 38 1-2 both showed losses of 1-8. Distillers Seagram at 89 was up 5-8, Dome Mines at 25 1-4 up 1-8 and Hiram Walker plus 1-2 at 109 3-4.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

Toronto, March 26 — (CP) — All four index groups recorded gains at mid-day. The industrials were up .66 and the mining groups added .35 to .47. Volume was about normal at 862,000 shares for the first three hours.

Trading was heaviest in the gold group and several issues, including Pioneer, Negus, Tech Hughes, Armistice and Hedley-Mascot advanced about 10 cents.

Among the stronger base metal issues were Nickel, Smelters, Normada, Steep Rock and Reeves-MacDonald.

The paper, steel and miscellaneous industrials held a margin of gains over losses.

HOGS

Toronto, March 26 — (CP)— Grade A dressed, bacon-hogs were up 60 cents cwt. at Barrie at $17.85 delivered, from the quotation reported March 21, in markets reporting early today. Hull was unchanged at $17.75 delivered, Stratford, unchanged at $17.75 to farmers and $17.90 to truckers, delivered, unchanged at London at $17.25 plus transportation.

London (CP) — The porters at Spitalfields (Stepney) Market cheered when the first assignment of bananas they had handled in six years arrived recently.

Weavering, Kent, England (CP) —Mrs. Annie Crawley, 84-year-old good Samaritan, who tended sick people without charge and cared for children of working mothers, has died.

German Youths Maim Corporal Murder Soldier

Frankfurt, March 26 — (AP)— Military police said today a gang of German youths had emasculated a 26-year-old American Army corporal and killed another United States soldier near the border of Russian-occupied Germany.

The corporal, whose name was withheld, is recovering in an army hospital from loss of blood. American investigators said no arrest has been made in either case.

Military police said the corporal was waylaid in a dark, rubble-strewn alley in Kassel at 4:00 a.m. March 20. He said he had been drinking and was set upon by five or six German youths.

He was left bleeding in the alley, but finally mustered enough strength to crawl to his hotel billet, from where he was taken to a hospital. The investigators said there was no evidence to support a theory that the attack was motivated by revenge, but the soldier was known to have been fraternizing with a German girl.

Details of the murder of the soldier at Eschwelge in the northern part of the American zone were withheld, but it was reported that an unknown person hit the American on the head with a blunt instrument.

MONTREAL LIVESTOCK

Montreal, March 26 —(CP)— Cattle, sheep and calves were steady and hogs showed a weaker undertone today on the livestock markets. Receipts: Cattle 157, sheep 13, hogs 1,030, calves 1,237.

Heifers ranged from 7.50-12. Good quality steers made 9.50-10, a few going a shade higher. Common butchers were 7-8.25. Canners and cutters were 6.75 down. Good bulls were 9.50 and more and bologna bulls went at 7.50-9.25.

Top veal calves brought 14-14.50, medium good 13-13.75, just plain 11-12.50 and real common 10 with some lower. Sheep were 4-9.

Hogs were slow sellers at 18 for Grade A. Some were 18.25. Sows made 16.50-17.

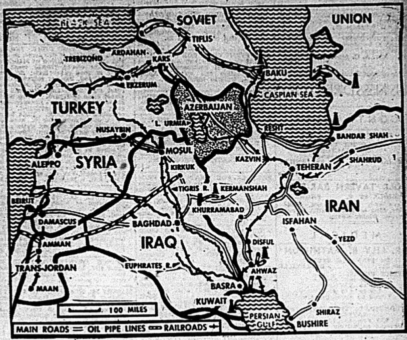
TO FELICITATE RESCUE

Fire Chief Shapton devised this technique to minimize the delay in rescuing persons from the Niagara gorge. A dummy was hauled up the 200-foot gorge in less than two minutes when the aerial ladder was extended over the precipice.

SUGAR CHILE-WONDER PIANIST

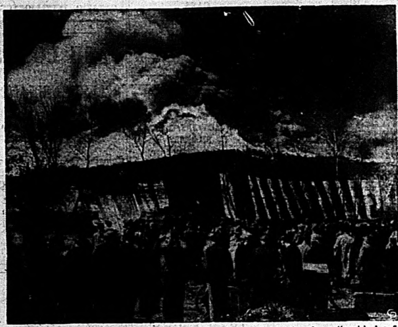
Nobody, least of all the child himself, can figure out where Frankie (Sugar Chile) Robinson got the piano-playing ability that has made him a famous headliner at the age of seven. "Sugar Chile," photographed here, says gravely: "It's a gift of God!" Neither of Frankie's parents nor his seven brothers and sisters in Detroit had a lick of musical talent. When "Sugar Chile" was three he astonished his dad by batting out "Tuxedo Junction." He has performed in Hollywood, and before President Truman in Washington.

POSES A HOT PROBLEM FOR UNO SECURITY COUNCIL



Here is a map of the area involved in the Russian-Iranian crisis which the security council of the United Nations' Organization will tackle when it convenes at Hunter College in New York. The shaded area is Azerbaijan, where Russians still maintain troops, although they were supposed to have withdrawn them on March 2. Location of the oil that troubles the Near and Middle East waters can be seen with the candy-striped oil pipelines running to the Mediterranean.

FOUNDRY RAZED



This foundry in Preston, Ont., was razed with damage estimated at $200,000. The Preston fire department was aided by A.R.P. equipment and volunteer workers, who also extinguished a fire on the roof of the Knox Presbyterian Church nearby.

BURIED ALIVE

For over one hour John Tonama, 57, was buried up to his neck in a ditch in Detroit, and the faster his partner dug, the faster the damp, cold dirt caved in from the sides covering his head at times. Saved at last, he sits at the edge of the ditch before being rushed to hospital.

U.N.O. BALLOT BOX

Three English Schoolboys

(New York Times)

The senior member of the well-known firm of "Stalky and Co." is dead at the age of 80. In real life Stalky grew up to be Maj. Gen. Lionel Dunsterville of the British Army, but from several books he published it is plain that he modestly took it for granted that his surest title to fame rested elsewhere. This was his schoolboy friendship with two other boys, M'Turk and Beetle, as chronicled by the last named, who in real life became well known as Rudyard Kipling.

"Stalky" Dunsterville's death comes at a time when Kipling's name is again in the ascendant. This at least is one way of saying that the superior critics and the intellectualist world in general have been rediscovering Kipling after what is called a long period of neglect. He was never neglected by the great mass of readers in the English-speaking world, and when Kipling died ten years ago, prior to his rediscovery by the higher critics, it was the general agreement that he stood only next to Shakespeare in impressing himself upon the English language. Otherwise he was presumably forgotten.

Whether "Stalky" Dunsterville lived to see another change in matters closely affecting his fictional self we are not so sure. This has to do with prevailing ideas about youth in general and schoolboy youth in particular.

Traditional schoolboy life as in "Tom Brown at Rugby" and "Stalky and Co.", or just boyhood as led by Huckleberry Finn and Tom Sawyer, was a happy life. It was not wholly free from shadow, but the sunshine predominated. Against this bright picture of youth, carrying with it the authority of time immemorial, th age of disillusion after the first World War entered into full revolt. With so many other established values infancy and youth were remorselessly muck-raked. It was a period and a fashion when H. G. Wells could recall very early childhood as only a sniveling, puling and generally miserable existence.

As for the English public school where Tom Brown and Stalky and M'Turk and Beetle received their preparation for life, it underwent a startling change. School ceased to be a training ground of character and the apprenticeship for Waterloo. Public school became in the hands of many contemporary novelists a home for brutality and the adolescent vices.

Actually we have come to know that Kipling was not too happy in his English boarding school, though his unhappiness has very probably been exaggerated by our own latter-day disenchanted view of young life. But in the end it is only a tribute to the genius which creates the Stalky and Cos. and the Huck Finns and Tom Sawyers that it seizes upon the sunlight which is the essence of childhood and youth.

(R. M. Harrison in Windsor Star)

Death of Maj.-Gen. L. C. Dunsterville at Torquay, Devonshire, at the age of 80, saddens the Empire, and Kipling fans the world over. He was the original Stalky of Kipling's "Stalky & Co." and the qualities of the exuberant and resourceful boy so vividly described in the book remained to mark his adventures with the famous "Dunster Force" in the First World War.

While guarding the Northwest Frontier of India he was selected, beginning in 1918, to head the adventurous mission from Baghdad to Bakue, reorganizing revolutionary Russian troops and inducing them to stay in the fight against the Turks. With a few battered Ford trucks and a handful of men, Stalky created the force which bluffed the Turks from the Baku oil fields. His adjutant on that historic march, by the way, was Dundee-born ("Bill") Petrie, former Saskatoon policeman, later of Fort William.

Of Gen. Dunsterville a friend said in 19125: "He speaks Russian like a Slav. In Peking he was the only Englishman who could converse easily with the representatives of the different powers in their own language. In his command of Pushtu and all the patois of the Northwest Frontier he is second to none. And he can interpret what is in the hearts of strange peoples as well as what is on their lips. Psychology, racial and individual, is his hobby." Down in the troubled Middle East, Stalky would be of use to us right now.

U.S. Moves to Ease Blow When Soft Coal Miners 'Rest'

May Freeze Shipments Till Industry Rationing Set Up

Washington, March 27 —(AP) —Government agencies moved swiftly today to soften the blow due to fall April 1 when John A. Lewis calls on his 400,000 soft coal miners to take a "rest."

However, spokesmen for the bituminous operators predicted the steel industry — core of the United States reconversion program — would be affected immediately and that some steel mills would be shut down by April 10.

These predictions followed Lewis's decision to terminate his present contract with the soft coal producers as of midnight Sunday.

A spokesman for the solid fuels administration disclosed that an order is "in the works" to freeze coal shipments until some form of industrial rationing can be worked out.

Harry Moses, representing the so-called captive mines whose entire output goes to the steel companies which own them, told newspapermen yesterday he could not indicate how soon steel mills as a whole would be forced to shut down because of a coal shortage. But he asserted that a conservation program would be placed in effect immediately, affecting production, that some mills would be closed in 10 days. Others, he said, would be shut down progressively within a month.

The rapid-fire developments were sparked yesterday by Lewis's announcement that members of his U.M.W. in the soft coal field would "be home with their families" next week, in line with the miners' traditional refusal to work without a contract.

Lewis insisted he was not calling a strike.

Charles O'Neill, spokesman for the Coal Operators' Negotiating Committee, told a press conference that at no time since negotiations began March 12 had Lewis made any specific demands on the industry.

Giving weight to indications that negotiations had collapsed—despite additional conferences set for today — O'Neill said Lewis had refused to discuss wage and hour demands until the operators accepted the "principle" of a health and welfare fund for coal miners.

Five Children Mother, Father Found Badly Cut

New York, March 27 (AP) — Police, answering an urgent call for help, entered a Coldwater tenement flat on the Brooklyn waterfront today and found five children and their mother and father, all badly cut, and the body of a sixth child, skull "smashed, lying under a bedsheet.

Another member of the family, an 18-year-old girl, ran screaming with pain to the nearby home of her uncle, Albert Bishop, who summoned police. Police said the girl declared her father went berserk and attacked them with knives and a hatchet.

The father, Arthur Crehan, 40, a longshoreman, was found with a stab wound over the heart which police said was self-inflicted.

His wife, Teresa, 35, and these children were bleeding profusely: Teresa, 17; Margaret, 15; Lawrence, 13; James, 5, and John 4. The daughter who ran for help was identified as Helen.

Under a sheet in the bedroom police said they found the body of Robert, four months old.

They also said they found two kitchen knives and a hatchet, all bloodstained. A cap had been removed from a gas pipe and the flat was filled with gas, police added.

The two children who were uninjured were Kathleen, 10, and Marilyn, 8. Police said the pair told them that they were awakened by screams, saw their father striking the other children, and so hid under a bed until they had an opportunity to run from the flat.

All of the injured were taken to hospital where the condition of each was described as critical.

REASONS GIVEN FOR DECISIONS AGAINST BROKERS

Indefensible Trading Methods, High-Pressure Selling Tactics Listed

Toronto, March 27 (CP)—Reasons for cancellation of the licences of 18 Ontario brokers and securities salesmen were made public last night by C. P. McTague, chairman of the Ontario Securities Commission, in a statement which said the action was taken because some of the brokers who lost their registrations had issued "misleading statements" about the reasons.

The announcement represented a reversal in policy for the Commission which had not previously issued reasons when announcing cancellation of licences. From now on findings will be made public, Mr. McTague said.

The statement said: "In some cases, more or less organized attempts have been made to discredit the Commission."

It listed reasons for cancellation as indefensible trading methods, high-pressure selling tactics, previous convictions of fraud, false and misleading advertising.

The statement dealt in detail with the 18 separate cases and the longest report concerned H. R. Bain and Company.

Statement In Reply

The McTague report contained charges that "the activities of this company outside the Province have done more to discredit Ontario than the operation of any other brokers which have come to our notice during the current review of registrations," and made allegations of trading methods that were "ruthless" and "indefensible."

The H. R. Bain Company issued a statement in reply, denying that the Securities Commission had any basis on which to cancel the company's brokerage licence.

The Bain statement said that contrary to the Commission's statement, the company never had been convicted under United States security laws, and that in the 23 years it had been in business neither the firm nor any of its salesmen have ever been convicted of an offence against the Commission.

"H. R. Bain and Company Ltd. have brought into production mines that have produced $24,995,608 and paid dividends of $8,383,685," the company's statement added. "This is a record which can be equalled by few, if any, Canadian brokerage firms."

The brokerage firm replied in detail to the Commission's points against it and said the Commission had gone back 14 years to letters of complaint on its files which totalled 31, of which 23 were trivial and had no basis. It quoted the Commission itself as stating that the Bain firm "has offered something constructive to the mining industry."

MURDER CHARGE LAID AGAINST MRS. JOHN DICK

Some Ashes, Some Teeth Meat Cleaver, Bits Of Toe Bones Form Part Of Police Evidence

Hamilton, March 27 —(CP)— Pale and nervous, Mrs. Evelyn Dick was arraigned in police court today charged with the murder of her husband, victim of a torso slaying, and was remanded in custody for two weeks.

While the pretty 26-year-old widow shielded her face with a great fur coat, her counsel, Walter Tuchtie, appealed that she be allowed to see her relatives "after 10 days of nothing but police faces." The court made no answer to the plea.

A vagrancy charge, laid against Mrs. Dick when the torso was identified as that of her husband March 19, has been dropped. She has been in custody since that time and the murder charge was laid yesterday — 10 days after hiking schoolchildren discovered the body of John Dick, 40-year-old Hamilton street railway employee, off a district Hamilton mountain road.

Shielded Her Face.

After the brief court appearance, Mrs. Dick ran from the police station to the waiting police car still shielding her face from crowds of curious gathered in front of the station.

The courtroom was jammed long before Mrs. Dick made an appearance and a throng gathered outside the station an hour before the court opening.

"I think a remand of two weeks would be satisfactory," Crown Attorney Harvey McCullouch said after Mrs. Dick sat down in the prisoners' dock.

He added that much detail remained to be completed in connection with the charge and the remand "might be of interest to all concerned."

As yet police have made known no motive for the slaying—if they know one—but there was no dearth of startling discoveries in their investigation.

Comes as Surprise

The charging of Mrs. Dick, married only since last October, came as a surprise yesterday even as it came out that police, in their search had come across ashes which reportedly gave up teeth and bones believed to be those of her 40-year-old husband from whom she had been estranged.

They also held the hat Dick was believed to have worn when he went to his death and a big black sedan in which he may have been slain or in which his body may have been transported beyond Hamilton's environs to its mountain resting place. Police said this car had been seen in the neighborhood of Mrs. Dick's Carrick Street home about the time they set for the slaying.

Found by Children

Inspector C. W. Wood of the Ontario Provincial Police, in charge of investigation, said the cleaver and butcher knife were found by children in a vacant lot last Sunday.

"We have not been able to associate these with the crime at present," he declared.

But there was no doubt some such instruments had been used to cut and hack Dick's limbs from his body which went unidentified for days.

His widow, smoking constantly, appeared calm during 4 1-2 hours' questioning by police yesterday. In a nearby office of the jail her father, Donald MacLean, was also questioned. He is charged with theft from his employers, the Hamilton Street Railway and police claimed recovery of $2,500 worth of street car tickets and considerable money in a routine search of his home.

Expedition Seeks Sunken Treasure Of Gold Despite Curse of Aztec King

Miami, Fla., March 27. (AP) — Deep in the green waters off Key West, the ancient "Curse of Montezuma" awaits the challenge of modern science in a quest for $30,000,000 in gold reputedly cached aboard the long-lost Spanish treasure galleon Santa Rosa.

Locked in a coral tomb —and guarded, according to superstition, by Montezuma's terrible oath of vengeance—the Santa Rosa has four times resisted the efforts of man to recover its hoard of sunken loot.

Now a fleet of salvage craft, guided by Irwin A. Williamson, explorer, inventor and deep-sea driver, is ready to try again.

Legend tells how Montezuma, King of the Aztecs, cried out in bitterness and rage when he learned that he had been betrayed by the Spanish conqueror, Cortez.

The story goes that Montezuma paid the gold in return for Cortez' pledge not to sack the Aztec capital. But with the treasure safely aboard the Santa Rosa, Cortez broke his word—and in the smouldering ruins of his city, Montezuma called down ever-lasting infamy upon the Spaniard.

Cardinal McGuigan Honors St. Michael's by Celebrating His First Mass in Ontario

Signal honor was paid to Belleville Catholicism in particular and to the city in general this Wednesday morning when His Eminence James Charles Cardinal McGuigan, Archbishop of Toronto, celebrated his first Mass in Ontario after his elevation to the important position of a Prince of the Catholic Church.

The first Cardinal of English-speaking Canada was greeted at the station by Monsignor J. F. Nicholson, V.G., M.C.; Mayor Follwell, City Comptroller Harold Bateman, City Solicitor Bernard Collins, City Treasurer Harry Stock and Aldermen Claude D. Tice, Newton Wilbur, Fred Chamberlain, Lorne McDougall and J. J. Trudeau.

Met by Mayor Follwell

Shortly after 7.30, Cardinal McGuigan, wearing the red hat, insignia of his new office, stepped from his private railway coach at the Canadian National Railways station and was met by His Worship Mayor Follwell who presented the distinguished churchman with a copy of the History of Belleville.

Cardinal McGuigan expressed his extreme pleasure in visiting Belleville. "It is, indeed, gratifying to once more see my old friend Monsignor Nicholson," he said, "and to visit your beautiful city. I shall treasure this beautiful gift and it will always remind me of this lovely city."

Escorted by Provincial Police patrol cars and civic officials Cardinal McGuigan was driven to St. Michael's Church, where an overflow congregation awaited his arrival. He was formally greeted there by the Most Reverend J. A. O'Sullivan, Archbishop of Kingston.

Altar Beautifully Decorated.

The altar of the church was beautifully decorated with seasonal flowers. During the procession the St. Michael's Academy choir sang the hymn "Ecce Sacerdos Magnus" and mass was celebrated by the Cardinal assisted by Monsignor Nicholson, the Rev. A. J. Welsh, Kingston, and the Rev. J. Carley, Trenton.

Included in the Cardinal's party were Archbishop J. McNally, Halifax; Monsignor E. M. Brennan, V.G., Toronto; Monsignor F. Allen, chancellor, Toronto; Monsignor J. Harris, chancellor, Toronto; Mr. Henry Summerville, editor the Catholic Register, and Mr. J. P. Johnston, vice president of the Atlantic Division of the Canadian National Railways.

Following the mass Archbishop O'Sullivan formally welcomed the new cardinal to Belleville and Canada. "This is, indeed, a marvellous occasion," he said, "and we are signally honored here today to have the privilege of extending to you our heartiest congratulations on your elevation to the position of a Prince of the Church. We respectfully request Your Eminence to give a message to the many children gathered here today to do you honor. They hope it will mean a holiday for them."

Gives Message From Pope.

His Eminence, midst a reverent hush, said, "I thank you from the bottom of my heart for this extreme kindness. I bring a special message to the people of Canada from the Holy Father who sends his blessing to Canadian Catholics and to Canada as a whole."

Cardinal McGuigan, addressing the children urged them to pray, work and live for the Holy Father and to be loyal to home, country and the church.

Had Audience With King

Later in St. Michael's Rectory, His Eminence gave newspapermen a special message to Belleville and to Canada. "The Holy Father" he said "sends warm greetings to the people of this country. Their Majesties The King and Queen with whom I had audience also send their warmest felicitations to the people of this country. They recalled with pleasure", the Cardinal said, "their visit here in 1939 and wish to be remembered to the many Canadian friends with whom they came in contact during that time."

Entertained by Mgr. Nicholson

The Cardinal and his party were entertained by Monsignor Nicholson and his clergy at breakfast following the Mass. As the procession wound its way from the church to the Rectory the people, many of them children, crowded about His Eminence, reverently kneeling and kissing his hand.

His Eminence left by special train at 10.45 for Toronto, arriving there at 1.30 p.m. he was tendered a civic reception at the City Hall by the Mayor of Toronto and his city council. Following the formal greetings a reception was held at the Parliament Buildings by the Hon. George Drew, Premier of Ontario and members of parliament. Tonight at a special function Cardinal McGuigan will be welcomed by the clergy of the Archdiocese of Toronto at St. Michael's Cathedral.

Fred Rose Ordered to Appear For Voluntary Hearing March 28th After Preliminary Ended

David Gordon Lunan Released on Contempt of Court Charge; Judge to Decide on Boyer Case

Montreal, March 27 — (CP) — Judge Rene Theberge yesterday ordered Fred Rose, Labor-Progressive Member of Parliament for Montreal Cartier, to appear for voluntary hearing March 28, after the preliminary hearing of Rose on a charge in connection with Russian espionage activity in Canada.

A speedy hearing of Dr. Raymond Boyer, assistant professor of chemistry at McGill University and a member of the National Research Council staff, on similar charges, held immediately after the Rose hearing concluded, resulted in Judge Theberge taking the matter under advisement until April 2 when he will decide if there is a prima facie case against Boyer.

Dr. Boyer was the final witness at the hearing of Rose and he said he had given Rose information about the explosive RDX because he was anxious "to do what I could to have the Soviet Union obtain the process officially from Canada."

Judge Theberge also released David Gordon Lunan, former Canadian army captain and Wartime Information Board employee, of a contempt of court charge resulting from his refusal to answer questions on Monday. Lunan was released so that he might prepare his defence for his own court appearance in Ottawa Thursday when he too will face charges under the Official Secrets Act.

Will Offer Defence

At voluntary statement, Rose may call defence witnesses and should the judge decide their evidence outweighs that presented by the Crown at preliminary hearing, an acquittal would be in order. Otherwise Rose will stand trial at the next session of the Court of King's Bench.

Dr. Boyer said he told Rose what materials were in the process and the way in which the explosive was to be used.

Joseph Cohen, counsel for Rose, said the charge was legal, but unfair in that it did not name the persons with whom Rose is alleged to have conspired. There was no documentary evidence against Rose, and Mr. Cohen added: — "What do we find? After the mountain labored it brought forth a mouse. That is, as far as Rose is concerned."

Testimony Not Challenged

F. Philippe Brais, special Crown prosecutor, said that a prima facie case had been made "and not a dime-novel thriller." Testimony of Igor Gouzenko, cipher clerk of the Russian Embassy in Ottawa, had not been challenged.

Hearing in the Rose case lasted 3 1/2 days, but Dr. Boyer was before the court only a few minutes. When defence and prosecution counsel had completed their summing up in the Rose hearing, Dr. Boyer was called and his defence counsel, Lucien Gendron, agreed to accept as evidence a deposition given by the Montreal scientist before a Royal Commission in Ottawa. Mr. Gendron reserved the right to "all legal objections as to its content."

Dr. Boyer's admission that he passed on to Rose information about the super-explosive RDX,

Ottawa, March 27 (CP)—A Social Credit motion of lack of confidence in the government will be placed today before the Commons, which Tuesday night defeated two similar motions introduced by the Progressive Conservative and C.C.F. Parties.

Notice of the Social Credit motion was given last night by Victor Quelch (SC-Acadia) after the House had defeated the Progressive Conservative amendment 149-48 and the C.C.F. motion 182-25 in the first test of government strength this session.

The motions were in the form of amendments to the main motion for adoption of the Throne Speech and generally expressed the opinion the government had failed to plan properly for the reconversion period.

In addition to Mr. Quelch, 10 other speakers took part in the debate—John Bracken, Progressive Conservative Leader, John Hackett (PC-Stanstead), David Gourd (L-Chapleau), Dr. T. V. Grant (L-Kings), J. I. Hamel (LP-St. Maurice-LaFleche), H. W. Herridge (People's CCF-Kootenay East), T. J. Bentley (CCF-Swift Current), Georges Heon (Ind.-Argenteuil), Frederic Dorion (Ind-Charlevoix-Saguenay) and Clarence Gillis (CCF-Cape Breton South).

Before the House resumed the week-old debate, Agriculture Minister Gardiner announced the general terms of contracts to be signed with Britain for the purchase over the next two to three years of Canadian bacon and ham, beef and mutton, cheese, eggs and evaporated and powdered milk.

Third Interim Espionage Report Not Yet Released

Ottawa, March 27 (CP)— The third interim report of the Royal Commission on espionage had not been released shortly before noon today and official sources said it was possible it might not be made public until Friday.

Previous indications were that the report, expected to name the five men still detained without charge, would be issued today. Expectations then were that it would appear before beginning of preliminary hearings on espionage charges start in Ottawa.

The case of Capt. Gordon Lunan, 30, will begin to unfold before Magistrate Glen Strike here tomorrow and Crown authorities are ready to proceed with six other cases when his is finished.

Charges against them allege conspiracy to gather and communicate secret information to Russia.

VASSAR TO ADMIT MEN IN REGULAR CLASSES

Poughkeepsie, N.Y., March 27—(CP) — Vassar College, one of the United States' oldest girls' schools, "will admit properly qualified men to study in regular classes . . . during the period of overcrowding of educational institutions because of the return of veterans," president Henry Noble MacCracken announced today. The male students will be admitted only as non-residents.

Ribbentrop Planned Extermination Of Hungary Jews Crimes Court Told

By DANIEL DeLUCE

Nuernberg, March 27—(AP)— Unexpected British prosecution evidence that Joachim Von Ribbentrop urged "extermination or concentration camp" for Hungary's 500,000 Jews in 1943 brought from a defence witness before the international military tribunal today a declaration that the former German foreign minister "blindly followed Hitler's orders."

The prosecution presented captured minutes of a Hitler conference April 17, 1943, with Admiral Nicholas Horthy, Hungary Regent, which stated that thousands of Jews had been "deprived of all possibility of livelihood" and had become a burden on the state.

Hitler, the minutes said, called the Jews "tuberculosis bacilli" and Von Ribbentrop was quoted as stating they should "either be exterminated or taken to a concentration camp."

The defence witness on the stand, Adolf Von Steengracht, former first secretary in the Nazi foreign office, looked at the document when it was handed him by Col. H. J. Phillimore of the British prosecution and remark-

Espionage Charges Involving U.S. Ship Face Russian

Lt. Redin Seized as He Was About to Board Ship

Washington, March 27 (AP) — Americans who have been reading avidly of the current spy investigation in Canada, today were confronted with an espionage thriller of their own as Federal Bureau of Investigation officers snared a young Russian naval officer preparing to flee by ship from Portland, Ore.

On the record, Lieutenant Nicolai Gregorovich Redin, 29-year-old member of the Soviet purchasing commission at Seattle, was arrested Tuesday night on espionage charges involving plans and information regarding the U.S.S. Yellowstone, a destroyer tender assigned to take part in the scheduled atomic bomb test this summer.

The formal charge was disclosed last night by Julius A. Bernard, assistant F.B.I. agent, at Portland, hours after F.B.I. Chief J. Edgar Hoover had announced tersely in Washington that Redin had been seized as he was about to board a Russian canning vessel for home.

Arraigned before Commissioner Robert A. Leedy, the Soviet officer, wearing the uniform of his rank, was asked whether he understood English.

Thumping Leedy's desk, Redin cried "I will not talk, I will not talk."

He then demanded to see the Soviet consul, who was not represented at the proceedings.

But Leedy, fixing bail at $25,000, ordered the officer to be held in jail in default of bond until another hearing is set.

Redin, a graduate of the Russian Naval Academy who came to the United States four years ago, had been under "intensive F.B.I. scrutiny" for several months Mr. Hoover said in Washington.

State Departments Silent

State Department officials and the Russian Embassy were silent.

The House committee on un-American activities for several weeks has been digging into reports that a foreign spy ring is at work in the United States.

At Portland, Bernard said Redin was charged with obtaining information about the Yellowstone for use and advantage of "a foreign nation, to wit the U.S.S.R." and had "induced another to obtain plans, documents and writings" relating to a warship of the United States Navy. The charge accused Redin of action "against the peace and dignity of the United States of America."

He said the accusations were made in Seattle Dec. 22, 1945, the day Redin is charged with having obtained the information. The warrant was issued last Friday.

There was no announcement of how the young Russian had obtained the documents and plans or whom the officer had "induced" to obtain the information.

Redin, who became head of the society purchasing commission office in Seattle after the staff was curtailed at the end of the war, was described as active socially among other Russians in Seattle but little known to Americans there. His wife told Seattle reporters last night she knew nothing about the case. The couple have an infant daughter.

Mrs. Redin appeared astonished when advised of the report and was anxious for further information. Later she refused to talk with reporters.

No Connection

A high R.C.M.P. official at Ottawa said that arrest of Lieut. Redin had no connection with espionage activities now under investigation here.

MURDER CHARGED

Mrs. Evelyn Dick (above) has been charged with the murder of her husband, John Dick, in Hamilton, Ont. The body of the 40-year-old Hamilton street car motorman was found March 16, with the arms, legs and head cut off, on a lonely ravine near Hamilton mountain.

FORMULA SOUGHT BY COMMITTEE IN IRAN PROTEST

American, Russian and French Delegates to Make Recommendation

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, March 27. (CP)— Delegates for the United States, Russia and France today struggled with a formula by which the young United Nations Organization Security Council may deal with Iran's protest over Soviet treatment in a manner acceptable to two flatly opposed schools of thought.

These three members of the 11-power peace enforcement agency of the U.N.O., were appointed late yesterday to bring a recommendation to the next Council meeting at three this afternoon.

Soviet Ambassador to Washington, Andrei Gromyko, delegate for Russia battled all yesterday to prevent the subject of his country's treatment of Russia getting before the council until April 10. He was assisted more or less by Poland's delegate, Ambassador Oscar Lange.

His chief opponent was State Secretary Byrnes, United States delegate who expressed doubt of Mr. Gromyko's bare report to Council that the Soviet and Iran government had composed their difficulties since the protest was registered last March 18 by Iran's Ambassador to Washington, Hussain Ala.

After nearly six hours of debate yesterday, Henri Bonnet got acceptance of a motion to set up a committee of three to draw up a resolution that might satisfy those who wished immediate discussion of the Iranian situation, and Mr. Gromyko who warned that he would not participate if a discussion was precipitated before April 10.

"SMELTS ARE RUNNIN' " IN MOJRA RIVER

"Smelts are runnin" is the cry heard in the vicinity of the lower stretches of the Moira River these days, and local lovers of the tiny fish are having a field day trapping the little fellows.

The yield is good, fishermen say, and the harvest is much heavier than that of a year ago. Some claim the season is the earliest in years.

Prices are reasonable. For a few cents one can buy a "hatful". Next thing is to clean them, a job that demands plenty of patience.

Cheese Makers Elect Officers Discuss Plans

Picton, March 27—Prince Edward district cheesemakers in organizing for the year, made plans for a competition designed to not only improve the quality of cheese, but to improve the interiors and surroundings of their factories.

Officers elected were: Wesley Remmington, Dorland, president; Stirling Stewart, Belleville, Secretary; George Gallagher, Milford, vice president; Alex Johnson, Carrying Place, auditor; Leslie Wyatt, Cyril McKeown and Thos. Wannamaker, directors.

Instructor Henderson suggested a competition such as was held in pre-war years, and this was endorsed by the makers. Prizes will be awarded for season's highest average scores: Outside appearance of factories and grounds; interior of factory, sanitation, equipment and employees; condition and neatness of curing room and quality of cheese on hand, workmanship as shown in the instructor's annual report.

All Prince Edward County factories, three in Hastings and one in Lennox are included in the district.

Judging in the competition will be done in August by C. E. Lackner, Director of Dairying, J. M. Bain and Frank Robinson, chief instructors for western and eastern Ontario.

Regret was expressed that two of the oldest makers H. S. Channell and Archie Begbie had retired from the work. Plans were made for a meeting at Black River factory May 16.

Civic Community Centre Committee Holds Meeting

"There is a crying need in this city for some place to seek entertainment," said Newton Thompson, member of the Civic Community Centre committee, which convened in the Council Chambers on Tuesday night, under the chairmanship of Ald. "Ted" Follwell. Representatives were present from the City Council, Rotary, Kiwanis, Kinsmen and Y's Men's, the Canadian Legion and the Army and Navy Veterans, the Board of Education and the Y.M.C.A. The committee will convene again next week after a number of committees appointed have completed their assignments.

It was the opinion of the meeting that plans for a civic community centre be entertained and that a plan and cost be prepared and by meetings and otherwise inform the people of what is proposed to make Belleville, a city free of juvenile delinquency and where healthful, supervised recreation can be had. Mr. Thompson, who has been in charge of the teen-age group at the Collegiate since that work was undertaken by the Rotary Club told of the benefits of supervised recreation and believed the time was long past due for a Community Centre, that would be a living memorial to those boys and girls from this district, who gave their all for King and Country.

Progress Shown

Mr. Thompson stated 41 parties had been held this season with an attendance of 12,145 and all expenses have been paid, there is $600 in bonds in the treasury and $700 in cash in the bank. He thought the Centre should be within the city limits and contain, softball, hardball diamonds, tennis courts, swimming pool and an auditorium, where drama and music festivals could be held. He suggested the proper place for such a centre should be the Coleman Flats.

Others expressed their views on Zwick's Island as the site, while Cleo Colling suggested that the Fair Grounds could be utilized. He also suggested that the Armouries could be used and with Jack Yanover was named as a committee to interview the military authorities. A committee of Newton Thompson, Harry Trepanier and Bill Finkle was appointed to look over Coleman Flats, Harry Rollins, Bryson Leslie and Bill Lindsay to look over Zwick's Island, and Alex Nathan, Cleo Colling and E. A. Mason to view the Fair Grounds. These committees will report next Tuesday evening.

Farmers Already Start Seeding

Believed to be one of the earlies springs on record, a few farmers have already made a start at seeding on well-drained fields according to the weekly crop report issued by the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

The same is true in Northumberland county where the fine weather prevailing for the past week has resulted in considerable work on the lighter land with small amounts of peas and spring wheat having been sown.

Farm auction sales have been numerous with good prices being reported, while there is an active demand for springer cows and weanling pigs. Mill feeds continue to be scarce.

In Prince Edward county four cars of stock were marketed last week with two cars of springer cows being shipped to Vermont. Many farmers are continuing to market their hens at satisfactory prices while farmers who make a practice of trapping are having one of the best catches of muskrats in years.

Bridge St. Church Red Cross Reviews Work

The Red Cross Society of Bridge Street United Church, organized in September 1939, held its final meeting on Monday, Mrs. W. S. Northcott presiding.

Many members were in attendance to hear the reports of the work accomplished down through the war years.

The report of the president showed that 5,870 articles had been made from Red Cross material and 7,832 from material donated by the unit, making a total of 13,702.

The Treasurer, Mrs. Countryman, reported the amount of money raised by this unit to be $5,075.22.

The sum of $150 was voted to be sent to the Save the Children Fund.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served and a social hour spent.

SUIT AGAINST MAGAZINE

Chicago, March 27 — (AP) — Alberto Vargas, who contributed the long-limbed Varga girl to modern American picture advertising, yesterday filed his second suit against Esquire Magazine, bringing to $250,000 his demands for damages. Vargas' latest legal action asked $200,000 damages, alleging that a picture by him appeared in the April issue of Esquire, published March 1, under the title "Esquire girl" instead of "Varga girl."

Belleville Presbytery Organizes for Drive For Fund Campaign

Initial plans for the inauguration of a Dominion-wide campaign among United Church laymen to raise three and one half million dollars for the United Church Ministers' Superannuation Fund, are now underway across Canada in the various presbyteries it has been announced.

The Belleville Presbytery, including an area from Trenton to Bancroft and Napanee and including all of Prince Edward county, will be expected to raise approximately $75,000.

Plans for the forthcoming campaign in the local district were initiated Monday evening at a complimentary dinner at the Y.M.C.A. when 45 representatives from the Belleville Presbytery were guests of H. W. Ackerman. Campaign officers were appointed, including C. W. Burr as committee chairman with P. C. McGuire as chairman of speakers; H. B. Fetterly as secretary and Clare B. Morgan as publicity chairman. Chairmen were also appointed for all districts in the presbytery.

Rejuvenation of the ministers' superannuation fund through contributions from laymen has now become necessary if provision for ministers' families and retired ministers is to remain adequate, it was pointed out at the meeting. The campaign is expected to get underway across Canada within the next three or four weeks.

Priorities on Cars And Trucks Widened

Ottawa, March 27 (CP)—Priorities required for the purchase of cars and trucks by veterans have been broadened and it is no longer necessary for veterans to have owned and operated a car or truck prior to their enlistment in order to qualify for purchase of new vehicles for business purposes, it was announced yesterday.

Provided need is established, veterans now may qualify for a class "B" priority to purchase new cars or trucks for business purposes.

Under another amendment dealers are authorized to sell passenger cars to purchasers without a priority rating providing all priority orders on hand have been looked after.

Eugene Larment Hanged in Ottawa

Ottawa, March 27 —(CP)— Culmination of a series of crimes in the Ottawa district came today with the hanging of 24-year-old Eugene Larment of Ottawa for the murder of Thomas Stoneman, well-known Ottawa police detective, last Oct. 24.

The condemned man maintained an outwardly calm appearance, hoping for a last-minute reprieve. However, an appeal for clemency by his lawyer, W. E. Haughton, was not upheld by the State Department.

Larment was sentenced by Mr Justice F. H. Barlow of the Ontario High Court of Justice after a Carleton county assizes jury found him guilty of murder of Stoneham in a street shooting in downtown Ottawa.

Jointly charged were two companions, Albert Henderson, 24, and Wilfrid D'Amour, 25, who were acquitted of the murder charge but subsequently sentenced to 29 and 27 years in penitentiary respectively, on various other charges.

The three Ottawa men were arrested after a running gunfight which began when Detective Stoneman emerged from a police prowler car and was shot by Larment. The defence claimed Larment, who with D'Amour and Henderson had been on a drinking party, did not recognize the detective and shot "in fear of his life."

Evidence during the trial showed the trio had committed several robberies in the Ottawa district, including theft of a number of weapons from the National War Museum. Later they seriously assaulted an attendant at the Nicholas Street jail in an attempt to escape.

In contrast to the high interest which reigned in Ottawa during the weeklong trial in January, the execution took place unnoticed except by a handful of individuals directly concerned.

Larment died in the old jail house where he was held since his arrest Oct. 24 and which adjoins the court house where he was tried. It was the third hanging in Ottawa.

and betrayer of my friendship, I place a curse and upon the gold he shall keep for himself I place a curse and upon those to whom his gold shall pass or who shall seek it I place a curse—whether it be in the fields where grows the maize or in the air where eagles scream or in the waters where evil ones lurk to kill."

So reads in part the account in the Aztec Museum in Mexico City.

Heavily laden with the booty, the Santa Rosa sailed from Tuxpan, Mexico, in June, 1520, and never was seen again.

Mr. Williamson discovered the coral-encrusted hulk in 1940 while making test dives off the Florida coast in about 160 feet of water nearly midway between Key West and Cuba.

Four times, in 1940 and 1941, he attempted to probe inside the wreck, defying Montezuma's curse upon "those who shall seek" the gold. And four times he was turned back after close escapes from death.

All he brought up was the ship's bell and several cannon to show he had found the treasure galleon.

Using Radar, Walkie-Talkie.

The United States entered the war, forcing Mr. Williamson to abandon the hunt until 10 days ago when a small fleet of salvage boats began to drag the area. The search is on in full force once more.

This time, the explorer is equipped with many modern scientific devices — including radar, under-water-firing pistols and cutting torches, a walkie-talkie set which permits the diver and surface crew to talk without the hazard of entangling wires, a 1,200-volt underwater light to illuminate the dark ocean depths over a 250-foot area, and a self-contained diving suit which eliminates the necessity for air hoses.

He says he believes science can conquer Montezuma's curse.

RIBBENTROP

"I would like to make a distinction between Von Ribbentrop's instincts and what he did when he became Hitler's hypnotized tool."

Von Steengracht also said the former foreign minister must have agreed with Heinrich Himmler in October, 1943, for the "eastward evacuation" — a synonym for gas chamber extinction —of foreign Jews trapped in German-occupied lands.

A Gestapo directive distributed by the foreign office to diplomatic missions abroad said Jews included citizens of Italy, Switzerland, Spain, Portugal, Sweden, Denmark, Hungary, Romania and Turkey.

"This must have been put directly to Von Ribbentrop," the witness said. "I would not have concluded anything like that myself."

FRED ROSE

in the development of which the scientist played a prominent part, was the most sensational evidence of the last session of the Rose hearing, featured in its first days by revelations by cipher clerk Igor Gouzenko about an alleged Soviet spy agency in Canada.

Dr. Boyer said he told Rose "what materials were in the process and the way in which it was to be used" over a period of a year and two months because he was "anxious to do what I could to have the Soviet Union obtain the process officially from Canada."

He replied "yes" when special prosecutor F. Philippe Brais said "I take it Canada had refused to give this information officially." Dr. Boyer said he gave the information to Rose late in 1943 and in 1944.

Dealing with Gouzenko's evidence relating to documents the Russian clerk said he took from the Embassy in Ottawa last September, Cohen asked if Rose was a top man in the espionage ring, "a recruiting agent," why did not Gouzenko take a file out on him.

Rose, he continued, obviously was known in the Russian Embassy under the pseudonym of Debouz but, he said, "it takes two for a conspiracy and it takes two to have an accepted pseudonym." The situation became "bad" if Rose knew he had a pseudonym and had dealings with people in the Embassy.

BUBBLE GUM CONTESTS

Chicago, March 27 — (AP) — North side school children are forever blowing bubble gum this spring because Henry Groth, a merchant, decided to give the kids a break. He not only is selling the scarce gum, for which lines have formed here when it appeared again on store counters, but holds bubble-blowing contests after school. Winner of the latest contest is 14-year-old Robert Moses, who blew up a bubble six inches in diameter.

MRS. E. C. (FRETZ) MILBURN
(Formerly of Sidney Township)

The following obituary which appeared in the Standard-Star, New Rochelle, N.Y., on March 23rd, will be of interest to old residents in Sidney township.

Mrs. Egerton Carroll Milburn, mother of Mrs. Davis Lee Baker of 62 Hunter Avenue, Rochelle Heights, and a former resident of New Rochelle, died during her sleep Wednesday night at her home in Los Angeles, Calif. She was 82 years old.

For a number of years she resided with Mr. and Mrs. Baker but returned to California about five years ago.

Mrs. Milburn was born in Sidney township, Canada, the second daughter of Byard and Esther Ann (Lucas) Fretz. She was directly descended from old families closely connected with the early settlement and history of that country, the United Empire Loyalists. In Germantown and Jenkintown, Pa., her ancestors settled as early as 1755. Other ancestors colonized Rhode Island and the Hudson Valley as early as 1633.

Mrs. Milburn was always active and a leader in the work of her church. The Stone Church in Sidney was built by her grandfather, John Fretz, upon his land. She met Mr. Milburn in the George Street Church, Peterborough, Canada. She was president of the Ladies' Aid Society of the church in Canastota, N.Y., for years, and had been active also in the Fountain Street Church, Grand Rapids, Mich., in Grenloch, N.J., in Pasadena, Calif., and in North Avenue Presbyterian Church, this city.

Mrs. Catherine Post To Celebrate 90th Birthday

Friday, March 29th, will be a much-looked forward to day in the life of Mrs. Catherine Post, 36 Murney Street, who then in the company of a small circle of immediate friends will quietly celebrate her 90th birthday anniversary.

Daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Fitchett of Ivanhoe, Mrs. Post has lived practically her entire life in that district, but has made her home for the past four years with her adopted daughter, Mrs. J. Millard, Murney Street.

Immediate friends will call on Friday to pay their respects to the grand old lady while members of the local Salvation Army will make it a special occasion to pay her homage. There will be a birthday cake to lend distinction to the occasion.

A member of the Standard Church, Mrs. Post was formerly an active member of that organization. She still enjoys fairly good health, although is slightly deaf and unfortunately lost her sight several years ago. She can, however, enjoy certain types of radio programs and takes much enjoyment in listening in. Her husband, William Post, died 25 years ago.

Beside Mrs. Millard with whom she makes her home in Belleville, Mrs. Post has one daughter, Mrs. Arthur Demille of Cannifton and two sons, Gardner Post, hydro official of Napanee, and Ernest Post of Flint, Michigan.

SAYS CHILDREN CAN SOLVE RACE HATRED PROBLEM

Negro Novelist Ann Petry Wins $1,500 Award With Her First Book, "The Street"

New York, March 27 — (CP)— "The answer to the race question is going to be found in the children, if you ask me," says Ann Petry, Negro novelist, whose first novel, "The Street," just published, won the Houghton Mifflin $1,500 award.

"The opinions of most adults are formed and set; but the children are different. We hear a lot about changing the reaction of the white to the Negro. The average person never stops to think that there is a reaction of the Negro as well. Many Negroes openly hate all whites. You have to convert on all sides. How can you expect good will unless the Negro gets a chance to know white people and know what they are like? As it is now, he does not know them.

"But if the children mixed more in schools, the two races would know each other. They would learn, while they are young, that in both races there are human beings — those who are kind, those who are cruel, those who are intelligent, those who are dumb. In short that the other race is made up of human beings. Out of this could come a mutual understanding which could solve the problem of race. I do not presume to speak for anybody but myself, but that's the way I see it."

Mrs. Petry, the wife of Sgt. Geo. Petry, began her comments rather hesitantly. But as she finished her face and voice warmed with the fervor of her feeling and her words spilled out.

Heroine Is Divorcee

Her novel, "The Street," is the story of a young, attractive Negro divorcee and her struggle to rear and support her eight-year-old son alone in Harlem on a low income, which makes it impossible for her to escape from the crowded living conditions of "the street."

Like many another novelist, Mrs. Petry found that nearly everything she had done fed grist to the literary mill. She was born Ann Lane, the daughter of a druggist in Saybrook, Conn., and was graduated from the College of Pharmacy of the University of Connecticut. She longed to write, but she worked for some time in her father's store and she says that, although it gave her no plots, it taught her a lesson which did: Listen instead of talking about yourself.

Then she worked awhile on The Harlem Amsterdam News and The People's Voice. After her marriage she worked in the New York Foundation for the Furtherance of Education in the Field of Child Guidance, which taught her a lot about children that she used in her book.

When her husband went to war she made up her mind to settle once and for all the question of whether she could write. For a few months she lived on the $70 monthly allowance from her husband while she turned out several chapters of her book. With that she won the Houghton Mifflin Award, which enabled her to complete her work. Now she is at work on another book.

Mrs. Petry is executive secretary of Negro Women Incorporated, a nonpartisan organization whose aim is to keep Negro women abreast of the times and inspire them to good citizenship.

"Negro women can do a lot to raise their race," she says, "if they will take an interest outside their homes — especially in the schools."

VETERANS' PRIORITIES WIDENED FOR PURCHASE OF CARS AND TRUCKS

Ottawa, March 26 (CP)—Priorities required for the purchase of cars and trucks by veterans have been broadened and it is no longer necessary for veterans to have owned and operated a car or truck prior to their enlistment in order for them to qualify for purchase of new vehicles now for business purposes.

"These new orders will remove on impediment in the way of veterans re-establishing themselves into civilian life," Reconstruction Minister Howe said. "They will now be able to take advantage of opportunities for employment where the ownership of a car or truck is required."

Provided the need for such vehicles is established veterans now may qualify for a Class "B" priority to purchase new cars or trucks for business purposes.

Von Ribbentrop Pleads Innocent On All Counts of War Crimes

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

Nuernberg, March 27 — (AP)— Joachim Von Ribbentrop told the international military tribunal Tuesday that he accepted full responsibility for his acts as foreign minister of Germany, but was pleading innocent on all counts of the war crimes indictment.

The gaunt silver-haired Nazi followed the example of Hermann Goering and Rudolf Hess in opening his personal defence. His case immediately followed that of Hess.

The court ruled out defence evidence intended to prove that the Versailles Treaty was unjust and was signed by Germany "under duress." Sir David Maxwell Fyfe, British prosecutor, said the defence claim was "completely remote, irrelevant and beyond the terms of the tribunal's charter."

Defence counsel had launched a five-point attack on the Treaty and the prosecution's charge that the Nazis conspired to break the treaty with the aim of waging aggressive war.

Dr. Alfred Seidl, counsel for Hess, touched off a long, involved wrangle when he sought to introduce excerpts from speeches and writings of scores of foreign statesmen, economists and journalists which he contended showed that Germany had justification and considerable support abroad for violating the treaty.

Value of Local Radio Station Featured in Talk

The advantage of a local radio station from the standpoint of advertising and entertainment was the subject of an address heard by members of the Belleville Junior Board of Trade at their regular dinner meeting held at the Kiwanis Centre Monday evening. Guest speaker was James R. Knox, sales manager for Horace N. Stovin and Co., Toronto, who spoke on "Radio is Everybody's Business."

The complete setup of radio broadcasting stations in Canada was outlined by the speaker who pointed out that there are only 11 stations owned and operated by the Canadian Broadcasting Commission as compared to the more than 100 stations which are independently owned.

These C.B.C. stations have shown typical Canadian development in the past years and have absorbed the best points of both British and United States stations. The annual radio licence fee of $2.50 goes directly to the C.B.C. which, of course, spends a certain amount on the various networks. Independent stations, however, depend solely upon money obtained from advertising.

Mr. Knox stated that radio could do many things to boost and build a community, but to do so it must be supported. It was up to the individual business man to help in a small way to get radio advertising established in a city. The more interest shown, the more a station would build up and as a result the more it would benefit a community.

A specific example of the importance of a radio station was related in the history of CHAB of Moosejaw, Sask. This station started as a small 50-watt independent station and in the near future will become a 500-watt station which the government is anxious to buy.

Referring to the Belleville radio station CJBQ which is scheduled to open this spring, Mr. Knox stated the station could not operate unless it was supported by local business.

"Support the local station and it shall become a pride and centre of the local community," concluded the speaker.

In the absence of President Malcolm Robb, Councillor Bruce Lattimer conducted the meeting, with the guest speaker being introduced by Dave Price and appreciation being expressed by Bill Brown, chairman of the public speaking committee. Ted Schwab led in community singing assisted by Charles Cawker. The various committees went into session following the general meeting.

Young Babe Sees Thru Eyes Bequeathed By 59-Year Woman

New York, March 27 (AP) — A 14-month-old baby, blind from birth, now is seeing through 59-year-old eyes which were bequeathed to science by Miss Eve Tobey when she died last September, a hospital spokesman said.

Miss Tobey's eyes were removed and shipped to the eye institute of the hospital where an operation was performed to transfer the corneas to the eyes of the baby, then eight months old.

The spokesman said:

"The operation is considered successful; the baby can see, although he must return for observation for several more months before final judgment is made."

The name of the baby was not disclosed

Miss Tobey's action was prompted by the suffering of a nephew who was the victim of an eye affliction for years.

Tourist Trade

Tourist trade means to Ontario the putting into circulation each year about eighty million dollars. So said the Hon. G. H. Dunbar, Minister of Game and Fisheries. 171,000 licensed non-resident anglers sought permits to seek game and fish last year. This great figure is contrasted with 48,000 in 1935. Licensing for hunting increased from 2,000 to 10,000 in the same period.

What all this means in terms of increased wealth was explained by the minister. He estimated the number of visitors last year in the Dominion about 9,000,000 on the basis of the entry of 2,600,000 automobiles averaging three to a car, plus 1,000,000 entering by train, boat or other transportation.

Tourists visiting Canada last year consumed about 10,000,000 pounds of beef or the equivalent of 20,000 bullocks weighing 1,000 pounds apiece and dressing 50 per cent.

This touches but one side of a very many-sided trade. It is accordingly not to be wondered at that the authorities are stressing the importance of the proper evaluation by the people of Canada and its provinces of the tourist trade. It is well known that Europe before the war courted this trade.

Canada offers one of the few great broad expanses of land of every sort and attraction. Canada is so large and great that even few Canadians themselves know it as they should. So not only to the visitors from without but to the Canadians at home must come the appeal to travel in this land favored above most lands and perhaps above all others in the breadth of her natural riches, and the appeal to the visitor. Tours into and through Canada can be made to build acquaintance with various parts of the country.

Touring trade helps to build up industry, even new industry, and creates work.

Touring builds up trade especially at a time like the present when the nations are striving to build up commerce and place their economy on a sound basis.

So it is up to the people to cultivate that trade in every way, individuals as well as civic bodies and organizations.

Welfare of the Colonies

Beginning April 1st, the Colonial Development and Welfare Act of 1945 comes into force. Between that date and March 31st, 1956, a total of £120,000,000 ($480,000,000) is to be given by the British Government to the colonies and dependencies for welfare purposes.

"You cannot combine a real self-government with a position of permanent financial dependency on someone else," said Colonel Oliver Stanley, when Secretary of State for the Colonies a year ago. It is to enable the dependencies to become economically self-sufficient that money was voted under the Colonial Development and Welfare Acts of 1940 and 1945 for the initiation of a wide program of social and economic improvement. Wartime restrictions on material, equipment and skilled workers set a brake on the utilization of the money offered in 1940. But now the present Secretery of State for the Colonies, Mr. George Hall, expects the Governments and peoples of Britain and the dependent Empire will set to work in earnest to make colonial social and economic bases strong enough to support truly democratic self-government.

The £120,000,000 has now been allotted for specific purposes. £23,500,000 goes to programs which concern the Colonial Empire as a whole and can best be provided by central services. These include higher education, topographical surveys and nutrition schemes. From this sum, £10,000,000 is set aside under the Act to be spent on research. £85,500,000 has been allocated to individual territories or regional groups of territories, and £11,000,000 has been set aside as a reserve for supplementary allocation, as it is obviously impossible to predict now exactly what the needs of individual territories will be over the next decade.

It was never supposed that these sums would be sufficient by themselves to finance the full development of the colonies. Nor are they intended as poor relief which would enable the colonies to raise their standards of living above the level which thy could maintain from their own resources and by their own effort. The money is provided by the United Kingdom Government and the United Kingdom taxpayer to give an initial impetus to such an effort. In drawing up developing plans, the Colonial Governments, with the fullest possible co-operation of the inhabitants of the territories, must consider all other available sources of revenue, such as surplus balances accumulated during the war and, in some cases, revised systems of taxation.

Private capital investment will also be required to make the scheme a success. Such investment from inside the territory would mean that with some assistance and managerial training in the early stages, there would be a growing number of businesses owned and managed by the inhabitants themselves. An interesting venture in the field of colonial development is the recent formation by Barclay's Bank (Dominion, Colonial and Overseas) of an Overseas Development Corporation. But the British Government warns that, while a fair and equitable return can be expected, the time is past when individuals may hope to draw huge profits from money invested in the colonies. All money, whether provided from public or private funds, can lead to the greater welfare of the colonial peoples only if it is used to assist them in developing their own resources so that they can stand on their own feet economically, socially and politically.

The School Tie

The "old school tie" has come into the news again as a result of the Founders' Day speech delivered at Harrow by Viscount Alexander. Describing the old school tie "symbolic of those great institutions wi at least aim at and, indeed, succeed in turning out leaders," Canada's Governor-General-designate added: "Not so long ago it was considered a smart and amusing thing to laugh at the old school tie. Personally, I feel much more inclined to laugh at those who deride it."

Undoubtedly, on the subject of the old school tie, there has been as much snobbery among its traducers as among its wearers. The English public school system may have its faults, but, as the Field Marshal asserts, its business of producing leaders has stood the test rather well. He instances Winston Churchill as an old Harovian. And he might justifiably have included himself. In the past 30 years years Britain has gone through two wars with colors flying — school colors as well as national and regimental colors. Many of the best came from Elton, Harrow, Marlborough, Winchester, Rugby and the rest, and there's really no call for them to make apologies.

—R. M. Harrison in Windsor Star.

A Leader of Free Men

The rather obviously mindless (if obviously fanatical) young men and women who have spent their time "picketing" Mr. Churchill's appearance with irrationally chanted slogans and placards handed to them by their organizers are perfect and convincing exemplars of the herd society. Mr. Churchill, saying things that he believed, even if they might raise challenge and debate, even if they might be ambarrassing or impolitic, is an exemplar of a society of free men. He has been one of the chief "leaders" of the modern world. But he has been a leader of free men, of men who can respect greatness, even though they disagree with it and who can follow it without fearing it.

SWEET WARNING

"Ah," said the doctor, long of face,
Dealing with all of the pangs of man,
"Go to your tasks at a slower pace.
Remember, take all of the rest you can.
Give to some bright, young lad you know
The labor of shovelling off the snow.

"Remember the warning that I give:
When spring returns, and the cold days pass,
If to a full life you would live,
Never again must you cut the grass.
You're now too old, and you're much too fat,
Ever again to do work like that!

"Never again must you shovel snow; Never the grass must you cut again!"
"Doctor," said I, "that is good to know.
You've made me the happiest of men.
For counsel like that I am glad to pay!"
And I laughed outright as I went my way.

London Letter

By STUART UNDERHILL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, March 27 (CP)—Bit by bit London's quaint old customs, suspended during the war, are coming back.

Much of the pageantry is gone, some of it never to return, and many ceremonies are makeshift and improvised, but the old ghosts can rest content that practices they found are not forgotten.

Thus it is that one can see, perhaps, a procession of respectably clad businessmen shuffling through the streets.

It may be the Liveryman of the Worshipful Company of Stationers emerging from their smoked and battered home close to St. Paul's Cathedral, to attend an Ash Wednesday service as they have done almost every year since 1612.

In that year a City of London alderman, John Morton, died and left to the Stationers' Company £150 ($675) as a fund to provide cakes and ale every Ash Wednesday to Liverymen of the company. His money was invested in a City property destroyed in the blitz.

But the custom will go on.

The Liverymen's colorful gowns, scarlet hoods and tudor caps were nearly all destroyed during air raids, but members of this wealthy guild walk proudly in a tradition which had its founding in 1556, when the company was incorporated.

Members who didn't attend the church service and don't want to leave their businesses and appear in person can send around a representative to collect their cakes, which are wrapped in a neat parcel.

For many it may take years and even then much of the ancient regalia will be lacking, destroyed in raids which levelled so many of the old guild halls. But the old customs will live on, perhaps with new ones to commemorate another survival.

Australia Needs 700,000 Houses

Canberra, March 27 — (CP)—The Ministry for Housing estimates that Australia needs 700,000 new homes and that it may take up to 10 years to build them.

Commonwealth and state governments are combining in schemes to erect houses as quickly as possible, but shortage of material is proving a handicap. The shortage has been aggravated by the recent steel and coal strike, which has seriously disrupted continuity of the supply of materials.

More than 3,000 homes have been built in the 19 months the government schemes have been operating, and another 4,500 are under construction.

In New South Wales, hardest hit by the housing shortage, 1,000 homes were built last year, 1,800 are being constructed, and another 3,200 are expected to be built this year. In some parts of this State Army huts are being converted into three-bedroom homes at a cost of £600 ($2,160).

London — (CP) — Nearly 100 London trams are to be scrapped. They were held in reserve during air raids.

CANADA'S UGANDA CROSSES EQUATOR WITH NAVAL POMP

Ceremony of King Neptune Celebrated by H.M.C.S. Sailors on South American Tour

Aboard H.M.C.S. Uganda in the Pacific, March 27 (CP)—With traditional high jinks, Canada's Uganda has made her first peacetime crossing of the equator and simultaneously initiated some 600 of her crew in the ritual of citizenship in the Domain of Neptunus Rex, mythical ruler of the District of Equatorius.

Now on a training cruise around the coast of South America the Canadian cruiser spared neither rank nor years in the ceremony that unfolded on her decks for the crossing of the line embodies the maximum of ancient naval tradition and the minimum of dignity.

New to all this were the 600 newcomers to Uganda life, some of them naval novices, others veterns of the Battle of the Atlantic straying into the Pacific for the first time. About 100 were with the ship on at least one of her two previous crossings during the war.

The night before Uganda reached the equator, Davy Jones came on board through the hawse pipe with a message from His Majesty King Neptune for the commanding officer, Capt. E. R. Mainguy, O.B.E., Duncan, B.C., who had crossed the line twice in the past year, informing him when the ship was to be stopped to receive the royal party.

Then there were summonses to be delivered—invitations to an investiture for those who had crossed the line before; commands to face unknown terrors for those who hadn't. The old "shellbacks"—the veterans—received tremendous medals and the novices, received certificates proving that they had been presented at the court of Neptunus Rex.

Old-Timers Organize

President of the "Shellback committee" which had an "underhand" in organizing the ceremonies along lines which have been followed at least since Nelson's day, was Lt.-Cmdr. F. W. T. Lucas of Ottawa and Victoria who became King Neptune. Davy Jones looked like PO. Robert Creighton of Lethbridge, Alta., but it took a bit of looking to detect in the charming Queen, the ship's bandmaster, PO. Walter Jeffries of Halifax.

Besides the members of the Royal Family, King Neptune's court included herald, doctor, secretary, barbers, "bears", trumpeter, judge, clerk of the court, chief of police and so on.

The ritual followed a deeply-dyed tradition and included ceremonial followed by the barbers with horrible looking blunt razors, after lathering with engine grease; medication by the doctor and a thorough ducking in a canvas tank.

The long list of defaulters was headed by two "three-ringers," Cmdr. Edward W. Finch-Noyes of Oakville, Ont., and Halifax, and Surgeon Cmdr. T. Blair MacLean of Victoria and Edmonton.

It took hours to convert Canadians into Shellbacks and, after each had been presented with a certificate of citizenship (suitable for framing) by King Neptune, Uganda steamed south for her next port-of-call in South America.

Antarctic Whales Are Hard to Find

Capetown, March 27 — (CP) — Hopes that the whaling fleets now in the Antarctic would be able to catch enough whales this season, the first operational season in 5 years; to relieve substantially the world shortages are fats and oils, seem to be groundless. Though figures of catches are not available, reports reaching Capetown from the whaling grounds agree that the season has been poor. Whales are proving difficult to find and the weather has been exceptionally bad.

Whale ship owners, and the British, Norwegian and South African Governments are doing all in their power to hurry more whalers to the Antarctic to reinforce the expedition; and inferior vessels are being brought back to their bases and replaced by better craft reconverted from war service or newly-completed in British shipyards.

ROADS QUUITE BAD

$1,100 IN PAIR OF SHOES

Chicago, March 27 (AP)—Frank Barone, 71-year-old shoemaker, was telling his customers about the $1,100 pair of shoes he repaired. The shoes weren't $1,100, Barone explained. That was the amount of money he found hidden in one of the shoes left in his shop for repairs by an unidentified customer. When Barone returned the money with the shoes, the customer, who did not identify himself, gave him $10 "for some cigars."

FEED THAT UNHAPPY INFANT

If a baby fails to gain at least four ounces a week, a pound a month, the baby is underfed.

One of the most familiar, and in a way unfortunate symptoms of underfeeding is constipation. I say this is unfortunate because the average mother's almost uncontrollable impulse is to blame the poor infant's unhappiness on the constipation and on the basis to begin giving the baby physic, enemas or worse treatment. Yeah, father too—the average father, if a graduate of high-school or college, is as ignorant of the care and feeding of infants as the average mother is. We people take pride in this kind of ignorance—we flaunt it and try to make it seem funny.

Now the sensible thing to do when the baby fails to gain weight, cries constantly and—if the neighborhood Saireygamp gets a crack at the case, suffers from "colic"—that, folks, is cruelty to any baby—the sensible remedy for the baby's troubles is food.

It is as simple as simple can be. Toss the formula out of the window and give the baby food, milk, soup, gruel, fruit juice, pureed vegetables, ripe bananas, soft boiled egg.

Don't dilute the milk or mix anything with it after the baby has reached the age of six months. By then any baby should take milk straight and cereal gruel with some soft boiled egg or some clear meat broth or some cooked mashed or pureed vegetable or some tomato juice (fresh or factory canned) or orange juice on the side.

It may be advisable to give any or all of these foods to the underfed, underweight, unhappy baby even before the sixth month—but only one at a time, and only a spoonful or less of it the first few days, gradually more if the baby seems to like it.

Excessive crying does not necessarily indicate that the baby is underfed. Often it means that the baby is kept uncomfortable by excessive clothing or covers and by the physic, enema or other unnatural treatment to which the baby is subjected. We are here considering the underfed baby—and you can't gain weight week by week if you are underfed.

Sometimes an underfed baby is "good," that is, doesn't cry at all, but instead is listless, apathetic and quiet most of the time. If the baby doesn't whoop it up to beat the band at least once a day, it is probably because there is something the matter and the baby should have the benefit of medical attention.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

The Credulous Sex

Not being a doctor or a dentist I can't criticize, but granting brushing your teeth does not prevent decay, I certainly think it makes your mouth and teeth feel cleaner. (Mrs. W. D. L.)

Answer—No harm in it if you believe that.

How to Gain Weight

I am 58, 5-5½ tall and weigh 125. Have Ben Told if I quit smoking I would put on weight. Is that correct? (C. A.)

Answer—Many smokers have found they put on needed weight after they quit smoking. Send a stamped self addressed envelope and ask in writing for the pamphlet "How to Gain Weight." Do NOT send a clipping.

Coincidence

I wrote to you 12 years ago for your booklet about arthritis (copy for ten cents and stamped self-addressed envelope) and the advice I received was more helpful in curing me than all the doctors' advice. I was 25 years old then and I haven't a sign. (E. B. A.)

Answer—We never know whether our old friend, A. J. Coincidence, was involved in the plot. However, I do believe the advice in the booklet does no harm, at any rate.

Try it, Kids

We are brothers 7 and 9 years old. Our Daddy thinks the world of you. Please send us the pamphlet "Wheat to Eat" (M & A) We inclose stamped self addressed envelope.

Answer—It's on the way. Try chewing a handful of plain wheat every day, kids. It works into excellent bum. And write me again, please, to report how you like wheat or to ask any question that comes up, about your health. Kids are my preferred customers, you know.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Why do gasoline trucks have chains dragging behind them?

Motor trucks hauling gasoline, oil and other petroleum products are sometimes equipped with chains dragging to the ground as a safeguard against the accumulation of static electricity on the trucks, a condition that might result in ignition of the gasoline or oil and result in an explosion. The continual contact of the chain with the ground, it is supposed, dissipates any static that might otherwise accumulate on the metal of the truck due to the swishing of the liquid in the tank and other friction of the moving vehicle.

There is a difference of opinion among engineers as to whether such chains actually afford substantial protection in preventing ignition of the gasoline or oil. Some engineers recommend it while others regard it as an unnecessary precaution.

Chain drags have been definitely recommended in the regulations of the National Fire Protective Association and the American Petroleum Institute.

In some places, as in the District of Columbia, local laws and ordinances require the use of such chains on trucks hauling gasoline and oil.

Commercial Fishing Improved

Port Burwell, March 27—(CP)—Commercial fishing has improved this week in the vicinity of Port Burwell and Port Stanley, fishermen reported last night. Lifts of ciscoe, herring, blue pickerel and perch near Port Stanley range up to a ton per tug. Whitefish, which bring upwards of 90 cents a pound on the American market, have started to run at Port Burwell.

PIG GIVES TIPOFF

Tulsa, Okla., March 27 (AP)—A pig's drunken lurch down a suburban road led Sheriff's Deputies Roy Vaden and Burnie Brown to uncover a 55-gallon still and 1,100 gallons of mash. The raiders said the intoxicated porker pointed the path to the contraband when it drank from a drain out of a small dwelling on the city's outskirts and started its peculiar perambulating.

"Must See Stars, Not Mud" Say Hon. Solon Low Speaking To Kiwanis Club Luncheon

Two men looked out from prison bars
One saw mud, the other stars.

Taking as the subject of his address "Raising Our Sights", Hon. Solon Low, former provincial treasurer and minister of Education, in the Province of Alberta and now Social Credit leader in the House of Commons, gave one of the most interesting and instructive addresses that the members of the Kiwanis Club have been privileged to hear in some time. He spoke to one of the largest gatherings of the Kiwanis Club augmented by a number of guests at their weekly luncheon at the Quinte Hotel on Tuesday. Introduction was made by George Currie, principal of B.C.I., while Kiwanis appreciation was expressed by Clarence Jewell.

Forceful Speaker

Mr. Low is a forceful speaker, a man of rare charm and the imprint of his address was the splendid attention that was given him throughout his speech. His address was thoughtful and timely and all who heard him will believe that the gloomy side of life is not the right one to look at but the better side, where everyone can help everyone else with the help of the Chrisuan code. He said "It is only natural, I suppose in times like these, when men are counting the cost of the war in human, material and moral resources, when we are facing the gigantic task of rehabilitating returning men into civil life, when we are facing the problem of discordant loyalties and Communistic expansion and infiltration in Canada, when the terrifying possibilities of release of atomic energy are brought home to us, when so many people talk the inevitability of war again, perhaps with Russia that we look in the mud and see gloom."

Men Seeing Gloom

Continuing the speaker said, "Truly men are seeing gloom not stars for as a man thinks, so is he". Mr. Low asked the question "Are times in which we live unique in our time?" and he answered the question by showing that in the time after the Napoleonic wars times were just as difficult as today but Macaulay summed it up in one of his essays in saying "I would not declare that those are in error, who say that society has reached a turning point—that it has seen its best days. But so said all who came before us and with just as much apparent reason." He showed that the younger Pitt and Wellington both spoke of gloom because Pitt said on one occasion "By what rule is it that when we see nothing but progress behind us we see nothing but gloom and despair ahead of us. To exemplify his remarks Mr. Low told of the rooster at Basle in Switzerland that laid an egg and this rooster was brought into court and adjudged by a jury as being a heretic and was sentenced to be burned at the stake. "We have advanced a long way since that time," said the speaker.

Made Rapid Progress

Mr. Low also stated that medical science had made rapid progress and that today the mentally ill are not beaten to drive the "devil out of them", but rather treated humanely and in many cases their mentality is restored. We have advanced in the theory of the rights and human freedoms. "If we are to raise our sights the first thing that we must do is to realize that our time is not unique in the conditions that face us because our day has had a counterpart in other days and times", said the speaker. "The second thing", continued Mr. Low, "that we must discover is that progress will come and we must discover the art of diversified living and not become slaves of habit or the slaves of thinking and we must not resist change."

Should Welcome Changes

All of us should welcome change but we must see that the changes which are made do conform to the pattern of things that we want, declared the speaker. We must get away from the thought that the state of things in which we are accustomed to live is the necessary state of things. It isn't. We have always thought we should have twelve men in a jury, that the natural rate of interest was five per cent, that the poor must always be with us, that we can't distribute the abundance we produce, that we can't settle difficulties without fighting and that we must have discordant loyalties. In closing the speaker declared that our education system must be revitalized and we must revitalize our faith in democracy and choose the Christian code rather than the code of barbarism and that we must lift our eyes and see stars, not mud.

Regrets Departure

Mark Vanner, president of the Club, presided and Harold Carruthers led the community singing with Bill Navin at the piano. Regrets were expressed by the president regarding the departure of Dougall Marshall from the city. "Doug" has been a loyal and faithful worker of the Kiwanis Club serving as chairman for the Support of Churches and we wish for him every success in his new position. Mr. Marshall made a suitable reply. Jack White read a letter inviting all Kiwanians to the International convention to be held in Atlantic City on June 9-13 and many after the meeting expressed their intention of making the trip.

U.S. Speeds Up Building of Homes For War Veterans

Washington, March 27 (AP) — The United States government, acting to speed construction of homes for war veterans, has clamped drastic restrictions on building or repair of virtually all other structures.

The civilian production administration issued a far-reaching order, effective at once, forbidding the start of any new commercial or industrial construction unless specifically authorized.

This applies to such things as stores, office buildings, roadhouses, theatres and factories.

The objective is to make scarce building materials available for the 2,700,000 new homes the government is aiming at during the next two years.

The measure permits completion of any construction already begun, provided "any of the materials which are to be an integral part of the structure have been incorporated in it on the site" before today, and if work is being carried on at present.

The order does not apply to construction, repair, alteration or installation jobs on which the cost does not exceed these allowances:

1. Houses, designed for five or fewer families, also farmhouses or other structures, such as a garage, on residential property—$400 a job.
2. Hotel, resort, apartment house or other residential building desgined for occupancy by more than five families—$1,000 a job.
3. Commercial or service establishment, such as office, store, garage, theatre, warehouse, radio station, gas service station — $1,000 a job.
4. Farm buildings excluding farmhouses—$1,080 a job.
5. Church, hospital, school, public building, charitable institution—$1,000 a job.
6. Factory, plant or other industrial structure used for manufacturing, processing or assembling; logging and lumber camp; pier structure for a commercial airport or carrier terminal; railway or street car building; research laboratory; pilot plant; motion picture set; utility structure, including telephone and telegraph; gas or petroleum refining or distributing service stations and garages—$15,000 a job.
7. Other sectures—$200 a job.

Bay of Quinte Feed Dealers Hold Meeting

Picton, March 27 — Bay of Quinte feed dealers held their monthly meeting at the Royal Hotel here. An address on the dairy cow was given by Agricultural Representative F. J. Webster. Garnet Tayler spoke on the poultry industry. W. Evans, Belleville, the president was in charge. There were 25 present at the dinner meeting.

Plan Horse Races

At the Kinsmen Club meeting Monday night, plans for one or two horserace meets here were discussed. The club will sponsor the races here as part of a district circuit, with proceeds for the Kinsmen Cancer Clinic fund. Dr. E. D. Fyffe gave several readings in different dialects, and Kinsmen George Hepburn and Barton Reid related experiences while in the army.

Fire at Rectory

Early discovery prevented a serious fire at St. Mary Magdalene Church rectory. Rev. H. Swayne and family had just returned from a visit to Athens and had relighted the furnace. Dampers were open and resulted in the chimney catching fire. Sparks fell down the chimney to an unused fireplace which had been covered over with wall board. This ignited and was partly burned away before being discovered. The room was damaged by smoke and water.

Make Grants

At the concluding session of Prince Edward County Council, a grant of $2,500 was made to the County hospital here. President Howard Leavens and secretary R. B. Small had asked for $5,000 to cover an anticipated deficit for the year. The speakers pointed out that financial difficulties arose when the training school at the local institution was discontinued. This meant hiring all graduate nurses.

A grant of $1,200 was made to the Prince Edward branch of the Federation of Agriculture. The work of the body was outlined by F. J. Webster, Morley Williams and Stirling Palmatier.

$150 each was voted to the public libraries at Bloomfield and Wellington.

PICTON

Child Improving After Accident

Picton, March 27 — Carol Abbott, three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Abbott, is progressing favorably from injuries suffered when she ran into the side of a Burford transport driven by Wm. Hobson. The child was attempting to cross the road in front of her home, darting toward the truck from between a parked car and truck. No blame is attached to the driver of the transport.

The child suffered two broken ribs and internal injuries which are not as serious as first feared. After treatment at Prince Edward County Hospital here, she was taken to Kingston for further attention. Her mother visited her yesterday and stated that the child is recovering satisfactory after a very close call from death.

Gorman Expects Canadiens To Remain on Top for Ten Years

By PIERRE LeMOYNE

Chicago, March 27 — (CP) — If residents of Chicago should wonder who that happy looking individual here is, it's Tommy Gorman, manager of Montreal Canadiens who last night defeated Chicago Black Hawks 7-2 to capture the best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final in four straight games.

Gorman no doubt has plenty of reason to wear that contented smile. His fast-skating Canucks have been setting a torrid pace in the National Hockey League for the past three years and Tommy figures his squad will be right on top and remain a strong Stanley Cup contender for at least the next 10 years.

Gorman, who in 1940 took over management of what was then one of the weakest teams in the league, spent years building up a championship team, and he believes that "now the organization chore is just about completed."

His first move was to appoint Dick Irvin as coach. That strategy paid dividends since Irvin has accomplished marvels in developing youthful and inexperienced talent such as burly Butch Bouchard and Maurice (Rocket) Richard, to say nothing of Elmer Lach, Leo Lamoureux, Jimmy Peters and a number of other high - scoring stars.

Canadiens were eliminated in the Stanley Cup series last year because they lacked the reserve strength they needed to replace their injured players, but today Montreal possesses the strongest reserves in the N.H.L.

Should injuries put goalie Bill Durnan out of the series, the Habitants can replace him with Gerry McNeil or Legs Fraser of the Quebec Senior Hockey League, Jack Gelineau who starred for McGill in intercollegiate hockey, or Paul Bibeault who already has made a name for himself in the league. Should they need forwards, the Q.S.H.L. can supply Canucks with at least 10 players of professional calibre.

Mr. Nubbly is going nowhere fast...

(A SIMPLE TALE TO SHOW HOW BANK CREDIT WORKS)

EVERY month Mr. Nubbly buys raw materials for his small factory. And every month his suppliers offer him 2% discount on his bill for cash within ten days.

But Mr. Nubbly seldom has it. His customers don't pay him for 30 to 60 days. So, he loses his cash discounts every month ... and that amounts to plenty in the course of the year.

He can get off his merry-go-round quite simply. He can borrow from the Royal Bank to pay cash for his supplies and earn the discount every month. The cost of the loan is far less than the discount he can earn.

This is one of the many ways the Royal Bank serves the nation's everyday business needs; contributing to the [illegible] and growth of thousands of individual enterprises both large and small.

DURING THE CONVERSION PERIOD

Banking service will help to smooth and speed the change-over of many businesses, large and small, to peacetime activity.

Returning veterans, planning to go into business for themselves, are especially invited to talk over their business and financial plans with our nearest branch manager.

Women's Activities

YOUNG WOMEN'S GUILD TABERNACLE CHURCH

The Young Women's Guild of Tabernacle Church met Monday evening at the home of Mrs. W. J. Harrison, 14 Forin St. Mrs. Scripture presided over the business period. The devotional theme was presented by Miss Alice Heasman. The program dealing with Canada's Rehabilitation program was directed by Miss Rachel Fox, assisted by Mrs. G. Coulter and Mrs. G. Stanton.

The object of Canada's plan for the rehabilitation of her armed forces is that every man or woman discharged from the forces shall be in a position to earn a living. It consists of giving discharged personnel, where needed the skill and training to help themselves. Financial assistance is available for veterans taking training or while seeking employment. It is also given to those who embark on private enterprise, and during the period while they are awaiting return from that enterprise. There is medical treatment for those in need of it, with financial assistance during the period of treatment, and there is also compensation by way of pensions for those with physical handicaps as a result of war service.

The rehabilitation program can succeed only to the extent that the veterans are prepared to help themselves, and that employers will provide the opportunity.

The leaders of the future of Canada must come from these young people who did not count the cost when they volunteered to serve their country. Because of this the opportunities for training and completion of education are not stinted. Canada wants its veterans to take the widest possible advantage of the facilities which have been made available to them.

When the ex-service man or woman has been discharged and is ready for civilian occupation again, many courses are open. They may want to return to their old jobs, learn a new trade, complete their education, or start in business for themselves. They may desire to own a farm, or a suburban home with a small acreage to supplement their income from industry. All of these choices are available, it is left with the individual, after wise counselling to choose what benefits he or she wishes to take advantage of.

The subject was dealt with under the headings of Gratuities, Re-establishment Credits, Medical Treatment and Pensions, and Veterans' Land Act.

The principal government agency for the re-establishment of ex-service personnel is the Dept. of Veterans' Affairs, formed to deal exclusively with veterans because the task of re-establishing veterans successfully is Canada's major post-war job. This department has various divisions, namely — Rehabilitation Branch, Treatment Branch, Veterans' Land Act Directorate, War Veterans' Allowance Board, Canadian Pension Commission. To facilitate the working of the plan Rehabilitation Centres have been set up in the major cities across Canada, with District offices in the smaller centres.

Films were shown dealing with the advantages of the Veterans' Land Act, showing concrete examples of how it is working out, and the benefits to be derived from a back to the land movement. These films were very interesting and informative. Following the films there was a short discussion period. Refreshments were served by the hostess committee.

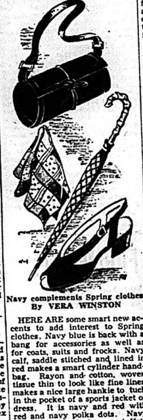
Spring Accessories



Navy complements Spring clothes

By VERA WINSTON

HERE ARE some smart new accents to add interest to Spring clothes. Navy blue is back with a bang for accessories as well as for coats, suits and frocks. Navy calf, saddle stitched and lined in red makes a smart cylinder handbag. Rayon and cotton, woven tissue thin to look like fine linen, makes a nice large hankie to tuck in the pocket of a sports jacket or dress. It is navy and red with red and navy polka dots. Navy and white checked rayon taffeta is used for the cover of an umbrella which has a crooked cane top handle and is reminiscent of the Regency. Navy calfskin is used for the low-heeled casual shoe of the semi-sandal type.

Warsop, England — (CP) — Miners here are to build an altar of coal, hewn from their own pit, in the local parish church. Around it will be six panels depicting life below ground.

Fashion Flashes

COLOR GETS A PLAY in current millinery. A delightful Easter hat is a white straw postilion, banded with mauve velvet and having a fall of large violets —in pale blue, mauve and violet —in back.

Favorite costume at western resorts is the short coat and pedal pusher. A nice version consists of black satin pedal pushers worn with a white silk shirt and a brief, flared shortie in white wool fleece.

Blithely beautiful evening frocks are being readied for summer nights. Black lace lined with flesh chiffon makes the bodice of an evening frock with black marquisette skirt. Basque bodice has tiny buttons down its molded front and flange cap sleeves.

No wonder blouses are so good, when this is the biggest of all suit years! A deep armhole, with a short cap sleeve, lends interest to a white crepe blouse made with an insert of Swiss embroidery. High, round neckline is lace-edged.

"Welcome Home navy blue bags," is how one handbag department in town banners its Spring stock! Navy calf makes a very handsome handbag with slide fastener top and double handles. Butterscotch brown cubes extend at either side, and serve as a base for the handles. Nice to wear with a tailored suit.

A smart idea for those that delight in wearing a mass of heavy gold solid and link bracelets is to set off their wrist of gold with very short shortie-gloves in dazzling white doeskin. Very, very smart!

Bright Golden Chains

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THE VOGUE for golden chains of all sorts, but especially those known as snake chains, continues through its second winter and into another complete cycle. Here is a late design, which adds the charm of a Victorian "drop" arrangement of jewels to the simple chain.

The jewels are mock rubies; the chain gold finished, brass beneath. Ring earrings jewel studded; triple chain bracelet.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Put spare moments to beauty uses

Busy women who can't find leisure to battle birthdays can put up a little skirmish now and then. There should be no armistice, ever. It is a war that must start before the first turkey-track appears, continue until a woman fancies that her bones are creaking when she gets up in the morning. When a woman doesn't care how she looks, she doesn't care much about anything. That's bad. The pageant dances on. She isn't even on the sidelines. She's out.

Spare moments come into the most active lives. When standing on a street corner waiting for car or bus, a girl can air-wash her lungs. Nobody will be the winer; the passer-by will never suspect that she is cultivating cheek roses that will not rub off. Let her lift her chest, hold in the tummy, inhale slowly through the nostrils, exhale through the lips. Deep breathing is not only a physical stimulant and tonic, but it clears worry cobwebs from one's mind, if they happen to be there. Try it. It works.

It's easy to catch five minutes at bedtime for scalp friction, so necessary to a healthy growth of hair.

Place fingers and thumbs outspread at the napeline; there are veins there that carry the blood to the scalp. Hold fingers stationary; press into the flesh with the thumbs. Do rotary motions. Lift the flesh away from the bones. All you need to do is to bring about a glow, a feeling of warmth. Five minutes of friction will do it.

Get out your brush and give your hair at least fifty strokes. The bristles will remove dead shafts and surface dust. The movements of the brush will tug at the hair roots, stimulating the tiny blood streams of the papillae in which the roots rest.

You can improve your figure while walking

Don't take your tresses too much for granted. If they do not have proper care, they may suddenly thin out at the temples.

While waiting for an appointment with your dentist, rest your eyes, your face, your nervous system and your soul by going limp, thinking about nothing at all. Every moment of relaxation is precious refreshment.

While walking you can improve your figure, retain the youthful silhouette by paying heed to correct posture. Keep the spinal column stretched full length. Inflate and lift the chest. Have your head balanced. Walk briskly and lightly. You are on the good-looks way.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

This Girl's Boy Friend Doesn't Seem Any Bargain in Charm

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl of 15, and am supposed to be going with a boy of 16. He told me one night that he loved me, but at school he talks to me one day and then doesn't even say hello for at least four days.

I admit that at first when he told me he liked me I didn't care for him. But now I love him very much.

What do you think is the best thing for me to do?

A "Fan."

I think the best thing for you to do is not to show too much eagerness to have this boy pay attention to you. And for you to have other boy friends and go out with them and have good times.

If this particular boy isn't sufficiently interested to be more dependable in his friendship for you, I certainly don't think you'd be missing much if you passed him up for a more reliable friend.

Maybe he's decided to play "hard-to-get," thinking that will intrigue you. But don't forget two can play at that game, and perhaps if you took it up in a moderate sort of way, he might change his tactics.

She Doesn't Think Men Are "Bashful" Enough!

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've just finished reading your column tonight (Ed. Note: About the "discouraged Veteran" who was too shy to make friends with girls) and I said to myself: "I'd like to meet that bashful boy!" It has been so long since I've seen such a male that I would probably hang on his sleeve like a leech!

I am 22 years old, reasonably good-looking and have an excellent job. I have lots of dates, and all that, but sometimes the evenings do not end on such good cheer. The reason? Simply because most men insist on necking at the front door and never let me go in the house.

Why do they expect this? Is that the usual compensation for a lovely evening? I'm not a prude, but I certainly do not like to be kissed by every Tom, Dick and Harry. In fact, I'd rather save my kisses for the real someone. I am so sick of wolves that I could scream! I'm told that I will be an old maid if I don't throw myself at men. Well, I'd rather be an old maid if I can't find a "bashful boy!"

Tell that "Discouraged Veteran" not to worry. Some really nice girl is going to get him!

Disgusted.

And I'll bet you anything you like, "Disgusted," that some really nice boy is going to get you, too, one of these days! They're not all wolves, you know. There are lots of boys who don't try to exact payment in kisses for giving a girl a good time. What do some of the rest of you think about this?

Beauty—Past and Present

Be sure to choose the right shade of lipstick for your clothing

By HELEN FOLLETT

IT HAS been estimated that the sales of cosmetics and charges for beauty treatments total up to considerably more than $750,000,000 a year. Fancy what our foremothers, who considered face powder sinful, would think of that.

Time was when physicians would not concern themselves with the removal of beauty defects. Blemishes didn't kill anybody, so why bother? Nowadays, medical men, specializing in diseases of the scalp and skin, treat all kinds of defects.

Nerve Specialists

They know, as do nerve specialists, that how a woman looks has a lot to do with the way she feels. A pleasing reflection in the mirror can sometimes make a quicker cure of jitters than treatments.

Charlatans, who flayed feminine faces with poisonous chemicals, have been run out of business. Beauty shops keep to a high standard of attentions, see that combs, brushes, manicuring instruments are sterilized.

Large establishments employ make-up experts. You submit your sacred map for inspection, they select powder, rouge, lipstick and eye shadows that belong to your particular type. Fun, huh?

Your good looks reporter read a magazine article not long ago to the effect that there are no longer any great beauties, as there were in the days of Lily Langtry and Lillian Russell. The idea gives one to yawn. Today, good looks are a drug on the market.

In the yore times, tight lacing interfered with circulation. Fresh air was considered a menace. Outdoor sports for women consisted of croquet. Seven course dinners were the rule. What we have learned since has made women better looking than in the past.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Best . . . To Be Given Honor or Financial Responsibility?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you tell me if the best man has anything to pay toward the bridal shower which is being given by the maid of honor? I mean, does the best man pay for the rental of the hall, the orchestra, and does he supply the beverages?

Also about the wedding: does the best man pay for the bride's bouquet, the maid of honor's bouquet, and for the rental of the suits and the car? Please answer these questions soon, for they are causing a great disturbance.

L. R.

Well, I can certainly understand that the best man might be "disturbed" by these questions! Why in the world should the maid of honor expect that the best man should pay the expenses (and such expenses!) of the shower she is planning to give? Of course, he isn't expected to pay these expenses, and he should not pay them.

The best man's position in the wedding is an honorary one. His only expenses are to provide his own attire and to send a wedding present to the bride-to-be. The bride's bouquet is supplied either by the bridegroom or the bride's family; the bride's family supply the flowers for the bride's attendants; each of the bridegroom's attendants provides his own attire, whether owned or bought or rented; and the bride's family provides the cars for the wedding party (the bridegroom pays for the rental of the car that brings him and the best man to the church.)

Gift to Her Employer's Wife?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My employer's wife is going to have a baby shortly, and I would like to know if it is proper for me to give her a present. She comes to the office quite often. They are in good circumstances, and although I cannot afford an expensive gift, I would like to show my friendliness.

G. D.

If you know your employer's wife quite well socially, it would be proper for you to give her a gift for the baby; but if you don't there is certainly no necessity for your making this gesture.

Alternative Endings for Business Letters

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In writing business letters is the only correct closing "very truly yours" or "Yours truly" or "Yours very truly"? In other words, isn't a closing including the word "sincerely" ever correct?

Bill

A business letter may close either with "Very truly yours" (or with any of the other "truly" forms you suggest) or with "Sincerely yours" or "Very sincerely yours." The difference is that a letter to a company generally closes with "very truly yours" or "Yours truly": while "Sincerely yours", or "Very sincerely yours" is appropriate when writing to a specific individual.

Bobcaygeon Kinsmen Defeat Trenton Fliers to Eliminate Squad From Int. B Playdowns

Score is 10-7 and Winners Much the Best From 3rd Period Till End of Pastime

Paced by their fleet right-winger "Irv" Nicholls who garnered three goals and four assists, Bobcaygeon "Kinsmen" defeated Trenton "Fliers" 10-7 in Oshawa Tuesday night to take the best-of-three O.H.A. Intermediate "B" series two games to one.

The game was one of those affairs that produced all types of hockey ranging from glorified shinny to fast, wide-open, smooth-passing hockey. The airmen were certainly not at their best form throughout the series. They played much better hockey in their regular league games and in the first round of the playdowns against Bowmanville.

On the other hand, the "Kinsmen" presented a smooth working machine that played heads - up hockey throughout. Their front line of "Ernie" Nichols, "Irv" Nicholls and Newman was a treat to watch and together with their stalwart defenceman "Percy" Nichols, carried the brunt of the attack for the 'Caygeon aggregation.

Many Bobcaygeon Supporters

A host of Bobcaygeon supporters were on hand for the game and went wild with each goal that their favorites racked up.

The initial stanza opened with both teams racing to the attack. The airmen drew first blood at the 3:25 mark when Dan Cowley and Loveless staged a very pretty passing play with Cowley being the marksman.

The lead was short-lived however as "Irv" Nicholls picked up the rebound after a screening drive by "Percy" Nichols and slapped it in to notch the count.

The play was pretty scrambly for the rest of the period with both netminders being called upon to make some nice saves in order to keep the attackers off the score sheet and the period ended without further scoring. Bobcaygeon held a slight edge in the play in this stanza.

Real Score Fest

The middle chapter was a real score-fest with nine goals being registered, six for Bobcaygeon and three for Trenton. At the start of the period, "Al" Marshall was penalized for "tripping" and there were many anxious moments for the Trenton supporters. They managed to "hold the fort" however and seemed to come to life when Marshall returned to the ice.

Then it started. At the 6:20 mark, Bobcaygeon forged into the lead when "Ernie" Nichols tallied after a pretty three-way passing play with "Irv" Nicholls and Newman. Two minutes later, they increased the lead on a goal by Newman with "Irv" Nicholls assisting. Twenty-seven seconds later, Kelley made it 4-1 with a long shot that was partly "screened" after taking a nice pass from Lee.

The "Fliers" took a new lease on life midway through the period as Dan Cowley took the puck at centre, skated over the blue line all alone, slowed down as he drew the defence out of position and slipped over a beautiful pass to "Mac" McNabb who raced in at full speed to make the score 4-2.

At 13:11, the Fliers cut the lead down to one goal as "Bernie" Merpaw shot a long pass out to Bob Murray at centre and Bob waltzed right in on the "Kinsmen" citadel to make it 4-3.

Picture Passing Plays

Bobcaygeon then staged some of their picture passing plays to score three times in as many minutes. "Irv" Nicholls got the first one at 13:35 on a pass from "Ernie" Nichols, "Percy" Nichols notched the second with "Irv" Nicholls assisting and Kelley and Allen combined for the last one with the former being the marksman.

At the 17:50 mark, Harry Cummine notched one for the "Fliers" when he blazed one into the 'Caygeon twine from about twenty feet out to leave the score 7-4 for Bobcaygeon at the end of the period in which the "Kinsmen" had a definite advantage.

The final chapter started with the Fliers pouring the coal to the attack. At the 2:40 mark, "Bernie" Merpaw made it 7-5 after taking a pass from Bob Murray. Just seven seconds later, Murray drew the airmen within one goal of the Kinsmen with Merpaw drawing the assist. With the Fliers having a decided edge in the play, "Percy" Nichols was penalized for "high-sticking" and was followed to the penalty bench by Thompson for "tripping". Seconds later, Newman joined them for "holding the puck" and the airmen really put on the pressure with the odd-man advantage only to be thwarted by sensational netminding by "Ross" Nicholls in the Bobcaygeon cage.

Fliers Shoot their Bolt

By the halfway mark in the period however, the Fliers had "shot their bolt."

At 12.37 Newman put the "kibosh" on any hopes that the airmen had of tieing the score when he combined with "Irv" Nicholls to make it 8-6. Just for good measure, "Percy" Nichols skated through the whole Trenton team and split the defence to score at the 14.22 mark.

The Fliers raced to the attack again in the closing minutes of the game and at the 18.45 mark, Murray took a long pass from Cowley to tally his third goal of the game.

With only fifty seconds to play, "Irv" Nicholls scored his third of the night and made it 10-7 when he broke away from the Trenton attackers to end the scoring for the game.

Sensational at Times

For the winners, "Irv" Nicholls, Ernie Nichols and Richardson played outstanding games on the rearguard. The netminding of Ross Nicholls was nothing short of sensational at times and he proved himself to be a very integral part of the 'Caygeon machine.

Bob Murray, with three goals and an assist, "Bernie" Merpaw, "Johnny" Perras and "Dan" Cowley were the pick of the Trenton attackers while "Al" Marshall and "George" Learmouth turned in fine defensive efforts.

Trenton R.C.A.F. Fliers: Goal, Robertson; defence, Marshall and Thompson; centre, Murray; wings, Merpaw and Perras; alternates, Cowley, McNabb, Garbas, Loveless, Learmouth and Cummine.

CANADIENS PUT OUT HAWKS IN FOUR STRAIGHT

Take 7-2 Decision in Final Game With Toe Blake Scoring Three

By PIERRE LeMOYNE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Chicago, March 27 — (CP) — Montreal Canadiens came out on top of a 7-2 decision with Chicago Black Hawks last night before 16,599 fans and swept a best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final series in four straight games. There was no holding the Canucks, but the Chicago fans were highly disappointed — so much so, in fact, that many of them left long before the final bell.

Toe Blake's hat trick in itself was enough to lead the Habitants to victory, but his line-mates, Elmer Lach and Maurice Richard were not idle, each scoring one goal.

Blake got the first goal for Montreal in the first period, taking advantage of a penalty to Reg Hamilton. Buddy O'Connor passed out to Lach who relayed the puck for the tally. Bobby Filion was banished, and Billy Mosienko scored when he banged in a rebound shot cleared by Bill Durnan.

Another penalty, George Allen was banished this time, and Richard swept past the defence after taking O'Connor's blueline pass and scored from close in.

In the second period for 10 minutes neither side showed particular advantage. Then Red Hamill renewed the deadlock, when he sunk George Gee's rebound. Johnny Chad also assisted.

Blake added his second goal less than 30 seconds later, when he sank a neat pass from Lach. Then Murph Chamberlain converted from Kenny Mosdell.

Montreal added three more goals in the third period for good measure. Lach from Lamoureux got the first, with Blake scoring off Richard and Kenny Reardon notching the final tally off a pass from Bobby Filion.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By MEL SUFRIN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, March 27 —(CP)— Toronto Maple Leafs are a fifth-place memory as far as hockey is concerned for this season but a trio of individuals from the Queen City club are still holding a spot in the Western Canadian sun.

Coach Happy Day, making a tour of the Prairies to have a look at prospective puckchasers for the future, has been a continual target of requests for predictions about this year's Memorial Cup.

In Regina, he said of Edmonton Canadians: "They'll be tough to beat," and when asked how they would fare against Winnipeg Monarchs he grinned and replied, "Nice crowd, wasn't it?"

Dick (Port Arthur News-Chronicle) Elliott was apparently the first to pin Hap down to any prediction of sorts when he heard the opinion that "the club that beats Edmonton will win the Memorial Cup."

The other Leaf members who make good conversation are Sweeney Schriner and Lorne Carr, latest additions to the National Hockey League's 200 Club.

Tom (Calgary Albertan) Moore has been campaigning for a real welcome to "two athletes who not only brought fame to Calgary in their 10 years of big time hockey performance, but even on the eve of retirement made the city unique among all the cities of the world — the only centre which in 1945-46 gave two members of the famed, honored and exclusive 200 Club."

A poor exhibition of sportsmanship at a recent game in Port Arthur has resulted in suspension of two players and the manager of Port Arthur West End Juveniles, M. Sims.

Referee Eddie Armstrong reported one player charged him from behind and when he turned around to see who did it he was attacked by a second man who struck him several times. A fight developed in which the players were joined by the manager and several spectators.

The fracas started just before the game ended.

BOSTON BRUINS TAKE TWO-GAME LEAD OVER WINGS

Bauer, Schmidt and Dumart Quite Prominent in 3-1 Win

Detroit, March 27 — (CP) — With a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final series as a result of last night's 4-1 victory over Detroit Red Wings, Boston Bruins were favored today to win the series Thursday night when it resumes at Boston.

The Bruins gave conclusive demonstration of their superiority, with the Kitchener line of Bobby Bauer, Milt Schmidt and Woody Dumart carrying the pressure most of the way.

The game was two minutes old when Bauer slammed in a hard shot from close range after Dumart had fed a pass from the left wing. Then Dumart moved into the scoring position late in the frame, taking Jack Crawford's pass at centre ice and feinted Harry Lumley from the cage before dropping the puck into the nets.

The score was still 2-0 after a scoreless second period, but Bep Guidolin carried off a goal in the final frame, converting Don Gallinger's neat pass. Nine minutes from the end of the game, Fernand Gauthier coasted along behind a shot by Joe Carveth, and he was able to shoot the rebound from Carveth's shot into the goal. Hollett also won an assist on the play.

A half - minute later, Terry Reardon added another for Boston, firing point-blank at Lumley after taking Ken Smith's pass.

A 13,069 crowd watched the game. Bruins now need one more victory to win the series and move into the Stanley Cup final with Montreal Canadiens.

Britons Dial 999 Police Come on Run

London, March 27 — (CP) — Britain's war against crime has developed a powerful weapon—the easily remembered telephone number 999 which, dialled on almost any exchange in the country, brings swift action from police.

Scotland Yard and other police forces have hammered home the number in widespread publicity and the public response has been to call 999 in mounting volume when suspicious incidents or emergencies need reporting.

Dialling 999 turns on a large red pilot light and an alarm in the telephone exchange. In response the operator disregards whatever else she is doing to answer the call and route it through immediately to local police headquarters. Police quickly accept the report, check a master map for the whereabouts of the nearest patrol car, and give it radio orders to proceed to the scene.

The number also can be used for calling the fire department or an ambulance in an emergency.

EIGHT TEAMS STILL IN HUNT FOR ALLAN CUP

Montreal Royals Nearly Put Skids Under Ottawa Senators by Winning 5-2

(By The Canadian Press)

Eight teams were still in the hunt for the Allan Cup and the Canadian senior hockey title today, but last night's two senior games put two of these clubs on the brink of elimination.

In the Quebec senior final 9,000 fans at Ottawa saw the Montreal Royals wallop Ottawa Senators 5-2 to take a lead of 3-1 in games in their best-of-seven series. The other two Eastern senior teams left in the race are Pembroke Lumber Kings and Hamilton Tigers.

In the West, Calgary Stampeders won their second straight in the best-of-five semi-final against Winnipeg Orioles, capturing last night's game by 10-2. The other two Western senior contenders are Trail Smoke Eaters and New Westminster Royals, who resume their best-of-five series tonight with New Westminster holding a 2-1 lead.

The junior play-off games were also staged last night but the number of teams in the race for the Memorial Cup remains at six. Montreal Canadiens defeated Ottawa St. Pats 11-3 in the first of their best-of-three Eastern semi-final. Toronto St. Michaels and Copper Cliff Redmen open the other Eastern semi-final tonight at Toronto.

The first game of the best-of-seven Western junior final resulted in a 4-2 victory for Edmonton Canadians over the Winnipeg Monarchs at Edmonton, where a crowd of 6,500 turned out. The teams were tied until 15.55 of the third frame when Edmonton scored their third goal and added another in the last minute of play.

Kansas City Pla-Mors, Omaha Knights Win

(By The Canadian Press)

Kansas City Pla-Mors and Omaha Knights got off in front Tuesday night as semi-final playoffs in the United States Hockey League opened. The Knights walloped Tulsa 6-2, while the Pla-Mors eked out a 2-1 overtime verdict over St. Paul.

Larry Silvestri, centre of the Kansas city third line, was the hero for 3,257 K.C. fans when he fired a five-footer past goalie Jack McGill at 5:15 of the extra frame. Bernie Strongman of the Pla-Mors and Hal Brown of the Saints had traded goals in the regulation time.

Carl (Winkie) Smith was the big gun for Omaha, hammering home three goals in the one-sided contest.

The best-of-five series continue Thursday at Kansas City and Omaha.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

LESSON NO. 946
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

You often win in spite of acts that seem inane. And doing always right not always brings you gain. But in your final score, both wise men and the fools can always count up more by sticking to the rules.

The best lead rules will not always get perfect results. Nobody expects them to. Such rules can only be guides to the best results in the great majority of cases.

The order of choice of leads is tops, longies, shorts. Adherence to this rule makes for two advantages. It is based upon the best in past experiences. It gives partner something to hitch up with.

A top is the highest honor of a sequence. Or the king from A K with other cards. Or the ace when led to show a short suit that can be trumped by the third round of it, or before.

Second choice is from a (long) suit of four or more cards when not headed by a sequence with an honor. From such a suit, lead the fourth from the highest.

Third choice of leads is the highest from a (short) suit of less than four cards. This applies to a holding in a suit of three cards or two cards or one card.

Thus, a low card (smaller than an honor) may be a fourth best from a longie or the highest from a short. But some of the low cards are quite obviously only one or the other.

A nine is never a fourth best. Unless it is a singleton, it is always from a short. A deuce is always a fourth best unless it is a singleton.

An eightspot is hardly ever a fourth best. A trey is very seldom from a short. A seven is most often from a short. A four is most often a fourth best. A five or a six may be one or the other.

Suppose partner leads the heart six when you have these hearts:

♥A 5 4 2

It may be his fourth best heart or his highest heart. You have ways of finding out which it is. Let me show you.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, March 27. (AP)—Like most industries, the motion picture business is reaching peak production as it reconverts to its peacetime product. That product appears to be predominantly devoted to psychology, music and adventure.

This week 60 feature picture are being made in Hollywood, compared with 44 in 1942 and 33 in 1939. More money is invested in this business than ever before.

It is noteworthy that only two war pictures are being made—"O.S.S.," Alan Ladd and Geraldine Fitzgerald; and "Cloak and Dagger", Gary Cooper.

I dropped in to have lunch with tenor Dennis Day and asked him how he liked being out of the navy and back on the Jack Benny Show.

"It's great," he said. "I like the salary much better than in the navy". He said he now gets $35 a week, but I do think Mr. Benny gives him more than that.

Dennis said he had a pretty rough time in the navy with people who expected him to portray his radio self all the time.

"It was particularly bad when I got to be an officer," he said. He was a lieutenant.

KING WINS DECISION

Toronto, March 27. (CP) — Fighting in his second professional engagement, dusky Arthur King, of Toronto, won the decision over Juan Manuel, of Cleveland, in a featherweight bout heading a boxing card that attracted 5,000 fans to Maple Leaf Gardens last night.

King captured five of eight rounds and one was a deadlock. The Toronto negro weighed 126 3-4; Manuel 126 1-2.

Other results included:

Art Therieault, Sudbury, knocked out Pat Kelly, Sudbury, at 2 minutes of the second round.

Nels Broadhead, Hamilton, knocked out Scotty Ramage, Toronto, at 1.30 of the fifth.

Grantham, Kent, England — (CP) — Joe Bland, 71, claims to be the first British subject to go to Nice as a tourist since the war.

Sheffield, England — (CP) — Olive Hudson, 13, has 92 pen pals and writes 35 letters a week. Her postage stamps bill during the last five years exceeded £100 ($450).

Orlando, Fla., March 27 —(AP)—Easily the most tragic set of blisters in the South are on the feet of Gil Coan, who reported to Washington Senators tagged as a sort of combination Ty Cobb and Babe Ruth.

Gil, who hit .372 for Chattanooga last year and led the Southern association in virtually everything, wore an ill-fitting pair of shoes at the outset of training until his feet were festooned with big, white water blisters.

The result is that he has been able to show manager Ossie Bluege next to nothing, and almost certainly will go back to the minors for another session; despite his awesome record.

Another rookie named Roy Goolsby, whom nobody ever heard of, is fast taking over the outfield spot that had been reserved for the unfortunate Coan.

The Nats pilot is going to field in the coming American League race perhaps the most outlandish crew of southpaw hitters on record. Only Gerry Priddy, his second-baseman, bats right. Even his catcher, Jake Early, is a lefty.

Stan Spence and Buddy Lewis, a pair of solid .300 hitters, are set in two outfield posts. George Binks, who looked good at times last year, also is available. Jim Vernon is back from the war to take over at first base, replacing the veteran Joe Kuhel.

BARONS GAIN 6-5 DECISION

(By The Canadian Press)

In two semi-final American Hockey League games last night, an unassisted second overtime period goal by Veteran Lou Trudel gave Cleveland Barons a 6-5 decision over Pittsburgh Hornets while Buffalo Bisons outscored Indianapolis Capitals 4-1.

At Cleveland, Trudel's goal gave the Barons a one-game lead in their best of three series while at Indianapolis, the win gave the Bisons a 3-1 lead in games in their best-of-seven series.

Joe Klukay scored three of the Hornets' goals and Metz got the other in the regulation time while Kelly, Cunningham, Brayshaw and Hergesheimer scored for Cleveland. Each team scored once in the first overtime period.

At Indianapolis, Buffalo lead 2-0 at the end of the first period and increased their lead by another goal during the second session. Indianapolis got back in the game at the five-minute mark of the final session but Buffalo came back with another goal shortly before the end of the period.

What's Doing in Sport

Forty-six of the best handicap horses, from the winter campaigns in Florida, California and Louisiana, and from seasonal retirement, were declared eligible today for the 42nd running of the Dixie Handicap at Pimlico, May 10. Most noteworthy is Calumet Farm's Armed, named best handicap horse of the year after capturing the 1945 Pimlico special.

Others calculated to give Armed a battle in the $30,000-added Dixie are Concordian, First Fiddle, Snow Boots, Sirde, and Hillyer Court. Emerging from winter retirement are Stymie, Callorette, Rounders, Trymenow and Polynesian, the 1945 Preakness winner.

With 127 winners to his credit last season, trainer Stanley Lipiec announced yesterday at Miami, Fla., he was leaving the United States for either Mexico or South America. He lost his job with Mrs. Lottie Wolf's stable after union blacksmiths had boycotted the stable following a strike.

In a League North football fixture yesterday Grimsby Town trounced Sunderland 4-1. A Rugby Union game at London resulted in a 23-11 victory by Dublin Hospitals over United Hospitals.

A magistrate at Bombay, India, discharged Alex Higgins, former Australian trainer and 12 other persons who had been arrested on charges of doping race horses following a police investigation.

"DINA CASHMAN"

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

CHAPTER 14

"You love him don't you?" Dina said and then, without waiting for her companion to speak, asked, with her forehead faintly furrowed and her narrowed eyes fixed on space: "You think we ought to marry?"

"Well, of course you ought to marry!" the older woman answered promptly.

"Even doing—what that would do, to him?" Dina hesitated.

"It would do nothing to him that wouldn't be for his good!" Mrs. Bucket exclaimed. "It would do nothing to him that wouldn't bring him to his senses!"

"I don't know how to thank you, Mrs. Bucket," Dina said, getting to her feet. "I don't know what I would have done if you hadn't been so kind to me."

"Mr. Holland wants to see you," the housekeeper said with a jerk of her head toward the front of the house.

Dina crossed a narrow hall, knocked on the library door. When she opened it she saw Rogers Holland just as she had first seen him, busy with his stamps.

"Come in, come in, Geraldine," he said. "Sit down. Did you talk to Mrs. Bucket?"

"I've just been talking to her."

"And what's the plan?" he said.

"I am going to stay at home and keep my job until April anyway," Dina told him. "And then I'll leave with some excuse and go to some city — San Francisco, maybe, and—and do the best I can."

"And what will you live on?"

"Well . ." She began gallantly enough, but her voice wavered as she spoke and grew faint. "I have the money you gave me," she said; "it was much too much, but it will carry me for two months or more. I can live on a dollar a day. I can get some job somewhere, to make beds or wash dishes. And in July I'll go to the hospital."

"And leave the baby there to be adopted?"

"No," she said. "I've been thinking about that, and I won't do that."

"Won't?"

"I've done enough to hurt him," the girl said very low. "I'll not let anyone have him."

"But that's a heavy handicap, my dear. For a girl to make herself responsible for a child, take it about. You'll find yourself bittery criticized for that."

"I wouldn't do that. I'd find some kind woman who liked babies and board him with her. It wouldn't cost much, and I could see him, and he would be mine."

"And come back to the family?"

"If I could. I'd live at home again, and get a job, and see that my little sisters had a break."

"Never telling your people?"

"Not if I could help it, no. I'll say, in April, that I've had a job offered me somewheres — somewhere far away. Then I'd write. I'd manage somehow to have the letters postmarked Chicago or Minneapolis—places Pop couldn't follow. And then, afterward, I'd come back."

"And nobody'd talk about you, suspect what was going on?"

"Not down our way." Dina said with a sad little smile.

He was silent for a full minute, watching her.

"And you're 19, Geraldine," the man said thoughtfully.

"Twenty in August."

"I suppose that if I offered you money, enough to keep you going without work and without worry, you'd not accept it?"

Her surprised eyes met his.

"But I would!" she said. "I would because—because of the baby. I have to think of him." She added the last phrases hesitantly, after thought.

"Then we'll talk of that later. What I'm trying to say to you, I suppose," Rogers said, "is that you have had a very unfair deal. Oh, I know, I know," he interrupted himself hastily, "that girls know everything nowadays, that you were old enough to know better, and that women even today have to pay the bill for this sort of thing. But when I got all this in the mail"— he turned aside to pick up a slim sheaf of papers—"it made me pretty-damn—mad. I've heard from Caroline," he said.

"Vere's mother?"

"Vere's mother. She sent me a wire first and then a letter. Now she's here."

"She's come to California!"

"Yes. She's here. Come over here to this chair, Geraldine." He indicated the seat opposite his own at the desk. "That's the wire," he said, pushing the yellow sheet toward her.

Dina read it slowly, twice.

"Story preposterous," it read. "Advise you to have nothing to do with party you mention. Caroline."

The girl swallowed with a dry throat. She looked at her companion expectantly, seeming to find nothing to say.

"Meanwhile I had written," Rogers said. "I wrote that I had met you, that I thought you were a nice girl, that you were very young. I said that I had seen the boy's letters to you and that there was no question in my mind that—well, that things were as you had stated them to be. I advised her to come home and bring Vere with her. Her answer was to walk in here day before yesterday. I'd not seen Caroline, except now and then in other people's houses, for months.

"She sat there where you're sitting now and we went into the whole thing. I told her my honest opinion, that the only salvation for Vere was to stand by the girl he had said he loved. The very idea drove her frantic. His career, his whole life, his invitations to Palm Beach, to Oyster Bay next summer, everything lost! Her idea was that there must be someone who would gladly marry you for a little money, and she proposed to send me a check. The check came this morning, made out to me, with this letter."

He picked up a thick, large piece of paper scrawled upon in a bold, spreading hand.

"'My Dea Rogers,'" he read. "'I have always been interested in your charity cases and would be glad to have you use this money wherever you see fit.' You see," Rogers said, laying down the letter. "She runs no risk of being identified with Vere's affair. And she enclosed a check for two hundred and fifty dollars."

Dina's face was blazing; her throat was closed; she could not speak.

"Caroline was always large-hearted," Rogers observed dryly. "But remember Geraldine," he went on in another tone, "ninety-nine mothers out of a hundred would act in exactly the same way, no matter what their position. She happens to be a particularly cold-blooded woman, ambitious for her son."

"I understand," Dina had to clear her throat to make herself audible. "I understand, of course" she added, "that it would spoil all her plans for him. But I'm surprised — I'm surprised at Vere," she finished in a low tone, as if she spoke to her own thoughts.

"They've talked Vere into this, or rather they've blustered him into thinking as they do," the man said. "They've told him that what you fear very probably isn't true and that all boys get into scrapes like this."

A red-hot wind seemed to be touching Dina's naked skin. She was breathing a little hard, her eyes fixed, her mouth firmly shut.

"Now Caroline," said Rogers, "is right to this extent. There is a man ready to marry you. You were here the other night and played the part of hostess," the man went on, his eyes narrowed, his gaze fixed on her face. "I put you at the head of my table, and I liked your looks there. Thinking it over afterward, I said to Mrs. Bucket, who, by the way, is one of my best friends, that I saw no reason why you shouldn't stay here. There's plenty of room—we aren't using half the rooms in this house — and I said, 'She can wait for her child and make her plans for what she wants to do afterward.'

"Mrs. Bucket agreed that it would be perfectly possible, but on one condition—"

"But I've just been talking to her," Dina broke in impulsively, "and while I'm more than grateful than I can say to you for thinking of it, don't you see — since it was Vere—"

"But wait a minute," he interrupted in his turn. "You haven't heard Mrs. Bucket's condition. 'Mr. Holland," she said, 'ask her to marry you.' I thought she was joking, of course. I'm more than twice your age; I've been a widower for five years. To you I seem a fat old man."

Dina had shrunk in her chair; her face was scarlet.

"I thought about it," the man said. "I thought what a young figure would mean in this house —someone at the table with me, someone reporting on the garden or the news or the trouble in the kitchen. It was a completely new idea to me, but it grew on me. It grew on me until I came to see that I would like the arrangement very much."

"Oh, you are very kind," Dina said breathlessly, "but I couldn't let you."

"You seem to feel," he observed unruffled, "very much as I felt I was flabbergasted for a whole day! Two days! I've been in love for twenty years with one woman. You met her the other night —Aline. I'll be in love with her— or in hate with her"—the man interrupted himself to change the phrase bitterly—"as long as I live. I've got her under my skin. What she says, what she does is supremely, maddeningly important to me; I can't help it. I despise her, and she is the only person in the world that matters.

"She hates you already. And he—that hadsome artist nonentity she married—helped it along the other night. I could have blassed him for it! After you left he began it. Who were you? He was anxious to paint you.

"I'd have him paint you" Rogers added with a chuckle. His face flushed with bitterness. "What do you think?" he asked.

"I couldn't let you marry me. It's not your fault! It's not your responsibility!" Dina said slowly.

"Don't imagine," Rogers began again, "that your life here would be particularly pleasant. I'm not a pleasant person. I'm twenty-one years older than you are. This is a gloomy house, with a tragedy of a sick woman's life, of lost children. But you'd be lonely. You'd be cheated. You'd be condemned to a life with a cranky, unhappy frustrated old man."

"I'd have my child," Dina said steadily.

"Yes, that's another point. That's the point I'm counting on to persuade you. The child will be a Holland after all. He'll have his rightful name and his chance. For a good many years we hoped there'd be Holland children in the house." Rogers went on, his eyes absent.

"This child of yours would be born in wedlock, legally mine. Let Caroline Holland say what she would, she couldn't deny him that right."

"She'd—she'd tell everyone!" Dina stammered, the room dizzily going around her.

"Tell everyone that Vere wouldn't play the man, that the Holland money—the money I'm to leave someday—is not going to him but to his son, my son whom he'll never have the right to claim?" Rogers countered.

"No," the girl slowly admitted: "She'd never do that; she couldn't do that." And then, in sudden tears: "Mr. Holland, then you don't think Vere will come back —Vere will never know how much I need him!"

He made no answer. But as her brimming eyes were raised to his she saw in the half-smile, half-frown on his face no hope for her.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself with a sattisfied expression, and ma was reeding her nerviss book, saying William, you really ought to reed this book, Relaxation, the Key to Happiness.

I'd rather just relax and watch you reed it, pop said, and ma said, Now William, really, I'm serious, there's a chapter in this book about smoking.

Oh, are you thinking of taking up smoking at your age? pop said, and ma said, What's wrong with my age?

What's wrong with smoking? pop said, and ma said, It's a waistful, injurious habit almost amounting to a vice, and this book explains that it's indulged in mainly because of nerviss tension, and if you were perfectly relaxed you wouldn't even think of smoking, I mean you wouldn't even be bothered to take the trouble of raising a cigar to your mouth.

There's a thought there, but it's not quite fool proof, because even if I did manage to stiffen up just sufficiently to get a cigar up there, my teeth might relax and let it drop out and bern an expensive hole in my clothes, pop said, and ma said, But if you were only relaxed enough, you wouldn't even have the urge to light a cigar in the ferst place.

By gollies that cinches it, where there's no fire there cant be any smoke, pop said So only one drawback remains. If I stop smoking I wont be able to make my annual New Year resolution to give up tobacco. Of course I never keep it more than 2 or 3 days, but even a short victory of mind over nicoteen is worth waiting and smoking for, and besides, my yearly resolution has come to be a family tradition, and we should think twice before we abandon traditions in this technological age, he said.

Oh, you just dont want to stop smoking, that's all ma said, and pop said, That's plenty.

NEW YORK EXCHANGE

New York, March 27 (AP) — The stock market backed off a bit today from its recent advances with a number of leaders down fractions to two points.

Steels, motors, rails, aircrafts and farm implements were prominent on the downturn. The move failed to attain much volume, with dealings turning sluggish after an active opening. Near the fourth hour some issues managed modest recoveries from their lows, and a few plus signs appeared.

Canadian issues had a weaker tone. On the downside of the big board were Distillers Seagram, off 1 1-2 at 87 1-2, Canadian Pacific, off 3-8 at 19 5-8, Dome Mines down 1-8 at 25 1-8 and International Nickel at 38 1-8 off 1-8.

FIVE-YEAR PLAN FOR AGRICULTURE FULLY DISCUSSED

Govt. Criticized for "Vaccillating Attitude" Toward Dominion - Provincial Relations

Toronto, March 27 (CP)—The Progressive Conservative government of Ontario was criticized for a "vaccillating attitude" towards Dominion-Provincial relations by A. A. MacLeod, leader of the two-man Labor-Progressive Party in the House, as the legislature continued debate on the budget at a night sitting Tuesday night.

MacLeod declared the Province's "so-called counter-proposals" of last January had created quite a sensation and some newspapers had hailed the proposals as the most constructive since Confederation. But the Province appeared to have since retracted from some of the main positions and now the talk was all "agreement—agreement— agreement." He predicted the final Dominion-Provincial agreement would bear little relationship to material contained in the Ontario proposals.

Other speakers in the debate were Roland Michener (PC-Toronto St. David), who approved the budget and declared the Progressive Conservative Party did not take second place to any group in providing every reasonable service to improve health and welfare: E. A. MacGillivray (L-Glengarry), and C. H. Taylor (CCF-Temiskaming.)

On Different Basis.

In the afternoon sitting Agriculture Minister T. L. Kennedy, speaking on his departmental estimates, said he could visualize an Ontario farm population of 250,000 "within the lifetime of many members present," but said it would be on a different basis than at present, with old farms consolidated and a more scientific approach.

Mr. Kennedy said that while the province's best land must be used as far as possible for crop production, hundreds of thousands of acres should be put into permanent pasture. He spoke of the government's "five-year-plan" for agriculture, including measures for soil conservation and management, and research at the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph.

The legislature passed agricultural estimates totalling $7,857,349 and fish and game estimates of $1,092,000. A total of 10 government bills were given third reading and 19 went through committee states.

The House went into committee on a bill amending the Workmen's Compensation Act to bring all medical services within the Board's scope and J. B. Salsberg (Lab-Prog. Toronto St. Andrews) suggested psychiatric treatment by a special board for workmen suffering certain classes of injury.

Cannot Regain Old Jobs.

Salsberg said some men discharged as medically fit to resume work cannot regain their old jobs because of some mental or emotional hazard connected with the injury, and cited the case of a Kirkland Lake miner who had lost three fingers. The man claimed the injury caused exposure of nerves and resulted in recurring pains. He now was supporting three children on $19 a week earned as an elevator operator.

In the budget debate Tuesday night Mr. MacGillivray suggested the government consider constructing another highway link with Quebec to provide a "swift and unhindered route" for transport of Eastern Ontario farm products to the Montreal market. He disagreed with Mr. Kennedy's statement that Ontario had too many farmers. "The men who keep the land for us scarcely receive a living wage," said the Glengarry Liberal. "That they should be able to obtain an ample return for their labors is the solution of the problem — not a vast migration to urban centres."

Far Short is Claim.

Mr. MacLeod drew attention to certain increases and decreases in departmental estimates in the budget. "We're still far short of the promised land," he said. "There are still people living in depressed areas under depressed conditions. The people of Ontario did a magnificent job in wartime and now they want to reap some of the fruits of the victory for which 47,000 of our sons gave their lives."

Of Dominion-Provincial relations MacLeod said there appeared to be no reason for the "iron curtain of secrecy" with which Ontario had shrowded its negotiations with the Dominion. He quoted excerpts from articles in Maclean's Magazine which he said showed that Premier Drew had declined to discuss Ontario's counter-proposals with Prime Minister Mackenzie King. This account, said MacLeod, was supported by the Financial Post and Toronto Saturday Night.

Drew Interrupted.

Premier Drew interrupted to remark: "I may say that what the honorable member is quoting from this ordinarily responsible publication is pure and unadulterated nonsense."

Mr. Taylor, who closed the night debate, declared that Provincial Treasurer Frost "estimated sums which were never spent to the extent of $6,735,000, and he failed to estimate sums which later had to be spent to the extent of $5,282,000. We can expect the budget forecasts therefore to be reliable within a limit of error of some $6,000,000."

He suggested Ontario follow Saskatchewan's example and extract a greater portion of the profits from the beer and liquor business, and divert some of the increased revenue to welfare.

Family Farm Keystone

Mr. Kennedy opened his remarks on Agriculture with a review of a shift in population which he said now saw about 150,000 occupied farms in Ontario compared with 212,100 under cultivation in 1911. Similarly, rural and urban percentages of population had dropped from 70 to 30 per cent respectively to 33 and 67.

"The sad part of the story is that the farms which are disappearing are the family farms which have come down through generations and which used to support large families," he said. "In my opinion, the family farm is the keystone of Ontario agriculture."

Despite the population shift, Ontario's 150,000 farms now were producing greater value of farm products than did 212,000 farms of 1911. Value of lands and buildings was almost exactly the same in both cases indicating the extent to which farming had become a "manufacturing business".

Every year in the last forty years except in 1944 Ontario produced $1 of food products for every $2 produced by the other eight provinces.

Discussing export trade, he said the essentials are:

Higher quality products, lower costs of production and better methods of marketing. He had "great hopes" for extension of plans under the Farm Products Control Act, which enabled producers to sit down with the buyers and negotiate a fair price for co-operative sale of products. Studies were under way regarding proposed grape and commercial corn marketing schemes and it was likely that eventually all farm products marketed in Ontario, except milk, would come under the Act.

Soil Conservation

As measures proposed or taken under the five-year plan, Mr. Kennedy listed soil conservation and management, referring specifically to establishment of a separate department of soils at the Ontario Agricultural College in Guelph under "one of the outstanding soil scientists on the North American continent."

Development of new strains of seed for field crops by the college's field husbandry department; work in pasture improvement pioneered by the late Howard Fraleigh of Forest; scientific research at O.A.C., on new strains of clovers and grasses that would provide more feed to the acre and a higher protein content in hay; development of hybrid corn as a field crop; improvement of livestock breeding methods, with special reference to artificial insemination; and research into such animal disase as Bang's disease mastitis and rhinitis through such methods as calfhood vaccination.

The minister also outlined a program for cleaner milk for cheese factories, discussed a trend toward amalgamation of co-operatively owned cheese plants, expressed the hope that in a year every churning of butter will be graded and said steps are being taken to allow a greater spread in price between special and first-grade cream.

The Farm Products Grades and Sales Act would be in effect this year, with the force of inspectors enlarged and a staff engaged to inspect fruit from the Niagara peninsula. In addition to inspection at railway depots, provision was being made for opening of stations where produce in transit would be stopped for inspection. Legislation was being enacted to provide for licencing of truckers.

Compulsory Grading

A program of compulsory grading of tomatoes, requested by growers, would be started this year and experimental work on packaging of peaches undertaken at the Horticultural Experimental Station at Vineland. Other experiments were being inaugurated concerning pre-cooling of tender fruits from the Niagara district.

Everything possible would be done to improve marketing methods. The department's plan was to "dig up" new markets by having sales agents for Ontario products in all provinces, in the Unitd States and in Britain. Ontario House in London would act as a link in developing greater markets in Britain and Europe.

The government planned to extend Hydro power to every rural home and farm and was setting up an extended department of agricultural engineering at Guelph.

Claims Pacts Not Changed

Mr. McGillivray said Premier Drew, when in opposition ranks spoke "loud and long" about what he would do with Ottawa River Power contracts if elected. The Premier had "consistently hammered" on the throne that the Liberal regime of that time was selling out to Quebec. A Progressive-Conservative government it was claimed, would write a new contract for the Des Joachim plant.

"Well, Mr. Speaker, when the Premier and his followers were elected to office did they change the power pacts? Not one single clause was altered I am told, from the contract the Liberal government has previously made."

Mr. Taylor pleaded for better treatment of Indians in the north. lar. The provincial government should use its influence at the Dominion-Provincial conference on behalf of these Indians, many of whom had fought in both wars.

Five paid the usual $10 and $3 costs for being intoxicated.

Margaret Patwell, Montreal, charged with wearing a naval uniform illegally was given suspended sentence for six months.

Cars Collide in Fog

E. A. Butler, 28 Bridge Street, Belleville, reported to police that he was proceeding east on Dundas Street, Trenton, in vicinity of Shell service station, when another car proceeding west allegedly driven by George H. Carter, Consecon, collided with the side of his car. The accident happened during heavy fog. The extent of damage to both cars was about $50.

GOVERNMENT

Increase for Hogs

Principal feature of the contracts will be a net increase of $2 a head in the price of hogs for Canadian producers, who will be called upon to supply a minimum of 350,000,000 pounds of pork products in 1947 and 400,000,000 lbs. in 1948. The total being shipped this year is approximately 425,000,000 pounds.

Prices for the other commodities generally are the same, although in some cases quantities to be shipped are increased, while the agreement for supplies of beef and mutton to be shipped will be subject to further discussion.

Mr. Quelch, in serving notice of his party's motion, repeated statements of previous years that the government changed its financial policy quickly when forced to do so by the exigencies of war. Now that the war was over the government was returning to pre-war practices. There were indications that an all-out effort would not be made to win the peace.

Bracken Heard

Mr. Bracken, speaking for the second time in the Throne Speech debate, called for government action to lift restrictions on the prices of farm products and encourage farmers to increase their wheat acreage to provide more food for export.

He said the government also should permit an increase in the price of butter and allow the export price for wheat to be increased from $1.55 to at least $1.80 a bushel until the current world shortage was overcome.

Mr. Hackett, whose constituency is in the eastern townships of Quebec province, said the dairy industry in the townships was in danger of "extermination" because of the controlled butter price.

Mr. Gillis said the government should fix a basic minimum income for Canadian workers and suggested that Labor Minister Mitchell call together union and management in the steel industry to see what steps could be taken to improve it.

Opposes British Loan.

Mr. Hamel expressed opposition to the British loan and touched on the espionage inquiry briefly with a statement that it was useless to denounce Communism as long as there was no action to provide the working people with a decent living.

Mr. Gourd called for the development of his constituency and expressed support for suggestions that Canada send a diplomatic representative to the Vatican.

Mr. Bentley charged that the government had failed to plan for reconversion. Now that reconversion was started, it could not make use of the vast productive machinery built up during the war.

Mr. Heon said he felt that too much "wrongful publicity" is being given to the Canadian espionage inquiry.

He said:—

"There has literally been such an orgy of pictures of some of the accused, some of them in delightful and affectionate poses with their wives, that one would almost be led to think that the accused have hired a Hollywood press-agent.

Great Danger.

"There is a great danger there that the ends of justice may not be served; as those of us here in the legal profession will easily understand, the accused have not yet been tried, and the 12 men who will decide their fate remain to be selected.

"With this flood of publicity, it shall not be easy to select jurymen who have not formed an opinion, and the defence will have a great opportunity of challenging almost every one in the jury-panel.

"Further, the accused have not yet been found guilty and my years of experience as a Crown Prosecutor have taught me to often expect the unexpected verdict from the 12 'tried and true' men. With the flowing headlines and imaginative stories being circulated, those accused who may be acquitted would proclaim themselves martyrs to the cause of the proletariat, whilst those who may be found guilty would loudly proclaim that they were the victims of prejudice and persecution.

V.D. Campaign Finds Mental Distress Main Cause of Sexual Promiscuity

By RENNIE TAYLOR

San Francisco, March 27 (AP)—Mental distress, in a variety of forms, has been found to be the primary cause of sexual promiscuity among women by municipal investigators conducting a 17-month study here as part of a campaign against venereal disease,

The psychiatric staff's report said the project cured possibly half of the 229 co-operating patients of delinquency and persuaded most of the remainder to reduce the scope of their sex adventures.

Dr. Carl Buck of the American Public Health Association estimated that the project had prevented at least 163 cases of venereal disease with a cash saving to the city of $19,560.

Psychiatrists, psychologists and social workers interviewed the young women patients and offered mental treatment to those willing to co-operate. Prostitutes were excepted from the survey.

The scientists found that:

1. There is no single psychic pattern behind sexual promiscuity. Common factors included broken homes, mental conflict, intellectual immaturity, emotional instability, lack of proper sex education and spite.

2. The intensity of sex desires has little to do with promiscuity. Only one out of 20 women rated this as a major factor.

3. Some girls become promiscuous because of a desire to prove to themselves that they are sexually normal. An unsatisfactory or distasteful initial experience drives them to another partner in search of the facts.

4. Curiosity often was a factor. Spite against a husband or an inconstant boy friend motivated some of the girls. Frequently the motive was a desire to be popular or to defy family authority.

5. Loneliness or boredom were found to be contributory factors, particularly among single girls and women with absent husbands.

6. "Emotion dependence" was the main cause in 10 per cent of the cases. These women were found to be emotionally immature and to lack self-sufficiency.

7. The seductive "love 'em and leave 'em" type becomes promiscuous because of the electra complex — an unduly strong childhood attachment for her father. At the outset she considers her mother a rival for her father's affections. This attitude, carried over into maturity, makes her possessive toward other men, her objective is conquest, not affection.

8. Eleven per cent of the whole group were maladapted. They felt no need to conform to social standards. They were unstable, unable to learn anything from experience, and careless of the feelings of others. Few of these were improved by psychiatry.

Thank you, Mrs. Haynes, for your grand letter. You see, Ladies, Super Suds is Concentrated. Super Suds actually gives you far more washing-power . . . livelier, richer suds, without hard rubbing. And Super Suds costs no more than ordinary washday soap.

Progress Report No. 1

A resume of operations on the Company's properties in the Gordon Lake area of Yellowknife to March 15th, 1946.

To the Shareholders of

DORIS Yellowknife GOLD MINES LIMITED (No Personal Liability)

Having just received report of the diamond drilling which has been in progress on your Company's property in the Gordon Lake area of Yellowknife, Northwest Territories, we submit a resume and report thereon as follows:

During the period from January 15th to March 9th, 1946 inclusive, a total of 9 holes were drilled for a total length of 1,021 ft. This drilling was at a time when the ground was covered with about 5 ft. of snow and while intended to investigate the shear zone which extends north-westerly and south-easterly across your property for about 3,000 ft., some of the holes drilled were obviously outside the shear.

DRILLING RESULTS ARE AS FOLLOWS

HOLE NO. 1 was drilled for a length of 115' at 43 degrees. 8" of mineralized quartz was cut between 56'6" and 57'2" which assayed $19.03. A further 2'8" of mineralized quartz was cut between 61'6" and 64'2" which assayed $3.47.

HOLES NO. 2 AND NO. 3 failed to cut the shear and no samples were taken for assaying.

HOLE NO. 4 drilled for a length of 125' at 32 degrees cut 12" of quartz between 54' and 55' which assayed $1.93.

HOLE NO. 5 drilled for a length of 134' at 35 degrees cut 2' of mineralized quartz between 11'6" and 13'6" which assayed $59.68. An additional 8" of quartz cut between 104' and 104'8" which assayed $66.61 and 18" of quartz between 107' and 108'6" which assayed $25.41.

HOLE NO. 6 failed to cut the shear and no samples were taken for assay. No values of any consequence were returned from HOLE NO. 7 and it is doubtful whether it cut the shear.

HOLE NO. 8 drilled for a length of 116' at 43 degrees cut the following sections which were assayed:

27-28'	......Bluish mineralized quartz...	12"—	$121.28
31-32'2"	....Mineralized quartz	14"—	3.85
47'6"-49'	....Quartz	18"—	10.40
51-52'2"	....Quartz	14"—	3.85
73'6"-75'	....Quartz	18"—	3.47
85-86'	......Quartz	12"—	26.18

HOLE NO. 9 drilled for a length of 106' at 33 degrees cut 20" of quartz feldspar between 46' and 47'8" which assayed $2.70.

Drilling Contract Increased — Consulting Engineer Appointed—Treasury Amply Financed.

The original contract for 5,000 ft. of diamond drilling has been increased to a total of 15,000 ft. and drilling is continuing with an X-ray drill and a large drill is being added to speed up the program. Drilling is proceeding under the supervision of Mr. C. W. Swenson.

The Company has recently retained Lt. Col. J. G. Tatham, B.Sc. (M) O.B.E. (M), as Consulting Engineer. He plans to visit the property early next month at which time the drill cores will be thoroughly re-examined and thereafter his recommendations will direct the future drilling program.

The treasury has already received $125,000.00 from the underwriter and optionee and is amply financed to thoroughly explore the mine making possibilities of your property.

ROSE ORDERED TO PRISON, BAIL CANCELLED

Lunan Evidence Before Commission For Court Hearing

Magistrate Gives Consent To Admitting Testimony

Ottawa, March 28 — (CP) — Magistrate Glenn Strike today ruled admissable for the preliminary hearing of Capt. Gordon Lunan the 200-odd pages of evidence he gave before the Royal Commission investigating espionage.

He gave his decision at the end of a morning session which saw special Crown Prosecutor Lee Kelley submit the evidence and call two shorthand reporters to identify Lunan as the man who gave it.

Mr. Kelley told reporters after an adjournment to 2:30 p.m., E. S. T., that he would rest his case in the preliminary inquiry stage on this evidence alone.

Whether it will have to read into the record was not immediately clear, Mr. Kelley said.

He had asked the Magistrate to keep parts of it from the public, a request to which defence counsel took objection.

Objections Overcome

The Magiserate listened to involved legal argument by Mr. Kelley and H. L. Cartwright, counsel for Lunan — 30-year-old Scottish-born alleged "head" of a group of agents — before announcing his decision.

Objections to evidence given before a commission being used in a preliminary hearing were "overcome" by the testimony of the two shorthand reporters who had taken it, said Magistrate Strike.

"As far as I could determine," he said, "there was no intimidation" of Lunan by police after he was detained Feb. 15.

Lunan appeared as a witness to give evidence on his arrest and the method in which evidence was taken before the Royal Commission. He said he had not been given any warning and had been examined by Royal Canadian Mounted Police before he was taken before the Commission.

Lunan said that while he was held at Rockcliffe R.C.M.P. barracks he was told by guards that suicide attempts had been made by some others who were under detention. He was deprived of his razor and told to keep away from windows. A lower window was nailed shut and there were bright lights kept burning in the room.

"This was part and parcel of what was clearly to me a method of psychological torture," he said.

Tells of Arrest

Lunan was called by H. L. Cartwright, his counsel, to testify as to the admissibility of the evidence in starting what the lawyer called "a trial within a trial." Lunan said that on his return from England by plane, he had landed at Dorval airport, near Montreal, and in customs room a man who identified himself as an R.C.M.P. officer asked him to step into another room.

"He showed me what he said was a warrant and said 'you are in custody'," Lunan said.

"I asked 'is this arrest?' but he hemmed and hawed and wouldn't say...I read the warrant again and understood from the terms that I had been taken into custody."

From Dorval he was brought to the R.C.M.P. barracks in suburban Rockcliffe. He had been given no chance to tell his wife of his arrival although she was expecting him.

In the barracks he was put in a dormitory "with many beds." The only other occupant was a guard who stayed with him "day and night" for the two weeks he was there.

Lost Track of Time

During his detention at Rockcliffe he lost track of time and dates but thought it was in the second week that he was taken before the commission. Before that he had been questioned by Inspector Harvison of the R.C.M.P. who interviewed him "perhaps a half dozen times."

"Was any warning given you?" Mr. Cartwright asked.

"No," Lunan replied.

"Were you told you didn't have to answer questions?"

"No."

"Did you have the opportunity to get counsel?"

"No, I brought the question of counsel up myself several times, first at Dorval."

Lee Kelley, Crown Prosecutor, suggested Mr. Cartwright was "drawing a long bow" in his questioning.

"Is it drawing a long bow to suggest he (Lunan) was intimidated by police before he appeared before the commission," Mr. Cartwright replied.

Lunan, continuing his evidence, said Inspector Harvison had admitted the procedure was extraordinary but told him there was nothing he could do about it under the circumstances.

Received No Threats.

Questioned by Mr. Kelley, Lunan said he had received "no direct threats" from the police "but there were very strong suspicions."

"I was told that having made certain statements to police, if any statements to the commission did not correspond I would be in "very hot water."

"From the highly vindictive attitude of the police, I could construe it as a threat . . . there was always that coloring in their whole attitude."

He told Mr. Kelley Insp. Harvison had "induced me very strongly" to acknowledge certain things produced in the form of documents or statements.

Harvison's "first approach to me went something like this: 'We've tangled with you Reds before and you always scream your heads off but this time we've got you'."

Lunan added, "he obviously had in mind some fantastic idea about me."

In addition there were "constant threats against my liberty and civil rights."

Mr. Kelley asked for definite threats.

"I can't recall exact words," Lunan answered.

Mr. Kelley asked if he considered the rights as manifesting third degree methods.

"I consider them part and par-

Move to Place Eleanor Roosevelt In High Post

By ALEX SINGLETON

Atlantic City, N. J., March 28—(AP) — A move to place Eleanor Roosevelt at the head of an international organization for handling the problems of political exiles and war-scattered refugees gathered force today among delegates from 48 countries attending the council meeting of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

There appeared little likelihood, however, that action on the proposition would come at this meeting. Rather, it seemed probable it would await the time when the problems of displaced persons were turned over to the United Nations.

But, in circles close to the delegates, it was reported that the question of offering the job to Mrs. Roosevelt already had gone beyond the point of speculation. These sources said it was likely Britain would nominate her.

If accepted, it would bring back into a working partnership—this time at an international level—the old team of Fiorello H. LaGuardia and Mrs. Roosevelt which directed the United States program of civilian defence during the first part of the war,

Grafts of Hardy Canadian Apple Trees Now on Way to Leningrad

Ottawa, March 28 (CP) — Diplomatic pouches generally are reserved for mail between foreign embassies and their home office, but a pouch which left the Soviet Embassy here recently for Russia contained—oddly enough—a bundle of twigs.

Destined for the institute of plant industry of the Lenin Academy of Agricultural Sciences at Leningrad, the bundle consisted of a half dozen scions each of five varieties of Canadian hardy apples, suitable for grafting in Soviet orchards where the climate is similar to that of the Canadian Prairies.

The scions were supplied, on request, by the horticulture division of the Central Experimental Farm here. The unique means of transportation came about because other swift shipment methods were lacking.

Agriculture departments officials here recalled that it was from Russia that Canada originally obtained the hardy apple stock which was the forerunner of half the hardy apple orchards in the Dominion today. About 60 years ago, Dr. William Saunders, first director of the experimental farms service, imported both seed and nursery stock of small Siberian crabapples.

These were crossed with other hardy apples, creating new varieties which combine the cold-resistance of the Siberian crabapple with the size and flavor of more southern fruits.

Distributed throughout western Canada, these apples now are grown where previously apple crops were unheard of. Some of the new varieties now will be tested by Soviet horticulturists.

5-CENT BUTTER PRICE INCREASE IS EXPECTED

This Will be Without Benefit of Subsidy; Wheat Price Formula May be Revised

Ottawa, March 28. —An increase in butter prices of approximately five cents a pound, without benefit of subsidy, and a revised wheat price formula that will offer long-term guarantees without increasing the present $1.55 export price materially, is believed to be receiving Government discussion.

At the moment the Government is hopeful that it can hold the price line generally on wheat products and, which is immeasurably more important, on animal products, with the exception of hogs and butter.

Precedent for the price increase for a secondary food product like butter was given yesterday in the announcement of an increase in pork that runs up to about $2 per hog. The hog price increase was made in the hope of checking the downward slide in production, so that Canada can meet export and domestic demands. The increase in butter price comes from the same reason—knowledge that the price must go up if Canada is going to eat butter in the off-season period of 1946-47.

A fifty-cent-per-pound price would bring the butter-cheese ratio close to two-to-one—the relationship which was broken about two years ago to stimulate cheese production when the country was failing behind on United Kingdom contracts.

Clash in Cabinet

The Government's price control experts are believed to regard the hog and butter increases as special cases. While the Government is anxious to remove subsidies on the slightest excuse, there is little likelihood of it removing the eight-cent subsidy on butterfat at the present time.

Currently there is said to be a struggle in the Cabinet between Agriculture Minister Gardiner and Finance Minister Ilsley, with the latter maintaining a barely yielding front to demands for price increases which are definitely threatening Government policy of an orderly retreat from wartime controls.

$70,000 ESTIMATED FIRE LOSS

Harrow, Ont., March 28 (CP)—Fire swept through a wing of Harrow Farmers Co-operative Limited here today and caused damage etimated at $70,000. Along with more than $50,000 worth of machinery destroyed in the blaze, 6,000 bushels of recently arrived grain were lost. Co-operative officials said today that floating insurance covered the building and its contents for an estimated $70,000.

700 EMPLOYEES OUT

Montreal, March 28 — (CP) — Approximately 700 employees of three National Breweries Limited plants in Montreal went on strike today in a demand for increased wages and shorter working hours.

The plants affected are Dawes Black Horse Brewery, Frontenac Breweries Limited and Dawes Draught Ale Brewery. A company spokesman said the walkout was orderly.

Aurora Borealis Throws Monkey Wrench Into Newspaper Teletypes

One of nature's unpredictable phenomena, the Aurora Borealis threw a figurative monkey wrench into communications facilities this morning disrupting service over a nation and continent-wide set-up.

From as early as six o'clock the mischievous Gremlins got in their nefarious work, striking consistently at cables, teletypes and other forms of communications machinery.

Telegraph offices were completely tied up as were news and editorial rooms of daily newspapers, until shortly after nine-thirty when as suddenly as the Gremlins struck they retired from active service and the wires resumed some semblance of normalcy.

Copy from the teletypes of the Ontario Intelligencer was a garbled mass of unassociated letters and symbols. The machines spluttered and crackled as if striving to get back into some sort of organized delivery. Editors and reporters stood around watching the machines and the jumbled assortment of characters that appeared on the paper. Linotype operators stood by patiently waiting for "copy."

Services from coast to coast were disrupted. From New York to Frisco; from Halifax to Victoria, communications were "down" and there was nothing to be done about it except wait for Mother Nature to call off her legions.

The disruption is said to be the worst to occur here in some years, and lasted considerably longer than that which occurred a short time ago.

Local telegraph offices reported the worst situation in some time. Their machines spluttered wordage in a garbled mess and only occasionally did a clear message tricke over the wires, until the situation eventually cleared up.

News Services Hit Hard

Toronto, March 28 — (CP) — Aurora borealis played hob with communication systems throughout Canada today in what some experts said were the worst such disturbances in the experience of electrical science.

Wire traffic of news services, telephone, telegraph and wireless companies was hit hard as the ubiquitous electrons from sun spots entered the earth's atmosphere to set up electro-magnetic disturbances that jumbled letters in transmission and prevented long-distance telephone communications in some sections. Some radio circuits were jammed with static.

Aurora began "striking" overnight and by dawn had caused temporary paralysis. Later, the electrical impulses weakened and by mid-day transmission facilities began taking a semblance of normal.

Scientists said the disruption occurs when spots from the sun's hemisphere accentuate aurora borealis, the dancing northern lights that always tend to interfere with radio and electrical circuits.

Leased wires of The Canadian Press, national news service, suffered heavily. The Toronto main office reported all but complete paralysis at opening of its wires to eastern and western Canada. Later, the situation eased to permit transmission to main points such as Winnipeg and Montreal, Vancouver and Halifax.

Small Papers Suffer Most

The smaller daily papers throughout Ontario suffered most and received scanty news reports at best.

Previous greatest disturbance came last Feb. 7-9 and at that time officials at David Dunlap Observatory in the Toronto district predicted even greater disturbances to come and said the spots might last for months.

Appearance of the spots runs in 11-year cycles and observers said their number and size could be expected to increase to a maximum three years from now, then slowly decline until end of the cycle.

Scientists explain the earth is as a huge magnet with lines of magnetic force travelling from pole to pole. When the fluctuating aurora, with its potentials that may range up to 1,000 volts, upsets this field it causes induced currents that tend to oppose or cancel the original current travelling on telegraph or telephone wires.

VETERANS LAND ACT OFFICIALS EXPEDITE WORK

Aim to Settle as Many Qualified Veterans as Possible

Ottawa, March 28 (CP)—Veterans Land Act officials "are working day and night. . . They are out making inspections on Sunday," Veterans Minister Mackenzie said today in answering criticism of the pace at which men are being settled on the farms and small holdings.

In a statement prepared for delivery before the Veterans Committee of the Commons, he referred to criticism, in Saskatchewan particularly, that departmental officers "have been reluctant to authorize settlement on lands without a physical inspection."

He added "some time ago I took the responsibility of authorizing the officials to approve settlement in instances where the wife of the veteran has not been repatriated, and where reports on the land are so comprehensive that the advisory committee can make up its mind without having an appraiser go out.

"I can assure you the staff of the act administration is exerting every possible effort to expedite settlement at this important season of the year so that the greatest possible number of qualified veterans may commence operations in time to obtain crops during the coming summer."

Dealing With Applications

He referred to the process of dealing with an application, and said it could never be speedy because first the qualifications of the man must be decided upon; next it is necessary to appraise his property, and proper inspections cannot be made in many cases in winter when the land is covered deeply with snow. Relative values of lands must be considered, and there are often differences of opinion to be reconciled as between the settler, the advisory committee and the vendor.

ASK ROYAL PROBE FOR SURVEY FARM PRICES AND WAGES

Federation Urges More "Realistic" Attitude to World Food Crisis

Ottawa, March 28—(CP)—The Canadian Federation of Agriculture today urged the government to adopt a more "realistic" attitude toward the world food crisis and asked appointment of a royal commission to survey the relationship between farm prices and wages.

In its annual brief presented to the government today, it proposed a four cent increase in the floor price for butter and higher returns for all dairy products and urged the federal government to use the Emergency Powers Act to make standard time uniform throughout the country.

Headed by Federation President H. H. Hannam of Ottawa, a delegation presented the brief to Prime Minister Mackenzie King and members of the cabinet.

The brief advocated an "all-out food production program" and said Canadian farmers would "gladly respond to this urgent call . . . but without a more adequate labor supply and an unmediate improvement in economic returns, they will find it quite impossible to produce to capacity."

Dynamic Drive.

"If the food crisis is what many authorities tell us it is . . . is there any reason why we should not have the same attitude towards this crisis, and adopt the same dynamic drive, as we did in the production of materials of war?"

The brief said the farm labor shortage was even more critical than during the war and farmers were faced with rising costs, the most serious of which was a sharp rise in wages demanded by farm labor.

"Only bold action to meet the labor situation and to assure higher returns to offset higher farm costs will make it possible for producers to reach even the production figures of 1945, let alone provide increases in food so

WHEAT POLICIES HOLD SPOTLIGHT IN THE COMMONS

House Votes Down Social Credit Motion Of Non-Confidence In Govt., 164-34

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, March 28 — (CP) — Agriculture Minister Gardiner indicated in the Commons yesterday that the government does not plan to heed the request of the Progressive Conservative opposition that Canadian farmers be urged to grow more wheat this year by putting less land in summerfallow.

Mr. Gardiner said the government was urging that farmers put one-third of their land in wheat, one third in summerfallow, and one-third in coarse grains. With that policy Canada could supply the maximum quantity of foodstuffs for export.

Replying to statements made Tuesday by John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, Mr. Gardiner spoke in continued Throne Speech debate, scheduled to be resumed today by Mrs. Gladys Strum (CCF — Qu-Appelle). When the minister concluded, M. J. Coldwell, C. C. F. leader, outlined the agricultural policies of his party. Then the House voted down by 166-34 a Social Credit motion of no-confidence in the government.

The motion, moved as an amendment to the proposal for adoption of the Throne Speech, called for changes in Canada's financial, economic and political organization so as to ensure decent standards of living for the Canadian people.

King George Presents V.C. To Major Foote

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 28—(CP Cable)—Maj. John Weir Foote, famed "Padre X" of the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry of Hamilton, Ont., received the Victoria Cross he won at Dieppe from the King today at a private investiture in Buckingham Palace. He later spent 20 minutes with His Majesty in a private apartment on the second floor of the palace.

Maj. Foote, only chaplain to win the V. C. in the Second Great war, said the King asked him about his military service and enquired particularly about the R.H.L.I. and the Queen's Own Cameron Highlanders of Winnipeg, another Dieppe regiment.

SUN'S ENERGY CAPTURED BY POWERFUL MIRROR

Moscow, March 28 — (AP) — A powerful mirror installation which captures the sun's energy has developed boiled steam pressure of two atmospheres (29.4 lbs. to the square inch) during a 30-minute demonstration at an Uzbekistan preserve factory, a Pravda dispatch from Tashkent said Wednesday.

Figures Indicate Unemployment May Have Reached Peak—Mackenzie

Ottawa, March 28 —(CP)— There is some indication in figures available to the Veterans Department that the peak of unemployment in Canada has been reached, Veterans Minister MacKenzie said today in a statement prepared for delivery to the Commons Veterans Committee.

In a lengthy resume of departmental growth and activities, he told the committee that while out-of-work benefits "showed a very heavy increase in the last few months" the smallest increase from week to week last winter was in the week of March 2-9.

It seemed reasonable the number of veterans requiring assistance because they were jobless "will begin to show a fairly sharp decline in the next few months."

The majority of departmental centres, scattered across Canada, were showing variations, one way or the other, of less than 60 each week. The number of new applications also was beginning to decline in various centres, including Winnipeg and Regina.

Highlights of the Minister's statement:—

1. Disability pensions in force on account of the Second Great War increased from 21,955 at Jan. 1, 1945 to 48,484 at present.

2. Veterans receiving benefits under the Veterans Rehabilitation Act which provides for continuation of education, vocational training, assistance while starting an enterprise and out-of-work benefits increased from 9,000 in September, 1945, to 90,916 Feb. 28, 1946.

3. By March 1, 599,384 war service gratuities had been passed for payment, and the amount paid out was $204,896,367.

4. Total liability under re-establishment credits, an amount available to each veteran who does not take university or vocational training or settle on the land, is $166,000,000.

5. Under the Veterans Land Act 6,227 veterans had been approved for settlement by September, 1945. On Jan. 31, 1946, that number had been increased to 16,378.

M.P. Committed For Trial Under Espionage Charge

Can Apply for Speedy Trial Before Judge Without Jury

Montreal, March 28 (CP) — Fred Rose, Labor-Urogressive Member of Parliament charged under the Official Secrets Act, was today committed for trial and ordered to prison with his $10,000 bail cancelled.

The Montreal-Cartier member was committed for trial at the next Assizes of the Court of King's Bench and ordered to prison "to be kept there until delivered according to law."

Defence counsel Joseph Cohen, K.C., offered no defence at today's appearance before Judge Rene Theberge for voluntary statement, declaring that "we reserve our defence for the trial."

At the brief court appearance terms of the indictment under which Rose is charged were changed. The dates between which he is charged with having committed the indictable offences were altered to June 3, 1939 and Sept. 6, 1945.

Names of 21 persons with whom Rose is charged with having committed the offences were added to the indictment.

No Indication of Defence

Defence counsel said application would be made immediately to King's Bench for bail, or to the Superior Court, in the first application is refused.

Rose has the right to apply to the Court of King's Bench, whose next assizes open May 3, for bail. If he so wishes, he also can apply for speedy trial before a judge alone.

Under the original indictment, Rose, accused of communicating information to the Soviet Union and conspiring with Dr. Raymond Boyer, McGill University professor and National Research Council employee, "and other persons presently unknown," was charged with having committed indictable offences between Jan. 1, 1943 and Dec. 31, 1944.

Brought Within Time

The altered dates bring the charge within the time the Official Secrets Act came into effect, June 3, 1939, and the day after Igor Gouzenko, Russian Embassy cipher clerk who was the key crown witness at Rose's preliminary hearing, quit his Embassy job taking with him documents pertaining to the alleged Soviet spy ring which were introduced as evidence at the hearing.

Addition of the 21 names in the clause dealing with the conspiracy charge followed a request of defence counsel at the preliminary hearing that further names other than that of Dr. Boyer be included.

Names of those added were mentioned at various times during the four-day preliminary hearing that ended Tuesday. Some are Russians and have not been specifically identified other than by name and code name.

Montreal (CP)—The defence has made arrangements with the Crown to apply in court of King's Bench at 10 a.m. tomorrow for bail for Fred Rose, it was announced today, shortly after Rose was committed for trial on charges under the Official Secrets Act.

Defence counsel said if the King's Bench Court refuses bail application will be made to the Superior Court, Rose's $10,000 bail was cancelled and the Montreal-Cartier Labor-Progressive Member of Parliament was ordered to prison when he appeared for voluntary statement this morning.

ARRESTED IN U.S.

Naval Officer Nicolai Redin, (above) was arrested by the F.B.I. as he was boarding a vessel for Russia at Portland, Oregon. Russian agents claimed that Redin had been "abducted."

Reuther Elected UAW President

Atlantic City. March 28 (AP) —Walter P. Reuther was elected president of the United Auto Workers (CIO) by a majority of 125 votes over R. J. Thomas, the incumbent, at a boisterous climax of the union's convention Wednesday.

The official vote was:

Mr. Reuther 4,445

Mr. Thomas 4,320.

Mr. Reuther assumed the presidency of the gigantic union immediately after being elected over the man who had been its head for more than seven years.

Fights and melees among the delegates occurred during the balloting.

Mr. Reuther's election was announced formally by Secretary Treasurer George F. Addes, who presided over the roll call, but the official figures were not available until tonight.

As Mr. Addes made it known that a new president had been elected the delegates set up a bedlam. A moment later Messrs. Reuther and Thomas shook hands.

Mr. Reuther had rushed across the stage to his rival, offering his hand.

"It was a good race," said Mr. Thomas, tears in his eyes.

"We'll work together, Tommy," replied Mr. Reuther. nodding his red head vigorously.

In losing, Mr. Thomas relinquished his seat at the head of the union which he had held for six years from the time the automobile workers had reorganized under the Congress of Industrial Organizations and set out to become a foremost influence in American labor.

LEAVES AND REFUSE TO BE CARTED AWAY BY WORKS DEPARTMENT

Starting April 1st, employees of the public works department will begin making their rounds of the city in the role of street cleaners and householders in the residential areas are advised by the city engineer's department to have boulevards and front lawns raked by the end of this week. Leaves and refuse should be raked and left in piles ready for picking up by the public works department.

City authorities pointed out, however, that leaves and refuse in back yards were not to be placed on the street for disposal by the department.

NO MARKED INCREASE IN SOFT-DRINK SUPPLY

The increase of ten per cent in sugar quotas to soft-drink and candy manufacturers should not be the cause for any false optimism on the part of the general public, a soft-drink company executive said today.

"We have had a number of calls from housewives, who are wondering why they should receive an extra allotment, after reading news dispatches to the effect that we have received an increase," he said.

The added quota brings the total amount being received, he went on, to a point 5 per cent less than the amount received at the corresponding period a year ago. Prospects at present do not look very bright for any further increase in the near future.

SWIMMING STAR VISITOR IN CITY

Bob "Boy" Pirie, probably the most outstanding swim star ever developed in Canada, is a visitor in the city this week representing his firm, the Continental Casualty Company of Toronto.

A "natural" swimmer, the tall, lanky Pirie represented Canada at the British Empire Games in London, England, in 1934, and in Australia in 1938 as well as the Olympic games in Berlin, Germany in 1936.

Bob still holds several Canadian swimming records and holds the distinction of being the only Canadian ever to break one of Johnny "Tarzan" Weismuller's records.

Pirie, recognized as Canada's "Number One" merman for years, served in the R.C.A.F. during the Second World War.

PARENTS ATTEND ILLUSTRATED LECTURE

Parents of children attending King George School were guests of the pupils at the regular school classes Tuesday afternoon when an illustrated lecture on the construction of the Alaska Highway was featured by Rev. Donald C. Amos of Bridge Street Church.

Former civilian padre with construction gangs on the Alaskan Highway, Mr. Amos gave a most interesting and educational address on that particular part of the continent and of its people. Three colored films were shown, two of which were short reels prepared by Mr. Amos, showing the work of the padre with the local inhabitants and the working gangs. Picturesque and interesting sights in that stretch of country were also shown.

The speaker was heartily thanked by Principal Everett Fairman, who also extended a warm welcome to the parents to visit the school at any time.

Chief Probert And Members Of Force Praised

St. Michael's Parish authorities today expressed their appreciation of the part Chief Walter Probert and members of the Belleville City Police Department played in the reception here on Wednesday morning to James Cardinal McGuigan, Archbishop of Toronto.

The sleek new police cruiser driven by Police Constable W. L. Rathwell, had the honor of conveying the distinguished churchman from the station where he was met by Mayor Follwell, Chief Probert and city officials, to St. Michael's Church.

Police Inspector Clare Hayes and Police Sergeant H. Arnott were on duty outside the church while other members of the force effectively controlled traffic on Front and Bridge and Church Street as the motorcade wended its way from station to church.

In the police cruiser were Cardinal McGuigan, Monsignor J. F. Nicholson and His Worship Mayor Follwell.

Haig Bros. Donate Silver Trophy To Albert College

A handsome silver trophy to be awarded to the student showing the most proficiency in all-round army cadet work, has been donated to Albert College by Messrs. McLean and Jack Haig, of the Haig Bros. Coal Company.

Conditions covering the award of the trophy are that competition is open to all ranks, and to be eligible a cadet must have qualified in basic training at the school.

The award will be made for the highest general proficiency in cadet lecture examination results; target practice and basic drill along with general contribution to cadet work of the college during the year of the award.

The trophy will be presented for the first time on the annual inspection day of the college, May 1st, 1946.

Standing about 18 inches in height, the trophy is composed of two silver cadet statuettes mounted on a walnut base. Between the figured and surmounting them rises a silver Victory figure. The trophy remains the property of the college while a cadet statuette mounted on a suitable base becomes the permanent possession of the winner.

Jack Haig was a student at Albert in 1926-27, the year the new college was opened and has always been interested in progress of his Alma Mater. Both brothers served in the Second World War, McLean Haig attaining the rank of Group Captain in the RCAF and Jack serving with the famous Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. He was forced to retire after extensive service overseas because of ill-health.

Maj. G. Faulkner Awaits Discharge

Major George Faulkner, M. C., Indian Army Medical Corps, has returned from service in the Far East and Britain and will shortly resume his former status on "Civvy Street".

The major, who also wears the ribbon of the "M.I.D." with other service and combat awards, returned from overseas three weeks ago, and expects to start medical practice here in the near future.

In the meantime, he hopes to join the staff of a hospital in Montreal in order to get "caught up" with latest medical science and practice.

Major Faulkner was decorated for his outstanding work with the late General Wingate's Chindits, British and colonial troops who wreaked havoc with enemy communications behind the Japanese lines in Burma. In the second expedition he was responsible for the installation and maintenance of a hospital behind enemy lines.

Whitehall Notebook

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

London, March 28 (CP)—Independent-minded molecatchers, along with their friends the hedgers, ditchdiggers and thatchers, caused a ripple of concern in the panelled committee room where the National Insurance Bill is being examined clause by clause.

The committeemen, irrespective of party, have agreed that national insurance in most ways is highly desirable and their divisions and discussions have been on matters of detail.

James Griffiths, Minister of National Insurance, therefore felt free to seek advice as he admitted the other day that application of national insurance to self-employed persons will be something of a problem. Such people, unlike most others concerned with national insurance, had no representatives they could or would send to London to talk to him.

Warned that if they did not pay their insurance fees like everyone else they would be prosecuted, the molecatchers said they did not think the government would prosecute 10,000 people in their category.

But Mr. Griffiths, shaking his head said the government would.

Hat Trick: Once more a few Commons members are wondering whether they should buy a hat to be kept in the House for members who need one in a hurry.

House rules say no member may speak to any question after Mr. Speaker has put the question, and the question has been "put" when Mr. Speaker has collected the voices of both the ayes and noes. But during the actual process of a division—that is while the count is being taken—a member may raise a point or order with the chair, but in doing so must remain "seated and covered."

Two or three times in the present session members have sought to intervene during a division but found they lacked a hat and could not be recognized. One tried putting an order paper on his head but Mr. Speaker ruled this insufficient covering.

Diplomats in Whirl Over Action Of Andrei Gromyko

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

New York, March 28 (AP)—Soviet Russia had some of the best brains in diplomacy whirling today.

No one seemed able to say exactly why Andrei Gromyko walked out on the United Nations Security Council.

The so-called "diplomatic experts" who usually know the answers had no explanation for the Russian delegate's action. They were equally uncertain what the effect of his action would be on the new world peace organization.

A few wondered whether Russia's absence might virtually paralyze the council.

All agreed on one thing. In the present situation the Security Council has no precedents, no guide signs to tell it what to do next. That evidently was why this afternoon's closed session of the council was called.

The question for that session was: "Where do we go from here?"

The immediate cause of the walk-out was obvious enough. Ambassador Gromyko had served notice that if Ambassador Hussein Ala of Iran was called by the council to say anything on his country's complaints against Russia, Mr. Gromyko would leave. It can be reported on excellent authority that he had received instructions from Moscow to do just that.

Why Moscow sent those instructions, what she hoped to gain by the action—these were questions without answers today.

It seemed certain the council would have another public session on Friday at which time, with Mr. Gromyko expected to be absent, members would have a chance to question Hussein Ala on his statement yesterday than Iran wanted immediate action on its complaints against Russia.

COUNTY COURT

Only three cases were disposed of in county police court Thursday morning before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd who occupied the bench in the absence of Magistrate T. Y. Wills who was sitting on another case.

Thirteen cases were listed on the morning's docket, ten of them involving violations of the H.T.A. and of the L.C.A., were settled out of court.

Bruce Markell, Cooper, was sentenced to one year in the Ontario Reformatory when convicted of a charge of false pretences, while a non-support charge was enlarged for personal service when the defendant failed to put in appearance.

OSWALD DAGENOIS
(Lindsay)

Oswald Dagenois, 77 Russell Street, Lindsay, died in the Belleville General Hospital on Wednesday, March 27th. He was 61 years of age and was a patient in the hospital for three days.

JOHN R. LOBB
(Point Traverse)

Point Traverse, March 28 — (Special)— The sudden passing on Tuesday in Picton of John R. Lobb, formerly of Milford, removes another old Prince Edward County sailor. At an early age he was attracted to seafaring and sailed the lakes for many years before the mast of well known schooners.

One of Mr. Lobb's worst storms experienced was in October 1916, on Lake Ontario, when the schooner Lizzie Metzner, of which he was a crew member, broke from her moorings and was driven ashore near Oswego. The late Mr. Lobb related a vivid story of that night of hardship and danger when the ill-fated vessel was driven on the rocks by the force of the furious seas and wind.

He had been in failing health for some time, but not until a few days ago had his condition become serious.

He leaves to mourn a wife, three daughters and three sons.

Funeral service is being held this Thursday afternoon from the G. M. Hicks' Funeral Home, Picton.

MRS. CLARENCE FINNEGAN
(Frankford)
(Contributed)

On Saturday morning March 23rd, St. Francis Church was filled to capacity with relatives and friends who came to pay a final tribute to the memory of the late Mrs. Clarence Finnegan.

Mrs. Finnegan, the former Margaret Agnes Sullivan, was born in Sidney Township 42 years ago, daughter of Mrs. Sullivan and the late Michael Sullivan. She spent all her life in the vicinity of Frankford. Her marriage to Clarence Finnegan took place 19 years ago.

She is survived by her husband and two daughters and two sons: Marie, at home; Rose, a pupil at St. Peters School, Trenton; Donald and Clarence at home; her mother Mrs. Nora Sullivan; and two sisters, Mrs. Earl Baker and Mrs. Kathryn Hopkins, and one brother, Harold Sullivan.

Mrs. Finnegan died suddenly in the Kingston General Hospital on March 20th.

The funeral was held from the home of her mother, Mrs. Sullivan, Trent Street, to St. Francis Church where Requiem Mass was sung by the Rev. S. Lesage who also said the prayers at the graveside. Interment in St. Francis Cemetery.

The pall bearers were Francis Armstrong, Edward Chard, Clarence Copeland, Blake Hearns, Avery Martin and Francis Murphy.

The many spiritual offerings and floral tributes testified to the esteem in which the deceased was held.

THOMAS HENRY NASH

D.D.T. As an Agricultural Insecticide

By DR. C. POTTER
(B.B.C. Press Service)

London, by mail—D.D.T. is a synthetic organic chemical, that's to say, a chemical made from raw materials in a laboratory or factory and not a natural product.

The initials D.D.T., stand for Dichloro - Diphenyl - Trichloroethane but a more correct scientific name is 2,2,bisparachlorophanyl, 1,1,1-trichloroethane. Whatever its scientific name is, you can see why most people prefer to call it D.D.T.

The chemical itself was first made in 1873 but it is only recently that its worth as an insecticide has been recognized and widely studied. A Swiss firm, the Geigy Colour Co., were responsible for the pioneer insecticide work and hold patents on the chemical.

Pure D.D.T. is a white crystalline solid with a pleasant smell. It will not dissolve in water, but dissolves in liquids such as kerosene and benzene. It does not decompose on exposure to sun and air, and at any ordinary outdoor temperatures its rate of evaporation is negligible.

D.D.T. is usually applied as a dust, or as a spray, although it may be used as a very fine mist called aerosol. It acts both as a contact poison, killing by contact with the outside of the insect, or as a stomach poison, killing the insect that eats it. By virtue of its chemical and physical properties it can form a lasting film which remains poisonous to insects.

When considering the use of any insecticide on plants, perhaps the most important question to ask is whether it will damage the plants. So far, D.D.T. has a very good record, there are very few reports of it causing any plant damage. Two instances where it may not be safe are cucumbers and marrows.

Now to consider some of the possibilities of D.D.T. in agricultural practice. I don't think it's possible to give a detailed survey because that would take too long, so I'll try to give some general ideas with a few examples.

Starting with farm buildings. D.D.T. may prove a great boon by keeping flies in check in dairy barns and similar places. Exposed surfaces in the building are sprayed to give them a coating of D.D.T. and flies settling on this coating are killed. The coating may remain effective for several weeks or even months.

Turning from farm buildings to farm animals, D.D.T. has also shown promise in protecting sheep and cattle from various pests. Encouraging results have been obtained against tsetse fly, buffalo fly and sheep blowfly, also against some of the tick parasites.

I find it difficult to make any generalizations about the usefulness of D.D.T. against plant pests, each case has to be treated on its merits. D.D.T. is not a cure-all. For instance, two major pests of fruit are Codlin moth and Red spider mite. D.D.T. has given encouraging results against Codlin moth but has practically no effect on Red spider, in fact it may increase the attack by Red spider because it kills insects that prey upon the mites.

Another instance of a similar kind is found with the brassicas or cabbage family. D.D.T. gives excellent control of flea beetles that attack young brassicas and the caterpillars that attack them later on, but it seems relatively ineffective against the cabbage aphis, although it appears to kill some of the insects that parasitise it and prey upon it.

The instances I've given only reflect in a more extreme way, the fact, that with D.D.T. as with all other insecticides, some insects are much more resistant than others.

If the concentration is high enough D.D.T. will probably kill the active stages of most insects, but then so will insecticides. I don't think that there are many insects that can resist the pyrethrins, if the dose is large enough, and the pyrethrins will kill at least some insect eggs while the available evidence indicates that D.D.T. does not kill eggs though the insect on hatching may be killed. Another point to consider is that D.D.T. is rather slow in action. This doesn't matter much with most insects, since they are disabled before they can do much damage, and are not able to reproduce before they die. With the aphides, however, (those insects commonly known as greenfly and blackfly) the insects that form a colony produce living young, and reproduction of live insects may occur after the parent has been treated with D.D.T. Whether it is because of this factor or some other, my own experience so far has been, that it is not satisfactory against some species of aphides, for instance the cabbage aphis that I have already mentioned, and black bean aphis. By this I mean that it has not given satisfactory results in getting rid of an existing infestation, it may prove useful in preventing attack.

If you bear these reservations in mind, I can go on to say that tests all over the world on a wide variety of plant pests have indicated that in very many instances that D.D.T. compares favorably with the insecticides in current use and in some instances, for example, apple blossom weevil and green vegetable bug, has provided a possible chemical method of control where none existed previously.

Before D.D.T. is used on a large scale two important matters have to be considered. The first is the effect of D.D.T. on beneficial insects and the general balance of nature. And the second is its effect on human beings and warm-blooded animals generally.

Bees are some of the most important beneficial insects. While it has been shown that D.D.T. can kill bees in the laboratory at concentrations that are likely to be used in practice, there is evidence that under field conditions they are not seriously harmed. However, more evidence is required before anything definite can be said.

The effect of D.D.T. on the insects that parasitise and prey upon insect pests also requires further study. Experiments leave little doubt that some of these insects are very susceptible to D.D.T. and the consequences of their destruction might well be serious.

The balance of nature is delicate and intricate, and it seems that a substance like D.D.T. which has the, at present unique, property of being a powerful contact poison that can remain active over a long period of time should not at first be used in a wholesale and indiscriminate way but introduced cautiously with careful observations of its effect, not only on the pest on which it is being used but on the animal population as a whole.

Finally a word on its poisonousness to man and domestic animals.

When dissolved in certain liquids D.D.T. can be absorbed through the skin and cause unpleasant symptoms and it seems likely that if eaten in large enough amounts it is poisonous. But, where used with ordinary care there seems little danger that a single dose will be taken that will cause serious effects. However, there is some evidence that repeated doses of small amounts taken over a period may accumulate and cause trouble.

Brockville Rifles Now on Way Home

Kingston, Jamaica, March 28—(CP Cable) — The Brockville Rifles marched aboard the troopship Mataroa and sailed yesterday for Halifax — and home.

Lt.-Col. D. E. Lewis, in command of the regiment of 800 men, said the unit had come to Jamaica in August, 1944, for three purposes, to serve as a defence unit in Jamaica, to provide internal security in the colony and to undergo training.

The commander of the Ontario battalion said the Canadians had found Jamaica ideal for training and very hospitable as well. The Rifles, formed in 1942, will be demobilized after all ranks complete 30 days disembarkation leave. Lt.-Col. Lewis will return to his legal practice in Ontario after being released from his military duties.

In Kingston, the Brockville Rifles were described as one of the finest battalions ever to be stationed in the island.

"NERVES" She Called It

Losing interest—losing friends—she never went out any more—always too tired. "Nerves", she thought—but it was her kidneys—the filters of her blood—that needed attention. She used Dodd's Kidney Pills at once. The improved action of her kidneys helped to clear away blood impurities and excess acids. Fatigue, backache, headache, lack of energy disappeared. Dodd's Kidney Pills contain essential oils and medicinal ingredients that act directly upon the kidneys—and help restore their normal action. 144

Cardinal McGuigan

High honor was bestowed upon the rector of the parish of St. Michael the Archangel, the Right Rev. Monsignor J. F. Nicholson and his parish in Belleville and the surrounding district, when His Eminence James Cardinal McGuigan, the first Catholic of English-speaking Canada to become a Prince of the Church of Rome halted his journey back to his see city, Toronto, to say mass in St. Michael's in Belleville. It was a day of great appeal to the members of this parish to have His Eminence so honor their rector and their church. Recently Cardinal McGuigan had been honored with others in being appointed to the cardinalate in one of the most solemn ceremonies in St. Peter's, Rome. The consistories in which the new cardinals were exalted to their office as Princes of the Church added a great many leading churchmen to that body who stand next below the papal office. Cardinal McGuigan's appointment by Pope Pius is recognized as the tribute to the growing importance of Canada among the world nations.

The visit to the local parish by His Eminence was a very gracious act and those who were at St. Michael's felt the appeal of his kindly personality and understood the significance of his exalted position in the church.

He left a profound impression upon all, those of this own faith and those of other communions for all wished to greet and pay honor to one who has filled so prominent a place in the religious life of the Dominion and to add their recognition of his services to church and mankind.

It is a happy augury that religion and the church continue to appeal to the profoundest emotions of men and women and that the church and religion have so large a part to fill in the world.

"British Restaurants"

Despite wartime conditions the nutritional standards of the British people as a whole have been improved through the careful planning of the Ministry of Food, which by rationing subsidies, control and distribution schemes insured a sufficiency of food for all and extra for special classes, children, mothers and heavy workers. So successful has that department been that it has been decided to continue it as one of the regular peacetime ministries.

Communal restaurants known as "British Restaurants" were started at the beginning of the war by local authorities, primarily for the bombed-out and persons separated from their normal family life. They were soon extended in scope and used by workers of all classes. Although eating in restaurants and more humble "dining rooms" was widespread in Britain before the war as in all industrial countries, the report just issued by the National Council of Social Services of Britain shows that this practice has assumed a new importance. Long working hours, long distances from work, transference of labor involving living in hostels or lodgings, a shortage of sandwich fillings for packed lunches, the absence of many housewives in day or war work were reasons for the demand for meals out. A large proportion of the "British Restaurants'" clientele was made up of those who formerly took sandwiches to work or went home for the midday meal.

This plan of a square meal instead of a sandwich became so successful that the number of these places in four years reached a peak of 2,100 and there are still 1,450 in operation. Over four million meals weekly were served at an average cost for the main meal of one and twopence. Over one-third of all meals served in Britain's catering establishments were in fact provided through some form of communal feeding. The cheapness, homeliness of the food, the quick service of the cafeteria system, have been among the features most appreciated by the customers. Many local authorities provided a cheering atmosphere by commissioning mural paintings relating to local history and industry.

There were also canteen facilities in factories and provision for meals in schools. Factory canteens during the war numbered 16,000. At the end of last year there were still nearly twelve thousand operating. In the year 1944 nearly one and three quarter million school meals were being provided daily for one third of all the pupils attending publicly-operated schools. The latest education act provides an extension of these in peacetime.

In rural areas there developed "the rural pie scheme" which in the year before last supplied one and a quarter million pies and snacks for workers from over five thousand villages. These plans were supplemented in air raid times by emergency arrangements such as mobile kitchens and the famous flying squad of the Queen's Messenger Convoys, ready to speed to any bombed town.

Some time ago Sir Ben Smith said the government proposed giving local authorities permanent powers to operate communal restaurants. Birmingham for instance at the New Year opened its sixtieth of such eating places. The report declares that "there is a clear need for the provision for factory and office workers of a well served and nutritious main meal within their means and the wartime habit of eating out may well become for many part of their normal pattern of postwar life." It also points out that millions of men and women acquired habits of communal feeding in the services and says there is a need for continuing the "British Restaurants," though some of the demand will be met by the enterprise of the catering trade.

In any case it is felt, the report says, that these restaurants will almost certainly be needed for the next year or two during the critical world food shortage, so as to husband resources so that workers may produce goods the world needs while making the minimum demand on the world's larder.

Build House in 75 Minutes

Recently six English workmen erected an all-electric aluminum bungalow in 75 minutes. The Daily Mirror states that it was the first of its type to be built in Blackburn, north of England. These bungalows are extremely attractive in appearance, being colored green and cream. They are manufactured in a Lancashire factory. Although bungalows such as these are intended for United Kingdom families, this will not preclude them from helping considerably in overseas housebuilding programs. It is not intended to export them—apart from immense home requirements, the shipping space required would make the proposition difficult. Overseas territories can, however, acquire blueprints of Britain's speedily built "prefabs" under license from the manufacturers.

Next-of-Kin

A small ceremony occurs from time to time, as it did recently, in Buckingham Palace. As a postscript to the fighting war, it is not, perhaps, very momentous; an investiture for the women who waited, and now must wait for ever. In the standard phrase, the Next-of-Kin. Those who pass, if they care to look, can see them leave the Palace to take home a silver cross on a bright ribbon that was won by a man who will never wear it. Then they go for their bus with something in the eyes that speaks of trials rather harder to bear than reduced rationing. The sight is familiar enough. It might just bring to mind, to us who complain, the reflection that in the peace that follows war there are troubles deeper than our own.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

(Copyright, 1946, Edgar A. Guest)

FOOL

A fool is one who gives away
  What reason clings to tightly,
Who seldom does as wise folk say,
  But looks on trouble lightly.
What caution thinks it best to save
  Fools spend for passing pleasure
And leave, when taken to the grave,
  But little worldly treasure.

A fool is one who leaps before
  He looks to learn the dangers.
He feeds the beggars at his door
  And cashes checks for strangers.
He pays the doctor for advice
  When'er he feels he needs it,
But given a warning most precise,
  He very seldom heeds it.

A fool is one whose money burns
  A hole right through his pocket.
When short of cash, if need he learns,
  He'll take his watch and hock it.
When reason talks of wrong and right
  And sane and careful living,
A fool prefers the sweet delight
  Of sharing and of giving.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Who said, "See Naples and die?"

"See Naples and die" (Vedi Napoli e poi muori) is an Italian saying of unknown authorship and origin.

The idea of the proverb is that after one has seen Naples there is nothing else worth seeing, comparatively speaking.

Naples occupies one of the most beautiful sites in Europe and has been a favorite with tourists for centuries.

The bright sunshine in that region; the deep blue waters of the Tyrrhenian Sea and the Bay of Naples; the Isle of Capri; the panoramic beauty of the city itself on the north shore of the Bay, and Mt. Vesuvius, 4,000 feet high and 40 miles in the distance, smoking by day and glowing by night — have long been famous in song and story.

In "The Double Marriage," an Elizabethan play ascribed to Beaumont and Fletcher, are the lines:

Naples, the Paradise of Italy,
As that is of earth.

Martin Farquhar Tupper, in "Proverbial Philosophy" (1838) wrote:

"Naples sitteth by the sea, keystone of an arch of azure."

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

Signed letters, not more than one page or 100 words long, pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease, diagnosis or treatment, will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped self addressed envelope is enclosed. Letters should be brief and written in ink. Owing to the large number of letters received only a few can be answered here. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. WHO CARES ENOUGH TO CARE?

For the first time in my life, knock wood, I got into a vile temper the other day — oh, wait, let me finish, please — over what I had always laughed at, namely, a blankety-blank little trial size corn. The sting and pain of it— you would not believe it unless you have had one yourself. I didn't. I know why I developed it, too. I had been wearing some pre-war shoes I bought just before shoe rationing began — the shoes were a trifle too tight, but I grabbed them nevertheless and I might have worn them with impunity only I forgot and wore thick socks too.

It is astonishing, when you come to think of it, how crippling such a trifling trouble with the feet can be. While you're thinking of that, keep on thinking a little more, about the enormous amount of disability and inefficiency imposed on people by foot trouble of one kind or another that is in most instances preventable by proper care of the feet or curable by proper treatment.

The trouble is that people generally do not care enough about their feet to care for their feet, and when they develop any trouble with the feet they fool around with nostrums, self-commended "foot specialists" or glib, persuasive shoe salesclerks.

Yes, yes, I know. That is astonishing, too — how incompetent some medical practitioners are in dealing with foot troubles, and how such incompetent practitioners try to cover their incompetence by pretending such complaints are beneath their dignity.

Being no specialist, expert, authority, but just a plodding, door-to-door doctor — remember?—the long black satchel full of medicine, instruments, everything instruments and everything likely to be needed for immediate use — I can't understand why a real doctor should regard a complaint of tired, aching, sweating, burning, weak or painful feet, ankles or legs as any less worthy of his best diagnostic and therapeutic skill, if any, than a complaint of run down condition or pain in the belly. If I were the patient with foot trouble I'd give the doctor who wouldn't condescend to deal with my foot trouble a good long vacation.

There can be no question that the important primary cause of most foot trouble, particularly complaints of pain, aching, tiring, sweating, weakness in feet, ankles or legs in childhood and early youth, is systemic, constitutional, and therefore the diagnosis and treatment is strictly within the province of the general practitioner. An underlying constitutional factor in a great many such cases is nutritional deficiency, especially insufficient intake of calcium, vitamin D (sunshine vitamin) and vitamin B-complex throughout childhood and the 'teens. Indeed, the common complaints of weak ankles, falling arches, sweating feet and leg ache in childhood and the early 'teens indicates, I believe, that the child's regular diet should be supplemented with an adequate ration of calcium, D and B-complex, not as "medicine," but as essential nutritrive material, not for a week or a month, but for the years of growth and development.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Bedbugs

M. Told people's homes infested with bedbugs will sometimes have epilepsy.

(C. H.)

Answer — Left my operating gown in a patient's home, and the housekeeper kindly laundered it. When I brought it home and opened the wrapper out stepped the grandfather of all bedbugs, gave us a snappy salute and said "Hi!" My office nurse, housekeeper and general manager, wife and hired girl all (in one) had a fit about it. So far as I know, there is no relation between bedbugs and epilepsy. How to deal with bedbugs, and a dozen other pests, is described in booklet "Unbidden Guests." For a copy send ten cents and stamped self addressed envelop. Do not use a clipping. I refuse to read clippings.

Let's Agree to Disagree

I am one old Saireygamp who thinks you are tops. I am 78 and there is only one point on which you and I might disagree —I believe in frequent short fasts and you never mention them. Especially for colds a fast for a day is almost a specific.

(T. C. J.)

Answer — Then there is one other thing — you brook no nonsense about calling it cri. All right, Ma'am, from your letter I infer that you are on your toes. We can disagree about fasts yet remain friends, can't we?

ALARMING STRING OF EVENTS

Pembroke, March 28 — (CP) — Taxi driver Adolph Voldock started an alarming string of events yesterday when his taxi left a road and snapped a steel power line pylon in two. The line crossed a telephone wire and sent a 25,000-volt charge through the telephone line into the office of the Pembroke Electric Light Company, which caught fire. Firemen extinguished the blaze before it made much headway and Voldock was uninjured.

An Embarrassing Compliment
THE appointment of an individual as executor of your estate is an expression of confidence in his or her integrity and ability. It may, however, prove embarassing to the person so named. An executor has to deal with a variety of difficult problems. Many are highly technical . . . some require more time than can be conveniently spared. An executor hesitates to take a holiday; he may feel guilty if illness interferes with his duties as executor.

81-Year-Old Man Given Two Years

Toronto, March 28 (CP)—An 81-year-old Toronto man, George Hibbitt, was sentenced Wednesday to two years in Kingston penitentiary after pleading guilty to a charge of carnal knowledge involving a 10-year-old girl. On a charge of attempted carnal knowledge and a charge of escaping custody, he was sentenced to a year concurrent.

Evidence disclosed Hibbitt had a record dating back to 1888, including convictions on charges of assault on young girls.

Hibbitt pleaded guilty to taking the two young girls to his room. While being taken from Toronto city hall to juvenile court two weeks ago he escaped and was arrested at Trenton, Ont., a few days later.

Legion Raises Fund To Send Veteran To Wife's Bedside

Taunton, Mass., March 28 (AP)—This community offered some proof that "all the world loves a lover."

It raised by public subscription most of the $1,500 that will speed Joseph Camanzey, 22, a war veteran, to Nottingham, England, to visit his bride whose trip to the United States was cancelled by doctors.

The Taunton Post, American Legion, dug into its treasury for $430 to finance a flight to England for Joe.

Then came word that he must be able to support himself under British law. That prompted the Legion to call for public subscriptions and it wasn't long before an additional $1,070 had been contributed.

Joe hopes to be on his way to England shortly to join his bride whose maiden name was Pamela Howarth.

Mother Drives Taxi To Earn School Fee

State College, Pa. (CP)— Mrs. Pansy Parker, 32-year-old mother of two children, is taxiing her way through college.

For long years she nursed an ambition to be a dietitian. However, an early marriage and then motherhood changed her plans.

Encouraged by her minister and the principal of State College high school, she entered high school classes as a sophomore in 1941. At that time she was working as a cook in a campus fraternity.

When graduated last June, she immediately made plans to enter Pennsylvania State College.

In adding taxi driving to her accomplishments she said: "It's fun to be a cabbie. I meet all kinds of people. Some are selfish, of course, but most of them are considerate, kind and helpful."

When not attending college classes or waiting on tables at meal times in a local restaurant, Mrs. Parker cruises about town in her taxi. At night she rejoins her children—Richard 12, and Alan, nine, and her sister, Mary Ann Sprankle, 16-year-old high school student. Talking is forbidden as the group observes a strict study hour.

Overseas Closeups

By The Canadian Press

With the Canadian Forces Overseas, March 28 (CP)—Cessation of the war has brought R. C. A. F. education officers into the frontline of air force activities.

Little time was left for education during the war, when operational lectures and actions took precedence, but now it is different. Flt. Lt. Charlie Day, Saint John, N.B., education officer at Leeming, Yorkshire, home of the Lion and Bison Squadrons, finds his job varying from factory executive and department store buyer to school principal and teacher.

Apart from teaching, Flt. Lt. Day is forced to buy most of the amenities for his lessons— leather, plastics for the hobby shop, photographic equipment and "scrap" as an alternative. Permits are required in some cases.

He also is instigator of the famous R.C.A.F. tours staged from Leeming each week in the form of a bus-load of personnel. It may be a journey to anything from a biscuit factory to a coal mine.

Hans Held, one of Germany's topline cartoonists, is compiling a book of sketches on lifeat 3/7 Canadian Infantry Brigade Headquarters, and at odd moments drawing souvenir caricatures of personnel patronizing the Dominion Club at Aurich.

Held left Germany for Holland in the Hitler regime but during the war was conscripted into the German Army by the Wehrmacht and subsequently captured by Canadian troops in the Holland campaign. Soon after he was released from a P.O.W. camp, Held was persuaded by Supervisor Johnny Lawlor of Toronto to work in the Dominion Club.

R.C.A.F. Overseas Athletic Association recently planned a full-scale basketball and volleyball championship series to be held at Topcliffe and Leeming, Yorkshire, in April.

Basketball play-offs at Topcliffe will be a series of round-robin double-headers played in the mornings, afternoons and evenings. A similar procedure is expected with the volleyball finals held at Leeming.

Teams expected will be from Odiham, Hampshire, Down Ampney, Gloucestershire; Topcliffe and Leeming. A team from the continent will probably attend.

R.C.A.F. Station Odiham, Hampshire, recently set up an all-time record of passengers and freight handled in one day at one station.

Though the weather was poor, 13 aircraft landed at the 'drome carrying a total of 117 passengers and 3,459 pounds of freight. Outgoing traffic was three aircraft carrying 13 passengers and 7,879 pounds of freight including diplomatic mail.

ST. ANDREW'S WOMEN'S GUILD

Miss Ford, of the Ontario School for the Deaf, gave a most entertaining and instructive talk to the members of St. Andrew's Women's Guild at their regular monthly meeting on Tuesday night.

She said that 90 per cent of the pupils in attendance had been deaf from birth or before two years of age.

When they enter school at the age of 5 or 6, they have no idea at all of words, making the task of teaching pronunciation and understanding, one which makes patience and perseverance, a necessary quality. The education of deaf children had received much adverse criticism during the past year, which may serve the useful purpose of bringing their needs before the public.

A number of the children are uniting with the church at the coming Communion Service.

Mrs. Hornsby paid tribute to Miss Ford in her introductory remarks and the appreciation of the members was expressed by Mrs. (Col.) H. E. Smith.

Mrs. Mantle presided and plans were made for a Spring tea, to be held at a future date, Mrs. Kinnear and Mrs. Argue to be conveners.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Springer's Group.

Life Can Begin at Forty— With Good Beauty Habits

Complexion creams remove dirt and smooth lines

By HELEN FOLLETT

MRS. FORTY might just as well realize that oncoming birthdays are not going to improve her appearance. Old Father Time has a lot of mean tricks up his sleeve. She should have a weather eye on the future. She should learn to fight beauty ills before she gets them; protection is easy but cure is sometimes more than a tough job.

Let her stop and consider, ask herself questions. There is, first of all ,the figure. If a woman has health and is not of normal weight, it may be her own fault. The candidate for the remodeled silhouette must mind her groceries, to keep to a balanced 'diet, have sufficient exercise so that calories are not stored away in the form of adipose tissue.

Good Complexion

The good complexion is the result of correct living habits, consistent and persistent local treatment, keeping the surface clean, oiling and massaging it. Make-up is just the cream on the beauty make. Don't forget that.

Hair needs something more than submitting the sacred wool to the permanent wave treatment, arranging it beautifully. It must be groomed. The scalp should have a few minutes of friction daily.

Feet have a way of getting old, as have the hands, spreading out of shape. Correctly shod in casings that conform to the contour of the foot, bathed daily, massaged now and then with mineral oil, they will carry on.

Brush Teeth

There is no excuse for neglecting the mouth pearls. The rule is to brush after each meal. Rule number two is to trot to the dentist's shop twice a yean for examination and repair.

Watch your mouth lines. Eyes stay as is, but the mouth is what you make it. Keep smiling. Smile even if you want to bawl. Pull down the lip ends and the surrounding tissues will sag.

Keep a tight rein on emotions. When a woman has come to realize that the intellect can control the emotions, she has become a philosopher.

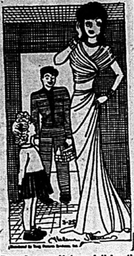
BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

It's Grand to be Decorative

You love that new tailored suit of yours. Skirt fits like the paper on the wall, displaying your good lines. Coat jaunty as the feather in your hat. Simple as a story in the first reader. All neat and springy. Good! But when you tog up for the festive evening party you want to look purely decorative. It's fun to indulge in fluff stuff. Fellows adore ruffles. So ruffle yourself to your heart's content.

When preparing for the big date, don't scurry around at the last minute, hoping to make a raving beauty of yourself. You can't get glamorous in fifteen minutes. Take your time. It won't do to arrive at a party breathless, as do those girls who bathe in a hurry, tear into their clothes, give their tresses a lick and a promise. If you can catch a quarter of an hour of utter relaxation after your bath, lying limp as a rag with a cold compress over your eyes, your complexion will look fresh, your spirits will be high. Jacking up the mental point of view is a help.



Regard yourself in a full-length mirror

Don't decide to make any changes, like experimenting with new rouge or lipstick, or giving a different twist to your hair-do. Those matters require time and thought, and you have more important projects on hand—getting yourself up to your highest good-looks standard.

Should it happen that, on this special occasion, you are about to burst forth in a new frock, let's hope that you have a little time in which to get used to it, so you won't feel dress-conscious. Slip it on during the day. Walk, sit, stand; regard yourself in a full length mirror.

Look over your costume jewelry and pretty do-dads, deciding just what will most harmoniously complete the picture that is Decorative You. It is a satisfaction to know that the general effect the ensemble, is good. Then you can forget about appearance, have a grand time. Even one small sartorial flaw is a handicap.

Don't forget that the divine complexions, the hair-do that is a honey, the dress that flatters, don't make up the entire picture. To be glamorous, one must look the part, and one must act it. Endeavor to be your most natural self. Be thrillingly alive, poised, at ease.

About your perfume. Don't grab the atomizer and let it blow a shower on you. Perfume must be subtle. Spray it on chest and arms after the bath. Your warm flesh will cause the alcoholic content to evaporate, only the luscious floretted odors will remain, making the effect more delicate and intriguing.

It's a joy to have powder, creams, perfumes, and bath tablets all of the same scent. They work together then; never fight.

Fashion Flashes

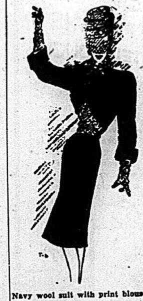
IT'S CURVES ahead for the suit, as the softly tailored suit done on rounded lines steps into the Spring sunshine. Gray woollen is used for a delightful suit brightened with silver ball buttons in triple row formation. Curved pocket flaps and high pointed revers lend interest.

New beauty in the new evening frocks. Black silk net is used for an evening gown made with molded torso and off-the-shoulder neckline marked by an accordion-pleated bertha of the net. An accordion-pleated roll of net circles the exaggerated hipline. Turn-back flounce of fabric at the hem of the very full skirt.

It's grand to welcome back one of the good old favorites—the printed floral design on a dark ground. Bunches of lily-of-the-valley ,with green leaves tied with blue bows, makes a bright note on a black silk crepe ground. Dress is simply handled with side-draped skirt and square-neckline.

Smart woman are keen on the print dress and wool coat ensemble, the coat lined with the dress fabric. Pale gray repe, with a wavy design in deep rose, is used for a simple dress made with a scarf neckline. The matching rose woollen coat, lined with the dress print, has a long scarf neckline, also print lined.

New Bolero Suit



Navy wool suit with print blouse

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

THE BOLERO suit takes a new turn! Navy wool combines with red, yellow and white print for the blouse and the same print is used for the hat and gloves. The tiny jacket turns back and is buttoned down to reveal the print blouse which is made with a draw-string-tied neckline. The skirt is seamed in the centre back and front. This is an ideal outfit with which to greet a late Easter and to wear for important events right through Spring.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

When There is a Difference in Faith

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

My son was recently married to a very sweet girl whose home is in the West, where he met her while in the service. At first her parents were opposed to the marriage because of the difference between their faith and ours. They have since accepted the fact that their daughter was going through with her intention to embrace our religion and be married. I would like to know if it isn't now in order for me to write to her parents? She is such a very lovely girl that I'd like them to know we think so. If you think I should write them, will you please tell me what to say?

E. G.

Now that the religious viewpoints have been adjusted, and all is progressing so happily with the marriage, it would, I think, be particularly timely as well as kindly for you to write to the parents of your son's wife. It will be natural for you to tell them how happy you and, your husband are in the happiness of their daughter and your son; how delighted and proud you are to have such a fine and lovely girl as your daughter-in-law; how wonderfully happy your son is and how hard he is trying to deserve such happiness as has been given him. Speak too of your deep wishes and prayers for their future welfare. Of course you didn't tell me many of the circumstances, but I should judge that at the moment it would be in best taste not to mention the religion-situation until you know the parents better and until you can, if the subject is broached by them, talk it over with them personally.

Gifts to Bridal Attendants

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Several friends and I (all to be brides soon) would be most grateful to you if you will suggest some appropriate gifts for bridal attendants.

Penelope

The bride-to-be may give her attendants: a piece of jewelry (real or costume), for example, a clip or pair of clips or a clip-brooch combination, earrings, brooch, bracelet, ring, necklace; vanity-case or compact; daytime purse, evening bag; comb-in-case, perhaps with small ornament on top of case; cigarette case or lighter; wristwatch; locket; charm for a charm-bracelet; corsage ornament; jeweled comb or other hair ornament; pair of buckles; travelling clock; jewel box, purse-pencil; gold or silver key-chain with tag initialed; gold or silver bill-clip (initialed or monogrammed); mirror-in-case for purse; pen and pencil set; fitted dressing-case; plain or fitted overnight bag; photograph frame, perhaps containing the bride's photograph or the photograph of the wedding party; or if candid camera shots of the wedding and reception are to be taken, an album of these. Sometimes the bride gives a more important gift to her honor-attendant than to her bridesmaids.

Engagement Present for the Fiance

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

Is it proper for a girl who is about to announce her engagement formally, to present a gift to her fiance on such an occasion?

S. S. A.

It's quite proper (though by no means always done) for a girl to give her fiance an engagement present. But she usually gives this to him a day or so before the engagement is announced, not at the engagement-announcement party.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

He's Afraid to Get Married Because He Sees "In-Law Trouble" Ahead.

Just how high a place "In-Law Trouble" may have on the table of statistics listing the causes of marital disaster, I don't know. But it must come close to the top.

Perhaps it wouldn't have won such a prominent rating if people ever gave the matter a little thought before marching down the aisle. But most of them are in such a hurry to tie themselves up to the girl or man of their dreams that they never stop to consider how many others, beside their precious bride or their adored bridegroom, they may find themselves hitched up to after the ceremonies are over.

Here's a man who's smart enough to stop and think before he runs the risk of discovering that his promise to love honor and obey includes his bride's parents.

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I am a veteran of World War II. I fell in love with a very nice girl when I first went in the army in December, 1941. We corresponded, and when I was home on my second furlough, we got engaged, and I gave her a diamond. I was overseas for 16 1-2 months, and got my discharge two weeks ago. She is 20 and I am 24.

"Now my sweetheart wants to get married right away. She's been working ever since I went in the army, and has as much money as I have. Her parents are real stingy. I love her, but I don't like her mother at all, and I'm afraid she will interfere with our lives.

"I want to go away and go to housekeeping far enough off so we won't have to see her mother every day, but I don't believe my sweetheart wants to go very far. She loves me I'm sure. But the way things are, I don't know whether to go ahead and get married, or call it all off. Please tell me what to do.

"Brown Eyes".

If your sweetheart is really in love with you ,she'll be willing to go wherever you want her to, and if she's as sensible as she should be, she'll agree with you on the wisdom of settling down at a good distance from her parents. If she insists on staying where she can see her mother every day, then she's putting her mother ahead of her husband, which is a poor start indeed for any marriage. A "Mother's Baby" makes a sad substitute for either a husband or a wife.

What you should do is to talk this over very frankly with your fiancee. Tell her kindly, but very plainly, that all authorities on problems of marriage and family relationships are agreed that the best way for a young couple to start their life together is to do it independent of either one's family. And that one of the worst and most disastrous ways they can do it is to set up housekeeping in the shade of the Old Homestead.

Now is the time to take a firm stand about this matter. If you let yourself be persuaded to do otherwise, I'm afraid you're a licked man from the start. Your feeling that you and your wife should go off and be entirely on your own is absolutely sound and right. Now stick to it.

The very newest type of cocktail or informal dinner dress is not black but navy. Usually it follows the black formula, but with transparent yoke in navy net outlined with dark blue beads or sequins.

Holstein Cow Makes 100,000 lbs. Milk In Five Lactations

One of the country's outstanding Holstein producers is Princess Sylvia Segis Inka, bred and owned by James L. Broad, Belleville, Ontario. In five lactations on Record of Performance test she has produced a total of 100,061 lbs of milk containing 3,563 lbs of fat. She is one of the few cows in Canada ever to make 100,000 lbs in five lactations, all on twice-a-day milking. In recognition of her achievement, her owner has been awarded a Red Seal Certificate of Long-time Production by the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada. "Sylvia's" latest yearly record made as a ten-year-old was 750 lbs. butterfat from 22,240 lbs. milk. In her previous lactation as a nine-year-old she gave 854 lbs. fat from 23,832 lbs. milk, while as an eight-year-old she produced 780 lbs. fat from 20,759 lbs. milk in 305 days. She was not placed on R.O.P. test until five-years-old and three of her five records have been made in the 305 day division.

WANT SESSION CALLED EARLIER THAN MARCH

James Cardinal McGuigan Given Official Welcome in Legislature

Toronto, March 28 (CP)—The Ontario legislature, resuming budget debate yesterday after tending a welcome to James Cardinal McGuigan, heard a suggestion that the session be called earlier than March in future years in order to enable farm members to get back for Spring plowing.

Prospects are the present session will come to a close by the end of next week but with the present spell of springlike weather seeding operations have already started on some Ontario farms. The suggestion of an earlier start was made by former Premier Harry Nixon (L-Brant) and Agriculture Minister Kennedy, leading the House in the absence of Premier Drew, said the government would consider the idea.

Cardinal McGuigan appeared in the Chamber after a parade watched by thousands of citizens following his arrival at the Union Station at the end of his long trip from Vatican City, where he was elevated to the sacred college with other new Cardinals. Premier Drew escorted the Cardinal and joined with Liberal House leader Farquhar Oliver and C.C.F. House leader Grummett in tribute to the Cardinal's appointment.

In the regular sitting the House approved estimates for highways, health and provincial treasurer's departments. A. A. MacLeod and J. B. Salsberg, the two Toronto Labor - Progressive members, questioned Health Minister Russell Kelley closely on the health estimates.

Against Reduction

Mr. MacLeod called attention to a reduction in estimates for venereal disease treatment and Mr. Salsberg suggested the government consider adequate facilities for training health personnel, higher salaries to attract graduates, and steps to ensure no discrimination against any race or color in the public health field.

The government was also urged by Mr. Salsberg to pay a greater share of the cost of hospital care for indigent patients. Mr. Kelley said the department plans to increase provincial assistance, now set at 75 cents for each $2.25 contributed by municipalities, but he was not prepared to say to what extent it would be increased.

The minister admitted that "many of the estimates (for the health department) are not sufficient."

In the budget debate Highways Minister Doucett promised that every dollar of the $47,000,000 highways budget would be spent "judiciously." He pointed out the province now had 7,600 miles of King's highways, 3,000 of secondary roads and 6,000 of "development roads" in northern Ontario. This year the government would spend $2,300,000 in winter maintenance of roads and would pay a higher subsidy towards bridge construction.

First Reading Given

First reading was given a bill providing that no person under 18 years of age may "frequent" a billiard parlor unless accompanied by a parent or guardian.

Introduced by Attorney-General Blackwell, the bill is in the form of an amendment to the Minors' Protection Act, which specified that minors must have the written consent of a parent or guardian before frequenting such premises.

(Several weeks ago Sarnia council forwarded a resolution to the provincial government and to each Ontario city asking that minors be excluded from billiard parlors.)

Mr. MacLeod asked the number of babies born in Ontario each year and the corresponding infant mortality rate. Mr. Kelley said about 80,000 births occurred. Figures on deaths were not immediately available but he would "see what we can do to reduce the mortality rate."

In replay to a question from Mr. Nixon, Mr. Kelley said the mental hospital at St. Thomas now is "somewhat less' than 50 per cent staffed.

Swathed in the flowing robes of his office, Cardinal McGuigan conveyed, during his legislature appearance, an expression of "prayerful affection" from the pope.

TRENTON

Mascot 'Spido' Visits Trenton To See Old Friend

Trenton, March 28 — Wilf. Noonan, local merchant of Trenton, relates the following story which proves the intelligence and memory of our canine friends.

He was with No. 77 Squadron, serving with the R.A.F. overseas, and on Dec. 27th., 1944 they acquired a five-week-old pup as a mascot. On May 11th., 1945, they paid an English Merchant Marine in Liverpool two pounds ($8.90) to smuggle "Spido" across the ocean to Halifax from where he was to write to FO. Ken Wood (navigator) in Toronto, so that he could call for the dog.

No word was heard of the pup until about three weeks ago a local boy walked into Mr. Noonan's sporting goods store, followed by the same dog. "Spido" remembered Mr. Noonan immediately and when he was called by his old name "Spido" rushed to him showing a great display of affection. How the dog reached Trenton still remains a mystery. Ken Wood came to Trenton from Toronto last weekend and took "Spido" home with him.

Their crew was made up of 6 Canadians and one Scotsman: FL. Bill Cornish (pilot) Yorkton, Sask.; FO. Ken Wood (navigator) Toronto; WO. Herbie Latimer (WAG) Gananoque; WO. Wally Sleeman (AG) Winnipeg; WO. Norm. Bowden (AG) Brantford; FS. Jack Law (flight engineer) Glasgow Scotland; WO. Wilf. Noonan (BA) Regina and Trenton.

Wants Newfoundland In

In the Senate, meantime, Senator J. J. Kinley (L — Nova Scotia) urged that steps be taken to induce Newfoundland to join Canada. Senator Cyrille Vaitlaincourt (L — Quebec) urged a back-to-the-land movement. Senator W. D. Euler (L — Ontario) introduced a bill which would remove restrictions on the importation, manufacture and sale of oleomargarine.

Mr. Coldwell, while agreeing that adjustments were needed in the prices for farm products, said his party was not joining the Progressive Conservatives in urging that the ceilings be taken off farm commodities.

"I venture to say that there is no desire on the part of those who are really behind this move to benefit either the worker or the farmer," said Mr. Coldwell. "In reality the move is engendered by powerful business and financial interests in this country who want to puncture the price ceiling and get rid of controls in order that they may have a Roman holiday."

Favor Stabilized Prices.

The C.C.F. favored stabilized prices for the farmer over a period of years, prices that would be in keeping with what it cost the farmer for the things he had to buy. National planning was necessary to bring this about.

Mr. Gardiner said the recently signed food contracts with Britain made it clear that returns to farmers during the next three years would be as high as during the last three years.

The government's policy was aimed at high prices and its production policy was aimed at making the maximum quantity of foodstuffs available.

If others urged that Canadian farmers not follow the production policy of the government and the farmers suffered as a result, Mr. Gardiner said he wished to be on record as advocating a summer-fallowing policy.

Mr. Coldwell said that under present conditions ceiling prices and fair wages were essential.

Require National Plan.

"In order to arrive at both fair prices and fair wages we require a national plan under which negotiations to set these fair wages and proper prices would be operated and controlled by the representatives of agriculture, labor and industry," said Mr. Coldwell. "That is what we mean when we talk about a national planning authority."

He did not believe the farmers of Canada wanted to take advantage of the widespread starvation throughout the world in order to drag the last cent out of the countries needing food.

He urged abolition of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange to take the speculative nature out of the fixing of price for farm products.

He asked that farmers be given better income tax treatment and that some allowance be made in income tax returns to the work done by wives and children on farms.

Canada, he said, should lend all possible support to any world organization that might be set up to maintain level granaries throughout fat years and lean.

Brought Young Girls With Her Says Witness

Buffalo, N.Y., March 28—(AP)—A Canadian woman has testified in the federal court trial of four persons accused of participating in white slave activities that she crossed the border many times to Niagara Falls, and on two occasions brought young girls with her.

Mrs. Marie L. Gagne, 31, of Sherbrooke, Que., who has pleaded guilty to a charge of conspiracy in the case, testified yesterday that the girls were Georgette Riel, 21, of Valcour, Que., and Helen Edwards, 22, of Niagara Falls, Ont.

Miss Riel related in court that Mrs. Gagne had told her "about being smart and making money in the Falls."

The first defendant to take the stand, Eddie Kitts, 32, of Niagara Falls denied an assertion by Bridget T. Buckley, 19, of Hamilton, Ont., during earlier testimony that Kitts had given her $4 "for having relations with him."

Miss Buckley said she had come to Niagara Falls last August in company with Margaret Miello, 19, of Hamilton, who also testified for the government yesterday.

On trial besides Kitts are Roosevelt Boykin, 41, and Frank Franks, 40, both of Niagara Falls, N.Y., and Louise Miller, 40, of Buffalo. All four were indicted on various charges of violating the Federal White Slave Traffic Act and immigration laws.

DENIES WAR CRIMES

PICTON

Keen Demand For Cattle In P.E. County

Picton, March 28—There is a very keen demand for cattle in Prince Edward County with several buyers canvassing on behalf of United States buyers. This has resulted in prices being maintained at a high level. Grade springers range in price from $100 to $165, while purebred Holsteins bring as high as $250. The raising of cattle for export is becoming one of the chief sources of revenue for county farmers.

Tribunal Recesses To Discuss Matter Of Secret Treaty

By NOLAND NORGAARD

Nuernberg, March 28 (AP) — Joachim Von Ribbentrop's former personal secretary testified before the International Military Tribunal today that a secret Russian-German pact dividing eastern European territories, including Poland, was brought from Moscow by the Nazi foreign minister in August, 1939, before the start of the war.

The witness, Margarete Blank, said the pact was in a sealed envelope bearing the inscription "German-Russian secret agreement," and that she had seen the original copy. She said she was charged with keeping its existence secret.

The woman was permitted to testify only after the tribunal had considered the matter in private 75 minutes and over the strenuous objections of the Soviet prosecutor, Gen. R. A. Rudenko.

The witness also told the court Von Ribbontrop began peace overtures as early as the winter of 1943 when with Hitler's permission he had sent a professor Berger to Switzerland for the purpose of finding a basis for peace negotiations through Bern, Stockholm, Madrid, Lisbon and the Vatican.

On April 20, 1945, Von Ribbentrop also notified Hitler that he wanted to undertake peace negotiations, she said, but Hitler would "sanction negotiations only if military successes were present."

The woman witness barely had time to assert that a Russian-German treaty had been signed by Von Ribbentrop and Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov in Moscow when the Soviet prosecutor jumped to his feet and objected.

He declared the matter was irrelevant and that the witness was not competent to testify concerning the alleged treaty, thus posing one of the most delicate questions to be presented to the tribunal since the war crimes trial opened more than four months ago.

The tribunal immediately recessed to discuss the matter in private.

VETERANS

"Even when terms have been agreed upon, we frequently learn of complication in connection with the title," Mr. Mackenzie said.

"With the best of good will all these matters take time. One is fully conscious of the sense of irritation on the part of each individual veteran who wishes to get ahead with his project."

At the end of September, 1945 the number of veterans approved for settlement was 6,227. On Jan. 31, 1946, that number was 16,378.

"In other words, in four months 10,000 new veterans had been qualified after careful personal investigation in each case," he said.

"At the end of September 1945 the number of land purchases was 5,461. At the end of January it was 7,789, although I would direct your attention that these were not months in which it was easy to make appraisals. At the end of September, 1945, the number of applications for financial assistance which had been approved was 1,395. At the end of January it was 4,041 a three-fold increase in the four months."

MISERABLE FROM A COLD?

Do This Quick for Relief!

If you are sneezing and snuffling from a cold... all stuffed-up, with your nose and throat raw and sore—combat this distress, as thousands do, by gargling with new Pepsodent Antiseptic.

The reason it's recommended is this: Standard laboratory tests prove new Pepsodent Antiseptic kills millions of germs that go with colds. The very type of germs that many medical authorities say often heighten the misery and prolong the effects of a cold.

Isn't it only common sense then, to gargle with new Pepsodent Antiseptic at first sign of a cold! What better way to combat millions of germs that swarm on mouth and throat surfaces as far back as you can reach... back where illness often strikes first!

So treat a cold this sensible way: Get plenty of rest, avoid exposure, dress warmly, drink plenty of liquids... and gargle frequently with new Pepsodent Antiseptic. See if you don't relieve discomfort almost at once!

British Towns Going Ahead With Celebrations

London, March 28 (Reuters)—The majority of British towns are going ahead with arrangements to celebrate the downfall of the Axis with parades and junketing June 8, but almost daily the papers carry reports of some local authority going on record against "synthetic" recreation of the exuberance of last year's VE and VJ-Days.

Some local authorities are cold-shouldering the government circular on victory day arrangements, and many are planning to more than an outing for the children. General tenor of objections to hanging out the flags next June is that the peace has yet to be won.

It would be wrong to spend money on entertainments of this nature while Britain is straining every nerve to throw off her present regime of "austerity", opponents contend.

London will put on a major program with a grand march-past of British and Allied troops and a royal cortege. But only yesterday a London caterer, associated with a nation-wide chain of cafeterias, warned that food for the sightseers pouring into town would be extremely scarce.

A. R. Gough, former Mayor of Cardiff, Wales, opined: "It might be the proper thing for London to do—but throughout the country it is a definite waste of time."

Glasgow, great Scottish port, has ambitious plans, and Southampton, where the great liners from North America dock, is including a pageant in its victory program.

Birmingham has modest plans, including the novel idea of "official" bonfires, to make sure that revelers do not burn what may be missed when the great day is over.

Two or three men in a tavern in one of London's wealthier districts put on record what they thought having a delayed victory day next June. They sat there, smoking almost unobtainable cigars and quaffing their drinks in expansive mood, and volunteered the information that they were celebrating the end of the Crimean War—90 years ago.

Farmers Warned Against Racket

Regina, March 28 (CP)—Regina's inspector of income tax, C. H. Cotter, warned Saskatchewan farmers about a new racket in income tax forms.

He said persons touring country points representing themselves as employees of the income tax division were accepting remuneration for helping farmers fill out returns which allegedly would not be questioned.

All returns are subject to investigation, he said, and bona fide representatives of the Department are not permitted to accept remuneration for helping fill out forms. Positive identification should be demanded from persons so representing themselves.

Lt.-Col. Merritt Speaks at Toronto

Toronto, March 27 — (CP) — Lt.-Col. Cecil Merritt, V. C., Progressive Conservative Member of the Dominion Parliament for Vancouver-Burrard, said last night the defeat of totalitarianism from the right may be followed by the threat of totalitarianism from the left "in the not too distant future."

Addressing the Eglinton Progressive Conservative Association, he also criticized the King government for what he termed attempts to bring about full employment in a static economy.

Advertising Book Tells Newspapers Expand Research

By TOM MORGAN

Cambridge, Mass., March 28 — (CP) — Newspapers were advised in a new book published recently to resort to "sound research to show advertisers specifically how to use the medium profitably."

"National advertising in newspapers" is the title of the new book, published for the division of research of the Harvard Business School by the Harvard University Press.

"When the bases for effective use are well presented to national advertisers by individual papers and co-operative groups," says the book, "then newspapers may expect to prosper in the promising period ahead." The book is the result of a two-year study by Neil H. Borden, Harvard professor of advertising, and Professors Malcolm D. Taylor of the University of North Carolina and Howard T. Hovde of the University of Pennsylvania. The study was financed by a grant from the Boston Herald-Traveler Corporation.

The authors found that many newspapers have not used constructive methods in marketing their medium. "The great need of newspapers," they state, "is to get away from highly competitive intra-industry selling and to show advertisers how to use the medium effectively." National advertising in newspapers, they found, declined sharply since 1929, but "dollarwise is still substantial."

Their figures showed a decline from $288,600,000 in 1929 to $168,500,000 in the last pro-war year.

Reason for Decline

"Part of the decline can be attributed to a decrease in the total amount spent in national advertising in all media. A greater part, however, is explained by a loss in the relative share received by newspapers in competition with other media, notably radio," the book reports.

The authors found that the newspapers' losses to other media have come primarily in "classifications dominated by large companies which appeal to mass markets for products of low prices and relatively high frequency of purchase." They saw a need for newspapers to present their medium effectively and to help advertisers" find effective formulae for its use."

"One great advantage of advertising in newspapers in the flexibility they offer," the authors continue. "This is one reason why national advertisers with non-selected distribution have tended in recent years to use newspapers chiefly as a supplementary and special-objective medium in selected markets rather than as a basic medium."

"In the years just ahead an unprecedented need for newspapers along with other media is likely. Newspaper advertising will be needed not only by companies with well-established brands but by the large number of companies whose manufacturing facilities and experience fit them for entrance into durable goods industries."

The authors found that "competing" media have been able to develop rate structures which have more appeal to advertisers," and advised that "newspapers can better their marketing of space by increasing and improving their research. Especially through continuing studies showing advertisers the sales penetration of their own and competitors' brands in in individual markets."

How Interpreters 'Translate' Speeches At Council Meeting

New York, March 28—(AP)—Before the words of speakers at the United Nations Security Council meeting have died away, an interpreter is ready to deliver, clearly and easily, his interpreted version of the speech.

The interpreters, there are four at the session, are supposed to wait until the chair calls for "translation."

But, usually they have the phrasing and sentences formed in their minds and are ready immediately to give their versions of English, French, Russian or Spanish.

George J. Matthieu, U.N.O.'s Chief of Language Division, said there was no mystery about the way interpreters work.

Most visitors believe that they take down the original talks in shorthand. Actually, they use improvised techniques and take brief longhand notes.

The interpreters have trained themselves to hear the key words, statistics and unique phrases.

Their interpretations are not literal translations. Most interpreters give way when delegates disagree with their versions of what was said.

Subdued at Point Of Jackknife, Witness Swears

Buffalo, N.Y., March 27 —(AP)—A Canadian girl witness in the federal court trial of four persons charged with participating in white slave activities in Niagara Falls has testified she was subdued by one of the defendants at the point of a jackknife.

Miss Helen Edwards, 22, of Niagara Falls, Ont., related in court yesterday that Roosevelt Boykin, 41, of Niagara Falls, N.Y., had "told me I would do as he said or else . . ."

"He had a small jackknife," she added, "and he held it against my throat and told me I would have to do what he said."

The testimony concerned an alleged scene in a Niagara Falls hotel room after, Miss Edwards testified, Boykin had asked her to work for him and she had refused.

The witness related also that she and another white girl had been taken by Boykin to "an old farmhouse near Savannah, N.Y."

Shortly after their arrival there a truckload of "colored agricultural workers drove up," she continued, adding:

"When I told him I didn't want to go with those men, he (Boykin) said I would have to do as he said."

On trial besides Boykin are Eddie Kitts, 32, and Frank Franks, 40, both of Niagara Falls and Louise Miller, 40, of Buffalo. All were accused in indictments of various charges of violating the Federal White Slave Traffic Act and immigration laws in connection with alleged harboring of Canadian girls for immoral purposes.

Test Sanity of Father, Son, Scheduled to be Hanged

Des Moines, March 27 — (AP)—The State Board of Control directed two psychologists to test today the sanity of a father and son scheduled to be hanged Friday. The request for the examinations was made today by W. K. Welty, a lawyer appointed by the court to defend the men, Phillip H. Heincy, and his son, William Henry, 45. The Heincys pleaded guilty to shooting Robert W. Raebel, 63, a resort operator, in December 1944.

BUILD TWO NEW SCHOOLS

Kingston, March 27 — (CP) — Two new separate schools will be built in Kingston if labor and building materials are available, it was announced yesterday. Charles Corrigan, chairman of the Separate School Board, said one will be erected in the north section and the other in the rapidly-developing west end.

Believe Model "Picked Up"

Montreal, March 28 (CP) — Homicide squad detectives revealed they are looking for a man they believed "picked up" Marie Audore Tessier, former Montreal beauty queen, the night before she was found strangled on the bed of her downtown apartment.

An investigation into Miss Tessier's death continued, inquest was postponed to April 3 and police said it was not established yet whether the 47-year-old model, found dead Monday morning was murdered or committed suicide.

Roslin

Roslin—The Roslin Euchre Club met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. U. Slingerland on Wednesday evening. Over 40 guests were present and the evening was spent in playing progressive euchre. Winners were: Ladies', Mrs. H. Chisholm, gentlemen, Mr. Fred Gray.

The hostess served delicious refreshments. It was decided to close this euchre season with a chicken dinner in the near future.

All departed voting Mr. and Mrs. Slingerland ideal hosts.

Mr. and Mrs. C. U. Slingerland spent Saturday, March 16th in Toronto where they attended the Coxon-Styles wedding at St. Chad's Anglican Church when Miss Georgina Styles became the bride of John Coxon, second eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Coxon, Belleville.

Miss Velma Chapman of Toronto spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Chapman.

The Woman's Auxiliary held a successful pot luck dinner and quilting in the Parish Hall on Friday. During the afternoon the ladies worked at quilting.

Mrs. M. Mastin of Belleville is spending a couple of weeks with her sister, Mrs. W. Weir and Mr. Weir.

'Voluntary Statement' General in Canada

Montreal, March 27 —(CP)—The procedure "voluntary statement," followed in the Fred Rose case, offers the accused an opportunity to testify or call witnesses.

The procedure is general throughout Canada — Article 684 of the Criminal Code — but in Quebec province, particularly in Montreal, there is a variation for convenience.

In most parts of Canada the procedure is invoked immediately upon conclusion of Crown evidence at preliminary hearing. If the accused offers counter-evidence the judge decides whether it warrants immediate discharge of the accused. If none is offered, committal for trial is automatic.

In Montreal and some other parts of Quebec province, the custom is to allow the accused several days before he must decide whether he will offer evidence.

Australian Women Get Finest Care During Maternity

Sydney, Australia — (CP) — One of the finest examples Australian modern maternity hospitals, at which pre-natal, confinement, and after-care service are available to mothers, is the King George V Memorial Hospital here.

As shown by the number of applicants for admission to King George V—some 400 a month—more and more women are turning with faith and confidence to this hospital, at which during the past 12 months 3,475 babies were born.

The care and expert attention of the King George V Hospital is available to all expectant mothers, regardless of their incomes. For monthly examinations in the first seven months of pregnancy, fortnightly ones during the eighth and ninth month, and an examination every week during the tenth month a woman pays from nothing to 90 cents according to her means, while for the normal 10 to 14 days stay following confinement, patients are charged from nothing to $11.34, if their income group is below $23.40, with no children or $25.20 with a family.

Get Free Advice

A boon to inexperienced young mothers during their stay in hospital is the helpful advice and instruction they receive, free, on the care of their baby—even a practical demonstration on how to bath it. They also gratefully take advantage of the hospital's after-care clinic.

In Australia, where figures of infant mortality are the second lowest in the world (38 per 1,000 births,) many modern and well-equipped maternity hospitals are, in some fields ahead of other countries.

Contributing factor to this development of obstetrics is not only the improved maternity services at hospitals, the availability of highly trained medical staffs, the aseptic (sterilization) techniques in labor theatres and nurseries, improved anaesthetics—but the appreciation of Australian women themselves of the value of attending hospital prenatal clinics.

A "Christmas rush" last year provided a thorough test of the hospital's organization, when 20 babies were born in 24 hours.

Itself a baby among hospitals—it was completed in 1941 at a cost of £392,000 ($1,411,200)— King George V Memorial Hospital continues to serve the community in the cause of medicine and motherhood.

When Cales was reported killed in action, his wife wed Lieut. E. P. Bernstein. The latter obtained an annulment after it was disclosed that Cales was a prisoner of the Japs. Now that he has returned to the U. S. Cales is wooing his wife again who can't choose between the two men she married.

Pin-Up Boys Favor Girls' Hair Long

By BETTY CLARKE

New York (AP)—Take a tip from the boys, girls — and leave your lovely locks long. Ever since a group of hairdressers and milliners got together and decided that maybe the girls ought to cut their hair, the boys have been in a dither.

There's Frank Sinatra, for instance. He really raised "The Voice" with a big "No" when he was asked whether or not the ladies should cut their hair. He said: "Short hair? I'm not for it! Even a bobby-soxer wouldn't look good with a crew cut."

Perry Como had a word on the subject too: "I'm for long hair any day in the week. When a girl has her hair cut short it makes her look too business-like, and she loses all the glamor afforded by flowing tresses."

Metropolitan tenor James Melton explains: "The physical contrast between man and woman is the basis of romance. How can a man become enamored of a woman whose very appearance belies her sex? Therefore, let our girls retain one of their most beguiling attributes—their lovely long hair."

Van Johnson thinks the better part of valor is discretion so he says "No man should ever tell any woman what to do.". Hair style, believes Van, is all a question of what is most becoming to the woman. That's why he thinks she makes the best judge.

Yes, ladies, you've got to think twice before you cut your hair. Because once it's off, there's nothing you can do about it but wait until it grows in. And at the rate of three-quarters of an inch growth a month, it'll take a long time.

On the other hand, you can always make your long hair look short if you want to, says hairdresser Victor Vito of New York. One of the few hairdressers in favor of long hair, he adds: "Short hair means more hair cuts, permanents and more settings. It also means less attractive hair, which has to be covered by a hat. It will terminate the wearing of all ornaments, bandanas, ribbons and flowers in the hair."

NICE WEATHER IN WEST

Fort Frances, March 28—(CP) — Weather records for March were eclipsed by a wide margin yesterday when Fort Frances residents happily watched the mercury soar to 76 above. Previous high for the month was recorded March 18, 1918, when it reached 66. Official records go back to 1892. At the same time an early breakup in Rainy Lake was in evidence as several motor vehicles broke through the ice. No casualties were reported.

LOST 20 POUNDS IN JAIL

Toronto, March 28 — (CP) — In the nine weeks he was held in Don jail for non-payment of alimony, he lost more than twenty pounds and was thrown in with "safe-crackers," Thomas McLellan, 48, of Toronto said yesterday. His release was ordered by Mr. Justice J. L. Wilson of the Ontario Supreme Court who said: "No man should be in jail these days for non payment of alimony."

Baby-Carriage Bus Caters to Mothers

Geelong, Australia (CP) — It took a woman and mother to put on the road Australia's first baby bus and to plan a time-table to suit the modern baby's mealtimes.

When Mrs. E. Bender, co-proprietor with her husband and son in a fleet of 17 buses here decided to convert an austerity bus into a nursery on wheels, she made a thorough job of it.

The centre of the bus was cleared, leaving only wallseats. The driver's seat was put on a swivel, so that it swung out of the way as prams ran in and out. Nursery rhymes bloomed on the inside walls, and a seven-foot panel of Snow White and the Dwarfs was painted on the back.

Mrs. Bender raised her family in pre-clinic days so the first time-table was not very convenient. Younger mothers explained that "those days everybody feeds at four hourly intervals and almost everybody starts at six a.m." Now Geelong mothers may feed their babes, catch a pram bus to town, do the shopping and get a bus home in time for next mealtime. Standard fare for the 2½ mile trip is six cents for adults, and six cents for each pram-and-baby.

Quick to catch on to the importance of this service, the Melbourne Tramways Board has begun to run between the city and outlying suburbs special buses carrying only mothers, children and folding push-carts.

Pretty Young Thing Handles Wrestlers

Topeka, Kas. (CP)—They don't come too big, too rough or too tough for pretty Mrs. Juanita Ceargain, 29-year-old Topeka wrestling promoter.

In the matter of talking contracts, she is considered, for all her 126 pounds, a match for any of the behemoths of the squared ring she signs for her shows.

Her venture into the fight game began in July, 1942, when her husband Max, a wrestling and boxing promoter, joined the Navy. Mrs. Yeargain carried on, and as evidence of her success her friends point to the 300 wrestling shows and 12 boxing cards she has presented, with the backing of the local American Legion post, in a little over three years.

"I always looked forward to the day when Max would come home," she says, "because I thought I could quit then and get some rest just keeping house — but it didn't work out that way. Max met so many fighters and prospective boxers while he was in the Navy that he now has big ideas for enlarging our business and holds a number of boxers under contract."

POWERFUL IRISH TOPPLE REDMEN BY 13-2 COUNT

St. Mikes Every Bit as Good as the Score Would Indicate

St. Michael's College, pointing toward another Canadian junior hockey championship series, was much too good for Copper Cliff Redmen in the first game of a two-game playoff at Maple Leaf Gardens Wednesday night. St. Mikes were leading 4-0, after one period, 8-1 at the close of the second and finished winners by a 13-2 count.

Despite the uncertain quality of the Northern lads, the game attracted 11,000. The teams meet again Saturday night.

Mimico Beys Busy

Mimico took charge of the scoring in the first period. Ed Sandford and Ed Harrison, cousins, hailing from suburban Mimico, poked in two goals apiece to give St. Mike's a commanding 4-0 lead.

Sandford started the scoring at 4:24. Then he and Harrison alternated at beating Billy Prince, Copper Cliff netminder.

Harrison's first goal was the climax of a sterling one-man rush. The Irish dark centreman stickhandled from centre ice. He broke through the Redmen's defense and beat Prince with a fine backhand shot.

St. Mike's were every bit as good as the score indicates. They were in Copper Cliff's end much of the period. The Redmen arrived inside St. Mike's blue line mainly when the Irish moved too far up and had to chase back to recover long Copper Cliff passout.

St. Mike's outscored Copper Cliff five goals to one to make the count at the end of the second period, St. Mike's 9, Copper Cliff 1.

Gord Heale tallied for the Northerners. He fooled Pat Boehmer with a high hard shot from dead centre, 40 feet out. This score stimulated Copper Cliff and they battled on even terms with St. Mike's for two or three minutes, then faltered again before Irish superiority.

Sandford scored twice and Harrison once more for St. Mike's. Les Costello broke the monopoly at 9:34, although requiring Harrison's assistance and Pat Powers' at 19:31.

Third Period

With just 18 seconds remaining in the third period Tatter McClelland scored for Copper Cliff to give the crowd a feeble cheer.

St. Mikes completely dominated a weird 30 minutes that should have been played in a house of horrors.

Fans started to leave with eight minutes. In the last six minutes a regular exodus had set in.

SENTENCED TO HANG

Edmonton, March 28 (CP) — Edward Tkaczyk, charged with the murder of his wife Sophie, at Holden, Alta., Jan. 3, was found guilty by an Alberta Supreme Court Jury yesterday and was sentenced to hang July 19. Mrs. Tkaczyk was found dead on the living room floor of her home by Royal Canadian Mounted Police. Police also found Tkaczyk in bed wounded and with his right eye missing.

FINALLY CATCHING UP

Toronto, March 28 (CP)—The Department of Veterans Affairs using an extra evening stenographic staff, reports it is catching up with district veterans' applications for dental treatment. Authorizations go into the mail at a rate approaching 1,000 daily.

Blake Awarded Lady Bying Trophy

Montreal, March 27 (CP) — Hector (Toe) Blake, veteran left wing and captain of Montreal Canadiens, has been awarded the Lady Byng Trophy for good sportsmanship and high standard of play, the National Hockey League announced today.

Canadiens' leading scorer during the regular season and pacesetter for the N.H.L. champions in their semi-final victory over Chicago Black Hawks in the Stanley Cup playoffs, Blake is the first Montreal player ever to win the trophy presented by Lady Byng in 1924.

Wee Bill Mosienko of Chicago is the present holder of the trophy.

Blake scored 50 points for Canadiens during the regualr season —29 goals and 21 assists—to gain a third place tie in the N.H.L. scoring race. In four playoff games so far he has scored six goals and as many assists.

He served only one two-minute penalty during the season.

Regular Attendants

When Baron Byng of Vimy was Governor-General of Canada from 1921 to 1926 he and Lady Byng were regular attendants at N.H.L. games.

Frank Nighbor, centre-ice star for the powerful Ottawa teams of that era, was at his peak and his clean, splendid play so attracted the attention of Lady Byng that in 1924 she presented a trophy to go annually to the player adjudged to have exhibited the best type of sportsmanship and gentlemanly conduct, combined with high standard of playing ability, during the season.

Nighbor held the trophy for 2 years, followed by Billy Burch of the old New York Americans. Then Frank Boucher, present manager of New York Rangers, stepped into the picture and after winning the trophy for seven of the next eight years was given the cup outright.

Lady Byng donated a new trophy in 1935.

Holders of the trophy since then have been Doc Romnes, Chicago, Marty Barry, Detroit, Gordon Drillon, Toronto, Clint Smith, Rangers, Nobby Bauer, Boston, who won it twice, Syl Apps, Toronto, Max Bentley, Chicago, Clint Smith again, this time with Chicago, and Mosienko.

Primeau Given Award

Joe Primeau of Toronto broke into Boucher's long tenure when he was awarded the cup in 1932.

Blake, rated one of hockey's finest left wings, broke into the N.H.L. in 1935 with the old Montreal Maroons. He came to Canadiens the same season and has been with them since.

A consistent marksman during his 11 years with the Flying Frenchmen, he has scored 205 goals in regular seasonal play. He holds the record for the most points in playoff games — 18 — and with six goals and six assists in the Chicago series that ended last night he may better that mark this year.

Blake is a driving, hard-working player who, until this season, served his share of time in the penalty box. Last season he was off the ice 35 minutes for penalties but apart from one minor penalty his record is clean this year.

Blake is 33 and hails from Victoria Mines, Ont.

The Byng Trophy is the second N.H.L. cup Canadiens have received this year. Earlier, Bill Durnan won the Vezina Trophy as the league's best goal-tender.

RETAINS TITLE

Montreal, March 28 — (CP) — Bobby Managoff, holder of the Montreal version of the world's heavyweight wrestling title, last night defended his crown against challenger Felix Miquet. Miquet pinned Managoff for the first fall, but Bobby came back to capture the next two in a row.

In the preliminaries, Larry McQuin defeated Wally Dusek, Pat Kelly defeated Al Tucker, and George Becker and Ernie Dusek battled to a 30-minute draw.

DROWNED IN SMALL CREEK

Peterboro, March 28 — (CP)— Bruce Albert Wright, 58, was drowned yesterday in a small creek near the Otonabee River here. While there were no eye-witnesses, it was believed that he fell into the creek near a culvert, his head striking a concrete pier.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By GEORGE H. CARVER.

The North Hastings Baseball League will operate as an intermediate outfit with junior teams being specifically invited to join, so despatches from the sports front line disclosed today. Bancroft and Coe Hill are already entered, and teams from other centres in the county will be welcome. Get in touch with Ken Colling, Kingston General Hospital or M. Giles, Coe Hill, for further information, etc. . . .

The impressarios of the Belleville City Ladies Softball Loop will conclave this evening at the Council Chambers of the City Hall at eight o'clock to discuss operations for the coming year. Tis rumored that Prexy Eddie Schrieder will relinquish the reins of presidential power inasmuch as he feels the urge of youth and would rather cavort around a softball diamond with the senior men than do a bit of brainstorming with the so-called weaker sex. And that's no pleasantry, son.

Bill Van Tassel, also feels that he has done enough officiating in an administrative capacity, and will tender his resignation. Bill won't exactly forsake his summer sports love but feels that other hands should take over his spot. All interested in the gals' game are requested to turn out so that organization can be completed and arrangements made to get the game under way as soon as possible.

The league was a pronounced success last year although city teams were eliminated by the starry Mountain View Bomberettes. Rumor has it that M. V. station is being retained as a permanent force base, and there is a possibility of another W. D. squad being entered from that point.

Aside to Steve Hook:— Your palsy walsy Gordy Wright, manager of the Toronto Ostranders Senior "B" softball squad was in town yesterday but failed to get in touch with you. He respectfully requests that you contact him immediately on important matters of business. Don't say we didn't letcha know, fella.

The high flying Cana-gins took the moulting Hawks four straight, and Montreal sports writers nestling comfortably on the well-known limb, are sitting back with wise "I-told-you-so" looks on their cherubic faces. Practically all of the loyal Mawreal scrivners have selected the Habs to waltz through the opposition, no matter what or who it is and they may not be far out at that. However, from a Chicago point of view the recent semi-finals series was a bit disappointing. They expected the speedy Hawks to at least make the series an interesting one, and ten would have get you ten that the quarrels would go the seven games.

Tonight the Boston Bruins and the fast-deflating Detroit Red Wings resume their semi-finals battles. The Bruins tacked a 4-1 defeat on Jolly Jawn Adams Olympia crew to take a commanding lead of two games. If they win tonight, the fans can settle down and wait for the Stanley Cup finals between the Bruins and Canadiens. The Kitchener "Kit" line of Bobby Bauer, Milt Schmidt and Woody Dumart clearly demonstrated that their experience in the R.C.A.F. has not affected their hockey ability, as the former "Kraut Line" flashed a brilliant brand of hockey to pave the way for the Bruins third victory.

EXECUTIVE NAMED

Claude D. Tice, Jack White and Ken Peacock, the latter from Batawa were named to the executive of the Belleville City Baseball League at a special meeting of the governing body called by Prexy Don Thomas. Several points were aired in a preliminary sort of manner and will come up for full discussion at the regular meeting of the entire executive called for Tuesday night next at the Hume Arena. Gab will get under way at eight bells.

However, this much can be told. It was mooted at the meeting that the umpire-in-chief will be a strictly neutral and must have no affiliations or connections with any team participating in the loop. Ditoo for Umpires, too. Which is a good move on the part of the exec for last year there was some feeling among the squads when a manager of another team was given the arbiter's role.

Furthermore the umpire-in-chief who will likely be named at the Tuesday gabfest, will be instructed to use his judgment as to the appointment of umpires to handle the various games. The names of the officials will be carefully scrutinized by the executive as a whole and must have that body's approval before he will be allowed to officiate. This, too, is a good move, assuring teams of competent officials.

Tonight in Havelock, the District Lawn Bowling Association will hold its annual conclave with the season's schedules and tournament dates being among the chief items on the agenda. Counsellor Cliff Argue, of the Provincial Lawn Bowling Association and Ray Zufelt will carry the banners of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club at the get-together.

Another feature of the meeting, it is expected, will be the inauguration of a new Lawn Bowling League for the district. This matter has been under the careful eye of Mr. Argue for some time, and it is felt the new league will not only stimulate interest in the popular summer sport, but revive former clubs which have dropped out of competition during the past few years.

In fact, the idea has attracted considerable attention in various parts of the district and it was reported today that two clubs, which have been dormant for some time, are coming back to the bowling fold. The new loop will be composed of teams of eight men, (two rinks) and home and home games will be played. Games will be played at night and thus give those who cannot get away in the daytime a chance to indulge in their favorite sport. Home-and-home games, it is felt by district officials will do much to not only cultivate the sport but assist in increasing the good fellowship and camaraderie that exists among bowlers of the district.

A handsome silver trophy emblematic of the championship of the league has been donated by Mr. Gerald Jenkins of the Hotel Quinte. At the end of the season the winning rinks will receive the trophy and championship crests. A nice gesture, for which the bowlers are exceedingly grateful.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

LESSON NO. 947
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

There are all kinds of leaders in bridge. Some lead from fright. Some lead the card nearest their thumb. Some just pick out any card that looks good, and let fly.

From a correct player, the lead of a low card tells plenty. It says: "My hand has no sound honor lead from a sequence or otherwise. I have either exactly three higher or no higher cards in this suit."

Against a club contract, lead the spade four from this hand:

♠J 8 6 4
♥A 6 4
♦K 7 3
♣9 6 5

You say: "No suit of mine has an ace in a short suit, or A K, K Q J, K Q 10, Q J 10, Q J 9, J 10 9, J 10 8, 10 9 8 or 10 9 7. Nor has this suit an ace or a king (reasons later.)"

To an adept partner, your lead has many other important hints. It tells him the exact cards you may or may not have in this suit. It tells him the exact cards the declarer may or may not have in it.

When your spade four is led, partner looks at dummy and his own hand. If he sees the trey and deuce or when declarer plays, he knows for sure you have three higher spades.

Which three higher spades can you have? Only three without an honor sequence and without an ace or king from among A, K, Q, J, 10, 9, 8, 7, 6, 5.

He can see which of these higher spades are in dummy and his own hand. He watches for the higher spades the declarer may reveal. From these can he figure out which cards you may have.

When you read this, the first reaction you may get is that it is too much to remember. Between you and me and a couple of memory marvels, so it is. But don't let it get you down.

There is a sweet rule that gives you a short cut to this stuff. It is known as the rule of 11. Believe you me, it is a honey.

He who acts like a mule is allergic to rule.

Soil Conservation Needed To Protect Fish and Game P.K. Ketcheson Tells Assoc.

"Approximately two million American cars cross the border annually. The average load is three persons and at least one of the three is a fisherman. These people leave in the neighborhood of $77,000,000 each year, and they are quite willing to spend this sum as long as they have a good time."

"Hunting and fishing is bringing them here. Canada will not have to advertise if they get fish, the fish will do the advertising for us. However, if they don't get fish, we can kiss the $77,000,000 good-bye." So said Major P. K. Ketcheson when he addressed the Belleville and District Fish and Game Association at the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday night.

"The problem of conservation has become a national problem from one side of Canada to the other," he continued. "Canada today has an entirely new status to what it had before the last war. We used to be regarded as the "bread-basket" of the Empire. Now, we have become the bread basket of the world. Most of the devastated countries of the world are looking to us in Canada to feed them."

Reason is Obvious

"We've heard a great deal about the housing shortage. The reason for it is obvious. There are more people living in the cities and towns. They have left the farms and as a result, their farms are not now producing. The people left on the farms have to produce more and more in order to meet the ever increasing demand for foodstuffs."

"In the last thirty-five years, 64,000 Ontario farms have been closed. It's appalling to think of it. The trees and wood lots on these properties have been cut down and they are just wasting away" Major Ketcheson continued.

"They are capable of producing big dividends-trees. Trees could be planted on these farms and would work wonders for the localities. The water table would be raised, there would be river valley improvement, river conditions would be improved and there would be more fish and game."

"Fish have to be hatched, fed, grow and reproduce themselves naturally. In order for this to happen, they must have good water and for good water, we must have trees to prevent soil erosion."

Only Temporary Expedient

"There is absolutely no use in stocking lakes if the fingerlings are not going to live. Restocking is only a temporary expedient. If we want the American tourists in Canada and I'm sure we do, we must have fish. Let's make a crusade of this thing and get it done. In order to get things done we must start at the source."

Major Ketcheson referred to the fine work of "Ducks Unlimited." "They got right at the source of the trouble," he said, "by building dams, flooding the marshes and creating natural feeding grounds for the ducks."

He urged the members of the local organization to support the club and to work at conservation. "Conservation is not a job for fishermen, and hunters, farmers, teachers or tradesmen alone, it's a job for everyone."

In closing, Major Ketcheson passed on the slogan of the Carling Conservation Club of which he is secretary, "Nature unspoiled, it's yours to enjoy but it's also yours to protect."

Reports on Trip

President J. E. Shortt acted as chairman for the meeting and introduced and thanked the speaker. He reported on the recent trip to Bancroft and the very successful meeting where 80 applications for membership were received. The chairman reported on the survey made by members of the Ontario Federation also on the Ontario Federation committee meeting with members of the Department of Game and Fisheries.

During the course of the evening, several reels of very suitable motion pictures were shown.

Softballers Want Three Playing Nights a Week

With a number of returned veterans, former softball players of the city and district home from the wars, and with the game promising to boom commensurate with other sports this year, the executive of the Belleville Softball Association at its final official meeting Wednesday night, decided to make application to the City Parks Board for three playing nights a week, if and when floodlights are installed in the Exhibition Grounds.

The association set next Tuesday, April 3 as the date for its annual meeting where a 1946 slate of officers will be elected and seasonal business planned. The meeting will take place in the city council chambers at 8 p.m.

Harold Bawden and Harry Knott were appointed representatives of the association to the meeting of the Belleville Ladies' Softball League being held tonight in the city hall, where they will approach that body with a proposal to play doubleheader fixtures this summer in Exhibition Park.

May Arrange Interlocking Schedule

With the installation of lights in the Fair Grounds practically assured the association was of the opinion that an interlocking schedule might be arranged with Trenton teams, or extend an invitation to teams from the district to enter the league.

Three teams have signified their intention of entering the city softball loop this year, Juniors, Point Anne and Stephens-Adamson. It was felt that one or more teams from the city could be entered, if sponsors could be secured.

Among other things discussed at the meeting was the possibility of a central sports organization for the city which would administer to all types of athletics. A competent executive could be set up, it was felt, with various committees appointed to handle baseball, softball, hockey, etc. The plan was tabled for further discussion.

No Annual Banquet

Inasmuch as it was felt that representation to the Ontario Amateur Softball Association convention scheduled for Toronto this year should be made, and due to the fact that the finances of the league at present will permit only expenses of delegates the association decided to eliminate the regular annual banquet.

Members present felt that the league should have a strong representation at the O.A.S.A. convention in order that several points may be discussed.

Application for the three playing nights a week will be forwarded to the City Parks Board immediately. President Al Hitchon was in the chair.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, March 28. (AP)—Are actors sissies? Lou Nova answers with a resounding no, and he is no guy to argue with.

The former heavyweight boxing contender now is attempting to be an actor and he claims that his current colleagues are just as tough as his former ones.

"My pals in the fight game couldn't understand how I could mix with those guys," he said. "Then I took them down to the Athletic Club and they changed their mind. It seem sthere were more actors than fighters working out there."

"Just to show you how tough actors can be," he added, "I can pick a team of actors that could take on any team of stevedores you could find." Here's Lou's list:

Heavyweight — Lou Nova (natch).

Light heavyweight — Errol Flynn.

Middleweight—Guy Madison.

Welterweight—Alan Ladd.

"And last but not least is lightweight Frank Sinatra." I think Nova is doing a little guessing at the weights.

Lou has played a couple of roles and now is taking vocal lessons. Come April 23 he will assault the citizens of Reno with a night club act.

AT THE BELLE — Alice Faye's first picture in two years brings her back to the screen in her first all-dramatic role, that of June Mills in "Fallen Angel," co-starring Dana Andrews and Linda Darnell. "American Beauty," the first featurette to return to the Belle in ten years, is on the same program.

Briefs From Training Camps

Miami, Fla., March 28—(AP)—Frank Sezeh, lefthander, sent to San Francisco by New York Giants yesterday, has a sprained ankle. He got it by stepping into a hole while shagging flies in the outfield.

Daytona Beach, Fla. — Hal Gregg, Brooklyn pitching ace, had twirled 11 consecutive shutout innings before the Yanks scored a run off him in the third inning yesterday.

St. Petersburg, Fla. — Two more victims of a flood of ailments which have plagued St. Louis Cardinals this spring, catcher Ken O'Dea and pitcher Ernie White, were en route to St. Louis today. O'Dea will be examined for back and leg trouble and White will have his teeth treated.

Lakeland, Fla., — The world champion Detroit Tigers, victims of a 4-3 beating by Cincinnati yesterday, face the Reds again this afternoon in the two teams' final meeting in Florida this spring.

Clearwater, Fla. — Ed Carnett will report immediately to Cleveland Indians' training camp. Carnett is a pitcher-outfielder-infielder who was acquired from Chicago White Sox in a swap for fly chaser Oris Hockett, December 12, 1944.

El Centro, Calif. — Despite the runs by Ralph Kiner, Elbie Fletcher and Rip Sewell, Pittsburgh Pirates bowed, 11-9 to Chicago White Sox yesterday. Ken Gables and Bill Clemensen will toss for the Bucs against the Sox's Johnny Rigney and Eddie Smith today.

Hollywood, Calif. — Claude Passeau, who tossed a one-hit victory over Detroit Tigers in the 1945 world series, is slated to pitch for Chicago Cubs today when they meet St. Louis Browns at Phoenix, Ariz., in the first game of a three game series.

Winnipeg, March 28 — (CP) — Whenever the sporting prattle is pitted on pigskin points it's usually easy to spot a man who is looking for an argument.

He might say either of two things — that the merits of Canadian football far outshine the U. S. game, or vice versa. As for the argument, he seldom fails to get that.

Opposing classes of thought fall into those who are all for the unlimited interference and those who prefer the Canadian limit. This year there has been a compromise of sorts between the two factions, increase of interference to 10 yds. ahead of the line, and everybody seems to be quite happy with it.

As a crowd pleaser the Canadian style has been greatly abetted by the ideas of one of Canada's outstanding football coaches, Lew Hayman, who came to Toronto Argonauts from Syracuse.

He was the first to implement the dipsy-doodle style of lateral passing with the now-you-see-it-now-you-don't ball handling, and his ideas seem to be spreading.

Coach Tedder Morris, who played for Hayman's teams, is continuing the same style with Argos and Lew is expected to bring Montreal's Big Four entry before the fans with much the same type of play.

He may not have anything to do with any changes in Western Canada where it has been generally two-bucks-a-kick, but a recent statement by Winnipeg Blue Bombers new coach, Jack West, indicates that the gateway squad intends to make the best of the lateral pass possibilities.

West, who has thus far done all his football masterminding in the U. S. — quite successfully too — told Tony (Winnipeg Tribune) Allan by long distance telephone that he aims "to have a versatile offence making fullest possible use of the lateral pass and the forward pass."

Without much doubt, trick passing plays and those long extensions provide some of the brightest features of the Canadian game — and crowds of as many as 20,000 that jammed into Toronto's Varsity Stadium to see Argos use them to full advantage are proof of the fact.

One example of the high pitch of excitement was back in early war days when Roy Dilworth, sportscaster, was describing a lateral passing play. In a highly-enthused tone he said they were "passing it around like a basketball."

In some ways, West has indicated that Winnipeg will see the unorthodox this year and one feature is spring training for Blue Bomber hopefuls. He believes spring training will be of great value to the players, particularly in the matter of picking up the fundamentals. The early session will last about a month then fold up and wait for the fall.

FLOUR MAY BE RATIONED

London, Ont., March 28 (CP)—Flour may be rationed in Canada next month, W. M. Van Syckle of Campbellville, President of the Ontario Retail Feed Dealers Association, last night told the London branch of the Association. He said poor wheat crops in Ontario and Western Canada last year resulted in depletion of the flour supply to a point where dealers may get only 90 per cent of the amount they received in 1945.

COME EARLY AND BRING THE WHOLE FAMILY!

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

CHAPTER 15

There was time for no more. The library door was quietly opened by Mrs. Bucket, who came to her employer's side.

"Mrs. Holland," she said.

"Oh. Ask her to come in," Rogers replied quickly.

Dina had not the time for more than a sensation of terror, a wild impulse to escape some how, to get away at all costs, when a woman came into the library, gave her one careless, scornful glance in passing, and took possession of a chair between her own chair and that of Rogers Holland.

"Come in, come in, Caroline," Rogers, rising lazily, amiably, "That's it. Sit down."

"I had your letter this morning," the woman said abruptly.

"I thought we could talk things over. Caroline, Miss Cashman," Rogers said. "Geraldine, this is Mrs. Holland."

"Orkman said it was a threatening letter."

"Oh, you saw Orkman?"

"I telephoned him and read it to him," Except for the slightest inclination of her head and a cold stare, she had paid no attention whatsoever to Dina.

"And he thought it was threatening," Rogers murmured.

"He said I was under no obligation at all in the matter, that it was entirely optional with me, coming here at all."

"Surely you knew that, Caroline?"

"Certainly I knew it!" said Caroline Holland impatiently.

"Still, I don't quite see where the threats come in," Rogers mused.

"He said, 'He isn't threatening you, is he?' He used that expression.

"Oh, I see. But you came anyway."

They hated each other— these two. Dina lost consciousness of the chill of terror that had shaken her in a sort of terrible fascination.

"I came," said Mrs. Holland, "because I want to be done with this business once and for all. It is a brazen attempt to involve my son in something of which he is entirely innocent. He hardly knows this girl. You must excuse me," said the hard voice as its owner turned to Dina, "but you know yourself that that is the truth!"

A hard voice and a hard woman. Beautifully groomed, seeming, as far as the copper-dyed hair and the enameled face were concerned, to be sculptured rather than human.

Beautiful, yes, she was really beautiful, Dina thought, with the very essence of haughty, confident, and insolent beauty. The girl could not find the words for it,—but she knew what it was and what she might expect from Vere's mother.

"My son," Caroline Holland said, 'was simply stupefied with amazement when he understood what all this was about. He is— you know how young he is, Rogers; you know how completely unfitted he is to deal with a situation like this!"

"Yet the situation has to be dealt with, doesn't it, Caroline?" Rogers said blandly.

"A boy that age," she said, "faced with a thing like this! He aged. He aged overnight. I never saw anything like it. 'I don't know what to do!' he kept saying."

"He didn't come West, did he?"

"He couldn't." She hesitated, spoke irresolutely. "We've had trouble enough," she continued; "keeping him from being dropped from college, without running any risk of his asking for a leave. Not to come home to this sort of outrageous accusation and scandal!"

"I think we ought to think of Geraldine as well as of Vere, Caroline," the man said. His pudgy hand moved to the papers on his desk.

"Of whom? Oh, of—of her!" Her contemptuous look moved to Dina, moved away. "Certainly we should," she agreed sharply, "but not at a cost of his career, his whole life! During the Christmas holidays, while we were at Palm Springs, we met the Worthingtons—you know the Philadelphia Horworth Worthingtons; she was Miriam Horworth. Kathryn, the daughter, goes to Selwyn's in Virginia—well, that's neither here nor there. But she's simply devoted to him, had asked him down for the Easter holidays —all that. It would have been simply ridiculous for him to come West with me now. What was he supposed to have done if he had?"

"He might have married the mother of his child," Rogers answered simply.

"Oh, well!" Caroline Holland said with a sniff. The sniff said plainly, "I don't believe one word of it!" Aloud she said, "Oh, I know you have some letters of his, and hers which I've kept. But Orkman says there's not one whit of evidence there. I'm sorry; I'm wretched over the whole thing. But that isn't the way out. We'll have," Vere's mother went on in a lowered, reasonable tone, "to make provision, and you'll have"—she glanced at Dina again —"you'll naturally make whatever arrangements seem good to you. But mind you, Rogers, I don't for one moment assume any responsibility. Neither does Vere's father. 'I'll ship the boy to South America first,' Van said."

"And what did Vere say to that?"

"My heart ached for him. He kept saying, I can't believe it. I can't believe it!" And when I was leaving, poor boy—bothered with his studies and worrying about whether he can keep up or not—he said over and over: 'Whatever you say is right I'll do, Mother. I'll do whatever you say!'"

"So that if you said he had better come West and be married, you think he would?"

Mrs. Holland held her head high, looked into space.

"Which of course I wouldn't!" she said firmly.

"You don't think that's his duty?"

"I don't think that would be for the happiness of anyone concerned. Not for yours or his," she said to Dina; "your lives have been completely different; your backgrounds are different. It's too bad, but it can't be helped."

"So that you think the situation had best be left as it is," Rogers said. Mrs. Holland bridled, spoke in an affronted tone.

"Not at all. Although I can understand you want to make me out absolutely hardhearted about it!" she added with a resentful glance. "I think that it has happened before—it is always happening—and the only thing to do is keep it quiet and—help out, of course.

"But even if I were convinced that it is actually true," she went on, "which I am not. I would feel that to wreck two lives is worse than—than wrecking one!

Dina had sat absolutely still during this conversation, her face very pale, her eyes moving from Rogers' face to that of Mrs. Holland, moving solemnly back again. Now suddenly she spoke.

"I—I would try to make Vere a good wife, Mrs. Holland," she said. "If—if I could see him, if I could talk to him—" her voice faltered to silence.

"I'm afraid that's impossible," Vere's mother said decisively. "He's borne enough about it all! And this—I had this telegram this morning, Rogers," she added, taking a folded yellow paper from her bag. "I wasn't going to mention it, but now I think it's only fair to let you know. This was Van's idea, and while what I just said about keeping Vere in school was quite true, he isn't there now at all. They've left, he and young Worthington and a tutor; they sailed this morning."

Rogers took the telegram and read it aloud.

"'Boys off at nine. Worthington family all present at dock to say good-bye. Confident this is best plan. Love to Mimi. Van.'"

"So you see that's that," Caroline said nervously.

"I trust that as far as Vere and I are concerned the matter is settled," Vere's mother added, rising.

"It would seem so. But wait a minute; don't be in any hurry to go, Caroline," Rogers said. "I'm sure you'd be interested in hearing about our plans—mine and Geraldine's."

Caroline after a moment's sharp scrutiny, dropped back into her chair.

"I can't see that they concern me!" she said. But her voice and manner were uneasy.

"But they might interest you," Rogers said politely. "Geraldine and I," he went on with a smile for the girl who looked worn and white, shrinking back in her big chair, "are going to be married."

There was a silence. Dina looked at no one, but the eyes of Caroline and Rogers were fixed on each other.

"What are you talking about!" Caroline presently exclaimed. "I never heard such nonsense!"

"I felt you ought to know," Rogers assured her. She sat down again.

"I don't in the least understand what your objective can be in making such a remark, Rogers." Her tone was steel. But there was still a hint of uneasiness in it.

"I mean that there is to be another Mrs. Holland here very soon," the man said.

"You're joking!" Caroline said breathlessly.

"Not at all. I've been lonely here long enough. 'We need young blood in the family."

If You Have Backache, Feel Rundown and Suffer With Gas or Sour Acidity

Benefit by the Experience of Hundreds of Other Local Men and Women and Try a Short Treatment of Syntona Herbal Compound. Grateful Woman Describes Her Experience.

Painful gas and bloat, indigestion after meals, sleeplessness, burning sensation and pains in chest, sharp pains inside and distressed feeling due to gas — these are some of the penalties of a nervous, disordered stomach. Many people, both men and women, who suffer this way a long time begin to have backache and rheumatic pains. They become easily fatigued, constantly feel sluggish and rundown.

Hundreds of grateful men and women have learned that Syntona Herbal Compound can often be fully relied upon to bring prompt and surprising results. Here, for instance is the experience of Mrs. T. Williams, 165 Queenstown Rd., Hamilton, Ontario, as reported only a few days ago.

"For quite some time I was in a rundown condition," said Mrs. Williams. "I suffered from indigestion, gas and sour acid risings after my meals. I had a nagging pain in my back all of the time and finally the muscles of my arms and legs became so sore and painful I didn't know what I would ever do to relieve the pain.

"I had tried almost everything I knew of, but could get no relief. But recently, after reading about Syntona, I decided to try this medicine and in only a few days the results I got were simply marvellous. I do not suffer from indigestion, gas or sour acidity as I did before and I am enjoying the first real relief I've had from the awful backache and rheumatic pain. I now think that any one suffering as I did should certainly give Syntona a trial."

Little Benny's Note Book

This morning pop was quick finishing his ferst cup of coffee so he could start his 2nd, and ma said, Nora is off today, William, and of course I dont mind getting dinner even though I have so many things to do downtown that it ceeses to be funny, but all I mean to say is, dont be serprised if you come home in a pitifill state of hunger, only to find that dinner is quite late.

Sounding like the start of a hint that she wanted pop to take us out to a resterant for dinner, and pop said, Allay your fears, my dear. Hunger is the best sauce. In Spane the natives never eat till 9 thirty or ten, and I understand they practically never serve sauces, because by that time they dont need any, he said.

Oh, all right, I'm just giving you a frendly warning so you'll wait in injured patience instead of acting like a proverbial bear in a cage, ma said, and pop said, My dear, I'll act like a berd in a tree, singing and whisseling gay saucey tunes that will inspire you to tern out the best meal of your life, if it takes you till midnight.

But jimminy, pop, holey moses, ma, I dont feel like waiting that long for my dinner, even now, I said, and pop said, Then I have the perfect solution. Let your mother leave the cook book open on the kitchen table at any page she selects, and you and I will follow directions like a cupple of French sheffs and tern out a meal fit for a queen, or perhaps I should say, the queen, he said.

Meening ma, and I said, G, that's a swell idea, and ma said, It's no idea at all, the idea, it's fantastic, what a gastly picture. it wont hert you a bit if dinner happens to be a few minutes late, she said.

The result being it was reddy the reguler time and tasted even better than usual, which it always does when ma cooks it.

LUNAN

cel of a methodical form of psychological torture."

On the last two days they had been turned out with the exception of one.

Saw No Other Suspects

He had never seen other suspects to ask what happened to them.

Lunan said his guards kept a diary of his sleeping. He described the dormitory as a room with two "banks" of perhaps eight lights. There were 18 or 20 beds in two rows.

Mr. Kelley read from the testimony given by Lunan before the commission in which, at the last stage of his appearance, he was informed that he could have counsel.

Mr. Justic R. L. Kelloch, one of the two commissioners, had informed him that they had decided to inform the government Lunan had communicated secret information to Russia.

Mr. Justice Kelloch had informed Lunan no charges had been laid. He had asked Lunan if he wished to make any statement, give any evidence or ask counsel and Lunan had asked time to consider.

After a noon adjournment, Lunan had asked Mr. Justice Kellock his opinion and the judge had replied that since Lunan had nothing to say and wishes to give no evidence he could not see "what good counsel would be" at that stage.

Lunan had finally decided against asking for counsel.

He interjected to say to Mr. Kelley he had done so because Harvison had "made it clear to me" that he had no such right.

His only objections before the commission related to questions about his wife.

R. L. Laishley, counsel for E. W. Mazerall asked for a date of adjournment of his case and the Magistrate set next Tuesday. The same date was given for Miss M. K. Willsher.

Mr. Laishley, counsel for Mazerall, said he presumed that if the Magistrate refused to admit the commission evidence in the Lunan case, the same would hold true in other cases.

To Proceed Separately

J. Erichsen-Brown, appearing for Emma Woikin, said her case would "proceed separately" because it fell "within an entirely different category."

Miss Woikin was a cipher clerk with the External Affairs Department at the time of detention.

The Magistrate adjourned her case to a week from Thursday— "when we should be in a position to see if we can proceed."

Mr. Cartwright, replying to Mr. Kelley's arguments, said the Crown prosecutor had advanced a principle of evidence which applied to courts or open inquiries, but which was not applicable in this case. Lunan had been refused "even the ordinary rights of a prisoner."

"As a matter of public policy this testimony should not be offered," Mr. Cartwright said.

Under accepted legal principles if the evidence was admitted every person present when it was taken would be subject to appearance in court for cross-examination and it would be "a terrible thing" to have two Justices of the Supreme Court and members of the Royal Commission put in such a position.

In the early part of today's hearing Mr. Kelley said he did not intend to proceed immediately with the conspiracy charge against Lunan and others because of new facts brought out at the preliminary hearing in Montreal of espionage charges against Fred Rose, Labor-Progressive Member of Parliament for Montreal-Cartier.

desperately needed."

The brief said there was a serious lack of balance between returns in agriculture, industry and labor.

"Farm people are seriously disturbed by the ever-widening breach between the relatively higher scale of wages and shorter hours of work being established in urban industry, and the lower scale of wages and returns and the long hours on the farm.

A continuation of this trend would cause "serious unbalance and unrest. It is our considered opinion that a balanced economy and unity and harmony between major groups in the nation, will not be possible unless we have more co-ordination of policies governing the returns of farmer, industry and labor."

Would Survey Whole Field

The brief then proposed a Royal Commission to "survey this whole field and make recommendations in the national interest."

The brief said the federation's dairy section had emphasized particularly the "serious labor situation" in that branch of Agriculture and had made a specific request for a four-cent increase in the floor price of butter and asked for higher returns for all dairy products.

The federation "deplored the return to the piecemeal daylight saving conditions" and asked the government to use the emergency Powers Act to make Standard Time uniform throughout the country "for the present season."

It also asked "immediate attention" to what it termed "inequalities still existing in the Income Tax Act as applied to farming operations."

DOUBLE MURDER CHARGES LAID AT HAMILTON

Cocktail Lounges, Liquor by Glass Provided in Bill

Chances for Smaller Centres To Adopt it by 3-5 Vote

Toronto, March 29 —(CP)— Public sale of liquor by the glass in the five Ontario cities with a population of 50,000 or more—Ottawa, Toronto, Hamilton, London and Windsor — and a chance for smaller centres to adopt it by a three-fifths local option vote is in immediate prospect for Ontario.

These and other drastic changes in the province's liquor laws are provided in a complicated 10,000 word bill introduced in the Ontario legislature yesterday by Attorney-General Blackwell.

The bill was quickly given first reading and is certain to win final approval as government sources say it was unanimously approved at a caucus of the Progressive Conservative members, who number 66 in the 90-seat House.

The bill returns over-the-counter sale of liquor to the province in a limited form for the first time since the Ontario Temperance Act of 1917 banished the open bar. It marks the most sweeping change in liquor legislation since 1934 when provision was made for sale of beer in beverage rooms under the Liquor Control Act.

Overhaul Present System

For Ontario's thousands of returned servicemen the bill means —if it becomes law and they are interested—that they will see the province's larger cities public houses and drinking facilities similar to those they knew during their service in England and on the continent in such cities as Brussels, Paris and Antwerp.

Introduction of the bill came as the climax of a day of feverish Queen's Park speculation, touched off by an unusually long caucus of the Progressive Conservatives. They opened their meeting in the morning, had lunch brought into the caucus room and remained in the room until shortly before the session began at 3 p.m.

The bill provides for licensing liquor sale in the following ways: Through a dining lounge licence for serving liquor with meals and a lounge licence for serving liquor which may be issued to hotels, inns and taverns in centres with a population of more than 5,000; through similar licences for clubs, military messes, railway dining cars and steamships, without any population stipulation.

Fred Rose Granted Bail of $25,000

Montreal, March 29 — (CP) — Fred Rose was granted bail of $25,000 when he appeared before Mr. Justice Wilfrid Lazure today in King's Bench Court.

This increased the bail figure by $15,000 from $10,000, withdrawn yesterday by Judge Rene Theberge when Rose was committed for trial.

Rose spent the night in Montreal jail and the new application for bail was made at the higher court, under whose jurisdiction he now stands.

Mr. Justice Lazure gave definite warning that from now until the end of the trial Rose is not to attend any public meetings or make any public statements.

He must "also tell your friends not to do these things or distribute pamphlets of any kind."

Rose stood at the bar while the decision was given by Mr. Justice Lazure.

Defence counsel Joseph Cohen, K.C., asked if the court would make the amount less if it were a cash deposit or $25,000 in real estate value.

Senior Crown prosecutor Oscar Gagnon objected.

Mr. Justice Lazure refused to lower the amount but said real estate would be accepted to the value of $25,000 if cash is not deposited.

Mr. Justice Lazure said a judge of the Supreme Court has the discretion to grant or withhold bail. It is not a right.

Usually the principal ground to be considered, he continued, is whether attendance at trial is to be secure. He referred to legal authorities which hold there must also be considered recent events in the community, existing circumstances and behavior of the accused while at liberty on bail.

ILSLEY TABLES ESTIMATES, DOWN FROM LAST YEAR

Finance Minister Asks For $2,769,349,815 To Carry on Work Of Government

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, March 29 — (CP) — The decks were cleared today for legislative action in the Commons after the Throne Speech debate was concluded yesterday and Finance Minister Ilsley tabled estimates for the coming fiscal year.

Mr. Ilsley asked for $2,769,349,819 for ordinary and demobilization and reconversion expenditures for the year ending March 31, 1947. The total compared with $4,650,540,645 for main, war and demobilization expenditures for the current year ending Sunday.

The finance minister also tabled supplementary estimates totalling $4,938,873 for 1945-46.

The estimates were tabled after the Throne Speech debate, which began March 15, ended with the adoption of division of address in reply to the speech.

Gordon Graydon (PC — Peel) and acting leader of the opposition, called for the adoption on division after Prime Minister Mackenzie King suggested that the address in reply to the Throne Speech be passed unanimously because it was nothing more than a vote of thanks to the Crown for having opened the session and presented the Throne Speech.

Mr. King said the unanimous vote would not indicate support of the government. Expression of government policies had been given in the votes on three motions of non-confidence in the administration, moved by the opposition during the debate and defeated by wide margins.

Prime Minister Makes Appeal

The Prime Minister made his appeal after Frank Zaplitny (CCF—Dauphin) wound up the protracted debate which held precedence over all government business. With it out of the way, work now can be started on the various legislation, including a resolution providing for the establishment of Canada's peacetime armed forces

Mr. Zaplitny urged that the Canadian government allow 10,000 children of displaced persons in Europe be allowed to come to Canada to join relatives or other persons who would bring them up. He asked also that Canada oppose the forced repatriation of displaced persons.

As a last resort they are considering calling in another bloodhound.

Allied Control Council Slashes German Economy in Half by New Plan

By THOMAS A. REEDY

Berlin, March 29. (AP)—A plan to eliminate Germany's industrial war potential while retaining enough of the beaten country's economy to make it reasonably self-sustaining by 1949 has been adopted by the Allied Control Council.

The program, outlined in detail by the Council Thursday night, slashes German economy in half and places future emphasis on production in the fields of agriculture, coal and materials for the rebuilding of war-torn cities.

Every industry which could be diverted to the manufacture of war materials is to be eliminated and other industries considered on the fringe of the war potential are to be cut back. Only enough export trade is provided to pay for the food Germans must import to maintain their reduced living scale.

Allied officers said the target is to establish by 1949 a standard of living for Germany approximating that of 1932.

Germans would not be permitted a higher standard of living than the European average.

Industries to be prohibited include synthetic gasoline and oil, synthetic rubber, synthetic ammonia, ball and taper roller bearings, heavy machine tools of war-making types, heavy tractors, aluminum, magnesium, beryllium, vanadium, radio active materials (including uranium), hydrogen peroxide. The list expands from five to 19 the industries barred by the Potsdam meeting of the Big Three.

Those to be restricted to certain levels so any excess can be used to pay off Germany's war debts include steel, limited to 5,800,000 ingot tons a year, about 39 per cent of the pre-war output; and machine tools, with only 11.4 per cent of pre-war production allowed.

Industries producing peacetime goods which may go ahead full blast are coal, for instance, which is to be mined to the utmost, providing a balance for export in order that Germany may have cash to meet reparations. Official estimates said coal output by 1949 would be 75 per cent of the 1936 peak.

The Council, made up of representatives from Britain, France, the United States and Russia, reckoned the plan on the basis of a German population of 66,500,000 .The pre-war population of Germany was 69,000,000.

EARLY SEEDING PROSPECTS GOOD ACROSS CANADA

Mild Weather and Drying Winds Hold Sway Over Prairie Provinces

By The Canadian Press

Whether old man winter has any kicks left is unknown, of course, but today spring appeared to have arrived in no uncertain terms and prospects for early seeding looked good across the country.

A survey by The Canadian Press showed mild weather and drying winds holding sway over the Prairie Provinces, where prospects looked good for earlier seeding than last year. In Ontario seeding will be in full swing in a few days, if the exceptionally favorable weather lasts. The picture in Quebec is uncertain, but in the Maritimes, which seeds later than other parts, a normal winter snowfall will aid spring operations.

Farmers were already on the land in Southern Alberta, where the first seeding was reported on the farm of Michael Houka, two miles from Taber, and seeding is expected to be quite general in the Medicine Hat area this week.

In British Columbia fruit trees came through the winter in fine condition and moisture conditions were favorable for good crops. Spring seeding now is fairly general through the British Columbia interior.

In Western Ontario many farmers are already on the land but little seeding has been done so far. The land however is drying rapidly and if good weather continues seeding will be in full swing in a few days. East of Toronto little work has been done on the land as yet.

Two R.R. Men Die In Collision In Don Valley Yard

Toronto, March 29 (CP)—Bodies of two Toronto district railway employees, killed when two trains collided in the suburban Toronto Don Valley yards, were removed from the wreckage today and identified by Canadian National Railways officials as conductor George Doust, 53, Toronto, and brakeman T. Beauvais, 63, Todmorden.

They had been riding in the caboose of a transfer train when a freight train plowed into the rear, smashing the caboose and derailing several cars of the transfer train and the engine of the freight. Doust was in charge of the transfer train.

Ten-year-old John Wardrope, eye-witness of the crash, said the transfer train was stopped when struck by the freight and that "the engine seemed to go right through the caboose, and two of the cars went up in the air."

TIME OF VOTING ON NEW LIQUOR LAW EXPLAINED

No Municipality Can Vote on Discontinuance of Men's Beverage Rooms for Two Years

Toronto March 29 —(CP)— When the new Ontario liquor licensing bill given first reading in the Ontario legislature becomes law municipalities may hold local option votes at any time on continuance of sale of beer in women's beverage rooms . . . but they can't vote on continuance of men's beverage rooms for two years.

The bill provides that any of eight questions may be submitted to the electorate in a municipality where there are government stores for sale of liquor or beer, wine stores or licensed premises.

Four may be submitted at any time. They are for continuance of: government stores for liquor sade; government stores for beer sale for home consumption; stores selling wine for home consumption; sale of beer only under a public house licence for consumption in licensed premises to which women are admitted.

The other four may not be submitted until the legislation has been in force for two years. They are for continuance of: sale of beer only under a public house licence for consumption in premises to which only men are admitted; sale of beer and wine under a dining room licence for consumption with meals; sale of liquor under a dining lounge licence for consumption with meals; sale of liquor under a lounge licence.

Doubts Russia Could Dominate Nations Of Communist Govt.

Toronto, March 29 —(CP)— Brig. Colin Campbell, Sault Ste. Marie, former Ontario public works minister who served overseas and at Gibraltar with the Royal Canadian Engineers, said last night in an address devoted largely to the Russian situation that "if any country decides it is going to have a communistic government it is not going to allow Russia to dictate to it."

He told a Native Sons of Canada meeting he did not share the fears of some people that if Communism spreads it will mean Russia will dominate the world. National pride would prevent one country from dominating the other.

TWO SHOT ON STREET

Cincinnati, March 29 —(AP)— Mildred Hensley, 22, and John Lowell, 47, were shot to death on a downtown street last night by a man who first called the woman victim off to the side for a chat and then fired three bullets at the couple, police reported. The gun wielder fled the scene, but a man was picked up later

COUNCIL WOULD LIKE ANSWERS TO THREE QUESTIONS

Matters on Iranian Controversy May Be Submitted to Both Moscow, Tehran

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

New York, March 29 (AP)—A majority of the United Nations Security Council today moved toward a showdown with Russia over her refusal to take part in discussion of the Iranian question and there were authoritative predictions that the council would adopt a plan calling for submission to Moscow and Tehran of three questions bearing on current Soviet-Iranian negotiations.

Replies would be requested by early next week, probably Tuesday or Wednesday, after which the council might proceed with or without the answers. The question procedure won informal majority support at a closed session of the council late yesterday, persons familiar with the discussions at that meeting said.

Among top delegates there was some hope the Soviet government would find this, or some other method, as a graceful way out of the situation created by Ambassador Andrei Gromyko's Moscow-directed absence from two council sessions.

Some privately expressed hope that Gromyko might receive new instructions after the Kremlin weighed world reaction to his dramatic gesture in walking out of Wednesday's Security Council meeting.

A slate of three major questions, which may finally be formally stated in various combinations, was reported in preparation for submission to the council with a proposal that both Russia and Iran be requested to answer them. Regardless of how they are finally stated and exactly how many there turn out to be, these are the things Byrnes and others sharing his views want to know:

1. Why are Russian assurances that their troops are being removed from Iran, barring unforeseen developments, not satisfactory to the Iranian government?
2. What negotiations are now going on between Russia and Iran?
3. Is the removal of Red Army forces conditional upon these negotiations?

Old Issue Still Alive

The United Nations Security Council's battle over the Iranian case has demonstrated that the old issue of small powers versus big powers is still alive and that it is going to play a dominant part in this and other cases.

Although the United States and Britain led the fight to win a hearing for Iran, the small powers on the council never let their colleagues forget for a moment that this was a battle between a little country and a big one.

Equally outspoken on this theme were the representatives of Egypt, Mexico and The Netherlands who took a leading part in the debate, emphasizing that they themselves, like Iran, were among those small powers.

Together with Australia and Brazil, they voted against Russia's move to keep the Iranian case off the agenda and against the Soviet attempt to postpone discussion of the question until April 10.

Travellers, Grounded by Weather, Discuss UNO, See Hope in Showdown

By DeWITT MACKENZIE

Gander, Nfld., March 29—(AP) —Well, here we are grounded again in the battle we've been waging since last Monday night to reach New York by air from Paris.

Gremlins — some folk claim it is — are interfering with radio communications, forming ice on wings, messing up visibility and playing other pranks which are far from humorous. More prosaic people attribute the radio interference to the northern lights and the ice to freakish weather which is staging a driving snowstorm outside the air headquarters in which this is being written.

Anyway we are stuck here in the far north at one of the world's great airbases, which was largely a development of the world war and remains as an aid to commercial traffic between the new world and the old. Several other planes are held up here and the lounge is filled with a crowd of travellers from many countries.

There are, of course, the inevitable bridge and gin rummy games in progress and the two Englishmen don't move from their interminable game of chess. But for the most part the assemblage is broken up into small groups and if you move about among those with whom you have a speaking acquaintance you'll find that they are conversing about international problems.

One party drew me into a discussion on the hot clash in the United Nations Security Council over the Russian-Iranian imbroglio and we arrived at the conclusion that this was a most hopeful development.

This showdown means that the council is getting down to real business. It means that the U.N.O. intends to do what its predecessor, the League of Nations, failed to do. That is, to nip in the bud the threats to peace.

That's why we take hope from the fact that the security council isn't running away from its obligation, even though it be an uncomfortable one.

Mrs. Evelyn Dick, William Bohozyk Named in Case

Charged with Slaying Dick And Baby Found in Suitcase

Hamilton, March 29 — (CP)— Two separate charges of murder were laid today against both Mrs. Evelyn Dick and William Bohozyk in connection with the torso-slaying of Mrs. Dick's husband and the finding of a baby's body encased in cement at Mrs. Dick's home.

The double charges against each were read to them in police court by Magistrate H. A. Burbidge and an immediate adjournment until April 24 was ordered by Crown Attorney Harvey McCulloch.

The couple were charged specifically with the slaying of John Dick, 40-year-old street railway employee whose torso was discovered off a Hamilton district roadway March 16, and with the murder of a baby whose decomposed body was unearthed during widespread investigation into the Dick murder.

Woman Already Charged

Mrs. Dick, 26, already had been charged with the murder of her estranged husband and had been in custody since March 19, the day the torso was identified by relatives. Bohozyk, husky, 27-year-old Hamilton oarsman, was arrested March 20 and only yesterday had been remanded on the original charges of vagrancy and having possession of an unregistered revolver.

Both had been held in custody since their arrest.

Police charge that Dick was slain on or about March 6 and subsequent investigation has uncovered some ashes and some teeth, and bits of toe bones, all believed remains of the missing parts of the torso.

Found in Suitcase

Last Saturday a cleaver and a butcher knife were found by children in a vacant lot and, although police said they had been unable to associate them with the slaying, there was little doubt some such instruments had been used to hack Dick's limbs and head from the torso.

As one startling development followed another during the investigation, it was disclosed early this week that the body of the newborn infant had been discovered. It was found in a suitcase in a cupboard at the home where Mrs. Dick resided.

Mrs. Dick, mother of a three-year-old child now being cared for by the widow's mother, was married to Dick last October and the couple separated in December.

Revealing details of finding of the meat cleaver and butcher knife, police said discovery was made in a marshy field some 12 miles from the Hamilton mountain spot where another group of children discovered the torso beneath a rocky ledge.

Bohozyk's Car Held

Mrs. Dick and the 220-pound Bohozyk, whose automobile is one of two held by investigating authorities, were brought from Barton Street jail to hear the new charges.

Bohozyk chatted at the prisoner's dock rail with his counsel, William Schreiber, exchanged nods with a courtroom acquaintance and had his back to the door as Mrs. Dick entered the dock. Calm and well-groomed, he wore a dark suit, light shirt and an Air Force tie.

Asked to sit down in the dock, Bohozyk, a steelworker, asked if it was compulsory and continued to stand when told it was not.

Mrs. Dick, wearing a grey kid coat and pancake hat, seated herself on the bench in the dock and partially covered her face with her hands. She did not look into the well of the court where sat her father, Donald MacLean, 62, awaiting appearance on a charge of theft from his employer.

After Mrs. Dick and Bohozyk had been returned to jail, MacLean elected trial by judge and jury on a charge of theft of street car tickets. Police said the charge was laid on the basis of information uncovered during a probe into the Dick slaying.

Taken Separately to Court

Bohozyk and Mrs. Dick journeyed to and from the jail in separate police vans.

The new charges followed a conference of Provincial and Hamilton City Police and Crown officials in the Toronto office of Deputy Attorney-General Cecil Snyder.

Results of a post-mortem examination on the body of the infant have not been revealed but the charge of murder indicated the child lived after birth. It was said earlier that the child was from three days to a week old.

Charges of vagrancy and illegal possession of a revolver against Bohozyk were dropped when the new charges were laid.

'Won't be Any Bars' In Beverage Rooms Blackwell States

Toronto, March 29 (CP)— Attorney - General Blackwell said today that Ontario won't have cocktail bars under the new provincial liquor legislation but liquor, beer and wine will be served in what will be upholstered beverage rooms.

"These things will not be cocktail bars because there won't be any bars," he said. "People will sit on upholstered wall lounges and chairs at tables and be served with cocktails, hard liquor or beer and wine by waiters. The liquor supplies will be out of sight and not in view on shelves behind bars as in many of the cocktail bars in the United States."

List 1,223 Hotels, 1945 Social Clubs Possessing Licences

Toronto, March 29 —(CP)— There were 1,223 hotels in Ontario licensed to sell beer as of March 31, 1945, the Liquor Authority Control Board of Ontario says in its annual report. Thirty-one were issued to summer hotels on a six-month basis.

The report, tabled in the Ontario legislature yesterday, showed that authorities were held by 1,945 social clubs, by 123 veteran and labor clubs, by 223 military messes and by eight steamship operators.

Spring Clean-Up Period Keeps Firemen on Run

Annual spring clean-up time is resulting in more than the normal number of alarms being phoned in to the local fire department with fire fighters being called to the East Hill district on two occasions Thursday afternoon to extinguish blazes caused through burning brush and grass on the East Belleville playgrounds.

The first grass fire at the playgrounds was spreading rapidly toward a garage before it was extinguished by firemen while on the second occasion a hollow tree at the corner of Queen and Bleecker was reported burning. This morning a rather stubborn chimney fire at 87 Station Street was extinguished before damage resulted.

Firemen have also been called upon to investigate complaints of smoke nuisance caused through rubbish and grass burning in many parts of the city.

Parks Bd. to Plant Trees on City Property

At a meeting of the Parks Board on Thursday evening at the City Hall it was decided to plant a number of Norway maple trees in the city but all on city property. Anyone wishing these trees to be planted in front of his property as on a boulevard needs only to contact some member of the Parks Board. These trees are a little smaller than those usually obtained but it is believed with good care they will mature.

It was decided to start work on the cleaning of the several parks in the city on Monday. Tenders will be called for the placing of a new roof on the Manufacturers' building at the Fair Grounds and also for the new horse barn to be erected. The plans for the new barn were prepared by City Engineer Charles A. Mott. The Board voted to join the Parks and Recreation Association of Canada and send delegates to the convention to be held in Montreal on July 1-4 this year.

Two members of the Junior Board of Trade were present at the meeting and the chairman, Cleo Colling, explained the workings of the organization.

C. of C. Tables a Motion To Request Council to Name An Industrial Commissioner

Chamber of Commerce directors at their weekly luncheon on Thursday tabled a suggested recommendation to the City Council that it make a decision to engage an industrial commissioner who could act as part time secretary-manager of the Chamber, with the latter body assuming part of his salary.

The recommendation was laid over until the next meeting, following a lengthy discussion which terminated because of the inability of President Lorne McDougall to remain because of pressing business.

President McDougall precipitated a lengthy discussion on the matter after he had suggested that a secretary-manager of the Chamber should act with the Industrial Commission, or with an industrial commissioner.

He felt that there is a crying need here for such an official because of the fact that some members are losing interest in the Chamber and its aims and someone is needed to bolster interest in the merchants and maintain a high level of outside connections.

Some directors were of the opinion that the city should be asked to appoint a special committee to act with a similar one from the Chamber of Commerce which would approve of and select a man to do the job.

Director J. J. Trudeau was of the opinion that before this was done consent of the city council was needed to hire such a man up to a certain price. Then a joint committee could be formed to thoroughly investigate the matter.

He then moved a recommendation requesting the city to make a decision to appoint an industrial commissioner who will also act as a secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce. Further discussion resulted in a tabling of the recommendation due to the sudden departure of the president on urgent business.

With a full evening in the future to be devoted to the formation of a new program of activities directors laid over until then a decision to sponsor a safety campaign in the city. Special literature on the subject could be obtained at a nominal sum and some directors were in favor of this and distributing it to individual householders.

President McDougall stated that the Dominion Police Association was organizing and carrying out a Dominion inspection tour of motor vehicles sometime in May, and it was quite likely that the Belleville Police Department would take part. He was definitely in favor of the project, but suggested the postponement of the discussion till the evening meeting when something of a definite nature could be laid out.

The president, referring to the condition of the Bancroft-Madoc Highway stated that nothing of a satisfactory nature had been obtained from government sources and recommended that two delegates from the City Council, County Council and Chamber of Commerce, plus representatives from the villages of Bancroft, Madoc and Coe Hill form a delegation to wait on the Ontario Minister of Highways in the immediate future in an effort to get some action regarding the repair and maintenance. The secretary was instructed to get in touch with these bodies and people immediately.

Chamber to Extend Invitation To New Governor-General To Pay Visit to the City

The Belleville Chamber of Commerce will extend an invitation to Canada's new Governor-General, Sir Harold Alexander to visit this city at the first opportunity, President Lorne McDougall suggested at the weekly luncheon of the Chamber directors on Thursday.

The Chamber of Commerce president lashed a verbal attack at Toronto newspapers for lack of publicity regarding the celebration of Mass here said by James Charles Cardinal McGuigan, first Prince of the Roman Catholic Church of English speaking Canada at St. Michael's Church on Wednesday.

"This city," President McDougall said, was signally honored by the presence of the new Cardinal "and it was here that he said his first Mass in Ontario. This city should have been given due credit by the metropolitan newspapers, but it appears they did condescend to mention the fact that the Cardinal paused here for a few minutes."

"Its about time something was done about this matter," President McDougall went on. "And I suggest that the new Governor General of Canada, Sir Harold Alexander be invited to this city as soon as possible after his arrival in Canada. Perhaps the metropolitan press will give us two lines of space if and when that occurs."

The suggestion was presented in the form of a motion, and unanimously endorsed by the directors of the Chamber as a whole.

POLICE BLOTTER

Some rather obnoxious resident has a grudge against a certain air hose, the property of the Vigor Oil Company service station at the corner of Pinnacle and Station Street, according to complaints received by the local police department.

Three times within the past few months the proprietor has found the air hose cut when he opened his service station for the day's business. Becoming tired of repairing his hose, he recently has locked his hose in a box overnight. Yesterday he discovered the box broken and his air hose again cut.

The public utilities department is having its troubles with young boys testing their stone throwing air. Electric light bulbs in the Wallbridge Street district have been reported broken by the stone throwing juveniles.

POLICE COURT

Belleville and district motorists are slowly learning that one hour city parking by-law is to be strictly enforced as was indicated this morning by the diminishing number of charges for overtime parking on the police court docket. Although the number was far below Tuesday record of 50 offenders, there was still a considerable number of motorists who paid the conventional $2 for leaving their autos parked longer than the one-hour limit.

Charges of overtime parking made up the bulk of the morning's docket, although six residents paid $13 fine and costs under the L.C.A.

Kenneth Sinclair, arraigned last week on a charge of careless driving involving damage to Alderman J. J. Trudeau's lawn, appeared in court for sentence and was fined $10 and costs. Judgment was deferred last week to give the accused the opportunity to make restitution.

A non-support charge concluded the morning's docket.

Edward H. Hodgens Committed For Trial on Charges of Theft From Belleville Foundries Ltd.

Edward H. Hodgens, former manager for the Belleville Foundries Ltd., Station Street, was committed for trial on charges of theft of $10,195.92 in money and materials from his firm and for falsification of his firm's records when he appeared Thursday in police court before Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

The accused was arrested in Toronto early in January following police investigations but was released on bail. Following committal yesterday bail was renewed.

When arraigned in court on Thursday Mr. Hodgens through his counsel J. J. Robinette of Toronto and Robert McCulloch of Belleville, elected trial by the next court of competent jurisdiction and it is expected the hearing will take place next June.

In presenting the theft charge against Hodgens, Crown Attorney Harry Deyman, Cobourg, crown attorney for Northumberland county, broke the charge down into four particular items, taking evidence for each item separately.

These items involved the production of switchboxes for the Marelco Company of Toronto; transfer of labor and materials from the Belleville Foundries to the Campbellford plant of the Canada Can owned by Mr. and Mrs. Hodgens; and petty cash disbursals at the Belleville Foundries.

Thirteen Witnesses Called

A total of thirteen witnesses was called by the Crown with defence counsel Robinette questioning only three at any length. Witnesses questioned by the defence included D'Alton Clarke of Thomasburg, president of the Belleville Foundries; Robert H. MacInnes, plant foreman for Belleville Foundries, and Miss Helen Brown, bookkeeper and office worker.

Mr. Clarke told of hiring Mr. Hodgens as general manager for the Belleville foundries in 1944 and while on the stand identified two types of metal switchboxes manufactured by his firm. He testified that at no time had he authorized work or contracts for the Canada Can payroll at Campbellford. Hodgens' activities as general manager had been limited to plant operation and purchase of materials and did not include purchase of new equipment, according to Mr. Clarke.

Informed by Plant Foreman

He testified he had not known that labor and materials from Belleville Foundries were being used at the Canada Can plant in Campbellford and said he had learned of this only when informed by Mr. MacInnes, his plant foreman. The Campbellford plant had later been sold by Mr. Hodgens with Belleville Foundries receiving none of the sale proceeds, witness stated.

James Winto, purchasing agent for Marelco Company, Toronto, told of his firm purchasing metal switchboxes from the Canada Can Company, address Station Street, Belleville. Total payment had amounted to $11,752. He stated he understood that Mr. Hodgens had been working for the Belleville Foundries sponsored by Canada Can.

It was later given in evidence that the metal switchboxes bought by Marelco had been manufactured at Belleville Foundries, using Belleville labor and materials. Frank McGown, shipper, told of the switchboxes being shipped from the Belleville plant, while Harold Webb, moulder, testified that the boxes were manufactured in Belleville.

Plant Paid For Casting

Miss Helen Brown, bookkeeper and office worker with Belleville Foundries, told how her firm had invoiced Canada Can for materials and labor and stated that Belleville Foundries had been paid for the castings. She did not know if all castings had been paid for, but when later called to the stand she pointed out the lack of detail in the invoices which had been made out to Canada Can by Belleville Foundries.

Robert MacInnes, Belleville Foundries foreman, told of going to Campbellford in connection with putting the Canada Can building into condition for production as a foundry and stated that Belleville Foundries labor and materials had gone into the Campbellford building. "All goods produced at Campbellford, amounting to around $500 had been shipped to Belleville" he said.

Makes Suggestion

In questioning, defence counsel Robinette suggested to the witness that in the development of the Campbellford plant, the business of the Belleville Foundries was being extended, and held that at no time were the proceedings kept secret. MacInnes stated he understood that Canada Can and Belleville Foundries were the same company.

Recalled to the stand Miss Brown testified that at the instruction of Mr. MacInnes she had initialled material and labor payments for Canada Can with the letter "C," while W. S. Stone, chartered accountant, told of auditing Belleville Foundries books and of finding that accounts initialled "C" over a six-month period from August to December, 1945, had totalled approximately $2,800.

Considerable evidence was taken regarding petty cash disbursals at the Belleville plant with Miss Brown testifying as to the method of handling petty cash at the Belleville Foundries office. Petty cash was balanced at the end of the month, and if short, vouchers would be given by Mr. Hodgens. Occasionally petty cash shortages would amount to $50 or $60, she stated.

Cash Vouchers Exhibited.

Several witnesses testified regarding petty cash vouchers. These witnesses included Mr. Lorne McDougall who testified as to receiving $38.82 from Mr. Hodgens in payment for an insurance premium on an automobile owned by Canada Can. Mr. McDougall said he had signed a petty cash voucher. When produced in court the voucher signed by Mr. McDougall indicated that payment had been made for "castings returned" but the witness stated these words were not on the voucher when signed by him.

Other petty cash vouchers exhibited in court indicated payments for scrap materials purchased by Belleville Foundries, as well as cash payments for services and materials used both at Belleville and at the Canada Can plant in Campbellford.

Argues Against Committal.

Speaking to the court following presentation of evidence, defence counsel Robinette expressed his doubt that there was sufficient evidence to substantiate the theft charge against the accused. The Marelco case, he claimed, boiled down to the fact that work had been done by Belleville Foundries which had been paid for by Canada Can. He admitted that cheques had been issued by Mr. Hodgens on the Belleville Foundries' account but stated that employees understood the business of the firm was being partly carried on in Campbellford.

Crown Attorney Deyman in summing up the Crown's case, stressed the lack of detail on invoices made out by Belleville Foundries to Canada Can, which it was claimed, bore no relation to materials actually supplied. The Crown submitted that these invoices were entirely fictitious.

Separation of the various amounts involved in the four aspects of the case was made by Magistrate Wills before committing the accused for trial on the theft charge.

When committed, the accused had nothing to say.

Public Speaking Committee

The Public Speaking Committee is devoted to the training and instructing along public speaking lines.

At the last meeting the committee held a debate on the subject: "Resolved that the atomic bomb process should be disclosed in toto to all members of the United Nations Organization." Charlie Lundy and Robt. McCulloch were in the affirmative with Wally Warner and Ed Burn in the opposition.

The debate was highly successful and many interesting and instructive points were brought forth.

The debate was followed by short speeches by all members of the committee.

Ben Yanover and Bill Brown were the critics with Tom Carruthers acting as judge.

Both the critics and judge were of the opinion that this group will produce a number of the most prominent speakers in this part of the country.

The chairman of this committee is Bill Brown with Ben Yanover as vice-chairman. Well-known Robert McCulloch is secretary.

Government and Civic Affairs Committee

This committee, under the chairmanship of Ed. Schrieder, is already very active and aggressive.

Their main issue at the moment is an investigation into the suggestion raised by the Queen Mary Home and School Club recently. This worthy organization suggested to the Board of Education that a physical training instructor be appointed for instruction in public schools.

This seems like a very worthy project, and a survey of the schools on this matter is being conducted.

The committee hope to have the results tabulated and in proper form to present to the council within a week.

Another survey is being carried out as to the necessity of a fifth public school in Belleville. The minimum and maximum probable number of students and the exact need are the aims of this survey.

The results of this committee's findings will be submitted to the city council in the very near future.

Boost Belleville and Publicity Committee

As the name suggests, this is their motto—Boost Belleville. We believe everyone will be interested in the wide and extensive program these committees are sponsoring.

In the very near future, you will hear more and more about a slogan campaign. This campaign is the brain-child of the above committee to make outsiders, Belleville-conscious. There are already groups working and planning for this campaign.

Other projects such as improving highway facilities into Belleville, erecting signs to advertise Belleville, mailing advertising pamphlets regarding the advantages of our city and even a possibility of improving our tourist facilities are being delved into.

Two new committees were formed—the Tourist Committee under the chairmanship of John McNab and the Buy-in-Belleville Committee, under the chairmanship of Cleo Colling.

Great things are expected from these committees in the near future.

Membership Committee

Anyone from 21 to 40 years of age is eligible for membership in the J. B. of T. The yearly dues are only $10.00.

There are over 100 young men in Belleville who are already members. We are anxious to swell our membership. Anyone interested can secure the necessary information and application blanks from any member of this committee. Ben Yanover is the chairman and may be phoned anytime during the day at 125.

More and Better Houses for Farm Workers Needed

Toronto, March 29 — (CP) — More and better houses for farm workers are needed, the Ontario Legislature was told Thursday night by G. W. Parry (PC—Kent West), as the debate on the budget continued at a night sitting.

The House yesterday gave second reading to 17 government bills and 15 private bills and six private bills were put through committee stages. The government's revised liquor legislation was introduced at the opening of the sitting yesterday, providing for sale of liquor by the glass in dining lounges, clubs, railway cars and steamships, but not extending this privilege to cities of less than 50,000 population.

In the budget debate J. B. Salsberg (Lab.-Prog. Toronto St. Andrews) said the budget fell far short of social needs. There was need for adequate provision for housing, for full employment, for rehabilitation and health services. He termed the present mothers' allowance whereby a widow with two children under 16 receives $50 a month "not enough to live on, but enough to starve on."

M. T. Armstrong (L — Parry Sound) referred to the forecast deficit of $21,000,000 which the government has said will be overcome by increase revenue after the Dominion-Provincial agreement is reached. He said he was sure the government "has a little hidden away somewhere," that would come to light next year.

Police Report Tabled

"Dead End Kids" was the term applied by Mr. Armstrong to the government benches.

Another budget debate speaker was Romeo Begin (L — Russell) who urged a flat rate for hydro power throughout Ontario, control of provincial education grants and speedier payment of old age pensions and mothers' allowances.

The annual report of the Ontario Provincial Police was tabled showing a major increase in crime in 1945, when there were 23 murders compared with nine in 1944.

The report of Labor Minister Daley's department showed curtailment in industrial activity in 1945 with the largest loss in the iron and steel industry.

Liberal House Leader Farquhar moved adjournment of the sitting after 17 government and 15 private bills received second reading. Six private bills were put through committee stages.

G. W. Parry, (PC—Kent West) last speaker of the evening in the budget debate, discussed agricultural conditions in his riding.

Mr. Parry said more and improved types of homes for farm workers are required. He suggested that the Department of Agriculture formulate a plan whereby Kent farmers would be given assistance in providing homes for hired help.

Mr. Armstrong termed Progressive Conservative front benchers "The Dead End Kids." Something appeared to be worrying them. It wasn't the $21,000,000 deficit but "every time I look over there I see the gloom hanging over the front bench."

Temperance Advocates Denounce Liquor Act

Toronto, March 29 (CP)—Temperance advocates today denounced the new Ontario Liquor Act while hotelmen showed a mixed reaction to provisions of the measure, introduced in the legislature yesterday, which permits sale of liquor by the glass in cities of more than 50,000 population.

Provision for lounge and cocktail bars was described as a "backward step" by Rev. John Coburn, Secretary of the Canadian Temperance Federation. Rev. A. J. Irwin, Secretary of the Ontario Temperance Federation, declared the Drew government was perilously close to the conditions suggested by the adage "whom the gods would destroy they first make mad."

George Wilson, President of the Hotel Association of Canada, said the government was taking a step that would eliminate certain criticisms and at the same time prove a boon to the tourist trade. " believe the government is acting in a clear and above-board manner in reclassifying all existing authorities," he said. "Hotels which provide definite service to the public will be clearly defined as such, while those whose only business is the selling of beer will have to forego the privilege of having cocktail lounges. That I believe is what the people want."

Dalton Caswell of Sundridge, President of the Ontario Hotel Owners Association, said he hoped that no change would be made until the rationing of beer is lifted. Cocktail lounges were all right if they were strictly supervised. Ralph Haffey, the association's managing director, said wartime beer shortages had caused people to run from one beverage room to another as supplies ran out, and he predicted they would do the same with cocktail lounges if liquor and beer were in short supply.

Established in Short Time.

Mr. Caswell believed the larger hotels could establish cocktail lounges within a few days after licences were granted. Ward Markle, president of the Association of Toronto Hotel Proprietors, said he doubted whether more than 20 hotels in Toronto would qualify for cocktail lounge licences. Markle suggested the hotels would run up against a scarcity of cocktail glasses because glass companies would have to change their moulds to manufacture these.

On the temperance side, Dr. Irwin said in a statement that "the liquor business is of such a character that it apparently finds it necessary to go through a face-lifting operation about every 15 years. Periodically a new experiment with new nomenclature and a few external changes is introduced, and the public is asked to be patient while the new experiment runs itself into the ground.

Challenges Judgment.

"The suggested changes in the Liquor Control Act introduced by Attorney - General Blackwell surely challenge the judgment of Ontario. When one recalls the frequency with which liquor appears in trials for murder, attacks on females, brawls and road accidents, and the fact recently cited by Prof. Jocelyn Rogers of 80 per cent of one court's cases involving liquor, one is compelled to feel that provision at this time for the enlargement of facilities is hazardous in the extreme.

"The making of local option more applicable to beer rooms is to be commended and, if additional opportunity is thus provided to apply local option, the federation will no doubt take advantage of it.

"But the classification of hotels and the grading of their privileges seems like an attempt to cast a robe of respectability over the badly damaged liquor trade, besmirched with the filth of the beer rooms."

Wallbridge

Wallbridge—On Tuesday evening about 60 friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Fox (nee Evelyn Sine) gathered at the home of her father, Mr. Cecil Sine for a social evening and to wish them "Bon Voyage" in the matrimonial sea. Rev. Mr. Hillis called the gathering to order. A short program followed, consisting of vocal and instrumental music, also readings by Mr. Everett Smith, Belleville and Mrs. Clarence Woods, Wallbridge. Mrs. Harry McKee read a short address to Mr. and Mrs. Fox and they were presented with a beautiful assortment of gifts. Both Mr. and Mrs. Fox expressed their sincere thanks for the gifts. Refeshments were served and all joined in wishing for Mr. and Mrs. Fox a very happy and prosperous life together.

Wallbridge W. I. held their March meeting at the home of Mrs. Chas. Colley Wednesday afternoon. There was a good attendance and some most helpful discussions took place.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Badgley and family, Deseronto, were Sunday guests of the former's mother, Mrs. W. Badgley on Sunday at the home of Mr. W. H. Nobes.

Miss Jennie Kiernan is spending a few days of this week with Mrs. Lucas, Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Woods and Mr. and Mrs. C. Mack spent the weekend in Montreal.

Testing Security Council

The whole world centres its gaze on the United Nations Security Council now meeting in New York as a result of the fact that the Russian member Andrei Gromyko, walked out of the council session on Wednesday afternoon when that body decided to call the Iranian ambassador to tell the situation in Iran. What result this will have on the course of the council meetings only future events can show.

Reports from the conference state that no one knows for what reason the Russian delegate walked out on the security council.

That is the latest move in the series of events which brought the question of Russia's relations in Iran before the councl, Russia having asked for delay and though Russia had reported her troops were leaving Iran.

It has always been felt that the Iranian issue would be a test of the security council.

So mankind watches with intense interest the future course of the council's actions.

William B. Preston

The death of William B. Preston, publisher of the Brantford Expositor, has removed one of the leading members of the newspaper profession in the Dominion. He knew the newspaper business thoroughly for his father purchased the Expositor half a century ago. He became a reporter on the newspaper, working his way through the advertising and business departments to become president and managing director on the death of his father. He served as president of the Canadian Daily Newspapers Association and also of The Canadian Press for the years 1935 and 1936, by which he was held in highest regard.

He had made a wide and impressive contribution to the growth of journalism in Canada.

He was prominent in community life, he was interested in various philanthropies and took for instance a prominent part in the Brant Sanatorium and became an honorary member of the trustee board of that institution. In many ways he sought to develop the many interests of his community and district. His relations with his staff were always of the most cordial character. He had touched the life of the community and other interests which appealed to him in a very intimate and beneficial manner. He won the affections of all who admired his high sense of honor and integrity and his public spirit. By nature he was one of the most popular and likeable of men.

He will be greatly missed by Brantford and the press of Canada. He gave fully of his service, talents and means to the betterment of the community and the country at large and to the developing of their institutions.

Sun Spots

The sun has been up to capers again this week for the second time of the season causing major disturbance to wire systems, after a performance in February which was the greatest before Thursday's performance. Following upon the display of the Northern Lights or Aurora Borealis on the night before, it was not to be wondered at when the disturbances began on Thursday morning. Sun spots are given the blame by scientists for the upset which make haywire of messages sent over the wires.

This past winter has seen some of the most majestic displays of Northern Lights, but Wednesday night's aurora was not nearly as impressive as the February disturbance when streamers of "lights" shot across the sky like arrows of light, making almost the southern half very bright and radiant.

With science delving more and more into the secrets of nature and securing more and more data on the operations of the great forces, man cannot but become more conscious of his real reliance upon nature and of man's helplessness if nature's major upsets are in the ascendant. Man has of course had to contend with earthquakes and volcanic eruptions since time immemorial and has learned much concerning them and has besides many disastrous experiences from them, but the earth moves on mostly undisturbed as nature carries out her will.

Man being really a part of nature and as he believes the most exalted form of nature, that which lives and breathes and has a moral law by which man guides his conduct is therein seen superior to the giant forces of nature. Life is so well stabilized on this planet and in the solar system that there is every assurance of man's security.

In ancient days the earthquake and the eclipse of sun and moon had nothing but terror for men in the savage and barbarous and even less barbarous state but today man's greater knowledge has probed the causes of these events of nature and given man conquest over those primitive fears. Ancient man used to worship nature and especially the sun as the origin of life on the earth; today man does not dread most of the manifestations of nature unless in the awful forms of earthquake or tempest or volcanic eruption in some areas. The awe that man originally had for the operations of nature has been transmuted into recognition of the great natural laws which prevail and control the heavens and the earth and assure man that this earth will long remain populated by oncoming generations knowing and being guided by the moral law, the greatest of facts.

British Airfields to Grow Crops

In view of the acute food situation, the government of Britain is making every endeavor to ensure the maximum agricultural use of airfields that is compatible with the operational commitments of the service departments. Already, of approximately 650 airfields in England and Wales, some 100 grass airfields have been or are being de-requisitioned. The return to agriculture of other airfields will depend on the results of the enquiry at present being made into the future peacetime requirements of the service departments and civil aviation, but pending the results of this enquiry, 195 airfields have been placed at the disposal of the Ministry of Agriculture for agricultural use of one kind or another. Of these, 100 are available for unrestricted agricultural use and 60 for limited ploughing of all land falling outside the grass margins to concrete runways, margins which must be retained in a firm condition for future flying use. The rest (35) are available for grazing.

Apart from these airfields, as much surplus land as possible on other airfields in the country which are still required for flying or operational purposes has been made available for agricultural use.

Immigrants' Success

Newcomers surprise us by the way they get ahead of us in these comparatively new countries, which we lazily assume do not offer opportunities. Many, many immigrants have risen high in the nations over here because they not alone recognized opportunities, but seized them and worked on to others. There are chances for everybody over here still, and we do leave lots of them to newcomers while we worry about what the government is going to do for our future and let some agitators make us believe we are underprivileged and exploited by some capitalists or evil bankers or whatnot.

"TAKE-HOME-PAY"

What are we after day by day,
Each of us working for? "Take-home-pay."
Everything told in a three-word phrase!
Bankers and merchants and writers of plays,
Clerks and accountants, one and all;
Drillers and doctors; big men and small
Working to get in their chosen way
The money some speak of as "take-home-pay."

Waiting for checks or at windows small,
What are we seekers of, one and all?
Frocks for little girls, shoes for feet,
Music lessons and bread and meat;
Dresses and ribbons and silver and glass,
Fires till the blizzards of winter pass,
And something to save for the rainy day
All gathered together as "take-home-pay."

Stripped of the taxes and dues and fees
(And life would be grim were it not for these)
What's left is the family's, young and old;
The purpose for toiling, if truth be told;
The reason that's back of man's boldest scheme;
Why men brave hardships and cling to a dream;
Keep faith with their fellows and steadfast stay,
All, all for the joys in their "take-home-pay!"

Spotlight on U.N.O.

By CLYDE BLACKBURN

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, March 29 (CP) — Apart from what may prove a tragic tendency of Russians to walk out of United Nations activities when they don't like the way their colleagues are playing, the United Nations Security Council meetings here this week have revealed another threat to the usefulness of the infant world peace organization.

That threat is failure of the organization to decide on a set of rules for its deliberative sessions. In London, where the U.N.O. held its first general assembly earlier this year, squabbles over procedure meant long delays and minor crises.

The same situation has existed here where the security council has been sitting since Monday. Gentlemanly and precise Dr. Qso Tai-Chi, Chinese delegate and chairman this month under the rotation system, was in a ticklish spot time after time and he had no strict and simple parliamentary rules to guide him:

For some reason the committee of experts, set up in London to draft simple but adequate rules for procedure, has failed to complete its task. Its report was to have been considered here but it was not ready.

After Wednesday's dramatic withdrawal of the Russian delegate from the security council meeting a waggish New York reporter, apparently under the influence of Manhattan's theatrical vogue, suggested the following legend be placed over the council chamber doors: "Through these portals pass the most beautiful crises in the world."

One of the most attractive and most photographed members of the security council group is blonde blue-eyed Virginia Hamilton of Toronto, on the secretariat of the Australian delegation.

Rations Bring Request

Sharing his army coffee and cakes with a hungry old French lady was just an every-day kindness to ex-serviceman James Kilpatrick, 26, of California. That kindness so impressed Mdme. Jeanne Marshal, 83, of Baccarat, France, whose seven sons were killed by the Nazi invaders, that she willed Kilpatrick $50,000 before her death last January. The bequest was totally unexpected. Kilpatrick, who plans a career as a singer, will use the money to further his music studies.

COCKTAIL

It proposes a complete overhauling of the present system of licensing beer sale in hotel beverage rooms and clubs. All existing authority holders are to be reclassified as hotels, restaurants, taverns and public houses. It defines hotels as being establishments with not less than 50 bedrooms in places of 100,000 population or over, with not less than 20 bedrooms in cities under 100,000 and with not less than 10 bedrooms in other centres. Taverns are defined as places with accommodation, facilities and equipment for not less than two types of licences.

Four Types Provided

Generally four types of licences are provided: dining lounge, dining room for the sale of wine and beer with meals and public house for the sale of beer. The public house licences are divided into two classes—those for men only and those for women only or for men and women.

All four types may be issued to hotels, inns and taverns in cities of not less than 50,000 population and to clubs, military messes, railway cars and steamships. Dining room licences may be issued generally to restaurants and public house licenses to public houses except that in urban centres of less than 50,000 population they may not be issued unless the applicant held an authority providing corresponding privileges under the old legislation at the time the new bill takes effect. The restrictive provision as to population is subject to local option vote in centres under 50,000.

Feels System Unsatisfactory..

In introducing the bill, Mr. Blackwell said the government inherited the present beverage room system which it felt was unsatisfactory. The definition of a hotel as being an establishment with six bedrooms led to construction and conversion of small buildings for no other purpose than to sell beer and wine.

The new legislation recognized that the people of Ontario had demonstrated that they want the right to consume alcoholic beverages and the government's problem was simply one of assuring honest administration and decent conditions of distribution. Conditions varied through the province and a solution which might be satisfactory in one area might not be in another. "For that reason we have greatly extended the local option provision and have assured complete control by local popular vote."

Feels System Unsatisfactory

The bill specifically provides that sale through government outlets or licensed premises will not be established in areas where the Canada Temperance Act is in force — presently the counties of Peel, Perth and Huron and the district of Manitoulin.

Also excepted from the provisions of the act are areas which were dry under local option when the Ontario Temperance Act was passed or became dry since. However, they may adopt government sale under a three-fifths local option vote taken on request of 25 per cent of the qualified voters.

The local option provisions are sweeping. They provide that votes may be taken on establishment of government liquor stores, government beer stores, wine stores, sale of beer in premises to which women are admitted, sale of beer in men's beverage rooms, sale of beer and wine with meals in dining rooms, sale of liquor with meals in dining lounges and sale of liquor in lounges.

Provision is also made for local option votes on continuation of sale in areas where it is established, with the exception that no vote may be taken for two years after the act comes into effect in such areas on sale of beer in premises for men only, sale of beer and wine in dining rooms and sale of liquor in dining lounges and lounges.

Change in Beer Sale

The Attorney-General forecast a change in the present system of sale of packaged beer for home consumption, now sold through brewers retail outlets. In introducing the bill he said "the government has determined on a policy of taking over the brewers retail stores." There was no amplification as to when or how this would be brought about. However, he did say a study is being made of improvements in packaging.

The bill provides for administration by a three-man liquor licence board of Ontario which will replace the present Liquor Authority Control Board which administers beer and wine sale authorities. The Board has authority to make regulations and it may classify an establishment as a hotel even if it does not come within the definition given in the bill.

The Board is to have authority to cancel or issue licences; restrict the number and class of licences it will issue in any municipality, establishing a system of licensing employees; hold public hearings on licence applications. It may purchase licensed premises and may compensate licence holders who lose their licences through no fault of their own. It must give its consent to transfer or sale of licences.

Can Issue Permits

The Board has authority to issue banquet or entertainment permits for serving liquor on designated premises for special occasions. Application may be made to the Registrar for such permits.

The bill retains penalties provided under previous legislation and adds some — including penalties for parents or guardians who leave children under eight years of age without competent supervision while they visit licensed premises. It provides for civil liability for knowingly causing drunkenness which leads to the death or injury of the intoxicated person or a third party.

Licences under the Act are to be issued annually, expiring Mar. 31, end of the province's fiscal year. The Board has authority to fix hours of sale, set fees for licences, define accommodation and facilities and make other regulations in connection with administration.

BALLOONING OF BRONCHIAL TUBES

In some cases of winter cough, chronic bronchitis, more or less ballooning of bronchial tubes here and there occurs, and such dilation of these air passages in the chest is called bronchiectasis. The ballooning results from weakening of the wall of the tube at some point by inflammation, say influenza.

When this happens in younger persons the bronchial dilation may be mistaken for a tuberculous cavity, especially when the cough, expectoration, perhaps loss of weight and irregular low fever are misinterpreted. Then, too, some cases of bronchiectasis develop in consequence of a former pleurisy—and the history of one or more attacks of pleurisy always arouses the suspicion of tuberculosis.

Characteristic of bronchiectasis is the early morning coughing bout. The patient nearly always has a coughing spell on getting out of bed or just changing posture in the morning. The expectoration is abundant and foul. Sometimes there is a streak of blood in it.

Hold it, please. Let me tell you how to cough, if you have bronchiectasis or anything like it.

Don't rise mornings. Just slither or slide out of bed like a snake, you know, ease your chin over the edge of the bed and down nearly to the floor, and rest your palms and fore-arms on the floor. Remain in that position until the morning coughing spell is over. It favors expectoration and drainage of the bronchiectasis cavity or cavities.

When you are through coughing get up and do your morning rolls—somersaults. Now don't be stuffy about this. I'm not fooling. If the idea of turning somersaults is new or seems crazy, all the more reason why you should roll them regularly. On written request if you inclose stamped self addressed envelope I'll send you an Invitation to the Somersaultauqua—study it and you will be prepared to do a good turn or a dozen turns every day.

In most cases of bronchiectasis it is beneficial to assume that bed-floor posture for several minutes several times a day. This applies as well to many cases of ordinary chronic bronchitis when there is much expectoration.

If there is little expectoration or if it is difficult to raise without too violent coughing, one with simple chronic bronchitis (winter cough) or bronchiectasis may obtain considerable relief by taking terpin hydrate, say two grains after food three times a day for two weeks. It may be taken in capsule or tablet or powder or—but careful now, in a pleasant tasting elixir, if you choose that form, contains no other medicinal ingredient than the terpin hydrate. From what correspondents tell me it would seem that some druggists supply them with a preparation containing codeine or other narcotic—regardless of the federal restrictions on sale of narcotics without prescription.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

No Physic

Some one reported that following advice in a booklet of yours he had not taken any physic for five months or needed any, after years of daily laxatives, enemas, etc. I'd be grateful for a copy of that booklet.

(S. W.).

Answer—Send ten cents and stamped self addressed envelope. Ask for "Constipation Habit and Colon Hygiene"—do not use a clipping, please.

So Inconvenient

O. B. doctor leaving for vacation Sept. 1. So he wants to bring the baby, due about that time, ten days earlier. It is the first baby. What is your opinion of the proposed procedure?

(W. P.)

Answer—I am not permitted to print it. Transpose the peculiar initials you apply to the dinky little "specialist" and you will get the idea.

No Spinach

Please send to our address your pamphlet on Spinach for kids. (Mary and Johnny R.)

Answer—I'm glad, but I haven't any. If you like spinach it is fine food, and if you don't like it you gain nothing by eating it, that is, nothing you can't get from other greens or raw vegetables or cooked greens or vegetables you like. I hope you kids will write again whenever any little question arises like that, I always brush everything else aside to give undivided attention to any question a boy or girl asks about his or her health.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Do dragonflies sting?

The large, gauze-winged insects known as dragonflies do not have stingers, as popularly supposed, and they are perfectly harmless.

For some reason of other these interesting insects have been charged in folklore with many crimes and questionable practices of which they are entirely innocent.

They are called horse-stingers and flying adders because they are erroneously believed to sting, and the names snake feeders and snake doctors are applied to them on the false theory that they administer to the culinary and medical wants of reptiles.

In fact "dragon" itself is derived from Greek "drakon," meaning "serpent."

To cap the climax dragonflies are charged with sewing up the ears of naughty children and are called devil's darning needles in consequence.

Adult dragonflies, of which there are several hundred species in the United States alone, fly with great speed and have the unusual ability of darting backward and forward without turning.

They feed on mosquitoes, gnats and other small insects that they capture on the wing.

The prey is seized by the six legs, especially adapted to that purpose, conveyed to the mouth and eaten while the dragonfly is in flight.

The young live in water until their wings are fully developed.

PICTON

Peter B. Reid To Spend Year In Mission Field

Picton, March 29 — Peter B. Reid, B.A., who has been minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church here for the past two years, will leave in May for Tisdale, Sask., to spend a year in a mission field. This follows his graduation next week, with ordination to follow in his home city of Brantford.

He will be succeeded here by Rev. H. J. Scott of Newfoundland, who has been appointed for nine months.

During his ministry here, Mr. Reid has won a splendid reputation as a preacher and as a leader. Mrs. Reid is Public Health Nurse for the town and will also be greatly missed.

Holley Acres Speaks on Bingo

Toronto, March 29 — (CP)—A. Holley Acres (PC — Carleton) yesterday enlivened proceedings in the Ontario Legislature by confiding that his wife and daughter 'love to go to a bingo' and, though a good churchman, he liked bingo and a horse race and a five and 10 cent game of poker.

"I regret," said the veteran of 23 years in the House, "that Attorney-General Blackwell ever said anything against bingo. In my riding I told a hall, which I shall not name, to go ahead with its bingo anyway. It's all right to make laws, but you've got to break 'em some place."

As the law against gambling was federal, he said, the Attorney-General should not try to enforce it but should leave it to Prime Minister King to send 'lots of police' into Ontario.

Interrupted by the Speaker, who said it was sometimes hard to hear his remarks, Mr. Acres quipped:

"That's all right. I'm not listening — I'm talking."

Second half of the allotment will be released beginning July 4, when coupons S17 to S21 become valid. These 10 coupons are provided in addition to the two regular "S" couppons valid monthly during May, June and July.

The Prices Board announced last night that pink sugar coupons, numbered 46 to 70 and meat coupons numbered M1 to M28 will not be good for use by consumers after March 31. Retailers and other distributors may not accept these coupons from consumers after that date, but they may deposit them in their ration coupon bank account or exchange them for bank transfer vouchers up to April 14. U. S. SAILORS WANT TO KEEP BELL BOTTOM TROUSERS

New York, March 29 — (AP)—United States sailors want to keep their bell-bottom trousers, a navy magazine survey has revealed. Unqualified disapproval of new outfits suggested in January was voiced by 74 per cent of 2,800 sailors who replied to the poll, the magazine said. The sailors complained the new outfits would tax space and laundry facilities on ships.

TIME OF VOTING

Municipalities now under local option may hold votes at any time on any of the eight questions. However, once a vote is held in any municipality—either on establishment or continuance—on any question, another may not be held on any of the questions for three years.

A muncipal council may pass a by-law to hold local option votes, providing the vote is not held until two months after the by-law is enacted. A council is required to hold a local option vote if it receives a petition signed by 25 per cent of the total number of persons listed by the last revised assessment roll as residents of the municipality and qualified to vote at provincial elections.

A three-fifths vote is required to bring about sale in areas now dry under local option and also to discontinue sale.

Voting is to be held on the usual municipal election day except that the board may direct that it be taken on some other date.

ILSLEY TABLES

Preceding him in the discussion were Mrs. Gladys Strum (CCF—Qu'Appelle); John Hacket (PC—Stanstead); C. E. Johnston (SC—Bow River); J. F. Poullot (Ind.)—Temiscouata); William Bryce (CCF—Selkirk); and W. D. Wylie (SC—Medicine Hat).

Mr. Ilsley's estimates showed that expenditures for the current year were made up of ordinary expenditures of $1,253,504,000, an increase of $207,963,000 over the ordinary expenditures of 1945-46, and $1,515,845,949 on demobilization and reconversion as against $3,605,000,000 in 1945-46 war and demobilization expenditures.

The increase of $207,963,000 in ordinary expenditures was accounted for primarily by various items totalling $104,162,000 attributed directly or indirectly to the war, and an additional $80,000,000 to provide for family allowance payments for a full year as against only part of the previous fiscal year.

The increased items attributed to the war included an advance of $91,122,000 in interest on the public debt and other debt charges and a $13,040,000 increase in expenditures on veterans affairs, including the Veterans Land Act.

POLICE ASK FOR PERMIT TO CARRY WEAPONS

Hamilton, March 29 —(CP)—Two Hamilton radio announcers, members of the Hamilton Revolver Club, were engaged in target practice on Hamilton Mountain a few days ago when Ontario Provincial Police officers investigrting the torso slaying of John Dick asked them for their pegmits to carry weapons. They could not produce them. Magistrate James McKay yesterday gave them suspended sentence and ordered them to pay $18.50 costs.

EARLY SEEDING

The Ontario Agricultural Department is appealing to Provincial farmers this year for a crop of 200,000,000 bushels of coarse grains.

Pastures Winter Well

The best previous year in Ontario was 1942, when the Province produced 190,000,000 bushels of coarse grains—oats, barley, etc. The appeal to Ontario farmers this year is to get a bigger yield from present acreage. The fall wheat seedings now look good and pastures generally wintered well.

As in the west, Ontario farmers are a bit dubious about the present spell of fine weather. There was a late cold spell last year which resulted in a fairly large deterioration. If it's really spring, it has caught a lot of farmers napping. Prof. R. G. Knox, head of the Animal Husbandry Department at the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, visited several Western Ontario counties and reported farmers are already seeding in Oxford and even up into Bruce County.

Prof. Knox cautioned that Ontario farmers should use the very best seed grain, and should plant under the most favorable conditions, because there would be a world-wide demand for three or four years for all the cereal crop that can be produced.

In the Ottawa Valley considerable frost is still in the ground and experts are unwilling to forecast prospects yet. Normally seeding in this Eastern Ontario area is around May 1 but if the good weather holds it might be two weeks or more ahead of that.

In Quebec the climate has been too varied and too unsteady to warrant any general forecast. Quebec has a mixed farm production but increases are expected this year in potatoes, fruit and vegetables.

SHERRY—BILISKE

On Friday, March 22, at Christ Church chapel, Belleville, Josephine, daughter of Mrs. Catharine Biliske, and the late Frank Biliske, of Warman, Sask., became the bride of Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Sherry, Belleville, Ont. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. Grant Sparling.

The bride was attended by Mrs. Margaret Kemp and the groom by Mr. Edward Madans, both of Belleville.

The happy couple wil reside in Belleville.

BOOMHOUR—DOREEN

Mohawk Reserve. (Special.) — Christ Church, Tyendinaga, was the setting for an attractive early Spring wedding Wednesday afternoon, when Verna, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Doreen, Deseronto, was united in holy matrimony to Randolf Clifford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ammon Boomhour, Napanee.

Preceded by a full surpliced choir, the bride entered the church with her grandfather, Mr. Wellington Green, who gave her in marriage. Her dress was white triple sheer, made with high pointed embroidered waistline and shirred neckline. She wore the traditional veil of white embroidered tulle, arranged in halo style with floral bandeau, and ending in a short train. She carried a bouquet of Talisman roses, and her only ornament was a gold locket, the gift of the bridegroom.

She was preceded by the winsome little flower girl, Diane Pritchard, prettily dressed in a floor-length gown of shell pink mousseline, carrying a Colonial bouquet of American Beauty and Talisman roses. She wore a poke bonnet matching her gown and white gloves.

The bridegroom's sister, Miss Mary Boomhour, was bridesmaid. She wore a floor-length dress of sky blue sheer, with high embroidered waistline and small hat of blue velvet petals with shoulder veil. She carried an arm bouquet of pink roses.

The bride's brother, Victor Doreen, was groomsman.

After the ceremony, a wedding dinner was served to fifty guests at the bride's home, which was prettily decorated with pink and white streamers, and wedding bells. In the evening a reception and shower for the young couple was held in the White Hall, which was also decorated with pink and white streamers.

For her going away costume, the bride wore a turquoise wool suit, with brown accessories. After a honeymoon in the United States, Mr. and Mrs. Boomhour will make their home in Deseronto.

Wedding guests from out-of-town were Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Fox and family, Trenton; Mr. and Mrs. James Peterson and family, Kingston; Mr. and Mrs. Peter Green, Point Anne; Mrs. Herbert Hayes, Elm Tree; Mrs. Luke Hayes, Napanee; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Tinney and Bessie, Kingston, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cronk and Mary Anne, Kingston; and Mr. and Mrs. Ammon Boomhour and family, Napanee.

Australian Women Raid Own Larders To Give Britons

Sydney, Australia (CP)—Chief topic of feminine conversation in Australia over a cup of tea, the morning's shopping, or the back fence, has been the recent threatened cuts in British food rations. British hunger has become almost the personal concern of each housewife.

As well as giving money and food coupons, Australian women are raiding their own larders. These seem overflowing in contrast to their British counterparts', so tins and jars of meat, james, preserves, cheese, sugar and fats are being sent to the "Food for Britain" headquarters in the capital cities, or are giving the food to their children for the school collection days which have provided considerable amounts for the fund. Social functions and street stalls are also being organized to make money.

Announcement of the ration cuts has also greatly increased the number of food parcels sent by individuals from Australia. Daily 4,000 parcels are handled by Australian post offices.

Man Gives $3,600

A Sydney man has given a cheque of $3,600 to the Food-for-Britain fund because he discovered that nine contributions out of 10 to the fund during the previous few days were from women.

A deep impression was made by the pleas of English war brides, who arrived in Sydney recently. Said one, Mrs. Madge Young, formerly of Leeds, now the wife of Flying-Officer J. D. Young of Newcastle, New South Wales:

"For God's sake, send food quickly to the mothers of Britain. No one overseas can realize how hard it is in England. Morale that never faltered in wartime is beginning to crack in peace. Mothers are desperate to get food for their children. Throughout the nation, the people are tired, hungry, and nerve-wracked. Their stamina is being sapped by hunger. What used to be odd, vigorous, happy Great Britain is becoming a land of grey-faced suffering. The people wonder if it is worth-while carrying on."

NO TROPHY

Traditionally when the same person wins a sporting trophy three times, he gets permanent possession of it. But husbands are not classified as trophies. That is why Mrs. Virginia Ruth Laurel is back in Las Vegas, Nev., establishing residence for divorce from comedian Stan Laurel, charging three years' separation. Virginia won and wed Stan three times, first in Mexico; second try in Los Angeles and the last time in Las Vegas.

PICTON

82,136 Articles Shipped by Red Cross Since '39

Picton, March 29 — Since organization in the fall of 1939 until the end of 1945, Prince Edward County branch of the Red Cross shipped 82,136 articles, not including hospital dressings, to headquarters, it was reported by Mrs. C. H. McGibbon, president, at the annual meeting Wednesday night. These articles included 29,884 knitted articles for those in the armed services; 33,358 articles for hospitals overseas, 5,194 quilts, blankets and afghans, 13,323 knitted and sewn articles for civilians, 377 articles for the local hospital. Many articles counted as one consisted of as many as 12 pieces, such as layettes.

Jam and Honey Sent

In addition, 7,472 pounds of jam and honey and 46 cases of canned goods were forwarded, 288 bottles of cod liver oil distributed, seven cartons of clothing for refugees shipped.

Biggest year was in 1943 when 23,006 articles were turned in. Last year the total was 7,408. Jam made last year was 964 pounds.

The Society also contributed generous financial support, this totalling $117,405. Of this, $2658 was from memberships, $37,229 donations, $75,685 from county grants in lieu of a canvass and $1833 from salvage collections.

Reviews Work

Mrs. C. H. McGibbon gave the review of work and expressed appreciation to Prince Edward county women for their faithful and untiring efforts. She stated that not one item of sewing had ever been sent back for changing, or any criticism offered, testifying to the high quality of work.

E. L. Bronskill gave the treasurer's report and Mrs. R. Jamieson that of the secretary.

Present Medals

A feature of the meeting was the presentation of Ontario Red Cross medals to Mrs. C. H. McGibbon, president, and also convener of the Picton work room, which was headquarters for the units scattered throughout the County, and to Mrs. E. L. Bronskill, county wool convener, both of whom gave a great deal of time and effort to the work. Mr. Bronskill, treasurer, was presented with an Ontario Red Cross membership pin. Dr. S. H. Roblin fittingly voiced appreciation of their services.

Special Mention Made

J. P. Williams reported on the reception of war brides, and made special mention of Mrs. James Hedges and Philip Dodds who had given much time to advising next-of-kin of both war brides and servicemen of arrivals home and trains. He reported on work done for prisoners of war.

Miss Naomi McDonald said that a complete list of blood donors going to the Belleville clinic was not available, but the last list showed 450 county donors.

Mrs. McGibbon said that plans were being made to carry on peacetime work. Infant clothing is particularly needed in Britain, she said.

Thanks were expressed to E. S. Theaker and W. H. Nettleton who had taken charge of packing bales for shipment, to the press and to county council for use of rooms in the county buildings. All officers were re-elected.

Christ Church Junior A.Y.P.A. To Enter Festival

"Brothers in Arms", and "A Marriage has been Arranged", are the possible entries of Christ Church Junior A.Y.P.A., in the Quinte Drama Festival, it was decided at the last regular meeting. The program, which is the last until mid-April, followed a Lenten evening service, and included a church-work project.

After selecting the plays, they were cast as follows: "Brothers in Arms": Lloyd Gladwell, Marjorie Ashton, Ronald Button and Gerry Bongard. "A Marriage has been Arranged": Violet Noakes, Harry Fry. Mrs. G. Sparling has been asked to direct. While both of these spirited one-act comedies may not be entered in the Festival on May 8, it is hoped that a little rivalry may raise the standard of performance. Ian Sparling will look after the prizes, tickets and programs.

It was decided to hold the next meeting on April 10, instead of after Easter, as had been originally planned. The members of this year's confirmation classes will be the guests of the A.Y.P.A. at a breakfast following a corporate communion on April 7. The Contact Club has graciuly offered their assistance, and this was gratefully accepted.

After the business portion of the program, 700 envelopes for use in the Anglican Advance appeal were addressed and sorted.

Bathing Suit Lures "Wolf"

Sydney, Australia (CP)—Just before dinner each night an Australian girl gets a "wolf call" over the phone from an unknown man. This has followed the publication of a photograph of her wearing a scanty 1946 "French swim suit" which appeared in a Sydney daily.

Says 22-year-old Deanna Dawn, of Bondi, one of Sydney's show surfing beaches: "You could set your watch by it. He just howls and rings off. Only once did he speak. He said, 'I'm really no wolf. I just rang to say hullo-oo-ooo!' He went off into his howl from there."

NEW YORK RECITAL BRINGS PLAUDITS TO CANADIAN GIRL

18-Year-Old Marian Grudeff Attractive Toronto Pianist Played With Orchestra at Eleven

Toronto (CP)—Acclaimed by New York critics for her performance in her United States debut at Town Hall recently, an 18-year-old pianist has returned to her home determined to work harder than ever to achieve stardom on the concert stage.

Tall, attractive Marian Grudeff who appeared as soloist with the Toronto Symphony Orchestra when she was 11 years old, has every reason to be proud of the reviews following her New York appearance.

The New York Times said she showed "great insight, approaching the music she plays with directness and simplicity, without distortion of rhythm, exaggeration of sentiment and undue emphasis on display." Referring to some of the more difficult numbers, the reviewer said that Miss Grudeff knew what she was trying to do even if she couldn't succeed completely in doing it.

Other reviews noted the Toronto girl's "excellent technical clarity and pianistic discipline," her consummate skill and charm" and "remarkable potentialities."

Miss Grudeff made her formal debut-recital in Toronto when she was 12 years old and even at that early age she was hailed as "a child with the technique of a full-grown virtuoso." Prior to this she has made other appearances with the Toronto Symphony Orchestra under Sir Ernest MacMillan.

Several Appearances

More recently she has appeared at numerous concerts in Eastern Canada and made frequent radio broadcasts. Throughout the war she was a member of the ten-piano ensemble conducted by her teacher, Miss Mona Bates, in aid of various charities.

Although she has received more publicity than the average teen-ager, Marian remains a normal, unaffected girl. She dislikes "obvious make-up and too much of anything," wears simple, tailored clothes, gray crepe dresses and her long dark hair casually "down."

The young pianist never practises for more than an hour at a time. Her favorite composers are Chopin, Brahms, Beethoven, Mozart, Rachmaninoff and Gershwin.

Daughter of John Grudeff, K.C., and Mrs. Grudeff, she received her early training from her mother, but Miss Bates has directed her musical education since Marian was eight years old. She hopes to enrol in a general arts course at the University of Toronto next fall.

Sidney, Frankford Teachers Meet

The Sidney and Frankford teachers, with the Trenton teachers as guests, held their March meeting at Frankford on Tuesday evening.

The meeting was opened by the President, Miss Helen Wallis, and the minutes were given by the Secretary, Miss Evelyn Callaghan. After the business was taken care of, Mrs. Mary Campbell, spoke briefly on the Federation of Teachers. The guest speaker, for the evening, was Mr. J. W. Sigsworth, B.A., principal of Frankford Continuation School. A discussion of Mathematics was led by Mr. V. P. Carswell, principal of College Street School, Trenton. Several interesting lantern slides were shown by Mr. J. A. Warren, principal of Frankford Public School.

The recreational part of the program consisted of a sing-song and forfeits contributed by the unfortunate late comers. The evening came to a close with the serving of dainty refreshments by the Frankford teachers.

Miss Evelyn Callaghan invited the teachers to hold their April meeting at Maple Grove School.

Perennial Print

By ALICE ALDEN

IF THERE is one perennial favorite with the well-groomed American woman it is the beautifully handled two-piece suit frock in a print. It's a neat, sweet frock that takes to dressing up or can be worn with equal aplomb as is. Joseph Halpert does this sort of dress beautifully as can be seen from this new design. The model has a Chinese neckline, full shoulder treatment and enameled buttons add interest to the design.

Toppings for Desserts

There are two ways to keep menus interesting and up-to-the-minute. One is the adventurous plan of attempting to introduce entirely new ideas in food. The other is to give the family their favorite dishes. In following the former course you will find new desserts that you will want to add to your list of favorites.

The dessert course through the years has ever remained the highlight of the dinner menu. No other course brings greater reward to the homemakers efforts, nor gives to her family that sense of lingering satisfaction.

The dessert must never be chosen entirely on its own merits. Select it with an eye to the courses which have preceded it. In other words, if the main course has been high in calories, your dessert should be low. If the main course has been rich and heavy, then be sure to serve a dessert light in texture and tart in flavor.

The reason we serve desserts, is to round out or complement the other courses. It is also the medium through which that air of festivity and glamor is added to the ordinary meal. This does not mean that your desserts must be fussy and time-consuming in their preparation. Make them as simple and labor-saving as possible. However, to make them "company fare" dress them up with a topping of a sauce.

The home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture, have a few recipes which may be used as substitutes for the wartime casualty—whipped cream. Left-over egg whites may be utilized as the foundation for so many tasty dessert toppings. These toppings should be made just before serving and used up immediately.

The left-over egg yolks may be used in mayonnaise, custard sauce and baked custards. They may be hard-cooked by dropping them in simmering salted water for 15 minutes, and then sieved. Use hard-cooked egg yolks in sauces, French dressings and as a garnish for salads.

FOAMY FRUIT SAUCE

1 egg white
2 tablespoons sugar
½ cup mashed fresh or canned fruit (bananas, peaches, apricots or stewed figs)
½ tablespoon lemon juice
Pinch of salt.

Beat the egg white until quite stiff, but not dry. Gradualy beat in the sugar, until the mixture will hold a peak. Then fold in fruit mixed with lemon juice. Chill and serve. Use bananas as the fruit when serving with warm gingerbread, chocolate blanc mange or fruit salads. Six servings.

MOCHA CHOCOLATE SAUCE

1 square unsweetened chocolate
1 cup strong coffee
½ cup water
1-3 cup sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla

Grate the chocolate, add the coffee and water. Bring to the boil. Mix together the sugar, cornstarch and salt and add gradually to coffee mixture. Stir until mixture thickens and continue cooking for 5 minutes. Remove from heat and add vanilla. This sauce may be served hot or cold with cottage pudding, whips and ice cream. Six servings.

Gifts Appropriate for Graduation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My niece is going to be graduated from college this June. Please tell me if it is necessary to send a graduation gift; and if so what would be appropriate.

2. Recently my second baby was christened, and my husband and I sent the godmother a corsage to wear at the christening. At the christening and at the dinner we gave afterward was my best friend, who is the godmother of my first child. Since we had not given her a corsage at the christening of my first child, we gave her one to wear for this christening, but somebody told me that at this christening we should have given a corsage only to the godmother of our second child. But don't you think it was proper, Mrs. Beeckman, for us to make up for what we had omitted before?

3. Who is supposed to pay the minister at a christening?

J. A.

1. It isn't necessary for you to send your niece a graduation gift, but it's a nice bow for you to make to her. Almost anything for her personal use is appropriate; costume jewelry; a vanity-case or compact; handkerchief's monogrammed or embroidered with her first name; lingerie; pen and pencil set, or either one; photograph frame; day purse or evening bag; corsage ornament or hair ornament; set of containers for (lingerie, gloves, stockings, handkerchiefs) for dresser-drawers or travelling-bag; a book; item for desk; or, if you prefer to have her choose her own gift, you might give her money or a check or a gift certificate.

2. Please don't let this "somebody's" comment bother you. . . of course it was kind and thoughtful of you and your husband to give to your first child's godmother the "belated" corsage, and I'm sure your second child's godmother understood this gesture.

Cheering Message to a Doctor

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me how I might word an appropriate little note on a "Get Well" card that we would like to send our doctor? We have known him for years and he has been wonderful to our children and us. The other day he had an accident and is now in a hospital.

B. A.

As a supplement to the printed message on the "Get Well" card (or as a note written on letter-paper) you might write:

Dear Dr. Wells,

We were so very, very sorry to hear about your accident, we are hoping that now you have less pain and are generally more comfortable, and all of us here are praying for your speedy recovery. You have always been so good and so kind to so many people that you must be deluged there in the hospital with good thoughts and good wishes. And to these good wishes from your many friends we add ours, with devotion and appreciation.

Most Sincerely

(For refreshments for his long hours in the hospital you and your husband might also like to send this doctor who has been so good to you some flowers, perhaps some Spring flowers, or a current magazine or two, or a book, or some fruit.)

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

She's Told Him She Doesn't Love Him—He Won't Take No For An Answer.

Broady speaking, there are two kinds of love.

One is the unselfish kind in which one person loves another so much that he sincerely cares more for her happiness than he does for his own, and is willing to step aside in favor of another if she does not return his love.

The second is the selfish kind where the man won't take no for an answer but wants his girl whether she wants him or not. His idea, of course, is that if she will only marry him he can win her love. But he's not willing to let her have the last word on whether or not she cares to take that chance.

As, for instance, in the following letter:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"In August of 1942 I met a very sweet and beautiful girl with whom, at first sight, I fell very much in love.

"During my stay of three years overseas we corresponded regularly and she wrote the sweetest letters I've ever received from anyone, always insisting she was waiting for me.

"So, in November last year I came home a very happy and unharmed soldier, happy because I was returning to the one I was so much in love with. Well, everything went along wonderfully for a month or so, but then she seemed tired of me and wanted to avoid me as much as possible, although she still accepted my love and acted as though she was in love with me. We see each other several times a week, but it seems as though she is hiding something from me, and she tells me she doesn't love me.

"I love her more than any words can ever express, and nothing means anything to me, just as long as I can have her for my wife. That is my only desire. I love her so much that when she says I should find someone new, I want to commit suicide. I don't want to live any longer. If I can't have the one that I fought for almost three years, then I feel I don't deserve anything or anyone else. She's the one I love, and the only one I want. I really don't know what to do. What would you suggest for me to do?

"An Unhappy Veteran".

You don't really want me to suggest what I think you should do, Unhappy Veteran. What you want is for me to tell you how to get this girl. And nobody on earth can give anybody a sure-fire program for winning another person's love.

Of course it was a bitter blow to come home and find the girl you dreamed of during your long years overseas had become indifferent. But you're an adult, not a lovesick adolescent, and surely you can be grown-up enough to accept the face that this girl does not want you, and not let it throw you permanently. You've been a fighting soldier, remember. You're not going to lie down and be licked in the battle of life now, are you?

Of course you won't feel very happy for awhile. Perhaps not for a long time, since you've been so wrapped up in this girl. But, believe me, if you'll only be willing to give Time and chance, you're sure to find someone else you can love just as much, and you may even find yourself wondering what in the world you ever saw in that first girl. You won't believe me now. But if you'll follow my advice and quit telling yourself you can't live without this girl, I'm certain you'll be surprised to discover, in time, that you can get along without her very well indeed.

Besides all of which, if you stop pursuing her and start paying attention to other girls, showing her that you can have good times without her, she might suddenly decide that she wanted you after all. Such things have happened.

It's About Time

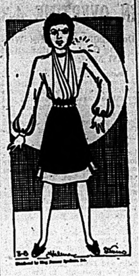
BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Grace of manners, grace of movement



She doesn't want that chip on her shoulder to fall off

The more cultured a woman is, the more she is inclined to be mindful of appearance, though of course this may not apply to all clever woman. It is the belief of your good-looks reporter that, as a rule, there is a bond between graciousness and grace. Some fastidious women are rhythmic of movement, even though they have taken on a bit more adipose upholstery than usually makes for lightness of step. They walk beautifully. They have a sort of majesty. They stand splendidly, sink into a chair with one smooth movement of the body.

The explanation is simple. Self-respect, poise, pleasing manners, are created in the mind, and these elements become a part of the physical being. The shy, self-conscious girl lets her head sink between her shoulders, slinks around as if she wished she were some place else. As she hasn't any spiritual snap, she seldom has a vibrant body.

Observe how the mental state is expressed in posture. The cowardly individual moves furtively, shoulders forward, head drooping. Courage gives briskness of pace, makes one carry one's head high. Note the bossy dame. She planks her feet firmly on the floor with every step. She doesn't want that chip on her shoulder to fall off.

Graceful movement is dependent upon the spinal column and the flexibility of the muscles, especially the muscles of the back. Let us whisper in the ears of Mrs. Lazy Bones that the musculature of the body is not benefited by inertia, by spending most of one's life resting against soft cushions or by hopping into the family bus when one should be hoofing it.

The nervous girl, whose movements are short, angular and jerky, will find it difficult to cultivate grace because she lacks ease of muscle expression. She is tense. She draws too heavily upon her forces of energy. As a rule she talks fast, uses unnecessary gestures, is inclined to be jittery for no special reason other than a feeling of unrest. She needs daily periods of complete relaxation, not only of the body but of mind and spirit.

Mothers who have daughters of the so-called awkward age should interest their girls in the subject of posture and carriage. A course in rhythmic dancing is helpful. It is the best means of developing body beauty and charm of movement. It trains the hands and the arms as well as the feet. It teaches a girl how to carry her head and her hips.

It would help the cause of pulchritude if some of the sisters would stop chasing beauty rainbows, learn more about physical education. Poor posture can be corrected at any age. Slouchy carriage can be improved.

CANCER

Next to heart disease, cancer is the greatest single cause of death on this continent. It kills 1,000 Canadians every month. One out of every eight persons now living must expect to die of cancer, unless far-reaching preventive measures are taken.

Cancer is a deadly killer unless the patient seeks early medical advice. But when caught in its early stages, cancer is generally curable.

The cause of cancer is still unknown, and there is yet no specific cure. But if diagnosed in time and treated by surgery, x-ray or radium, a cure can be effected in a majority of all cancer cases.

It is now proposed to organize an energetic campaign in Ontario against cancer in all its forms. This campaign will have the following objectives:

1—To organize and operate fully equipped cancer clinics at suitable centres, where people may be examined, and, if necessary, treated according to the most modern, scientific methods.

2—To pay a portion of the cost of treatment of cancer for those needing financial help.

3—To pay travelling expenses to and from clinics if needed.

4—To conduct an energetic program of cancer research.

To carry out this program, the first need is money. Your donation will definitely help to reduce the number of deaths from cancer in this province. It will help hundreds of people to be medically examined in time and to escape from the deadly clutches of cancer. It may well help research scientists to discover a cure for cancer and so free mankind forever from the dread scourge.

This appeal is for an objective of $2,000,000 to provide for a three-year program of cancer research, treatment and province-wide service.

This organized drive against cancer is a joint effort of The Ontario Cancer Treatment and Research Foundation and The Canadian Cancer Society.

HANK GREENBERG SLOWING UP IN FIELDING

Leaving Bad Impression With Observers of Detroit's Exhibition Games

Lakeland, Fla., March 29—(AP)—Hank Greenberg, the beltin' beauty of 1945 whose big bat put Detroit Tigers into the World Series and Chicago Cubs out of it, is far from his old impressive self this spring but the least worried person involved probably is manager Steve O'Neill.

Back at first base, a position he vacated to shift to the outfield in 1940, Greenberg is leaving a bad impression with observers of Detroit's exhibition games.

Many who have seen the slow-footed 35-year-old Greenberg stretch his ageing legs and arms around first base this spring are convinced that Hank's position will be the weakest in the Tiger lineup when Detroit opens defence of its American League flag April 16. All this despite the fact that the big fellow is working for an estimated $60,000 pay check.

Such judgment would seem justified by Greenberg's batting average of .184 in his first 15 exhibition game appearances, for Hank's sharpest critics had conceded that his limited coverage in the field would be more than offset by his power hitting.

O'Neill gave Greenberg three days off at his own request this week in the hope of straightening out his hitting eye and timing.

"It's all a matter of timing and Hank is just coming around slower than usual," Steve explained. "A fellow with a 10-year batting average of .324 and who hit .311 last season doesn't slip from a hero to a flop in one year. He still has nearly three weeks to get squared away."

Oxford Favored To Win Historic Race on Thames

(By The Canadian Press)

After two trials on the Thames course yesterday, the Oxford crew was installed as favorite over the Cambridge University eight for their traditional rowing race of 4¼ miles this Saturday. The Cambridge oarsmen were reported plagued with illness and their trial yesterday even was delayed an hour while one of the crew had a tooth pulled. Peter Macdonnell of Toronto will row in the Cambridge boat although he took up the sport only last year.

A crowd of nearly 1,000,000 spectators is expected to line the course from Putney to Mortlake, all within the limits of London.

PAIR OF OVERTIME GAMES PLAYED

(By The Canadian Press)

A pair of 2-1 overtime victories were registered by Kansas City and Tulsa Thursday night in the United States Hockey League semi-finals, the Pla-Mors taking a 2-0 stranglehold in their best-of-five series with St. Paul Saints while the Oilers evened their set with Omaha Knights, 1-1.

The Pla-Mors had to go three extra periods before Larry Silvestri notched his pay-off goal in the 102nd minute of play. As in Tuesday night's 2-1 decision over the Saints, defenceman Tow Fowler set up the overtime goal. Harry Dick of Kansas City and Mitch Pechet of St. Paul had swapped second-period counters.

John McCormick sank the winner at Omaha in 42 seconds of the first extra frame after Emil Dagenais had scored in the first period for Tulsa and S. Kennedy tied the score for the Knights in the second stanza.

The series switch to St. Paul and Tulsa for resumption at the week-end.

Toronto, March 29 — (CP) — Jean Gordon saw her first soccer game three years ago, thought it "pretty." Now she's part owner of a professional club, believes the game has a great future in Canada.

Miss Gordon became "Canada's first lady of soccer" when financial support was sought for Toronto's first professional soccer club, formed only a few days ago. Where mere male wavered, she placed her greenbacks on the line, became part owner and business manager of Toronto Green Backs of the American League.

"I intend to take an active part in direction of the Green Backs," said Miss Gordon, sports-loving graduate of a Toronto girls' school. "And wait until you see our snazzy uniforms . . . a green and white combination but no fancy bows."

Bobby (Toronto Globe and Mail) Rosenfeld says it comes natural for Miss Gordon to be mixed up in sport because 'she's a Branksome Hall 'old girl' — was prominent in such boorish activities as hockey, lacrosse and basketball."

And the blue-eyed Toronto sportswoman has no doubt her investment will reap dividends.

"People will go to see professional sport when they might pass up the amateur brand," she said. "I'm sure pro soccer will draw since we will be bringing some of the best on the continent here to play."

Green Backs are in the western division of the new league with two Chicago teams and another from Pittsburgh and the opening game is scheduled here June 8. Many of the Green Back players have jumped to monied ranks from the amateur John Inglis team of last season's Toronto and District League.

There's talk too of a few imports from Britain's crack teams.

Ole King Clancy, recalling a bitter battle of his hockey-playing days between Leafs and Montreal Maroons, told of pulling off his gloves after being rapped by Hooley Smith's stick and finding that "my thumb was driven so far back in my hand it was almost a nub."

"Pull it, pull it," he yelled at Nels Stewart who gave it three tugs before it snapped back in place."

"Okay now," Stewart queried.

"Fine," replied Clancy.

"All right, you so and so," snapped Stewart, pulling on his gloves. "Now take this."

And he struck Clancy over the head with his stick.

BOSTON BRUINS BEAT RED WINGS IN OVERTIME 4-3

Don Gallinger Scores Winning Goal by Himself at 9.51 Mark

Boston, March 29 — (CP) — Boston's Don Gallinger scored all by himself at 9.51 of sudden-death overtime against Detroit Red Wings last night, and the goal put the Boston Bruins into the Stanley Cup final against Montreal Canadiens, champions of the National Hockey League.

Gallinger's goal broke a deadlock and gave Bruins a 4-3 victory in the fifth game of their semi-final, won by four victories against one defeat. The cup final, also a best-of-seven affair, will open at Montreal Saturday night, with the second game at Montreal Tuesday. The third and fourth will be at Boston, April 4 and April 7.

The Bruins had gained a 3-1 lead when the tide turned last night and Detroit surged into a tie at three goals apiece. Bep Guidolin and Bobby Bauer put Boston two goals up in the first frame, and after Fern Gauthier's goal in the second period Bruins were still ahead by 2-1. Kenny Reardon scored after four minutes of the final to make it 3-1.

That stung the Wings who opened up a five-man rally deep in the Boston defence zone. Adam Brown snared a pass from Bill Quackenbush to cut the Boston lead to 3-2. The Wings kept pressing and after another face-off Bruneteau poked home the tying goal with only 47 seconds of play left.

That sent the teams into sudden-death overtime. The pay-off came at 9.51 when the Wings were still pressing hard in the Boston end. Gallinger raced back of his own net and dashed straight down the ice, broke through McLenahan and Hollett and beat Harry Lumley in the Detroit net with a shot from 15 feet out on one side.

Coast League To Open With Stronger Teams

By RUSS NEWLAND

San Francisco, March 29 (AP)—The Pacific Coast League, sporting its new AAA baseball classification and with strengthened teams, opens its 44th season today weather permitting.

Opening games of the eight-club circuit—an all-California opening as usual—were faced with threats of rain after a long stretch of balmy weather during the training period.

With every club boasting reinforcements, either through the return of players from military service or help from the big league teams, a red-hot race for the 1946 pennant was forecast.

Portland, 1945 pennant winner, with what shapes up as the strongest pitching staff in the league, and Los Angeles, backed by the parent Chicago Cubs, were general co-favorites in the pre-season selections.

Hollywood, Sacramento, San Francisco and Seattle were expected to battle it out for the other two first division spots with Oakland and San Diego trailing.

Aside from many new playing faces, the 1946 season will mark the coast league managerial debut of Casey Stengel, who skippered Boston Braves and Brooklyn Dodgers during a colorful major league career. He will manage Oakland.

Already granted triple "A" rating, the coast league hopes through increased attendances this year to pave the way to future recognition as a third major league. To this end, remodeling is underway at most of the parks to add to seating capacities and provide refinements.

A total of 183 games will be played by each club over 154 days, the pennant race ending Sept. 22 to be followed by the championship play-offs.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By GEORGE H. CARVER.

THE KING HAS A BIRTHDAY

There was an argument here the other day anent the age of Man 'O War, that grand nag that kicked his way home to one of the biggest all-time purses in history. For H. B.'s sake and argument, today is the old fellow's 29th birthday and here is what N'Yawk critics say about him:

His back is not as straight as it once was nor is his neck as gracefully crested. He's getting old, terribly old as horses are measured. Today Man o' War will reach his twenty-ninth birthday, which makes him the equine equivalent of an octogenarian. But the proud look of a thoroughbred is in every line of him. Big Red is still the king, a majestic figure of unparalleled glamor and appeal.

Perhaps his birthday has much more significance this time than any other. He was the first of these tremendous personalities — yes, even a horse can have personality — who gave us the Golden Age of Sports shortly after the First World War. Hence, he almost becomes a symbol in his declining years, a link between the post-war boom we saw and the even greater post-war boom we expect.

No one dreamed, of course, that the wobbly-legged foal that Mahubah dropped on Mar. 29, 1917, would grow into the sleek chestnut colt which captured the imagination of the public as no animal ever did before or since. Persons who never saw a horse outside of a milk wagon and who never witnessed a race knew all there was to know about Big Red. Even today, if you were to stop some stranger in the street and ask him quickly to name one horse, he'd probably stutter slightly and blurt, "er, er — Man o' War."

It's well to remember, too, that Man o' War hasn't raced since 1920. From the standpoint of sheer glamour, the only horse which could challenge him was that lovable bag of bones, Exterminator. Perhaps Big Red wasn't the greatest colt that America ever produced. Some experts stick stubbornly to unbeaten Colin or Domino or Sysonby or Whirlaway or Exterminator. But to the man on the street, at least, he was and is in a class by himself.

METEORIC CAREER

His racing career was comparatively brief, since he competed only as a 2-year-old and as a 3-year-old. He won twenty of twenty-one tests, being beaten only once as a juvenile by the ironically named Upset. His earnings were almost a quarter of a million dollars as a racer, but as a sire he fathered the victors of some 1,200 races who won approximately three and a quarter million dollars.

But even the purses that the son of Fair Play drew down are no basis for comparison. In six major tests, for instance, he corralled the sum of $96,325. Those six were the Hopeful, Futurity, Preakness, Belmont, Dwyer and Travers. Know the value of those six last season? Nope? Well, they amounted to more than three times as much or $294,495. With the increase in stake rewards this year, he'd have been competing in the even more lush campaign of 1946 instead.

• • •

It shouldn't be assumed that Man o' War came a quarter of a century or so before his time. That hardly rings true any more than it would be true to say that the other vivid figures of the Golden Decade—Babe Ruth, Jack Dempsey, Bobby Jones, Bill Tilden, Red Grange, Tommy Hitchcock and those other immortals—came too soon. They are the firm foundations on which the rest of the sport structure was built. To them everyone owes a vote of thanks.

Just as they left some imperishable—or almost imperishable—marks behind them, so did Man o' War leave a couple for the present generation to remember him by. One is his world record of 2:14 1/5 for a mile and three-eights and the other is 2:40 4/5 for a mile and five-eighths. He held many more in his day, but the inexorable march of time swept them away, just as his final two records will be some day surpassed, even though they've managed to endure for an extraordinarily long while.

Almost a Legend

Big Red has become an almost legendary figure in turf circles. There even are a few who insist that his lone defeat was not the fluke it was popularly supposed to be. They claim that he misbehaved at the post in the Sanford Stakes, got off badly, was a victim of racing luck and had an ill-judged ride by the usually clever Johnny Loftus. These historians declare quite firmly that his hardest race was in the Potomac Handicap when he had to carry 138 pounds over a heavy track to Wildair's feather of 108. Again he was away badly, but on this occasion he ran all over the field to win.

Most will disagree with the above explanation of his conquest by Upset. As eye-witnesses saw it, an inexperienced starter was given the task of getting the colts away in the too-brief six-furlong sprint. Three times Golden Broom broke through barriers, pulling Upset with him. Is it any wonder that Man o' War was more fractious than usual?

Although a phenomenally fast starter in his own right, Big Red was left flat-footed at the getaway. Some say he even had wheeled sideways as the field changed under way. But, once he shifted into high gear, there was no stopping him—except the end of the race. The big chestnut came whirling up like the hammers of Thor—fourth, third, second, but not quite first. Given a couple more strides, and he'd have made it. He didn't, though, and hence the catchy phrase, "Upset by Upset," will live forever in turf annals.

So great was he and so seemingly invincible that on three separate occasions he was favored by the phenomenal odds of 1 to 100. Never was he anything but a favorite from his very first start on, with the shortest price ever offered on him being 9—10 for a race he won with ridiculous ease by two lengths. In the Dwyer Stakes only one rival dared go to the post with him, the highly regarded John P. Grier. That was the test in which, they say, he "broke the heart of John P. Grier."

Big Red is almost in his dotage now. And, if horses have memories, Man o' War has the richest ones of them all.

Ottawa Senators, Winnipeg Orioles Now Out of Race

(By The Canadian Press)

Two more teams were eliminated in senior hockey play-downs last night, leaving only six teams across the country in the fight for the Allan Cup and the Canadian senior amateur title. Montreal Royals beat Ottawa Senators 5-2 and Calgary Stampeders defeated Winnipeg Orioles 8-2.

In the only junior game of the night Winnipeg Monarchs beat Edmonton Canadians 5-1 to tie up the western final, a best-of-seven series, at one victory each, four junior teams are still contending in the east.

At Montreal the Royals skated rings around the Ottawa Senators to win the best-of-seven Quebec senior title by four games to one. The Royals now await the winner of the other eastern semi-final between Hamilton Tigers and Pembroke Lumber Kings.

At Calgary the Stampeders ended their best-of-five western senior semi-final by winning the third straight game against Winnipeg Orioles. The Stampeders will meet the winner of the British Columbia final which resumes tonight between New Westminster and Trail, with the teams tied 2-2 in a best-of-five duel.

Only one junior game is carded tonight, the second game of the best-of-three series between Montreal Canadiens and Ottawa St. Pats, an eastern semi-final at Ottawa. Montreal won the first game. The winner here will clash with the winner of the Toronto St. Michaels-Copper Cliff Redmen series for the eastern title.

STRATFORD WINS SERIES

The first game of the series was played here Monday night, and ended in a three-all tie.

The Telephone—by Jack Martin, O.S.A., C.P.E.

The Wonder of the Age

YOU CRANKED A HANDLE and put a little gadget to your ear and listened—then lo and behold! A voice spoke to you!

That was the telephone of the '80's, given to the world by the labours of Alexander Graham Bell in his Brantford workshop. But to the rural women of the day, it was more than miraculous. It was deliverance from the bleak isolation that they had thought would always be the lot of a farmer's family.

No longer in times of sickness would children have to suffer and perhaps die for the want of prompt medical attention or advice. No longer would the dawn to dusk toil of women be unrelieved by the sound of a friendly voice.

In the cities, businessmen were quick to make use of this new means of communication. In rural areas the telephone was among the first of many inventions that were to bring the comforts and conveniences of urban life to the farmhouses of Canada.

Thus, the telephone was a great unifying element that brought Canadians together to work side by side for the common good. It fostered the co-operation that was the foundation of the national spirit of the pioneers and which, in the future, can and will be the inspiration for the greater development of a Canada Unlimited.

Today in our purchase and holding of Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates, we have another unifying element with which to build a shining future for our nation.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

LESSON NO. 943

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

All who play bridge are not bridge players. The play of some can be presented in three acts; laying them down, picking them up, and putting them in neat little piles without a pitchfork.

As a bridge player, when partner leads a card, it really means something to you. If it is a small card, it tells you that he has either three cards higher or no higher cards in that suit.

To learn which, you can overtax your braincells. Or you can use an aid that cuts down your figuring needs. This aid is in the form of a rule; the rule of 11 (eleven.)

The rule of 11 is the surest rule in bridge. It works like this. Subtract the led card from 11. The balance shows how many higher cards in that suit are held by the other three hands.

When you first read that sentence, it may be as clear as mud. So, I'll break it up into little bitty pieces. Then, with a few illustrations, the simplicity of it will bust in on you.

When a small card is led, assume it is a fourth best. Look at the numeral on that card. Deduct that numeral from numeral 11. That will tell you the difference between the led card and 11.

That difference will tell you (1) the number of cards higher than the led card (2) in that suit (3) to be held by the other three players (all the hands except the leader's.)

In the four hands of a deal, the clubs were as shown here:

NORTH
♣A Q 8 3
WEST EAST
♣J 9 7 2 ♣K 10 5
SOUTH

West leads the deuce. The numeral on the led card is two. Subtract the numeral two from 11. The answer is nine. So, north and east and south must have a total of nine clubs higher than the two.

It is impossible for the rule of 11 ever to be wrong. If it was ever wrong, all the mathematics in the world would be wrong.

The rule of 11 is surer than taxes.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, March 29 — (AP) —At a time when more and more movie stars are free-lancing, Lucille Ball says she's getting tied up to a studio contract again.

"Yes, I'm going back to a nice, well-cushioned rut," she says. "I signed with M.G.M. again." Lucille left M.G.M. when her contract expired several months ago and did some free-lancing. I asked her why she is returning to her old haunt.

"More money, for one thing," she admitted. "Besides, I don't trust myself. How should I know what's good for me — I'm only an actress. Many times I have thought that a story is great and then it turns out to be a stinker. I need to have some studio brains to watch out for me."

Warm weather wasn't entirely responsible for that bobby-sox run on a soda fountain near a Hollywood high school.

Film actor Dana Andrews, natty in a soda dispensers' jacket and cap, was behind the counter.

The story goes that Andrews is soon to play the role of a soft drink clerk — sometimes known as soda jerk — in a forthcoming film. So, to pick up the tricks of the business, he attended a school conducted by a drug store chain.

Graduating with honors, he demonstrated his proficiency at a drug store that just happened to be near Hollywood high school. And the kids just happened to find out about it. The studio press department thinks there must have been a leak somewhere.

Singer Burl Ives' hobo days are all over. He has bought a 400-acre ranch up the coast . . . practical George Montgomery took out rain insurance until his swimming pool is completed . . . Rocky Graziano To Meet Servo

By TED MEIER

New York, March 29 (AP)—Rockey Graziano, the ring's newest welterweight "killer", gets his chance at Marty Servo, the new 147-pound boss, in a 10-round non-title affair at Madison Square Garden tonight.

A sellout crowd of close to 19,000 persons who already have pair around $170,000 at $20 tops will sit in on this affair between the Brooklyn clouter and the baby-faced lad from Schenectady.

The gross is a record for other than heavyweight scraps at the Garden and boosts promoter Mike Jacobs' take for 13 shows this year to over $1,000,000.

Rocky, a middleweight who jumped into the fistic limelight last year with a sensational stretchings of Billy Arnold, Harold Green, Bummy Davis and the ten welterweight champion Freddie (Red) Cochrane, is a 5-to-6 choice to add Servo to his string.

With his striking black hair and roughhouse tactics in the ring, Rocky has become a gallery idol, but canny Al Weill, manager of Servo, has studied Rocky's style and may spring a surprise. He has not overlooked the fact that it twice took Rocky 10 rounds to flatten Cochrane while Marty stiffened the Elizabeth, N.J., redhead in four rounds in their title bout Feb. 1.

BASKETBALL

Belleville Y Junior girls took another win from Picton girls last night at the Y, the score being 31-12. The Picton team was greatly improved over their last appearance, but the local girls had also brushed up on their play. At half time the score stood at 23-2 for Belleville, and the girls eased up a little in the second half which proved a mistake, for Picton outscored them 10-8 in this period.

The Intermediate Girls took an exhibition from a team of older boys to top the evening. Down 15-13 at the half, they released a strong passing attack in the second half to outscore the boys 23-12, making the final score 36-27, to take revenge for a one point beating the boys administered last week. Peg Ronsky with 11 and Peewee Lepore with 8 led the girls in point getting.

The girls' teams are reaching a point which should carry them well along in the Provincial championship next weekend. The teams:

BUFFALO BISONS ENTER FINALS OF AMERICAN LOOP

Defeat Capitals While the Barons and Pittsburgh Are Tied in Their Bracket

(By The Canadian Press)

Buffalo Bisons last night qualified to enter the finals of the American Hockey League by downing Indianapolis Capitals 4-2 for their fourth victory in five starts in the best-of-seven semi-final series. They now tackle either Pittsburgh Hornets or Cleveland Barons, whose best-of-three semi-final bracket is tied at a game apiece following a 6-5 Pittsburgh victory last night.

At Buffalo, the Bisons, playing before a crowd of 10,302 customers, took the lead in the first period only to have the Capitals come back early in the second to tie up the game. The home team then scored twice before the period ended and added another early in the final frame, with the only Indianapolis reply coming near the end of the game.

At Pittsburgh, the Barons opened the scoring but were down 4-1 at the end of the second period. Three quick goals early in the 3rd period, however, tied up the game before the Hornets again went into the lead. Cleveland again came from behind to knot the count but a long shot by Pete Backor, five minutes before the end of the game, was the deciding factor.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

CHAPTER 16

"Rogers," his sister-in-law said in a low tone, a tone changed suddenly from the angry and scornful one she had at first used to one of nervous appeal, "you can't do this! Think of the family. Think of the talk. Do anything you like—we'll all do anything you like," she began, "but not anything as—as ridiculous as this!"

"Well, Geraldine, I like that, don't you?" Rogers asked.

Dina was incapable of speech.

"Our marriage ridiculous?" Rogers echoed "Why is it? What's ridiculous about it?"

"I'm not going to say anything more because I know you're not serious." Caroline said breathing quickly.

"I'm quite serious."

"You'll make yourself a laughing stock, Rogers!"

"Not any more than Aline, assisted by some dear women friends, has made me for twenty years. To be jilted twice by the same woman, I think that's a record for making an ass of myself," Rogers said.

"Aline discovered that she had made a mistake, that her feelings had changed; that's a natural thing for anyone to do," Caroline said hotly. "It has nothing whatever to do with your taking a step like this? Sacrificing your life to a ridiculous idea of gallantry or chivalry or I don't know what!"

"I'm forty-one, Caroline; quite a large slice of my life has been sacrificed already, with no particular purpose gained." Rogers reminded her mildly. "It seems to me it is Geraldine who is doing the sacrificing. A girl of nineteen—That's all she is, Caroline—coming in here to brighten up my old house. I assure you I feel quite rejuvenated at the thought of it."

"You'll not feel so rejuvenated when everyone begins to talk about you—and about her," Carolin countered angrily.

"Why should they talk?" the man inquired blandly.

"Why shouldn't they! You don't think I'm going to keep quiet about what I know just because you do?"

"It seems to me," the man mused, "that might hurt a boy of Vere's age more than a man of mine. After all, my property will go to my wife.

"Well, we'll see," Caroline muttered. But she was worsted; she was losing face and she knew it. "What will be said about Miss Cashman won't especially help her or you either," she added in a little spurt of viciousness.

"Then it will be said of my wife," Rogers said, his own anger rising to meet hers. "It will be said about my wife—and my child. That child will be a Holland after all, won't he? Go as far as you like, Caroline; say what you please. It won't reach Geraldine and me half as fast as it will you!"

Caroline Holland sat erect; a little stain of real color crept up under the artificial color that was so delicately added to her cheeks.

"I don't see any particular object in prolonging this," she presently said. "I appreciate your attempt to bully me into doing what you wanted about this, Rogers, but it has failed. Good afternoon. If you really—if you really cheat Vere out of — but you won't! Let me know when you come to your senses!"

Neither Dina nor Rogers moved or spoke after she had gone until the crunch of her car wheels on the drive outside were heard. Then Rogers put his head down on his crossed arms and began to laugh deeply and noiselessly. When he raised his head Dina saw that his eyes were full of actual tears of mirth.

The car went on and on through an uncertainty of rain and of Spring sunshine, on between the flat bay meadows that were rich with deep green grass, through the little towns whose corners were occupied by gas stations and marked by roadside signs.

"We're coming into Reno," Rogers said. "Ever been here before?"

"No. I'm going to be sick," said Dina, whose mouth was marked by lines of green.

He picked up the speaking tube; the car drew up beside the road.

"Get out and walk about a bit. You'll be all right."

Dina staggered to a fence, clung to it. The day was very warm and the spot happened to be completely unprotected; the sun beat down on her bare head.

"I'm so sorry about this," she whispered, getting back into the car after a wretched interval, wiping her colorless lips and her wet eyes. "I've been like this every morning for a month now." She smiled. "So it wasn't the drive."

"You're not being let off anything, are you?"

"Not much."

"I've been thinking about our marriage" said Rogers I think the thing for me to do is stop in at your house tonight, meet your people, explain that we've been married, and then take you home."

"You wouldn't tell them—about me, I mean?"

"Oh no, no; I won't tell them anything, ever, that you don't want me to. You don't want to do that?" he asked, impressed by her visible distress. "Why not? It's the only dignified way, Geraldine, for both of us."

"But it's not fair to you!" she burst out suddenly, red-cheeked. "You—you're doing this for me; I can't do anything for you! My father—and my sisters, maybe—they might come to the house — and I don't know what they'd want or what I'd do, and I couldn't stand them bothering you and apologizing for them! Because"—Dina struggled on against a rising tide of wild tears now—"I love them. I can't help it—"

"Calm down," he said firmly, interrupted her by closing a heavy, gloved hand over hers. "I'll take care of that if it comes along. I'm asking you to do what I want you to do. I like the idea of having a sweet woman at the head of my table, someone to talk to, someone to listen to me. I've not wanted to marry since Anne died until Aline came along and all the old feeling came back. Perhaps I've never wanted to marry at all. But I like company. I'll like very much showing you stamps, taking you on a walk now and then, having you round. You needn't worry about me."

Dina considered it. She was tired now, her face pale and strained.

"I'll do what you want me to do," she said simply.

"Then we'll stop for a few minutes at your house and go our way. We'll tell your people. and for everyone else it can filter out by degrees. I haven't much hope that we can keep it a secret very long," Rogers went on, "and we don't want newspaper people prowling around your father's place—or mine."

"I should hope not!" Dina agreed fervently.

"I'll go in for a moment tonight, meet them all, and then we'll go off on a supposed honeymoon. Don't worry," he added unsmilingly as the color rushed into Dina's face; "what I feel for you isn't that sort of thing at all. I know where your affections are. Instead of Del Monte we'll go home; Mrs. Bucket will have dinner ready at half-past seven or bring you up a tray. And that's another thing," he added, "about Mrs. Bucket. She spoke of you this morning as 'Mrs. Holland.' She asked if Mrs. Holland would like her breakfast in bed, said she knew you had been feeling ill in the mornings."

A little after six o'clock, they reached Railway Flats. At Dina's somewhat timid suggestion Hall and the car were left waiting on the main street of Bonita, some three blocks away.

Two hours later, a little after six o'clock, they reached Railway Flats. Dina and Rogers picked their way through the unsavory lanes and along the plank sidewalks.

The Cashmans were at supper. Dina had known what sort of a picture must greet Rogers' eyes as she opened the door, but even her imagination and familiarity could hardly have painted the details more glaringly.

Everything that was characteristic of supper-time flurry and disorder was there; her father, mustached and lean and suspicious, was in his shirt sleeves, his chair squared about from the table, a handleless cup in his fingers. Her mother, incredibly frowsy of hair, a saucepan in one hand and a spoon in the other, was standing by the stove.

The children were scattered about; little Donny and Myrna and Dooley on chairs, Art half standing, half leaning against the sink, Lou beside Myrna, Ei'ner had stopped at the bedroom door in what was evidently a tearful retreat from the room.

The air was thick with smoke, grease, and steam; every surface of chair or table or sinkboard that could be used was crowded with odds and ends of food, dirty pans and knives, dishcloths, paper bags, sweaters, schoolbooks, rubbers, plates.

"Mama," said Dina without preamble, closing the door behind herself and Rogers and backing up against him, "this is Mr. Holland, and he and I were married today!"

An electrified silence followed this announcement, then John Cashman spoke heavily.

"What are you saying?"

The children set up an excited babble of questions, exclamations, and cries of surprise, through which Dina's mother said sharply:

"Why Dina what do you mean by going and doing a thing like that!"

The girl glanced up over her shoulder at Rogers. His appearance was not entirely reassuring. He had worn an old raincoat on this uncertain day; his fair, thin hair was mussed about his round, owlish face; his eyes bulged behind their strong glasses.

"We were married in Reno at two o'clock today," he said. "Witnesses and all. What were the witnesses' names, Geraldine?"

"I don't remember." In a sudden rush of love for them all, longing to be back in her old place with them all, she had gone to her mother and put her arms about the slatternly figure.

"Well, I have it here." Rogers took a folded paper from his pocket; afterward she thought how deliberately he had managed that her father should see this evidence of the marriage, but at the time it seemed strangely unimportant.

"Married?" Dina's father was demanding with hostility. He hesitated, weakened. "You've got money to provide for her properly, I suppose?"

"Why, you said Vere was a college boy, Dina!" her mother wailed. "I don't know what possest you to do such a thing! Why on earth didn't you—"

"I'm not Vere," Rogers interpolated; "I'm his uncle."

"His uncle!" Mrs. Cashman gasped.

"I don't understand it and I don't like it," Dina's father said without any particular emphasis.

"It seems funny you marrying anybody's uncle!" Myrna put in.

"I guess Dina knows what she's doing," Art said in his raw boy's voice. He walked over to her and kissed her, said: "Congratulations, sis."

Dina clung to him.

"I'm sorry if I've upset any of you," she stammered, turning to face the circle. "We just decided it lately."

"I assure you I'll take very good care of her," Rogers told them, looking at her father as he spoke.

"Well, I don't doubt that, don't doubt that," John Cashman muttered, mollified. "Here, sit down."

"And let us get you something to eat." The situation was reducing itself to elements Dina's mother understood. "Dooley," she said, "you run over to Meyer's—he'll be open—"

"No, no, no!" Dina protested.

'No thanks just the same. We're going home to dinner." Rogers looked immense and alien as he stood there among them in his raincoat, peering through his glasses.

"Oh, Dina, don't go away!" Lou wailed. Dina kissed her.

"I'll come back," she began to feel tired and weak; she had had eight hours of driving on a changeable Spring day; the motion of the car still was with her.

She sat down suddenly and asked Art for some water, which he gave her in a cracked old jelly glass, and things went on being dream-like and unreal. Rogers explained that the long trip had upset Geraldine and that she was tired.

"Reno! You don't mean that you were just divorced!" her mother exclaimed.

"Oh no. My wife died five years ago. But in Reno you can arrange a marriage easier than in San Francisco."

Then they were out in the muddy lane again, the Cashmans gathering against the red light of the doorway to wish them bewildered good-byes. Rogers gave Dina his arm over the planks and puddles, and she got into the car and sank into her seat feeling that at any minute she might faint.

After that it was effort upon effort. An effort to get out of the car, to mount the steps to the Holland doorway, to climb the stairway within; an effort to show her ring to Mrs. Bucket and begin to take off her clothes.

But the piled pillows of the old mahogany bed were deep and soft, and her icy feet struck a hot-water bottle between the smooth thick sheets. There was a tray with soup and chicken on it, and a blazing coal fire, and softened lights. Dina lay deep in luxury as if she would never move again. She ate languidly, soon satisfied, smiled her acknowledgment when Mrs. Bucket put two books on her bedside table.

"I picked 'em for you because I used to like 'em, but they're real old-timy," the housekeeper said.

"Oh, thank you!"

"Mr. Holland said to say good night to you and that if you felt badly tomorrow we'd telephone Doctor Lilienthal."

"I won't. I really feel fine and am glad my people know!" Dina stretched out her hand on the blankets. "Thank you for everything," she said, her tone saying much more than her words.

For a long time she lay still after the housekeeper had left her. Her thoughts surged about aimlessly—now a feeling of wonder that Papa had not made more of a scene, now a regret that Myrna had chanced to wash her hair that afternoon and had had it bound up in a rag.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma still reads her nervous book every day, the name of it being Relaxation, the Key to Happiness, and tonight we had stead under onions for supper, and pop said, This is my idea of a really tender steak wouldn't use my knife on it at all if it wasn't for appearances, he said.

There's quite a little history of relaxation attached to the buying of that steak, ma said, and pop said, I'm a keen student of history, do you mind if I take a few notes?

The butcher at the market still keeps you waiting in line as though he hadn't the slightest inkling that the war is over, really, I mean really, ma said But today I didn't mind, because according to my relaxation book there's no more useful time to practice complete relaxation that while you're standing in an otherwise tense line, and this afternoon was my golden opportunity to try it. My dear, would you believe it, I relaxed so expertly I fell sound asleep, she said, and pop said, What, standing up on your feet?

Well, I started in that position, but I was aroused from a pleasant dreem by the voice of the woman behind me saying, "Madam, do you realize you are sitting on my hip?" Naturelly I said I was sorry and I told her that I must of dozed off,(and she snapped back that she wished I would doze off on my hips. In other werds she was in a state of unrelaxed irritable tension, but I stuck to my relaxed guns and exchanged a pleasant smile for every one of her tense glares. In other werds I took the whole incident with a fillosopical relaxed grain of salt, and I'm sure I felt much more composed than that other woman when I walked out of that market with this steak, ma said.

Being the end of the subject and pritty near of the steak.

Edmonton, March 29 —(CP)— All Edmonton police were ordered out Thursday in search of a gunman who shot and seriously wounded Julian Survilla about 4:50 a.m. Thursday morning after what witnesses termed an argument over the purchase of a bottle of liquor.

Survilla was taken to hospital suffering from a chest wound. His condition was described as good.

William Bohozyk Remanded Week

Hamilton, March 29 —(CP)— William Bohozyk, 27, husky Hamilton oarsman charged with possession of an unregistered pistol was remanded in custody Thursday for a week and Defence Counsel William Schrieber said he will move for a writ of habeas corpus for release of Bohozyk "if the Crown prefers no new charge or is not prepared to proceed on the present one in a week's time."

Bohozyk was arrested March 20 by police officers assigned to investigation of the torso-slaying of John Dick, 40, whose estranged wife has been charged with murder. Charges of having an unregistered revolver and of vagrancy were laid but police said at that time there was no connection with the Dick case.

Bohozyk has been held in custody since his arrest and his counsel said Thursday that he was not applying for bail "because I knew the Crown would oppose it."

Mother's Leg Bone Given for Infant

New Orleans, March 29 — (CP) —The line from Genesis, "This is now bone of my bones," has a literal meaning for Mrs. Albert Gussman, 31, of Morgan City, La.

Mrs. Gussman is recovering from an operation performed on her right leg at Charity hospital here to provide bone for the left leg of her 15-months-old son Wade, so that he might walk.

"Wade was born with a cyst on his leg," Mrs. Gussman related. "We brought him to Charity hospital about seven months ago. Doctors said that he might be cured if bone could be grafted on his leg. Because she was so frail, doctors at first suggested that her husband give bone from his leg.

"I wanted to do it because we are poor people and my husband has to work in the shipyard to take care of me and the six children," she continued.

A 10-inch scar now remains on Mrs. Gussman's leg, and she walks with a limp, which doctors say will disappear. Her blue-eyed son's left leg is still in a cast.

Hon. R. Maitland, Attorney General Of B.C., Dies

Vancouver, March 29 —(CP)— Hon. R. L. Maitland, Attorney-General of British Columbia, died Thursday, aged 57. He was taken to hospital a week ago with influenza and his condition took a turn for the worse Wednesday. He was a native of Ingersoll, Ont.

Mr. Maitland was leader of the Progressive Conservative party in British Columbia and coalition member of the legislature for Vancouver Point Grey. He had been attorney-general since December, 1941, after the coalition government was formed by the Liberal and Conservative groups in the House.

He was educated in Vancouver.

Surviving are his widow, the former Ruth Hildred Mills from Annapolis Royal, N.S., and four children.

Public May Enter To Limit of Seating Magistrate States

Ottawa, March 28 (CP)—H. L. Cartwright of Kingston, a defence counsel in the espionage hearings protested today that the public was being excluded from the courtroom.

He wanted "no more secret trials...there have been too many already." He said the police on the doors had orders to keep the public out.

There were open spaces in the few public benches when he spoke.

Magistrate Glenn Strike said no orders had been issued excluding the public generally. The public could enter to the limit of the available seats.

Says He Will Not Change His Religion

Toronto, March 28 —(CP)— Emil Starr said today he would not change his religion in order to obtain a one-third share of the estate of his mother, Mrs. Mary Starr, who died last August.

Under the terms of Mrs. Starr's will, her son was given six months to return to the Roman Catholic faith or forfeit his share of the $7,500 estate, receiving only $500.

Mr. Justice G. A. Urquhart set aside the religious clause in the will following legal action, but two weeks ago Ontario Court of Appeal reversed the decision.

Back on the JOB!

Of the 2,500 Bell employees who enlisted for war service, over 1,700 are back on the job. They have been given refresher courses to bring them up to date or to help them recapture their old skills.

Ninety per cent of those returning want to continue in telephone work. Eventually, we expect thirty-seven per cent of our entire male staff to be veterans of World War II.

There's lots of work waiting for them.

Our big job right now is to clean up delayed orders and we are losing no time. No less than 75,000 telephones have been installed since V-E Day.

Telephone instruments will soon be in better supply. Central office apparatus is the real problem. It takes time to make and instal this highly complicated apparatus. That's why applicants in areas where switchboards are full will still have to wait some time for service.

We promise it won't be a minute longer than necessary.

Soviet Secret Police Active In Canada Before '43

Third Interim Report Made Public by the Commission

Ottawa, March 30. (CP)—Possibility of new detentions in Canada's espionage investigation was seen today as the Royal Commission probing spy activities continued its investigation despite a third interim report which yesterday officially identified the last five of the persons so far detained.

The Commission's latest report, a 6,000-word document, threw new light on activities of the organization providing secret information to the Soviet and concluded with a statement that "there remain a number of witnesses still to be heard."

Most spectacular disclosure was that the Soviet Secret Police organization N.K.V.D. had been active in Canada "long before" 1943. The Commission said it had evidence of such activities and had been informed by Igor Gourenko, former Soviet Embassy cipher clerk and key witness in the probe, that "Pavlov" was an N.K.V.D. man and perhaps top man in the Embassy.

(Vitali G. Pavlov is a second secretary at the Embassy. Embassy officials said he was still in Ottawa.)

How much longer the Commission's enquiry, which dates back to early February, will take was uncertain but persons closely in touch with developments expressed the opinion it would be some days at least before it was completed. Persons still to be examined, the Commission disclosed, include some identified in papers provided by Igor Gouzenko, former Soviet Embassy cipher clerk and key witness; some named in other documents and some named in evidence given before the Commission.

13 Face Formal Charges

The 13 persons the Commission has so far reported as believed to have been involved in espionage now all face formal charges of violating the Official Secrets Act, thus placing them under the jurisdiction of ordinary courts rather than the Commission.

Likelihood of further detentions, already predicted by well-informed officials, was also heightened by the fact the report released yesterday referred to some unidentified persons as being active in the case.

The five whose activities formed the basis of yesterday's report were:

Eric Adams, Ottawa and Montrael, former highly placed official of the Munitions Department and more recently chief of the Industrial Development Bank, Investigation branch.

James S. Benning, 38, Ottawa Munition and Reconstruction Department official.

Intense Interest Shown on Eve Greek Elections

By L. S. CHAKALES

Athens, March 30. (AP)—Greek Leftists today intensified their campaign for a boycott of tomorrow's elections in protest against what they described as a "Royalist coup" to return King George II to the throne.

Simultaneously, the Royalists stepped up their campaign. Thousands of pictures of the King, captioned "He's Coming Back", were distributed throughout the country.

Police took precautions to forestall any disturbances on election day. British troops stood by to maintain order.

Loudspeakers blared and Athens buildings were covered with posters, as candidates on four tickets—running for 354 seats in the Greek parliament—made their last appeals to the voters.

Some observers predicted the Populist Party, which is dominantly Royalist, would win as many as 200 seats.

The new parliament will meet May 13.

A police patrol clashed last night with about 500 Communists outside the Athens Labor centre. Police said the Communists were about to start distribution of anti-election leaflets, and said six shots were fired from the Labor centre roof.

Two persons were wounded slightly yesterday when some 300 persons, described as Leftists, attempted to paste up boycott posters.

Newspaper Publishers To Convene Next Week

Toronto, March 30 —(CP)—Post-war problems of Canada's newspapers and their news-gathering co-operative will be discussed next week when publishers and executives gather in Toronto at annual meetings of The Canadian Press, The Canadian Daily Newspapers Association, Press News Limited, CP's Radio Affiliate, and the Empire Press Union.

Developments of CP's domestic and Empire news coverage, newsprint rationing and furthering of press freedom will be among subjects considered during the busy "newspaper week."

Officers of Press News began their annual meeting today and adjourned until Wednesday. Canadian Press directors meet Monday and Tuesday and on Wednesday the CP annual meeting will hear the presidential address of Senator W. A. Buchanan of the Lethbridge Herald and the report of General Manager Gillis Purcell on the CP's year.

Monday and Tuesday C.D.N.A. members will be busy in committee meetings discussing advertising policy, newsprint supply and press freedom. The C.D.N.A. board, headed by President R. M. Cantion of the Saskatoon Star-Phoenix, will meet Thursday, with the annual meeting set for that day and Friday. Ian H. Macdonald is the Association's general manager.

M. E. Nichols, former vice-president and publisher of the Vancouver Province, who is retiring from The Canadian Press after many years of service as president, director and member, will be guest of honor at the annual CP luncheon on Wednesday. The C.D.N.A. annual luncheon will be held Thursday.

The Empire Press Union annual meeting, on Wednesday, will discuss preparations for the sixth imperial press conference at London in June.

Undue Emphasis on Juvenile Delinquency Is Called Distorting

Kirkland Lake, March 30. (CP)—Undue emphasis on juvenile delinquency through the press is distorting the situation in the minds of the Canadian public, Dr. Stuart Jaffrey of the University of Toronto's School of Social Work told a Northern Ontario conference of Children's Aid Society workers here last night.

Dr. Jaffrey said that juvenile delinquency in Canada was not as serious today as many believed. It was currently at the lowest level in Canada's history, he said.

U. S. TO GET RID OF TEN WARSHIPS

Washington, March 30 —(AP)—The United States Navy proposes to get rid of the battleships Idaho and New Mexico and eight cruisers as the result of proposed cuts of about $2,000,000,000 in its budget, it was announced yesterday. The navy declined to explain what was meant by the term "disposed of."

GORDON MOVES TO END ILLEGAL MARKET IN LUMBER

Increase of Eight P. C. In Wholesale And Mill Price Takes Effect April 1

Ottawa, March 30 (CP)—A broad program aimed at ending black market trading in lumber and ensuring adequate supplies of grades and types required by the domestic market was announced today by Donald Gordon, Price Board Chairman.

Main points of the program are:

1. A general increase in the mill and wholesale price ceiling of eight per cent. F.O.B. seller's premises, effective April 1. No increase in retail prices.

2. Warning that if total required supplies are not available consideration will be given to reducing exports without additional domestic price adjustments.

3. Action by the timber administrator in directing appropriate grades to the domestic market.

4. All domestic sales contracts, with the exception of the Vancouver forest district, must be approved by the timber administrator.

Mr. Gordon said the action was taken following a series of discussions with various branches of the lumber industry.

"It is clear from our investigations that a great many irregular practices have crept into the marketing of lumber and that shortages of suitable types of lumber for the domestic market are becoming so acute that many reputable dealers are finding great difficulty in securing supplies in the face of improper methods being followed by less scrupulous competitors," Mr. Gordon said.

"While the situation is undoubtedly bad the board in co-operation with the industry is taking immediate and far-reaching steps to deal with it. A squad of qualified and experienced lumber graders has been provided by the industry and will go into action at once with intensive investigation of shipments of lumber to various consumers where up-grading or other improper evasions of price ceilings are suspected.

"Prosecutions will be launched at once where evidence is secured and arrangements have been completed for surprise checks on a countrywide basis."

The board said the increase now permitted at the mill and wholesale level would, in effect, leave retail yards on the same price basis as at May, 1945, when the eight per cent sales tax was abolished.

The price revision applied to both soft and hardwood production. The board made no statement about the effect of these increases on users of lumber but said an adequate supply of the right kind of lumber should go far to reduce costs.

"The existing demand in domestic and foreign markets is so enormous that sky-rocketing prices would ensue if price and distribution controls were lifted," Mr. Gordon said.

DEVELOPED INSTANT COFFEE

Mendham, N.J., March 30—(AP)— George Washington, 75, developer of an instant coffee and founder in 1910 of the G. Washington Coffee Co., died Thursday night at his home here after a short illness. He had retired from active participation in the business which he sold in 1943 to the American Home Products Co.

Germany Had No Advance Word Of Jap Attack Says Von Ribbentrop

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

Nuernberg, March 30 —(AP)—Joachim von Ribbentrop denied emphatically before the International Military Tribunal today that Germany had advance information on the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor naval base and declared: "It was something we never wanted."

He testified that the primary aim of the tri-partite pact signed by Germany, Italy and Japan was "above all to keep the United States out of the war and thereby isolate England."

The attack on the base Dec. 7, 1941, brought the United States into the war.

"We tried repeatedly to get Japan to attack the British Empire at Hong Kong and Singapore and to attack Russia," the former German foreign minister asserted.

"But Japan did neither of these things, but a third thing — one which we had never considered or wanted.

"We always considered the tripartite pact a defensive one, with the primary aim of keeping the United States non-belligerent . . . When Japan's attack on Pearl Harbor came, it was a surprise even to their ambassador Oshima in Berlin."

The ex-Foreign Minister gave the tribunal his version of the history of the Second Great War—the allegation that practically all Europe, even little Belgium and Luxembourg, was plotting against Germany. Therefore, he said, Hitler "decided he had to strike first."

"In the winter of 1940-41," he continued, 'Hitler faced this situation: England was not yet ready to make peace. We could not be sure of Japan, despite the tripartite pact. Italy had showed herself to be a weak sister. The United States was becoming more hostile to Germany, though we were trying to keep her out of the war. Russia, despite our non-aggression pact, had shown an attitude giving us great misgivings. Hitler figured he might some day have to face Britain and America on one side and Russia on the other moving against Germany. All these reasons made Hitler decide on a preventive war against Russia."

Four Cents a Pound Increase in Butter Prices on Monday

Ottawa, March 30 — (CP)—A four cents a pound increase in creamery butter prices at all levels will become effective throughout Canada on Monday, the Prices Board announced today.

Prices for dairy and whey butter will remain at their present levels.

The move, reported yesterday by The Canadian Press to be under active consideration by the federal cabinet, followed presentation to the government of a Canadian Federation of Agriculture brief in which a four-cent increase in the floor price of butter was urged "to relate its price more equitably to prices of other dairy products."

The federation said the decline in butter production was a direct result of low prces, and that dairy production generally was hampered by farm labor shortages, higher labor costs, lower food value in feeds and lack of new equipment.

The price increase came as Canadians were stretching out slender butter holdings on a four-ounce weekly ration — lowest in Canada's history — to "make do" until new supplies start appearing next month.

By March 1, stocks of creamery butter held in nine principal cities in Canada had dropped to 5,565,000 pounds from 13,952,164 pounds Feb. 1. This figure was just slightly more than half the 11,372,000 pounds held on March 1, 1945. In addition, production figures were reported to be much lower than normal.

The price increase was held by many sources to be the answer to the low production. The dairy farmers of Canada at a meeting earlier this week stressed the need for increased returns to farmers in order to encourage sufficient production to build up the stocks necessary to carry the Dominion through the 1946-47 "off-season."

$5 TON INCREASE FOR STEEL INGOT TO PRIMARY MILLS

Manufacturers Allowed to Increase Maximum Selling Prices

Ottawa, March 30 (CP) —Advances in prices to primary Canadian steel mills approximately $5 a net ton of ingot were announced today by Donald Gordon, Prices Board Chairman. The increases are effective April 1.

Manufacturers are allowed to increase their maximum selling prices by the amount of the increase in the steel used, plus 25 per cent to offset increased selling commissions.

Mr. Gordon said certain products, such as farm machinery would not be affected because they were under specific examination to determine possible need for overall adjustments.

In instances where adequate relief had already been provided, where the cost increase was relatively small or where the Prices Board considered further investigation of a particular field was necessary, increases would not be allowed at the manufacturing end at present.

Mr. Gordon's statement said the increases in primary steel were being made following lengthy and careful study of detailed information filed by the industry.

"With the restoration of the industry to a peace-time basis," the announcement said, "it is necessary that unavoidable increases in costs should now be compensated for in price and the adjustment now made is an effort to reach a balanced prise structure on which the industry can operate.

"The adjustment does not remove the various products from the price ceiling; it merely provides for specified ceiling increases on the products named in the order and permits a formula adjustment for secondary and processing manufacturers whose raw material costs are thereby increased..."

Six Nations Will Appeal to UNO For Sovereignty

Brantford, March 30 (CP)—The Six Nations Iroquois Confedacy is going to take its appeal for sovereignty to the United Nations organization meeting in New York, it was declared last night by William Smith, Secretary of the Six Nations Confederacy of hereditary chiefs, and Chief James S. Hill and Chief George Johnson.

The confederacy made similar appeals to the old League of Nations at Geneva and the organization meeting of the United Nations at San Francisco. Smith said the appeal at Geneva was withdrawn when the British and Canadian governments promised favorable settlement, but he said such a settlement never was made.

MORE PLUGS AND SPOONS

Toronto, March 30 — (CP) — Ontario's amateur fishermen who had to do without many of their favorite flies, plugs and spoons last year are assured a more plentiful supply for 1946, but manufacturers said yesterday the supply of fly rods would still be short. While there is a good supply of steel rods and reels, fly rods will remain scarce as the cane used in their manufacture comes from China.

REMOVAL OF PRICE CONTROLS FARM PRODUCTS URGED

Progressive Conservative Leader Addresses Party Convention

Ottawa, March 30 (CP) — Immediate removal of price controls on farm products and the removal of other wartime restrictions in a relatively short period of time was urged Friday night by John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader.

Addressing the annual dinner meeting of the Dominion Progressive Conservative Association which winds up its two-day annual convention today, Mr. Bracken criticized government policies and outlined his party's platform.

"In wartime, multitudinous controls were invented to ensure that the product of every man's labor would serve our maximum war effort," said Mr. Bracken. "The maintenance of these controls means the negation of what is required for maximum peace-time production."

He urged that controls on farm prices be lifted first to encourage all-out production and that the lifting of other controls follow soon afterwards so as not to unbalance the country's economy.

Mr. Bracken was introduced by J. M. Macdonnell (P.C.-Muskoka-Ontario) who refuted charges that the Progressive Conservative party is the "stooge" of big interes or "unfriendly" to Quebec.

Criticizes King's Policy.

He stated that the policy of Prime Minister Mackenzie King was to segregate Quebec and to keep Quebec separated from the rest of Canada in order to remain elected.

Mr. Bracken said the party must have a dynamic, realistic policy which will command the confidence of every section of the nation, racial, religious, economic, agricultural, laboring and others.

The Progressive Conservative party stood for plenty not scarcity; it stood for jobs for all who could work, fair returns for all who could work, partnership between labor and management. It also looked on agriculture as a partner and not a "hired man" in the setup of the nation's economy.

In addition the party favored international trade and a social security program that would see that no one was denied the needs of life.

Thinks Party Will Win.

Expressing confidence that the party will win the next Federal election, Mr. Bracken said that his party would provide for the maximum of justice and equity to every citizen.

The party stood for seeing that individual initiative was not stinted by state regulation and for seeing that competitive capitalism was not supplanted by state capitalism.

He urged the government to shake off its "depression complex." The depression had been brought about by mistaken policies, policies which failed to see that products were sent to where they were needed.

What Canada needed today was production not price and wage controls.

Turning to international affairs, he called on Canada to stand beside Britain as a moving force for peace.

While he realized that fighting men in the Canadian occupation force overseas wanted to get home, he wondered whether they should not be replaced by some section of the regular army.

HOUSE TACKLES SUPPLY, GOVT. LEGISLATION

Will Amend Militia Act To End Restrictions Limiting Peacetime Force to 10,000

Ottawa, March 30 — (CP) — Preliminary overtures of the new session behind it, the Commons today stood ready to buckle down to the workaday business of voting supply and passing legislation.

The lengthy Throne Speech debate was concluded Thursday and yesterday the House devoted a brisk two hours to approving further supplementary estimates of $4,938,873 for the fiscal year ending Sunday. The members also voted interim supply of $273,197,945 for administrative expenses for the next two months.

Monday the House turns to private members' business and before the Chamber adjourned Friday night Prime Minister Mackenzie King suggested steps be taken sometime to give government business precedence to speed up proceedings. The government did not wish to have the present session "prolonged unduly."

Mr. King suggested the House rules committee might arrange to have private members' resolutions dealt with a little nearer to the end of the session rather than at the beginning or to fix a time limit to be devoted to any single resolution.

Gordon Graydon (PC — Peel) said he had been thinking of suggesting that the committee arrange a system under which private members would have more scope in obtaining information from the government.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, agreed private members' days were involving a "greater amount of time than is warranted" but said his party felt private members had so little time to discuss pressing problems that they were loath to relinquish their rights.

The House approved on division a resolution preliminary to a bill seeking approval of the proposed $1,250,000,000 loan to Britain and cancellation of $425,000,000 owed to Canada by Britain for operation of the Commonwealth Air Training Plan.

Defence Minister Abbott said the government planned to amend the Militia Act to remove restrictions limiting the peacetime force to 10,000 and to allow payment of pay and allowances to members of the forces not technically on active service under the act.

Mr. King disclosed that a special committee of the Cabinet is studying the question of allowing European refugees to enter Canada, but added that one of the main difficulties was the lack of transportation.

Thus far, Canada had not been able to admit any large number of refugees but "as the situation in the world changes we hope to take a more liberal attitude than it has been possible to take in the past."

Mr. Coldwell asked the Prime Minister to consider adoption of the British policy under which displaced persons were allowed to join relatives in Britain under certain conditions.

Mr. King said the inter-governmental committee on refugees will continue its work with the economic and social security council of the United Nations Organizations can take over matters affecting refugees.

CUT SUBSIDY

Ottawa, March 30 — (CP) — The Prices Board last night announced a two-thirds reduction in the subsidy paid on imported Barbadoes molasses, which will result in a price increase to consumers of about four cents a lb. effective April 1. The Board said the subsidy was in line with a general policy of lowering subsidies wherever possible.

Shoot Rockets Upward 60 Miles For Air Samples to Aid 'Probs'

By FRANK CAREY

St. Louis, March 30 (AP)—The United States Navy plans to send rocket messengers 60 miles above the earth to obtain air samples that may hold the key to better weather forecasting and radio communications, it was disclosed today.

Lt.-Cmdr. Daniel F. Rex of the Office of Research and Inventions told this reporter the Navy hopes to begin launching experiments in the Fall with rockets that will carry meteorological instruments beyond the stratosphere and conceivably enable collection of data hitherto elusive to science.

Development of an ionosphere rocket by the California Institute of Technology at Pasadena, Calif., was announced March 21.

Lt.-Cmdr. Rex added that a contract now is being negotiated with the Aerojet Corporation of California for procurement of 15 rockets, each weighing 2,500 pounds, costing $20,000 apiece with an over-all measurement of 24 feet.

Lt.-Cmdr. Rex declared the rockets could carry a 150-pound load of instruments to a height of 60 miles.

The plan is to determine the exact composition of outer atmosphere by actually "picking up" physical samples of air which later would be sujected to chemical analysis.

This would lead to accurate measurement of the sun's radiation, thus throwing new light on weather conditions and the phenomena causing radio interference.

$2,000,000 Fire On Ottawa-Hull Bridge Probed

Piles of Pulpwood Burn And Communications Cut

By JACK BRAYLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Hull, Que., March 30 (CP) — An investigation was started today into a spectacular $2,000,000 fire of undetermined origin that was burning itself out in mountainous stockpiles of pulpwood after putting out of operation for months the vital inter-provincial bridge connection with Ottawa and threatening the big E. B. Eddy Company paper mill.

The possibility of an explosion in the giant pile, still burning at 9 a.m. E.S.T. — more than 14 hours after it broke out— was the greatest remaining danger faced by firemen battling to keep it in check.

H. Chatterton, Ottawa Deputy Fire Chief, said accumulated gases and steam from the tons of water which had been poured on the massive pile during the night might possibly cause an explosion, showering the immediate area with burning cordwood.

A score of fire fighters were treated for burns in the raging inferno that whipped up to serious proportions in a stiff wind, cut road, rail and tram traffic from an important route and stopped telephone service to a large section of this city.

The fire also promised an enforced layoff for hundreds of employees of the big mill and ate up thousands of cords of badly-needed newsprint potential.

In the absence of official statements there was a flood of reports as to the cause and origin of the fire.

Various reports said it started from a cigaret butt carelessly dropped on the tarred wooden planking of the bride, that an oil truck exploded at the bridge ramp in Hull, that a hotbox of an electric tram discharged embers on the bridge, that a grass fire spread first to the wood pile and then to the bridge and that an ember from a passing train ignited the wood pile.

May Burn a Week

Long tongues of red flame still licked up from the fire this morning and firemen estimated it would burn for a week. But the fire was under control or at least confined to an area.

The situation held many dangerous possibilities.

The wind blew great showers of blazing embers over the plant which sprawls along the Hull waterfront and eventually meets the equally big J. R. Booth plant. At times it seemed as though the long fingers of flame would reach across and devour the mill, plant by plant. Firemen stood their ground and concentrated a river of water in the 100-foot gap between the fringe of the stockpile and the plant and eventually controlled the situation. The big plant escaped with nothing more than a singe.

Meanwhile on the bridge Hull firemen from one side and Ottawa firemen from the other got the fire under control after it had eaten out the first spans of the 1901 structure and left them a waving, twisted, buckled mass of hot steel.

The firemen had no time to breathe easily even after the conflagration was checked, for a sudden shift of wind sent showers of embers flying over the wooden city. But the wind did not make the complete shift which would have blown the sparks a short distance to a group of oil tanks.

Firemen miraculously escaped with only minor burns as high tension wires snapped and flashed blue flame as they broke and fell from power lines. Two box cars laden with a type of chlorine gas used in the manufacture of pulp were jerked out of the path of the fire with only minutes to spare. Hundreds of tons of highly inflammable sulphur were wetted down as a precautionary measure.

Trains Re-routed

Today, with a cloud of smoke billowing over the two cities and the flames still challenging the multi-streams of water being poured on them, Hull and Ottawa began to take stock of the effects of the fire.

In the first place the inter-city transit services, already overcrowded, were bottlenecked over the Chaudiere and Champlain bridges with the former artery taking the heaviest loads as it now carries the only tramway connection and will for months to come.

Canadian Pacific trains were re-routed into the city on other lines.

The fire was discovered just before 7 p.m. E.S.T., by a fisherman under the bridge and a motorist passing over the bridge. They respectively called both the Hull and Ottawa departments but before the first piece of equipment arrived the fire had reached serious proportions.

The long, dry, spring-like weather had made the bridge flooring and the wood stockpile like tinder. And the most spectacular fire in this area for years resulted. It was as fierce a blaze as that which almost destroyed both Hull and Ottawa in 1900.

Thousands of persons crowded Parliament Hill, directly opposite the scene of the fire for a grandstand view. Other thousands stood at the Eddy fence and watched throughout the night, the chill of the air being cut by the great heat from the fire.

Study Arguments For Jap Elections

By GRAHAM HOVEY

Washington, March 30 — (AP) — Members of the Far Eastern Commission met in closed session today to examine Gen. MacArthur's arguments for holding Japanese National elections April 10.

Some delegates to the 11-power policy-making commission have registered opposition to Japanese elections at this time, but how far they would get under existing rules was speculative.

The Japanese cabinet fixed the election date with Gen. MacArthur's approval. Presumably, the supreme commander had the backing of the United States government in the matter.

If the United States government still is convinced the Japanese balloting should proceed on schedule, it can use its veto power to prevent the commission from issuing any different instruction to Gen. MacArthur.

An unusual alliance with the commission was expected to press for postponement of the elections. Russia's Nikolai V. Novikov was regarded by informed diplomats as certain to be in this group. So were the New Zealand and Australian delegates.

Those who oppose elections now say the bulk of the Japanese people, to whom democratic practices are foreign, are not yet ready to exercise the voting privileges. An election held now, they say, inevitably would be won by the well-organized groups which controlled Japan before and during the war.

Crests Presented To Ki-Y Hockey League Champs

Presentations Are Made by Gordon Barclay, Jack Wood and Ald. Claude Tice

Members of the winning teams in the Ki-Y Hockey League were honored Friday night at the Y.M.C.A. when they were presented with crests emblematic of their group championships.

Chairman J. E. Shortt stated that the league had a very successful season. "Forty-three games were played in the league which consisted of three series, bantam, midget and juvenile. In all, there were two hundred and four boys registered."

He paid tribute to the Kiwanis Club for sponsoring the various leagues and also the officials and referees who gave their time to make the league a success.

Mr. Shortt introduced Gordon Barclay, chairman of the Ki-Y committee who, in turn, introduced two members of his committee Jack Wood and Alderman Claude Tice.

"It is the duty of the Ki-Y committee to be keenly interested in the sports activities of the youth of Belleville," said Mr. Barclay. "You can't build good hockey players if you don't have good ice," he continued, "we hope that next year Belleville can boast artificial ice—this town is certainly big enough to supoprt it. We of the Ki-Y committee are proud to be able to foster some of Canada's future hockey stars. We'll do all we can to give you better opportunities next year."

12 Sticks Presented

Mr. Barclay then presented crests to the "Canaries", champions in the juvenile series. He also presented hockey sticks to members of the "Sharks" who finished the season two points behind the Canaries but were unable to play off because of the lack of ice.

Alderman Claude Tice presented the crests to the "Seomee's," winners of the Bantam series. In presenting the crests, Alderman Tice congratulated the boys and urged them to continue in sports. "It's good, it's clean, it's good for you and you'll make a lot of friends," he said.

Jack Wood presented the crests to the midget winners, the "Red Rovers" and exhorted them to "always be gentlemen, win, lose or draw."

After the presentations, refreshments were served.

Members of the winning teams were as follows:

Premier Drew Gives Legislature Soviet Anti-Churchill Statement

Toronto, March 30 (CP) — A 3,000-word marconigram containing "an offensive attack" on British policies and Winston Churchill was tabled yesterday in the Ontario legislature by Premier Drew who said the document proves the Soviet Embassy in Ottawa is still "sending out to Canadians subversive propaganda emanating from Moscow."

The Premier, rising on what he termed a question of personal privilege and public importance, said he obtained from a Canadian publication "an original Marconi message" from Moscow to the Soviet Embassy in Ottawa dated March 13 and sent by the embassy to a "loyal citizen of Canada."

"Contact is still direct" between Moscow and Communists in Canada, the Premier asserted, adding that the contents of the communication were less significant than the fact that such propaganda could be handled by the Soviet Embassy "a month after the whole of Canada knew that the Soviet Embassy had been the centre of spy activities"

The marconigram, distributed to reporters in its original abbreviated "cablese" form, was not signed and the Premier did not identify the "loyal citizen" who had received it. He said it had been sent to the Canadian publication, also unidentified, by the Soviet Embassy in the mistaken impression the publication was sympathetic to its cause.

The Premier quoted only two sentences from the lengthy Marconi message, which quoted excerpts from Mr. Churchill's speech at Fulton, Mo., took exception to Mr. Churchill's remarks on Soviet foreign policies and in turn criticized British policies in Greece and Indonesia.

Aims Outlined

The communication outlined Soviet aims in these words:

"We know full well: Firstly that the Soviet Union isn't striving for world domination of which we are accused by Churchill...that the Soviet Union is firmly determined to ensure security of all its frontiers...In effort to achieve this legitimate and necessary aim the Soviet will not submit to any threat, to any cunning or to brandishing of any new weapons."

Earlier first reading was given nine government bills, including an amendment to the Judicature Act authorizing appointment of two additional judges for the High Court of Justice of Ontario which now comprises a Chief Justice and 12 other judges.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dunbar introduced an amendment to the Municipal Act enabling two or more municipalities in any part of the Province to amalgamate under central control such services as education, health, police and fire protection, welfare, sewage disposal and garbage collection.

After Premier Drew's address, the legislature passed setimates totalling $150,000 for the new Department of Travel and Publicity headed by Hon. G. A. Welsh. The Minister said every member of the legislature should assume individual responsibility for assuring the tourist in his riding "receives full value for his money."

In reply to a question by Liberal House Leader Farquhar Oliver, Mr. Welsh said his department contemplates only a "small" advertising campaign in the United States this year.

Premier Drew opened his remarks on Communist propaganda activities with a reference to statements he said had appeared in the March 14 issue of the C.C.F. publication "C.C.F. News," which he said quoted him as saying in the legislature that strikes were always the result of Communist activity within Labor ranks.

"At no time did I say or even hint that all strikes were Communist-inspired," he said. He did not associate C.C.F. members of the legislature with these statements, but he thought the C.C.F. members should seek to assure a "more accurate interpretation" of what takes place in the legislature.

Courtesy Most Important

Mr. Welsh said "courtesy" is one of Ontario's most important exports.

Courtesy was the cheapest commodity in the world and "we can export all kinds of it." A department survey showed 90 per cent of United States tourists said the thing that most impressed them in visiting Ontario was the courtesy offered them.

Each member of the legislature should assume an individual responsibility for assuring that the tourist received "full value for his money, that he isn't subjected to rackets and that everything is done to make him feel at home."

Erection of the new $2,750,000 Red Lake highway in the Dryden area of northwestern Ontario would open 95 miles of new roads. People who had travelled the distance on foot assured him it contained, some of Ontario's finest tourist country.

In the amendment to the municipal act applications for mergers would be handled by the Ontario Municipal Board. The legislation provides for election of a management board in a designated inter-urban area that may be created but if there is a merger of education, health, library and police services, separate boards will be created for each of these services under the inter-urban board management. The management board will deal directly with fire protection, garbage collection, sewage disposal and welfare.

Any inter-urban area will be divided into wards by the Ontario Municipal Board and each ward will be entitled to one representative on the board of management.

Zadel Skolovsky Plays Masterful Piano Recital

Handsome dark haired, 22-year-old Zadel Skolovsky, Vancouver born piano virtuoso, captured the collective hearts of an appreciative Belleville audience Friday evening at the Belleville Collegiate auditorium as he appeared as guest artist for the Community Concert Association.

Though born in Vancouver, B.C., Mr. Skolovsky considers Los Angeles his home town as he grew up and received his first musical training in that city. A graduate of the Curtis Institute the Canadian born artist studied under Madame Isabelle Vengerova and made his professional debut in New York at Town Hall in December of 1939.

Appearances as soloist with symphony orchestras, on radio programs and in recital gained for him an increasing reputation with the season 1944-45 becoming a milestone in his career when it saw him embark on a nationwide concert tour winning unanimous acclaim of press and audience everywhere.

Well Chosen Program

In his appearence here Mr. Skolovsky lived up to expectations as he played the works of well-known composers with a masterful touch which was reflected by the enthusiasm of his appreciative audience.

Commencing his program with two organ choral preludes "Now Come the Gentiles' Saviour", (Bach) and "Rejoice, Beloved Christians", (Busoni), Skolovsky drifted into the delicately touching "Moonlight Sonata" by Beethoven.

The artist continued to show his ability as a leading concert pianist as he swung into a series of numbers by Chopin, playing "Barcarolle Opus 60", "Berceuse" and "Three Ecossaises". One of his crowning numbers of the evening was "Polonaise in A Flat Major. Opus 53", the power of this militant number ringing through the auditorium.

The demanding and appreciative audience, apparently unable to hear enough of the distinguished pianist, called him back for two encores at the conclusion of his series of Chopin numbers and two additional numbers from the works of this popular composer, "Valse", and "Balade" in A Flat Major.

The harmonious melody of "Jeux d'eau" (Ravel) was Skolovsky's choice for his initial number following the intermission, after which he played two works by Debussy, "Clair de Lune" and "Feux d'artifice."

Appreciative that no concert would be complete without the works of Liszt, Mr. Skolovsky played this immortal composer's "Etude in D. Flat Major." One of Schubert's smaller works "March Militaire" was the concluding number of the program.

Although Schubert's "March Militarie" was the concert finale as indicated on the printed program, the packed auditorium simply would not let the visiting artist go and a continuous round of applause brought the obliging Skolovsky back to his instrument for three encores.

First was "Etude, Opus 69, No. 1" by Chopin, and then the artist played "Russian Dance from Petrouchka" by Stravinsky and as his finale "Waltz in A. Opus 10, No. 3", by Brahms.

Saturday Market

Evidence that the commercial fishing season has again commenced was seen on the local produce market Saturday morning when at least four market vendors offered various types of seasonal fish for sale.

Whitefish and pickerel sold readily at 40 cents the pound, while mudcats brought 30 cents and pike 15 cents the pound. Smelts, which have been running in the Moira River for the past few days, sold at 30 cents the pound.

Eggs held firm on the inside market at 40 cents the dozen with mediums bringing 35 cents. The fowl offering was slim with general price asked being 40 to 45 cents, while a few better finished fowl sold up to 50 cents.

On the vegetable market a few vendors offered local potatoes at 53 cents the peck, while carrots sold at 30 cents the basket and turnips at 25 cents. A few seasonal potted plants brought 35c each. Sauerkraut was 15 cents the quart, with horse radish bringing prices according to container size.

Young pigs remained firm with farmers asking from $9 to $12 each, according to size.

RADIO SLEUTHS WATCH THE NEWS TO SPARK SHOWS

Modern Producers Act Smartly to Give Novel Twists to Personality-Interview Programs

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Radio producers these days have long noses—for news. The chaps who direct personality-interview programs watch the news like hawks for the unusual bits that go to make the shows popular.

Let's take the case of Judy Buckley, the stowaway. The radio men didn't get the young English girl when she stepped off the gangplank at Boston, but it's quite in the cards that the next stowaway will be interviewed right on the quayside.

Producers of the Canadian Cavalcade program didn't lose much time in signing June Veronica Buckley for a spot on the show. The 17-year-old stowaway had been in Canada less than a week when she came down from St. Thomas, Ont., home of her uncle Rhys Edwards to be interviewed on the Toronto broadcast.

The fast talking young lady set out from Bournemouth, English seaside resort, to find a home in America for her bombed-out parents. She stowed away on an American Liberty ship but was forced to reveal her presence when she developed what was believed to be an acute attack of appendicitis.

Customs officials detained her when she arrived in Boston and then the Edwards family discovered that Judy was a niece and appealed to the prime minister for permission for her to enter Canada. Before she boarded a train for her new St. Thomas home program producers were making offers to her for appearances.

Many homesick Canadian air force men have made transatlantic calls to the Dominion from the repatriation centre at Bournemouth, England, but it is doubtful if any proud parents in Bournemouth had wandering offspring telephone to them across an ocean — until Judy came to Toronto.

As a special treat the producers of Canadian Cavalcade arranged for the newcomer to telephone to her parents in Bournemouth as soon after the show as possible.

Ears perked at a familiar voice when Charles Jennings returned to the mike side of radio recently as announcer of the Toronto Symphony "Pop" broadcast. He became one of the best-known announcers in Canada during the 1930s on hockey, news, opera, symphony and other commercial programs, but had been heard rarely during the past six years while in a C.B.C. supervisory position.

Eighteen years in the radio business isn't enough to calm mike-fright, for when Jennings waited for the cue on his opening night on the "Pop" broadcast, he was admittedly "as nervous as a kitten."

A memorial service for Franklin D. Roosevelt on the first anniversary of his death will be broadcast, according to plans for the four major United States networks, on the afternoon of April 12 from Hyde Park, N.Y., with President Truman participating.

The late president's estate is to be turned over to the public at that time. Tentative arrangements also call for a speech by Mrs. Roosevelt, and the singing of the United States national anthem by Marian Anderson.

Ribbentrop Tells Of Secret Treaty Made With Soviet

By RICHARD KAISISCHKE

Nuernberg, March 30 — (AP)— Joachim Von Ribbentrop, Hitler's Foreign Minister, testified Friday that he negotiated a secret treaty with Joseph Stalin and V. M. Molotoff, defining German and Russian spheres of influence in Finland, the Baltic and Bessarabia.

This, Ribbentrop told the international military tribunal, was done in August of 1939 at the time of the Russo-German nonaggression pact which was concluded two weeks before Germany marched into Poland.

Ribbentrop is one of the more than score of leading Germans on trial for their lives as war criminals.

The alleged secret treaty has been mentioned several times previously in defence moves by Ribbentrop and Rudolf Hess, but the Soviet prosecution had objected to admitting any documentary testimony. Today, the Russian prosecutor sat silent as Ribbentrop related his story of prewar negotiations with the men of the Kremlin. The treaty, he swore, "dealt with territories which both countries, Germany and Russia, had lost as the result of war."

Regimental Numbers

Ottawa, March 30 —(CP)— The Veterans Department, mired in thousands of names — 13,000 of them Smiths — was yelling for numbers today, even more thousands of numbers.

The reason: without regimental numbers, long arduous and unnecessary hours are frequently spent in checking back for the records of some ex-soldier. With numbers, those hours would not be wasted.

The department estimates 100 letters a day reach its head office here without including regimental numbers.

Bishop Opposes New Liquor Act

Toronto, March 30 (CP)—Opposition to Ontario's new cocktail lounge legislation came from Rev. E. S. Bishop, President of the Ontario Temperance Federation, and Dr. H. H. Bingham, General Secretary of the Baptist convention of Ontario and Quebec.

Mr. Bishop said the government is taking a backward step and the new law will only increase difficulties. He said many municipalities may take advantage of the local option provision to ban beverage rooms.

Dr. Bingham said the bill would introduce a European system of drinking in a country not temperamentally suited for it. "Here in Ontario, we're a rushing, feverish type of people. Whatever we do, we do vigorously. And so we drink vigorously." In Europe he had seen people spend a whole evening around a bottle of wine. "In Ontario we'd go through a whole case."

A Toronto refrigeration manufacturer said he knew five months ago cocktail lounges were on the way and is working on two contracts for equipment for Toronto hotels.

URGES SOLUTION OF RACE PROBLEM IN SOUTH AFRICA

Finance Minister Hofmeyr Says Union Must Learn to Make Use of All Human Resources

Capetown (CP) — Attacking race prejudice in South Africa, Finance Minister J. H. Hofmeyr said recently that freedom without order ended in confusion but order without freedom led to regimentation and dictatorship.

Speaking at Witwatersrand University, Johannesburg, where he is chancellor, Mr. Hofmeyr emphasized the need for adding a fifth freedom—freedom from race prejudice. He indicated how far South Africa fell short of true freedom.

"The plain truth is that the dominant mentality in South Africa is the Herrenvolk mentality and the true solution of those problems must be sought in changing that mentality," the minister said.

Part of the heavy price South Africa was paying for her folly was being poorer as a nation through unwillingness to make use of all human resources. Part of this was being paid in loss of international esteem and goodwill but the chief loss was a moral loss, the minister stated.

Measures to obtain more equitable food supplies, including limitation of supplies to restaurants and hotels, are being considered by officials in the Union.

The National Food Supplies Council, meeting in Capetown agreed that rationing was the best solution of the problem but was too difficult to apply.

Health Minister Dr. Gluckman announced the National Nutrition Council will become a division within the health ministry known as the division of nutrition and health education. He said that if it is warranted by the result of extensive experiments which the ministry is to carry out in nutritional research, the manufacture of food yeast would be encouraged and necessary legislation would be passed for its greater use, particularly as a constituent of staple foods.

Food yeast has up to the present only been used on a large scale at the Ciskei native reserve where 19,000 children have been fed daily for the past 18 months.

Better supplies of beef are coming from country districts and food authorities announced another increase in the butter quota, bringing it to 60 per cent of normal supplies.

It has been announced that Sir Henry French of the British ministry of food is on his way to the Union in connection with food distribution.

The largest shipment of fruit since 1940 left Capetown recently for Sweden. It was the fourth consignment under the present contract. The shipment included 50,000 boxes of grapes and 19,000 boxes of pears totalling nearly 75 cubic tons.

Trade with Italy is starting again on a reciprocal basis. Representatives of a South African company are now in Italy making purchases of textiles, plumbing fittings, etc., to be loaded on a vessel sailing shortly.

On its return journey the vessel will take South African wool and sheepskins. Trade was resumed following the devaluation of the lira in respect to purchases of goods in Italy for export.

Despite Efforts Of Neighbor's Dog Aged Woman Dies

Dundalk, March 30 — (CP) — Despite efforts of Bud, a neighbor's collie to bring help to Mrs. Samuel McCullough, 90, when she was taken ill in her isolated farmhouse, the aged woman died Thursday.

Bud didn't expect to play a hero's role when on Wednesday morning he scratched at the door of the McCullough home across the fields from the home of his owner, Ernie Clark. He was just thinking of the tid-bits the McCulloughs always gave him.

But this time Mrs. McCullough wasn't there and instead of tidbits her husband wrote a note and tied it around the dog's neck, ordering him "Home, Bud."

Bud obeyed the order and when he reached his own house whined until the note was discovered. A few minutes later help was on its way to Mrs. McCullough.

Mrs. McCullough was born in Bracebridge, Ont. Survivors include two sons, five daughters, 20 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

Mutchmor Says Liquor Bill Will Be Doubled

Toronto, March 30 —(CP)— Rev. Dr. J. R. Mutchmor, secretary of social service of the United Church of Canada, said Friday four members of the Drew government of Ontario should resign over the new liquor licensing bill introduced in the legislature Thursday.

Dr. Mutchmor said Health Minister Kelley should resign because mixing drinks will increase the province's venereal disease rate, Labor Minister Daley because labor and materials for cocktail lounges will reduce house construction, the Highways Minister Doucett because traffic accidents will increase and Agriculture Minister Kennedy because increases in liquor manufacture would mean less grain for famine-stricken areas.

The "eat-drink-and-be-merry bill" was not unexpected and would serve to increase the province's annual $100,000,000 liquor bill "to the 200,000,000 a year mark demanded by the liquor interests."

Marmora

Marmora—The regular meeting of Marmora Kinsmen Club was held in the form of a dinner meeting at the Royal Hotel on Monday evening with President Carl Whittemore in the chair.

After opening with the Kinsmen Song, the members and guests sat down to a delicious turkey dinner, which was heartily enjoyed. The toast to the King opened the regular business meeting and the minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Dr. Crawford was present and addressed the meeting in regard to the proposed nursing home for the village. Discussion of what assistance the club could give this matter was held over to the next regular meeting.

Mr. W. A. Shannon was also present and he brought up the subject of a new rink for Marmora. He gave a resume of what had been done by the local hockey teams during the past season and thought that a new rink for Marmora could be arranged if some organization would take the initiative. A committee was named to meet representatives of Marmora, Deloro and Marmora Township to discuss the situation and get information on what had been done in other places comparable to Marmora.

A letter from the County T. B. Travelling Clinic was read asking the Kinsmen Club to take the initiative in arranging for X-ray survey to take place in the district during the coming summer, and it was decided to give what assistance was possible to this project.

Mr. Bob Huggenburgher of Kitchener, who is in Deloro on business, gave a few piano and vocal solos, which were much enjoyed and appreciated.

BARTENDERS TO LEARN TO MIX DRINKS

Toronto, March 30 — (CP) — The possibility of a school to teach budding bartenders the art of mixing drinks was seen today by William Kearns, Secretary of Local 208 of the International Beverage Dispensers Union, commenting on introduction of liquor sale in cocktail lounges in Ontario.

Hon. Mr. MacDonald's Farewell

Prime Minister King who has in his long career in public life known many men in the highest positions delivered a fine tribute to the retiring British High Commissioner to Canada the Hon. Malcolm MacDonald who will become Governor-General of Malaya that territory so much in the news of the last three years or more owing to war caused by Japanese aggression.

No higher tribute could be paid to a public man than that spoken by Mr. King in reference to Mr. MacDonald. "There is no man of Mr. MacDonald's age in any part of the world better versed in international affairs than he is. He has been a member of three British cabinets and now closes a term of five years representing the Government of the United Kingdom. We are parting with one who has been serving his country and our country."

In referring to the manner in which Mr. MacDonald had carried out the duties of the office of High Commissioner Mr. King stated that "no person could have filled that office — I will not say better — but as well as he has done."

In another place Mr. King referred to Mr. MacDonald's study of and interest in Canada and added that "it is doubtful if Canada has ever had anyone — even our Governors General — who have come to know this country as Mr. MacDonald has done. He has travelled widely, has written about this country, its birds and its northland and in every way has endeared himself to the people of Canada."

In his farewell remarks Mr. MacDonald pointed out as he referred to "the troubled and dangerous times in which we live" that there are "moral forces also at work in the world and often in a time of crisis they are decisive. It is mysterious and wonderful how a benevolent spirit broods over the affairs of man." He raised his voice in praise of Mr. Churchill as he recalled that Providence produced such human instruments as "the glorious voice of Churchill hurling defiance at the foe, the breathless spirit of the people of Britain tougher and fiercer and brighter than the material weapons hurled against them. Nor were those people alone in their island. We shall never forget that you Canadians were there too sharing the peril and death the honor and the glory of the fight in our great citadel of liberty."

He referred to the far-sighted and lofty wisdom of the late President Franklin Roosevelt and noted "the dogged unconquerable courage of the Russians in Stalingrad." There were other qualities of head and heart in many peoples. "The factors which turned the tide of war at the crucial moment were not material things. They were the things of the human heart and spirit" he said.

Mr. MacDonald who understands Canada closely and who admires the Dominion as he has so often shown paid the tribute to Canada as "a new moral force," "a new instrument of Providence." He spoke of this country as "growing in influence and authority, one of the rising hopes of stern unbending humanitarians, a nation of destiny." He said that he had sometimes marvelled that Canada's comparatively small population scattered over a widely sprawling land is united in a conscious nation, and he declared that fact of Canadian national feeling was an achievement. Another high tribute he paid to Canada was "there is a sanity, a wisdom, a true statesmanship about the Canadian outlook and international affairs which is uncommon." Again he said that this country had gained a reputation as "a sage counsellor of peace" as well as being a staunch and chivalrous comrade in war."

Mr. MacDonald goes to a new and highly important post and those who know him as Mr. King and others in public life have known him best know that he will carry out the duties of the new office of Governor General of far away Malaya with the utmost of success.

"Mulberry" Helps in Peacetime

To help solve one of Britain's major postwar problems, the replacement and repair of the 4,500,000 homes destroyed or damaged by German bombs, the aid of "Mulberry," British portable harbors that were such a surprise to the Nazis on D-Day, has been enlisted. A firm that designed and built portions of it is now applying the experience gained to the housing problem and has developed a new and revolutionary type of prefabricated house. The basic unit of construction is a reinforced concrete panel of standard width, precast at the factory. Openings are left in some of the panels for doors and windows. After these components are assembled at the building site, it is a simple matter to erect the outside walls merely by hoisting the concrete panels into position with a crane. When they are placed side by side, liquid concrete is poured between the units, thus forming a solid wall. Within a week the outside is completed, and within a month an attractive permanent house is ready for occupancy.

Teeth Out of Germany

The Allied Control Commission has at last announced its plan to make the world safe from Germany. The plan seems reasonably complete. Under it, the Reich is to be stripped permanently of all war potential, reduced at the same time to a second-class industrial nation.

Germany will be permitted to produce 5.8 million tons of steel annually — far less than her pre-war production. She will not, however, be permitted production of magnesium, primary aluminum, synthetic rubber, oil, aircraft, sea-going ships, arms or ammunition. Her exports — necessary to pay for food imports — will be limited to coal, potash, timber, textiles, leather goods, glass, other like articles.

This decision does not go as far, or nearly as far, as the Morgenthau plan, which would have reduced Germany to a purely peasant country, depriving her practically of all manufactures. What it does seem to do is to give fair promise that what happened under Hitler will not happen again. This assuming, of course, the Allies are as tough with Germany 10 or 20 years hence as they are today.

—Ottawa Journal.

The Unchanging Hun?

A neutral friend well placed to follow the trend of opinion in Germany gives me a depressing picture of the general frame of mind. Even what may be termed, from an international point of view the best Germans, are quite frankly expressing regret not that they made the war but that they lost the war. So far from execrating Hitler as the cause of all their misery, they look back to the Hitler regime as the brightest period in German history, when the country was feared and therefore respected, when unemployment vanished and the average German lived in comfort.

Appendicitis Death Rate Declines

Recent years have witnessed a marked decline in the mortality from appendicitis in the general population of the United States says Metropolitan Life Bulletin. A little more than a decade ago the annual death toll from the disease was 18,000; by 1943, the latest year for which data are available, the number in a much larger population had been cut to 8,100. Moreover, there are definite indications that deaths from the disease have been further reduced since then. If the appendicitis death rate of the early 1930's prevailed currently, the disease would now take about 20,000 lives a year.

Our "Inexhaustible" Forests

The forest has two enemies: fire and insects. It is impossible to have an exact survey of the ravages which fire has made in the Canadian forests, but it is estimated that 60 per cent has been devastated by fire, that 13 per cent has been cut and that there remains in standing timber about 27 per cent of the original forest.

LOST ART

Of all the skills which men acquire
To smooth the path of life,
The happiest of the lot entire
Is with the carving knife.

My grandsire first, and next my dad,
Boasted their firm belief
Such skill as theirs no other had
With chicken, lamb or beef.

They'd flick the knife against the steel
(And I can see them now)
Then carve with deftness pork or veal
As few, they said, knew how.

So scarce today the men who part
A roast the way they ought,
I wonder is that table art
No longer being taught?

ENTIRE GROUP CANNOT BE CONDEMNED SAYS RABBI

Toronto, March 30 — (CP) — Rabbi Abraham L. Feinberg of the Holy Blossom Temple last night told members of the Young Men's Hebrew Association that an entire group cannot be condemned for the sins of one or several of its members. His address was entitled "The spy trail and the Jews of Canada." "No more should Jews as a whole suffer for the crimes of any of their ranks who commit evil," he said.

PLACES NO CREDENCE IN LETTERS

Vancouver, March 30 — (CP) —Police Magistrate Mackenzie Matheson said yesterday allegations the five high-ranking Vancouver police officers had been guilty of accepting "payoff" money are unfounded and will be publicly destroyed in court, possibly next week. The Magistrate said he placed no credence in recent letters to three members of the commission charging the officers had acted irregularly.

SOVIET SECRET

Durnford, Smith, Hull, Que., National Research Council expert on radio.

Sqdn. Ldr. Fred S. Poland, 36, Ottawa and Montreal, R.C.A.F. Intelligence officer.

Israel Halperin, 35, Mathematics Professor at Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., who was an army ballistics expert during the war.

The third report, with the exception of the final paragraph explaining that the investigation was continuing, dealt with the activities of these five persons, rather than with the general operations of the spy organization. However, frequent references by the Commission to associations of these people with those already held—through reports of meetings or listing of telephone numbers in seized documents—was given as evidence of the interlocking nature of the set-up.

Least Willing to Talk

Trend of the commission's comments on the five individuals indicated they had been the least willing to talk. None admitted active participation and Poland refused to take the oath submitted by the commission or to answer questions.

The commission held, however, that evidence it had gathered from various sources pointed to violations of the Official Secrets Act by all five.

Adams, for example, had provided voluminous reports on Canadian industrial activities and discussions between high-ranking munitions department officials at production conferences, the report said.

Major disclosure charged to Halperin was connected with a weapon still on the secret list and described as "one of the most devastating projectiles used in the Japanese war." The weapon was described only as an "electro-projector" and the commission said it had been asked by military authorities to let the description go at that.

The Soviet desire for information on the weapon was one of the instances in which the commission pointed to co-operation between the people charged. It said evidence it had received showed that the request for information was relayed to Halperin through Capt. Gordon Lunan, Canadian information service official who is charged with espionage activities.

Smith, who was engaged in highly secret research council activities, had taken documents from council files and made them available to the embassy for making photographic copies.

Extracts Quoted

The Commission quoted extracts from Embassy official documents as evidence that this procedure was part of an ambitious plan by Zabotin to "examine the whole of the library of the Scientific Research Council," which the Commission took as the complete highly secret file of N. R. C. documents and reports.

One of the quotations was from a telegram sent Aug. 27, 1945, by Zabotin to "the director," top official of the espionage system in Moscow, in which he reported having received documents from "Badeau"—the code name for Smith — and having made photographic copies of 700 pages in a single day. He said he expected to receive a similar number od documents within a few days and they would be available for three to five hours but he intimated more photographic equipment was needed if the copying was to keep pace with the available documents.

The information which the Commission accused Benning of giving the Soviet officials centred largely about munitions department production. On one day, Jan. 5, 1945, the mailing record of the Embassy recorded "Foster"—code name for Benning — as the source of 70 documents which were forwarded to Moscow.

The Commission said not all of these could be definitely identified from the Embassy record but more than half could be and many of them were documents to which either Benning or his brother-in-law—H. S. Gerson, munitions department employee who is also charged—had access. In some instances there was evidence of contract changes being cabled to Moscow on the same day that cables were received from the United Kingdom ordering variations in production.

Name Appeared

The name of Poland appeared in the Embassy records as "Polland" but the Commission said the identification checked with that of Poland and there was no other R.C.A.F. officer with whom he could be confused.

Poland apparently was unsatisfactory from Zabotin's viewpoint at first and he suggeste to Moscow that he be turned ove to the N.K.V.D. Moscow turne the idea down because of th possibility he might later prov useful.

Zabotin's notebook containe another reference to "Polland saying he had provided a map o training schools and added "u to the present is not working."

The next notation in the note book concerned an unidentifie "Surensen," a naval intelligen officer who had gone oversea and the extract concluded. "Bo worked up to April."

All five appeared in Otta police court a short time aft the report was tabled in th Commons by Prime Minist Mackenzie King. Bail was s varying from $5,000 for Halpe in, Adams and Smith, to $3,0 for Benning and $2,500 for Po and, and they were remand until April 5.

THE COLOR OF FLOUR

report of the President's plan to improve the nutritional value of flour was published the stocks of white flour in retail markets and groceries were exhausted—by selfish, ignorant people. Selfish in grabbing a surplus for themselves even if they make it impossible for their neighbors to get any flour at all. Ignorant because the trifling change in flour is hardly noticeable anyway, except possibly in color. Bread made of the improved flour is not quite so white or rather it is a shade darker in color, so the technicians tell us.

I say the improved flour has greater nutritional value than the ultrarefined white flour has or had. It yields all the calories that white flour yields, plus more of the protein and more of the vitamins of the wheat.

The fundamental reason why certain interests deplore and oppose this improvement in the nutritional value of flour is of course that may be only the first step in the return to general use of flour that is nutritionally adequate, such as flour as everybody in America used prior to the introduction of the roller mill in 1840. What would happen to the flour monopoly if the stone mills came back to towns and villages everywhere? The interests enjoy their monopoly because refined white flour can be shipped anywhere and kept in storage for any length of time, where as whole wheat flour is likely to spoil or become "webby" (infested with flour beetels or weevils or their larvae) if stored for more than a few weeks.

Real whole wheat flour or Graham flour is wheat ground to meal or flour and unbolted — nothing removed, not even the bran (outer coat of the wheat kernel). There is a great deal of deception practised by vendors of wheat products about this. "Whole wheat" may mean anything.

Here is a statement concerning the nutritional value of flour, by a recognized authority — Prof. Norman Joliffe:

"It seems, therefore, that a 55% fraction of the calories in the American diet of 1840" (when everybody used real whole wheat flour ground in the local grist mill) "containing a minimum of 600 international units of vitamin B, has been replaced in the contemporaneous American diet by a like fraction" (the refined white flour today yields about the same number of calories) "containing only 50 units."

Whether or not the average American today gets most of his calories (55%) from refined white flour and refined white sugar, I do not know. But the shortage of vitamin B, (thiamine) in refined white flour is by no means the only defect in the modern "staff of life." Real whole wheat flour contains several times more calcium, phosphorus and iron than white flour, more protein, more fat.

May our daily bread grow darker and darker and better and better until eventually we get back to nutritionally adequate bread.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Eat No Zinc

It is more than two weeks since I asked for information about how to include zinc in my diet. An article in....magazine said lack of zinc is responsible for lack of thyroid. (L. R.)

Answer—I know of no scientific evidence that it is essential in human nutrition.

What, No Potato?

When you offered, as penance if you were wrong, to eat a plate of mashed potato, you appealed to my own peculiar taste. My friends expect me to fade away and die because I refuse to eat potato in any form.

(B. A. W.)

Answer—If you eat other vegetables it is insignificant whether you eat potatoes. But let's not be whimsical about it. The very sight of mashed potato makes me ...but I go for hashed brown, French fried or chips, and even the skins (only) of baked potatoes.

Hedging, Eh?

I am inclined to think your commendable but slightly hedging remarks about alcohol and tobacco arise from your unconscious urge to defend yourself against any suspicion that you might wear pink panties.

(J. W. C.)

Answer—From a survey of the patches and the holes in my few remaining garments it looks as though I'll be glad to get pink panties before long. But I'll worry along somehow, until the clothing dealers can supply my selection and are glad to do it. If you will indicate precisely what remark or remarks about alcohol and tobacco you consider hedging, I'll be glad to clinch with you.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

How did Arizona get its name?

"Arizona" is believed to be derived from the Papago or Pima Indian word "Arizanoc" or "Arizonaca," composed of "ari," small, and "zonac," spring, and literally signifying little spring or springs.

In 1736 Spanish prospectors found some large nuggets of silver near a desert spring a few miles from the present site of Nogales in a locality that the Indians called Arizonac or the place of the small spring.

The Spaniards applied the local Indian name to the entire district, which they also sometimes called "Pimeria," from the Pima tribe that lived in the region. Some authorities say that "Alehzon" is a closer approximation to the Papago Indian word than is "Arizona."

It has been suggested that "Arizona" may be derived from Aztec "arizuma," meaning "silver bearing," but the similarity is probably only a coincidence. The theory that the name is a clipped form of Spanish "arida zona," arid zone or dry belt, though plausible, seems to be without foundation; but the dryness of the country and the similarity of the Indian and Spanish phrases may have influenced the Spaniards in adopting the name.

Probably the first white men to set foot on what is now Arizona were members of the expedition of Marcos de Niza, an Italian Franciscan friar in the service of Spain. In 1539 they travelled from Mexico across the southeastern part of Arizona to the Zuni country in New Mexico where they discovered the "Seven Cities of Cibola." Fray Marcos de Niza the next year acted as guide to the Coronado expedition.

Arizona was claimed as a territory of the Confederate States of America before it was created a Territory of the United States in 1863. On June 20, 1910, Congress passed an "enabling act" providing for the admission of both Arizona and New Mexico. New Mexico was formally admitted January 6, 1912, and Arizona February 14, in the same year.

Arizona has several nicknames. It is known as the Baby State because it was the last Federal Territory to be admitted into the Union as a State. This nickname, however, would have to be yielded up in the event another State came into the Union. It is also variously known as the Sunset State; as the Valentine State, because it was admitted February 14, and as the Apache State, because it was the home of most of the Indians of the Apache tribe.

FINED $4000

Toronto March 30 —(CP)— Fred Letoskey owner of the Streetsville Creamery yesterday was fined $4000 and costs or three months when he pleaded guilty to a charge of supplying butter to a Toronto bakery without receiving proper documents. Eugene Combaluzier and Ernest Meunier, proprietors of the bakery, were fined a total of $4,200 earlier this week on charges of acquiring butter without surrendering ration coupons and paying higher than ceiling prices.

AT BELLEVILLE where Cardinal McGuigan stopped off to visit Rt. Rev. J. F. Nicholson, centre, the Church of St. Michael the Archangel was crammed as the cardinal said mass.

PREVIEW OF THE WARM WELCOME awaiting him in his home city was given by the crowds at the Oshawa, Ont., station when His Eminence made his first stop in his own archdiocese. Children from the separate schools attended in a body.

The Experts Say

By HELEN BANNERMAN

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, March 30 (CP)—With Canadians more than willing to co-operate with Prime Minister King's program to cut down on consumption of cereal foods to provide more food for starving countries, the biggest problem is means to make the cut.

Wheat for domestic milling is being reduced by 10 per cent on the basis of 1945 purchases and these suggestions on the saving of wheat in the daily menu will be helpful.

For breakfast serve corn flakes instead of wheat flakes or other prepared wheat cereal. Buckwheat cakes take the place of pancakes, which contain wheat flour, or toast.

A thick, clear soup such as vegetable may be substituted for cream soup, containing wheat flour, at lunch. Pea soup also makes a nourishing luncheon dish. Gelatine desserts and custards can take the place of puddings, or stale bread may be made into delicious variations of bread pudding. Oatmeal can be substituted for bread crumbs in meat loaves and other dishes which can be helped by a bit of "padding."

The marketing service of the Agriculture Department Consumer Section says the best way to prevent bread waste is to buy it in quantities that can be used before it becomes too stale. Keep bread well covered and cool to prevent moulding or drying out. If there is room in the refrigerator it is an excellent place to store the well-wrapped loaf, otherwise see that the breadbox is well ventilated. However, do not keep bread in waxed paper if it is not stored in the refrigerator for the danger of mould increases.

The bread box should be frequently washed with hot water and soap, then scalded with clear boiling water, dried and aired in the sun if possible.

If bread does become dry it is easily made into melba toast which is so often served in smart restaurants and hotels. Cut the bread in very thin slices and toast in the oven until thoroughly dry and lightly browned. French toast turns stale bread into a special dessert or breakfast dish.

A special bread pudding recommended by the Consumer Section is Chocolate Crumb Pudding, which requires 3¾ cups of milk, two cups soft bread crumbs, 1/3 cup sugar, ½ teaspoon salt. two eggs, ½ teaspoon cinnamon. Heat the milk to scalding point. Add bread crumbs and let stand until soft. Combine cocoa, sugar and salt and add to beaten eggs. Add this to milk and crumb mixture, stirring well. Add flavoring. Pour into a greased pudding dish and oven-poach in a moderate oven, 350 degrees fahrenheit, or steam about one hour. or until set. This makes six servings.

Did you ever envy a cat its ability to see in the dark? asks the Nutrition Division. The matter comes up in connection with the present shortage of butter, the best source of vitamin A which takes care of eye health and prevents night blindness. However, a good nutrition rule to follow is that naturally yellow and orange foods generally contain a lot of this important vitamin. Some of them are carrots, squash, pumpkin, red peppers, tomatoes and yellow corn. Use them cooked or raw, use them often and make the servings large.

SERVANTS GALORE . . . BY WIRE

● The time to solve the servant problem once and for all is when you are building or "modernizing" your home. The greatest modern domestic servant is electricity. How well and to what extent electricity can serve you, now and in the future, depends on how well your "servant's entrance" is designed . . . how wisely your home is wired.

Inadequate wiring limits the use of electricity. It leads only to inefficient operation of lights and appliances. But adequate wiring . . . three wire service to the house, with proper size circuits in the home and plenty of outlets in every room . . . overcomes these difficulties, and gives you full use of these modern servants.

Electrical home appliances increased rapidly in number and variety before the war. They are now reappearing and will continue to multiply. Homes that were wired only for the needs of 20 years ago should now be rewired to suit the wonderful new "electrical servants" to come.

Hydro's low-cost dependable service enables you to use these modern servants to the full if you have provided for them. In planning your new home, put adequate wiring at the top of your list.

If you are improving or building a home, ask your Hydro for the booklet "Adequate Wiring for the Postwar Electric Homes of Canada."

Weaving Cloth From Feathers

By ROBERT N. FARR
(In "Coronet" Magazine)

Among the startling achievements of American scientists in recent years, the new fabrics made from chicken feathers, peanuts, skim milk and seaweed are among the most remarkable. Production of these new fabrics promises to put more dollars in the farmer's pocket.

Today more than 100,000,000 pounds of chicken feathers go to waste annually. No one thought of using chicken feathers for cloth until a simple and cheap way of preserving them was developed by John I. Hardy of the Department of Agriculture. With the Hardy method, using common salt and hydrochloric acid, feathers can be kept in excellent condition for at least a month.

In manufacturing feather fabric, the fine elements (called barbs) of the feathers are separated from the quills with an especially designed machine. The barbs are mixed with other fibres spun into yarn by a special process. Thread is formed by drawing out and twisting the feathers, in the same way that thread in made from short wool fibres. The finished thread is lightweight and has a furry appearance.

While 100 per cent chicken feather cloth is not durable enough for some purposes, scientists found that a 50-50 combination of chicken feathers and wool would produce a fabric that will wear better and is warmer than wool. Decorative effects are achieved by mixing feathers with rayon, wool, cotton, nylon and other fibres.

Even the quills can be made into cloth by dispersing the protein in them. The synthetic fibre is called chicken feather keratin. It is like silk, but it is so elastic that it can be stretched 30 per cent. of its original length

An American method of making fibre from milk, developed by two Department of Agriculture scientists, has been patented by the government for the free use of the people. About 10,000,000 pounds of skim milk fibre are now being produced each year in the United States. One hundred per cent skim milk fibre looks and feels much like wool.

A bag of peanuts can become a dress or a suit, too, if you know the trick recently discovered by scientists in Great Britain and the United States. They have used peanut protein to produce a synthetic textile fibre, similar to wool, which can be mixed with other fibres to make fabrics. This process is still in the experimental stage.

In Scotland and California scientists are working on startling new uses for seaweed. British scientists already have produced from seaweed a cloth which had the appearance of nylon.

Too Many Curves? Here Are Ways to Slim Them Down

Grace McDonald finds exercise beneficial

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHEN THE curvaceous lady plans a diet that will starve her fat cells, decides to exercise to strengthen her muscles, she has the reducing problem packed in a nutshell and solved. She must cultivate will power so that she will continue her slenderizing pursuits. The tape measure and bathroom scales will bring joyful tidings.

Plumpie will tell you that she eats practically nothing. She may eat little, but the little helps to form bulges. A teaspoonful of butter will go right into the business of building adipose tissue. A peck of spinach won't add an ounce to her weight.

Cream Puff Shape

The girl with the cream puff shape has a cream puff appetite. She loves all the things she should not consume. Her appetite must do a turn-about. There is a wealth of good groceries from which she can choose. In time she will learn to like them.

Cereals are definitely out, especially if they are swimming in cream, covered with sugar. Toasted rye should be substituted for buttered white bread. Buttermilk, unsweetened lemonade, tomato juice, clam broth, clear soups, fruit juices are good for the heavyweight. Alcoholic beverages are fattening!

Green Salad

A green salad once a day is a must; it is filling and satisfying. The dressing should be made of lemon juice and mineral oil. Tea and coffee should be taken clear.

Exercise helps a lot. If the midsection requires neater lines, lie flat on the back in bed, hands under the buttocks. Lift the legs slowly until you are fairly standing on the back of your neck. Lower them slowly. When tired, relax, take ten long, deep inhalations; then at it again.

This exercise is good fun. It will have an effect upon the waistline, the hips and the thighs. If calves have expanded beyond pleasing proportions, walk tiptoe whenever you think of it. Use a jumping rope. Jump high, jump fast.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Patrons at the Cosmetic Bar

Realizing that the passengers who ride on this beauty wagon would like to visualize a salon where faces are made to order, your reporter sought out a pulchritude shop of national reputation, interviewed the grand priestess in charge.

Along one side of the room was a showcase filled with toiletries. Behind the showcase stood several attendants arrayed in rose-colored taffeta frocks, their coiffures perfect, their complexions to be envied.

Along the other sides of the room were little dressing tables, flounced with rose-colored net. On each table were mirrors, silver bowls for mixing powders, glass jars of tissues, jars of cream. Before the table the expectant customer sat curtained with a flowered fabric. All ready for modern make-up improvements. A smart little maid fluttered around, making herself useful. It was like a scene in a play.

There were half a dozen patrons receiving attention—a sweet thing who said she was to be married on the morrow, a grandmotherly-looking woman with white hair, several woman of middle age and a bobby-soxer. We all play the beauty game. There is no age limit.

The make-up expert makes a careful scrutiny of complexion, eyes and hair and, no doubt, takes into consideration type, size and character. The customer's face is cleaned with cream. Powder is applied—first one shade, then another, then a blending. Sometimes there may be five or six samples of different powders on the would-be-lovely's face. Maybe mauve or orchid is added.

When the right shade is found, the various tones are blended in the silver bowl, then poured into a box for the lady to take home. Oh yes, you have your choice of perfumes, too.

We all play the beauty game

Lipsticks are brought forth, ever so many of them. One color may be applied to half the upper lip, another shade on the remaining portion. That, it seems, is one way of making a perfect selection.

When the right lip hue is found, a rouge is selected to match. There is a great fuss made over eye shadows, the trickiest item of them all.

After these interesting tests, there is a cleansing treatment with a light oil, and the new make-up goes on. Fun? There's nothing like it to stimulate a hopeful attitude and to make you feel zippy. One leaves the place feeling resplendent and gay. No more problems as to what to use. One has had professional attention. That settles your problems.

Mrs. Willsher Says Her Daughter "No Spy But Noble Woman"

London, March 30. (Reuters)—Mrs. C. G. Willsher of London, said Thursday, that her daughter Kathleen Willsher, facing charges in connection with Canada's spy-ring investigation, "is no spy but a noble woman who had decided deliberately to sacrifice her career and perhaps her liberty to save the world from another war. I am sure she reached the conclusion that by keeping the secret of the atom bomb from the Russians we have put more fear into their hearts, and have so increased the chances of a third world war," she said. "So she did what she could to let them have the secret."

Bride in England Groom in U.S. Wed Despite Aurora

Pocatello, Idaho, March 30. (AP)—In spite of the Aurora Borealis, George Rossiter of Pocatello got married to his English sweetheart Thursday. Over a 5,000-mile telephone hookup that buzzed and faded and sometimes went dead altogether, he and Stella Fleming 18, of Steeple, England, exchanged vows. Justice of the peace listening in made the man-and-wife pronouncement.

The Meek Shall Survive

V. CRICHTON

Have you ever seen the ferocious looking Canada lynx, in its natural habitat. You will be agreeably surprised at its tawny colored thick fur, at its green wicked eyes and at the long tufts of black hair, springing upwards from the tips of the ears. You will marvel at the sleek streamlined powerfully built body, at the strong wicked jaws, which house its sabre like fangs, at the big powerful forelegs and the big fore-paws with their long rapier claws which make an imprint similar to a man's clenched fist in the snow and mud.

Truly a noble looking animal you would say, one to be compared to the lion, tiger and panther; one that would fight to its last ounce of blood and strength for its survival. Yet, will he? — Definitely not.

The lynx likes dry country to travel in. He has no den or home, but is content to make his bed under any spruce or pine tree that will afford shelter. He is carnivorous and woe betide the rabbit or grouse that he stalks. He is a good hunter, but will not tackle anything as large or larger than himself. He is a terror to anything small and shows a great deal of fight when tackling these smaller animals, but is a coward when some animal his own size comes along. In other words he is just a big bluff, for all his size and strength. He has no fortitude to fight for his own life. Once caught in a steel trap or snare, a piece of ordinary store twine will then hold him. he will lie down, making absolutely no effort to free himself, and slowly starve or freeze to death.

We once let a lynx out of a trap that was caught by a toe on the fore-paws. When freed he just lay there like a beaten dog and we left him. Ten hours after we came back to the same place and the lynx was still there in exactly the same position as we had left him and would have starved or frozen to death had we not taken a long pole and shoved him over. When he found that nothing was holding him, he did not stay in our company very long but made for the safety of the thick woods.

Most everyone has seen the industrious beaver or the evidence of them. Could you find a more meek and docile animal. Very small in comparison to the lynx, it has short legs, small paws, tiny mouth and sleek glossy hair. It is definitely not a hunter, but hunted.

The beaver is content to follow every wish and whim, in Spring or early Summer travelling downstream to explore new fields, basking in the sun or cooling himself in the water, enjoying life to the full and living the life of "Riley." Comes the middle of August he and his family start to get ready for winter and are the busiest creatures in creation from this time until freeze-up. During this period they cut and haul their winter's supply of food to their homes. This continues until the last night before freeze-up. In their spare time they will repair and build dams, repair and build houses and shortly before the freeze-up will plaster mud on their homes for warmth. During the long winter months, they content themselves in their homes, feeding on the bark of their food supply which consists of poplar and birch and very often jackpine and cedar which is stored under the ice.

The beaver is a harmless creature inoffensive to man or beast. They are strictly vegetarians. They do not wish for any part of other animals, but desire to be left alone. They make very good pets and can be tamed within two days. If left alone they are meek and mild. But once cornered or trapped they fight to their last ounce of strength for life that is so precious to all of us. They are more like the lion and tiger, when trapped or caught, and do not give up until they are definitely overcome, drowned or exhausted. When caught in a steel trap they will twist off their paws, if caught below the second point and free themselves; but under no circumstances do beaver chew off their paws as many people would have one believe.

Only the fit shall survive. Could this be one of the reasons why beaver are much more plentiful than lynx. It is the old biblical quotation come true once again. "The meek shall inherit the earth."

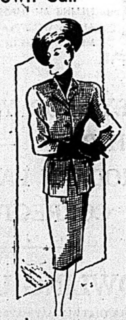
Elegant Town Suit



Featuring the longer jacket

By VERA WINSTON

THE LONGER length town suit lends itself to some expert dressing up, but is very, very smart on its own. Black and white checked woollen is the theme and the suit is shown here with smart black accessories. There is interesting detail on the jacket which turns back below the waist to form buttoned down pockets. Three black bone buttons fasten the single breasted closing. The outfit has small classic revers and the skirt takes the straight cut, narrow path.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

How to Acknowledge a Compliment

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

Last evening, after the business part of our club meeting was over, a group of us girls got on the subject of how-to-receive-a-compliment. The more we talked about the proper reply to make, the more confused we became, and we didn't at all agree on what attitude we should take when a man says something complimentary, and what reply we should make. Some of the girls admitted that they were always embarrassed. Some maintained that a man's compliments should be taken very seriously . . .and "implied" that's just what they did. But another girl and I said that we tried to be natural in our reply, saying something that showed we appreciated the compliment but that we didn't take it too seriously. I wish you would write something about these varying points of views, guide us as to which is right, and suggest proper replies to compliments.

Club Secretary.

It's certainly interesting to observe how a girl or woman replies to a compliment given her by a man! Some girls interpret any kindly intentioned remark with the greatest seriousness, as if it were a definite invitation to step right up to the altar. A man tells Miss A "how pretty you look in that dress", and Miss A, in her mind, instantly begins to plan her trousseau. She can't wait to see her girl friend, to repeat Jim's compliment, and to imply even to insist, that Jim "cares". She finds depths of significance in his remark, and her super-serious reply leaves him bewildered.

Then there are the girls who are always embarrassed and awkward when a compliment is given them by a man. This awkwardness results in their becoming either tongue-tied and saying nothing, or saying something pretty silly or graceless.

Too, there are girls who always take a compliment as something said with complete insincerity. When something pleasant is said to them, they, with a kind of inferiority complex, take the attitude that the person is talking down to them, and their reply is apt to be sarcastic, in the unattractive spirit of "Don't try to fool me, sir."

And there are the girls. . . . thank Heaven!. . .who like you and the one other girl, take a compliment as it should be taken, and reply to it with complete naturalness and courtesy. They take the pleasant remark lightly, with the give-and-take of today's "personal" world, and they would not think of reading deep, deep significance into the words, probably said most casually. They see no reason why Jim's polite words should tie their tongues, make them awkward, or throw them into a dither. They realize that some men pay compliments naturally, enjoying saying pleasant and appreciative things, and that others pay compliments with a certain automatic glibness.

But whether a compliment is said only casually or with great sincerity, it need not make much difference in a girl's reply. If someone makes a remark about your health. . ."How well you are looking". . . .You smile and say a gracious "Thank you", even if you don't feel particularly well. It's a good idea to take a compliment in just about the same spirit. If some gallant gentleman tells you "You look beautiful this evening" or "That dress is particularly becoming . . . . brings out the blue of your beautiful eyes", or "You're a wonderful dancer, Kay", smile your friendliest smile and say "Thank you'," or "Thank you so much. I'm glad you approve", or "How very nice of you to say so," or any other gracious something that shows you're a polite and appreciative person.

Fashion Flashes

IT'S EASY TO DO TRICKS with the aid of smart accessories. Just the thing for a plain back, gray or beige dress is a belt of gold knitted mesh, a big, bold belt with a big bold, stone-set buckle.

A HIGH FASHION AT Florida resorts, and slated for acceptance come Summer, is the white coat of heavy raw silk. A typical model has bloused, push-up sleeves, set-in, tied self belt, pearl buttons, and a high neck with small club collar.

SOMETHING HAS BEEN added to Summer daylight dining-and-dancing frocks. It's nylon marquisette, cool and lovely. This fabric, in black, will be shown in frocks with swirling skirts, full, bishop sleeves—some finely pleated—and deep, scooped-out necklines. Other frocks, done on simpler lines, features the softly cowled neckline.

FROM ALL ACCOUNTS, ONE of the major fashions is the suit with long, fitted tunic jacket, the skirt sold as a separate item. A two-tone gray and white checked woollen is used for a handsome suit. The fingertip tunic jacket has a small collar and high, peaked revers. Single-breasted four-button closing. Fairly deep armholes.

IF IT'S COLOR YOU LIKE IN your hats, then this is your season. Burnt wheat straw in a rough weave is used for a cartwheel hat trimmed with salmon-pink taffeta roses, gray-green leaves, and brown grosgrain bowknots. The entire brim is swathed in sheer brown tulle.

THERE'S NOTHING SO NICE for Spring as navy with white. Sheer, navy woollen makes a handsome frock with a draped skirt that is caught into a big, self hip-bow. Huge white pique cuffs are held by square navy blue stones. Cascade collar of white pique is easily detached.

No Amusement Parks

(From the New Yorker Magazine)

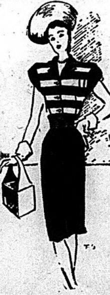
Now that we are in touch with the moon, it behooves us all to brush up on this interesting and timely satellite. The moon, which revolves urbanely around the earth at a speed of 2,200 miles an hour and at a mean distance of approximately 239,000 miles, or less than 10 earth circumferences, is one forty-ninth as big as we are and weighs only one-eightieth as much. It reflects only seven per cent of the light it receives from the sun, whereas we reflect 45 per cent. We don't wish to be chauvinistic and are all for extending the brotherhood of man to the moon if circumstances warrant, but it is a fact that the moon has absolutely no atmosphere and that its sky is black. No sunrise, sunsets, rainbows, twilight or dawn; no meteor flashes, northern or southern light, clouds, fog, wind, hail, snow or postmen. Still, many more stars are visible there than here, since there is nothing to absorb their light, and planets are more luminous. We are a terrible sight from the moon, for example: 80 times as bright at our full as the full moon is to us, and shining with a harmonious blue light. Uranus and Neptune are visible from the moon, and the sun is overpoweringly radiant with its corona and flaming prominences. No sound, though, on the moon—not a peep. The sun heats the moon's surface to 214 degrees Fahrenheit at the lunar noon; lunar nights, the temperature falls to 243 degrees below zero—153 degrees colder than the earth's chilliest record taken in Siberia.

A human being on the moon would probably explode, owing to general astonishment and lack of atmospheric pressure on his body, but if he didn't explode—or boil or freeze to death or perish from an overdose of ultra-violet rays—he'd have no trouble high-jumping 24 feet or broad-jumping 30, since the pull of gravity there is only one-sixth what it is at Madison Square Garden. He couldn't throw a curve with a baseball, however or sip water through a straw. Shadows are much darker there than here, and the moon's meteor's plop all around, whereas ours usually burn up from friction as they fall through the earth's air blanket. Although the moon's diameter is only 2,160 miles to our 7,927, its tallest mountain rises five miles (cf. Mount Everest's five and a half) and its greatest deep descends 24,000 feet. Two of its ranges are called, down here, the Apennines and the Alps, and some of its depths have Latin names meaning Sea of Clouds, Sleepy Marsh, Ocean of Storms and Lake of Dreams. These titles were bestowed by Riccioli, an Italian Renaissance Jewish astronomer who also took the liberty of naming one of the larger craters after himself. More than 30,000 of these holes have been counted; the largest exceeds the area of Rhode Island. If there is life anywhere on the moon, it is probably in one of them, the Lime Crater, where some scientists think they may have detected traces of air and moisture. They also think the moon is full of jagged volcanic pebbles and of rocks which would be igneous here, like the Palisades. There are no amusement parks on the moon.

NEWLY-DESIGNED LINGERIE

Notes of whimsy mark some newly-designed lingerie. A white satin slip has a hem and neckline design made up of handpainted tiny flowers and bows that spell out "forget-me-not." Nice for a trousseau or as a gift to a dear friend.

Spring and Summer Dress



Featuring the longer jacket.

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

A SMALL but very select wardrobe might include a dress of the type shown here, a dress right for resort or home wear, for all spring right into summer. The fabric is navy blue crepe with broad white bands on the bodice. There is nice detail on the short cap sleeves worked in one with the shoulder stripe. The skirt has inverted tucks below the waist and concealed pockets on either side.

Sweet and Dainty

A sprinkling of sachet makes linens luxurious

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHEN GRANNIE was a young lady, she bought little jars of sachet powder. She also bought satin ribbon and absorbent cotton. She sprinkled the powder or granules on the cotton, made little satin bags, spending hours doing tiny stitches along four sides.

Now, what woman has time to do that? It isn't necessary. Sachets come to us in charming forms, ready to use. One can get perfumed satin balls with satin cords attached to put on clothes hangers. The entire wardrobe will carry a delicious fragrance.

Sachet Tablets

The time has come when women like to have their homes and all their belongings smell nice. So they tuck sachet tablets between the sheets, pillow cases and blankets in the linen closet. For this purpose, they prefer lavender, which, for some reason or other, is associated with linens. It's nice to have towels and table cloths carry this fresh odor.

Tucked in coat pockets, sachets will serve the purpose for which they were intended. Often the fragrance will last for months.

By the use of sachets, one can cut down the perfume overhead which amounts to considerable these days.

Bath Powders

Pleasantly perfumed bath powders and make one feel affluent. The heat of the flesh intensifies the elusive yet insistent scent which is kept alive for hours.

Pin a cotton or satin pouff in your brassiere or slip. Of course you will have sachets in handkerchiefs and glove boxes. Some smarties sew them in their hat crowns. That's all right, too, if the shampoo date is always remembered. Cleanliness comes first!

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Disagreement Over Training of Their Children

If there's one subject on which it is vitally important that a husband and wife should agree, it's the one that has to do with bringing up their children.

For parents who differ radically on this topic are not only likely to ruin the relationship between themselves, but they are laying the groundwork for nervous and emotional instability in their children that may have disastrous results in later life. Many a chronic illness to which grown men and women fall victims, whether in the form of a physical, nervous or mental disease, had its actual beginning in their early childhood as a result of unwise parental handling.

Here is one of these unfortunate situations:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"My husband and I get along very well, except that we disagree as to the proper training of our two boys, 11 and 12.

"Before the youngest was born, his father said he was going to see to it that the older boy would not be slighted when the baby arrived. He has, therefore, lived up to this idea, and never played with the younger boy, bestowing an extra amount of affection on the older one, whose feelings are very easily hurt.

"Now that the boys are older, their father doesn't show so much partiality. But when I ask the older one to do something, he refuses, even though I ask him several times. If I say I will have to punish him, he flares up in a temper, says I have no love for him and runs crying into another room even without punishment, and refuses to eat his meal. His father, who has been telling me in his presence not to punish him, pats him on the shoulder and babies him up. He will not insist that the boy obey me and do so immediately, and the boy, knowing that his father will back him up, makes a fuss and works on his sympathy. This is causing many unpleasant arguments and a lot of hard feelings in the home.

"My husband will do no home training himself, and says I should coax, not give commands or punish. Now I think a little coaxing may be all right sometimes, but don't you think a child of this age should not have to be coaxed and petted in order to get him to do things? If he is, he will never be able to pull away from Dad's apron strings and know the meaning of prompt obedience and independence in later life.

"A Worried Mother".

You are perfectly right, and this older boy will certainly have no chance, under such a program of petting and spoiling, to develop the qualities he will urgently need in later life. With the best intentions in the world, your husband is adopting the worst possible course in dealing with the boy, meaning to help him but actually doing him serious harm in keeping him an emotional baby instead of allowing him to become the manly boy he should be. That boy is headed for trouble right now, and needs wise guidance and firm—but not necessarily over-strict-handling if his character is not to be warped.

Your husband had the right idea that, when a new baby arrives, an older child's rights should be carefully safeguarded so that he will not feel pushed aside in favor of the newcomer. But he has certainly carried the idea to a dangerous extreme. And it is particularly unfortunate that he opposes you, and backs up the boy, in the boy's presence.

Try to get your husband to talk the whole situation over with you quietly and calmly, in private, and work out with you a program that you both agree to follow. No doubt you have done this before, but keep trying, without quarrels or bitterness.

Smythe Predicts Philadelphia Will Join N. H. L. Next Season And 60-Game Schedule Played

Managing Director of Leafs Says Team Must be Rebuilt Drastically

Toronto, March 30 — (CP) — Conny Smythe said today it is "quite possible" a Philadelphia entry will swell the National Hockey League to a seven-team circuit next season and, in that event the present 55-game schedule may be increased to 60 for each club.

"I have been talking with directors of the Philadelphia club and they are confident everything will be in readiness for entry next winter," the managing director of Maple Leaf Gardens said during an interview concerning rebuilding plans of Toronto's NHL Leafs.

"All other leagues are playing 60 games or close to that figure and they have discovered the longer schedule tends to increase rather than decrease the interest of the fans," said Smythe, just returned from a scouting trip that followed a Florida holiday to recuperate from war wounds.

"A 60-game schedule would mean 30 home games for each club and would mean extension of the season by an extra week or two."

Must be Rebuilt

The faltering Leafs, out of the playoffs this season for the first time in 16 years, must be rebuilt drastically, Smythe said, and, as part of that rejuvenation process, minor league affiliates must be stocked with up-and-coming youngsters.

Only players considered capable of catching a place with Leafs would be invited to training camp next fall. Agreements with Pittsburgh of the American League and Tulsa of the United States Hockey League were being renewed.

"To build a championship team you've got to build a strong foundation," said the former artillery major. "The only way to do that is to keep your supply of talent flowing freely. You've got to have four or five youngsters in the minors capable of stepping into the big time. In addition, you've got to have another half dozen who are just two years away — and so on.

"That wasn't done when I was overseas and that, in my opinion, is the true reason for the plight of the Leafs now. It may take a year or two to remedy that situation.

Some to Make Grade

Players on the Leafian list who are not invited to training camp next fall will train with Toronto affiliates. Considered likely to make hte grade with Leafs next season are Garth Boesch, Joe Klukay and Jimmy Thomson, now with Pittsburgh but Leaf property.

Tulsa will be utilized as a "seasoning centre" for Toronto's first-year rookies, kids just out of amateur ranks.

"I intend to take two or three present Tulsa players to training camp next fall, perhaps Gus Mortson and Johnny McCormack," Smythe said. "We will replace these boys at Tulsa with some of the finest junior players in Canada — boys who are helping St. Michael's College and Winnipeg Monarchs in their Canadian title hunt."

Three Juniors Ready

He said three juniors to be given a trial next fall are Tod Sloan of Falconbridge, Ont., forward with St. Michael's College who led the Ontario Hockey Association in point-getting this season; Don McRae, wingman with Winnipeg Monarchs, and Eddie Cutts, rugged rearguard with Oshawa's junior Generals who was signed to a professional contract the other day.

Nucleus of next season's Leafs are seven members of this winter's team who have signed 1946-47 contracts. They are goalie Turk Broda, defenceman Bob Goldham, and forwards Syl Apps, Billy Taylor, Gaye Stewart, Bill Ezinicki and Bud Poile. Others counted on are Pete Langelle, Ted Kennedy and Joe Klukay.

The defence will be renovated, Smythe said, and built around Goldham. He made no mention of defenceman Babe Pratt or Wally Stanowski, but hinted he may gamble on the two youngsters, Thomson and Mortson. He also expects to close a deal for another rearguard.

Spring Double Attracts British Betting Public

London, March 30 (Reuters) — Britain's greatest annual "lottery" —picking the winners of the Lincolnshire Handicap and the Grand National—now is well under way with a betting public bigger than ever before avidly scanning the racing specials for clues to the victors of the "spring double."

The Lincolnshire, opening big race of the "flat" season will be run next Wednesday, the Grand National, gruelling steeplechase, follows two days later.

All winter, turf enthusiasts have been trying to guess the winners of both events, linking them together in what they pray may prove a profitable double. But the spring double is ordinarily a bookmaker's harvest. Paradoxically, the Lincolnshire winner has for years proved the harder to predict, although this race is a simple mile on the flat, while the Grand National is a tough 4¼ miles "over the sticks."

Experts relying on last year's form speak favorably in the Lincolnshire of the American-owned Colonel J. H. Whitney's four-year-old Hyperion colt Battle Hymn, winner of the Royal Hunt Cup last year, now standing at 40 to 1.

The Grand National is regarded as a virtual walkover for financier James Rank's famous Irish chaser, Prince Regent, recent winner of the Cheltenham Gold Cup.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By FRED KERNER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, March 30 — (CP) — Laurels for this year's sport success honors at Cambridge University may well go to a Canadian — six-feet two-inch, 189-pound Flt. Lt. Peter Macdonnell of Toronto — but belief that he is the first Canadian to win a blue as an oarsman for Cambridge in unfounded.

The big Canadian will have plenty of Dominion supporters cheering for him today when he lends his power to the Cambridge boat in the annual "Battle of the Blues" against Oxford. The remarkable thing about it all is that Macdonnell never rowed until a year ago.

But distinction for being the first Canadian on a Cambridge crew rightly belongs to Air Commodore Philip Livingstone, O.B.E., A.F.C., of Cowichan Bay, B.C. a consultant in orthalmology — it has something to do with the eyes —in the R.A.F. since 1934, Air Commodore Livingstone studied medicine at Cambridge starting in 1912.

The story came out when J. B. (Bart) Creighton, managing editor of the Cowichan Leader at Duncan, B.C., pointed out the seeming discrepancy in a yarn from Cambridge earlier this month. Creighton dug up clippings which quoted Livingstone as saying he was the first Dominion man to hold this distinction.

In 1914 he made the crew and rowed against Oxford. So, give credit where it's due. Meanwhile thousands of Canadians— Livingstone included — await results of today's race. The former Upper Canada College and Queen's University student has plenty of moral support from his homeland.

Boom Year?

Quebec province, a hotbed of lacrosse, is going all out this season to increase spectator interest. Now they've arranged for a series of inter-provincial games with Ontario teams and Q.L.A. prexy Dick (Boxla) Brayley expects to bring St. Catharines, Hamilton, Owen Sound, Toronto Lakeshores and Mimico to Montreal, Cornwall, Quebec City and probably Ottawa for the exhibition games.

The Canadian-American league has re-organized with four teams — two from Detroit and one each from Sarnia and Wallaceburg, Ont. — and the Quebec boxla moguls are hoping for several new minor loops in that province.

Odds-and-Ending:

The Saints copped three city titles this year with four entries and placed a couple of dozen players in various all-star selections . . .

One Senior Team, One Junior Team Out of Playoffs

(By The Canadian Press)

One senior team and one junior team were eliminated along the amateur hockey play-off trail Friday night, leaving only five teams contending for the Allan Cup and Senior Championship, and five for the Memorial Cup and the Junior title.

In the senior bracket Trail Smoke Eaters defeated New Westminster Royals 5-3 in the deciding game of their best-of-five series. In the Junior parade Montreal Canadiens knocked off Ottawa St. Pat's, winning last night's game 9-4 to take the best-of-three series in two straight games.

Tonight the Hamilton Tigers and the Pembroke Lumber Kings open their best-of-three Eastern Senior semi-final at Toronto. Tigers won the O.H.A. Senior title, knocked off McIntyre Mines for the all-Ontario crown and then eliminated Saint John Beavers in an Ontario-Maritime play-off. Pembroke won their way to the eastern semi-final by disposing of Cornwall Falcons in the Ottawa district final.

The third eastern senior team, Montreal Royals, awaits the winner of the Hamilton-Pembroke struggle. In the west, Calgary Stampeders have been waiting for the result of the Trail-New Westminster series.

In the Memorial Cup struggles Winnipeg Monarchs and Edmonton Canadians tonight resume their western final, a best-of-seven series that is deadlocked at one victory apiece.

Toronto St. Michaels and Copper Cliff Redmen also play today in the eastern junior semi-final, the winner to meet Montreal Canadiens. St. Mikes overwhelmed Copper Cliff by 13-2 in the first game Wednesday of this best-of-three series.

OXFORD DEFEATS CAMBRIDGE CREW BY 3 LENGTHS

92nd Boat Race Between Two Schools Rowed Before Thousands

Putney-on-Thames, England, March 30 (CP)—Oxford defeated Cambridge today in the 92nd boat race between the schools, rowed before hundreds of thousands of spectators on the Thames River.

Time for the 4¼-mile course was 19 minutes and 54 seconds.

Oxford's dark blues, outweighed seven pounds per man, gained a one-yard lead in the first 10 seconds and remained in front all the way.

The dark blues won by three lengths.

Oxford's "Midgets," the lightest crew for 40 years, and rowing in the shortest boat on record, proved all too good for Cambridge.

Colonel D. T. Raikes, the Oxford coach, said after the race:

"We won because we adopted the old orthodox method of rowing (with fixed pins as against Cambridge's swivel rowlocks) which has been followed since 1871."

The race marked the first time since 1939 that the crews had competed against each other over the historic course from Putney Bridge to Mortlake within the boundaries of London proper.

The race had been held over a sprint course during the war.

The historic sporting event attracted the expected thousands and Scotland Yard's bobbies were busy keeping the sport-mad crowd in hand. Exact figures for the spectators attracted were not immediately available, but it had been anticipated that the greatest crowds since VJ-Day would be attracted.

The Oxford eight was stroked this year by J. H. Neame, who spent several years as a war evacuee in Portland, Ore.

"A feature of our crew was their rhythm and they had learned to keep absolutely together," said Coach Raikes.

Although Cambridge won the toss, choosing the favored station, the Light Blues were unable to put it to advantage.

At one time Cambridge were firm favorites but they had met with illnesses, whereas Oxford have shown fine form in their recent work.

Peter Mcdonnell of Toronto, former R.C.A.F. officer and a graduate of Queen's University at Kingston, Ont., rowed on the Cambridge crew. The young Canadian is taking graduate studies at Cambridge University.

VERN STEPHENS WILL PLAY IN MEXICAN LOOP

American Home-Run King of Last Year Will be Suspended From Organized Ball

Nueva Laredo, Mexico, March 30 — (AP) — The Pasquel brothers, dominating powers of Mexico's Baseball League who have been flourishing huge bankrolls at major league stars to entice them to play with the south-of-the-border loop, have lured shortstop Vernon (Junior) Stephens from St. Louis Browns.

The 26-year-old infielder, who had been carrying on a stubborn holdout siege against the salary terms offered by the Brownies, said early today on his arrival here that he would play with the Vera Cruz Blues.

It was believed that the American League's home run king of last year had been offered at least the $17,500 he had been asking from the Browns. Stephens said he had been offered $13,000 by the Browns.

The Mexican circuit is not a member of organized ball. If Stephens signs the contract with the Pasquels and is not on hand with the Browns for the opening of the American League season April 16, he automatically will face a five-year suspension from organized United States ball.

THE BOATSWAIN'S PIPE; One of the oldest and most distinctive pieces of personal nautical equipment. Mentioned by Pepys in his Naval Notes, and Shakespeare in "The Tempest", the pipe, besides being a symbol of office, is used at the reception of naval personages, and is a distinct nautical courtesy.

LESSON NO. 949

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

When you "get the pip" in bridge, it does not mean you have a slight indisposition. You have merely recognized the card from what it shows in the corner; the symbol with number or letter.

The dictionary says a pip means a spot on a card. My suspicion is that the "pip" comes from being the "peep" part of the card. It means the identity in the upper left or lower right corner.

When a player leads a small card, it is assumed to be his fourth best; the fourth from his highest in that suit. If it is, how many higher cards in that suit are held by the other three players?

If you ever want to know, take the pip of that lead card and subtract it from 11. The answer you get will tell you how many higher cards in that suit all three of the other hands hold.

To get that information, why pick on the numeral 11 from which to deduct? Why not subtract from some other number, like 13 or 52 or something out of a hat?

I'll give you the reasons before long. At the moment, concentrate on taking away from the numeral 11 and no other. The answer will always be correct. It will never be wrong. Never, never, never.

Sit east when the diamonds in the four hands of a deal are as you see them here:

NORTH
♦Q 9 7 4 2

WEST
♦J 8 6 3

EAST
♦K 10 5

Your partner in the west leads the trey. The pip of his card is three. Deduct it from 11. The answer you get is eight. So, north and east and south must have eight diamonds higher than the three.

You see four higher than the three in north dummy. Three higher than the three are in your own hand. South can have only one.

The deuce in dummy tells you that south has no diamond lower than the three. So, south's diamond higher than the three is alone.

When partner can count your winnings may mount.

Hollywood, March 30 (AP) — Do politics and acting mix? Will Rogers, Jr., hopes so.

Late this fall young Rogers is scheduled to portray his father in Warner Brothers' movie version of the humorist's life. Before that time he will be campaigning for the United States Senate.

"I don't see why it wouldn't work," he remarked. "After all, it isn't that I'm an actor. I'm not. I merely intend to do this one picture and then quit. And all the money I get from it will go to charity. It's just the same as if I were writing a book. I would take a few months out to write it and donate the proceeds to charity."

A former congressman, Will said his only acting experience was in high school and college plays.

Young Rogers is extremely reminiscent of his famed father. He has the same twinkle, the same unruly hair, the same slouchy walk.

British Ronald Colman will play the Bostonian lead in "The Late George Apley," a film version of John Marquand's novel. Wonder what Boston will think of that casting?

AT THE BELLE — The romance between star Danny Kaye and leading lady Virginia Mayo in "Wonder Man," is subject to some hilarious interruptions when the ghost of Danny's twin returns. Danny's latest vehicle is a lavish Samuel Goldwyn filmusical in Technicolor, filled with lovely girls, gay tunes and riotous comedy.

AT THE McCARTHY — Fred Brady, Marjorie Reynolds, Jinx Falkenburg and Allen Jenkins, featured players in Columbia Pictures' new musical "Meet Me on Broadway," next at the McCarthy, have much to do with the sparkle and fun of this yarn about a Broadway producer crashing society. The screen's newest Inner Sanctum story, "Strange Confessions," featuring Brenda Joyce and Lon Chaney is the second feature.

AT THE CAPITOL — Eddie Bracken and Diana Lynn are paired as the romantic twosome of Paramount's "Out of This World," tuneful comedy coming next to the Capitol Theatre. On the same program "The Conspirators," starring Hedy Lamarr and Paul Henreid.

ROCKEY GRAZIANO PLASTERS SERVO IN SECOND ROUND

Chalks Up Seventh Kayo in Eight Last Trips to the Post

By SID FEDER

New York, March 30. (AP)—Rocky Graziano, having caved the roof in on welterweight champion Marty Servo, has outgrown all his old catchers among the 147-pounders and is ready to start in the middleweight bracket where he belongs.

The talk around and about today was that Rocky would be seen next throwing his high hard one at Tony Zale's middleweight championship in July.

Tony already is signed for that title defence, and the record $173,163 chipped in by last night's Madison Square Garden crowd to see Rocky kayo Marty in 4 minutes and 52 seconds should be the clincher.

That doesn't take into consideration the ballot stuffed in the box by Sugar Ray Robinson, the uncrowned king of the welters, who say Rocky, sporting a 7 1-2 pound weight pull, put Marty to sleep in the hottest betting and biggest money match in ring history among two little men.

Ray stepped right up in meeting to say he's willing to show up against Rocky a week after his scheduled welterweight title tussle with Servo May 24.

Chalking up his seventh kayo in eight trips to the post, Rocky began measuring Marty from the opening bell. After just missing twice in the first round, Rocky landed in the second heat of the non-title fight. He put Marty down three times. When the game little champ from Schenectady, N.Y., got up for the third time, even Referee Donovan got the idea.

Servo weighed in at 144 1-2, against Graziano's tight 152.

WHOLESALE PRICE CEILING

New York, March 30 — (AP)— George Bernard Shaw has signed to play baseball with Decatur, Ill., of the Three-I League this season, but he's not the guy you're thinking about . . : this G.B.S. comes from Metropolis, Ill. . . . and, besides, 90-year-old ball players are out now that the war is over ... Julio Jiminez, the Mexican, lightweight, is a real artist but prefers boxing at such places as St. Nick's . . . He just doesn't care for the easel life . . . the proposed permanent ban on ball players who jump to the Mexican League isn't exactly a new idea. Back in 1904-6 when the Tri-state League was an "outlaw" circuit that took a lot of players from the majors, the minors decided to bar the jumpers for life. But the big league presidents, Harry Pulliam and Ban Johnson, cancelled the ban.

Anecdote

Best story of the recent basketball tournaments concerns the visiting athletic director who bought a lot of tickets for alumni and friends. He had a heck of a time explaining it.

Briefs From Training Camps

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 30—(AP) — Don't be surprised to see Mel Ott at his favorite right field post come opening day at the Polo Grounds. New York Giants' manager, who has been nursing a pair of Charley Horses since the first day of spring training, played a full intra-squad game yesterday.

Daytona Beach, Fla., March 30—(AP) — Southpaw Joe Hatten, Brooklyn's much-publicized rookie pitcher, gets his unveiling against big-league opposition today against Washington Senators at Orlando.

New Orleans, Fla., March 30—(AP)—A look into the records showed today that manager Joe McCarthy's three lefthanders, Joe Page, Jake Wade and rookie Bill Wight, have done some fine pitching this spring for New York Yankees. In 17 innings against St. Louis Cards and Boston Red Sox, Page has yielded 11 hits and three runs. Wade, in 12½ innings against the Cards, Detroit Tigers, Red Sox and Cleveland Indians, allowed 13 hits and four runs, and Wight gave up only four hits in 11 innings against the Cards and no earned runs.

Lakeland, Fla., March 30—(AP) —After assigning infielder Frank Drews to the Indianapolis farm club, manager Billy Southworth picked Johnny Sain and Jim Wallace as his Boston Braves flingers for today's opener here with Detroit Tigers.

Sarasota, Fla., March 30—(AP) —With the long trip north just ahead, manager Joe Cronin has started to pare his huge Boston Red Sox squad. In addition to pitcher Emmett O'Neill, who was waived to Chicago Cubs, outfielder Pete Fox was given his unconditional release, along with catcher Herb Bremer, Lloyd Richards and Bob Garbark.

Bisbee, Ariz., March 30—(AP) —Cass Michaels, 20-year-old shortstop who came off the sandlots two years ago, loomed today as a threat to Luke Appling. Michaels smashed a triple, double and single to help Chicago White Sox beat Pittsburgh yesterday, 6-3.

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 30—(AP) — Above the .500 mark after three straight victories, Philadelphia Athletics are scheduled for another set-to with their Toronto farm hands today. The A's now have won 11 and lost 10. Manager Connie Mack used only nine players in beating Louisville 11-6 yesterday and seems about set on his regulars.

Miami Beach, Fla., March 30—(AP) — Pared to near fighting strength by the release of 22 players, Philadelphia Phils will tackle New York Giants today. The Phils continued their slugging yesterday, slapping out three doubles and a triple as they downed Baltimore 3-0.

RULE DANCES PROHIBITED

Toronto, March 30 — (CP) — Following complaints of drinking and immorality by patrons of public dances at the Canadian Foresters Hall on College Street in midtown Toronto, the Board of Police Commissioners yesterday ruled that the dances shall be prohibited in future. They have been held four nights a week at the hall. One citizen told the Board "no one could explain the immorality that goes on, under our living room windows."

In Manhattan

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, March 30 (CP)— When the Theatre Guild revived "He Who Gets Slapped" recently, drama students got something worth discussing but amusement-seekers little over which to get excited.

Local critics split sharply on the merits of the melodrama by the late L. N. Andreyev, first seen here nearly 25 seasons ago. The majority found it self-conscious, pretentious and lacking in substance, but some insisted it had retained "poignance . . . strength . . . beauty."

Its plot is a version of the familiar Pagliacci theme, with a clown whose heart is broken by a faithless wife turning to a circus-rider for solace, only to find that she too has a price. To the role of "He," Dennis King brings vigor and authority without much depth of emotion, and the acting of the rest of the cast is reasonably good.

"The Song of Bernadette" based on the late Franz Werfel's best-seller, has been transplanted to the stage by playwrights Jean and Walker Kerr without notable success. Like "Rebecca" it suffers in comparison to a previous film version that was able to follow the book more closely. Like the last play based on Mr. Werfel's work, "Embezzled Heaven," it was too much exposition and too much offstage action.

The story of Bernadette Soubirous, treated with simplicity and a cramped Broadway theatre. dignity and given a passable reading of the central role by Elizabeth Ross, is still not at home in

Hearing Deferred To Later Meeting

Toronto, March 30 — (CP) — The Ontario Hockey Association executive committee meeting last night deferred hearing of coach Charlie Conacher of the Oshawa Generals until a further meeting Saturday afternoon.

The executive had summoned Conacher, former Toronto Maple Leaf N.H.L. star, to appear before it to give reasons why he should not be suspended from hockey for continual abusive language during a junior play-off game here last week. The hearing was deferred because several of the Oshawa players could not be on hand until today.

The summons to Conacher followed a heated argument in one of the play-off games between Oshawa and Toronto St. Michaels at Toronto last week. St. Michaels went on to eliminate Oshawa by four games to two in the O.H.A. junior final.

The Past President's Medal was presented by George Panter of Gravenhurst, present president, to Ross (Dinty) Moore of Port Colborne.

The playing agreement between the O.H.A. and the Toronto Hockey League was confirmed and Sam Wells, president of the T.H.L., was added to the O.H.A. executive.

"DINA CASHMAN"

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

CHAPTER 17

Again in the wide, grim, rubber-scented passages of the City Hall where they had gone for the license; again in the clergyman's stuffy parlor, and the two strange and interested witnesses.

The Reverend Kirkham had been unmarried, but his housekeeper—or perhaps it had been his servant—had been glad to oblige; the other witness—what had been his name? Barker? —a neighbor living next door. And always, under and over all the other sensations, they were in the car again, rolling on and on and on.

Three times—or was it four times?—she had had to get out because she was ill! She had been ill in the hotel dressing room in Reno. Why had not Rogers been disgusted enough with her to abandon the whole plan? Why had he not walked out when his eyes had fallen upon the Cashman kitchen and the head of the Cashman family seated in his shirt sleeves at the cluttered table?

She must accept everything serenely, Dina told herself, and keep herself busy, and make them all, Rogers and the servants, like her.

Every morning her breakfast came upstairs on a tray at eight o'clock. At Mrs. Bucket's suggestion she stayed in bed for a while afterward, reading the newspaper or reading one of the old-fashioned novels.

At ten she dressed and went downstairs, wandering out into the garden if the day was fair, gathering flowers for vases, talking with the old Scotch gardener. At noon Rogers appeared; sometimes only to tell her that he was going to San Francisco and would be gone for both lunch and dinner, sometimes to lunch with her, completely absorbed in the newspapers and mail. Afterward he might tell her that he had to go on some errand; to see a stamp collector about a rare stamp he had heard he possessed, to see his broker, to interview banker or lawyer, and when he went he was perfectly willing to take her along.

Dina roamed about San Francisco contentedly enough, picked up little presents for her mother and sisters, drifted into a movie. She and Rogers would be quite silent, driving home, the man usually asleep.

But for dinner she always changed her dress and made her hair look as well as she could. And in the new gown that she and Mrs. Bucket had bought Rogers' eyes approved her, even though he rarely complimented her in words. Whatever chills or misgivings the day had brought were dissipated when she dressed and fires were lighted and she and Rogers talked through the meal. He laughed at her, asked her questions, and in the evening they played cards.

There was a small car for her use, not a new car, but far better than the Cashman's old jalopy. Dina could drive in the afternoon to see her mother and sisters. She had hesitated to make the first call, dreading questions and criticism, and had asked Rogers' advice.

"Just tell 'em yes and no," he had said. "And immediately ask questions. Keep 'em talking about themselves."

So Dina had gone down to make the dread visit and had found Rogers' counsel excellent. Her mother did indeed ply her with all sorts of queries, but Dina answered them briefly and amiably and brought the conversation promptly to matters domestic. Art's cold was better? How was Donny's? Myrna was going out nights; Pop oughn't to allow that.

The home kitchen struck her as strangely grimy and cramped after the bigness of the Holland mansion. Had things always been so cracked and stained, spotted and streaked?

Mrs. Cashman was doing the week's washing. She always washed on Mondays, the wet garments on the line in the yard even if the rain was falling. Sometimes they dangled and blew there for days.

Today she was sousing small articles up and down in the dishpan.

"What sort of a place are you living in, Dina?"

"The old Holland place. Near Burlingame, in the hills."

"Nice place?"

"Old-fashioned. But big and comfortable. You'll have to come up and see it sometime, Mama."

"That's what Pop was saying. You've got help, haven't you?"

"Oh yes."

"Cook?"

"Chinese cook."

"Is he real well fixed, Dina?"

"Yes, I guess he is. I never asked."

"We all thought it was Vere you fancied; seemed it was his uncle all the time," Ethel Cashman said innocently. "But what I can't get over is your falling in love with a man old enough to be your father. That gets me. Quite a few people, people round here, were asking about it. Tom O'Connor talked to Art."

"He did?" Dina's face crimsoned. "Here, I'll hang these out for you," she said. She went into the back yard with the familiar old basket of wet wash, stood at the line with the sweet, warm Spring breeze blowing over her forehead. Other women were hanging out wet Monday's clothes. Presently her mother followed her out and began to pin children's socks to the line in bunches of four and six.

"Don't you need more clothes-pins Mama?"

"Well, I could do with a few more, Dina. I declare, I don't know where they go!"

"I see Meyer has got his awning out." Dina stood stretching her shoulders, smiling in the sun. On her way home, she thought, she would stop at Meyer's and send Mama home a grocery order including clothes-pins and dish towels.

"What do his folks think of Mr. Holland's getting married, Dina?"

"He hasn't many folks. Vere's off on a sea trip, and his father—Vere's father—is a lawyer in New York with a second wife."

"Vere's mother dead?"

"No, she lived here with his sister, Mimi Holland. But I don't know that they know Rogers and I are married yet. The newspapers haven't printed it."

"What's the sense of keeping a thing like that a secret? It's got to come out. What do his friends think when they come to the house and find you living there?"

"They don't come, Mama. He lives almost alone, taking care of his place, fussing with his stamps—he's crazy about collecting stamps—and sometimes riding before breakfast. He has some horses there. Then there's a ranch down San Bernardino way, and he says in the summer he goes down there for about a month. But we've been married only two weeks tomorrow, and nobody has come in yet."

"Well, he's pretty well fixed!" her mother said, duly impressed. "He must have a lot, I should say, but seems to me that's an awful lonely way for you to live, Dina. But I suppose newly married folks don't mind that."

When she got home at five o'clock Dina gave Rogers a spirited report. She found him in the garden, discussing a bed of tulips, primulas, and hyacinths with McPherson, and they stood there together in the late bland flood of the sunset.

Dina had taken off her hat; her hair, damp from its pressure, was tight against her forehead in rings and spirals. Her face was a little pale from fatigue and from the unwonted warmth of the day, but the pallor seemed to make her blue eyes darker and her lips more red.

"So you got your mother clothespins? Rogers said.

"And dishtowels and everything else you could think of. The girls went with me, and we each took a basket and went the rounds at Meyer's. Peaches and soup and bacon and cake flour—everything! They all went home with lollipops, except Myrna of course; she was too grand. Meyer wants Myrna to come into the store this Summer, and she says that if she can hold the job she's not going back to school. She's only second-year high, though, and I don't believe Pop will let her."

"She impressed me as precocious, but she's pretty. Hello!" Rogers broke off to say in a tone of annoyance. "Here are callers!"

The approaching car swung round the drive, stopped. A woman jumped out and then a man. Aline and Andrew Havens. Aline came straight to Rogers, a newspaper in her hand.

"Is this true?" she demanded.

"Aline, hello!" Rogers greeted her amiably. "Hello, Havens. Nice people, to come see us!"

"Is this true?" Aline asked a second time, showing the newspaper. "I just saw it. We were driving down to Menlo and I happened to get a paper."

"Yes, of course," Rogers said pleasantly. "Geraldine, I'm afraid the news is out. We're in the evening paper. I should have supposed dear Caroline would have told you, Aline."

"Why it's preposterous!" Aline said indignantly. "Caroline and Mimi are in Honolulu," she went on. "I had no idea of it! Nobody had any idea of it! When were you married?"

"You know my wife," Rogers said, indicating Dina with a movement of his head. "Geraldine, you remember Mr. and Mrs. Havens?"

Dina stood disheveled and young and lovely against the sunset, her tawny hair an aureole about her forehead, the pale-green leaves and white spheres of a snowball bush behind her.

"Your wife! Oh, excuse me; I didn't see you," Aline said frigidly, then with reproach to Rogers: "And you never told me!"

"You never told me your plans with Mr. Havens here until about a fortnight before you hopped off to Reno with him. That's a nice little city, by the way. Geraldine and I took a leaf out of your book and went there, too. Perhaps the same obliging clergyman married you. Kirkham? Sometimes Kirkham," Rogers said, all in an unruffled, leisurely tone. "But come; let's go in. It's going to be cold out here in about a minute. Geraldine, what about scaring up something to eat and drink?"

"I'll see Hinz." Dina nodded and smiled as she escaped. She raced to the pantry, raced upstairs. Her new flowery dress; a wet comb dashed through her hair; changed slippers.

"You're all right," Mrs. Bucket said, helping her. "You look all right."

Dina descended, slackening her pace. She must be composed not breathless, when she entered the library.

Hinz was stooping to light the fire. A tray with glasses and bottles was on the table. Aline and Andrew and Rogers were still standing; all three turned as Dina came in.

She looked young and sweet in the flowery ruffles; the freshly combed damp hair had fallen into waves and curved about her face. She was still a little pale, and her eyes shone darkly sapphire in faint rings of shadow.

"Ah, Hinz has taken care of you, I see. And Chong is making us some canapes," she said composedly. She did not look at Rogers, but she felt his satisfaction with her behavior like a tangible wave that touched her.

"What are you drinking, Mrs. Holland?" Andrew Havens asked with his agreeable smile. He was mixing a highball for himself; Dina smiled in return.

"Nothing, thank you. Rogers tries to make me drink milk, but not at this time of the day!" she said. And then as the three others settled themselves by the fireside she pushed a leather hassock to the side of Rogers' chair and sat down, her shoulder touching his knee.

She had never taken this position before; she had not planned it; but something in Aline's hostility, her intolerance, had nerved her, and she knew she was right when Rogers changed his glass to the other hand and allowed his fingers to touch her shoulder in return.

"You shouldn't have bothered about food, Mrs. Holland." Aline said with a polite inclination of her head.

"Oh, it was no trouble," Dina assured her easily. "Chong loves to have someone to fuss over, and we don't keep him half busy enough!"

Little Benny's Note Book

I was taking a Saturday walk with pop and I thought I saw a cent on the sidewalk and I made a quick grab down and I wasn't mistaken, and I yelled, Oh boy I found a whole cent.

I'm glad it's no werse than that, I thought you had an attack of lumbago, pop said, and I said, Jimminy, pop, I feel pretty near as lucky as Lucky Leroy Shooster. He's always finding money, I said.

Then he's more to be pitied than envied, pop said, and I said. Well G, pop, why?

Because he'll grow up with the mistaken idea that money grows on bricks and the public sidewalks owe him a living, pop said, and I said, But gosh, pop, if he grows up still being lucky in proportion to his size, he'll find more instead of less, so he'll never need to worry.

I don't believe a werd of it, pop said. A penny earned always gives more sattisfaction than a nenny found, so I hope you're never unfortunate enough to inherit a lot of money, although on the other hand I would consider myself quite fortunate to earn a lot of money for you to be unfortunate enough to inherit, he said.

Which just then he quick stooped down and picked up something himself, saying, Yee gods, we must of struck a gold field, I found a dime, solid silver dime.

Well gosh, pop, you dont sound like somebody feeling unfortunate, I said, and pop said, By gollies that's true, I seem to be filled with an unaccountable sensation of elation that I dont seem to remember feeling the last time I earned a dime.

Well hay, pop, I bet somebody walked passed here with a hole in her pockit, I said. Shall we walk back slow and see if we can find some more? I said, and pop said, I'm afraid that would be undignified.

Only he kept looking down at the sidewalk the next couple of blocks just a same, only not quite as noticeable as I did.

AS RUSSIA WITHDREW FROM COUNCIL

Russia angrily quit the security council meeting when it lost its motion to postpone the Iranian dispute and the depleted council quickly heard Iran's charge of strong Soviet aggression. Gromyko, EXTREME LEFT, rises from his chair after announcing to the council that he was leaving that group. Other Soviet delegates get to their feet, in keeping with the Russian ambassador's gesture.

Helen has been here three days.

SPANISH CONSCRIPTS WATCH CAMP LOTTERY

Conscripts of the class of 1946 gather at their assembly point near Madrid, whence they will be distributed to various camps throughout Spain for military training. Camps to which they go are drawn by lottery to give each man a fair chance of drawing one near his home. The command of the draftee exodus is placing numbered balls in a cage in FOREGROUND. The cage is whir and the numbered balls decide to what camp man shall go.

Trees

By RALPH WIGHTMAN
(BBC Press Service)

London (by mail) — I certainly am not an expert on forestry but no man could live in the English countryside without feeling something of the magic and mystery of trees. I have often asked scientists for an explanation of the way in which water passes from the roots to the topmost leaves of a tall elm. They produce a lot of long words like surface tension, and capillary attraction, but they never give a reason which seems to satisfy themselves. They certainly never make the mystery one bit clearer to me.

As a modern farmer it may be that I should look on trees in woods as a cover for vermin. Rabbits come out of the woods to devour my crops. Foxes hide in woods to destroy my poultry. The magpies in woods steal eggs. The blue jays strip the immature green peas in my garden. Then, trees in hedges are an absolute nuisance. They kill the bushes of the fence with their shade. The cattle congregate under them in hot weather and the resulting dung produces a plague of flies. Farming is much simpler on the bare uplands of my farm where the only trees are one clump of ash by the dewpond at Hill Buildings, and six holly trees in the hedge of Long Ground.

In my chalk country the only natural trees are in the narrow river valleys, and these are almost all elms. I suppose the elm is the tallest of English trees and certainly one of the most beautiful. Perhaps some of its beauty to me is due to seeing it with an agricultural eye. Elms only grow on good land. If you take a railway journey through England you can easily pick the best farming land by the number and height of its elm trees. Most of the elms in my valley are in hedgerows. I doubt very much whether they were ever planted. In fact I believe that the English elm seldom produces much fertile seed and almost all new trees are developed from shoots which spring from the widely spreading roots. At one time farm agreements between landlord and tenant contained a provision whereby the farmer was paid some small sum for each elm sapling left untrimmed in a hedgerow.

The other trees in my valley and all the trees on the hill have been planted with some sort of plan. Perhaps a good deal of the beauty of England is due to the fact that although much of it was laid out according to plan, the plan was seldom the same for 2 parishes. England arose from the manors of Saxon days. A manor seldom covered more than two or three thousand acres, so that although one owner may have planted his forestry on one line, his neighbor in the next manor would almost certainly have followed a different scheme. Again, the numerous changes in soil within a very small area as had an enormous effect on the types of trees grown in different districts.

My own county of Dorset on the south coast is particularly rich in differing soil formations, and there is scarcely a tree known to the northern hemisphere which cannot be grown somewhere in Dorset. The palms of Abbotsbury would not shame the Riviera, and the pines of the waste land near Bournemouth could have sprung from the barren north. The oaks of Holt Forest built the ships of Nelson's Navy, and the ash of Cranborne Chase gave the straight grained handles for every farm tool.

I suppose that our forefathers did most of their planting with utility in mind, although in the 1800s there was a good deal of landscape gardening carried out. It was in those days that the rich new squires from the industrial north settled in the country and proceeded to convert themselves into country gentlemen.

The old manor houses were quite unsuitable for their needs, and many a Tudor house with its low ceilings, oak beams, and small windows, degenerated into a farm house. In their place arose vast mansions with high ceilinged rooms and large windows looking out over vistas of newly made park. These new manor houses survived for rather less than 100 years.

Most of the main rooms contained two fireplaces, but there was no central heating, only one bathroom, and they required an enormous staff of servants to keep them habitable. Today, many of them have been transformed to schools, or farm institutes, or social centres of one sort or another. The old cosy Tudor inconveniences have been rediscovered and in some districts there is a real agricultural danger from the city man who buys a farm merely to obtain an old house, and who has no interest whatever in the land attached to it.

The building of the great uninhabitable mansions of 100 years ago has enriched the countryside in one respect. Every one of these houses had its park and a feature of the park was the planting of trees. The manor house in my own village is a Georgian building inhabited by a financier who has no interest whatever in agriculture, but his park is one of those things which I remember whenever I hear the word "England." The main road passes his gates and opposite his windows a narrow valley winds up into the hills. The right-hand side of the valley is a beech wood, planted to give a vista from the manor windows, but at present forming the favorite Sunday evening walk for the village. Ever since I can remember it has been known as Lovers Walk. On the left-hand side of the valley the planting was mixed. Copper beech near the big house, then elms, then an avenue of ordinary beech and finally at the head of the valley where the stream rises a huge clump of horse chestnuts. On both sides, bordering the narrow meadow which twists into the hills, flowering trees like the bird cherry, and the Japanese cherry, make May a carnival.

These architects of the countryside 150 years ago deliberately set out to produce their effects, and we today can thank them. Long before their time many a wood was planted from a purely utility point of view. The slopes of the steep river valleys in Devon grew scrub oak. This was of little or no value for timber but it was copsed every dozen years or so to provide oak bark for tanning.

In my own country the steeper sides of the hills which could not be cultivated were planted with hazel and ash. The hazel was cut every eight or ten years for making into hurdles for sheep folding, and for spars for house thatching. The ash made poles for waggon shafts and was also used for hay cribs, and the stems of hay forks. Today, some of these plantations which were cut every ten years, or copsed as we call it, are lying more or less derelict.

We still call them coppices but they have not been cut for twenty years or more, and the wood in them is past any use. They are certainly a harbor for rabbits. It is becoming difficult to force a way through them. I should like to see them used once more in the old way for providing the needs of the farms, but whatever happens I should hate to see them destroyed. If their day is over as part of the economy of the countryside, well, let them stay for the amusement of the towns.

At the age of eleven I smoked my first cigarette in the depths of one of these coppices after creeping under 100 hazel branches to find the one yew trees in the centre of the coppice. It may be that that yew tree was once planted to provide wood for the long bows of England. To me it was a safe hiding place for illicit cigarettes. In March the whole of that derelict hazel wood is full of primroses and anemones. Purple dog violets flower wherever there is a break in the overgrowth. In May two miles of bluebells make a carpet which no man could copy. Later come the dog roses and the honeysuckle. On the coldest day in winter you can stand in the wood on six inch of leaf mould and no bitter wind can reach you.

There are other trees which were planted for utility. The line of firs on the stop of Cerne Hill was put there as a shelter belt. The poisonous yew trees in the churchyard were placed there for the making of long bows. It was the only land in the village where grazing animals would never be pastured. The small oak woods on the heavy land in the next parish were laid out to supply timber but also to provide cover for pheasants.

Perhaps in some districts the trees which remain are self sown survivors of ancient woodlands. I think this is true of many of the old oaks on the unfenced lands between Bournemouth and Southampton. This was the New Forest of William the Conqueror 1066, and it is still the New Forest. On the whole though most of the trees in my district were planted with a purpose — shelter belts, coppice timber, or merely for beauty. Today, the cost of planting trees is prohibitive for the private owner, and most of the new work is assisted or carried out by the Government.

The State foresters of my acquaintance are all men who feel their responsibility, not only in the economic production of timber, but in preserving the character of the countryside. In some measure they are forced by changing demands for types of timber, to favor the planting of dark, close-set woods of evergreens. They do manage to get variety, however, with the deciduous larch, and most of them slip in a few flowering cherries on the sunny boundaries of their new sombre forests. On the land which is too poor and too badly drained for the culture of their economic, regimented sticks, England herself still plants the loveliest, most useless tree of them all. Agriculturally it makes me shudder, but there is no tree I like better to watch than a silver birch on the edge of clear water.

Capital Closeups

By JACK BRAYLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, March 30 (CP)—There were some interesting historical sidelights and much good humor at the farewell banquet for Rt. Hon. Malcolm MacDonald, retiring British High Commissioner, here the other night.

For instance, the sprightly Mr. MacDonald disclosed he hadn't wanted to come to Canada in wartime and had told Winston Churchill he wanted to join the army.

Mr. Churchill replied that he would have to join as a private and Mr. MacDonald said that's what he wanted to do. Mr. Churchill told him he could only go into the army as a General and as he wouldn't make a good General he'd have to go to Canada.

Mr. MacDonald himself got the biggest chuckle when he referred to his new post as Governor-General of Malaya.

He pictured himself in the next few months as a possible subject for one of Somerset Maugham's tropical short stories.

"Shades of Sadie Thompson," he said, laughing with the audience. "I can see myself tossing back three stiff stingos, launching my sampan on the Pogo-Pogo and setting off on a crocodile hunt in uncomfortable heat—thinking perhaps of the comfort of 20 below zero and a speaking engagement before the Aklavik branch of the Institute of International Relations."

Breezy corner: The all-party agreement to complete the Throne Speech debate last Tuesday fell through and oratory continued apace with Little Chicago providing a bright spot in an otherwise rather dull program.

Little Chicago, named by its own members, is the noisy section of back bench government supporters to the extreme right hand corner from Mr. Speaker.

Their battle cry against long-winded opposition speakers has become the call of the duck—Donald Duck. And during divisions this week they introduced an old French-Canadian folk song that includes the line "Quand donc finiront nas tourments (when will our misery end) quack, quack, quack, quack, quack."

Soon Back To Civilian Size

Regina, March 29 (CP)—Supplies of service-size packages of 25 cigarets will soon be exhausted and all messes and canteens, active and reserve, across Canada will revert to civilian-size packages of 20 cigarets to be sold at regular trade prices, it was announced Thursday by Military District 12 Headquarters. The announcement said the decision had been made by agreement among the parties and the civilian sizes and prices would become effective when supplies of service-size packages of cigarets were exhausted.
